House Votes To Abolish State Laundry Board

Power To Fix Prices In Industry Killed By 64-21 Vote After Arguments

Representatives Okey Amendments Proposals Would Add 7th Justice And Extend Sessions

TALLAHASSEE, Apr. 21. (AP)—The Florida House voted today 64 to 21 to abolish the State Laundry and Dry Cleaning Board which for four years has had the power to fix prices in the industry.

The bill was certified immediately and sent to the Senate. The debate started soon after the State Supreme Court upheld the constitutionality of laundry and dry cleaning price fixing law provided prices are reasonable.

Rep. Shelton of Hillsborough county contended abolition of the board and the lowering of prices would increase the volume of business and raise employment.

The House approved constitutional amendments to add a seventh justice to the State Supreme Court and to add 20 days to the biennial 60-day legislative session.

They still must obtain Senate approval before they can be submitted to a referendum.

The House adjourned until Monday at 10:00 A. M. and the Senate until Monday at 1:00 P. M.

Vote Approves Continuation Of Authority To Devalue Dollar 9 Percent

WASHINGTON, Apr. 21. (AP)—After tentatively approving a two year extension of the treasury's $2,000,000 stabilization fund, the House beat down today an amendment to the monetary bill to delete the section.

By a standing vote of 152 to 81, it turned down the amendment by Luce (R-Mass.) to end the President's devaluation authority. The Senate banking committee approved a $17,000,000 increase in the mortgage interest limit of the Federal Housing Administration.

It approved without debate Senate amendments to the bill authorizing the Jacksonville base and an operating seaplane base on the Banana River, near Melbourne and Cocoa.

The Senate approved the Florida base after the entire South-eastern development had been eliminated by the House Naval Committee when a dispute arose over merits of proposed locations.

Seminole Citrus Growers Sponsor Field Crate Bill

Delegates Take Action On Proposed Control Measures

Acting on the recommendation of a delegation of Seminole County citrus growers attending the citrus hearing at Tallahassee, Seminole County Representatives John G. Leonard and H. J. Lehman have introduced a bill in the Legislature for creation of a standard field box for citrus.

Benjamin F. Haines, Altamonte Springs citrus grower, who was one of the Seminoles' delegates, stated that the local growers were opposed to proposals which had been made to increase the size of the field container and that the bill which was introduced would specify the measurements of such a container and provide penalties for violation of the law.

Mr. Haines said that the Seminoles growers sponsoring the law would cite its advantages at a meeting of the Board of Trustees of the Florida Citrus Growers, Inc. in Bradenton next Tuesday and that passage of the law would depend on the directors' recommendation.

Other citrus legislation favored by the Seminole County delegation was discussed at the joint hearing of the House and Senate citrus committee of which Senator J. F. Beach is chairman and Rep. John G. Leonard is a member, Mr. Haines said.

Prior to the hearing, Mr. Haines and the growers visiting the capital from all over the state met to discuss proposed citrus control measures and that the recommendations of this session were given at the hearing.

Mr. Haines said that it appeared that 50 to 75 citrus bills would be introduced into the Legislature during the current session.

Other proposed legislation which the Seminoles' county group is particularly interested in is a repeal of the statute preventing the sale of bulk fruit without first passing through a wash house and elimination of the color added process to which citrus is subjected before being placed on the market.

At the hearing, Mr. Haines said that Miss Stella A. Wylly, another Seminole delegate, was applauded when she took the floor to voice objections against these present regulations.

Miss Wylly declared the processing and coloring of fruit prevents its being delivered to the consumers in good condition.

"If we could ship by truck from the grove, with fruit tree ripe, everybody would get decent fruit," she said.

Other members of the delegation from Seminole County Citrus Growers Inc. were George H. Bridge of Longwood and W. H. Pope of Maitland.

New Strife Is Reported On Slovak Front

Frontier Artillery Bombards Hungarian Village In New Boundary Flareup

Russia Requests British Pledge

Soviets Desire Full Military Support Of Anti-Aggressors

A surprise border flareup on the frontier between Hungary and Slovakia was reported today as Europe's anxious powers continued choosing sides.

Hungarian military authorities in Budapest said Slovak artillery had bombarded a Hungarian border village. They said Hungarian artillerymen and infantry returned the fire but neither side, apparently, had crossed the new frontier.

In London, an informed source said Soviet Russia had demanded that Britain and France pledge their full military support in return for her co-operation in the Anglo-French front. This source said the British foreign office was studying Moscow's counter proposal and that negotiations were continuing.

An obstacle to acceptance of the Russian demand was that Rumania and Poland, now holding British-French guarantees of their independence, might object.

Russia, formerly ruled partly of both countries and their governments were said to be fearful of admitting Red army troops to their soil, even as allies.

Reichsfuehrer Hitler was reported drafting the speech he will make a week from today before the Reichstag in answer to President Roosevelt's plea for at least 10 years of peace.

Premier Mussolini of Italy termed the plea "absurd" yesterday.

British-French guarantees of independence to certain Balkan states may be matched by the Rome-Berlin axis with guarantees to other states in this region, diplomatic sources said.

"The West has played one card in the Balkans and the axis is about to play the next," one observer asserted.

Thus, while the Western powers have assured Rumania and Greece of assistance if they be menaced, observers said the feasibility of similar guarantees by the axis to Hungary and Yugoslavia would be considered by the Italian foreign minister, Count Ciano, and the Yugoslav foreign minister, Alexander Cincinat Markovitch, in their discussions at Venice Saturday.

The effect of such a lineup would be that the Balkan frontiers would be "frozen" by regional guarantees and any effort to change the borders would immediately involve the danger of conflict among distant guarantor powers.

Diplomatic quarters held that the Rome-Berlin guarantees to Hungary and Yugoslavia would not be feasible if these two little states created discord by presenting claims against each other.

Consequently, it was asserted, Italy placed great importance on establishing harmonious relations between Yugoslavia and Hungary.

Marked progress in eliminating differences between Budapest and Belgrade has been made lately. There was evidence that Hungary might be persuaded to drop comparatively trifling revisionist claims against Yugoslavia and that a friendship or non-aggression pact between the countries might be one consequence of the Venice conference.

Still unprovided for in the guarantee system was Bulgaria, which was listening to offers from both sides in the diplomatic struggle for military and economic prizes in the Balkans.

LENNUYER (From the Saturday Review of

Begin again... another long, platonic, involute affair—
 my forehead aches; I feel a need for sleep—

Knowing minutely well, how it will be!

My warm, acquisitive, intellectual yearnings

Your not robust appeal for sympathy!

Two lengthy explorations of the soil!

With I, with just that drooping,
 tender touch

Arrange your flowers in a crystal bowl!

You will receive, and treasure, a brief note!

Reading antipathically, we no doubt will quote

Problems or compare the poets—recall a line,

Remembered that your favorite
 should be mine;

Or carefully dissect, two chairs
 apart,

Old delicate reactions to Mozart!

Matching experience with pale
 examples

Like shaded silks or millinery
 examples.

How so very well how it will be!

Language of humor—the quick,
 flinty wit!

And then the deep imploring,
 the spiritual unbinding—

We will emerge

With mental, thin antennae as tickly as the outstretched hand of any

Child after a birthday party.

Oh, let us in the name of heaven be hearty!

Can we be swift and hate,
 and separate

As forlornly,

Following down at once the glove,
 Let us be frank

And love.

Begin At The Beginning

In view of the approval of the Cross State Canal by the Rivers and Harbors Committee of the House of Representatives and the evident possibility that additional funds may be voted in the comparatively near future to resume the work on its construction, the Tampa Tribune has brought forth what seems to us an exceedingly good suggestion, and one which should appeal to advocates of the canal as well as its opponents.

If any additional money is spent on the canal, it should be devoted to digging, not in the middle, where it could not possibly do any good until the canal is completed, but at the beginning where it might be of immediate benefit, the Tribune says. A few additional millions spent on the lower St. Johns River would be a good thing, whether the canal was ever finished or not.

Recalling that when the first $5,000,000 allotment of funds was made for the canal, the money was spent on digging an utterly worthless ditch in the vicinity of Ocala, the Tribune points out that any additional work "done on the dry hole in the middle of the State must be unusable for five or 10 years", or until the entire Cross State Canal is finally completed.

The sensible thing to do, the Tribune insists, in the event Congress decides to shell out another $5,000,000 for this doubtful venture, is "to dig a 32-foot channel from the Atlantic up the St. Johns River, as far as the appropriation would take it. Then the channel could be immediately used, in case any merchant ships, or warships, wanted to go up the River above Jacksonville".

"Even if a complete canal would be useful", the Tribune continues, "digging a dry section of canal in the middle of the State, without an entrance at either end, is certainly silly. Why not start it at the Gulf, or else at the Atlantic. . . . If it must be spent, spend it where it would help Jacksonville, Palatka or Yankeetown."

Another good thing about spending whatever funds may be appropriated for the canal in the immediately future on widening and deepening the mouth of the St. Johns River would be the fact that it would postpone any danger to Central Florida's underground water supplies for another five or ten years, or until the work on the canal reached the point of cutting through the Ocala limestone. It is recognized that this is the feature of the canal's construction which arouses the greatest opposition. It is this feature which threatens the lower part of the State and which has raised the loudest protests.

Why build the most dangerous, and the most worthless part of the canal first? Why not save that for the last? If work is to be resumed, why not begin at the beginning of the canal, where it will do the most good and cause the least danger?

Airplane Production

The United States should at once launch mass production of airplanes, says Capt. Eddie Rickenbacker, World War ace, in an article published in Collier's Magazine. He suggests 50,000 to start—not military planes but fast work horses of the air as the first step toward a solution of this country's air-defense problem.

"Real power in the air", writes Rickenbacker, "belongs not to the nation that has plenty of planes to start with, but fundamentally to the nation that can produce replacements in whatever enormous quantities they are needed. Back of these replacements you must have a powerful and maturely planned industrial organization, with thousands of intricate details already in place, plans, jigs and tools all provided, men trained, materials in supply and an assembly line ready to get into action to put into volume production the very best planes that America can make.

"We know what such an assembly line is." We have created the most efficient type of high-grade mass production in the world in our automobile industry. The same kind of power, organized and massed for the single objective of large-scale production of airplanes, is the indispensable key to air supremacy today. That is why I believe, to make us safe in the air, we should at once begin a volume production of airplanes. I mean airplanes essentially for peacetime use, that will step up our business by carrying all the first-class mail and as much of the express and light freight as possible.

"My estimate of a real beginning is fifty thousand planes. We need an airplane manufacturing industry that will stand up to punishing requirements if war should come. Very well, let us get it by building the planes now that will give that industry a real existence. If we had to go into high-speed production of airplanes tomorrow we would very soon learn how tragically unprepared we now are. The United States is producing today about 3,700 planes a year. Employment in the airplane manufacturing industry is exceedingly spotty, neither using the capacity of the plants nor the full time of the 38,000 men who work in them. The industry as it stands could probably step up 5,500 planes a year if it had the orders. But the United States today is fifth or six-rate air power, in planes, in men in training, in replacement facilities and all the other ponderables by which the best experts have been able to judge.

"Our factories would find it impossible to swing into volume production for at least six priceless months following an emergency of war. No amount of bravery, self-sacrifice by American youth, or that ignorance mis-called courage by our pilots, salt of the earth though they are, would arrest the effect of that terrible handicap."

WELL, WHAT'S IN THE PAPERS TODAY?

NATURE'S WAYS
 Edited By C. R. Mason, President Audubon Society

BIRDS IN DANGER

In spite of the increase of many spectacular birds under the protective laws of the last 25 years, there remain at least nine species in North America that are threatened with extermination. Four of these still exist in Florida, one a breeding bird of Seminole County and another observed here within the past 12 months.

Of these threatened birds probably the first that comes to the mind of the bird student is the Ivory-billed Woodpecker. This species, unlike the Pileated, or "Logcreeper" as it is commonly known, has not been able to adapt itself to the destruction of the primeval forests, and has gradually disappeared with the advance of the lumberman's axe. Less than 30 of the birds are known to exist today, the majority of these in a heavily forested area in northeastern Louisiana. Only a few scattered Ivory-bills probably are living in remote sections of Florida. Unless large tracts of heavy timber can be protected from lumbering, there seems to be small hope of saving these fine birds. Every effort should be made to protect the few remaining, and conservation agencies helped in their work of studying and guarding the species. The Ivory-billed Woodpecker is a larger bird than the Pileated, has an ivory-white bill, and large white wing patches visible when the bird is at rest. The call note is a nasal "kent" suggesting the call of the white-breasted Nuthatch rather than the loud Flicker-like call of the Pileated.

LIMPKINS FED ON ENAILS

The Limpkin or "Crying Bird", a brown, white-spotted wader that looks like a cross of a crane and a marsh hen, is found today in some numbers along streams like the Wekiva and the St. Johns, and about shallow lakes such as Okechobee. Its range in this country is restricted to Florida and the Oklawaha Swamp of south Georgia.

There are hundreds, and possibly even thousands of these peculiar and interesting birds in Florida, and the threat to their existence lies not through hunter or egg collector, but through destruction of environment by expansion of drainage activities in the state. The diet of this bird as well as that of another rare species, the Everglade Kite, consists exclusively of Pomacea snails. Destroy the conditions suitable for the development of these large fresh-water snails and you destroy the Limpkin and the Everglade Kite with them.

The present population of the Everglade Kite, also known as the "Small Hawk", is unknown, but certainly 100 is too large a number. The bird is about the size of our common Red-shafted Hawk. The male on the wing appears as a large black hawk, with a white eye, across the base of the tail. The females are light-bellied with some white markings about the head. The "Small Hawk" formerly bred along the Wekiva River, and only last Spring was observed and photographed there by John H. Storey. It is to be hoped that enough areas suitable for both Limpkin and the Everglade Kite may be set aside for wild life sanctuaries in Florida that both of these birds may survive.

The California Condor, the largest of the North American raptors, with less than 30 birds remains in one of our national parks. Their numbers are so few that they may come to extinction in historic times. The California Condor was once the dominant bird south of the Colorado River and north of the Colorado River of the Sierra Nevada. It was once common in the mountains of the Sierra Nevada, and was once common in the mountains of the Sierra Nevada. It was once common in the mountains of the Sierra Nevada.

CONDORS IN DANGER

in the National Geographic Magazine, and even in Ice Age deposits in California and Florida. Now its home is restricted to a limited area of southern California and to the San Pedro Martir Range of Lower California.

Recent steps to preserve the few of the Condors that are left and attempt restoration of their former numbers include the establishment of a research fellowship for a study of the bird by the National Association of Audubon Societies; and the setting aside by the Forest Service as inviolate a large tract of the National Forest about the Condor's breeding range.

The Condor is so much larger than its smaller relatives, the Turkey Buzzards, and Eagles, that it is easily identified. It has a wing spread ranging from 8 feet, 4 inches to 9 feet, 9 inches, and weighs from 20 to 25 pounds. Close observation of this blackish bird reveals white wing linings which are characteristic.

That its food is carrion has probably been one of the causes for the Condor's decline, and all shows the intricate relationships governing the ability of animals and birds to survive. As a California ornithologist recently explained to me, the Condor's breeding areas was formerly also the home of mountain lion and deer. The mountain lions killed enough deer to feed not only themselves but to provide meat for the Condors. Entered domesticated cattle into the mountain range picture, the mountain lions were exterminated to protect our cattle, no more a steady supply of deer carcasses available for the Condors, and the birds, with scarcity of food, ceased to reproduce. However, the most important cause of the Condor's perilous present condition is considered by many authorities to be wanton shooting of the birds. Sharing with the South American species the honor of being the largest living bird, like bird found in the New World it is hoped that protective measures now in force will make the future of our Condor brighter than it appears now.

 By WILLIS THORNTON

Like wide-eyed children in an all, and then boldly begins to swim. Certainly Kettering is right when he says that we can't go on doing only the same things we are doing now. It is the new things that are needed.

The judgment of technicians is so universal as to be beyond argument—it has been repeated again and again. We stand for the first time in the world's history there could easily be plenty of material things for everyone, if we have not figured out the way to produce the actual result in practice.

Charles F. Kettering, research chief for General Motors, is an inventor and technician. From that point of view, no one has better outlined our position than Kettering did in these recent words:

"Today we have an unusual condition because there is an excess of manpower. All that means to me is that we haven't enough projects to work on. It means we are technologically behind, not technologically ahead."

"Not enough work to do, and there's so much yet to be done! Never was there such an opportunity to do things; but we can't go on doing only the same things we are doing now. We have got to open up a new field, and there are thousands of new fields waiting. It's up to us to find our way into them. If we can only get some of these new projects under way we won't have enough materials or money or men to do the job. And we can start anywhere. There's no end to the opportunities."

There stands man—a wealth of material at his elbow, a pile of money ready at his hand, 10,000,000 men ready and waiting to go to work. And because he hasn't the wit to devise some that will bring these three together, the money, and the materials, and even the men rust in idleness.

The answer probably will come, but not in one blinding flash that will start things humming day after tomorrow. It will come little by little as one idea after another timidly tiptoes into the water, finds it not so cold after

Rookie Hurler Is Expected To Aid Giants This Year

Salvo Was Strikeout King Last Season On Pacific Coast

BATON ROUGE, La., Apr. 21.—(AP)—Fairly unnoticed in the New York Giants' training camp is a rookie pitcher by the name of Manuel Salvo.

Now the question going around the training camp is which last year's better hurler, Hill Tenney, the Giants' manager, never has been accused of being a marginal in the baseball ivory market. And yet—

The records show this: Salvo pitched against Hutchinson twice and beat him both times. Salvo won 22 games for San Diego, missing the last four weeks of the season with a torn shoulder.

Florida held a 4-0 lead going into the last half of the fifth but Stetson pulled an even during the inning, chiefly on Sample's timely single with the bases loaded. A lone tally in the sixth put the Gators out in front.

At Deland Don McHane's 2-1 Men continued their first division ranking with an 8-2 victory over the lowly Red Hots.

Although the Senators out hit their opponents 10 to 7 they were unable to bunch them for runs.

Kaly's Conquest Of Albania Gives Hitler And Mussolini May Tangle In Time Over Adriatic Sea

By MORGAN M. BEATTY
WASHINGTON, Apr. 11.—(AP)—Your history will tell you that Italy's conquest of Albania is much more of a threat to Hitler than a blessing—in the long run. Here's how historians figure it out:

The Adriatic is the cheap shipping route to Africa, America, and the Far East for much of South Central Europe. By any other route, the extra transportation costs eat up the profits.

In pre-war Europe, Austria managed to gobble the best water-fronts on the Eastern Adriatic Sea, including the important ports of Trieste, Fiume, Zara. Further down the coast little Montenegro and Albania were independent. Serbia was strapped down, a helpless inland state.

That left Austria and Italy gazing at each other across the Adriatic—bitter, natural rivals. The Italians, of course, dreamed their dreams. If only they could gain control of the Adriatic, and force Austria to use the Danube and Black Sea exclusively! The Adriatic then would be a handy Italian lake—a perfect retreat for the Italian navy in case of trouble. Italy would become Mediterranean Power No. 1, and show the world how an ocean should be run!

Dreaming this dream, Italy deserted Germany and Austria—her triple alliance partners—and joined the western allies in the World War.

Sure enough, Italy got her hands on the great Adriatic ports of Trieste, Fiume, and Zara. But—and here's the historical nub—the western powers created Yugoslavia, with pro-war Serbia as a nucleus, and gave the new nation the rest of the Adriatic's eastern shore except for a strip held by tiny Albania. Central Europe still had an outlet into the Adriatic. Italy was deprived of her coveted lake!

As the years went by, Italy loaned money to little Albania, and otherwise penetrated her economy, until the independence of that Balkan state was little more than a shadow. The Italian puppet, moreover, was separated from the heel of the Italian boot by a mere 50-mile strip of water. Would it be much of a trick to close the Adriatic with the Italian navy, in case of trouble with Austria or Yugoslavia?

Old Austria, meanwhile, had become a part of Hitler's new Germany. Furthermore, reports are piling up that Hitler's agents are filtering through Austria into Yugoslavia and stirring up the Croats.

And American observers are gathering figures showing that Germany is driving other trading nations out of Yugoslavia. If those signs mean anything, they mean Hitler has eyes on Adriatic outlets.

So, asks your historian, is it mere coincidence that Mussolini shows the Italians to get the world's attention and marches on Albania? A country he already controlled for all purposes except the military?

Naturally the Italian dictator outwardly is denying the Rome-Berlin axis.

Your history professor suspects that the noble Italian extension really the first true sign that Mussolini doesn't trust Hitler, never has, and never will. Moreover, historians see it as evidence that Mussolini has decided to do something to make Hitler think twice before he leaps hereafter.

The Italian partner in the axis is writing himself an insurance policy against the man Hitler in the Adriatic. For if the Italian dictator openly controls the gate between the heel of the Italian boot and Albania, he'll have to be counted on—surely not after—Mussolini makes a move in the Balkans.

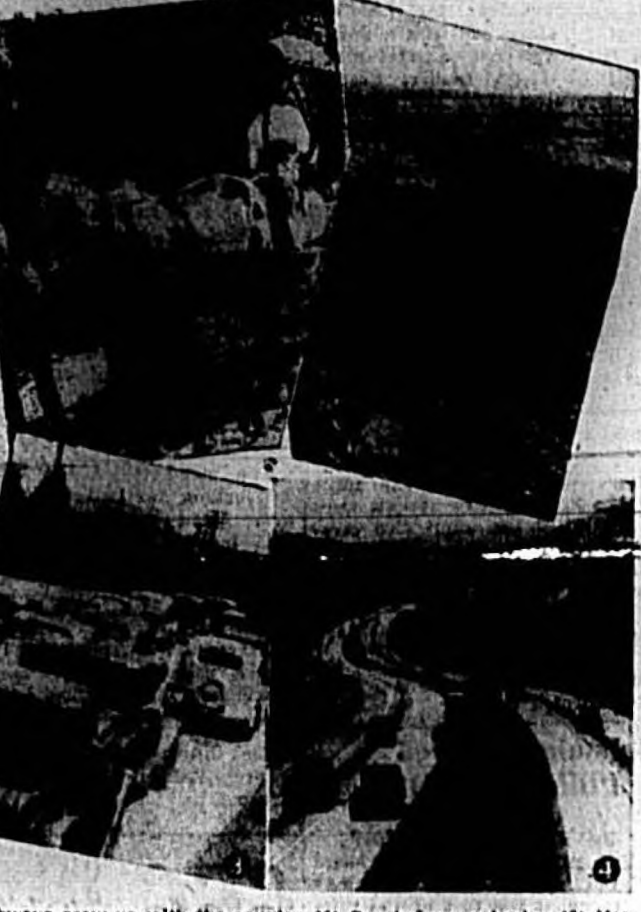

What, asks the historian, does the Italian really do into the Balkans? He goes along to carve the Yugoslavian melon.

What much of the picture, the historian is fairly sure about. But, however, there is one thing.

As the historian, does the Italian really do into the Balkans? He goes along to carve the Yugoslavian melon.

BACKGROUND FOR PLANNING

Early in the 1920's the American people suddenly awoke to discover a green and sunny land, slicing down into the Caribbean from the south-eastern tip of the continent. And finding this land with a way of life to their liking, they flocked south to Florida by the hundred thousand. So fast did they come that for a time freight-glutted terminals forced the railroads to embargo all but necessities.

Highways grew up with the country (1) Day before yesterday (2) Yesterday, (3) Today, (4) Tomorrow.

As ways after ways of population rolled over the land, Florida became more and more settled. Some way had to be provided for people to get from one part of the state to another, to move produce to market, to handle the rapidly increasing flow of tourists. And so Florida began piecing together a statewide highway system.

Road System Begun
In 1922 the Legislature enacted the "Miller Bill," providing for a system of state roads. Since the passage of the act, the designated state road system has been increased from time to time by subsequent legislation until it now approximates more than 15,000 miles, of which a considerable proportion is represented only by proposed locations. To finance a road building program, the 1923 Legislature raised the gas tax from one cent to 150 cents, a precedent followed by subsequent Legislatures until today Florida motorists pay an eight cent tax on each gallon of gas.

On which to work in designing roads for automobiles. The great trade routes that had grown up with the country had been largely supplanted by rail and water transportation. In Florida, the press of traffic demanded the surfacing of a large mileage as rapidly as possible. As a result, engineering was sacrificed for quantity. Many roads followed existing wagon tracks. They were narrow, high-crowned and of the fence corner variety when it came to alignments.

Yet those early roads served their purpose—they made that part of Florida away from the railroads habitable.

Traffic Outgrows Roads
However, by the beginning of this decade traffic had increased tremendously. Cars were fast and plentiful. Traffic deaths were increasing at an appalling rate. Plain fact of the matter was a great majority of the roads built five years previously were out of date, both from the standpoint of safety and from ability to take the pounding grind of traffic. Once again Florida faced a difficult road problem.

Then the depression struck, emptying state purses, and the road building program faltered. Pressed by low returns from general tax sources, government began dipping into the revenues derived from motorists in gas tax and license fees, for these were the only revenues that retained a normal appearance. And so the thousand and one things done by the state began to be financed by road users—and the habit grew until today only about one-third of the road building program faltered.

Lookouts Trounce Red Hats 14-4 In Opener

Seventh Inning Spree Gives Locals Lead

After Tosses Nine Innings As Sanford Gets 15 Hits Off DeLandHurlers

More than 900 people jammed the grandstand in DeLand today to watch the Sanford Lookouts put on a seventh inning spree to blast the Red Hats and revenge a 14-3 opening day defeat handed them here on the opening day of the 1939 season.

The Lookouts, garbed in their new red uniforms, clubbed DeLand pitchers Toenes and Harrison for 14 safeties in seven innings and then climbed aboard the winning train.

That baseman on the Red Hats, who had been the hero of the first game, was hit for another safe blow.

The Lookouts, who yesterday opened DeLand's opening 14-4, will probably be faced by the second team in the second game.

Manager Alexander plans to use much the same line-up in tonight's game as he used in DeLand yesterday.

The outfield will be the same as the starting gardeners yesterday. Carroll in left, Stearns in center, and Langston holding down right.

Tuesday night the Lookouts hop to St. Augustine for a regular night session with the Saints who last night turned back Palatka 6-1 in their opener.

Baseball Makes Regal Return In Major League

Roosevelt To Toss Ball In Yankee-Washington Fray

NEW YORK, Apr. 17.—(AP)—Baseball, 100 years old and some say older, makes a regal return this week to its major league company.

Two games today, weather permitting, will sound a fanfare for the 1939 centennial season's general broadcast.

With President Roosevelt pitching for the people, the world champion New York Yankees will inaugurate the American league campaign against the Senators of Washington, while the Pittsburgh Pirates and the Cincinnati Reds will lift the National league drapery at Cincinnati.

Forecast of showers has clouded the ceremonial contents in a degree of uncertainty, but all reserved seats are sold for both games, and it will take some pretty mean weather to stop the show.

Full schedules Tuesday are likely to attract an additional 200,000 fans to the ball parks of the eight other major league cities.

In the American league the Boston Red Sox will be at New York, Washington at Philadelphia, Chicago at Detroit, and Cleveland at St. Louis.

The fans as well as the players have been conditioned by two months of training camp sun and facts. All agree point toward baseball enjoying, if not a second childhood, certainly a very white summer.

Louis To Meet Roper In Los Angeles Go Tonight

Los Angeles, Apr. 17.—(AP)—Prize-fighters blared forth around the rival camps of Heavyweight champion Joe Louis and Challenger Jack Roper yesterday as the stage was set for their 10-round title fight tonight at Wrigley Field.

The Brown Bomber spent the day resting, which in his language means sleeping, and was pronounced in perfect shape for the sixth defense of the crown he battered off the aging brow of James J. Brodock in 1927.

Roper, a grim visaged pugilist with a knockout punch in his left hand, a world of courage in his heart, and a decidedly splotchy record behind him, drove into Los Angeles after training for six weeks at Roper's ranch north of here.

"I feel fine, better'n I ever did, and I think I'll be able to give Louis all he can take care of," big Jack drawled. "This chance at the title is the best, and I reckon the only, break I ever got out of boxing."

For his "break" the 36-year-old native of Magnolia, Miss., will get 10 per cent of gate receipts expected to hit around 100,000. Louis, it was disclosed, will get 45 per cent.

Los Angeles, accustomed to advanced to second on Roper's infield out and moved to third on Sam Cole's single. Frye scored Elliott and moved Cole to third with a long sacrifice fly and Bob Keller scored Cole with a double to left.

Two more scored in the fourth as Frye opened with a single and took third as Keller threw Keller's sacrifice fly over first base.

Keller reserved possibility of a double play by taking second standing up and was scored on Alexander's (in center) sacrifice fly.

P.-T. A. Women And High School Play On Tuesday

All-Star Team, Coca Cola Will Meet In Final For Season

Two diamondball games have been scheduled for tomorrow night which will bring together the women of the Seminole High School P. T. A., with the members of the faculty of the same school furnishing the competition.

The second game of the evening brings together a picked All-Star squad and the city diamondball loop champs, the Coca-Colas in a post-season game.

The first game gets underway at 7:45 o'clock, with the second session slated to immediately follow the first seven inning encounter.

GAINESVILLE, Apr. 17.—Whitney Davis, working on the mound for Gainesville, won his own game here yesterday afternoon by driving in five runs as the local club defeated Daytona Beach 7 to 2, in one of the four opening contests of the Florida State League.

Davis, besides holding his opponents to only four hits, slammed out a double, a triple and a single out of four trips to the plate.

Sparkman started on the mound for Gainesville, but was relieved by Davis after giving up a single, double, walk and allowing a run by a wild pitch in the first inning.

Davis then struck out the next two men with the bases loaded.

Lookouts To Meet Red Hats From DeLand In Initial Game At Municipal Field

Mayor Edward Higgin, and the Campbell-Loring Post, Sons of the Legion Drum and Bugle Corps will be on hand for the opening ceremonies to be held 15 or 20 minutes before the Red Hats take the mound against the DeLand Reds at 8:00 o'clock this evening.

The Sanford Lookouts, who yesterday opened DeLand's opening 14-4, will probably be faced by the second team in the second game.

Manager Alexander plans to use much the same line-up in tonight's game as he used in DeLand yesterday.

The outfield will be the same as the starting gardeners yesterday. Carroll in left, Stearns in center, and Langston holding down right.
