By SHARON CARRASCO Herald Staff Writer

Reeking of the sweet smell of almonds, the black cyanide smoke escaped through the hot cell bars and quickly filled the corridors of the Seminole County Jail. The heat grew so intense the paint began blistering off the walls like melted butter. The thick smoke dropped visibility to zero and forced inmates and jailers to literally feel their way out of the deadly fog. Chaotic screams of panic and cries for help pierced the darkness. Some to no avail. That nightmare began close to noon four years ago today (June 9). Before it was over, 10 inmates and one jailer would die from smoke inhalation. Disgruntled over the postponement of his trial, 17-yearold Ray Anthony McCall, who had been charged with armed robbery, chose the simplest solution he knew to 'I'm going to burn this place down,' McCall announced, but no one seemed to take his threat seriously, court records show.

"I'm going to burn this place down," McCall an-But no one seemed to take his threat seriously, court

About 11:45 a.m., McCall began lighting matches in his hospital cell where he was isolated, records show. Setting a Sunday newspaper afire, McCall pushed the burning cinders through the broken food tray slot in his cell to the cell next door, according to court records.

The area next to McCall's cell was known as the hospital bay area, where stacks of mattresses were stored. The mattresses were said to be inflammable and it was claimed they would not give off a toxic smoke or gas if McCall, however, belied that claim by leaving 10 persons and himself dead. As a mattress caught fire, the black smoke was swiftly sucked up the ventilation shaft that led to a section of the jail where trustees were incarcerated. Not hardened criminals, these men were delinquent in paying their child Six of the trustees would die, as would deputy jailer Robert O. Moore, 40, of Longwood. The other four inmates died at various points along the north and south corridors Recently, the 33rd civil suit was filed against the sheriff, Serninoie County and others in connection with the June 9. 1975 fire. Basically, the cases charge Sheriff John Polk with negligence, alleging the jail was improperly equipped to ensure the safety of the inmates in the event of a fire. All the claims for death or injuries exceed $2,500. Specific allegations against the sheriff include the failure to have fire or smoke detectors installed and the failure to have a master locking system to release inmates in the event of fire. Ten of those cases were filed by the survivors of the nine inmates and jailer who died in the fire, according to court records. There were no survivors of a 64-year-old Sanford inmate to file a wrongful death action on his behalf. The first trial stemming from the suits filed to date tentatively is scheduled for Oct. 6 before Seminole County Circuit Judge Kenneth Leffler. It is expected to last about six weeks.

O.H. Eaton, an attorney for Polk, Seminole County and Appalachian Insurance Company of Providence, the county's insurance company, has in turn filed a suit against Supreme Sales, Co., Inc., General Tire and Rubber Co. and Alagold Products, Inc.

Supreme Sales, Co. is the supplier of the mattresses; Alagold Products, Inc., the distributor, and General Tire and Rubber Co. is a maker of the polyurethane used in the manufacture of the mattresses. Others involved in the suits include: Allied Insurance Co. for Alagold Products, Inc.; Gulf Insurance Co. for

Supreme Sales, Co.; Textro, Inc. a manufacturer of foam; and Liberty Mutual Insurance Co. for General Tire and Rubber Co. An all-day hearing is scheduled for June 22 at the Seminole County Courthouse before Judge Leffler who will decide how the cases will be tried. Eaton said. "There are several ways to do this," Eaton said. "You could try the cases one at a time or clump them together on the issue of liability and damages and have separate He is hopeful the cases will be heard concurrently by the jury. Eaton, an Altamonte Springs attorney, refers to the countersuit as a "100-pound lawsuit because the compiled paperwork may weigh that much. Claims are for contribution and indemnification. "If we are at fault, someone else is at fault and they should pay a part of it," Eaton explains. "Or if we are at fault, it is because someone else is at fault and they should pay all of it."

With the number of plaintiffs and defendants involved in the cases. Eaton says the jury may find the matter somewhat complicated to decipher. But, with the aid of · flow charts, he said, he hopes to present the case in an easy-to-understand manner.

"We plan to use a flow chart showing each claim, who is being sued, who is suing who, who's claiming in-demnification and all that stuff," Eaton said. Attorney Howard R. Marsee, who is representing Supreme Sales, Co. and its insurance company, remarks in one of his motions on the case's complexity:

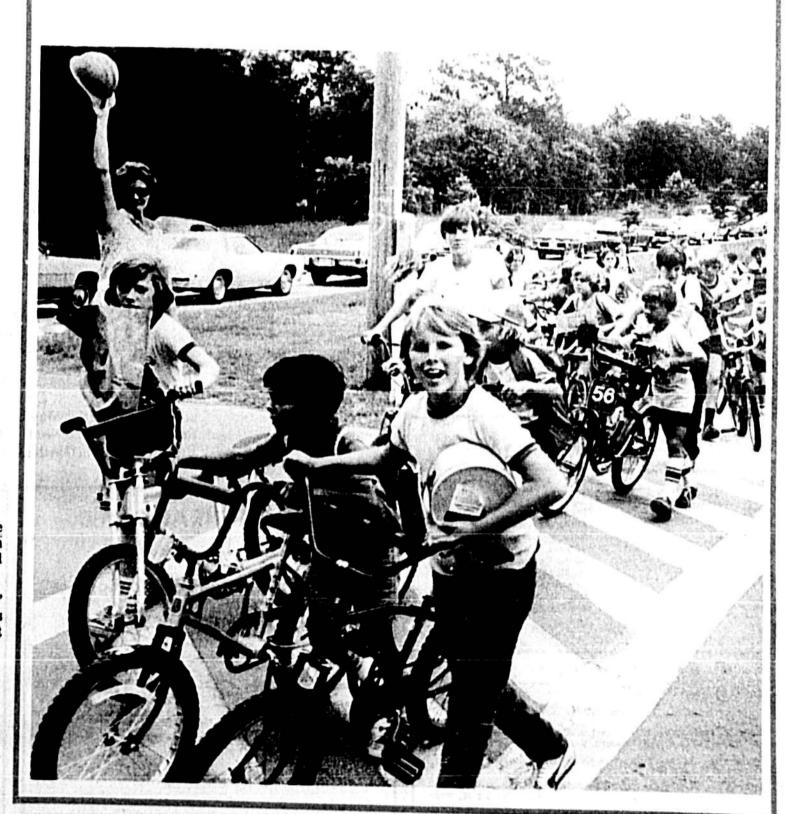

"The confusion has been compounded by the fact that some parties have been named in some lawsuits as defendants but not in others; there are third party defendants or cross defendants in some lawsuits but not parties or defendants in other lawsuits, some have been served with a summons and process in some lawsuits but not in others and numerous other differences."

Eaton, who has been practicing law for 11 years, describes the case as being "unique for around here." "It is the most complicated case I have ever had."

NATION IN BRIEF

'Hawks' Like Missile Decision, But Not SALT

WASHINGTON (UPI) - President Carter's decision to proceed with the MX missile system picked up the support of Senate hawks, but apparently failed to win them over to a new SALT treaty. Senate doves predictably attacked the president's decision to spend $30 billion over 10 years to build the sprawling mobile missile system across the American Southwest.

Sen. Jake Garn, R-Utah, a leading opponent of the arms limitation pact, said Carter's decision was "the bare minimum needed to bolster the nation's security and will not pacify opponents of the seriously flawed SALT II

'Secret' Was At Library

WASHINGTON (UPI) - "We think it speaks for itself." That's how the ACLU summed up the government's admission Friday the "essential secret of the H-bomb" sat for nearly three years on public shelves at the Los Alamos Scientific Library in New Mexico. The ACLU is part of a coalition of lawyers and news organizations locked in a court fight with the government over efforts by the magazine Progressive to publish an article on the H-bomb and official secrecy. BIRMINGHAM, Ala (UPI) - Charges were dismissed Friday against four of 27 members of the Ku Klux Klan accused of harassing blacks and civil rights workers in Alabama.

Just after the government rested its case, U.S. Attorney J.R. Brooks told U.S. District Judge Frank McFadden he wanted to have the charges against Roger Champion, Edward Deerman, Johnny Hutto and William Rayfield dismissed.

He said no evidence presented in the five-day-old trial had linked the four to shooting into the homes of Talladega County NAACP leaders or the home of two interracial

Wildcat Strike Continues

By United Press International Striking independent truckers blockaded truck stops for the third straight day today, and trucks ignoring the independents' demands for a shipping shutdown were the targets of sniper fire.

The wildcat strike, designed to halt commerce on the nation's highways, lacked the immediate crippling effect anticipated by organizers, but the truckers' action began to take effect in the marketplace and with politicians. Strikers blockaded truck stops and slowed or stalled highway traffic in a move to press demands for greater diesel fuel allocations, lower fuel prices and higher speed

'Vampire' Sentence: Death

PALO ALTO, Calif. (UPI) - Richard T. Chase, 28, the "vampire" killer who drank the blood of some of his six victims, will join 18 other persons on San Quentin Prison's Death Row.

Judge John Schatz of Santa Clara County Superior Court upheld the death penalty for Chase Friday. He ruled the jury verdict, reached last month, was "just and proper" and "the aggravating circumstances outweighed the mitigating circumstances." He said Chase would be sent to San Quentin Prison in 10 days. Chase was convicted of murdering six Sacramento, Calif., residents, including a pregnant woman and an infant, during December 1977 and January 1978.

Sanford Man Is Charged In Robbery

A 23-year-old Sanford man has been charged with armed robbery in connection with the May 9 hold up of a convenience store clerk, according to Seminole County deputies. Vincent Leroy Ashley, 23, of 1614 W. 16th St., Sanford, was arrested about 3 p.m. Friday at the William Clark Court Apartments in Sanford, deputies say. He was placed on an initial bond

In addition to the armed robbery charge, Ashley has also been charged with false imprisonment and possession of a firearm. According to police reports, two men entered the Lil' Champ Store at 1119 E. 25th St., Sanford, about 4 a.m. on May 9. Ashley allegedly was armed with a pearl handled knife and another man with him was toting a shot gun.

The man robbed the store clerk of $57.07 of the store's money and $139 of the store clerk's personal money, police say. The clerk was then forced at gunpoint to drive the two men around the Sanford area for a period of 45 minutes before being released unharmed, police say.

Radiation Found In Homes

TALLAHASSEE, Fla. (UPI) — Some 1,000 homes on phosphate land in Polk and Hillsborough counties should be renovated to keep out lung cancer-causing radiation.

EPA told Florida officials Friday it has found higher

MIAMI (UPI) - Eve Postell, a 13-year-old girl with a record of 21 arrests, has been sentenced to 114 years in prison for the robbery-murder of an 85-year-old man. The teen-ager, who was sentenced Friday, will be at least 51 before she is eligible for parole.

She was convicted of stealing $660 from Ralph Ger-

SALT II, Treaty: Promise Betrayed

Throughout the 10-year history of Soviet-American strategic arms limitation talks, the United States has acted on the premise that Moscow saw the value of a negotiated nuclear stalemate in which neither superpower could threaten to initiate a nuclear exchange. Three successive administrations have clung to this anesthetizing assumption despite mounting evidence that the men in the Kremlin entertain no such lofty notions.

The complacency bred by this self-delusion led the United States to trade its unquestioned startegic superiority at the time of the 1962 Cuban missile crisis for a current nuclear imbalance tipping so rapidly in Moscow's favor that the core of our defenses will be vulnerable to Soviet destruction within three years. Nothing in the SALT II treaty to be signed this month will remove or significantly diminish this imminent threat to American security. Indeed, the threat will in-

•No one in the Carter administration is likely to admit publicly that the promise of arms control has been betrayed by the Soviet Union's lust for dominance. Yet, by implication, Secretary of Defense came perilously close to just such an admission in a speech to the graduating class at the United States Naval Academy.

Without equivaocation, Mr. Brown said the Soviets have been embarked for more than a decade on "a policy of building forces for a preemptive attack on U.S. intercontinental ballistic missiles." Moreover, the secretary added that by the early 1980s the Soviet Union would possess sufficient numbers of the new SS-18 and SS-19 heavy missiles to insure the destruction of the vast majority of this country's land-based Minuteman and Titan ICBMs in a surgically precise surprise

He might have added with equal justification that such an attack carried out by only one-third of the Soviet Union's ICBM force would also destroy an estimated 60 percent the Air Force's strategic bombers and 50 percent of the Polaris and Poseidon missile submarines.

No doubt the secretary also knows that following this hypothetical surprise attack, the Soviets would have in reserve nuclear weapons whose aggregate destructive power exceeded that of the entire U.S. nuclear arsenal BEFORE it was

As Mr. Brown noted in his speech, the Soviets did not acquire this devastating potential overnight. And while Moscow has been building this awesome force since the early 1960s, most of the sophisticated new missiles that threaten the 1.054 Minuteman and Titan ICBMs have been produced and deployed since the 1972 SALT I agreement. The inescapable conclusion is that Soviet leaders do not see the SALT process as the stabilizing mechanism for phased disarmament so dear to the hearts of Washington's arms control advocates. In March, 1977, the Carter administration presented the Soviets with a proposal for meaningful reductions in strategic arms and restraints on heavy missiles that would have obviated Moscow's first strike potential. The Soviet leaders rejected it out of hand.

Unless the Carter administration, Secretary Brown included, can demonstrate how this approach to "arms control" enhances rather than diminishes American security, the case of SALT II will remain overwhelmingly suspect.

BERRY'S WORLD

"If Johnny Carson leaves, what are we goin to do for double meanings?"

Those nighttime sparklers that hang up in the heavens and twinkle are the real superstars.

Do they hold our fate? Don't ask me, but surely they do more than just twinkle — and maybe spark romance.

I don't know why I struggled so hard to remove the bright red bath towel from the bottom of the neat stack one morning this week. Come to think of it, the towel has seen better days. But it attracted me, somehow. After the sudsing, I opened the closet doors to

Before leaving for work. I stopped to admire a tiny red rosebud in the garden. Low on candy, I made a quick stop at the con-

It was then and there that I knew this was going to be one of those days - not a red-letter day - but an errie, weird one. Some of the events that followed are incredible. I keep a daily priority list, including several business phone calls that have to be made.

Among the names I had listed to call were Minnie, Vivian and Anne, in that order. Just about the time I went to take the phone from its cradle to call Minnie Strickland, re a 50th wedding anniversary, her daughter, Frances Kemp, came into the office, for the first time - on another mission. And Frances came through with the information I needed.

Now to call Vivian Buck about another award she had won. The phone rang to interrupt my call. "Doris, this is Vivian," the caller said. But it was a teacher, Vivian Bowden. And incidentally the above-mentioned Frances was at one time a Bowden. Now to get through to Anne Gehman. There goes that phone again. This time it was a long distance call from Tennessee. A former Sanfordite had been trying to reach Psychic Anne Gehman to concentrate on the location of a friend's body who had drowned in a river.

"Will you concentrate on the location?" he sobbed incoherently.

Now, where was I? Oh, yeah.

Oh, dear, the phone again. This time the call came from Pennsylvania. A woman wanted to know about an obituary that appeared in The Herald in December 1978. She held on while I checked out the information.

The next call to come through was from a theatrical casting director in Boca Raton, who was searching for a male professional dancer from the Sanford area — he thought.

I informed the caller that the only two professional male dancers from Sanford that I knew were Luis Perez and Rob Besserer. He thanked me for nothing. At this point, I left my desk to walk to the front of the building and was delighted to see Rob's father, Robert Besserer, in the advertising department. There's more - and it was only 11 a.m. The day

Today, Argentina is at peace, the terrorist threat nearly eliminated. Though Martinez de Hoz, in his U.S. talks, concentrates on economics, he does not shy from discussion of the human rights issue. He points out that, in the rocess of bringing stability to a terrorized nation of 25 million, a small number (and nowhere near the estimates U.S. critics claim) were caught in the crossfire, among them a few innocents. Today, the number of people detained for suspicion of terrorist links is steadily declining and it is fair to point out that enraged U.S. accounts of alleged human rights violations are almost always based on third-party claims,

Recently, however, there have been a number of disturbing reports of police brutality inflicted on prisoners at a precinct station - out of sight of the public and the press. The reports are disturbing because, if true, the few officers who commit these illegal acts are tarnishing the mage of a proud police force. We selected one case to investigate. Several demonstrators, including members of the Community for Creative Non-Violence were arrested last Dec. 10 while they were protesting the Interior Department's decision to close the National Visitor Center as a temporary refuge for homeless indigents. The demonstrators were hauled to the First District Substation — an old, red-brick building half a dozen blocks from the Capitol. It was there, almost in the shadow of our greatest symbol of democracy, that two demonstrators, Mitch Snyder and Ann Splaine, say they were subjected to a degree of brutality that most Americans would find believable only in the torture chambers of the most repressive police vestigations into the charges. The official finding was that no unnecessary force had been used on the protesters. A department memorandum states that no eyewitnesses, police or civilian, could be found to substantiate Snyder's and Splaine's allegations. But our reporter Rochelle Sharpe interviewed nine fellow prisoners who said they witnessed the rough treatment. They claimed Splaine was shoved down a flight of stairs in her wheelchair and Snyder was trampled underfoot like a

"But I asked her to give us 10 minutes," recalls Ms. Kober. "Well, by the end of the reading period, she was so engrossed in her reading that the appointment was put off a few minutes more until she finished. "Afterwards, she was so enthusiastic about the program. She said everyone should do it." Eventually it may turn out that way if Robert Seminack has any say in the matter. As reading coordinator for the township's secondary schools, Seminack is the force behind the school's adoption of SSR, a concept that has been around since

"The program has been used in various ways during those 18 years," Seminack explains, "and its implementation always has been followed by astounding results." For one, people who never had time for or interest in reading suddenly find themselves absorbed in all sorts of printed

Some students say they love to read history; others turn to fiction. Maintenance people have been reading manuals on new equipment, and teachers such as Steve Pollack of the physical education department read material pertinent to their field.

No Questions, No Answers And No Outbursts

"Most of the time, I've been reading health journals and supplementary health books to enhance my knowledge," says Pollack. "I think it's great because it gives me the extra time I couldn't find before." The reason for this lack of time. Seminack says, is that too many people never develop good reading habits. "That's why it's so great seeing students who, if given a list of activities to choose from would choose reading last, with their noses buried in books," he says. For SSR to succeed, students must be provided with good role models, says Seminack. That's why adults have been roped into the program. "All studies done in this area indicate that a teacher's attitude during the SSR period is important," he explains. "If the teacher sits and watches the class to make sure everyone is reading, there will be problems. But if the teacher reads, this positive role modeling will have a positive effect on the students."

In the long run, administrators hope the program will bring about several kinds of improvement - from reading scores to grades. Their theory is that more reading and better reading skills go hand in hand. They also think SSR can enlarge attention spans that studies suggest have been shortened by television and its eight-to 10-minute intervals between commercials. "Granted, one-half hour a week isn't going to work miracles," Seminack concedes. "But it may plant enough of a seed so that those who normally wouldn't read will begin reading on their own." Already the effects of the program are being felt.

Due to their schedule, cafeteria workers are the only group in the school excused from SSR. Though they have expressed a desire to participate in the program, time and perishable foods do not permit it. But that has not prevented one worker from SSRing on her own.

Lois Willard was cashiering a long line of adolescent lunchers as she explained her envy for people who can take time to read during the day. "But just because they can do it here and I can't doesn't stop me from doing it on my

Need Library Outreach

We seniors have a right to expect — and demand - more imaginative services from our public libraries. If we can't get to the books, the books must come to us. That means outreach. It means closer contact between libraries and senior clubs and centers. It means that librarians should do more of their work outside the Churches, synagogues, offices of the aging and senior volunteers (40 million of them across the country) will lend a hand.

Library services for the aging began back in 1941 at the Cleveland Public 11 By 1946, the library had pioneered program known as the "Live Long and "Like It Library Club." Its success proved that public libraries can be helpful to

In many areas, library outreach workers — sometimes with the help of trained volunteers — already locate lonely and isolated older citizens and bring them back into the mainstream of life. They assess the reading, educational and social needs of these people and rescribe accordingly. They may refer bem to welfare and social services for the aged. Or they may introduce them to senior clubs and centers.

In the process, they spread more than ulture. They spread love and kindness. In Milwaukee, outreach workers go door to door to find older people and explain sonnel to outline the kinds of books and turary services to then Detroit's Operation Mainstream uses From this process would follow a better okmobiles to visit areas with large understanding between our public cuncentrations of older people. 'The Question Arises... LWV Backs Windfall Tax

The League of Women Voters supposed to be able to live on their property ports passage of a windfall profits tax and in their home without harassment, as long as they abided by the law. If they did not so abide, then all the complaining party had to do was to go before the proper authorities and get a warrant so that person or persons would be required to live within the law. It would seem to me that, if Chief Fire Inspector McClaun "knows" of illegally-stored gasoline, then he is derelict in his duty that he does not get a search warrant so he can prove such illegality on the part of the occupant of the premises on which this gasoline is

Hats Off To Denny's Boys

There are some stories which simply go beyond words, and what happened to the Denny's Boys baseball team in the Seminole Pony Baseball League is one of the most touching stories I have run across in years.

The names aren't as important as the thought. Seems halfway through the season it was learned that one of the boys on the team was overage for the Pinto League. His eighth birthday fell a few days past the deadline, and obviously someone had fouled in checking the matter out before the season started. The team decided to forfeit its chances of winning a championship and permit the youngster to stay on the team and play out the season. This decision was based simply on the fact that the parents, players and coaches felt it more important for the youngster to play, than to compete in the post-season playoffs. So next week, when the other Pinto teams launch their playoffs, Denny's Boys will be on the sidelines.

So this week when Bill's Landscaping, Winter Springs Community Church, Longwood Travelers and Casselberry launch the Pinto playoffs, Denny's Boys will be on the sidelines. But coach Chuck Champion's team will have already proven its salt. I'm the first one to admit that winning is important, in fact the goal we must strive for. But this case simply echoes the adage about winning not being everything. Denny's Boys found one of the factors more important than winning... and think, they are only Hats off, kids! You guys are champions in the truest sense of the word.

Getting Better...Not Older

Evening Herald, Sanford, Fl.

older...they are getting better. It was proven beyoud any doubt this past weekend in the annual Cancer Doubles Tournament, that life does indeed begin at 40, and that experience and guile are often more important in tennis than young legs and quick feet. In the highly successful tournament at Bayhead last weekend many of the top players from all over the area competed for top prizes. Competition was held in mens and womens doubles and most of the winners and finalists were from Sanford, and surprisingly enough most were over 40. Some might even scare the heck out of 50. In the mens doubles competition the local pair of Phil Logah and Ben Burnette reached the semi-finals before falling to the eventual winners of the tournament. Logan and Burnette played outstanding tennis throughout the tournament and appear to be one of the better pairs around. Both are over 45 and seem to get better each time out. In the other mens semi-finals, Lee Holt (age withheld upon request, but scaring 40 to death) and his partner (also very near 40) defeated local pros Doug Maliczowski and Rick McMurry. The scores were 6-7, 7-5, 6-3. In one of the longest and most competitive matches of the tournament, it seemed to be a toss up as to who would win, the players or the heat. Holt and Partner fell to Bucky Copeland (Orlando's player of the year) and his brother Kevin Copeland, (headed for S.C.C.), in the finals by the score of 6-2, 6-3. In the women's final Betty Reagan and Virginia Reynolds defeated Henninger and Tessier 6-2, 6-4. Betty is from Lake Mary and has been one of the outstanding players in the area for years, many, many years. Betty is at least 10 years older than she looks, which is about 30. Other results included: Womens First Round consolation- Petrino and Hanna (just

Charlie Miller indicates recent Lake Howell signee Dean Westbrook could be the sleeper on his team next year ... Latest Southern League statistics reveal Sanford's Tim Raines is second in the league in stolen bases, his 22 for Memphis just two behind leader Steve Greene of Charlotte. Raines is also third in runs scored:

The Seminole Soccer Club is seeking a field. A 10acre tract of land is needed. Brian Young, at 834-5399, is taking calls. The club will lease property is it has to ... Ralph Simas of Sanford has his name in the hat for a free trip to Scotland after scoring a hole-inone at Mayfair Country Club. The Seminole YMCA will offer a variety of summer programs, including swimming, water skiing, judo, gymnastics, junior golf and day camp. Call 862-0444 for the rundown.

And for golfers who have great games until they reach the green, they may want to consider a new concept in putters developed by Winter Park gynecologist Sam Barr. Seems the good doctor has designed a putter which abandons the straight edge striking surface. His putter has elliptical horizontal and vertical curves - which, he says, automatically corrects putting, pushing, scooping and chopping. Wonder if he has something that can get me off the Thomas, Mil and R.Jones, Sea tee without doing any of those things?

OOPS DEPARTMENT: That golf scholarship Danny Zinn signed the other day was with Valencia Community College, not Seminole CC as reported in were married June 8, at 7:30 p.m., at the Asbury United Methodist Church, Maitland. Rev. Richard Schmidt performed the candlelight, double ring ceremony. The bride is the daughter of W.C. Storer Jr. of 1119 E. Tulane Drive, Altamonte Springs, and the late Margaret H. Storer. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Gilbert W. Benton of 414 Willow Ave., Sanford.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride chose for her vows a formal gown of candlelight silk organza fashioned along the empire silhouette with a sweetheart neckline. The sleeves and bodice were enhanced with reembroidered silk venise lace appliques and seed pearls. The same lace and pearls were repeated on her chapel ength veil of illusion. She carried a cascade of white and peach roses showered with ivy and baby's breath.

Kim Storer was her sister's maid of honor. She wore a blue silest qiana gown designed with an A-line skirt and empire sleeveless yoke inserted with white lace. She carried a cascade of peach roses and mixed spring

Bridesmaids were Terri Honaker, Altamonte Springs; Connie Cooper, Longwood; Debbie Causey, Orlando; and Lisa McGrady of Bluefield, Va. Their pastel gowns were identical to the honor attendant's and their flowers were

The bridegroom's father served as best man. Groomsmen were Lloyd Wall, Buddy Stumpf and Danny Hale of Sanford, and Kenny Hall of Winter Springs. Flower girls were Amy Paugh of Parkersburg, W. Va. and Cindy Due Swisher of Longwood. Donnie Menzies of Maitland, was the ring bearer.

The reception was held in the church fellowship hall Following a wedding trip to St. Croix, Virgin Islands, the newlyweds will make their home in Longwood. The bride attends Orlando Regional Medical School of Radiologic Technology. The bridegroom is a draftsman at Acme Conveyor Co., Sanford.

the engagement of their daughter, Laura Jo, to S. Jerry Schwalm, son of Mr. and Mrs. Tom Johnson of West Palm Beach. The bride-elect, who was born in Sanford, is the granddaughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Otto Schmehl of Daytona Beach and Sanford, and the late Mr. and Mrs. L.F. Garrett of Greenville, Ga. June: Endings And Beginnings and beginnings, as are all months of the year. However, June has some interesting events, unique to this month. It is, for some, the end of school, the end of spring, the end of the first half of the year 1979, the end of life, the end of a marriage. It is also a month of beginnings — the hurricane season, married life, vacation a new life for a retiree, of plant and a time to pluck up (from school or from work), of summer, of life (of the new-

By REV. RALPH I. LUMAN Good Shepherd Lutheran Church June is a month of endings

THE BORN LOSER

DEAR HELOISE:

I decided to share this idea with those who have had trouble housebreaking male pupples: One of my friends gave up their male puppy after he learned to hike his leg, and used this knowledge on furniture and doorways indiscriminately.

(I was the friend they gave the puppy to, but they didn't

You're a puppy's best friend - and ours - fer being so thoughtful.

We did make one little addition to your idea in order to keep unpleasant odors to a minimum.

We covered the log with a wood sealer before adding the house training solution.

STICKY PROBLEM

DEAR HELOISE:

Even before the non-stick sprays, I never did have sticky casseroles because I always oiled both the dish and the lid - then the spatters wouldn't burn on.

The shortening or oil works as well as the sprays to make a non-stick surface. I've been using them for 35 years, but I like the sprays better.

Just for Kids

DEAR HELOISE:

When I have friends spending the night with me they sometimes forget to bring their toothbrushes.

So I bought about three of the brushes and took a piece of masking tape and wrapped it around the handles of the brushes.

I wrote the names of my friends on them, and that way, when they forget to bring their toothbrushes, they will have one to use. Lorri Marby

SHORT 'N' SWEET

DEAR HELOISE:

I'm 8 years old and a little bit short.

I can't reach the cabinet to mix cakes, so my daddy opened the second cabinet drawer, took a dish towel, put it on the things in the drawer so that they wouldn't get stuff on them, and let me mix the cake in the

Keturah Myers PIZZA PICK-UP

DEAR HELOISE:

If you get a craving for pizza some day but don't want a whole pizza, here is a snack that's easy to make but doesn't take long.

Take a cracker. Put a thin layer of ketchup on it. Put some grated cheese on it. Bake it on a cookie sheet at 400 degrees for three or four minutes.
