Paving the campaign trail with money

By Russ White
 HERALD STAFF WRITER

SEMINOLE COUNTY - The significant facts from the latest campaign treasurer's report summaries are that the two challengers in the Seminole County Commission races are not raising significant amounts of money.

Carlton Beasley, who is trying to unseat Wim Adams in District 4 had to loan himself $2,000 to collect $10,080 the last three months. He has raised $46,196.43 overall. Adams pushed his total contributions to $84,751.16 with $14,597.86 in the last quarter.

Bob West has $23,325 total contributions - $6,089.00 in the last quarter. He's running against Commission Chairman Randy Morris in District 2. Although Morris only began his

Deadly shoot-out acted out under waxing full moon; authorities debate lunar influence

SEMINOLE COUNTY - Did the waxing full moon have anything to do with Alan Singletary's maniacal behavior on July 8 when he killed a sheriff's deputy and wounded two others in a 13-hour shoot-out in Geneva?

For years many law enforcement officers and emergency room personnel say they feared for the worse on the nights with full moons. These were nights of numerous calls and sirens. Wolves howled and people acted strangely and often violently.

Many old police chiefs have said there was a distinct increase in crime under full moons - which start the day before and last up to three

Law enforcement agents and psychologists disagree on whether the full moon affects moods.

SEMINOLE COUNTY - The Seminole County unemployment rate was lower in June compared to a year ago, but slightly higher than May of this year.

The latest figures from the Florida Department of Labor show the county's ranking at 3.0 percent, tied with Alachua and Hillsborough counties, tied in this category as the fourth best in the entire state. Manatee and Monroe counties were lowest at 2.4 percent, second was Sarasota at 2.5 percent, third was Lafayette at 2.9 percent.

The 3.0 figure was slightly higher than the 2.8 percent in May, but better than the 3.4 percent in June of 1997. In comparison, the state's average was 4.5 percent, as was the national seasonally adjusted average.

Out of a work force of 213,137 in Seminole County, June saw 206,724 persons employed. The work force reportedly increased by 8,558 persons from June to June, while the unemployed number decreased by 842.

Mayfair meeting

The Sanford Historical Society will meet at the New Tribes Mission on Thursday, July 23 at 5:30 p.m. This is a dinner meeting so each person is asked to bring his own sandwich. Salad, beverage and dessert will be provided. Former Seminole County Commissioner Bill Kirchhoff, whose family owned the Mayfair Inn at one time, will present the program on 'The Glory Days of the Mayfair'. Following the meeting, brief tours of the first floor will be held. The meeting is open to the public but since space is limited reservations are required. Please call the Sanford Museum at (407) 323-8952. Look for coverage of the event, by Grace Marie Stinecipher, in the near future.

Vote gives Longwood citizens more input

By Jeff Case
 HERALD INTERN

LONGWOOD - Longwood citizens will now have two opportunities to oppose city budget decisions after a recent 3-2 vote by the Longwood City Council.

After Oct. 1, all city budget matters must be held as an ordinance, a change from the current resolution system. The new system will require a posting of budget changes and transfers, along with notification of a public hearing posted in newspapers, before any final budget decisions are made.

Under the old system, budget changes could be proposed and approved in one meeting, city council member Anna Marie Vacca said.

"By ordinance, people will have advance notice for any budget matter in the city," Vacca said. "Once the first reading of the [budget] change comes forward at a public hearing, two weeks later, we'll have a hearing on it."

Vacca adds that although the system may allow for greater public monitoring of Longwood's government, the ordinance system could be harmful in an emergency.

"In any emergency situation, say a hurricane blows through the town and we need money right away, in an ordinance situation, we have to talk about it two times," said Vacca, who voted against the ordinance system.

"Sometimes it can take up to a month to do," she added. "The newspapers love it because they can report on it."

Boaters, go slow on Econ River

By Shari Brodie
 HERALD FEATURE EDITOR

SEMINOLE COUNTY - Proponents of preserving the pristine nature of a portion of the Econlockhatchee River came out on the winning side of an important decision made at Tuesday's county commission meeting.

"We won," Rick Roberts said to Mike Martin in the commission chamber lobby at the conclusion of the public hearing on an ordinance to regulate boating speeds on the river, from Snowhill Road, south to the Orange County line.

Roberts, an eco-tourism guide, and Martin, senior forester at the Little Big Econ State Forest, are part of a liaison group that solicited help from the county commission to regulate a potentially dangerous situation, between boaters and canoeists, on the river.

"I think we're going to see a fatality on the river," said Martin. "It's just a matter of time."

The Division of Forestry office oversees the operation of the state forest, which borders both sides of the river. Martin said he has fielded complaints from residents and users of the river, who have seen an increase in power boat traffic, some of it reckless.

The river is a tributary of the St. Johns and flows southeast from headwaters in Orange County. Designated an "Outstanding Florida Water", eight miles of the river runs through the forest. Seminole County, a partner in the management of the forest, installed a canoe launch at the junction of the river and State Road 419, near Chuluota, and a take-out is located in the forest, near Snowhill Road.

Roberts said the Econ is "the jewel in the crown" of the county's natural areas. Narrow and winding, the river is challenging for canoeists and kayakers, but dangerous to high speed water craft.

"The river, in and of itself, is Please See Speed, Page 6A

Flea market on track in historic building

By Vicki Bellucia
HERALD STAFF WRITER

SANFORD - The Sanford Historical Railroad Flea Market is right on track for bargains in downtown.

The historic train station, built in the downtown historic district in the 1800s, has been empty for many years, even after being proclaimed a historic landmark.

More than a dozen vendors, all of whom moved from the East Colonial Flea Market which burned down two years ago, are in the market, buying, selling and trading their wares.

"Right now," manager Diana Ortiz said, "everyone's trading Beanie Babies."

Naturally air conditioned with large docking doors thrown open to let in the summer breezes, the flea market has a large variety of items that are inexpensive but of high quality. There is something for everyone, said Ortiz.

The manager and her cousin Mike Manero, who also owns the building, said they are "very proud" to have the opportunity to work with the people of Sanford and said they have had nothing but good experiences here.

"We are very proud to be able to help out the people of Sanford and to be a part of the business community here in town," Ortiz said.

She said the community has welcomed the vendors in their first month of operation and has done much to help them feel at home and to make them feel confident that Sanford is a good place to do business.

"We really like doing business here in Sanford," Ortiz said.

The vendors, she said, are a close-knit group. They work together on various projects.

For the Fourth of July celebration on the Sanford waterfront, they had planned to donate a variety of items as door prizes. When wildfires around the state forced the cancellation of the show and accompanying festival, the group as a whole agreed to donate the gifts to fire victims through the Red Cross.

"We wanted to help out," Ortiz said.

The Sanford Historical Railroad Flea Market is open Friday, Saturday and Sunday from 8 a.m. until 5 p.m. Beginning in September, and through the holidays, they will be open on Thursdays as well.

In addition to the station building, a caboose parked outside the facility contains several vendors as well.

There are still vendor spaces available. Ortiz is hoping for more antique dealers, produce sellers and a floral shop.

IN BRIEF

Generosity

SANFORD - Florida Solar Technology, Inc., of Sanford, has donated a solar pool heating system valued at $3,500 to the Make-A-Wish Foundation of Central Florida, an organization that fulfills the dreams of children suffering from terminal illness.

Florida Solar President Skip West and the Make-A-Wish Foundation have arranged for the heating system in connection with construction of an 18 by 33 foot pool, sold at cost by South Central Pool and All Pool owner Steve Bloodworth. The pool was installed at no cost for the family of seven-year-old Caleb Willis, who lives on Boggy Creek Road in Orlando.

The young Willis boy, who suffers from Leukemia, desired a swimming pool so that he and his six brothers and sisters could better enjoy summer afternoons.

Chase Groves

SANFORD - Engineered Homes, Inc. a Central Florida developer and builder has targeted the Chase Groves area of Sanford for its next residential venture.

The 3-year-old company has purchased an 83 acre parcel on Old Lake Mary Boulevard near Airport Boulevard for a planned 224-unit gated development called Egret's Landing.

Engineered Homes' President Igor Tepitaky says site development has begun and home construction is expected to start in August. The first homes are expected to be completed by this fall.

Egret's Landing represents the first residential undertaking in Seminole County for Engineered Homes, which posted a record 247 sales worth $24.1 million last year.

Office leases

ALTAMONTE SPRINGS - Realvest Partners, Inc. of Maitland has successfully negotiated four office leases at two different office buildings in Altamonte Springs.

George Livingston, president of the company said the leases total $185,300 and all four were negotiated by Realvest commercial leasing specialist Mary Jane Oandee.

One was with Cornerstone Publishing, Inc., for 3,000 square feet of office space at 1000 Robin Road in Altamonte Springs.

Another was for Bell Micro-products, Inc., 1,904 square feet at 1110 Douglas Avenue. At the same location, the third and fourth leases were for Ducharme Zasada and Leach, P.A., for 584 square feet and March Electronics for 539

Taste of Oviedo proceeds benefit Red Cross

By David Frazier
HERALD STAFF WRITER

OVIDEO - May was the last time anyone thought of Taste of Oviedo.

On Thursday, July 18, Oviedo Chamber of Commerce members were treated to one important but tasty leftover from that event.

At this year's Taste, a new precedent was set: donation boxes were set up at the opening of the annual festival of food, fun and entertainment. This is the first time in the four-year run of this event that any type of fund raising has been done. The donations were strictly on a voluntary basis. There is no admission to enter Taste of Oviedo.

The recipient of this year's Taste is the American Red Cross. "The decision [to give proceeds to ARC] was made before the tornadoes or fires broke out," said Rich Sloane, president of the Greater Oviedo Chamber of Commerce. "It is an upstanding organization and well run," Sloane said.

At the monthly Chamber luncheon Thursday, a check for $3,700 was presented to Elaine Heinrich, chapter chairman of the American Red Cross, by Oviedo Mayor Mimi Bruce and the former president of the Chamber of Commerce, Tim Slattery. The luncheon is held every month at Toucan Willie's Bar and Grill at the corner of Mitchell Hammock Road and State Road 419. This past Thursday also marked the third sellout for Chamber luncheons.

The Taste of Oviedo is a one day event where local food retailers and restaurateurs showcase their wares. In addition to eating, visitors can listen to music, stroll by the vintage cars of yesteryear, appreciate works at the fine arts exhibit and even compete against others in a culinary cook-off. Kids even have various activities to keep them busy.

Longwood firm tops off new airport garage

By Dana Wood
HERALD CORRESPONDENT

A Longwood construction company's innovative methods will soon make parking easier for travelers at Orlando International Airport.

DCC Constructors, Inc. formed HDC, a Joint Venture to design and build new garages on the airport's A and B sides. The Seminole County company had considered bidding solo on the $42 million expansion project, but decided a team approach would work better due to the project's size.

The other partners are The Haskell Co. of Jacksonville and minority-owned Construct Two Construction Managers Inc. of Orlando.

When completely finished, the multiple parking structures will double the number of spaces adjacent to the terminal. New ramps will give drivers easy access to the garages from the airport's departure level.

"It's been extremely smooth and ahead of schedule," said DCC Vice President Douglas Storer.

HDC topped off the first phase of the Beside addition early this month. At the company's request, Orlando officials issued the project's permits in phases, which enables the airport to make additional parking spaces available as each section is completed.

"It's to allow the owner to utilize that facility for their dire need of parking spaces," said Thad Chambliss, DCC project manager. "It's unusual. On a normal project, they would not do it. But GOAA (Greater Orlando Aviation Authority) needs the parking spaces so badly."

HDC plans to turn the first parking section on the B side over to the airport in August, three months sooner than anticipated. The entire 5,200-parking-space project should be finished in July 1999.

"We are building the parking because of our growth in 1998, we were the fastest growing airport in the world," said Carolyn Fennell, director of public affairs for the Greater Orlando Aviation Authority.

To avoid interrupting airport traffic, HDC pours all the major concrete slabs after midnight. The team's 250 employees park off site.

Explorer teens benefit from Mad Dog rampage

Today is...
RUSS WHITE

This is a warning to wannabe wrestlers Dennis Rodman and Karl Malone - stay clear of Sanford unless you want to meet up with "Mad Dog" Taylor.

A mild-mannered neighborhood cop by day, Mad Dog is one mean dude in the ring by night, a rasser who's never been beaten.

Actually, Mad Dog has only had two matches but he won them both and Sunday night he's ready for No. 3.

He's part of the Main Event of a card at Miss Libby's Barn on French Ave. Mad Dog Taylor and Chris Turner are matched against Bryan Austin and Bill Towers.

The doors open at 6 p.m. and the matches begin at 7 p.m. Proceeds will go to the Sanford Police Explorers. Tickets are $6.

Anyone passing the Barn without stopping may have to deal with Mad Dog. The SPD station is right down the street.

Moo Moo Moo

Yep, it's Cow Appreciation Day in Woodstock, Vt. The folks in Woodstock milk this one for all its worth each July. There's a "Cowledge Bowl" competition, dairy education programs, butter and ice cream making and more. Everything else falls to what will go inside the old Billings Farm & museum this weekend.

There's a Teddy Bear's Picnic in Lahaaka, Pa., where 7,000 folks and their Teddies are ready to hug themselves silly.

For the next six days, more than 7,500 bikers from all over the U.S.A. will peddle in the Register's Annual Great Bicycle Ride Across Iowa. The Des Moines Register newspaper sponsors this event. Each bicyclist is a spokesman for himself and the paper.

Free and 80

Our good friend Nelson Mandela is 80 today. He's been free the last eight years after being imprisoned for his struggle against apartheid in South Africa. In 1994 he was elected president of the country in the first all-race election there.

Among the other birthdays to remember today: Senator John Glenn (the once and future astronaut) is 77, ice skating champion and announcer Dick Button is 69 and Magic basketball player Fanny Hardaway is 26. This guy who married Barbra Streisand is 57 today. His name is Brolin. James Brolin Streisand.

Vicki Carr, perhaps the best singer who never married James Brolin, will be 57 on Sunday. To hear her sing, "It Must Be Him" is to hear an earth angel.

Kim Carnes, perhaps the second best girl singer who didn't marry James Brolin, is 52 on Monday. Her "Bette Davis Eyes" recording proved to the music industry that anything can happen at a recording session. Carnes later made a duet record with Barbra Streisand.

Chuck Daly, the coach who inspired the Magic to play .500 ball and miss the playoffs a year ago, will be 68 Monday.

Wash your dog

A group known as the Anti-Cruelty Society would like everyone to wash their dogs on Sunday. It's an annual event in Chicago, where all the dogs look forward to July 19. Society volunteers wash the Chicago canines, funds going to the Society. Even Al Capone used to have clean dogs, said a Society spokesman.

Answer is 'Marilyn'

Friday's quiz answer was Marilyn Monroe. Her first Hollywood screen test was on July 19, 1946. James Brolin was five years old at the time.

THE SHOW MUST NOT GO ON!

Elephants in circuses are not trained with love and treats. They endure years of brutal training. Is this entertainment? Circus Facts:

- Since 1983, 21 people have been killed and 34 people seriously injured by performing elephants.
- Most incidents of elephant aggression have involved elephants which have been routinely beaten throughout their lives.

Please help Kim Basinger and the Performing Animal Welfare Society put an end to the use of elephants in the circuses.

EDITORIAL

Be informed, be very informed

Seminole County commissioners at their August 11 meeting will consider a ballot referendum prompted by 9,651 signatures from registered voters opposed to the adult entertainment ordinance as it now stands. The revised ordinance would clothe the county's nude dancers with bikinis. The two choices commissioners have, are to adopt the revised ordinance or to reject it and place it on the ballot for voters to decide: bikinis or no bikinis.

The referendum question came about when members of the Citizens For Decency mounted a petition campaign, garnering signatures from electors living in 3/5 of the county commission election district. The total had to equate to five percent of electors qualified to vote in the last general election. That means of the 187,924 voters in Seminole County, fewer than 10,000 may override a decision elected officials and staff have spent more than a year crafting.

A referendum can represent the best of democracy in action; the people have a strong say in government, the people decide issues; majority rules.

We hope that is the case here, but we are concerned that, judging by past voter turnout in Seminole County, a minority will decide this issue, and that minority may be voting based on a generalization: (Of course we don't want nude dancing in our county!) rather than by studying all the information that has led up to this. What voters must weigh goes beyond banning a distasteful business from our borders.

Here are some facts: 1.)The government, under its police powers, can strictly regulate anything that impacts the health, welfare and safety of its constituents.

2.)Nude dancing, erotic books and most X-rated movies are protected under the U.S. Constitution as an expression of free speech. Mind you, pornography is NOT protected and can be banned. The trick is to distinguish between pornography and criticism. Over the years, the Supreme Court, like shifting sands, has defined and redefined pornography. To date, pornography is illegal, and the clubs featuring nude dancing are considered erotic entertainment, but are protected speech. Because the definition of pornography can change, the government can strictly regulate these clubs, under a heightened scrutiny, to assure they do not slip over that defined line.

3.)Bikini clubs will not be scrutinized as closely as nude clubs because covered genitalia tend to not raise the interest of the government exercising police powers to protect you from pornography.

4.)The function of bikini clubs, like nude clubs, is to titillate men. The same activities associated with nude clubs, i.e. drugs and prostitution, are associated with bikini clubs, as evidenced in other counties that have them.

5.)Banning protected speech is illegal. Seminole County has adopted in its charter a system of government encouraging electors to vote in and out of office their representatives. The county has spent about $500,000 researching, financing, crafting and enforcing the adult ordinance as it stands. Each commissioner is well-versed on the nuances of that ordinance. Each has an opinion and will tell you that he is acting in the best interest of the county.

Certainly, there are times in a government's life that an issue is made for a referendum. (Sanford's lakefront development is headed for a vote, and that issue is simply one of voicing from one's heart, yea or nay, to keep Fort Mellon Park as it is, or to dedicate a lakefront site for a hotel/conference center. Few legal issues complicate it. A referendum is a perfect way to determine how to proceed.)

Although we believe the voters of this county should exercise any displeasure with county commissioners' vote on adult entertainment at the polls, it will most likely go to referendum. We implore all citizens to get out and vote on this referendum, and to realize that this is a bigger issue than what you want in your back yard. The legal entanglements are many. Study the ordinance. Talk to all the commissioners. Attend public hearings and listen to both sides, and be aware of the ramifications of all alternatives to what is now in place, because when an uninformed few make decisions for all of us, democracy suffers.

And this issue has constitutional and legal ramifications way beyond what one feels in one's heart.

A hump on the road, thump on the head

Speed humps

A thought on speed humps. What if a judge rules against the county regarding the humps, and the axle breakers are not removed? Where will the liability lie? Who is going to pay the court costs when the lawsuit is finally filed? I don't think that all the taxpayers in Seminole County should bear the burden.

It is my opinion that the courts have only one possible solution should they rule against the county. Turn that portion of the roadways over to the residents. Speed humps, liability and all that goes with it. Create a tax district that puts the cost and liability of all of this on the shoulders of those who want it.

I have a strong feeling that people will change their minds very quickly if they are faced with the responsibility, liability and upkeep of THEIR speed humps. In other words, the county will maintain the street, not the speed humps. The tax district imposed will be for the maintenance of the speed humps and liability insurance to cover possible lawsuits. Another solution is to create another means of slowing down traffic without hindering emergency vehicles. This could be done with chokers which would not have the same effect on emergency vehicles. However, even in this case the burden of payment should fall on those would have decided they want the roadway change and not on the rest of the county residents. As far as I'm concerned it was a bad idea to begin with and they should all be removed. However, if those who want them are willing to bear the cost and liability, fine.

Self-righteous hypocrites

I'd like to address the self-righteous hypocrites who are condemning our president for his alleged indiscretions so widely televised lately. What about their own Christian Broadcasting companies that programmed the hypocrites who preyed on the elderly daily? Televangelists who took the little money that some elderly person had saved, building with it monuments to themselves while they did the sins they preached against? Oh, the people forgive them.

Please tell me what is worse than using television to go into the homes of those who have few visitors, and not only take from them the little money they may have, but also to deceive, waste, destroy their faith in their last years. To leave them empty, perhaps with no faith, no hope and saddened in their last days. Is it not time to look within?

Sometimes I believe that the end is near only because I see the hate, not love, that comes from the twisted tongue of these hypocrites. I know this will not be a popular column today, but somebody has to say something. I want to send this message to you, the most righteous. Do not forget what you have done. Think about the lives you have destroyed, those who could not leave their homes and turned into you every day for comfort, who believed in you, who trusted you, who gave to you, who wanted you there at the last moments of their lives only to be crushed by deceit and left empty.

I know, my grandmother was one of your victims. She believed in God and she believed in you. You came into her home everyday only to leave her saddened in her last days. Preaching against the sins that you were engaged in, the sins that you knew all too well.

You are fortunate, because those you degraded and placed yourself above forgave you as it should be, letting God be the final judge.

It is not hard to say I am a Christian. It is hard to be one. If you are a Christian you will see and understand the equal worth of those who are not. Your faith will show because of your actions not in your word alone.

TONY TIZZIO

Look to ability, not disability

I would like to talk to you all today about some items that are near and dear to my heart, advocacy, and how society views the disabled. Advocacy is defined as the act of pleading or arguing in favor of something, such as a cause or idea. I've been an advocate for most of my life, not because I wanted to, but because I had to.

It is not so much as I've had a noble calling, but more or less because I got tired of people thinking of me in only one way, disabled. It seems that no matter what I have accomplished or what talents I've acquired, I'll always walk a little differently. Such is the case of all disabled people, metaphorically speaking.

The minute I learned that lesson, BAM!, my whole life changed. Where once I was shy and introverted, I became confident, some might even say brash, but that's OK too.

I realized that the only way people are going to accept me was if they accepted a couple of ideas. The first idea, was that anyone can do anything they want to within their own limitations, of course. The second was that like anyone else, I had to contribute something, no matter how small or significant.

Sure this sounds simple and maybe it is, but to try and convince other people of this, is another story. If you haven't thought about these concepts before, I would like you to also consider this. Every day, many of us pass a person on the street or in a store and sometimes determine right away what kind of person he or she is.

Sure it is not right or maybe even narrow minded, but it still happens. This effect is never more evident than how the public relates to a disability. The same pressures by the way, have also been felt by other minorities as well, not just the disabled.

Disability is described as follows: In medicine, a patient's inability to perform an activity because of some physical or mental disorder is called disability. This classification of being considered a minority, was boosted in 1990 with the release of the American's With Disabilities Act.

I have always thought a quote that best describes what I have been saying is, "A person's disability should be viewed more as a characteristic than an impediment." Think of how simple, yet straight forward that quote describes a disabled person's life. Looking to a person's ability and not their disability is the key.

That is why in some circles, disabled people refer to themselves as handi-capable, rather than handicapped. In closing, I hope I have left you with two thoughts. One, don't judge a book by its cover and two, don't keep a whole group of people together. Sure these are old clichés, but they still hold true today.

Additional research for today's column was done with the American Heritage Dictionary of the English Language, Third Edition.

If you have a non-profit organization relating to the disabled and have a fund-raiser or special event coming up, let us know about it.

How did county get to this point?

On April 22, 1998, State Representative Tom Feeney, in a column in another newspaper, stated that no legislative body had ever reviewed and approved the economic feasibility of light rail and that his committee had an obligation to review any project upon which state dollars are expended—especially projects that may ultimately become the most expensive boondoggle in Central Florida history.

Mr. Feeney also stated that he was not convinced that more taxes and more government are the proper solutions to our problems. I agree with Mr. Feeney, but it is apparent that three of our county commissioners do not.

The three tax and spend liberals of the county commission (Morris, Adams, McLain) support light rail, millions and millions of dollars in indebtedness ($195,370,000 as of 10-1-97), high interest payments ($10.411 million for FY '98), and the giving away of more millions of our tax dollars for corporate welfare, and other expenditures which are questionable, e.g., voting to purchase property at inflated prices, re: right of way.

Not long ago, Seminole County was a bucolic community with clean air and pure water. Today, we have congestion, foul air, and a dearth of water. How did we get to this point? It is my judgment that the electorate has not been sufficiently circumspect in its selection of its leaders. I believe that a person who aspires to any office should be motivated only by a genuine desire to serve the public and not for self-enrichment.

At present, it is my understanding that we have two commissioners who do not have a job other than that of county commissioner. Thus, these two depend upon their salaries as a commissioner for their substance. A generous retirement benefit should not be overlooked. In order to stay in office, does politics play a part? I think so. Politicians, in my opinion, often play to those whom they seek approval and endorsement. A statement, on the other hand, does that which he believes serves only the public interest.

Let's look at a couple of examples. You and your readers can decide whether politics or statesmanship was being practiced. The Fern Park fiasco

JIMMY ROSS

Many people who live in Fern Park and elsewhere have not been satisfied with the status quo of the adult entertainment industry. Condensed, here's what happened: There is a flurry of activity; the adult entertainment industry will be forced to move to the boondocks; that industry does not roll over and play dead; hundreds of thousands of dollars are spent for legal fees; nothing of substance really happens; the status quo remains.

During the period when all of the above was taking place, there was a push to establish a community development agency (CRA) for all of 17-92; all of it is to be declared a slum or blighted area; it is stated that the only public money to be used for redevelopment of 17-92 would be tax funds generated by a proposed CRA. One might assume that this statement was made to make the CRA more palatable to those in opposition.

But hold on! Despite a lot of hot air and rhetoric, nothing is really happening on the Fern Park matter, except of course, the several hundred thousand dollars that enriched the attorneys. All that has gone on must not be for naught. Something must be done. There are a lot of voters in Fern Park that must be courted; these voters must not see themselves as being ignored. They gotta be mollified.

What happens? As I recall, Mr. Wm Adams motioned for a $600,000 cultural arts center, a Carnegie Hall of the South for Fern Park.

Somewhere along the way, it was mentioned that this would create jobs. This approach didn't set too well with some. Result: At a later meeting, it is agreed (3-2 vote) that about $850,000 will be spent on 17-92 from BR 436 to the Orange County line for a beautification project.

The funds for this project, so I'm told, came from a transportation fund, from canceled sidewalk and landscaping projects elsewhere, and from the economic incentive awards program.

Here's the bottom line: A Florida statute requires public hearings prior to the adoption of the annual budget. Another statute states, inter alia, that if an amendment to a budget is required for a purpose not specifically authorized in the statute, a formal resolution and a public hearing are required.

There was no resolution and no public hearing. All of this makes one wonder what else has been going on.

Now get this. When the county charter was written, the following language was included:

"...The County Commission shall as a prerequisite to any legislative action (by ordinance or Resolution) (etc) that may have an economic cost to the public or taxpayers of Seminole County, perform an economic impact statement. This requirement may be waived by a majority plus one vote of the entire Board of County Commissioners. The application, interpretation or adjudication of any questions arising under this provision shall be the responsibility of the Board of County Commissioners, whose determination shall be final."

Never mind what may have been intended. This is debatable. The words speak for themselves. They were not followed, and that's the bottom line.

The conference center and hotel on the lakefront in Sanford

The manner in which this project has been handled leaves much to be desired. If I were a resident of Sanford, I'd be outraged!

A beautiful park area serving all citizens. A place where children and families can gather and play. Activities are such as to keep children and young people occupied in constructive activities. If the park disappears, where do those who use it go? The street? The county should have no part in destroying this park.

As a county resident, I disapprove of our county commissioners rushing to designate a park as a site for a hotel and conference center without first obtaining an economic impact statement, information as to management responsibilities, who will own what, exactly how many dollars are being committed and for what, and my guess there are a bunch of other questions that require answers.

For certain, public hearings on this subject should be held to hear from all county residents. One should note that Sanford residents are also county residents.

The Sanford City Hall flap

In the present budget (FY-98) there is a statement that in FY-99 it is estimated that a $40,000,000 bond issue will be issued "to provide funds for construction of county buildings...primarily the County Courthouse (etc) expansion and renovation project..."

Nowhere in the present budget is there one cent for purchase of the Sanford City Hall to meet the space requirements. In addition, there has not been one formal report presented by knowledgeable people that the Sanford City Hall is in good condition, will not need extensive repairs, and will meet county space requirements for an extended period of time. Neither has there been a formal presentation by a professional as to the worth of the Sanford City Hall.

The matter of whether or not the purchase of the Sanford City Hall is a good idea or a poor idea is not known because there has not been a public hearing or a public debate--if you will, I believe that the Florida statute makes it mandatory that there be a public hearing, that there be a formal resolution to amend the present budget if purchase in this fiscal year is intended, and that the comments made elsewhere pertinent to an economic impact statement are germane.

I also believe that the appointment of a county commissioner to be one of those designated to handle negotiations on the price to be paid for the Sanford City Hall violates the county charter. Why?

It is absolute that the government of Seminole County has separation of legislative and executive functions. A commissioner is a legislator, period. All executive functions are vested in the county manager, period. Negotiating is not a legislative function.

What is the rush on this? Why is a commissioner negotiating with the mayor of Sanford who, I'm told, contributed heavily to the campaign of Mr. McLain.

The public deserves an unbiased appraisal of Sanford City Hall and a complete, candid report from the professional staff without one iota of interference.

The Alan we remember

Editor's note: Alan Singletary held one law enforcement officers at bay for 13 hours during a Geneva shoot-out in which one deputy was killed and two others injured. Singletary was also killed.

This is in response to those who have called Alan Singletary a "scum bag". Alan Singletary was not, repeat NOT a scum bag!

We saw Alan grow from a gentle young man to the person who killed a capable and well liked police officer in his last few hours. Alan was a SICK man who had traveled many miles in troubled waters. If he had followed up on the treatment which he started following his "Episode on Melonville Avenue in the 1980's", he would be still walking around today, doing his kind deeds.

We prefer to remember him as a friend who answered a call day or night when a family was in trouble.

He will always be the man who answered a call on a weekend night when a young couple returned home from their honeymoon to find their water pump off. When called, Alan said, "I'll be there in minutes," which he did gladly, then wouldn't charge them for the night call, just for the parts used.

Then there was the widow lady who had to move and had several horses and a number of other animals to move. Alan was there Johnny on the Spot to help build a fence enclosure and do other repairs on the home. He then helped the lady move.

In his father's last days, when he was in the hospital and needed around the clock care, there was Alan sleeping on the floor by his father's side so he could hear him if he moved.

These are the ways and times of Alan Singletary that we would like to remember.

For all those who read these words, I hope you will try to understand that they come from the hearts of parents of two police officers who could be in the same situation at any time. We certainly have compassion for the Gregory family and families of the two wounded men. We pray for all law enforcement personnel and their families everyday. There can be no closure on the situation at hand until all individuals see all sides!

God bless you all.

Adamson will not serve again on airport board

I wish to thank the Commission, both past and present, for allowing me to serve on the Sanford Aviation Authority for the past eight (8) years. During this time much progress has been achieved at our Airport. The niche business of International Charter is only a start of more business to come. We must be careful, however, not to let our only success be our downfall. This business (International Charter) is a niche business. Our system and our policies do not fit the business. They get discouraged easily, they like convenience and they need to be serviced and appreciated since they are the bill payers from which all other revenue flows.

well and gave my very best volunteer service to the Authority, however, I do not wish to be considered a candidate for re-appointment to the Sanford Aviation Authority. It is time for others to have their opportunity to serve. I do plan to complete my current term, which ends October 1, 1998.

The Orlando-Sanford Airport has achieved this first level of success through the remarkable efforts of dedicated volunteers who worked without any consideration of personal gain since its inception. I hope that the city will find more such volunteers in the future.

Thank you again for my opportunity to serve the City of Sanford and the Sanford Aviation Authority.

William B. Duke Adamson
member, Sanford Aviation Authority

Commending mayor

We, the members of The Society for the Preservation of Port Mellon Park, wish to commend Mayor Larry Dale for his current efforts to put the question of the future use of Port Mellon Park to the voters in November. This is a bold and courageous step, resulting in this important decision resting with the people of Sanford, which has been our goal since we organized.

We also want to thank Mayor Dale for graciously offering The Society a hand in creating the question which will appear on the ballot. We eagerly accept this offer and will work in cooperation with the city staff to reach this common goal.

Fired officer's dad speaks

I am writing this letter because as an American citizen and World War II Vet, I believe in liberty and justice for all, regardless of color, creed, or nationality. I hope this letter will be published so my fellow Americans and good citizens of Sanford will also stand up for justice and equal rights.

A few months ago, two of your very dedicated police officers were fired--terminated for insubordination. Detective Terry L. Mullins was terminated for smoking in a patrol car while on duty, and Officer Arthur Barnes for charges including conduct unbecoming an officer and disobeying a direct order. Officer Barnes, after being terminated, was still paid full pay and insurance benefits. Officer Mullins was paid nothing.

Both of these fine officers have served you citizens of Sanford for 11 years, putting their lives on the line many times. Yes, they should be punished for their wrongs, but not to the extreme of being fired.

Though both of these officers were fired, because of the pressure put on your Police Chief Joe Dillard by the NAACP, Officer Barnes has been reinstated as of June 27. Officer Mullins has not been reinstated. If Officer Mullins was your son, what would you do? As good citizens of Sanford, are you going to stand up for equal rights? As a concerned father, I appeal to you citizens: don't let this unfair act be carried out. Demand fair and equal rights to be given to Officer Mullins. In all fairness and without respect of persons, Officer Mullins should also be reinstated with back pay.

Rev. Tommie L. Mullins,

Response to Bob Kuhn

In response to Bob Kuhn's letter of June 28, 1998.

My efforts and others working with the Society for the Preservation of Ft. Mellon Park are solely and only that: preserving the park. Personalities should not be a part of the equation! However, since you chose to name the members of the petitioners committee of the SPTFOPMP (there are 5 members of the petition committee) including me in your letter, I feel it necessary to respond to your comments about me.

Yes, as a member of the Sanford City Commission, I as well as the other members of the commission had the opportunity to guide Sanford toward economic growth and you said "I failed".

Let me let some of the " failures" that I was involved in during my six years on the Sanford City Commission. I list these in no particular order; you can decide on which you consider to be the worst " failure".

1. Laborious Development, Financing and construction of the present marina complex including the wet and dry storage and parking areas, the motel including restaurant, swimming pool and mini-conference center, free public boat launch, etc. Now dollars into Sanford? You bet!

2. Airport Development. General aviation industrial park. When the Sanford Naval air station closed, the city had the opportunity to take over the Navy base property free of charge from the federal government. We received the property and since then it has been a great benefit to Sanford with payroll, employment, international recognition and such, much more! It's name should be "Central Florida Regional Airport" at Sanford, and that's another subject, more dollars into Sanford!

3. Expanded water system. With the growth of the Sanford area in the 50's and 60's, it became apparent that the then city water system (wells and distribution) were inadequate. A tremendous expansion was initiated. New well fields were obtained and drilled, new storage/purification tanks were constructed and the distribution system was greatly enlarged. Not only did this contribute to new construction to the south and west, but also was the determining factor in the construction of the Hunt Industrial Park on South Sanford Avenue. Of greater importance (the Seminole Junior College (Now Seminole Community College) chose a south Sanford location for its campus. More new dollars into Sanford!

These are a few of the " failures" that come to mind; there were undoubtedly others I don't remember. But I can assure you, Mr. Kuhn, that the voters of Sanford will have the opportunity at the voting booth very soon to decide: To preserve Ft. Mellon Park or lease all or part to developer! Voting: the truly democratic American way!

Your interest in Sanford and its future, Mr. Kuhn, is to be commended and you should seriously consider offering yourself as a candidate for the Sanford City Commission when the next comes up for election.

IN BRIEF

Dead intruder named

SANFORD - Sanford Police have released the name of the intruder killed Tuesday by homeowner Alexander Berwick, 75. S.P.D. investigator Pat Smith identified the man as Jimmie Lee Hill Jr., 40, of Tallahassee. According to Smith, Hill's body was identified through fingerprints. Berwick, who recently purchased the house in Sanford, but still resides in Eustis, apparently surprised Hill as he was in the process of burglarizing the residence. No charges are expected to be filed against Berwick.

Woodmen honor volunteer

LAKE MARY - Modern Woodmen of America Camp 1649, Lake Mary, will honor Bert Harger at a dinner meeting Tuesday.

Harger is being given the special honor in recognition of her leadership and involvement in the community.

The event coincides with the fraternal life insurance society's Community Service Recognition Month. Modern Woodmen is a fraternal life insurance society with nearly 700,000 members nationwide.

All Modern Woodmen members and their families are invited to attend the dinner meeting Tuesday at 6 p.m. at Shoney's Restaurant, Sanford. For reservations call Don Reid at (407) 327-8484 before Monday.

School open house

SANFORD - Sanford Middle School will hold an open house on Friday, July 31 from 9 until 11 a.m. At that time students and parents will have the opportunity to meet teachers and familiarize themselves with class schedules before the first day of school.

The new school year begins with the first bell at 9:11 a.m. on Monday, Aug. 3.

Internet classes

CASSELBERRY - Seminole County Public Library System and Seminole Community College will present new Internet classes this summer at the Seminole County Public Library System. Jan Adams, instructor at the SCC Computer Institute, returns to update his popular "Exploring the Internet" seminar with the highly controversial Windows '98.

Adams will be at the Jean Rhein Central Branch Library on July 23 from 7 until 9 p.m. to discuss what the Internet is, the benefits of Windows '98, how to surf the Internet, and techniques to use to find information.

The Central Branch is located at 215 N. Oxford Road, Casselberry. To register for this free program call (407) 339-4000.

Marine reunion

ORLANDO - The third Marine Division Association will conduct an annual reunion at Orlando's Omni-Rosen Hotel. International Drive, from July 29 to Aug. 2.

All veterans of the Division or attached units: Marines, Navy and Army, who served in peace or war are invited to attend. For additional information contact Mick Dennis, 2362 Whisper Walk Dr., Spring Hill, FL 34606 or call (352) 686-9548. This will be the last reunion in Florida for the next 10 years.

campaign in March this year while the others were at it as long as a year, he reports $65,394.00 in total contributions, $30,194.00 the last quarter.

Four years ago when Morris won a commission seat as a challenger, he had $93,000 in contributions.

Each candidate must list each of their contributions no matter what the amount, and also list their expenditures. Adams spent $34,156.46 on his campaign, Morris $22,532.48. Henley has spent $17,975.92 and West $10,204.37.

There are 44 days until the Republican primaries on Sept. 1. Friday was the last day to register and there were no surprises or additions.

'In his dreams'

Commissioner Win Adams has taken offense at Commissioner Dick Van Der Wiede's quip last Tuesday that Adams had reversed his stand on a public-nudity ordinance. "In his dreams," Adams said. "My position has always been that it is bad policy for government to infringe upon Seminole County citizens' personal freedoms."

Adams said that if the citizens want to oust the item on a ballot than that's what should be done. This is after more than 10,000 citizens requested the commission re-address the issue. Adams voted against the ordinance previously when it was quashed, 3-2.

The commissioners will talk again at a 7 p.m. public hearing on August 11.

Insiders are expecting a lively debate that night. "We'll probably have to hear from a half dozen bouncers and nude dancers working their way through college," someone said. Probably.

La Cage aux Casselberry

Just when the lords of decency thought they were chasing the nude dancing clubs from Casselberry, a new kind of decadence has emerged.

A club known as Persuasions has opened where the old Chappies lounge used to be on Route 436. It is across the road, yet a 1,000 miles from Rachel's.

Persuasions caters to a gay and lesbian clientele and has weekend shows that feature drag queens.

Casselberry officials aren't saying what they're thinking.

nothing more than a big creek," said Roberts, who told commissioners that the Econ is designated as a state canoe trail. "It's been discovered (by power boaters) as a place to go and drive real fast," said Roberts, with very little restriction.

In the public hearing, County Attorney Lonnie Groot presented three options to the commissioners: a 50 horsepower limitation, a 5-mile-per-hour speed limit, and an idle speed/no wake zone.

While Roberts and Martin were in favor of an idle speed/no wake zone, both were satisfied with the speed limit set by the ordinance. Capt. Bill Armstrong, commander of the Seminole County Sheriff's Office Special Operations Unit, spoke in favor of option three, saying that speed limits would be difficult to enforce because radar does not work well on the river.

Chairman Randy Morris was concerned that any ordinance would indirectly restrict all power boaters. "What we're hearing more and more is that (boaters) aren't showing courtesy." He said while he understands concerns of the non-power boat users, "we're always very sensitive on these issues," because of the restriction of personal freedoms. "It's very easy to agree with both sides," said Morris.

"It's difficult to balance everyone's interests," said Commissioner Dick Van Der Wiede. He said he would be in favor of speed limits. "The 5-mile per-hour speed limit) would give everyone use of the waterway in the same manner," said Van Der Wiede. "There'll be a lot of people who won't want to (be on that portion of the river) anymore."

The ordinance is effective upon receipt of the paperwork in Tallahassee and signs will be installed along the river in the near future, Martin said. Violation of the ordinance is a misdemeanor. Violators can be arrested, go to jail, and fined up to $500.

The commission directed Armstrong to report on the enforcement of the speed limit, so it could evaluate its effectiveness.

Moon

days after the actual full moon. July 8, 1998 was the day before the full moon.

"That's been the myth, but that's all it is, a myth," Sheriff Don Ealinger says. "New studies indicate there is no truth in it. I don't believe Alan Singletary's actions were brought on because of the full moon."

The "myth" began centuries ago when psychologists found evidence that patients at asylums were more restless when there were full moons. "This is where the term lunatic came from," said John McGuire, head of the Psychology Department at the University of Central Florida.

At a press conference on Tuesday, Ealinger said that he sensed that Singletary was "acting out a drama," as he taunted and fought with the law enforcement officers. But was it a mere coincidence that this "act" came under the waning full moon? Could anyone have predicted what would happen that weekend or that Tuesday?

"It's impossible to predict since the moon has been full since 1997," McGuire said. "Years ago there was a lot of research but there hasn't been that much new work. The old full moon notions about people's behavior have been scrapped in recent years."

What may have perpetuated the full moon notions of old was the haunting work of author Edgar Allan Poe and the movies with actors Bela Lugosi, Lon Chaney, Jr., Boris Karloff and Vincent Price. Legends of humans becoming werewolves by the light of the full moon struck us with awe and wonderment. Enough that some believed in the tales.

"For awhile I thought there was a possibility the full moon did have an effect on people around here," said Sanford Police Officer Mike Taylor. "There was an increase in activities on those nights. People got angry. But that's changed. People seem to be crazy all the time now. They don't need a full moon to get that way."

County Commissioner Win Adams says he thinks full moon theories are pure malarky. "We just keep looking for excuses," Adams said. "We've become a nation of excuses. No one is accountable anymore. If we use poor judgment, we come up with an excuse."

Longwood

cause we have to pay for advertisement, but it is costing the citizens twice as much."

The decision comes after scattered public displeasure over a $97,000 sewer renovation on the east side of Church Street in Longwood. The project, which was added into the city's 1998 budget and completed earlier this year, was approved by residents.

With no public hearing required to pass budget amendments in the resolution system, several Longwood residents were angry the project was completed without their input.

Paul Lovstrand, a member of the Longwood City Council, said he voted for the ordinance system because of the poor public response to the current system.

"The project passed by resolution without public hearing and people were not aware that this happened," Lovstrand said. "It was water under the bridge because it was done before I was in office, but it was still done wrong."

Lake Mary Police Chief Rick Beary says the myth about the full moon having an effect on people has been around a long time and will remain. "If our body count is 90 percent water and the full moon can move an ocean eight feet, judge for yourself," Beary said. "When I became a policeman, I was told to watch myself under the full moon. Well, we still tell each other that."

Although Assistant Seminole County Fire Chief William Kinaley says there are many reports of odd behavior on nights of full moons, he hasn't seen figures that support the myth. "Because of the full moon, we remember things better," he said. "It's like when you get a new car - and you start to notice everyone else with the same car."

Kinaley's theory is supported by statistics from a study done last year. Then patient records at the Central and Educational Services Department of Abt Associates, Sanford, Florida, a 9-1-1 center, showed that calls were lower than usual on nights when the moon was not full. "Overall there was no difference in 9-1-1 trauma calls on full moon and non-full moon days," said Chris Ryther of AMR.

"What is probably at work, however, is a subconscious confirmation bias or perceptual bias - in other words, if we believe something we tend to notice the incidents that confirm our belief and ignore ones that contradict our belief," Ryther said.

Former Pan-Am pilot Patricia Gehri of Longwood said crew members she flew with were especially prepared to deal with passengers on flights under full moons. "If something could go wrong, it did," Gehri said. "Very strange things happened. A woman insisted one night that her friend was out on the wing. A man threw a sandwich at me. People frequently lost their tempers."

A few years ago Richard L. Branham did a study about two maritime maritime disasters that occurred under a full moon. The study revealed that there were actually fewer disasters. "This is probably because the light of the full moon helps prevent accidents," Branham said. Tell that to the captain of the Titanic.

The moon, insist many psychologists, can make one person changeable and narrow-minded, or imaginative and sympathetic, or perhaps unreliable. The full moon brings activity to a peak. One suggested that the night of a full moon is a splendid opportunity to stage an event where you want to attract lots of attention and emotional participation.

If Alan Singletary's desire was to attract lots of attention and emotional participation, he got more than he could have imagined. Nearly two dozen law enforcement officers fired 1,000 shots during Singletary's event - a bloodbath that took six lives and changed that of countless others. "He (Singletary) went nuts," Sheriff Ealinger said.

Certainly, the more research that is done on the moon's effect could illuminate behavior by those like Singletary.

Psychologists suggest everyone pay attention in the next full moon and if they encounter persons who are agitated, aggressive or emotional to be tolerant.

They suggest asking the person why they chose to react with a particular action. Some will admit that they act differently to stress when the moon is full. Others may not realize they are affected by the Lunar Syndrome.

The final advice is to treat people who exhibit weird behavior with respect, and, by all means do not laugh at them. No one's laughing.

There's Something About Mary a comical free-for-all

***1/2 (out of four) It is rude, offensive and shocking. But, then again, it's made by the Farrellys.

Low comedy finally has a voice, and it comes in the form of two brothers from Rhode Island: Peter and Bobby Farrelly. You could say that they are the Coens of gross humor. They conduct another symphony of sickness with There's Something About Mary.

Upstanding, straight arrow movie-goers should steer clear of this. Unless your willing to bust loose with it. It is a comical free-for-all. It also leaves you with an acute pain in your stomach from laughing, and your throat hurts too. It's drenching and exhausting.

The thing is, you should NOT be having such a good time. It is the type of humor that you should feel guilty after belting out a round of merry howls and hoots. But that is the charm of the Farrelly brothers. It happened in Dumb and Dumber, a Jim Carrey vehicle where Jeff Daniels' gastrointestinal explosion on a toilet makes you compose yourself after falling on the floor, doubled over with the giggles. It also happened in Kingpin, where Woody Harrelson's skid row bowler learns a distasteful lesson about pleasing his landlady, and you would be in complete shock if it were not for the knee-slapping hysterics the scene evokes.

In each film, the brothers see just how far they can push it. It would be hard for them to top themselves after Mary. Take a scene early on where a young man frantically tries to zip his pants but forgets that there is something in the way. Painful and jaw-dropping, but it will leave you with tears running down your cheeks.

David Frazier

Staff Writer

And in the midst of this jarring humor, you have a hilarious Greek chorus and a subtle joke on last year's The Sweet Hereafter as Chris Elliott goes over a "class action" suit involving a bus accident and the death of 12 students. The smaller laughs are welcome time outs to the bigger ones.

The plot is about Ted (Ben Stiller), a relative loser with just one goal in life: to find his high school crush, a sunny blond that is so down-to-earth that all sorts of men would do anything to have her. Ted tries to track down Mary (Cameron Diaz) by sending a shifty private eye (Matt Dillon) to her possible residence in Miami.

Yet, there's something about Mary that bewitches any man that comes near her, which is why Dillon's sleuth lies to Ted about what he has found so that he can pursue Mary instead. Most all the male characters that we get to meet and know have something for Mary. How is poor Ted, who seems to get out of one embarrassing situation only to fall into another, to compete? Ultimately, There's Something About Mary could be about the price you pay for true love and happiness. It just comes in a rather warped package.

The Farrellys get an assist from screenwriters Ed Decker and John J. Strauss, both of whom worked on different television shows. However, it is the Farrellys show with their irreverent, perverse approach to comedy. Luckily, they have an excellent crew of actors to work with, and the actors submit to what ever trials they are put through. It would stand to reason to have an actor attuned to comedy like Ben Stiller anchoring the movie, but to put Cameron Diaz and Matt Dillon in this film and to be rewarded with funny performances from both is a plus. Of course, Diaz is more accustomed to this sort of comedy with films like A Life Less Ordinary and The Muse.

Rarely do comedies come along that can precipitate minutes of sustained laughter. But the Farrellys are here to show that it can still be done. There was a moment during the screening of this film where I could not hear the lines of dialogue simply because the audience was still laughing at a joke a few frames before. For an audience to stay amused for that length of time requires creative comic talent, and the Farrellys provide it. It's a strange, yet different brand of comedy. You don't know if it is safe to go along with, but you do anyway.

Red art coming to UCF

From Staff Reports

OVIDO - Posters, paintings, sculpture, banners, military and civilian medals and other memorabilia from the USSR will be on display for the first time ever in Central Florida Aug. 30 through Sept. 25 in "Darker Shades of Red: Official Art and Imagery of the Soviet Union, 1917-1991" at the University of Central Florida Art Gallery.

This powerful collection is on loan from Orlando resident and art restorer Gary Hollingsworth. It includes propaganda posters that integrate bold graphics with text, like the one with the soldier laying a guilt trip on the proletariat. Other posters celebrate events from Soviet history and important leaders, provide civil defense information, and mock capitalist greed. Paintings in the Social Realist style feature portraits of Lenin and Stalin and illustrate historical events.

"It is a unique opportunity for us to show a culture most Americans do not know much about," says gallery director Kevin Moran. These artists were made for propaganda. Everything in their imagery, even the colors they used, had to be approved by the officials.

The Political Science, Philosophy and History Departments at UCF will present a symposium on Soviet Soviet Art in the gallery Wednesday, Sept. 23 at 1 p.m. A lecture by Russian Area Studies expert Galina Detinko will be followed by a discussion by history and philosophy professors.

There will be an opening reception for the show Thursday, Aug. 20 from 5 p.m. till 7 p.m. The gallery is open Monday through Friday, 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. and, starting with this show, Sundays from noon until 5 p.m. Admission is free and $2 daily parking permits can be purchased at the Visitors

The borders of the Soviet Union are shown and inviolable by A. Dobrov

The programs at the art gallery are funded in part by the Alice and William S. Jenkins Foundation.

UCF president a trustee for United Arts

Special to the Herald

Dr. John Hitt, president of the University of Central Florida, recently joined 17 other community leaders as a trustee of United Arts of Central Florida.

Trustees of United Arts - each providing support of at least $100,000 a year - form the core of annual giving for the arts, sciences and humanities in Central Florida. Contributions to United Arts help the funded organizations provide quality programs and performances that reach in excess of 1.3 million people annually, and make possible more than 800,000 educational visits by children each year.

"Any great arts organization in a community has to have a strong tie to higher education," said United Arts President Jerry Hillbrich. "United Arts is proud to have the support of Dr. John Hitt and his proven leadership as part of our Board of Trustees."

Monies raised through United Arts directly support 9 principal organizations and 6 associate members. The principal beneficiaries are Bach Festival Society, Civic Theatre of Central Florida, OCCA's Festival of Orchestras, Orlando Museum of Art, Orlando Opera, Orlando Philharmonic Orchestra, Orlando Science Center, Orlando-UCF Shakespeare Festival and Southern Ballet Theatre. You can get to the Bahamas from here

By Nick Pfeiffauf
HERALD STAFF WRITER

SANFORD - Beginning Monday, July 20, new holiday excursion flights will become available for persons wanting to visit the Bahamas. Although press releases issued to date have boasted that the flights originate from Orlando, the actual service will begin in Sanford at the Orlando-Sanford Airport.

BlueSky Jet Enterprises, Inc. a new joint venture headquartered in Daytona Beach, is handling the marketing. Steve Cius, vice president of sales for Princess Hotels International, speaking from the airline's perspective said, "Vacationers would love to spend some time in Orlando and then take a non-stop flight to the Bahamas. Freeport has been a long-time favorite for couples and families seeking an exotic tropical destination. Now there will be a much easier and faster way to get there (compared to cruise travel from Fort Lauderdale). Pricing is extremely attractive and should drive sales from day one."

Cius said the flights will begin Monday, July 20, leaving Sanford at 5:56 p.m. and arriving in Freeport at 8:50 p.m. A return flight will leave Freeport at 4:20 p.m. and arrive in Sanford at 5:15.

Friday flights will leave Freeport at 2:50 p.m. and arrive in Sanford at 3:45. It will leave Sanford at 4:25 and arrive in Freeport at 5:20 p.m.

He said additional flights will be added to meet demands as early as month two of operations. "Sanford's airport facility is ideally located between Daytona Beach and Orlando so we have the best possible departure location," he said. "It's an easy half-hour drive from Daytona or Orlando."

Princess operates 727 jet aircraft. In addition to the flights to and from Sanford, the company serves 10 other cities across the nation.

SANFORD - Glenn Shorrock, lead singer for the Little River Band, celebrated his 54th birthday June 30, according to information provided by rock-n-roll guru Jerry Steffen, on-air personality for WMMO's afternoon drive time.

In the song, "Cool Change", Shorrock writes of the feeling of kinship with sea creatures and of the special feeling he gets from sailing on the water. He attributes his aquatic connection to the element of water associated with his zodiac sign, Cancer.

But is Shorrock's sign really Cancer? Maybe not according to Laurent Pellerin Jr., in charge of operations and production at the Seminole Community College Planetarium.

Your zodiac sign is determined by the constellation in which the sun appears at the time of your birth, Pellerin points out that the sun moves through 13 zodiac constellations, just as there are 13 lunar months. The sidereal calendar, which means related to the stars, notes the months based on the moon's relationship to the stars.

If astrology is reading the stars and planets to predict the future, wouldn't it make sense that astrology be based on all 13 zodiac constellations, instead of the 12 that are currently used?

"How can you divorce it from the stars when you are suppose to be using the stars," questions Pellerin.

Perhaps for convenience the 13 lunar months were configured into a synodic calendar based on the phases of the moon, after all 12 is a much easier number to work with and can be neatly divided into halves and quarters.

The 12 month tropical calendar is tied to the seasons. "I believe as we became an agricultural based society the 12 month calendar became the norm," said Pellerin.

And what is the 13th sign of the zodiac? According to Pellerin it is Ophiuchus, the Serpent Bearer. It is Ophiuchus' heel that is crushing the scorpion in the Scorpius constellation. Ophiuchus is known as the healer. Pellerin believes the Ophiuchus constellation might have been incorporated into the Scorpius sign.

The planetarium is currently showing the program The 13th Sign: Some Facts vs. the Myths of Astrology. Pellerin designed the program based on the sky itself. "The stars are there," reminds Pellerin. "We design the constellations."

"When they leave, I want people to know the difference between astrology and astronomy," said Pellerin. Astronomy is the science of observing the stars and planets to understand their true nature. Astrology does not fit the definition of a science.

Myths of Astrology can be seen at the planetarium at 8:30 p.m. on Saturday evenings through September.

"Astrology gets so much more press," Pellerin remarks. "You don't see an astronomy column in the paper every day."

Whether out of curiosity, just for the fun of it, or as a part of planning one's day, virtually everyone has checked out their horoscope at one time or another (whether they admit it or not). Was it way off or eerily correct? What if it wasn't even your horoscope you were reading?

By the way, according to Pellerin, Shorrock is not Cancer, a water sign, but Gemini, an air sign. So what sign are you?

Armageddon: Is movie more fiction than fact?

By Jeff Case
HERALD INTERN

SANFORD - As the outer space-themed action film "Armageddon" draws moviegoers to its display of inescapable death from above, the question arises:

What chance is there that a Texas-sized meteor could destroy the earth?

According to Laurent A. Pellerin Jr., in charge of operations and production for the Seminole Community College planetarium, an "Armageddon" - type blast is more fiction than fact.

"It's not like you see in the movies. That big an impact happens once about every 100,000,000 years," said Pellerin, from behind SCC's booth at the Oviedo Marketplace's science fair last week.

"The last one was 65 million years ago, that was the one that wiped out the dinosaurs." A piece from that meteor, no bigger than a child's fist, rests in a glass case on the table as a reminder of the event.

Until 200 years ago, records of meteors and where they hit were not kept and explained as merely "thunderstones" by ancient people, Pellerin explained. Meteors can be seen on clear nights, although most people mistake them for shooting stars, he added.

"When meteors enter the earth's atmosphere, they burn up about 16 to 100 miles up in the air," Pellerin said. "They actually burn the air, and it causes the air to glow and it's what we call a shooting star." While most meteors burn up as they enter the earth's atmosphere, heavier meteors can pass through the atmosphere easier and hit the earth, he continued.

In 1908, in the remote region of Tungusta, Siberia, a large meteor hit the area "with the force of a modern day nuclear weapon," he said. A man who witnessed the impact suffered severe burns and a concussion seconds before the meteor destroyed several miles of trees and grass. While the blast caused only minimal damage, a similar impact is expected to hit the earth within the next 10 to 15 years. However, Pellerin is optimistic.

"Most of the meteors that hit the earth usually hit the oceans," he said. "More than three quarters of the earth is water, so it has the biggest probability of getting it, and even if it hits the earth, the one that hit in Siberia was in the middle of nowhere."

As common place as shooting stars and meteors are, Pellerin says that although it is far fetched, a Texas-sized meteor impact could also happen.

"A meteor over 300 tons is too big for the atmosphere to stop, so a meteor the size of Texas would be like the one that hit and killed the dinosaurs, and that one was about the size of Mt. Everest," he said. "It would go right through the atmosphere and make a hole in the earth slightly bigger than itself."

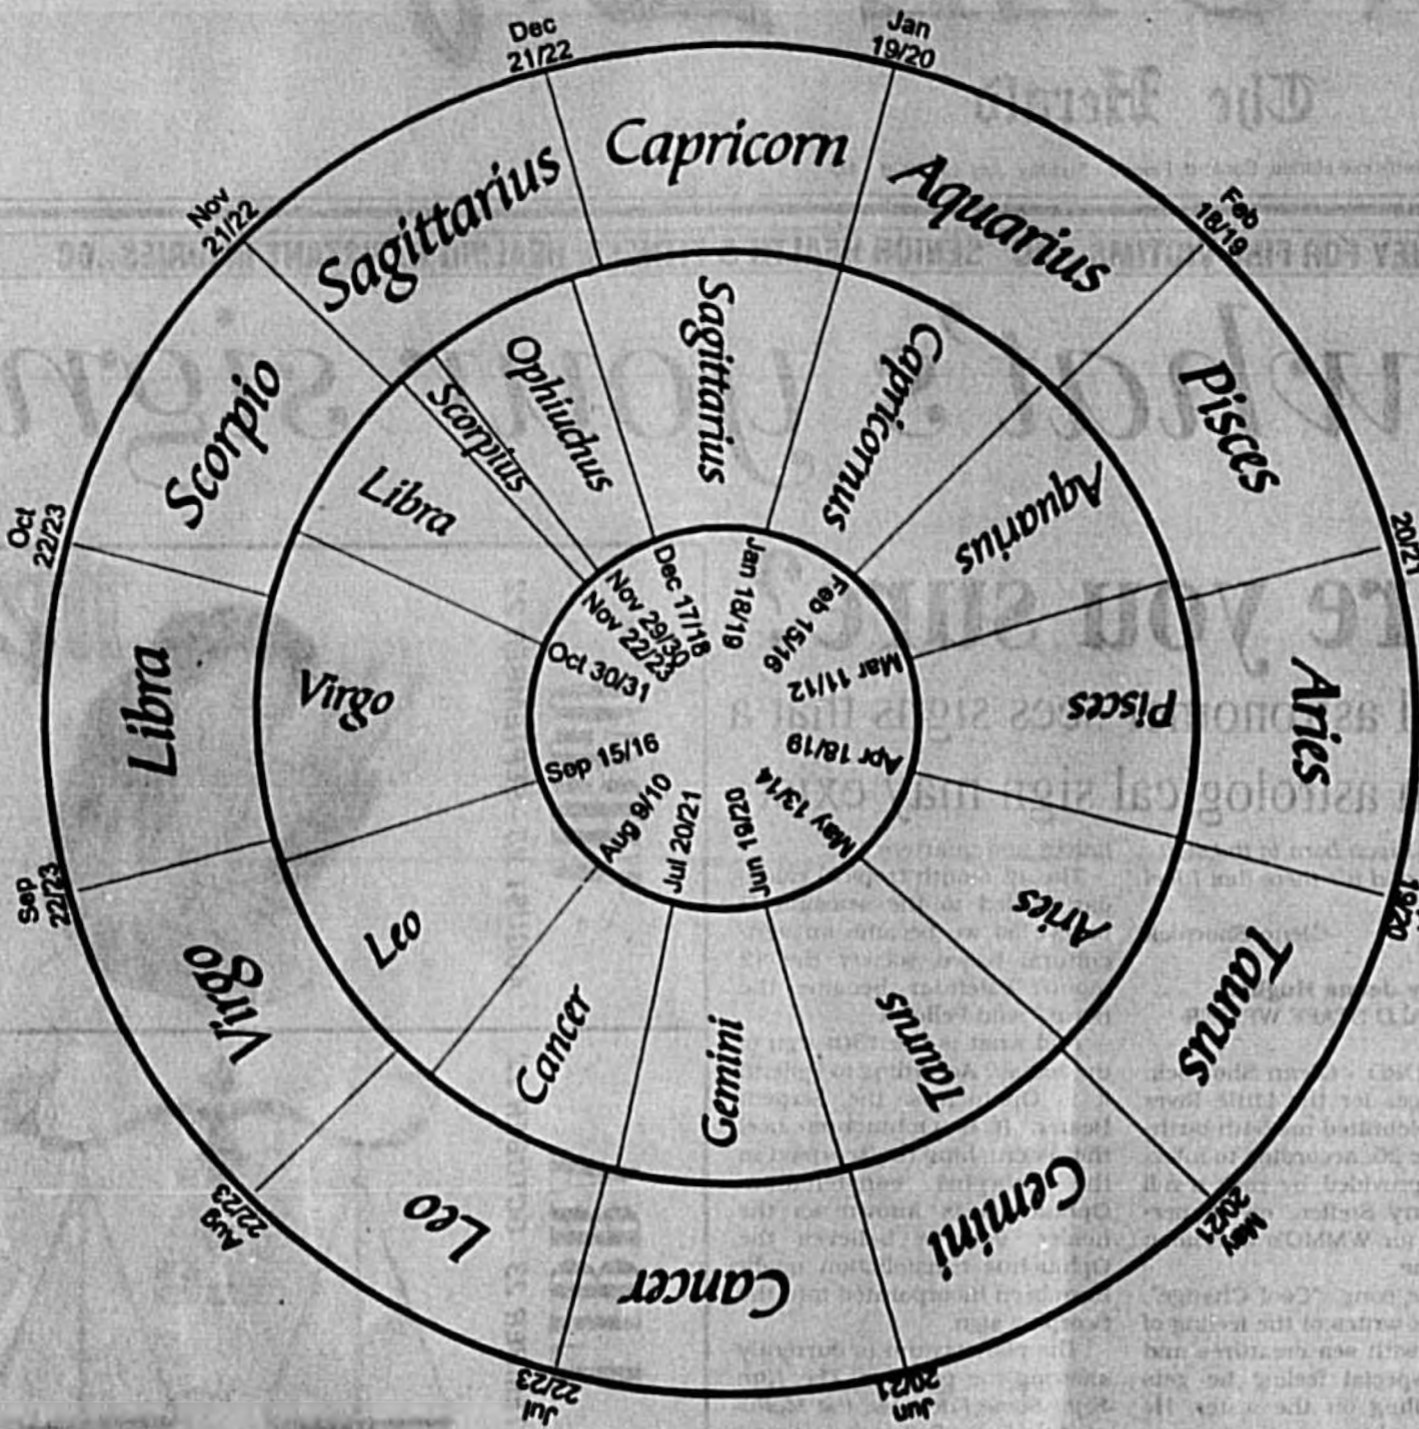

"When it finally gets down in the earth, that's where they explode...under the earth. A meteor the size of Texas is definitely bad news."

Although the chance of such a blast is more than 100 million years away, people should be more concerned with everyday life, Pellerin said.

"You have a far greater chance of being killed in your car than you do of being hit by a meteor," Pellerin added. "Maybe what people say is true. If the earth suffers another large meteor impact...maybe the cockroaches will still be around the next time around."

Sanfordite wins 'Best Dancer' in competition for Miss Florida title

Although Natalie Weld was not the recipient of the coveted Miss Florida title (which was won by Miss Miami Lisette Gonzalez), the statuesque contestant from Sanford is a big-time winner as well as being a Florida title holder. She learned many things while competing in the recent Miss Florida Pageant as Miss Apopka 1998, preliminary to the Miss America Pageant in September. Among the things she learned is that she as the new kid on the block is just now beginning life's awesome experiences. There's plenty of time to win the big one.

But just for strutting her stuff in fine style, the talented 19-year-old contestant was awarded a $2,000 scholarship as "Best Dancer" in the pageant.

The 63rd Miss Florida Pageant, "We've Got a New Attitude," was held July 8-11 in the Performing Arts Centre at Gainesville. The program, featuring Florida's most beautiful, brainy and talented young women, was divided into three segments: Wednesday, talent; Thursday, swimsuit; and Friday, evening wear.

For her award-winning performance, Natalie did a high energy tap number, "Moses Supposes" from "Singing in the Rain," which according to a spectator "brought the house down." The high-stepping beauty wore a crisp white pantsuit and a matching white hat embellished with crystals and rhinestones.

In the swimsuit competition, Natalie was a knockout in a teal-colored one-piece swimsuit. For the evening gown segment, she chose a pale blue strapless gown studded with crystals, fashioned along the slim silhouette and accented with a straight train.

Her interview questions were about the space program and her thoughts on youths getting recognized for accomplishments. This question was right up Natalie's alley since her platform was: "America's Youth - Spread the Good News."

Another honor went out to Sanfordite Bettye D. Smith, former mayor of Sanford, who was selected, along with other Florida community leaders, to judge the contestants for the Community Service Award. This $5,000 award was divided among the three contestants who have performed outstanding community services. The winner is also entitled to apply to the Miss America Organization for an additional $5,000. Bettye is also commended for donating her second row reserved seats for the pageant to Natalie's parents, Valerie and George Weld.

Movie and TV star Barbara Eden made a guest appearance at the pageant.

Among the local supporters attending pageant festivities were: Miriam and Ken Dekker, Jean Clontz, Lisa Clontz, Debbie Youngblood, Pam Singleton, Mr. and Mrs. Darrel Delaney and daughter, Ruthie, Mat Roben, Brandy, Dixie and Daisy Drainwood, Sandra and Jay Brooks and Amy and Krista Simmons.

Two days after the memorable pageant, Natalie was off to fulfill a dancing engagement in San Diego. In a few days, she will be dancing in Amelia Island. Life is busy for the Sanford beauty queen and she wouldn't have it any other way.

BRIDGE SOCIAL

Zelda Steind was the hostess at her Grandview Avenue home for the Monthly Bridge Social of the Sanford Woman's Club. Assisting as co-hostess was Doris Stein.

The players were treated to a bountiful buffet of fruits, finger foods and goodies.

Winners were Doris Stein, high; Thelma Smith, second; and Mary Dale Jones, third.

Other players were: Helen Ernest, Rose Jacobson, Terri Millikan, Alice Potter, Vel Logan, Frances Webber and Margaret Gross.

Delicate brain surgery gives woman new strength and hope

Sharing the happiness of a miracle are Virginia Randolph and Anis Teemer (back) and Gloria H. Evans and April Teemer.

A quiet Saturday afternoon was spent by a courageous woman with continuing praise and thanks for the miracle in her life.

Annie Hughes Teemer says she knows that she is blessed. For a number of years she suffered from panic attacks, loss of memory and depression.

Doctors seemed unable to find the main problem. There were many tests and finally she was told that she had tumors at the base of her skull that were extending and spreading to her brain. Preparing, says Teemer, for this delicate surgery was not hard for her to consent to. She says her trust in God gave her everlasting strength and if you but trust the Master, you are a survivor or will go home to live with the Lord.

On Wednesday, June 17, 7:30 a.m. at Florida South Hospital, doctors with the guiding hand of the Master performed this 4-hour surgery to remove the two tumors that were attaching themselves to her spine also.

The term, craniotomy, will forever remain in her mind. After this surgery, the brain works well, says Teemer. The doctor tested her by calling and asking her name. Her response was, "Thank you God." She spent three hours in recovery and was put into her room after being able to speak and after not having the use of her left side or feelings in it. She continues to praise the Master. Only two weeks were needed to receive the therapy needed to prepare her to come home to her family: husband, Aretious C. Teemer; children, April, Aaron and Aretious, Jr.; caregiver, Virginia Randolph; Sisters Ella H. Montgomery, Gloria Hughes-Evans are constantly by her side as she gets the tender care and love needed for a complete recovery.

Physical and occupational therapy is a part of her recovery. She gives the Lord the praise. "Yes, he did it all. He guided their hands, and I am indeed grateful." She says thank you Lord, that doctors found all of the problem. She knows it is well with her soul.

Teemer is an ardent member of the Refuge Church of Our Lord, where Elder Nathaniel Hillary is pastor.

LITERACY PROGRAM

A literacy program has been implemented at the Castle Brewer Community Center. ("The Harbor") will enhance the reading and math skills through computer generated lessons for children.

The Harbor, a learning center, will provide tutorial services, and assist with homework for primary grades through secondary grades. In the literacy and learning program tutors are needed in the following areas: computers, library center, and a homework assistant. Answer the call to help if you can only be available for one hour per day.

This is a worthwhile project and will end illiteracy among our children. For information call Elizabeth H. Graham-Glover at 323-3150 or Marjorie Murray 320-0244 or Martha Howell at 320-0858.

EDUCATIONAL SUMMIT

An educational summit will be held on Saturday, July 25 from 9:00 a.m. until 2:00 p.m. at Crooms Academy. The guest luncheon speaker will be representative Alyce Hastings of Florida. William Enterprises is the sponsor.

78th CONVOCATION

The Western Florida Ecclesiastical Jurisdiction of the Church of God in Christ observes their 78th convocation July 20-26 at the Orlando Expo Centre in Orlando. Services are daily at 10:00 a.m. and nightly at 7:30 p.m.

International Prelate Church of God in Christ worldwide bishop Chandler D. Owens, Renown Gospel Singer and evangelist Dovidia Clark-Cole, recording artist and national evangelist Rev. Richard "Mr. Clean" White and other key officials of this church of God convocation will attend. There will be a youth explosion held at Lake Eola Park, workshops, training seminars and the awarding of scholarships. E.L. Sheppard is Bishop of Western Florida Ecclesiastical Jurisdiction.

WEDDING

Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Rafael Jones

Sharon Hawkins, Stanley R. Jones exchange vows

Sharon Elaine Hawkins of Bartow, formerly of Sanford, and Stanley Rafael Jones, of Bartow and formerly of Sanford, were united in matrimony, Saturday, June 20, at 3:00 p.m., at Burkett Chapel Primitive Baptist Church.

Officiates were the Rev. Myron D. Jackson, pastor of Abyssinia Missionary Baptist Church and Elder J.H. Chester, pastor of Zion Primitive.

The bride is the daughter of Mrs. Mae Hawkins and the groom is the son of Edna Aver and Joseph Jackson, West Palm Beach.

Given in marriage at the double ring ceremony performed by her great uncle, Willis Brown of Jacksonville, the bride chose for her vows an ivory formal-length gown featuring a sweetheart bodice with rose pedals accented with pearls. The cathedral-length train of ivory satin was adorned with pearls and rhinestones. Her v-shaped headpiece of white roses was attached to a veil of illusion net. She carried a cascade of white ivory roses with ivy leaf and white streamers.

Serving the bride as maid of honor was Kimberly Thomas, friend of the bride from Fort Charlotte. She wore a purple sheath style sleeveless formal-length gown with a single bouquet of roses and ivy leaf.

Bridesmaids were Antoina Brown, Oneka Jones, Kathleen Young, LaRhonda Jean, cousin and Tynahia Sexton, sister of the bride. Their gowns were identical to the honor attendant's.

Junior bridesmaids were Monique Jones and Jessica McKnight.

Serving the groom as best man was his friend Robert Kimpton, III of Hurston, Texas. Groomsmen were Kenny Rogers, brother of the groom from Lakeland; Bryan Elliott, Sheldon Martinez, Graham Reed, friend; David Floyd, Chris Nixon, brother and cousin of the groom.

Junior groomsmen were Charles Chester and Eric Elliott. Ushers were Frank Newberry and Berry Allen. Flower girls were Kamell Hill and Miaia Berry. Ringbearer was Michael Bonney.

The scripture of love was read by Tiffany McGhee, Soloists were Jeannine George, cousin of the bride; Kendrick Williams, friend of the groom from Tallahassee; soloist/organist was Elotee W. Dillgar, cousin of the bride from Sanford.

Musical tributes were "I Love The Lord", "Ribbon In The Sky", "Wind Beneath My Wings", "Count On Me", "For You" and "The Lord's Prayer", favorite selections of the couple.

Over 200 guests enjoyed the music and entertainment at the reception held at the Sheraton Hotel in Lakeland. The dinner guests enjoyed the evening of celebration.

The bride is a graduate of Florida A & M University and is employed in Winter Haven as a teacher. The groom is also a graduate of Florida A & M University. He is presently employed at Albertson's Food Store as a manager trainer in the Longwood store.

After a week's honeymoon to Sanibel Island, the couple are making their home in Bartow.

Guests included family and friends from: Sanford, Miami, St. Petersburg, Jacksonville, Tallahassee, West Palm Beach, Daytona Beach and Thomasville, Albany and Atlanta, Ga.

Girls Scouts raise money for fire victims

When Brownie Girl Scout Troop 1710 heard about the fires in Seminole County, they decided they wanted to do something to help. So Troop Leader Gail Ricci called the Salvation Army and asked what they needed.

People have a misconception about FEMA which only covers people not covered by homeowner's or renter's insurance. So, while some residents in Geneva are eligible for FEMA assistance, not everyone is. But having FEMA assistance is not going to cover your losses. The maximum FEMA will pay is $13,000 - not enough to rebuild a house and a life. And while homeowner's insurance will cover rebuilding your home, it doesn't cover the little things, such as school supplies.

School begins the first week of August. So, while some people are still accessing the damage and aren't sure about everything they need, all the children will need school supplies almost immediately.

So, armed with a letter from the Salvation Army, Gail got the Lake Mary Publix and the Lake Mary K-Mart to let them set up outside their stores. The girls gave out blue ribbons to donors to show their support of the firefighters who have worked so hard all summer long.

The girls from Troop 1710 who participated in the effort were Sara Ricci; Beth Duncan; Emily and Katie Keisling; Christina Montero; Sharon, Karen, and Susan Michael; and Rebecca Breeding. The girls have raised over $1,300 so far, which they will use to wasn't the only Stardust Girl Scouts helping out. Debi Lee, co-leader for Troop 441, was one of the many volunteers washing fireman's uniforms during the fires.)

Robbi Nelson of the Salvation Army said that money is still needed for the fire victims. And money donated for the fire victims goes directly for their use. Many of these victims will continue to need help in the months to come. The Salvation Army is still helping the victims of the February tornadoes with everything they need.

The Salvation Army will also need more volunteers this year. Every year the Salvation Army does something special for children in need at Christmas. Added to their regular list will be all of the tornado and fire victims. If you would like to help, you can call Robbi Nelson at 330-4678.

PILRIMAGE TAKES YOUTHS TO MOUNTAIN

Thirteen youths of the First United Methodist Church of Sanford departed Saturday morning as special missionaries to Mountain TOP Camp Overton, Rock Island, Tenn.

This is an annual project the church has supported for several years. The Mountain Tennessee Outreach Project is located in the remote Appalachian Mountains and according to Jenn Cook, church youth director, is an "extreme poverty" area. Recruits from around the country arrive here to repair the weather-beaten homes of the impoverished residents. These recruits live in camps nearby and provide their own tools at the work sites.

According to Jenn, the recruits do general home repairs as well as clean up yards and of these less fortunate mountain people. Each recruit has to raise more than $300 for expenses to Mountain TOP.

The church youths left before 4 a.m. July 18 in two vans with one pulling a trailer filled with borrowed tools and supplies from the congregation. The entourage looked snappy in their uniforms - white pants and white Mountain TOP T-shirts imprinted with their names.

In order to raise funds for this special pilgrimage, several fund-raisers were held. Margie McLoughlin coordinated a fish fry, Lori Hartsock was in charge of an Easter breakfast and Michele Fitzgerald coordinated a barbecue.

Patricia and Lee Rowell hosted a retreat for the youths at their home which was lead entirely by the youths under the coordination of Kathy Santos.

Youth missionaries attending Mountain TOP are: Matthew Boselka, Leslie Davis, Mark

MISSING MATES BOUGHT

The 1958 class of Seminole High School is deep into planning its 40th class reunion. Organizers are unable to locate several missing classmates.

If anyone has any information as to the whereabouts of the missing persons, please contact Jeanette Price Padgett, 323-3763, or Marcia Vicario, 328-9198.

YOU'RE INVITED

Long time Sanfordites will travel down Memory Lane when the Sanford Historical Society hosts a gathering at the New Tribes' Mission, formerly the elegant and classy Mayfair Inn.

The meeting will take place on Thursday, July 23, at 5:30 p.m., in what was once the grand ballroom of the historical landmark located at 1000 East First St., Sanford.

Guest speaker will be William "Bill" Kirchhoff, a former Seminole County Commissioner whose family once owned the famous inn where he lived at one time. He will carry historians back to earlier days when the inn set the pace for the social climate in Sanford.

Jean Clontz (from left), Miss Apopka 1988 Natalie Weid of Sanford, and Lisa Clontz at the Miss Florida Pageant in Gainesville where Miss Apopka was a contestant.

The event is open to the public, but reservations are in order by calling 323-8952. Those planning to attend are asked to bring a sandwich and the society will provide beverages, sandwich accompaniments and light dessert.

Sanford sailor heads for the Middle East

By Jason Emerson
NAVY PUBLIC AFFAIRS

Earlier this year, Steven Charles lived and worked aboard a Navy warship that was embroiled in war games near the coast of California. Today Charles is still a crew member on that ship, only it has left the tranquility of California for places where wars are not games.

Navy Petty Officer 2nd Class Charles, the 32-year-old son of Thomas and Betty Clark of Sanford, serves aboard the amphibious assault ship USS Duluth. Charles and the crew of the Duluth left San Diego in June for a six-month-long deployment to the Middle East. Charles, a religion program specialist, assists Navy chaplains in preparing religious activities for all faiths in the command. He understands the need for lengthy overseas deployments by Navy ships throughout the year.

"Naval forces deploy overseas to defend the United States and its interests and keep war away from our land," said Charles, a 1985 graduate of Lake Mary High School.

A state-of-the-art weapon, the Duluth is part of a three-ship force called an Amphibious Ready Group (ARG). More than 5,100 Sailors and Marines make up this ARG, and during the next six months they will patrol areas of the world where conflict is most likely.

TTY phone service provides lifeline for hearing-impaired

DEAR ABBY: As a young woman with a hearing impairment, I am grateful for TTY (Text Teleprinter) and TDD (Telecommunications Device for the Deaf), but I find that a large segment of the population is not familiar with these wonderful services.

Instead of the usual handset, a TTY phone has a keyboard and a display panel. These phones are owned by persons who have a hearing deficiency and have difficulty understanding speech. Instead of hearing, one sees the message as they are transmitted by means of a telephone line.

When a ship and its crew are in the Middle East, they are said to be at that "tip of the spear" because of the potential for conflict. Due to their professionalism, and the knowledge gained from the JTFEX, Charles and his shipmates are prepared for any situation they will encounter.

"This training has given me time to get my mind together to be ready for whatever task I'm asked to do," said Charles, an 11-year Navy veteran.

In addition to its crew of 400 officers and Sailors, the Duluth carries nearly 1,000 Marines. During actual conflict, Sailors would position the Duluth within striking distance of an enemy's shore and the Marines would storm the beach in landing craft and helicopters.

Aside from excelling in large-scale training exercises, Charles takes satisfaction from succeeding in other areas of his Navy career. "Working on the Duluth gives me an opportunity to share my religious training with all personnel," Charles said.

Center specializes in healing resistant injuries

Special to the Herald

LONGWOOD - After being cut or burned, most people assume their injury will heal within a reasonable amount of time. But many injuries just don't heal.

Mary Cowan learned that first-hand after she fell through a glass door and cut her leg. Although she received prompt medical attention, the wound didn't heal. In fact, it got worse.

Cowan, a 77-year-old retired nurse from Sanford, knew she had to get help. She went to the Seminole Wound Healing Center, where plastic surgeon Saulius Jankauskas performed a small skin graft. The graft initially "took," but broke down later. The swelling in her legs caused her injury to remain excessively moist—a perfect breeding ground for infection. In a short time, the infection had spread from her ankle almost up to her knee. She and Dr. Jankauskas both knew she was in danger of losing her leg.

With no time to lose, a treatment called the vacuum assisted closure was used. The excess fluid was suctioned from the wound, which reduced the amount of bacteria.

Mary Cowan, with her dog, Blackie, lost her leg because of a wound that wouldn't heal.

Then her performed a second skin graft that was completely successful.

The results of her treatment were so dramatic that her case was presented at a national nursing conference and later posted on the Internet.

Although many wound patients are over the age of 60, younger people experience problems with healing, too. Most of the younger patients seen at the Seminole Wound Healing Center have suffered burns, multiple traumas, amputations or surgical wounds that won't heal.

Most wounds aren't as dramatic as Cowan's fall through a glass door, but even a small cut can become very serious when the wound doesn't heal.

Kenneth Johnson, 46, of Apopka received two stitches for a minor cut on his shin but when the stitches were removed a week later, an infection had set in. Although the wound appeared to be healing on the surface, the tissue underneath was riddled with infection. Within a month, the infection was so deep it almost penetrated to Johnson's shin bone. The wound had to be made larger in order to remove the infected tissue.

"Many people don't realize that specialized wound healing treatments are available. They suffer needlessly and hope the problem will somehow cure itself—or they try to treat the problem themselves. When the body's healing process doesn't work as it should, help is available," said Grace Ingvalson, RN, a certified enterostomal therapy nurse.

"As the Baby Boomers age, we will be seeing a great increase in the number of patients. Please see Reading, Page 7C

Geriatric care managers can help Distant loved ones increase the caregiving challenge

By Debra Wood, RN
HERALD CORRESPONDENT

Living hundreds or thousands of miles from an elderly loved one increases the caregiving challenge for millions of Americans. Professional geriatric care managers can ease the burden.

Care managers coordinate and oversee services that enable the senior to live at home, and, when the time comes, they will assist with arrangements for alternative housing or ease the transition to a long-term care facility.

Usually hired by a son or daughter as an on-site manager, the geriatric specialists should begin with an evaluation of the clients' needs and potential problems. Can the senior still safely drive? If the client agrees and depending on financial resources, the care managers might arrange for paid in-home care or hire a contractor to make the home more accessible.

Community Care Partners and the Miller Center for Older Adult Services provide geriatric care management services to seniors in Seminole County. Community Care Partners is a division of the Visiting Nurse Association of Central Florida, part of the Orlando Regional Healthcare System and the Miller Center is associated with the Winter Park Health Foundation.

After a comprehensive assessment, experienced nurses and social workers at Community Care Partners determine the senior's eligibility for entitlement programs and make referrals to a carefully screened network of home-health care providers, elder law attorneys, personal care workers and others to ensure the client receives the best care possible. They visit clients frequently and keep out-of-town family members apprised of condition changes.

"Clients report that the care manager helps them explore options that they would not have thought of on their own, which helps them feel better about the decision they finally make," said Winter Springs resident Marisa Lorenz, executive director, Community Care Partners. "For loved ones who do not live close by, a professional care manager offers peace of mind. Before hiring a geriatric care manager, the long-distance caregiver should carefully check out the person's credentials and references. Geriatric care managers are not licensed and anyone can claim to be one. The management services are typically billed on an hourly basis (nationally from $50 to $150) and must be privately paid. Fees add up quickly. Private care managers frequently become too expensive for many long-distance caregivers. Members of the National Association of Professional Geriatric Care Managers have a social-services background.

For those who want to arrange care themselves, government supported Area Agencies on Aging can make recommendations for providers in the senior's area. Local caregivers can call the toll-free Eldercare Locator, 1-800-677-1116, to discover the Area Agency on Aging closest to their loved one.

Trying to balance a job, a family and caregiving is never easy. For out-of-town caregivers the worries are never far away. Government aging networks can provide vital information for long-distance management. And for those who can afford one, professional geriatric care managers can decrease the anxiety.

Selecting a nursing home

By Debra Wood, RN
HERALD CORRESPONDENT

Most family caregivers do everything they can to maintain their loved one's independence. But situations change and it may become impossible to safely meet the patient's needs at home. Deciding when to make the move to a nursing home is difficult, but selecting the right one could make everyone happier.

You and your loved one, if they are able, should visit the facilities you are considering. Here are some things to look for:

- Proximity to home - Loved ones experience less guilt about the move if they are able to maintain a sense of closeness. A home nearby makes visiting much easier.
- Atmosphere - Look for a warm feeling when you walk in. Evaluate the general esthetics and cleanliness. Does it smell?
- Furnishings in rooms - Does it feel homey and comfortable? The new resident should have the flexibility to bring in something from home which will help in the adjustment process.
- Outdoor amenities - A courtyard, patio or screen porch may give the resident an opportunity for fresh air, to hear the sound of birds chirping or feel sunshine's warm rays.
- Resident satisfaction - Determine if the people already living there seem happy. Observe if the residents are dressed and participating in activities. Many residents enjoy the interaction and the opportunity to talk with people who have similar interests. Avoid facilities where residents spend long periods of time in their rooms with the lights out or are sitting alone in the halls.
- Staff friendliness - Are they willing to talk to you? Many have loved ones in nursing homes and are familiar with family concerns. Monitor staff interactions with residents, visitors and co-workers. If you expect the resident to receive physical therapy, talk with

Volunteers needed for local study

Special to the Herald

BANFORD - Health-trained volunteers needed for consultation assistance with a group training project for youth-focused programs to include family assessments and in-home intervention.

Request from William A. Kerns, MA, MSW, Ph.D., Director, Social Nursing Assessment Program, 434 S. Elliott Ave., Sanford, 32771, 321-8246.

Immediate health-trained volunteer help is needed in a youth-focused training project. The program to be established was temporarily successful as a funded Learn and Serve project through a community college in 1997 in Georgia.

Help is needed in the following areas:

- 1) Designing specific family training classes following a previously state-approved curriculum for in-home respite care to families with disabled and elderly persons.
- 2) Reaching out to and assisting the Police and other agencies with this non-profit agency new to the community.
- 3) Helping in research concerning family "risk" areas.
- 4) Working initially unfunded with the Department of Education, colleges and universities and along with other agencies to encourage and improve respite care and other family strengthening needed by communities.

Volunteer consultative help is requested with no direct contacts with families necessary for the above tasks. The hours and specific help needed are open for discussion.

Working with the above-mentioned curriculum has been discussed with state education officials. For private enterprise development, we will begin with coordination of respite care businesses along with assisting in grant-writing and other areas with local youth and family programs.

Healing

tients needing our services," said Ingwolson, who has worked in the field for 20 years.

Wound healing is a rapidly growing medical specialty. One reason for the increasing demand for wound care is the aging of the population. As older people experience a decrease in circulation and other conditions, such as diabetes, they are more at risk of developing a wound that resists healing.

"Our skin goes through many changes as we age and the result is that we heal more slowly as we get older," Ingwolson said. "We need good blood flow for good healing."

Another of the center's patients, Dr. Al Weiner of Heathrow, suffered three cuts on his legs last year. Although he received immediate, emergency room treatment that included stitches, the wounds would not heal due to his poor circulation. A retired dentist, Dr. Weiner knew he needed a wound healing specialist and he called the Seminole Wound Healing Center. His wounds proved to be especially resistant but after several months, they were completely healed.

As these patients' experiences illustrate, even with specialized treatment, certain injuries may take many months to heal completely. However, without the correct treatment, some wounds may never heal. Treatments can include medical and surgical management, hydrotherapy, expert dressing management, properly measured and fitted compression garments, cast casting, physical therapy, occupational therapy and nutritional assessment and counseling.

Miss Lingle's troubles started when she was bitten on the leg by a small dog. "It was my daughter's poodle and I accidentally stepped on it, so it was really my fault," she said. "I tried to take care of it myself but after three days, I could tell something was wrong," said the 74-year-old Longwood resident.

When she went to her primary care physician, he immediately referred her to the Seminole Wound Healing Center. The dog bite had become badly infected and required that the dressing be changed three times a day.

"My husband helped me with the dressing and he was a wonderful nurse," said Lingle. Still, the wound required three months of attentive treatment from the center's staff and her husband.

Sometimes patients at the center may elect to participate in clinical trials as the staff evaluates new dressings, medications and other wound care therapies. The physicians work with the Health Research Institute at Orlando Regional Healthcare System to conduct research on all factors associated with wound healing.

"Our research focuses on determining the causes of abnormal scar tissue growth, modifying that growth and improving the efficiency of wound healing," said Dr. Jankauskas.

Recently, a second plastic surgeon, Barbara Wenczak, MD, has joined the Center, which is in its fourth year of operation. The Center's staff also includes board certified enterostomal therapy nurses, exercise physiologists, physical therapists, occupational therapists and dietitians.

When I was a kid...baseball was a different game

It's been pretty obvious for years that baseball is no longer the national pastime. What happened?

Did baseball kill itself or was it just a changing society?

I hate using the term, when I was a kid. That's what my grandparents would use when they talked about Babe Ruth and Lou Gehrig. It's the way my dad talked about Brooks Robinson and Mickey Mantle.

I didn't want to hear too much about them growing up. I wanted to hear about George Brett, Jim Palmer and my generation of players who were bound to one team for their entire careers. I was a die-hard Royals' fan in the 70s and 80s and knew every year that Brett, Frank White, Freddie Patek, Paul Splittorf and the rest of the game would be back and it was always a highlight of my spring to see them together on the field in spring training, just like they had been together for years.

Today, how does a kid develop and allegiance to a team when the players are never in the same place. The Orioles of my childhood were the same Orioles every year and they were pretty darned good.

Now, the Orioles are, except for Cal Ripken, a group of mercenaries. Hired guns.

Quick, name more than five players who have been on the same team since the beginning of their career and are in the same place after about seven years.

Let's see, there's Cal Ripken, Ken Griffey, Mo Vaughn, John Smoltz, Tom Glavino. Probably a few more, but you get the point.

But, say a team does stay together. Who are the heroes to make the team your favorite? There may not be two more talented players in the game than Barry Bonds and Albert Belle. They just happen to be two of the least likable players in the game.

Today's hero is Griffey, the guy who chose not to participate in the home run derby until he was bobbed profoundly.

Is it all the fault of the major leaguers and owners?

Not at all. When I was a kid we played ball all day long during the summer. If we couldn't rally up five or six guys (no girls allowed), we played Three Fives to 100. We made our own rules and had a blast.

Today, kids play Little League or Bambino ball year-round. The rules are made by a Board of Directors and anyone who has been to enough youth ball fields know that the parents are the ones in charge, at least when they aren't arguing over something as insane as who gets to play the most and who gets which uniform number. Believe me, it happens.

By the time the kids travel all over the state to various tournaments, that doesn't leave a lot of time for sandlot ball. Of course, there are other options. In the pre-cable days, you have three soap operas on television during the day.

Today, the kids have too many distractions with video games, cable, VCRs. The list goes on.

But outside distractions aren't the main reason. Ride out to any outdoor basketball court and you can always find some kids taking it to the hoop.

Basketball is fun. It's Air Jordan and Penny and the rest of the gang. Let's hope the lockout doesn't mark the end of the NBA as we know it.

Basketball has marketed itself. Baseball hasn't. Baseball fans are getting older by the year and there aren't as many fans to take their place. Kids today want to watch the Bulls.

Baseball isn't dead, but it is in critical condition. Forget the attendance marks being broken all over the country. Most are the result of new ballparks which cater to the wealthy elite. Kids aren't the ones filling those seats. Of course, there aren't a lot of kids at the O-rana either, but the game still caters to kids on television.

Baseball's biggest ad campaign is a

Big inning for Altamonte Springs All-Stars score 8 in second to advance

Things didn't go quite as well for the Longwood All-Stars who were knocked off Friday in the Prep-13 all-star state tournament at Eastmonte Park. Longwood lost a high-scoring game and will now face Altamonte Springs Saturday at 4 p.m. The championship game will be held Sunday.

By Jeff Berlinicke
ASSISTANT SPORTS EDITOR

For two innings, Altamonte Springs kept the game tight, waiting for the big inning.

The explosion came in the third as Altamonte Springs scored eight runs to jump out to a commanding 9-1 lead and an eventual 12-1 win over Winter Haven to advance to the semifinals of the 13-15 Babe Ruth Tournament at Eastmonte Park.

Saturday, Altamonte Springs will face Tallahassee at 4 p.m. Other games include Winter Haven - Ft. Pierce at 10 a.m. and Orange Park - Gainesville at 1 p.m.

Tallahassee earned the right to take on Altamonte after downing Orange Park yesterday.

It was the second win of the tournament for Altamonte Springs which knocked off Ft. Pierce Thursday, 7-3.

Coach Jeff Scott said his team is capable of a major uprising at any minute with a lineup loaded from top to bottom.

"I wish we could start all 12," he said. "This team can hit all the way from the top of the order to the guys on the bench."

Altamonte Springs actually fell behind early when pitcher Ray Horal struggled in the first, but Winter Haven managed only one run while Horal managed a strikeout with runners on second and third to end the inning. In the bottom half of the first, Altamonte Springs got the run back. J.P. Robertson singled with one out and moved over on a walk to Dave McNeil. Justin Moore followed with a long double to the left field wall to knot the game at one.

Meanwhile, Horal settled down and struck out the side in the second. In his five-inning complete game, ended by the 10-run run, Horal struck out eight, allowing only one hit. Scott says he's just one of three aces on the Altamonte Springs staff.

"Ray pitched a great game tonight and Tommy Sutton was excellent last night (Thursday)," Scott said. Ben Poole is also a great pitcher."

While Horal was shutting down Winter Haven, Altamonte came to bat in the third. Fifteen batters later, it was 9-1.

Poole took the first pitch over the left field wall to make it 2-1 and Dave McNeil walked. After reaching on another walk and an error to load the bases, Chris Scott went long to right field for an opposite-field grand-slam to blow the game open.

It wasn't over yet. After two outs, Horal and Robertson singled and Poole slammed a two-run double to deep right. It could have been worse, but Altamonte Springs left the bases loaded.

It didn't matter. Horal was never threatened and Altamonte Springs ended it for good in the fifth.

With one out, Altamonte Springs reached on three walks and the 10th run was forced in when Jeff Strickland was hit by a pitch. It was over when the next batter, Chris Frost, sent a double over a drawn-in outfield to end the game.

On the night, Altamonte Springs managed nine hits and didn't commit an error. With the combination of hitting, pitching and defense, a state title could come this weekend.

"We think we can win it all," Scott said. "This is a great opportunity to win the state tournament."

In the Prep-13 Tournament, also at Eastmonte Park, Gainesville will take on Sarasota Saturday at 1 p.m. with Longwood and Altamonte Springs at 4 p.m.

Oviedo Firestix were all fired up

By Jeff Berlinicke
ASSISTANT SPORTS EDITOR

The Oviedo Firestix 11-12 softball team is a pretty talkative bunch.

That is, until you bring up the subject of their coach, Jeff Peterman.

All the bravado that comes with winning the district Top Team Tournament in a convincing manner is out the window when the coach's name comes up. Nervous grins followed by "no comments."

They were just a little nervous. No one can doubt the respect they have for Peterman and his assistants Don King and Jerry Curry.

No one can doubt, either, that Oviedo was the dominant team in the area this summer. The Firestix lost only two games all season and one of them didn't count. They beat the Apopka Thunder in the final and most of the team has moved on to all-star competition where the Oviedo contingent was the District 14 championship including one win of 21-0.

For the Firestix, the pitching staff was led by Kellie Ford, Jessica Samuels and Becky Curry.

"They are all fast and they're very accurate," said first baseman Kelly Lawton.

Ingram Hernandez was behind the plate and Peterman called her one of the best players in Central Florida.

"She's just great all-around and she's a perfect catcher," Samuels said.

Lawton is joined in the infield by Dana Daniels, Curry and Ford with Hernandez playing some shortstop.

The outfield was also a strong point for the

Approval of Marine Commission rule would stop the unnecessary killing of millions of juvenile fish

SANFORD On June 24, the Governor and Cabinet will vote on a proposed Marine Fisheries Commission (MFC) rule to require the installation of finfish by-catch reduction devices (BRDs) in all shrimp otter-type trawls.

"This measure will have monumental positive impacts on Florida's fishery resources," said CCA Florida Executive Director Ted Foragen. "These devices will prevent the unnecessary killing and waste of hundreds of millions of juvenile finfish every year."

The MFC estimates that, in the state and federal waters off Florida, somewhere between 70 to 116 million pounds of finfish and other marine life are caught, killed and dumped back into the sea by shrimp trawlers every year. Fish species in trawl by-catch include flounder, croaker, whiting, sand trout, silver trout, Spanish mackerel, groupers, snappers and just about everything else that lives in Florida's coastal waters. Virtually all of the finfish are small juvenile fish.

A considerable amount of time and tax dollars has been spent by the MFC and other state agencies to research and develop workable by-kill reduction devices for shrimp trawls. Several hundred thousand dollars of saltwater recreational fishing license money was used for targeted research on specific devices in smaller inshore shrimp trawls. Overall, the National Marine Fisheries Service (NMFS) has spent millions of dollars on shrimp trawl finfish by-kill reduction research in the southeastern United States.

"The [Marine Fisheries] Commission has been working with fishermen, scientists, and the public for more than five years to find ways to cut the wasteful killing of important finfish species in shrimp trawls by at least half, and two types of devices have been tested and approved that not only achieve the by-catch reduction goal, but have little if any significant impact on overall shrimp harvest," said MFC Executive Director Russell Nelson.

Additionally, the cost of the BRDs for shrimpers is minimal—from $25 for the "bebye" BRD to $120 to $150 for the "extended mesh funnel" BRD. The MFC rule also establishes a special "fast track" procedure to add new BRD devices to their approved list as soon as they are certified by NMFS.

In spite of all the time, tax dollars and research, and the huge by-kill damage, the commercial fishing industry filed a lawsuit to block and delay the MFC rule. The Southeastern Fisheries Association, a commercial fishing industry group, did not attend or comment at any of the 21 regional or statewide MFC hearings until the last and final hearing. At which time they objected and then filed a lawsuit to delay and stop the rule.

OUTDOORS

MFC Chairman Dr. Robert Marston had strong comments regarding the industry lawsuit, stating, "It is shameful that this groundless rule challenge will delay rational and much needed protection for Florida's marine life for nine to twelve months."

Marston was correct on both points. The lawsuit delayed final Cabinet action for ten months and the state administrative judge found the industry's claims groundless. The judge upheld the validity of the MFC rule and dismissed the industry lawsuit.

"We expect the industry and commercial shrimpers to continue to fight to kill this rule," said Ted Foragen. "All concerned fishermen and other conservationists need to call and fax letters to the Governor and Cabinet and urge them to approve this immensely important law requiring by-kill reduction devices in shrimp trawls. Approval will save hundreds of millions of fish each and every year."

SHUPE'S SCOOP

An average of 4-to-7 pounds of juvenile fish are killed for every pound of shrimp that is harvested. The impact of this monumental fish kill is hard to estimate in terms of the sport fishing industry.

FISHING FORECAST

Bream and catfish continue to bite in spite of the heat. Bass action will remain slow until this fall. For a change, try night fishing. Bass are active at night, and will hit a variety of artificials from live worms to plastic worms.

Sebastian Inlet has great catch and release snook fishing with fish to 20 pounds. Large live shrimp are the top bait. Also expect redfish, trout, flounder and a few tarpon. Snook and tarpon continue to bite in the Sebastian River.

Captain Jack at Port Canaveral reports that king mackerel continue to be the most dependable species. They can be found from just off the beach to S.A. Reef and Pelican Flats. Tripletail and a few king mackerel are in the buoy line, while flounder are in the Port. Trout and redfish are rated as fair on the flats of the Banana and Indian Rivers.

Sheepshead, flounder, drum, redfish, small bluefish and jack crevalle are all biting at Ponce Inlet. Live or dead shrimp is the top bait. Flounder are hitting best on the south side of the south jetty. Trout and redfish are rated as good in Mosquito Lagoon.

Da' Bomb hears all...

Da Bomb sez if you want to see some real happy kids havin' a great time this summer, check out the day care program over at Lake Mary Elementary. What's cool is that kid from all over the count, from schools like Wicklow, Wilson, Lake Mary, Heathrow, Woodlands and a bunch of others are all spending their summer together. So far, the kids have gone to visit a hospital, learned about space exploration and a whole lot more. Da Bomb had great time with him, even after one of the kids spilled some juice on him. Check out what the kids were up to this summer on the Herald this week.

Jackson Heights Middle School is loaded with some awesome softball talent. Da Bomb sez with all those kids headin' for O-wee-dee in a couple years, look out for the Lions.

Kendrick represents Florida

By Marva Hawkins
HERALD CORRESPONDENT

SANFORD - Martina D. Kendrick, well known Central Florida basketball player, is ready to go after a national championship, but she needs your help.

After playing with the Hornets for years, Kendrick is now a member of the Warriors, who recently won their fifth straight AAU (Amateur Athletic Union) Florida State Championship.

Now the 14-and-Under team is ready to head for the National Tournament in New Orleans to represent Florida, but the young ladies are in need of funds to help them defray the costs.

There are expenses too numerous to list, but they include overnight stays and travel that could be as long as two weeks if the team continues to win.

The Warriors were the National Champions in 1996 and were 11th out of 91 teams in last year's nationals.

Kendrick, the daughter of Marcus and Thelma Kendrick, has won over 20 trophies since 1994. Among her accomplishments are first place in the Elks National Hoop-Shoot, Elks Regional Free Throw Champion (as a 13-year-old), Florida Youth Basketball Incorporated Senior Girls Champions and Most Valuable Player at the Knights of Columbus #5357 1998 International Invitational Tournament last weekend.

Sunday, July 19, 1998

Chance could figure prominently in your affairs in the year ahead. Just when you need a break the most, conditions will move in your favor. Be stout of heart.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Much to your surprise, solutions to two annoying problems may pop into your head today. Cancer, treat yourself to a birthday gift. Send for your Astro-Graph predictions for the year ahead by mailing $2 and SASE to Astro-Graph, c/o this newspaper, P.O. Box 1758, Murray Hill Station, New York, NY 10156. Be sure to state your zodiac sign.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) It's important to associate with outgoing companions today. Hang out with pals eager to talk about new ideas and explore them with you.

VRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Be aware of your responsibilities today, and don't wait to be told to do what needs doing. Others will admire your initiative and start to imitate you.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Youngsters will respond to your directives today, and remember the lessons you want to instill in them, if you address them on their level.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Put plans you have for your house into action today. If you don't get ahead now, there could be delays later on.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Don't decide on plans that collectively affect you and your mate. If you stay flexible, something better may pop up as the day moves on.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Take time to review your financial position in detail today. There's a possibility you've been overlooking something meaningful.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18) Run-of-the-mill activities will bore you today, so you're going to require social involvement. Plan something different, rather than relying on your peers to do it for you.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20) Something you want to do for your family will have more impact today if it is done secretly. Don't spring it on them until it's ready.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) You could be too restless for your own good today. You

For the curious

The English Bridge Union puts out a bimonthly magazine that includes a quiz run by Andrew Kamhites. In the December 1997 issue, the readers were given these North-South hands in a six-suit contract after West had opened three hearts. West leads the heart ace, from ace-king. You ruff and draw trumps in two rounds, East shedding a diamond and a club. How would you continue?

It is possible to play that five clubs is a cue-bid showing slam interest in spades with the club ace. With long clubs, like the bullet and pass out four spades. Kamhites says you must assume West started with 3-7-2-2 distribution. After ruffing at trick one and drawing trumps, play, say, a diamond to dummy's ace, ruff the heart five in hand, cash both minor-suit kings, and lead a club to dummy's ace. With your preparations complete, call for the heart queen and discard either of your minor-suit losers. West is employed. He must return a heart, which allows you to ruff in the dummy and jettison your other minor-suit loser. Your 12 tricks are seven spades, two diamonds, two clubs and one heart ruff in the dummy. Does anything worry you, though?

If the word "squeeze" strikes fear into your heart, move on to the comic. Yet it seems to me that declarer does better to discard a minor-suit loser at trick one. West must switch. Suppose he selects a trump. By running all but one of your spades, you have a squeeze whatever the lie of the cards. The only snag is that you
