

SANFORD OFFERS MARKET IS AN ASSURED FACT BEINNING NEXT TUESDAY

SANFORD OFFERS MARKET TO THE FARMERS THREE DAYS A WEEK For the past five years The Herald has advocated the city market idea for Sanford and up to the present time the people did not think enough of it to give the matter a trial.

Since the war has come and the cry of food conservation and dearth of canned goods the idea of a city market has come home to all of us and the city market was hatched in the fertile brain of His Honor, Mayor Davison, Secretary Marlowe of the Board of Trade and the editor of The Herald and it was decided at a conference yesterday to ask the farmers of Seminole county to join hands with us and bring in their vegetables three days out of the week, Tuesdays, Thursdays and Saturdays and take their stand on Palmetto avenue between Commercial street and First street.

Right now on account of the big crops of beans and squash and other vegetables the growers are forced to plow up much of this truck to make room for other crops and much of it is going to waste. The city market will eliminate this waste and the many small gardeners will have the opportunity of selling their products FOR CASH three days in every week.

The market idea is the best proposition that has been put before the people of this section in many a day and out of it will spring a better understanding between the farmers and the city people and Sanford will become the trading center of this part of Florida.

Now let the people of Sanford hide any false modesty that might keep them from carrying a market basket and come down to the market these three days and cut down the high cost of living by buying direct from the farmer and buy fresh vegetables, chickens and eggs and all that the farmers raise and take them home.

Red Cross Announcements Regular meetings Thursday of each week 3:30 p. m.

At the regular meeting of the Red Cross Society Thursday afternoon, May 10, it was announced by Dr. Neal through a letter read by him from Miss Rich, secretary of the North Florida Chapter, that the branch now organized here is officially recognized as the Seminole Branch of this Branch including Geneva, Chulueta, Longwood, Altamonte (and later Paola, Lake Mary and Lake Monroe.

The ladies of the First Aid Class will please meet at the Woman's Club rooms Saturday, May 12, at 4:30 p. m.

The cost of the instruction manager is additionally 35 cents. There will be a fee for instruction but the amount and name of instructor will be decided by the members of the First Aid Class at their meeting.

A contingent of soldiers is now guarding the Lake Monroe bridge and a letter from the secretary of the North Florida chapter suggests that, in accordance with Red Cross custom, magazines be sent to them. Any one wishing to do this is asked to send magazines or other contributions to Mrs. W. L. Morgan, chairman of committee in charge, or Miss Annie Hawkins or Mrs. Ralph Wright.

Those who wish to subscribe to the Red Cross Magazine must give a two dollar membership subscription to the secretary. If one dollar is paid at one time and a second dollar later it will not be recognized as a subscription membership and the magazine's cost will be two dollars.

The membership of the Seminole Branch is now practically two hundred but the work of making comfort bags, etc., cannot be begun until the finance committee brings in their returns, so it is hoped this committee will soon be able to make a substantial report.

At the meeting last Tuesday evening of the committee on committees the following sub committees were chosen (If any names are suggested as additions it is requested that these names be handed to the chairman of the committee. Also the out of town units are asked to appoint their local committees in accordance with this same plan.

First Detention Camp Washington, May 10.-The first detention camp for interned alien enemies will be in the North Carolina mountains near Hendersonville, on a 500 acre agricultural tract and the first alien to go there will be the eighteen hundred officers and sailors taken from the German merchant vessels in American harbors. The interned men will be used to cultivate the tract and they will be farmed out for lumbering and road building, receiving the prevailing wage rates. The first detachment of Germans will be sent there this week.

Persistent rumors of German submarines in the South Atlantic were given additional color when it was disclosed that Government investigating agencies are running down a port that freighters of the American Trans-Atlantic Company, flying the American flag, have carried supplies to sea for undersea boats.

Ne ro Exodus North Richmond, Va., May 10.-James W. Poe, president of the Colored Citizens Patriotic League, has gathered statistics that show 241,206 negroes left the south during the past eight months. Poe says that most of them sought employment in northern "war" plants, 73,000 going to Pennsylvania alone. The number leaving Georgia was 48,879; South Carolina 27,569; Florida 10,892.

STUBBORNLY CONTESTING EVERY FOOT

GERMANY WILL NOT LOSE SALIENT POINT IN BIG BATTLE

The sanguinary battle between the British and Germans for possession of the village of Fresnoy goes on apparently without abatement. It is a battle of desperation on the part of the Germans, who see in the loss of the village a "double menace—the placing in jeopardy of their entire line north, especially the town of Lens and its adjacent coalfields, and a deeply projecting salient into their lines which would virtually put the British at the threshold of Cambrai.

The exact situation in the little village, which was recaptured by the Germans Tuesday after a stubborn defense on the part of the Canadians is somewhat obscure. The British War Office asserts that Prince Rupprecht's men met with reverses west of the village Tuesday night, during a counter attack, while unofficial advisers are to the effect that they have been expelled from a greater portion of the village but still are holding out, although barely able to maintain themselves against the stubborn onslaught of the Canadians.

On the other hand the German official communication asserts that the Germans have held the village against fresh British attacks and in addition have taken 100 more prisoners. In making this claim, however, the usual details of a victory and claims of sanguinary losses inflicted are lacking in the German statement.

Wednesday saw a return of unfavorable weather along the Anglo-German front, and except around Fresnoy, the fighting was mainly by means of the artillery.

The French meantime have been busy consolidating the positions captured from the Germans in Tuesday's fighting near Chevroux, repulsing counter attacks and engaging in artillery duels with the Germans. Northwest of Rheims, in the single instance where the infantry left the trenches the French attacked and captured German positions on a front of more than 400 yards, and brought back 100 prisoners.

Although the fighting along the Aras front has been described as the most violent during the war, claim has been in the House of Commons that the British casualties are 60 to 70 per cent fewer than those sustained in the Battle of the Somme.

The fighting in all the other theatres except in France continues of a sporadic nature, although the operations in Macedonia, where heavy artillery duels are in progress along the entire front, and in Roumania, where the Russians have broken through the Teutonic allied line at one place, indicate the coming of general engagements in a short time.

London, May 9.-A dispatch to the Exchange Telegraph Company, from Amsterdam, dealing with the Tjid's statement, concerning Germany's peace proposals, says it has been confirmed that Germany is about to make another peace offer, in conjunction with her allies.

Copenhagen (via London), May 9.-A special dispatch received here from Berlin says Dr. van Bohmann-Holloway, the Imperial German Chancellor will answer a peace interpolation in the Reichstag Monday.

SEN. FLETCHER FOR MARKETS FOR OUR FOOD

RAISING BIG CROPS NO GOOD UNLESS WE HAVE SYSTEM

The following from Senator Fletcher to the Southern Commercial Congress is worthy of note: It is said that in normal times England does not produce enough food stuffs in a year to last her six weeks.

It is said that in normal times England does not produce enough food stuffs in a year to last her six weeks. In France millions of men have been withdrawn from the fields. Thousands have left the farms in Canada for the army. Thousands of farm workers have gone from the United States into Canada when special inducements are offered.

ANOTHER HOTEL DEAL BY SANFORD PEOPLE LOOKS LIKE SUCCESS

"I thank the jury for their verdict, of which I felt sure from the first. I greatly regret the whole sad affair and sorrow caused. The injustice done Mrs. Vawter by the prosecution and press is the greatest blot on the whole sad affair. While I am blameless as to Stockton's death, I realize that I have been guilty of weakness when I should have been strong.

ROOSEVELT CAN'T GO

Age Fixed at Twenty One to Thirty For Conscription It is stated, reliably, that the conference on conscription have reached a practical agreement as follows: 1. Roosevelt and his volunteers are rejected.

New York, N. Y., May 10.-Col. Roosevelt to date has enrolled 180,000 men, exclusive of officers, all of them exempt from conscription. He is prepared to send the first detachment to Europe within six weeks from the day the necessary authorization is issued from Washington.

For the purpose of raising and sending troops to France, an unlimited amount of money is available, offers to date ranging from small individual contributions to one from a group of capitalists in a southern city, pledging any sum up to $1,000,000.

In any command he may be permitted to raise, Col. Roosevelt has no desire for higher rank than that of the junior brigadier, the other brigadiers, as well as the major-general commanding to come from the regular army.

FRANK MILLER AND ASSOCIATES BUY VALUABLE WALKER LOT

Again Sanford is threatened with hotelitis. This time however, the water is taken out of the stock and it looks like the real thing.

The first intimation of the hotel idea was yesterday when Frank L. Miller closed a deal for the C. R. Walker lot on Park avenue just north of the new Elks home.

When asked what he intended to do with the property Mr. Miller unhesitatingly told The Herald representative that he and his associates had decided that the way to build a hotel in Sanford was to go ahead and secure the lot first and then build the hotel.

Chipped Governor's Wings Tallahassee, Fla., May 9.-The Fogarty bill making invalid appointments of the governor not confirmed by the senate, and providing that the present officers hold over unless appointments are made and confirmed, passed the senate at the morning session by a vote of 21 to 10.

A bill prohibiting the use of paved roads for unusual heavy or destructive traffic was defeated in the senate. Senator Wilson's bill to pay over money deposited with the state by the federal government to pay for service and supplies furnished during the Seminole war of 1855 was defeated in the senate.

The senate and house adopted a system of engraving bills with typewriter. The house defeated an appropriation of $200,000 for a new state building for offices.

Band Concert Tuesday Night

The Sanford Band will give their second concert in the band stand in the park next Tuesday night. The program is given in this issue of The Herald. The public is cordially invited to attend the concert and note the progress of the boys.

Among The Theatres

Greatest Achievement of Age
The greatest achievement in motion pictures—the staging and photographing of an undersea drama has been accomplished in the wonder picture, "Twenty Thousand Leagues Under the Sea." It is a stupendous production involving the genius of the famous Williamson brothers whose invention made the undersea photography possible, and calling for the artistic support of the no less famous group of Stillson divers. When the Universal Company decided to produce this picture they called in the Williamsons to determine whether it would be possible to dramatize the story without omitting any of the action. These wizards of the sea read the script and guaranteed to furnish the necessary devices, build a submarine chamber and supervise that part of the production—in consideration of one hundred thousand dollars.

And then for the expert divers they secured the services of the Stillson divers at that time in Honolulu trying to raise the submarine F-4. The Stillsons were employed by the United States government under the direction of George D. Stillson, recognized as the greatest diver in existence, and it was necessary to secure a leave of absence from the government before they could undertake the perilous roles assigned them.

in "Twenty Thousand Leagues Under the Sea." Fortunately for the picture Uncle Sam released the Stillsons and the dramatization proceeded with the combination of inventive genius, artistry and submarine mastery that has made the production a glowing achievement of art.

When the picture comes to the Lyric Theatre an augmented orchestra with a music score written especially for the production will round out a finished and splendid performance that promises to eclipse anything yet presented in motion pictures. Lyric Theatre Thursday, May 10th.

"The Common Law"
The story of the screen version of Robert W. Chalmers' widely read novel, "The Common Law," in which Clara Kimball Young will appear at the Star Theatre on Thursday is one that will appeal to every patron of motion pictures.

Valerie West, an educated and cultured girl who has become an artist model through force of circumstances falls in love with Neville, a painter for whom she poses. Her love is returned, but owing to the artist's social connection, Valerie is convinced that a marriage would ruin his career. She offers herself in love to the man of her heart and the day is set on which she is to come to him under "the common law."

Through a chain of incidents of unusual dramatic power, Valerie conquers the objections of Neville's family and in the end the lovers find themselves free to be united in the safer and more conservative bonds of the law made by man.

The characters in the story are distant metropolitan types of unusual interest, and as produced by Director General Albert Capellani, the picture promises to be the sensation of the coming season.

Baroness DeWitz An Authority on Beauty

Valkyrien [Baroness DeWitz] believes that beauty culture should be taught in all the schools and that the United States government should hold contests to select the most beautiful girl in the country.

Valkyrien, who is soon to be seen here at the Lyric Theatre in "Hidden Valley," a Pathe Gold Rooster play, produced by Thanhouse, was a famous dancer in Denmark, her native land. There she won the Government Contest and was acclaimed the most classically beautiful maiden in Denmark.

"The girls of the United States are beautiful," she says, "but they are not encouraged enough toward beauty. Girls are ridiculed that try to become more beautiful."

"It should not be that way. In the schools instructors should teach beautifying exercises. Girls should learn to dance, how to carry themselves and how to dress to their best advantage. If a girl is pretty she should be told so, and helped to make herself more beautiful. If she is not pretty she should be told how to appear to best advantage."

Valkyrien has been taught well herself. Anyone who sees "Hidden Valley" will attest to that.

In "Hidden Valley," a Pathe Gold Rooster play, produced by Thanhouse as a starring vehicle for Valkyrien, Baroness DeWitz, to be shown at the Lyric Theatre on Wednesday Boyd Marshall with one shot kills a treacherous native fifty yards away.

After the scene was taken, the members of the Thanhouse Company laughingly said that Mr. Marshall actually couldn't stand ten feet

What Might Have Been

By F. A. MITCHEL

Jean Dufour and Edouard Boyer when the great European war broke out were intimate friends. One of their girl companions, Clochette Larrabee, had received a declaration of love from each, but neither man knew of the other's proposal, nor did Clochette tell them or make any difference in her treatment of them from what it had been. The truth is that both these declarations were made shortly before the young men marched away in the same regiment to meet the German invasion.

In the battle of the Marne Boyer was severely wounded and was sent home to recover. Clochette nursed him, but showed only the sympathy of a friend. She also revealed such solicitude for Dufour that Boyer knew she had given him her heart. He recovered from his wound and before he returned told her that he knew she loved his friend. Then she admitted that such was the case, but charged him not to communicate it to Jean.

"For," she said, "if Jean is killed and my marrying you will add to your comfort I will do so."

Edouard shook his head mournfully, but said nothing.

It did not occur to Clochette that she had given Boyer a reason to wish for his friend's death. Did such a wish thrust itself unbidden into Boyer's breast? Such a thought might come to any one under similar circumstances.

Dufour was ten years older than Boyer. They had been playmates, and Dufour's superior age and strength caused him to look upon his friend as something to be protected, though Boyer seemed perfectly able and willing to take care of himself. This feeling of an older for a younger brother clung to Jean in the war, and if there was any exposure needed from one or the other Jean hastened upon bearing it. Not that Edouard assented to this. Indeed he did what he could to defeat his friend's wish from favoring him.

One day a comrade in passing on an advanced trench to one in the rear was felled by a bullet before he reached his goal. Jean and Edouard both started to bring him in. Jean ordered Edouard back. Edouard rebelled and so fiercely that his friend was surprised. Both went to the rescue, and for a wonder both returned unharmed with the wounded man, though they carried him through a storm of bullets.

Jean Dufour was puzzled as to the cause of his friend having become so harsh with him at his having desired to assume the risk of bringing in the wounded man. It was the first time Edouard had ever protested with irritation against being thus favored. But Edouard volunteered no explanation, and Jean asked for none. Nevertheless from that time there was something unexplained between them, the first of its kind, for up to that time the relation between them had been that of older and younger brother.

One day the Germans made an onslaught upon a certain position defending Verdun. For awhile trench fighting was abandoned and the battle was in the open. The regiment to which the two friends belonged was much scattered, but Jean, ever solicitous for his friend, kept him in sight, and in time the two found themselves in what, before a destructive fire had robbed it of its trees, was a forest. Edouard had gone in advance of his comrades, and Jean went to bring him back. In this way both had been left on neutral ground. There was nothing for them to do but hide behind what was left of some tree that had been shot away above. Jean chose a log and Edouard a stump.

A small party of Germans came to occupy the ground. The officer commanding them was heard to say: "I saw a Frenchman duck near here. We must find him before we move on. Show no quarter."

Edouard arose and began to fire at the squad. Before Jean could realize the situation his friend fell, riddled with bullets. Then the Germans hurried away.

Jean Dufour remained where he was and when night fell went to the body of his friend, took it up and carried it into the French lines.

Jean was at a loss to understand why Edouard had not waited until the Germans found him. The more he thought of Edouard's act the more he was puzzled. At the same time the words of the German officer that there was one man to be found would come up in Jean's mind to suggest that Edouard had sacrificed himself that Jean might escape.

Some months after this Jean Dufour was so badly wounded as to be incapable of him for further service and was sent home.

He recounted to Clochette the circumstances attending Edouard's death. It was not until after Jean and Clochette were married that she revealed to her husband the remarkable sacrifice his friend had made for him and her. Not until then did Jean know that had Edouard returned instead of Jean he would have possessed Clochette.

There is nothing more sacred with Jean and Clochette Dufour than the memory of Edouard Boyer. Jean had marked the place where Edouard's body was buried, and together the husband and wife made a pilgrimage to the spot and removed the body to a place near their home where they could keep the grass green.

KANSAS TO RAISE REGIMENT.

Fred Clarke, Ex-Pirate Manager, Will Enlist With Natives.

"If it comes to the stage where Uncle Sam needs us fellows from Kansas, then I'll be there with a regiment of rough riders from Kansas," announced Fred Clarke, former manager of the Pirates. "I am not much of a military man, and I don't know much about army doughs. That's the way we are out in Kansas—never had much occasion to figure in such things. But I've this much to say—that all Kansans are right with the government any way it goes."

Mr. Clarke added that when the time comes to raise the regiment he will take a personal hand in bringing in the recruits, who, of course, will include himself.

The Orange in Spain.

It is considered a very healthful thing to eat an orange before breakfast. But who can eat an orange well? One must go to Spain to see that done. The sonnet cuts off the rind with her silver knife; then, putting her fork into the peeled fruit, she detaches every morsel with her pearly teeth and continues to eat the orange without losing a drop of the juice and lays down the core with the fork still in it.—Exchange.

Same Old Stuff.
A letter from a Babylonian master to his servant 2,200 years before Christ, has been translated at the University of Pennsylvania. An accurate report of its contents has not yet reached this office, but this is the tenor of it: "My Good Man: Owing to the present high prices in raw materials, and incidentally the consequent expenses of operation, it is impossible at present to give you the increase in salary you asked for. Do not despair, however. Good service never goes unrewarded.—The Boss."

Startling Preference.
Forrest had just started to school and was shy toward his teacher, so she selected a lesson about a dog and endeavored to get some expression from him. She talked about the dog in the picture, told him that she liked a big, curly, black dog best, and then asked what kind of dog he liked best. She was considerably surprised when he answered, "Green ones."

Japanese Claim Credit for Fan.

Japan takes credit for the folding fan. The original kind was of the palm-leaf variety—an oval or round shape which could not be folded. But Japan conceived the idea, just when or how nobody knows, of fastening half a circle of paper on a frame made of sticks fastened together at one end—and the collapsible fan resulted.

How "Rubbers" Were Produced.

"Rubbers," as Americans have named them, were the invention of Charles Goodyear, father of the man who helped produce the Goodyear tire machine. In 1833 it was found that India rubber, dissolved in turpentine and mixed with lampblack, would give a waterproof surface to leather. But the leather so treated was subject to atmospheric changes, heat causing it to melt and cold to crack. Mr. Goodyear mixed sulphur with the other combination and produced rubber.

Many Birds Imported.

The department of agriculture issues about 500 permits annually for the importation of birds; the number of birds imported amounts to about 500,000, and as many as 17,000 birds arrive in a single day.

College Days Not Wasted.

"Has your college education been of any practical value to you?" "You bet it has! If it wasn't for my experience in track athletics I'd have to leave my house five minutes earlier every morning in order to catch the 7:58" replied the commuter.—Michigan Awgwan.

WHOLE EMPIRE TO TAKE PART IN WAR COUNCIL

Representatives of British Dominions to Sit With Lloyd George's Advisers.

WILL SHAPE FUTURE POLICY

Everything Affecting Conduct of War and Negotiations for Peace Will Be Considered by Colonial Premiers Sitting With Inner War Board.

London.—Vast changes for King George V's far-flung dominions, indeed for the whole world, are bound up in the great congress of the British empire to be held here.

Representatives of the British empire's leading elements have met before, but more as a matter of ceremony and form. This time they come to London to do things. They will consider and decide all important policies now at issue having to do both with present problems and with those which are expected to come up at the close of the conflict.

In this unprecedented meeting, as in the several military and economic councils of the entente allies and even in the smaller gatherings of the Teutonic nations and their allies, experience is being gained which will do much to further the world-wide co-operation now the goal of most constructive thinkers.

Premier David Lloyd-George has promised that the representatives of the dominions shall sit with the inner war board of five members—set in the sense that a visitor is invited to sit beside a judge on the bench, but as voting equals.

The Welsh leader's far-seeing eye has discerned that in this way lies safety for Britain—that only by making the field armies containing a preponderant portion of their best manhood and not want to have a say, a real say, in determining the use to which they are to be put? That seems to us an impossible and undemocratic proposition.

"Up to the present we have shouldered practically alone responsibility for the policy of the war. We now wish to know that in our measures for prosecuting the war to a finish, in our negotiations for peace and in the problems arising from the war and following its close we shall be carrying out a policy agreed to by the representatives of the entire empire, sitting together in plenary council.

"Things can never be the same after the war as before it. Five democracies, all parts of one empire, cannot shed their blood and spend their treasure with a heretism and disregard of cost beyond all praise and in a common cause without establishing a unity such as never existed until now.

Although the British empire now presents a united front to the Teutons such a spirit of union has not always marked its history.

War has united the empire; first, the Boer struggle, and second, the present titanic conflict.

Were Object Lessons

The two wars were object lessons for the provincial Londoners. In this war more than a million fine soldiers have already left their homes to fight for their king in France, in East Africa, in Mesopotamia, in Egypt and on the Gallipoli peninsula. On the latter spot they died by the ten thousand in a hopeless attempt to take impregnable positions.

The caliber of the colonial leaders who will come here is not inferior to that of the British leaders with whom they will confer. Perhaps the strongest and most interesting personality among them is Premier Hughes of Australia.

When he visited England for the first time a year ago he impressed Englishmen deeply.

Hughes weighs less than 100 pounds, has chronic dyspepsia, and shows about ten times as much energy as an ordinary 200-pound man in full health.

He started life as an itinerant schoolmaster in Australia, carrying a pack about the country and teaching frontiersmen's children. Then he opened up a little general store near the wharves in Sydney, became acquainted with the dock laborers and headed the trades union movement. He rose rapidly to be a Labor member of the assembly of New South Wales, then a member of the Australian commonwealth parliament, then minister of external affairs, and finally premier in the first Labor cabinet the nation had ever known.

Some of the Others.

Premier Massey of New Zealand is an Irishman born, who went to the Antipodes when six years old, and was engaged in farming before turning to statesmanship.

General Smuts was one of the best Boer leaders in the war against Great Britain 17 years ago. Today, he is one of King George's most loyal and energetic getic subjects—a wonderful tribute to the conciliatory ability of the British empire.

Premier Botha, for whom he is a substitute at the imperial council table, is also a former famous Boer leader. Botha cannot come to London, partly because he is engaged with a great scheme to solve the annoying race problem in South Africa by laying out certain territories where the black men will be in control and barring the negroes from participation in public affairs in certain other districts. He also does not desire to leave because his wife is gravely ill.

Habit of Health. To acquire the habit of health it is necessary to cultivate the habit of expecting it. Cultivate, too, the habit of cheerfulness in your daily occupations, of optimism in your daily reflections, of urbanity toward others, and consideration for their rights as well as extension for their failures. I believe we should be healthy in body, glad in heart, and aspiring in spirit.—Unity.

Most Precious Thing. Sweet is the destiny of all trades, whether of the brows or of the mind. God never allowed any man to do nothing. How miserable is the condition of those men which spend the time as if it were given them, and not lent; as if hours were waste creatures and such as should never be accounted for; as if God would take this for a good bill of reckoning.—Bishop Hall.

Fault-Finder's Folly. He who seeks only for faults sees nothing else, and will be so fully conscious of the faults of others that he will be at fault himself.

Bill Had Learned Something. "I understand old man Stimpkins was very much opposed to his daughter marrying Bill Smith; called Bill a fool, and all that sort of thing." "That's very true, and before he had been married six months Bill admitted the old man was right."

Explanation of the Whopper. When lawyers go into court they claim the verity. It is probably because there are so many lawyers in politics that no campaign claim is ever less than record-breaking.—Toledo Blade.

Economy Can Be Carried Too Far. It doesn't pay to save a penny at the expense of several pennies' worth of time and effort. All economy is not economy. Some of it costs more than it is worth.

Commencement Foreword
With the ushering in of the month of May comes the thought of Commencement and all its preparation in school and out of school for the important events that mark the closing of a school year. The seniors are busy with graduation essays and songs and just wondering how they are going to look in college caps and gowns that is the regulation graduation costume of the modern age and the Juniors are not less important for they are the president of the Junior Class usher in the seniors on the night of graduation. And it is not the Juniors who always give a beautiful reception, the social function of the week, to the Senior Class this year? And then the Sophs and Freshmen! Oh! well, they are not so important "yet" but they will be in the next two years and anyway some of them get in the Salmagundi and sing in the between-acts of the class play and they're just all right, too.

The annual May recital is always anticipated with much pleasure for it is not only the musical event of Commencement week but it is the scene of the monthly recitals of the Masonic studio at which is always presented a program of peculiar charm and interest. The program this season promises to excel if that could be possible, the programs of former years.

Now just a little ahead of the usual time the Senior class play will be given, which is a very good thing, for Commencement week is so crowded with good things that everybody gets dead tired before the most important event of all which comes the very last night—Senior graduation. Well, the play is just going to be fine for Mrs. Ernest Houliholder is director and coach and the young people are quite enthusiastic. There's a prince who of course is the lover and there's a villain and an adorable little heroine and all sorts of love and sparkles and humor that keeps the interest of the audience on the qui vive.

Tom Lansing, A Student
Billy Merrill, A Little Freshman
Ralph Lawrence, Football Coach
The Burglar, A Knight of the Jimmy
Peggy Merrill, In Search of Her Prince
Shirley Hathaway, Who thinks all the World of Ralph Dixie Davies, A superstitious southern Cold
Madge Lansing, Hostess at Sing
Eloise Elmer, A devotee of Art and Adjectives
Frances Palmer, With Literary Aspiration
Gretchen Lansing, Who wants to Grow Up
Amy Dean, A Co-Ed who Loves Football
Pauline Thayer and Judith Gray, Known as Punch and Judy.
Ruth Little, Annie Anderson
Mrs. Wilberton Aunt to Madge, Gretchen and Tom
Ruth Steinmeyer
Tilly, A Maid who Loves de Puteher Poy
Gertrude Little
The scenes of the play transpire in Colorado, the first act at a cottage of the Lansings in the mountains, the other acts in the town house of the Lansings near the college campus. Many complications arise during the play. Dixie Davies, a southern girl mistakes Miles Alden for a burglar and this leads to a love-affair between the couple.

After the play, nothing else for commencement happens until Sunday, the 20th, when the Baccalaureate sermon will be delivered by Dr. Bunyan Stephens of Ocala.

May Music Recital at High School
Commencement week exercises will begin as usual with the music recital on Monday evening, May 21 that is annually given by courtesy of Mrs. Fannie Stemberge Munson and her pupils, with assisting talent. For this occasion Mrs. Munson has secured Mrs. Marlea Bishop, whose water home is in St. Petersburg, her native state being Wisconsin. Mrs. Bishop possesses a dramatic soprano of unusual range and sweetness. She sings E flat below middle C and D above high C. She first studied in Chicago and has had several years abroad, one in London with Shakespeare, the noted English vocal instructor, three years in Berlin and studied some time in Paris and was there when the present great war was declared. Mrs. Bishop's songs will appear in a later edition preceding Commencement week. The recital is open to the public for a small admission and seats can be secured in rows of 8 and 9 single seats, by phoning No. 262. The nominal price charged is to defray program expenses. The program will begin promptly at 8 o'clock and the doors will be closed during each number. The annual May recital is always anticipated with much pleasure for it is not only the musical event of Commencement week but it is the scene of the monthly recitals of the Masonic studio at which is always presented a program of peculiar charm and interest. The program this season promises to excel if that could be possible, the programs of former years.

Meanwhile Billy Merrill falls into evil ways and is fleeced by Sidney Hilton who loves Billy's sister, Peggy. He overhears Billy telling Tom about a trick play that is to be used by the college team against the Miners' team and in furtherance of his plan to win Peggy by threats to expose Billy he copies the trick play and sends it to the coach of the rival team. Ralph Lawrence, coach of the College team, learns of the offer and charges that the team has been betrayed. In order to save Billy, whose sister, Peggy, he loves, Tom Lansing avows himself the guilty man and in consequence is shunned by the students and co-ed. Billy confides his troubles to Gretchen, who by her efforts exonerates Tom and—Well, come and see the rest. The play is full of pep, humorous situations, football enthusiasm and love.
