All violence, all that is dreary and repels, is not power, but the absence of power.
—Ralph Waldo Emerson

SANFORD — Several dozen persons across the county were arrested Tuesday as the result of domestic violence. A number of other reports were filed, with no arrests made.

Sanford Police Chief Ralph Russell said this particular holiday may have seen a high rate because of several separate situations.

"First of all," he said, "there is alcohol consumption. On a holiday people tend to drink more than they might do regularly. Then there is the extreme heat we had Tuesday. It's amazing

Controversial property plan back again

By NICK PFREIFAUPE
Herald Staff Writer

SANFORD — A controversial piece of property is back before Sanford's planning board tonight.

A rezoning request will be discussed by Sanford's Planning and Zoning Commission. The property, near the Mayfair Country Club off Country Club Road has been the subject of many discussions and much controversy.

Property owners Mack Cleveland and Patricia Stenstrom have requested a rezoning from MR-1, Multiple Family Dwelling Residential, to that of PD, Planned Development.

Proposals regarding the development of the property, both east and west of Country Club Road, have brought about angry objections from residents surrounding the property. They have voiced objections to the development, including the suggestion that new homes, less expensive than those already in the nearby area, will reduce the value of their homes, or damage the groundwater flow in the area.

The rezoning request is listed third on the agenda for tonight's P&Z meeting.

Other items include holding a public hearing to consider a request for conditional use for property at 3301 Rand Yard Road, for the purpose of animal raising. The property is presently zoned agriculture. Property owners are listed as Great Potpourri, Ltd., and Harold H. Kastner.

A public hearing will also be held to consider a request for a dimensional variance for property at

Collision with injuries

An Allied Moving van sustained little damage, but a sedan was crushed in a collision on Interstate-4 Wednesday morning, just west of SR-48. Both occupants of the car required hospitalization. Seminole County paramedics transported one to Orlando Regional medical Center and the other to South Seminole Community Hospital. Identities of the two or their present conditions were not immediately revealed. The Florida Highway Patrol, who conducted the investigation, has not released any information regarding the incident.

LAKE MARY — Another step is expected to be taken tonight toward the development of downtown Lake Mary. The City Commission is to consider a contract with Andersen & Associates to continue working on development standards.

The downtown area, initially known as the Towne Square, has been discussed for almost a year. At one city commission meeting, Bruce Andersen presented drawings showing the area planned for development.

With the citizens of Lake Mary preparing to vote August 1 on three bond issues for improvements in the city, officials are stressing that the downtown development is not included. City Manager John Litton

Raccoon was rabid, officials watchful

By SANDRA ELLIOTT
Herald Staff Writer

SANFORD — No rabies alert or extra patrols have been put in place after the discovery of a rabid raccoon last week near a local golf course despite a television news report to the contrary.

Animal Control Official Frank Kirk said as a precaution a house dog which may have come into contact with a sick raccoon on Mirror Drive last week near Mayfair Country Club will be kept under observation for six months.

"We are not even sure if the dog was bitten or had any contact with the raccoon," Kirk explained this morning. "So far, it seems healthy and there weren't any signs it had been bitten. We don't have any proof that it did, we don't have any proof that it didn't."

Called to the area last Thursday, animal control personnel found the sick raccoon and euthanized it, sending a specimen to a state lab for analysis.

"The report came back Monday that the raccoon was rabid," Kirk said.

Alleged arsonist dies from burns

JACKSONVILLE — A man has died from burns he received allegedly setting fire to his ex-girlfriend's apartment, killing the woman's 16-month-old daughter.

Walid Jasim Mohamad, 31, was absentee-booked on a murder charge late Tuesday, said Lt. John Nail, a police detective. He died late Wednesday at Orlando Regional Medical Center.

The woman's child, LeeAndra Veraann Rosco, died at University Medical Center, Nail said Wednesday. He said he did not know if she died from burns or smoke inhalation.

Mohamad had previously threatened to kill the girl's mother Lisa Rosco, 26. The child's mother had been arrested in two previous incidents at her apartment this year, police said. He was under a court order to stay away from her.

Divers' bodies rescued

MONTVERDE — Rescuers have recovered the bodies of two men who disappeared July 4 while exploring underwater caves in Central Florida's Lake Apopka.

"They apparently got lost and ran out of air" from oxygen tanks, said Lt. Chris Daniels of the Lake County sheriff's department.

The men — Kevin James Gokey, 26, of Astatula, and Daniel Eugene Smith, 30, of Gotha — entered the southwest corner of the lake Tuesday afternoon while friends waited on shore. Authorities were notified when they failed to surface after about one hour.

Members of a rescue unit of cave divers recovered the bodies Wednesday about 100 feet underwater after an all-night search.

Daniels said neither man was a certified cave diver.

Disappearance of 2 men stumps cops

DAYTONA BEACH SHORES — Police remain stumped on the whereabouts of two elderly men who wandered away from their homes, a result of Alzheimer's disease.

Frank Rausco, a retired priest, withdrew $300 from his bank account and disappeared five years ago. Landrith "Bud" Parker, 78, wandered away from home and has not been seen for more than three months.

Most of the people with the disease that destroys memory and short-circuits thought processes are found shortly after they wander away.

Massive searches have turned up few clues in either case.

Rausco, who had a mini-stroke in 1980, was 74 when he withdrew money from the bank and called a taxi to take him to the bus station. Parker, a retired insurance agent, walked out of his mobile home in Bassville Park on March 21.

"You never get over it. You just try not to think about it," said Rausco's sister, Angela Liberto, 71, of Daytona Beach Shores.

150-mile race to mark 150th birthday

TALLAHASSEE — Plans are being made for a 150-mile foot race from Gainesville to Tallahassee in late October to help celebrate Florida's 150th birthday.

The "Run of the Century" is scheduled Oct. 28-29 along State Road 26 and U.S. 27 through Alachua, Columbia, Suwannee, Lafayette, Taylor, Madison, Jefferson and Leon counties.

A series of 50 three-mile runs will begin at the University of Florida and end at the Old Capitol, Secretary of State Sandra Northam said Wednesday.

The event will be open to the public, and all 160 state lawmakers will be encouraged to participate.

Recreation network under way

TALLAHASSEE — A statewide network of trails, parks, rivers and recreational areas is the best way to give public access to natural ecosystems, conservationists and state officials say.

Supporters of the "Florida Greenways" program have kicked off a public awareness campaign for 150 corridors of protected open spaces managed for conservation or recreation.

"This is probably one of the most significant programs this state has undertaken," Lt. Gov. Buddy MacKay, chairman of the Florida Greenways Commission, said Wednesday.

MacKay and other officials held a news conference at MacKay State Garden in Tallahassee, where a greenway has been established with five miles of hiking trails.

The greenways call for linking environmental hubs such as the Everglades/Big Cypress, the Green Swamp and the Apalachicola National Forest by a network of corridors that could be traversed on foot, by canoe or on horseback.

In addition to purchasing property, the commission's plan calls for acquiring access to corridors from private landowners, who would still own the land but allow visitors and wildlife to cross.

Chiles' health: 'TIAs' can precede a stroke

By BILL BERGSTROM
Associated Press Writer

TALLAHASSEE — Gov. Lawton Chiles may quickly shake off his bout of unsteadiness, slurred speech and vomiting, but doctors warn such attacks can signal a high risk of stroke.

The illness, a transient ischemic attack, would be classified as a stroke if symptoms persist after 24 to 36 hours and cause permanent damage.

Chiles was treated with anti-clotting and blood pressure medications to decrease the stroke danger while tests were done to pinpoint the cause of his problems, his neurologist said

Wednesday.

The search was narrowed to the basilar artery at the base of the brain, which carries blood to the brain stem and cerebellum, said Dr. Charles Maitland.

Those areas pass information from the spinal cord to the brain, affect coordination and sensation, and process information from the inner ear and eyes.

The attack, TIA for short, can be caused by a tiny blood clot, a narrowing of a blood vessel due to plaque buildup or even a blood vessel spasm.

The problem also could have been caused by decreased blood volume due to dehydration after holiday weekend activities that included a fishing trip to South Florida, said Dr. Karl Hempel.

Chiles' personal physician. "We're hoping it's nothing more than that," said Hempel. He said Chiles also was receiving intravenous fluids that would correct any volume problem.

But people who suffer TIAs "are at very high risk of having of having a subsequent stroke," said Dr. Alex Forteza, chief of the stroke division at the University of Miami medical school.

One-third of TIA patients suffer a stroke within five years, and one-third of those strokes come within the first month, said Forteza.

A stroke is considered to be a permanent loss of function due to tissue damage caused by impeded blood flow to the brain, Hempel said.

Gov. Lawton Chiles

"By their definition these are transient, they are short-lived and reversible, whereas a stroke is something that leaves permanent damage," said Dr. Carl Pepine, a University of Florida cardiologist.

Join Rotary Club's flag project

The Sanford Rotary Club is continuing its patriotic fundraising project by placing American flags around Sanford on specified holidays. Beginning July Fourth, the club utilized additional flags in the downtown area to enhance the appearance and add to the festive atmosphere. # Graham: GOP welfare reform could hurt Florida

By BILL KACOR
Associated Press Writer

PENSACOLA — U.S. Sen. Bob Graham likes what he has seen of Florida's time-limited welfare reform experiment but says such programs may be jeopardized by Republican legislation that would freeze spending.

The program in Escambia and Alachua counties is designed to get recipients permanently off welfare and into jobs within two- or three-year limits by offering extra benefits such as education, child care and health care.

"The reality is you don't do this on the cheap," Graham, D-Fla., said Wednesday while spending one of his "work days" as a counselor at the Escambia program.

Florida officials say by spending money now they will reap savings later when participants in the Family Transition Program are working instead of receiving Aid to Families with Dependent Children.

Graham said he was impressed with the enthusiasm and diversity of participants in the Escambia program. Some already have jobs although the program has only been in existence 14 months.

In Escambia, 1,806 people have participated, including 354 who have found full-time jobs and 210 who are employed part-time. Their average wage is $5.40 an hour. The program is expected to top out at about 3,300, half of Escambia's AFDC role.

Participants are selected at random for Escambia's mandatory program. Alachua's program is voluntary.

Democrats in the Republican-controlled Congress have proposed a similar program for the entire nation but with a five-year limit.

The Senate Finance Committee, however, has approved a block grant program that would give the states flexibility to try such innovative approaches but freeze Aid to Families with Dependent Children at $16.8 billion annually for the next five years.

The money would be divided among the states based on what they spent in 1994 without allowances for population growth or increases in poverty. The House passed its welfare legislation, which has the same block grant distribution, in March. The Democratic plan does not include block grants.

"The irony is that exactly the thing that people want to happen, which are programs like this that get people off welfare and into a job, are the programs, which in a state like Florida would be most jeopardized," Graham said.

Action by the full Senate has been delayed because of opposition from Graham and other growth-state senators and conservatives who want to prohibit welfare payments for unmarried teen-age mothers, legal immigrants and children born to mothers already on welfare.

Graham said the GOP legislation would cut the amount spent on each AFDC recipient in Florida as population increases.

"Are you going to put $1,000 into a training program for one person or are you going to put $1,000 into providing basic financial support for three families?" Graham asked. "You are going to put the $1,000 into providing the basic support."

The state spends an average of $303 on each regular AFDC family of three — a parent and two children — in Escambia County, where Graham was at work Wednesday.

The Escambia-Alachua program cost an additional $18 million the first year but has been cut back to $12 million annually. The Legislature this year appropriated $22 million to expand the mandatory version to as many as five more counties or parts of counties, which have not yet been selected.

South Africa comes into AIDS age at crisis rate

By JOHN DANISZEWSKI
Associated Press Writer

SOWETO, South Africa — When Theresa Mokhele puts to bed 20 abandoned AIDS babies each night in a Soweto hospice, she knows she is looking into the faces of South Africa's future.

When Dr. James McIntyre bears the news to another new mother at Baragwanath Hospital in Soweto that she has tested HIV-positive, he can only grimace in frustration at the growing frequency of the painful scene.

These days, 10 percent of the mothers delivering babies at Baragwanath, Africa's largest hospital, already have the virus that causes AIDS.

By the time their newborns will be ready for school, most of these mothers will have died of AIDS. In Soweto alone, McIntyre expects 50,000 mothers will die in the next six years — meaning more funerals in his corner of South Africa than resulted from political upheaval across the country over the past two decades.

South Africa was a latecomer to AIDS. But instead of using the time to prepare, the former white-led government neglected the problem. Now Africa's most prosperous country is waking up to find the scourge has arrived.

"You were warning us," McIntyre recalled a doctor telling him. "But we weren't listening."

The country was far from the vortex of the disease in central Africa. Political isolation that limited the number of foreign visitors helped slow the arrival of the mass of AIDS cases until the mid-1990s, researchers say.

In 1990, just 5,000 cases of HIV infection were reported in South Africa. Today, the number of people with the virus has exploded to 1.2 million. By 2000, the figure will be around 8 million — or 20 percent of the population.

Health Minister Nkosazana Zuma delivered the statistics to Parliament in June, and announced an emergency quadrupling of government money devoted to AIDS prevention and care to $24 million.

The government has obtained 97 million male condoms and 90,000 female condoms for free distribution, she told Parliament, and billboards nationwide will carry anti-AIDS messages.

But in a sense, it's too late. Activists say hundreds of thousands of South Africans have already, unknowingly, been marked for death, and predict the disease will start to drag down the economy that many had seen as the continent's best hope.

"Currently we estimate 500 new infections a day, an infection per three minutes. Certainly we are going to be seeing a lot more," said Quarrasha Abdoel Karim, the epidemiologist appointed by President Nelson Mandela's government to combat AIDS.

Mrs. Mokhele, a nurse, operates the country's first hospice for abandoned infants with AIDS. She started with one baby less than two years ago. Now the home funded by the Salvation Army cares for 20 babies, and a new center for 100 children is being built.

AIDS activists believe the conservative white rulers of apartheid-era South Africa were unwilling to rouse themselves to fight a disease associated mainly with blacks and homosexuals.

And the country's political elite was so focused on bringing about last year's peaceful transition to black-majority rule that they did little to address the AIDS threat.

Apartheid's migrant labor practices worsened the epidemic, Karim said. Blacks could work in white areas but usually had to leave their spouses in tribal "homelands."

This disrupted family life: Men away from home went to prostitutes or found girlfriends.

Women struggling to fend for themselves and their children in the impoverished homelands would find boyfriends or turn to occasional prostitution.

Poverty and lack of political and social stability also are risk factors.

Blacks are 10 times as likely to be infected as whites, with the mixed-race and Indian populations in the middle.

Karim said an estimated 7.6 percent of adult South Africans now are infected.

National poll: A third of voters: Same sex marriages should be OK

By JEFF HOLYFIELD
Associated Press Writer

LANSING, Mich. — A third of the nation's voters believe that two people of the same sex should be able to get married if they love each other, a new poll showed Wednesday.

The poll found 33 percent believed same-sex marriages should be allowed, while 63 percent disagreed, EPIC-MRA-Mitchell Research said. Four percent were undecided.

Robin Kane, a spokeswoman for the National Gay and Lesbian Task Force, found the 33 percent figure encouraging, even though gay marriages are banned in every state.

However, Glenn Clark, executive director of the Michigan Christian Coalition, said allowing the marriages would be "just another step toward eroding the moral fiber of our nation."

EPIC-MRA founder Ed Sarpolus said he expected the question on same-sex marriages would get only single-digit support because voters are becoming more conservative.

Younger voters, those with higher incomes and those with more education were more likely to say such marriages should be allowed, he said. Only 21 percent of those with a high school diploma or less agreed, compared to 44 percent of those with college degrees.

Of those earning $25,000 or less a year, only 24 percent agreed with same-sex marriages, while 38 percent of those making $60,000 to $75,000 agreed with the idea, as did 48 percent of those making more than $75,000.

In age groups, 56 percent of the 18- to 24-year-olds said "yes," and that gradually declined over various age groups to only 18 percent for those 65 and older.

Jeffrey Montgomery, president of the Detroit Triangle Foundation, said the higher percentages for younger people showed a cultural shift, due in part to the media.

"Younger people are seeing more and more popular entertainers who are willing to come out and have done so and seeing other entertainers who aren't gay or lesbian who are giving the strong message that it doesn't make any difference," he said.

The telephone survey of 1,000 voters nationwide was conducted June 21-28. It has a margin of error of 3 percentage points.

About a dozen or so cities, including New York, San Francisco, Seattle, Minneapolis and Madison, Wis., allow same-sex couples to register in a domestic partnership.

Marriages, however, are regulated by the state and allow couples to file joint tax returns, cover each other on their medical insurance and other benefits.

Drinking too much, violence and holidays

Today isn't the proper time to bring up this matter. It should have been said a week earlier. Yet it is appropriate many times of the year, and will, undoubtedly be repeated as time goes by.

We have just concluded another holiday. The July 4th Independence Day has come and gone, and the number of domestic violence cases was again extremely high. Several dozen cases were reported in Seminole County on that day alone, with many more others over the weekend.

This is something law enforcement officers have learned to expect. It happens on Super Bowl Sunday, during the World Series or basketball finals, and on holidays, especially Labor Day, Christmas, and New Years.

Statistics show domestic violence is slightly less on such holidays as Easter, Memorial Day, and Valentine's Day. It is still prominent however, and cannot be overlooked.

What causes it? Mostly the over-consumption of alcohol. For some reason, there are people who believe they cannot have a good time or observe a special event without drowning themselves in some type of booze. Does it make people more attuned to the holiday? No. Does it make people enjoy themselves more? No, not with the subsequent hangover. Why then do they continue to do this?

We believe the reason is that some people have allowed the drinking of alcoholic beverages to become a ritual, just as much a part of July 4th as fireworks or the American flag.

How wrong this is. What a waste of people's lives and the true enjoyment of a holiday (or a major sporting event).

While not indicated in the Sanford Herald police briefs, readers would be surprised at how many domestic violence cases were the result of one or both of the persons involved, having partaken of such libation.

For people who believe drinking is the only answer, we must question, "Have you ever had a good time without drinking?" If the answer is yes, then it should prove that it can be done.

If the answer is no, then perhaps a visit to Alcoholics Anonymous or some other organization is your best move.

Wives beat husbands, husbands beat wives, boyfriends and girlfriends have conflicts, and even members of the same family often slug it out.

While financial problems are one of the reasons for disputes, statistics show that, in one way or another, alcohol is often the leading cause for the start of conflict.

We are spending tax money paying for law enforcement, the so-called "Wolf-Packs," breath analyzer mobile units, video taping of suspects, and jail time during sobering-up.

How much could we all save if these were not as drastically needed in today's society? Think about it, and if possible, and the shoe fits, do something about it.

LETTER

Rebuttal

The recent letter condemning Sheriff Estlinger's efforts to congratulate six students and their parents in six Seminole high schools forces me to write my first-ever letter to the editor.

I processed the title work for these vehicles in the Tax Collector's Office and am aware of the facts. Three of the autos were taken in a drug seizure by the Sheriff's Office and three were donated at a cost to the Sheriff's Trust Fund of $500 each by three different automobile agencies in Seminole County. (They deserve a hand also.) Six vehicles - total cost $1,500.

The minimum eligibility requirements to be considered for the program were proper student attendance, no discipline action, 2.0 grade point average, and that the parents be involved in PTA. Our school superintendent offered his help by providing the candidates' names.

I also asked some questions and found that the Trust Fund (by law) may not be used to supplement the Sheriff's operating budget which includes on-going training. These dollars can only be used to support new programs and community efforts such as this.

The only problem our sheriff has is he is so busy being a great sheriff and a member of this community, he forgets some will try - no matter what the truth - to diminish the efforts of a great cop.

The mole caper: Now it can be told

The New Yorker magazine recently carried, in its "Talk of the Town" section, a piece about Skipp Porteous, a lapsed evangelical minister who runs something called the Institute for First Amendment Studies. According to Porteous, the Institute monitors far-right organizations, but with a special wrinkle: It has a network of about two dozen moles who actually join militias and the like, and send secret reports to Porteous.

The sad truth is that I am in no position get huffy about this. I have done it myself. What follows is a true story.

When I was in Harvard Law School in 1947 I founded the Harvard Young Republican Club and became its first president. We were a militant bunch, and when a Harvard Democratic Club was founded a month or two later I called in two newly enrolled undergraduate members of the HYRC, told them to keep their membership secret (I destroyed all written evidence of it), and sent them to the first meeting of the HDC. Their instructions were to join, keep their heads low, attend its meetings, and report to me weekly.

One of the two soon got bored with the charade and dropped out, but the other kept on. He gradually built up a new set of friends who thought he was a Democrat, and had to make sure he wasn't seen on his nocturnal visits to me.

("Where does an alien register around here?" he once cracked.)

Then one evening in April 1948 he phoned me about 10 p.m.

"What do I do now?" he asked.

"What do you mean?"

"I've just been elected president of the Harvard Democratic Club!"

For one of the few times in my life, I was speechless. Still, the situation clearly had possibilities - especially with Harry Truman running for president that fall. I told our mole to go ahead and be a good president of the Harvard Democratic Club (but of course not too good!), and he would receive further instructions. As I recall, he was instrumental in getting Congressman John F. Kennedy to speak to the HDC that year.

I had graduated before our human time-bomb went off under the Harvard Democratic Club, but I heard about it. Two weeks before Election Day, at a big campus rally for Dewey and Warren, my successor as president of the HYRC read a letter from the president of the HDC saying that he could no longer stand Truman's ineptitude and wanted to join the HYRC!

The Harvard Democrats went out of their minds. Instead of accepting our man's resignation, they insisted on "impeaching" him, which of course simply kept the whole matter on page one of the Harvard Crimson for several more days. (Being a fellow of considerable wit, he played his part to the hilt: "I will always remain," he solemnly told the Crimson, "a democrat with a small 'd.'") The Harvard alumni magazine later wrote that the HDC never recovered from the blow.

So beware, Mr. Porteous. What if one of your moles is elected head of the Michigan Militia? What if one already has been?

The more I think of it, the likelier it seems that the existence of political moles explains a lot of things that have been puzzling me.

ELLEN GOODMAN

Your life depends on 'it depends'

BOSTON - Funny how easily you can become nostalgic for the good old days, that halcyon era when women of a certain age were merely accused of suffering from raging hormonal imbalance. Now what's driving women berserk is raging hormonal debate.

There is even more hot news, yet another flash, or should I say bulletin, just in from the cutting edge of continuing confusion.

The latest of the serial researchers in the New England Journal of Medicine report that women who use hormone replacement therapy for five or more years have a 30 to 40 percent greater chance of developing breast cancer than women who don't.

This front page bad news about hormones and breast cancer follows the front page good news about hormones and heart disease. In January we heard that the same therapy lowers the risk of heart disease by 50 percent. It lowers the risk of osteoporosis as well.

Thursday's inquisive also reports that adding progestin to the hormone mix doesn't protect against breast cancer. But an earlier study said it does help protect against cancer of the uterus. And a still earlier study said uterine cancer is more likely to occur in women taking estrogen.

Are you still running with me? Where shall we go? To the nearest professional risk-assessor?

We have here another addition to what I imagine as the salad bar of personal health. The average patient a.k.a. medical consumer or medical customer - as in let the customer beware - is now expected to step up to the bar with her personal plate and shaky set of tongs and pick the health items as she chooses.

Which would you rather have today, ma'am? Breast cancer or heart disease? Broken bones or perhaps just a sprinkling of uterine cancer? We don't get a whole lot of help as we warily try to choose our fate.

The doctors who were asked what to do in light of the new research offered tidbits of advice like, "You have to balance all of the information" and "It's a very tough decision to make." The folks who did this study gave the following helpful hint to bewildered women: "these findings suggest that women over age 55 should carefully consider the risks and benefits of estrogen therapy ..." Thank you so much.

I'm not trashing research itself. The studies are in a state called high flux. The latest is just one of 30 that looked at the link between estrogen and breast cancer with wildly incomplete and conflicting results.

But there are now some 12 million women taking estrogen and the entire baby boom generation is beginning to experience the joys of night sweats and medical slip-flops. This is a generation of women who are medically savvy and medically frustrated because the stakes are so high and the certainties are so low.

It's easier to assess risks of long-term hormone replacement therapy when you look at the big public health picture. The big picture people say that heart disease kills 235,000 women a year, and breast cancer kills 46,000. Anything that helps prevent heart disease, saves more women.

But the small picture, the close-up, becomes far more dicey. It increasingly looks as if cancer and heart disease are more "personal," more individual, than we thought. The private health portrait is an intimate one of a woman and her own "risk factors." Her genes, family history, blood pressure, diet, environment and who knows what else. We each have more variables than we have shoes.

I once assumed that my generation of middle-aged women would be the guinea pigs of menopause. Surely, before our daughters grew to be our age, we'd have the answers. I am no longer remotely sure of that.

There isn't one study that covers all or one therapy that fits all. And there isn't likely to be. Indeed, the uncertainties that typify the debate about estrogen are becoming a medical norm. That leaves us making decisions with little to help us but our factors - especially our fear factor.

So hear we are - still. In the raging hormonal debate that is sure to be ratcheted up by this study, we are talking about odds, not cures, about trade-offs, not remedies. Women have become responsible for making mid-life decisions against a background of shifting and conflicting information. Without even a risk assessor to call our own.

The bottom line of all the research is this: "It depends." But the tough part is when your life may depend on "it depends."

We have here another addition to what I imagine as the salad bar of personal health.

Flag-burning amendment

The Republican House's pre-Fourth of July approval of a constitutional amendment to ban flag desecration was a cheap display of patriotism that masks a deterioration of the country's real strength at home and abroad.

The only good thing to be said about the flag-burning amendment is that it set off a rousing debate on the House floor about free speech. Unfortunately, the side with the best case lost overwhelmingly, 312-120.

The best argument on behalf of the amendment came from Rep. Henry Hyde (R-Ill.), who said it's "an effort by mainstream Americans to reassert community standards. It is a popular protest against the vulgarization of our society."

It's true, ordinary Americans are fed up with various outrageous products of the 1980s, including obscene movies and music lyrics, drug abuse, loss of respect for parental and government authority, and crime.

However, trying to restore order by amending the U.S. Constitution is an extreme step, especially when the amendment affects an act so trivial as burning a piece of cloth.

Various members of Congress asserted that the flag deserves protection because millions of American soldiers had died defending it, but that's clearly a misstatement.

Soldiers go into combat to help defend the nation, of which the flag is only a symbol. As Rep. John Dingell (D-Mich.) argued, an even more precious symbol than the flag is the U.S. Constitution.

"It is the embodiment of our liberties," he said. "It defines our freedom. ... It sets forth those things which distinguish Americans from any other race in the world."

Yet, no one argues that it should be a punishable offense to burn a copy of the Constitution. In fact, advocates of the flag-desecration amendment are actually defacing the Constitution by cutting a hole in the First Amendment.

One of only 12 Republicans to oppose the measure, Rep. John Porter (Ill.) made the point that its advocates wanted "for the first time in our history to qualify that right (to free speech) written by the First Congress 200 years ago.

"Their burden is a heavy one," he said. "Only the most dangerous of acts to the very continuance of our Republic could possibly be of sufficient import to require us to qualify in any way the principle which lies at the bedrock of our free society."

"We have lost our way," he declared. "If we believe that criticism of the government should now be curtailed. We have forgotten our history. We have laid our Constitution and the Bill of Rights aside."

What's amazing is that advocates want to amend the Constitution when hardly anyone is desecrating the flag these days, let alone creating a clear and present danger to the nation.

According to the Congressional Research Service, there were only three recorded incidents of flag burning in 1994 and none at all in 1993. The chances are that incidents of flag desecration will actually increase if the amendment passes and states act to criminalize the behavior. At the moment, defacing the flag is merely an obnoxious activity. If it's a crime, it becomes a much more alluring act of defiance.

Instead of putting on a patriotic show at the urging of veterans groups timed for the Fourth of July, Congress ought to be putting its energy into strengthening the nation's foreign policy and the skills of American citizens.

It's true, ordinary Americans are fed up with various outrageous products of the 1980s.

Tourism thrives on remote Chesapeake Bay Island

By JOE TAYLOR
Associated Press Writer

TANGIER, Va. — It's From Night on Tangier Island, and about half of its 700 inhabitants are gathered at the harbor.

There, the tour boat Steven Thomas is moored, festooned with balloons for a floating party. Two dozen couples — young men in tuxedos, their dates in blue, red or black evening gowns — line the rails and wave to the crowd.

Cameras click. Parents beam. And relatives allow a tear or two to fall at the symbolic passing of childhood on an island where everyone has always known everybody else.

"There go some beautiful children," said Betty Nohe, who came to see her grandson depart on the tour boat for his high school ball in Salisbury, Md.

It's a crowning event of any year, generation after generation; a demonstration of community spirit born of geographic isolation. Islanders hold bake sales and fashion shows to raise money to send their high school juniors and seniors out for one enchanted evening off their 2 1/4-square-mile island. Tangier sits like an emerald in the unbroken blue of Chesapeake Bay, 15 miles east of the Virginia mainland and 10 miles west of the Eastern Shore peninsula, accessible only by boat or airplane. Townfolk still speak a vestige of the language of the island's 17th century Cornish settlers. Here, crab is king and tourism is tolerated.

Sure, the business of supplying East Coast seafood wholesalers with the popular Chesapeake Bay hard- and soft-shelled "peeler" crabs is struggling. But islanders are a bit wary of the strangers who fill their streets by day.

"It's a tight community," said Linda Khanoyan, a tour guide whose great-grandfather served as the island's pastor a century ago. "They're a very shy people."

Capt. John Smith, who founded the Jamestown colony, discovered Tangier in 1608. Because it was so remote, British settlers stayed away until late in the 17th century.

Tangier's remoteness has preserved a distinctly different way of life.

Lake Mary

As previously discussed, the Towne Square is planned for a combined effort between the city, persons presently owning the property, and private developers.

It will involve a number of present city blocks in the area near and northward from City Hall. Conceptions include two story buildings with residential and office areas on the second floor, with various shoppes on the ground floor.

Plans for a commercial core presently includes properties fronting on Country Club Road, from Lakeview Avenue to Grand Bend Avenue. A transitional area will be from Lake Mary Boulevard, north, to Grand Bend Avenue, from Fourth Street east to the CSX railroad tracks.

The plans to date include parking areas, wide sidewalks and a general architectural design to give the impression of an old time downtown shopping area.

This evening, City Manager John Litton is requesting commission approval on a contract for additional services by Andersen & Associates, not to exceed $3,200. The contract would be for the development standards and determination of architectural standards and streetscaping.

Andersen is predicting that the additional plans can be developed and drafted for city review within the next month, with several more months allocated for discussion, revisions and redrafting. He expects the final approval could come as soon as November of this year.

The proposal for funding of the next phases of development design drafting are included in the city manager's report scheduled for tonight's meeting of the city commission beginning at 7 p.m. at Lake Mary City Hall, 100 N. Country Club Road.

Rabid

As a result, no raccoons will be relocated in the area between Sanford and Lake Mary for awhile.

Kirk said county animal control officials have contacted Auburn University to build a data base on rabies and tracking cases, adding there is no local alert.

Over the past two years, Kirk said there have been some rabid foxes found in the southern part of the county but no cases in the northern part until the rabid raccoon was found.

"We always urge owners to keep their pets' shots up-to-date," Kirk explained, adding if someone sees a sick raccoon to notify Animal Control and it will be picked up.

constructed facility 17 miles south at milepost 287, Leesburg.

When the Leesburg Toll Plaza begins operation at 10 a.m. July 7, demolition of the Wildwood facility will begin.

Part of a $42 million modernization project, the opening of the Leesburg Toll Plaza signals other changes in the turnpike operation. On Aug. 20, the Turnpike will eliminate the use of toll tickets in Central Florida, switching to high-speed coin collection system from Kissimmee to Wildwood.

Under the adjusted tolls, the rate for most 2-axle passenger cars will remain about six cents per mile. However, due to some operational restrictions, tolls for specific trips may go up or down, between 10 to 20 cents, a Turnpike spokesman said.

Son says thanks to all who helped find his dad

By SANDRA ELLIOTT
Herald Staff Writer

SANFORD — It was supposed to be a short trip from his home to the lakefront to enjoy the fireworks Sunday night but it turned into a 20-hour drama for an 83-year-old retired Seminole County Sheriff's captain.

Long-time Sanford resident James Quincy "Slim" Galloway was located by Longwood Police officer Darryl McCaskill Monday afternoon about 4 p.m. A countywide search was launched when Galloway failed to return home.

Hoyt Galloway thanked members of the Seminole County Sheriff's Department, Sanford Police, McCaskill and Jack Thomas, minister of music, and members of the Central Baptist Church for their help locating his father.

"I'd especially like to thank the M.L. Raborn Jr. family," the son said. He noted the Raborn family helped the Galloway family in 1943 in a medical emergency and assisted them again 52 years later in the search.

The elder Galloway apparently became disoriented and lost in the heavy, nighttime traffic after the fireworks display.

Dehydrated after not eating or drinking until being located in Longwood, a turnpike receipt showed the octogenarian had driven on the Bee Line and was given directions at a fishcamp off Highway 50. He also received directions from at least three people but was unable to find Sanford.

Preliminary tests showed Galloway did not suffer a stroke or heart attack but has experienced some hardening of the arteries, his son noted.

"He was scared, upset and sick (dehydrated) at the time," Hoyt said, when he arrived to get his father. "We are just so thankful to everyone who helped and prayed we'd get him back home."

A Sanford resident since the 1930s, Galloway owned a West 1st Street service station after he got out of the Army. He then served a number of years as constable before joining the sheriff's department.

3100 Sanford Avenue. Owner Cumberland Farms, is requesting a sign containing 96 square feet. Present codes only allow for 75 square foot signs, and the request is for a variance for the larger sign.

Other business from the floor and commission members will follow the three listed items on the agenda.

The Planning and Zoning Commission meeting begins at 7 p.m., this evening, at the commission chambers of Sanford City Hall, 900 N. Park Avenue.

how much people who may be hotter than usual have a tendency to get aggravated, and with the holiday, more people are at home, away from what may be an air conditioned workplace."

Russell continued, "Then you have to look at the phase of the moon. While we are now in the first quarter, as it get's toward the full moon, we always see domestic violence increasing."

Within the city of Sanford alone, seven arrest reports were filed as of Wednesday of this week. Four of the seven, over half, were females.

Russell said he couldn't comment on men versus women in the arrests, as all of the factors he mentioned pertain to everyone.

The following reports were filed:

Carl Robert Hancock, 33, and Jennifer Lynn Mercer, 22, both of 405 Myrtle Avenue in Sanford, were arrested by Sanford police Tuesday as the result of a dispute. Each was charged with aggravated battery, domestic violence.

John Gregory Mason, 33, 2518 Clairmont Avenue, Sanford, was arrested by Sanford police at his residence after a reported altercation with a female. He was charged with battery, domestic violence.

Kathy S. Taylor, 40, 205 Palm Place, Sanford, was arrested at her residence as the result of a reported fight with her husband. She was charged with battery, domestic violence.

Debra Morgan, 39, 1601 W. 13th Place, was arrested at her residence following a dispute with another person. She was charged with aggravated battery.

Jeffrey Charles Mitchell, 36, 1822 E. Landing Drive, was arrested by Sanford police at his residence Tuesday as the result of a reported fight with a female. He was charged with battery, domestic violence.

Lisa Ann Trapp, 18, 116 Borada Road, Sanford, was arrested by Sanford police at her residence Tuesday. Police said she had struck a former boyfriend with a watermelon.

There were an additional five domestic violence cases reported to Sanford police Tuesday, which did not result in an arrest or charges filed. Elsewhere in Seminole County, the list of arrests was also high, in keeping with previous July 4th reports.

Benefits to aid ill football star, family

By MARVA HAWKINS
Herald Columnist

SANFORD — Sanford and Seminole County citizens are responding to a tragedy that has invaded the lives of one of Sanford's Christian families. Two citywide benefit musical programs will be held for Johnny Golden Jr., a former Seminole High School athlete stricken with spinal meningitis.

One benefit will be held Saturday, July 8, at 7 p.m. at First Shiloh Missionary Baptist Church, 700 Elm Ave. Featured will be Central Florida choirs and soloists. Gospel groups and soloists wishing to participate are cordially invited to come and take part in the benefit.

There are many in this community who have worked with Johnny's mother, Cynthia Cassanova Brown, a musician and soloist with many Central Florida choirs. Ms. Brown, a professional singer, has performed at Universal Studios for several years.

Golden was away in Virginia attending college when he was stricken with the potentially fatal disease two months ago. He is recovering from several operations which have resulted in the removal of some limbs. Financial help is needed to offset the rising medical costs incurred by the family, and to help bring Johnny home to his family and friends.

This benefit welcomes all churches who wish to participate. Each church is asked for a donation of $100 or more for this worthy cause. The Cassanova-Golden-Brown families have been active in the community. They are ardent members of Providence Missionary Baptist Church, Lake Monroe.

Sponsors of the program are the Sanford/Central Florida Musicians' Guild, Sweet Harmony Chapter No. 388 Order of Eastern Star, First Shiloh Missionary Baptist Church, St. Matthew Missionary Baptist Church.

Anyone wishing to participate or to obtain more information, call coordinators Charles Jackson at (904) 532-2335, Cynthia Oliver at 322-5828 or Sheryl Jones at First Shiloh, 322-5489.

Any contribution is greatly appreciated by the Cassanova-Golden-Brown families. The Rev. Dr. Harry D. Rucker is pastor at First Shiloh Baptist Church.

The community of jazz musicians is also helping to defray the medical expenses incurred in Golden's rehabilitation. They are sponsoring a benefit Sunday, July 9, 8 p.m. to 2 a.m. at the Elks Lodge, 619 Cypress Avenue and 7th Street. Donations will be accepted at this open door event.

The fund-raiser will feature jazz greats George Myles and Company; Charlie Bateman, who performs with the Central Florida Jazz Society; and Elliott Dyson who has performed with Cynthia Cassanova Brown when they toured Europe for Universal Studios. Also, Flip Allen, who is heard weekly on the Grand Romance.

Johnny Golden

The George Myles and Company jazz ensemble is well known throughout Central Florida; Benny Chavis, Freddie Green, Eugene Butler Jr. and Eugene Butler III, the famous jazz set as well as many other great jazz musicians.

A special treat of the evening will feature Universal Studios character actors "Aretha Franklin," "Blues Brothers," and Golden's mother and Universal Studios favorite, Cynthia Brown.

Members of George Myles and Company will perform with other area jazz greats Sunday.

Jazz lovers, the musical set will be one to remember.

Possible tax breaks considered

By DAVE SKIDMORE
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON — House tax-writers plan to consider 230 tax breaks, ranging from the popular — a charitable contributions deduction for the 70 percent of Americans who don't itemize — to the arcane — repeal of the gas-guzzler tax on stretch limousines.

House Ways and Means Chairman Bill Archer, R-Texas, scheduled three days of hearings next week to review the proposals, submitted this spring by Republican and Democratic committee members.

Archer advocates eliminating the income tax but, until that's accomplished, there may be "relatively minor ways to simplify and improve the current tax laws," he said.

Some items on his list, released Wednesday without identifying the legislators proposing them, are relatively minor modifications, such as allowing a deduction for purchases of commemorative coins from the U.S. Mint and exempting fixed-wing air ambulances from aviation excise taxes.

Others amount to bigger changes, such as establishing tax-sheltered savings accounts for education expenses and phasing out the excise tax on luxury automobiles, a separate proposal from repealing the $7,600 gas-guzzler tax on limos.

Archer cautioned that the committee would not be able to act on all of the proposals and said, "I will oppose any proposals which are targeted tax relief or which have significant cost."

Any suggestions adopted, together with spending cuts or tax increases to offset their cost, would be folded into budget and tax legislation this fall.

On the list were proposals to:

—Allow taxpayers who take the standard deduction (and do not itemize) to get an additional deduction for charitable contributions and, for high-income taxpayers, to remove donations from the overall limit on deductions.

—Allow part of overnight summer camp expenses to be included when claiming the child-care credit or benefits under employer-administered dependent-care programs.

—Increase the deductibility of business meals for long-distance truckers from 50 percent to 80 percent.

—Repeal new rules requiring a written acknowledgment for all charitable contributions of $250 or more.

—Exempt seasonal workers at children's camps from Social Security tax withholding.

—Limit business deductions for airline tickets to the normal tourist-class fare.

—Allow widows and widowers who marry to each claim the one-time capital gains exclusion for sale of their homes.

—Not tax the money earned on state college prepaid tuition plans.

—Exempt historic properties from the estate tax.

—Establish a U.S. Peace Tax Fund for conscientious objectors. Income and estate tax payments to the fund would be used only for child nutrition. Head Start, the U.S. Institute of Peace and the Peace Corps.

—Increase the limit on home loans made under tax-exempt mortgage bond programs.

—Allow the sale of tax-free bonds for volunteer fire departments' emergency vehicles.

—Permit tax-return checkoffs for deficit reduction and the U.S. Olympic Trust Fund.

—Reduce taxes on trusts established for disabled people.

—Treat hard apple cider like beer rather than wine. Beer is subject to a federal excise tax of 58 cents a gallon. The tax on wine is $1.07 a gallon.

—Remove the requirement that real estate brokers report their commissions after each transaction.

AROUND THE STATE

Marlins fall in 10th

MIAMI — Melvin Nieves hit a two-run pinch-homer in the 10th inning and Phil Clark followed with a solo shot to give the San Diego Padres a 7-4 victory over the Florida Marlins. Scott Livingstone reached on an infield single against Yorkis Perez (0-3) with one out in the 10th. Nieves then homered on the first pitch by reliever Randy Veres, hitting an opposite-field shot to left for his sixth homer of the year. Clark followed with his second homer of the season. Jeff Contine drove in all of the Marlins runs. Tony Gwynn had three RBIs for the Padres.

Marlins guilty

MIAMI — The Florida Marlins have been ordered to pay the Fort Lauderdale Yankees $460,000 compensation in territorial losses and moving and relocation expenses, the Marlins announced Wednesday. One of the requirements for South Florida receiving the major league franchise in June 1991 was for the Marlins to compensate any existing minor league team operating within their territory for the rights to the area. A three-person arbitration panel was convened to hear the Yankees Florida State League affiliate's claim and June 18 awarded the Yankees $400,000 for territorial rights and $60,000 for moving and relocation expenses. The Florida State League was awarded $270,000. The Marlins still must reach a resolution with the league's former Miami Miracle and its principal owner, Marvin Goldklang. The Miracle are now in Fort Myers.

O'Cubs win again

Jacksonville (10-7) scored all its runs in the first inning, four on a Gary Cooper grand slam. Orlando's Brant Brown led the Cubs with an RBI triple and two singles. Robin Jennings contributed two runs while Valdes added two singles and an RBI.

Tim Cooper of Wells Contracting was able to tag out Nice-N-Easy's Dave French at the plate on this play, but French got the last laugh, scoring the winning run in the bottom the seventh inning. Nice-N-Easy and Crazy Wings both won to force a three-team playoff with Wells for the championship next week at Chase Park.

Three-way tie in Chase softball

SANFORD — The closest regular season race from top to bottom ever in Sanford Recreation Department slowpitch softball still has not been decided.

Tuesday night at Chase Park, Nice-N-Easy and Crazy Wings did what they had to do, coming up with victories on the last night of the season to force a three-team playoff for the league championship next week.

Dave French scored all the way from second base on a fly ball with two out in the bottom of the seventh inning as Nice-N-Easy (5-4) edged Wells Contracting (5-4) 8-7 for their third straight victory and fourth in five games after a 1-3 start.

Wells Contracting, which would have won the league title with a victory, scored three runs in the top of the seventh inning to tie the game at 7-7. But French led off the bottom of the frame by reaching on an error and moved to second on a fly by John Searles.

In the nightcap, Crazy Wings (5-4) took advantage of a pair of errors to score two runs in the top of the first inning and built a lead of 6-0 before Reckers (3-6) made a game of it with three runs in the bottom of the fifth inning. But that was close as they would get as Crazy Wings won their fifth game in six starts after opening

Prophetic Anderson predicts New Smyrna victory

By PAUL MARSEGLIA
 Special to the Herald

SANSULA — Wildwood's Wayne Anderson, racing like he was on a rail, took the checkers in the Florida Pro 125 by Coca-Cola Saturday night at New Smyrna Speedway.

Anderson, who drove a flawless race, stated during driver introductions, "After last night's race and the way the car felt during hot laps tonight, I'm sure we have the car that will win this race."

Anderson was referring to Friday night's racing action at Orlando Speedworld where he started 26th and by race end had worked his way up to a third place finish.

At the drop of the green flag for Saturday's race, Anderson used his advantage of starting on the pole to jump to the early lead ahead of fellow front row starter Mike Franklin Jr., David Russell, Charlie Ragan Jr. and James Powell.

Franklin, with an inside pass, took the lead from Anderson on lap

27 and pulled to a quick lead on the rest of the field.

As Russell, Ragan and Powell began to battle for position, Anderson began to close back in on Franklin.

Going into turn four on lap 58 Anderson drove to the inside of Franklin to regain the lead, with Russell, Jeff Williams, Scott Bramlett and Tony Ponder in tow.

Once back on the point Anderson was in complete control. Despite seven caution periods bunching the field for restarts Anderson easily pulled away from the competition with each new green flag.

"I kept looking in the mirror waiting for David (Russell) to close on me, but it never happened," says Anderson, the 1994 FASCAR Late Model points champion. "At first I thought he was playing possum and just waiting to run me down. When he had a chance to get me on some of the restarts it never came."

Anderson, who led a total of 94 laps, took the checkered flag about 10 car lengths ahead of Russell.

"We were never really in the race tonight," said Russell, a four-time FASCAR Late Model champion. "This is a new car out of the box, we were loose going in and loose coming out. We qualified good so I know we had the speed, now we need to do some work on the set-up."

Rounding out the top five were Williams, Bramlett and Franklin. The race, which took 58 minutes to complete, had two lead changes. Ragan picked up the top qualifier award with Anderson receiving the $2,500 winner's purse.

Jerry Symons dominated racing action to win the Modified feature. Symons got around race leader Joe Middleton at the halfway point and was never headed as he raced to his seventh win of the season.

Middleton was second ahead of Danny Bancroft, Randy Hecker and Ross Eldridge.

Jared Allison cruised to victory in the Mini-Stock division to notch his eighth win of the season. Ted Vulpius was second, Bob Doxte third, Kevin DiMeco fourth and Brian Bellow fifth.

After several laps of three abreast racing, Dwayne Waddell broke from the pack to take the lead in the Bomber main event and held off a charging Dale Clouser to secure the victory. Finishing third through fifth were Jeremy Fitch, Daren Gould and Mark Manfredi.

Brad May led all but the first lap on his trip to victory lane in Limited Late Model action. Trailing were Osteen's Bobby Sears, Larry Cook, Tommy Elliott and Trevor Draa.

Barbara Pierce led from green flag to checkers to handily win the Sportsman feature, crossing the stripe a half a straightaway in front of David LeBeau to gain her 12th win of the year.

Chuck Vola, Bob Filliger and Larry Osteen completed the top five.

Holly Nicholas cruised to victory in the Action Performance Run-about race, with Jeff Verika, Ron Adams, Vince Keeler and Gary Higdon trailing.

Jerry: Clinton will run and lose

DEAR MR. STEWART: What do you see ahead in the next year for President Clinton and will he be re-elected president of the United States?
HENRY R. LAKE MARY

DEAR HENRY: Although President Clinton will run, it will wind up as "he ran and lost." His rhetoric, his inability to lead, his poor choices, his rambling along with the "Whitewater Scandal" have all had the effect of disabling him and making him "lame." Poor advice and trusting too many people around him have had the additional effect of breeding a lack of confidence from the American public as well. Look for Sen. Robert Dole in the "clubhouse turn!"

JERRY STEWART

DEAR JERRY: I have not been able to find the small gold baby ring that was given to me when I was an infant. Can you help me to locate it?
TERRI SANFORD

DEAR TERRI: Try to find your original baptismal certificate; I feel that it is "taped" to the card in the middle or behind it and please let me know if I am correct; Good Luck!

MR. STEWART: I have been reading your column for some time now and find that it has become one of my favorites. It's not too often that "a psychic" writes his own column and in the manner you do.
G.N. ALTAMONTE SPRINGS

JERRY: I have been, for some time now, trying to find my birth mother. Do you think that you could help me and how much would you charge for this?
HARRISON LAKE MARY

DEAR HARRISON: First of all, you can go to the library or any good bookstore and find any number of informational reference books on this subject of locating people. Secondly, as much as I would like to help you, it is somewhat time consuming for me to get involved when you have ready access to methods that are as good as my own and you'll be amazed at how easy it is when you know where and how to look. Although I wouldn't charge you for assisting you, I feel that you will get the job done in short order on your own. Good luck!

DEAR JERRY: I have been trying to sell our home for some time now and nothing that we do seems to work. We have had the listing with the same company now for two years and haven't even gotten a bite on our property. Do you think that we are doing something wrong or just experiencing bad luck?
ANTHONY D. LAKE MARY

DEAR ANTHONY: No, you're not having bad luck. It's just that I feel you're not getting a fair shake from the person with whom you listed the house. Get the listing away from whoever has it and do a six-month or less listing with another firm and make sure that it is in "multiple listings" as well. You might be in for a pleasant surprise within the next 90 to 120 days.

DEAR JERRY: Can you tell me whether or not I'll ever solve the misunderstanding between my mother and myself? I'm so frustrated and angry that it seems to get the best of me and no one is winning!
JONATHAN ORANGE CITY

DEAR JONATHAN: You will have to learn to just love your mother and overlook those existing problems that will never, never change. Your mother is very set in her ways and no matter what you say or do will make any difference now or in the future. You have just joined the ranks of all the rest of us who have had ongoing and similar problems.

Unfortunately, we're all victims, but feel good (if you can) that you were not the direct cause. Love her, respect her, but keep the necessary distance that allows you to go on about your own business and your own life. You'll survive as all the rest of us have too.
(Write to Jerry Stewart, C/O Sanford Herald, 300 N. French Ave., Sanford FL 32771. Stewart's phone for appointments and speaking engagements: 1-407-396-7765.)

Nurses aides appreciated

For the past 20 years, Hillhaven HealthCare Center has hosted an appreciation dinner for the facility's nurses aides. And this year was no different when 43 aides, called the "backbone of the facility," were entertained at a steak dinner with all the trimmings. Door prizes were also awarded. All smiles over the appreciation fest are (from left): Pat Sizelove, Debra Markoy and David Sizelove.

Friend's copycat behavior annoying

DEAR ABBY: I am having a problem with my "friend." She copies everything I do. If I cut my hair, she cuts hers. If I let mine grow, she lets hers grow. She wears the same perfume I wear and takes up the same hobbies I do. I remodeled my bedroom by myself, so she had a professional decorator remodel hers. Everyone thinks we are best friends, but I don't trust her. Because of this we never talk about anything like best friends do. When we get together, it's just small talk. I've tried for a long time to get to know her better and engage in more meaningful conversations, but she changes the subject abruptly and gets defensive. Abby, I'm confused because she acts like she's my best friend, but I have the feeling that deep down she's competing with me and trying to "top" me. What do you think?

NO NAME OR TOWN, PLEASE

DEAR NO NAME: It's said that imitation is the sincerest form of flattery, but I can understand why you find your friend's copycat behavior annoying. Let her know how you feel, and ask that she please not let it happen again. If it continues to happen, spend far less time with her.

DEAR ABBY: We are two women who work together. I've been married for four years, and "Jane" has been married for 29 years. In spite of our age difference, we both find the same thing waiting for us when we go home in the evening: not a husband who asks how our day was, but a husband who asks, "When will supper be ready?" While we cook, they read the newspaper, and after supper, while we clean up, they snooze! We both keep our mouths shut because we realize there are worse things in marriage than this.

We would love to come home to husbands who contribute as much to a marriage as we do. We are interesting and attractive women. Does anyone have a solution, short of starting World War III?
Please, no lectures on how removes his baseball cap. I was raised to believe that a gentleman always removes his hat inside the house. I am a school teacher, and still insist that boys take off their caps in the classroom.

I have not said anything to Dave because I don't want to make a big deal out of it, but it grates on my nerves. As a compromise, I will tolerate the cap being worn in the house, but not at the dinner table.
Abby, how should I handle this sticky situation? I realize that males are wearing baseball caps all over the place these days, but I find it tacky — especially at the dinner table.
Should I say something to this young man?
AN OHIO MOM

DEAR MOM: Say nothing to the young man; he's not one of your students. And if he graduated from college, it's safe to assume he has plenty besides hair under that baseball cap. However, if you prefer he not wear it at the table, mention it to your daughter.

God bless here. I hope she bleases this old world for many years, and I also hope her 70 birthday party will be the first of many.
FRAN KARAFAS, CLEARWATER, FLA.

DEAR ABBY: My daughter, who is a college sophomore, has introduced her father and me to a very nice young man who just graduated from college. "Dave" has spent quite a bit of time with us, and we expect to see him often in the future.
The problem is he hardly ever

Lupus is rare in children

DEAR DR. GOTT: I'm researching information on lupus. A very close friend's 4-year-old daughter has recently been diagnosed with this disease. Most information I've been privy to leads me to believe it only occurs in middle-aged women and a victim of this age is rare. What advice can you provide regarding dealing with this trauma?

DEAR READER: Lupus is a disease of unknown cause that is marked by inflammation in many organs, especially the skin, joints, lymph glands, and kidneys.

Although about 90 percent of cases occur in adult women, the disorder also affects children. The major characteristics of lupus include: rash, arthritis, swollen lymph glands, pleurisy (painful breathing), heart inflammation (rare), excessively rapid blood clotting, and progressive renal failure. The diagnosis is made by blood tests and biopsy.

Many people with lupus experience few symptoms, which may disappear for months or years, only to reappear without warning. In such mild cases, medications to control symptoms (joint pains, fever and others) include aspirin and other anti-inflammatory drugs. The prognosis is favorable.

On the other hand, lupus may appear as a rapidly progressive, virulent disease that can be life-threatening unless treated with cortisone medication. Once the acute inflammatory response has diminished, the dose of cortisone can be tapered and the drug eventually discontinued.

There's no doubt that lupus, like other chronic diseases, causes a huge emotional burden, along with the physical consequences of the disorder. For this reason, support groups and counseling are often appropriate to treat the "whole" person.

I suggest that your friend follow the doctor's advice and, at the same time, consider attending a lupus support group, with or without the child. You can learn of such groups in or near your community by writing the National Lupus Erythematosus Foundation, 5430 Van Nuys Blvd., Van Nuys, CA 91401. Telephone: (818) 989-0990. To give you more information, I am sending you a free copy of my Health Report "Lupus: The Great Imitator." Other readers

WIN AT BRIDGE

By Phillip Alder

Do you remember your school days with affection or with dread? On the whole, I enjoyed mine. But I wasn't as clever as Eric Morecambe, a British comedian whose straight man was Ernie Wise. Here is one of their scenes:

Ernie: "They must have thought you were very clever at school."
Eric: "They did. Every time the teacher asked a question, I was the first to put up my hand."

Ernie: "That was clever."
Eric: "You bet -- by the time I got back, the question had been answered."

Today's deal features a textbook play.

After North had used the Jacoby Forcing Raise, South showed a singleton or void in hearts with his rebid. North's five no-trump promised that all four aces were held and expressed interest in seven. South, with his wonderful trumps, was happy to oblige.

South won the opening lead with dummy's heart ace and played a spade to his king, preparing to claim. But when West discarded, there was still work to be done.

South could hope for a 3-3 club break, or for East to have at least four clubs. But he spotted a better line. He played a diamond to dummy's jack, ruffed the heart three in hand, played a club to dummy's king and ruffed the heart five in hand. After cashing his two remaining trump winners, South led a diamond to dummy's queen, drew East's last trump, discarding his club loser, and claimed. It was a classic dummy reversal.
