RETURNED TO MEMPHIS

Premier Daladier's blunt statement that France would yield "not a foot of our land nor one of our rights" today left Paris and Rome still far from reconciliation in their dispute over Italian colonial claims on France. Daladier's strong words in a broadcast speech last night put the first step up to Italy if Italian-French differences are to be negotiated and seemed to have won both political and popular approval in France. The Paris press was unanimously behind the premier and even the socialists and communists, his chief opposition, acquiesced their endorsement.

Mayo Brothers Enjoy All Their Success Together

Famous Doctors Divide Both Honors And Their Earnings

ROCHESTER, Minn., Mar. 18.—The Mayo brothers have won about everything the world offers in the way of success, but they still enjoy things together just as they did when they lived out of the same pocket.

They were the "Mayo boys" until they passed 70. That identified them as sons of "Old Doctor" William Warrall Mayo, who carried his medical kit until he was 91.

They are not much alike, but they've always had great depth of feeling for each other. Either, upon receiving a compliment, invariably accepts "on behalf of my brother and myself."

Dr. Will is blue-eyed, white-haired and taller. Dr. Charlie has brown eyes, brown hair and is stockier. Both have always carried an amazing burden of work. Dr. Will has never learned to sleep; has a certain tension that does not brook idleness. He is the dominant character; he has always been the executive of the clinic.

Dr. Charlie found time to raise pigs, cows, crops, roses and flowers. He likes a joke, and his wit is handy. Dr. Will likes a joke, too, but strange as it might seem to his sisters, there's a sort of Golden Rule in the affection between these medical brothers.

"Each of us wished the other to have the greater share," said Dr. Will. "For years when we were in simple partnership we just took what we wanted out of the common fund and divided up what was left at the end of the year."

With money and honors it was fifty-fifty, and so it was with the work.

"Will did the heavy work and I did everything else in the early days," said Dr. Charlie. The early fame of the clinic was based on abdominal surgery.

Charlie was the best surgeon from the point of view of the patients that I have ever known," said Dr. Will. "Charlie is a wonderful fellow."

Only once, when one of Dr. Charlie's non-in-law left the clinic after a disagreement, were there some feral family nerves. It caused not a tripple in brotherly love.

Perhaps happy family life contributed much to their success. Grandchildren overrun the homes of both Mayos. Dr. Will's two grown daughters are married to clinic doctors. Dr. Charlie has several daughters, most of them married, and his son, Dr. Charles W., is one of the leading surgeons in the country.

Dr. Will finished medical school at Michigan University six years ahead of Dr. Charlie's graduation from Northwestern. Both worked in drug stores during school vacations. Dr. Will specialized in abdominal surgery; Dr. Charlie took up thyroid surgery for gaiter. They found the combination made a harmonious partnership.

To the results of this team-work, universities, medical and scientific societies of the world have paid highest tributes. One day, at the great array of scientific awards, medals and other tokens of honor at the Mayo Foundation here.

A doctor's recommendations don't keep up with the Mayo's popularity for a time. Dr. Will built a big stone house to entertain special guests. Two years ago he built a smaller home on a corner of the same block and named it the place over to the clinic.

WE'RE ON THE WAY!

Halfback And Prize Steer Train Together

DENVER, Mar. 18.—(AP)—A high school halfback who trained his prize steer by playing football with him was one of the six youngsters who won most of the blue ribbons at the National Western Stock Show.

By capturing the important championships, the six young cattle-raisers convinced old stockmen that raising prize stock as a full-time hobby has become a full-grown business. The winners' prizes ranged from club memberships to take the open championship, and the field included 15,000 entries from the nation's best ranches.

Willard Frye, 17-year-old halfback at Peoria, Ill., Central High School, whooped with joy when Flash was named grand champion fat steer. And he had a right to be proud.

Prof. W. L. Blizard of Oklahoma A. and M. College, a show judge, called Frye's steer "one of the best animals ever exhibited at Denver or any other stock show."

Willard's explanation: "We've been training for this ever since last June. I had won several small prizes at various shows and I pooled that money to buy Flash in Nebraska."

"I brought him home and to keep in training for football I began tackling and blocking him. He was surprised at first but soon learned to take it and finally he could dodge and buck right back at me."

That, Willard believes, gave the animal a good hold down and taught him to stand straight. He got him used to me—another big asset in the show ring. It also got him used to me—another big asset for a show animal."

Flash went the same way as other prize fat steers—to the auction ring for purchase by packing houses.

"If I'm going to be a stockman—and I plan to be a good one—I might as well make up my mind there is no place for sentiment in the business," said Frye.

Daladier Warns II Duce France Will Resist Grab

"How can Europe thus fall to be on the alert?" he asked. "We won't cede an inch of territory or a single one of our rights," said Daladier at the outset of his speech.

Then he turned to an ominous warning of French fighting strength, noting Mussolini's boast of last Sunday that might be the guiding principle of Italian foreign policy.

"France hopes to save peace because she hates war," Daladier said. "But if war is imposed on her it is offered as the only alternative to losing or dishonor she will arise as one man for defense of her liberty."

In attacking Mussolini's demands for "vital space" in the Mediterranean—regarded as Italy's bid for Mediterranean domination and naval parity with France—Daladier also attacked Hitler because of the recent Nazi seizures in Europe.

France had never ceased to show good will toward Germany, he said, recalling the "no-more-war" agreement signed by France and Germany in Paris last Fall following the Munich conference.

"But the conquest of Czechoslovakia and the occupation of Austria by German armies struck a severe blow to these patient efforts," Daladier asserted.

"For years they spoke of the right of self-determination to justify certain acts. Then they spoke of natural aspirations. Now they speak of vital space, which is nothing less than the perpetual will to conquest."

"To the contrary," he explained, "the Italians benefit from a most liberal regime."

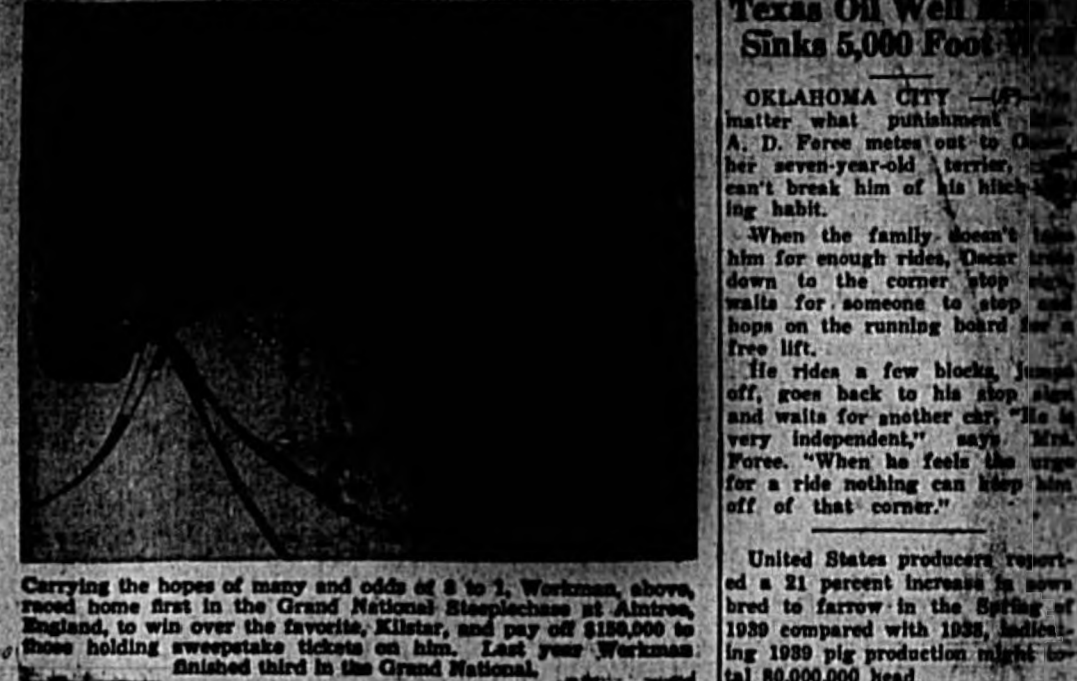

Daladier closed his answer to Mussolini on a warning note. "There is no one who is not aware at present that war would be a catastrophe for all nations. No one would be safe from destruction."

"We do not want that. We want to help Europe save herself. In the name of my country I call on confident collaboration by all powers who think as we think and who are ready to persevere along the path of peace."

"But as one man we would rise solidly against aggression. I am sure these words defining the French position will find a fraternal echo in friendly nations of Europe, as well as across the English Channel and across the Atlantic."

His speech was approved by the Cabinet at a meeting earlier in the day when progress in negotiations for creating a "Stop Hitler" bloc of nations also was studied. Sir Eric Phipps, British Ambassador, conferred with Daladier Monday night, indicating that Britain had been given advance notice of the contents of the Premier's radio reply to M. C. C.

Federal Budget Problems Similar To That Of Family

Economy Bloc Desires To Make Ends Meet For The Government

By MORGAN M. BEATTY
WASHINGTON, Mar. 29.—(AP)—Are you trying to decode the annual Spring babble about business and taxes?

Or are you trying to figure out the changing phrases welling up from Washington this year, such as business apportionment and statutory debt limit?

All right, let's throw out those dollar-and-a-half words and bring so much of this thing as we can down to the familiar level of the family budget.

The family budget and the national budget face the same old budget that plagues father and the family checkbook—making both ends meet, or trying to.

For instance, the talk of economy in Congress is comparable to the family council when the bills come in. Senator Pat Harrison's demand for a radical and substantial cut in federal expenditures is much like father laying down the law about living within the family income.

The decision to go ahead with Aunt Julia's operation or to buy the new car on time and let the expenses fall where they must, is something like a New Dealer voting appropriations because of the urgency of relief and other modern innovations.

The warning of that section of Congress labeled "economy bloc" against expanding the statutory debt limit beyond the $5-billion-dollar mark has its family budget counterpart, too. See the executive committee telling his dependents that the bank won't lend him any more money to meet their current bills—or even if it will, he won't borrow any more on general principles.

And in there no familiar note in President Roosevelt's call in his annual message for an $8-billion-dollar national income? It's possible that argument sounds like mother's chiding reminder: All the old problems would disappear, if father would only get that raise.

How about the business apportionment drive, spearheaded by new leader Harry Hopkins from the chair of the Secretary of Commerce? Well, there's the head of the house who had a disagreement with the banker about loans for improvement of the old homestead. Would the banker please now understand that all was over—no more words about money changes and certainly no further action to suit those words?

These are the similarities between family and governmental finances. But there are two fundamental differences between the family pocketbook and the United States Treasury.

First, the ideal home budget makes expenses meet the family income. WITH SOMETHING LAID ASIDE FOR A RAINY DAY. The ideal government budget makes income (tax receipts) meet expenses. AND AVOIDS PUTTING ANY MONEY ASIDE FOR EMERGENCIES.

We must all economists agree that the picture of the federal Treasury laying money aside for a public emergency is such-and-so many ways than one. Anything left over should be returned to the pockets it really belongs to, the taxpayers.

Second, the federal budget expects to use credit to help it supply, but the usual family budget has known credit limit based on a private citizen's past performance and the known ceiling of his income. Contrarily, a public budget has no known ceiling of credit, until that ceiling is actually approached or reached. The federal ceiling is a matter of opinion.

That's the fundamental argument of the moment—the debt ceiling of the federal Treasury.

Very late, Congress got a theoretical nod on debt at $5 billion dollars, as a sort of warning signal. Investors were assured the Federal Government would go no further than that, or at least would be the devil to pay in Congress when that point was reached.

If Trees Are To Be Moved Spring Is Time To Do It

By Associated Press
If you want to move your trees or plant new ones to fit into the lawn arrangement—do it now. Spring is the best time for the job in most of the country.

And with a little planning and transplanting you can get that informal "just-happened" effect and at the same time make the trees serve several purposes.

They can break the wind against winter gales and snow—and give that comfortable shady look in the summer. Framing your house, they give graceful architectural lines.

But there are a lot of tricks to transplanting, whether your trees come from the nursery or already are being moved from one place to another on the lawn.

The season of the year is important—and Spring is the best time in the colder parts of the Central-United States and far south as Texas. In the East Fall transplanting is possible and on the West Coast autumn is preferred since it gives the roots a chance to build up before the dry spell.

Leafy trees are usually moved before Spring growth starts or after growth ripens in the Fall. Evergreens can be moved in the Spring, starting just after the earliest leafy plants begin to come out and on well the latest plants are well started. Another recommended time comes in late summer or early Fall when the rains begin and before freezing weather.

It's a good idea to have the new spot picked and a hole dug. Then the tree can be plunked into position without undue root exposure. There should be room enough to stretch the roots out and depth enough to allow two or three inches of rich soil.

Experts advise that long roots on a tree which has grown on your lawn for several years should be cut off this Spring if you plan transplanting. That can be done by cutting a circle around it with a spade. This encourages growth of short feeder roots, which should be helped along during the summer with fertilizer and a mulch on top of the ground. Then the tree will be ready to transplant late next Fall or the following Spring.

Remember that transplanted trees need special care. Evergreens require a daily dousing of water in dry climates and the tops should be sprayed several times a day to reduce transpiration from the foliage.

To water the roots, pour a little at the trunk, let it soak away, and pour on some more until it works down.

Officer Guards Health Of Only World War House

FORT MEYER, Va., Mar. 29.—(AP)—When the United States plunged into the World War 22 years ago this Apr. 9, a little black horse named Jeanne D'Arc was 10 years old and already a veteran with the French artillery.

Jeanne is still alive and amazingly spry and comely for her 32 years—the equivalent of 96 years of age in a human. She's the last survivor of the horses that did battle service with the American army in France.

But when Jeanne's stablemate prance down Pennsylvania Avenue in the Army Day parade, she won't be with them. It isn't that the mare, possessor of a wood stipe and six combat stars couldn't step manly down the avenue, but she's on the retired list and her owner, Lieut. Col. John D. Von Holtrendorf, of the artillery, guards her health zealously.

Jeanne's life has been so eventful she has served with the Stars and Stripes with the Second division when it stopped the German drive on Paris at Belleauwood. She won her medal at the battle of St. Mihiel when she was the mount

The four other major battles in which Jeanne participated were Verdun (with the French army), Blanc Mont, the Meuse-Argonne and Soissons. Colonel Von Holtrendorf bought her at the end of the war. An excellent jumper in her day, she participated in the Olympic games and won trophies in other major competitions.

Jeanne's ancestry has not been established but Army horsemen feel certain she is an Anglo-Arab. In good weather, Colonel Von Holtrendorf frequently rides Jeanne—rides her with all the pride of a Napoleon on Marengo of Waterloo fame. Once her aged legs have been limbered up in a little preliminary walk, she can still carry him at a gallop.

Rowe Expected To Help Aaron's Chances

Lynwood Will Take Another Trip In The Majors This Season

DARKELAND, Mar. 29 (AP)—There may be a sweeter thing this time perhaps the saddest baseball story of last spring, the fruitless comeback struggle of the Detroit Schoolboy.

It was just a year ago that Lynwood Rowe, the Tigers' great young pitcher of 1934-35-36, was trying to coax his sore arm back into shape for another trip to the majors. He was game and he tried hard and everyone was willing for him. But every time he threw the ball there was an ache in his right shoulder.

Like a neuritic old woman, he went from one doctor to another. He tried one rubbing liniment after another. He tried what on wild goose tours to mysterious dispensers of herbs always searching for the elusive cure that might cure his ailment.

Dozens of x-ray pictures were taken. But doctors couldn't locate the source of his trouble. "It was just a little spot, about the size of a match-head, at the right shoulder joint," Rowe explained. But every time he raised his arm it hurt. He couldn't really throw the ball. He was just pushing it up to the plate.

So they finally gave up on the Schoolboy and shipped him off to the minors. He went to Beaumont in the Texas league. "I decided to take it easy down there," he says. "I resolved not to strain my arm under any condition. If I couldn't win games without straining it, I'd just lose the games. Only once during the season did I raise back and put all I had on my fast ball. I just tried to out-smart 'em with a curve and a change of pace."

And the records show how well he did. He won 12 games and lost only two. And his control was no good that he walked only 13 men all season.

Now he's back with the Tigers, with a club that has strengthened itself for a serious assault on the New-York Yankees. And his hopes depend largely on his pitching and on that of the "Moose" Fred Hilttenbach.

His arm hasn't hurt at all this spring, he says. "Last year I was just pushing the ball up to the plate. Now I'm throwing it. And I've got a fair fast ball. It doesn't compare with the one I used to have but it is speedy enough to get by."

"I'm not going to strain my arm with the Tigers, either, but I know that my arm has grown stronger through so that early in the season I can start putting some speed on the ball. I hope to be a fast-ball pitcher again, but if I can't maybe I'll be speedy enough with control curve and change of pace to win some games."

Little difficult follows recall that when the Tigers, now of the Yankees, was a big-time winner for Hilttenbach and later a winner with Washington after he had lost to speed and suggest that Rowe may become another "Moose."

"They're trying not to be too optimistic about the Tigers' season but every last one of them thinks Schoolboy will be back as a winning pitcher."

Learn Women Law Against Chickens

WASHINGTON, Mar. 29 (AP)—After it will be unlawful to have more than 20 chickens within 500 feet of residences in Washington, according to an ordinance passed by City Commissioners Monday night.

The ordinance, which was elected to the city council by a vote of 6 to 2, was introduced by Councilman L. M. Walling, who is a Commissioner of the city. The ordinance is aimed at the "backyard chicken" industry, which has become a nuisance in some sections of the city.

The ordinance will take effect immediately. It is one of the many measures being taken by the city to improve the health and safety of its residents.

Words Look Larger When Plantings Are Well-planned

Before you plant your pan-try and kitchen this spring get out Grandma's old stereoscope.

That's an effect of perspective—the key to the landscape expert's tips on how to plan a yard and garden.

To make a little plot of grass look bigger the experts tell you to draw upon tricks of perspective. Keep your lawn all in one piece. Put trees, shrubs and flowers around the edges, and at the far end.

A flower bed in the middle of a small grass plot leaves only a little green dab around the edges that looks like a tiny lawn crowded with too many flowers.

Try To Get Space There's nothing trick to and space. Leave openings in the shrubbery and trees that surround your lot. Then the eye gets a long view through to older lawns, lending a sense of distance.

You also get more open space on a crowded lot by pruning trees high and trimming shrubbery low.

A large lot looks cozier with irregular plantings of shrubbery along the edges to break up straight, uninteresting lines. Projections of shrubbery cut down distances and mask off little corners. That invites visitors to explore behind the shrubbery screen.

When you put low shrubbery close to your house leave a few open places showing the foundation so that the house won't seem to be built on bushes. Certain houses need a picture frame of trees. A tall tree on either side near the front corner may break a severe architectural line without hiding the beauty of the house.

Try 'em On First To get a test picture of how your plans will work out, the department of Agriculture experts suggest temporary plantings first. For example you can put in annual castor beans, growing four to twenty feet tall in garden from green to deep orange, or clematis which reach three to six feet high, or Joseph-corn, four to five feet high, with red, yellow and bronze leaves. If you put them in the wrong spots you can easily pull them up and try again.

Oh, yes, you must figure of how tall and wide your trees and shrubs will look ten years from now. Otherwise a decorative shrub may become a tree, and the most beautiful part of your house.

Your friends and visitors, even the casual passerby, will like you for planning before you plant. After all, other people have to look at your home too, unless you're a hermit.

A tall tree on either side near the front corner may break a severe architectural line without hiding the beauty of the house.

Try 'em On First To get a test picture of how your plans will work out, the department of Agriculture experts suggest temporary plantings first. For example you can put in annual castor beans, growing four to twenty feet tall in garden from green to deep orange, or clematis which reach three to six feet high, or Joseph-corn, four to five feet high, with red, yellow and bronze leaves. If you put them in the wrong spots you can easily pull them up and try again.

Oh, yes, you must figure of how tall and wide your trees and shrubs will look ten years from now. Otherwise a decorative shrub may become a tree, and the most beautiful part of your house.

Your friends and visitors, even the casual passerby, will like you for planning before you plant. After all, other people have to look at your home too, unless you're a hermit.

Hair Stylist Urges Return To Shingles

By BETTY CLARKE
When the hairline is good it is very, very good—but when it is bad it is horrid. We discovered that last summer. Ever since, we've been trying to find out what to do about it.

First, hair stylist for Charles of the Mitts, contributes two pointers:

If your hairline is naturally neat and regular, dress your hair so as to show it off.

If it is bad, arrange the hair to conceal irregularity. He suggests using bangs if your forehead hairline is irregular and bangs, by the way, are definitely in this season—in for the first time in sixty years. He has done quite a little experimenting with the hair in

Lanahan To Toss For Chattanooga Against Millers

Visiting Lookouts To Play Minneapolis Nine In Local Park Tomorrow At 3 P.M.

Lanahan, the old faithful of the Chattanooga pitching staff, will start on the mound for the Lookouts against the Minneapolis Millers at 3:30 o'clock tomorrow afternoon on the Municipal Athletic field.

Behind the plate Jim Galvin will handle the backstopping assignment against the Minneapolis Millers. The second baseman slated for duty against the American Association club is Bohan who will work the latter part of the game.

The Lookout infield, according to Manager Cuyler, is coming along nicely with Hooks playing in tomorrow's game at first, Litchey covering second, Hirsch at short and Benjamin at third.

The outfield will probably include Eddie Rose, the Lookout acquisition from Atlanta, in left. Manager Cuyler holding down the centerfield position, with Nikolson doing the work in right.

This same squad is slated for duty against Ballouers at Daytona Beach this afternoon when they tackle with the Oriole crew they handled a 6-3 trouncing in an exhibition fray here last week but with Williams and Bass, the pitchers scheduled to bear the brunt of the mound labors against the Maryland fowls this afternoon.

Eckerson Tea And Kilgore To Meet At Park Tonight

Bottlers, St. Johns Also Play On Twin Diamond Ball Field

The Eckerson Cannery technically in third place in the diamondball league by virtue of four wins against three defeats will meet the lowly Kilgore Planters last night in the first game of a twin bill scheduled for 8:30 P. M. at the diamondball park tonight.

The second half brings together the league-leading Coca-Cola Bottlers and the fourth place St. Johns team with a season record of 2 wins against 5 losses to play Monday night's rained out season.

On the mound for Eckerson, Swofford will probably get the nod, while Kilgore's plan to use Wiry, Tony Endicott.

Kilgore is slated for pitching service against St. Johns while Atkinson will be the opposing loser.

Brown Is High Scorer In Match At Bowling Alley

R. Brown of Team Five got off to a slow start with a 144 when Team Five tangled with Team Four at the Bowling Club Tuesday night, but he came back next game to crack down with a 213 quickly followed by a 190 for a three-game total of 557 to help his squad run up a 199-point total against a 1768 total for the F. Bolly captained crew.

The hairy Ains are survivors of a people—believed to be Caucasians—who once occupied Japan. Now in that country their status is similar to that of the American Indians in this country.

Rural electric lines constructed or planned by cooperative associations are expected to furnish electricity to a total of 36,200 Kentucky farms by the end of 1933.

Division Between Germany and U.S. Travels in Cycles

History Shows That Americans Get Billed Every 20 Years

By FRIMTON GROVER
WASHINGTON, Mar. 10.—(AP)—Every 20 years the United States gets billed at Germany.

It has been going on for about 20 years. Now we are at another peak of anger. The cause is approximately the same as before. Germans, when on the march, often seem to us overbearing. And when we are, separated from Germany by France, England and the Atlantic Ocean, we are not obliged to pacify them. After a time tempers cool and good relations are restored.

If you can look at the thing in the philosophic light of 20 years it may help to keep your temper down. Based on previous experience, we probably will be on "good terms" with Germany in a half-dozen years, perhaps less; that is, if we don't get mixed up in a war meantime.

We had our first tiff with the German empire over the Samoan Islands. The Samoan Islands are the Bahamas of the South Sea. Germans got there first but in 1889 our exploring sailor, Captain Wilkes, put in a spacious Pago Pago Harbor, explored it, negotiated with the natives—and established U. S. relations there.

Things ebbed along for about 20 years with the Germans not caring much whether we took the islands or left them alone. Then the German empire pulled together after the Franco-Prussian war of 1870 and began reaching out tentatively for colonies and naval bases.

By 1875 the Samoan business had advanced far into diplomatic stages and we hickered back and forth with Germany until 1899 before reaching an agreement to divide the islands, we taking a pair and giving a pair to Germany.

All during that 20 years or more we had fairly sour relations with Germany, and only slightly better with England. But by the time of the Spanish-American War we really were at loggerheads with Germany.

Partly out of sympathy for Spain and partly to restrain the United States, Germany tried valiantly to keep the country from going to war. Germany didn't know just how much we would claim of Spain's colonial possessions in the Pacific. Germany negotiated a submarine treaty with Spain to buy for $5,000,000 all the Pacific Islands except the Philippines, even while we were at war.

That affair between Commodore Dewey and the German Admiral Von Diederich in Manila Harbor grew out of the German plan to grab the Philippines in event we should not take them.

At the point Admiral Dewey and Admiral Diederich virtually squared off for battle right there in the harbor. It might have turned out badly for Dewey, for the German ships even hoisted the American stars when they saw an ammunition ship after defeating the Spanish fleet.

But just at that time England was in need of a new friend and did a good turn by showing its feet in between the U. S. and German fleets. This country has liked England pretty well ever since then.

After that Germany too began to see that she might need a friend across the Atlantic and became more friendly. Relations improved at once. Germany sent a load of oranges to Harvard and we sent one of Von Stimson to Germany to be exchanged.

Germany was a beneficiary of the Spanish war. Germany threatened to occupy Venezuela again in order to collect a debt, but Theodore Roosevelt stipulated that by threatening to send the fleet down there, Germany agreed at once to pay it.

Many school boys know how 20 years after the Spanish War we were made at odds with Germany. Germany going to war about 11 years later. We were all through again and fairly washed clean in 20 years after the end of 1918.

Germany was the aggressor in 1914. We were the aggressor in 1941. It is not surprising that we are at odds again.

Search To Continue For Bones Of Attila

BEIGRADE —(AP)—Archaeologists will attempt to ascertain this spring whether there is any truth in the legend.

For centuries the peasants at Haldon, village near Potters, have been telling their children that a huge mound covered with weeds is the grave of Attila.

Photographers Asked Not To Wreck Cave

CARLEBAD, N. M. —(AP)—First annual photographers' day at Carlsbad caverns may be the last. Col. Thomas Bates, superintendent of the caverns, said photographers' demands for an opportunity to take pictures had become so insistent that a day will be set aside this spring for picture taking.

Although the state of Wyoming traditionally is a state of strong winds, Lander, in the central part, has one of the "valuest" climates of any region in the nation, weather records show.

It will be the last such a possibility," said Bates. Caverns officials said picture taking, which might damage the delicate formations in the caves.

Three Hurt When Twister Strikes At Daytona Beach

$10,000 Damage Results From Winds; Another Storm Hits Near Jacksonville

13 Drowned In Bridge Washout Snow Falls In New York As Mercury Tumbles In East

By Associated Press
Snow fell in upper New York today while Spring tornadoes in Florida added their toll to that caused by widespread storms of the previous 48 hours.

Three persons were injured when a twister struck Daytona Beach this morning. Property damage was estimated at about $10,000.

Four negroes were killed and several injured last night in a tornado at Danmore near Jacksonville.

Meanwhile the death toll in the flood near Vicksburg, Miss., where nine automobiles plunged through a washed out bridge, mounted to 13. Two persons were still missing.

Most of the south was clear today but rains fell from New Orleans, N. C., to New York, Pennsylvania and New England.

Snow was reported at Buffalo, N. Y., and Montreal, Canada. The mercury tumbled below zero this morning during the night but reached the freezing point only at Buffalo.

A blizzard of snow covered northern Vermont yesterday with a slight fall at Portland, Me., and also in Boston.

Rain, which was general from Georgia north into Michigan and New York, continued along the coast of Massachusetts, Rhode Island and Connecticut.

Spring tornadoes struck widely scattered sections of the South in the wake of slanting rains that turned streams into torrents of menace to life and property.

There were injuries and property damage from the twisting whistlers that whirled through Alabama and Georgia. And at least seven were dead in a swirling river near Vicksburg, Miss., where nine automobiles plunged through a washed out bridge in the night in single file procession.

Eight were hurt there. At Brewton, Ala., a store building and five dwellings were destroyed and two women were injured by a tornado. Three persons were killed and two persons hurt at Lenoir, Ala. Tops of houses were blown away in a miller's storm which struck near the town of Abbeville, S. C. Three negroes were injured.

Collection Of Taxes Good During March

Jenkins Says $33,214 Is Paid In 30 Days; Taxes Become Delinquent On Apr. 3

Although tax collections have been "remarkably good" during the month of March, Tax Collector Jno. D. Jenkins warned taxpayers today that only two more days remain for payment of the 1938 taxes before the taxes become delinquent. All taxes are delinquent if not paid by Monday, Apr. 3, he said.

During the first 30 days in March, the tax collector reported that $33,214.15 has been paid, making a total of $185,426.21 collected on the tax roll for 1938 since the taxes became due last November. Discounts granted for early payment amounted to $5,331.51 making a total of $180,094.70 in cash collections.

Collections in March last year were $36,570.88, or approximately $3,000 less than collections for a 30 day period in this month.

Regardless of the large collections during the past month, Mr. Jenkins declared that $145,495.53 remains unpaid on the current tax roll of $330,911.77, and this amount will become delinquent if not paid on Monday.

Regarding the payment of all valorem taxes before they become delinquent, Mr. Jenkins stated the law provides if taxes upon any real estate are not paid before the first Monday in April of any year, the tax collector "shall advertise and sell the same and upon unpaid personal property taxes, the tax collector shall levy upon, seize and sell the goods and chattels for the unpaid taxes."

Fall In Stocks Caused By War Scare In Europe

NEW YORK, Mar. 31.—(AP)—A mystifying outburst of selling in the last hour of trading yesterday bowled over leading stocks for losses of $1 to $4 and dropped the market generally to the lowest level this year.

Wall Street, nervous since the latest German drive to the east began, became more tense as rumors spread along the gossip grapevines of an impending showdown between Germany and Poland. News from Berlin and Warsaw during the day failed to substantiate the gossip.

Against this background of uneasiness, gossip mongers spread the story a market prognosticator talking with a broker, had predicted a storm was about to break loose on the stock exchange. The yarn ran quickly through brokers' boardrooms and was cited by some brokers as having been a factor in precipitating the late selling wave.

United States steel lost nearly $2 at $62.25, Bethlehem about $4 at $62. Chrysler $3.25 at $70.52, duPont $4.12 at $148.25 and General Motors $2.63 at $42.37.

It was reported 20 Ukrainians had been arrested at Lwow, in southeast Poland, and other Galician towns charged with fomenting unrest among Poland's Ukrainian minority.

Sources close to the government have charged in the past that independence movements among the 2,500,000 Ukrainians in Poland were supported by Nazi agents.

DEATH ON THE HIGHWAY

The camera records a vivid lesson on traffic safety. On the spot a few seconds after an auto skidded into a bus on a rain-swept Los Angeles street, the cameraman caught the tragic hour of accident. All seven occupants of the car are dead; some of the victims have been thrown to the pavement. In the front seat of the automobile are bodies of a man, woman, and baby.

Citrus Exports Are 400 Percent Greater Than '37

Great Britain Largely Responsible For Increased Shipments

LAKELAND, Mar. 31.—(AP)—Exportation of oranges from the United States to foreign countries in 1938 was nearly four times as great as in 1937, according to a report just issued by the foodstuffs division of the Bureau of Foreign and Domestic Commerce in Washington.

Grapefruit also showed a healthy increase, but did not equal the gain of oranges. Exports of oranges in 1938 totaled 8,069,412 boxes, compared with 2,476,865 boxes in 1937 and 4,241,281 boxes in 1936. Grapefruit exports jumped from 670,154 boxes in 1937 to 1,142,697 boxes in 1938.

Great Britain was largely responsible for the increase shown by oranges and grapefruit. Exports to the United Kingdom in 1937 were almost negligible, amounting to 19,896 boxes of grapefruit and 30,656 boxes of oranges. In 1938, however, the United Kingdom bought 297,348 boxes of grapefruit and 2,718,410 boxes of oranges. Canada continued to be one of the best customers for both oranges and grapefruit, using 736,207 boxes of grapefruit in 1938 and 3,066,676 boxes of oranges the same year.

The government figures are not broken down to show what proportion of these exports came from Florida, California or other areas in the United States.

BOMB USED

Looking at dynamite cap and wires left by John Thornberg, "walking bomb" bandit of First National Bank at Canute, Tenn., in 1936, Chicago city attorney, Thornberg forced bank to accompany him to bank, obtained $2,800 by threatening to blow up building with explosive strapped to his body unless money was delivered.

Franco May Be Used As Wedge In New World

Nationalist Regime Will Be Screen In Germany, Italy Deals

WASHINGTON, Mar. 31.—(AP)—Officials, carefully studying the effects in Latin America of Franco's complete victory in Spain, are firmly convinced that Germany and Italy will seek to better their position in the southern part of the Western Hemisphere with Franco as their driving wedge.

They are agreed that Franco's victory may have far-reaching consequences among Spain's former colonies in the Western world. It will serve, they think, to augment appreciably the influence of the European Fascist nations.

Officials read with great interest today dispatches from Rome quoting the influential Milanese newspaper, Corriere Della Sera, as saying of Franco's victory: "The event also will have enormous repercussions in South America and is most likely to contribute to exalting the spirits of those Spanish-speaking countries while proportionately reducing the artificial and harmful influences of the Anglo-Saxon powers."

"A new equilibrium is thus created on the two shores of the ocean. The consequences cannot be favorable to the spiritual expansion of Italy and Fascism." Economic experts here look for Germany to seek triangular barter deals, using Spain as the spring board for dealing with American republics.

In the political field officials expect both Germany and Italy to proceed with great circumspection in their dealings with Latin America behind the screen.

Chamberlain Warns Hitler Against Any Polish Aggression

Waste Charges Hurlled At WPA In Funds Fight

House Is Scene Of Debate Over New Relief Appropriation

WASHINGTON, Mar. 31.—(AP)—A crucial fight on the question of additional relief funds for this year began yesterday on the house floor, where critics taked WPA with charges of "waste and extravagance" and defenders of the agency declared it must have $150,000,000 to put "more food on the tables of the undernourished."

At first leaders believed they might obtain a vote on the question tonight, but later decided to recess the house and put the showdown over until today.

The President had asked $150,000,000 to carry WPA through June but the house appropriation committee cut the figure to $100,000,000. While most Democratic members of the "economy bloc" appeared ready to vote for the $100,000,000, Representative Taber, Republican, New York, declared that if WPA would eliminate waste no further appropriation for this year would be needed.

Debate on the bill was preceded by a stormy battle over the procedure to be followed. The rules committee proposed that there be four hours general debate and that amendments be restricted to changes in the amount of the appropriation.

Representative Martin, Republican, Massachusetts, the Republican leader, spoke angrily of "arrogant egotism." No deal was also objected vigorously to certain phases of the suggested procedure on the ground it would not permit a record vote on the question of increasing the appropriation.

From Representative Woodrum, Democrat, Virginia, a leader of the economy bloc, came a frank admission that the procedure was "stringent" and might even be termed "gag rule," but he said that such procedure frequently was good for the country. In the end the rules committee suggestions were approved.

Taber charged that WPA increased its rolls "so that they could turn people down just as we were approaching consideration of this bill."

"They went back six years and picked up people who had been dickered relief six years before because they couldn't qualify and had never applied for it since," he said.

Asserting the WPA theater project had paid on 1215 shows at a cost of $10,000 each, he asserted "money is being wasted."

Zinn Beck, scout for the Detroit Tigers, left this morning with his wife, starting north on a tour scheduled to cover some 53 college campuses in search for baseball talent for the Navin Field management.

Mr. and Mrs. Beck have spent the past four winters in Sanford, and Mr. Beck stated that unless there is some unforeseen change in their plans they will return next winter.

Nazis Told France, Britain Will Fight To Preserve Independence Of Poland

Der Fuehrer To Reply Tomorrow

Japan Takes Islands Near Philippines Claimed By France

By Associated Press
Prime Minister Chamberlain of Great Britain told the House of Commons and the world today that the British and French would fight to preserve Poland's independence in the current European crisis. Chamberlain did not mention Germany but everyone knew he intended the words to be a warning to Hitler whose march to the east has drawn dangerously near to Poland's borders.

In Warsaw, Poland hailed the British pledge as a check to any plans Hitler may have for taking Polish territory. High sources indicated Poland may try to negotiate with Germany over the latter's desire for the status of Danzig.

In Berlin Germans declared Hitler will have "plenty to say" in reply to Chamberlain's speech. Hitler will make an address tomorrow.

In Rome Fascists said they believed the British-French backing will stiffen the Polish stand against German demands.

In Tokyo Japan announced she had assumed jurisdiction over the strategic Spratly Islands which France claims as hers. This brought Japan still closer to the Philippines.

Hungary announced Slovakia had agreed to negotiate the frontier dispute which has kept their troops fighting for some time.

The nationalist cleanup of Madrid and other former republican cities in Spain continued. More than 100,000 arrests have been made since France's army won the civil war.

In Warm Springs, Ga., where President Roosevelt is spending a ten-day vacation, sources close to the White House asserted there was a general fear in the world that Germany might extend her "domination" of other races to other continents and that the current British and French actions appeared to seek an end of that danger.

While President Roosevelt refused to discuss the foreign crisis intimatedly declared Prime Minister Chamberlain's pledge to the House of Commons seemed to put squarely up to Germany the responsibility for any general war.

These sources said Britain and France were in effect saying to Germany that war could come only by invasion by Germany of some other country and war would be avoided if there were no such invasion.

Officials were silent, but one usually reliable informant said: "The British cabinet now is convinced that a bold course is the best course."

His comment came in as the British government feverishly hastened efforts to bind Soviet Poland into a ring of steel around expanding Nazi Germany. Concern was reflected in a city of swiftly moving diplomacy in which:
