"Stag," the prospect doesn't look as inviting as it might. . . fun at first but bound to develop into dull monotony. . . imagine a full moon, waves softly lapping at the side of the boat, lullaby breezes blowing. . . on a boat full of suppressed romance. . . A toast to the ladies. "First in our hearts. . . and first in our pockets."
When Senator Andrews gave a speech in chapel the other morning he was greeted with scattered boos. . . Regardless of what a personal opinion might be it seems surprising that a speaker, speaking non-politically, should be received in that manner. . . but what I'm getting around to is, that, knowing several of those in question, the ones who unthinkingly did the boosing are really sorry it happened and will think hard next time. . .

Allies To Consider No Proposals For Peace Separately

complete break with Moscow, realizing as the newspaper Epoque declared editorially yesterday, that "it would be a terrible mistake to hand over the Russian army as a pluma to be fed to the German organizers."
Whenever military aspects of the Allies' relations with Russia are examined attention always centers on the great French military pool now established in Syria under Gen. Maxime Weygand, alongside the Turks' modern army of a half million men and the Anglo-Egyptian and Anzac expeditionary forces to the south—a total force of well over 1,000,000 men available for immediate action in the Balkans, the Black sea basin or the Caucasus.
Considerable interest was shown yesterday, therefore, in the general staff talks which continued at Beirut among French, British and Turkish officers. Dispatches from Beirut emphasized the importance of the talks as a likely prelude to even greater military cooperation of the three powers.

LONDON, Mar. 28.—(AP)—British-Russian relations, already bad, were subjected to new strain yesterday when Soviet Ambassador Maisky attempted in vain to obtain the release of two Russian freighters seized by British warships in the Far East.
Coolness between London and Moscow was not helped by the French request that Soviet Ambassador Souris be relieved of his duties in Paris, although this incident was not believed likely to cause Maisky to leave London.

In an interview with Foreign Secretary Viscount Halifax, arranged at Maisky's request on orders from Moscow, the Soviet ambassador renewed an earlier protest regarding detention by the British at Hongkong of the Russian freighters Selenga and Mayakovsky. He demanded the immediate release of both and reserved the right to claim compensation. He gave Halifax official assurances that the cargoes of both ships were only for Soviet consumption.

British warships on a combined patrol intercepted the Mayakovsky on Mar. 15 about 100 miles from Zugarus straits and took the vessel to Hongkong. The Selenga, also seized near Japan, was detained on Jan. 13 and taken to Hongkong.
The Mayakovsky was loaded with 4,000 tons of United States copper and 200 tons of molybdenite taken on board at San Pedro. The Selenga, bound from Manila to Vladivostok, carried tungsten, tin and antimony.
Lord Halifax replied to Maisky, as the British foreign office did to previous Russian protests, that British authorities still were investigating the ships and their cargoes.

It was understood that despite the continued strain on Anglo-Russian relations, Moscow is ready to let by-gone be by-gone and co-operate in an effort to improve them.
The impression prevails among foreign diplomats here that the

A Tragic Life

The name of Madeline Force Astor Dick Fiermonte, who died of a heart attack in her Palm Beach home...

At an age when most women have stopped thinking of themselves and are devoting their lives exclusively to planning their daughters' coming out parties...

Her previous marriage to a cold blooded New York banker had proved little more successful...

But thirty years ago the beautiful Madeline Force was the "blameless girl" of her generation...

On their wedding trip, they chose the newest, fastest and presumably, safest liner afloat...

One wonders how different the life of Madeline Force Astor Dick Fiermonte might have been had not tragedy so early stormed her door.

The "Unimpeachable Authority"

Yesterday Sumner Welles, President Roosevelt's "dove of peace" to the warring European nations returned to Washington and immediately held an historic hour-and-a-half conference at the White House...

After the conference was over, a presidential secretary issued a statement to the effect that neither the President, the Secretary of State, nor Sumner Welles would issue any statement whatever to the press...

The inference was obvious. There was to be no "White House spokesman" to say that the prospects for peace were dim. There was to be no "usually well informed source" to say that the war would be fought on with renewed vigor...

The anonymous informant has been misled by newspaper writers, particularly columnists, with increasing unjustifiableness in the past few years. The practice definitely should be abandoned...

On the other hand the "White House spokesman" has been abused with hardly less regularity by statesmen whose integrity and reputation should be above reproach...

In order to protect itself, the press should refuse to publish the stories of any nature whatsoever that are not backed up by a reliable source of information...

Feminine Heads To Be Graced By Flowery Coiffure

By BETTY CLARKE NEW YORK, Mar. 29.—(AP)—This season you will be dancing the South American waltz with a flower in your hair. Not since grandmother's glamour days have flowers graced feminine heads so often. To be sure, the North American belle uses diplomacy in adapting flower intrigue to her personality. Instead of an out-right mantilla, she arranges just a bit of lace from the crown of her head to low-spirited curls at her neck. But no comb showing! She is making use of the rose the way the Latins do. Not just in the evening either. Keeping to the tip-top of the head popularity, the rose goes to ward the front of the coiffure above the part with informal clothes from morning through the night. But the old Spanish custom of dropping a rose behind the left ear is complete concession to Mexican and Cuban beauties. And a touch for charm is a two of small flowers (for a single big one) at the nape of the neck to secure the chignon. Wild flowers and unusual flowers provide an exotic touch. In California, two orchids are current stars in the hair. One delicately at the side drapes leaves over the forehead and its mate at the back helps form a snappy, sophisticated cap. Even brides are partial to fresh flowers for the hair this year. One New York social register girl had baby white orchids from the crown of her head back almost in shape of a cloud. The flower craze is a headline to women of all ages this summer. Young girls are trying many different flowers. Some women often choose a single orchid, rose, gardenia or carnation. But, with fashion going on a color spree, women are more daring with flower colors. Wee blondes choose pastel colored blossoms while the brunettes experiment with very gay colors. Lura de Gez, a New York hair stylist, says if you don't wear a flower, you ought to wear a ribbon morning, noon and night, or let your hair be ornament for your hat. With the crownless hats she brings hair high through the top, draping it like a plume. For skull caps, she styles the hair in winged design (fluffy for dress and sculptured curls for tailored wear). Baby-type lace hats take on special interest with gay-90's curled bangs. In any event, you will want a nice hair-line to show two or three

Tans Of Florida, California Are Found About Same

WASHINGTON, Mar. 29.—(AP)—Jim Morgan, the nation's one-man traveling laboratory for the discovery of useless information, last night announced the results of his greatest experiment, which produces the better tan, the sun in California or the sun in Florida? Morgan decided it was a draw, and this is the way he tells the story. "One day last winter Fred Waring, (the orchestra leader), Paul Douglas (sports commentator), and I were talking in New York about how nice it would be to be in Florida or California. "Fred said I ought to go to California for the world's best sun tan. Paul insisted that Florida about how nice it would be to be in Florida or California. "I'd try both of them. We agreed that if I decided in favor of Florida, Fred would pay my expense, and if I found California the better, Paul would pay. "I went to Miami Beach first. I started out by exposing one half of my body, the left side, to Florida sunshine for 15 minutes and then gradually worked up to an hour and a half a day. "I kept my right side covered. "Yesterday I flew back to Washington and began a scientific study of my experiment. The results, when I got them all tabulated, were amazingly inconclusive. "The fact is, it was a draw. "The Florida tans could be 20 per cent more greater than California, but the California tan was deeper and faded more slowly. "If you will want to compare a hot-air-tan man with beach-catcher tendency.

Trained At Of F. Station Get Fine Jobs

Sanford's Red Barber Is Among Successful Announcers

GAINESVILLE, Mar. 20.—(AP)—Student announcers and technicians who receive their training at the University of Florida radio station, WRUF, seem to have little worry about future employment.

Former student employees of WRUF are holding positions with broadcasting systems, radio stations, the U. S. Government and private companies all over the country. Many of them were called to jobs before graduation. Twenty of 29 former WRUF announcers are still in radio work. All of 19 former technicians are working in engineering or some related work.

Radio stations in Louisville, Cincinnati, Dallas, Richmond, Urbana, Ill., Newport News, Worcester, Mass., Birmingham, St. Petersburg, and Orlando have University of Florida alumni on their staffs.

WRUF, Louisville, employs 25 WRUF announcers, Bill Ryan, formerly of Orlando and George Walsh and James Walcott, formerly of St. Petersburg, and W. Simmons, formerly of St. Petersburg, and Dan Rice, formerly of Los Angeles, are broadcasting for WPA, Dallas. Orville Dealey, formerly of Jacksonville, is announcer at WFL, University of Illinois station.

Three WRUF-trained announcers, Walter "Red" Barber, formerly of Sanford, George P. Hines, formerly of Jacksonville, and Tom Hussey, formerly of Massachusetts, can be heard on Miami Broadcasting Company, Miami, Broadcasting Company, and Florida Network programs respectively. James L. Butsch and George Young, formerly of Jacksonville, are employed as announcers for WLW, Cincinnati.

The Federal Communications Commission has offered 10 opportunities to WRUF technicians. Four University of Florida men are now working for the FCC. Four are also employed by companies manufacturing radio and electrical equipment.

The National Broadcasting Company, the Columbia Broadcasting System and radio station WFLA, Jacksonville, have given employment to WRUF technicians. Three others are working in engineering divisions for airlines, and one is in the U. S. Army Air Corps.

Building Small Homes On Large Scale Is Goal

FHA Plans To Construct Many Homes Under $3,000 Limit

JACKSONVILLE, Mar. 20.—Large scale construction of Florida homes costing $3,000 and under, including the lot, is a major goal of the Federal Housing Administration for 1936, Mr. M. E. Parrish, FHA State Director, announced today. He said that greater emphasis is being directed toward a program to place home ownership within the grasp of families in the lower income brackets than ever before in the history of the state.

"Statistics reveal approximately fifty percent of the families in the United States have annual incomes ranging from $1,000 to $2,000," Mr. Parrish said. "And it is these families which provide a huge potential market for homes, if modern homes can be built to fit their needs and still be within the price range that would not be too great a strain upon their finances."

To meet the demands of this market the Federal Housing Administration has inaugurated this low-cost home program. Detailed study work has been made both by FHA technically trained experts and the private building industry, to determine how building costs for this type of home could be reduced without sacrificing structural strength and durability of the completed home. Every possible precaution has been taken to give the home-buyer the same sound investment under the FHA Better Housing Program.

"This detailed study of low-cost housing needs and of the technical side of home building has resulted in the liberalization of minimum construction requirements and property standards for homes costing $3,000 or less, including the lot, under our Title II program. The Chase 2 loan plan under Title I of the National Housing Act also has been broadened to help fulfill some of the requirements of the program. But both the minimum construction requirements and property standards are the same for either loan plan."

"The average cost of more than 4,000 homes built in Florida under the FHA Better Housing Program during 1935, was approximately $4,330. With a considerable number of these homes costing $5,000 or $6,000, or even more, there was a corresponding proportion with a valuation considerably lower than the average. But until now there has been no definite program in this state to assist in those families of Florida families with limited resources who cannot afford to invest more than $3,000 in a home—and even this $3,000 investment must be spread over a long term—but who are just as deserving of modern and comfortable homes as those in the higher income brackets."

"These families in the lower income brackets can acquire their own homes on the liberal FHA terms of 10 percent of the total cost as a down payment and the balance financed with an FHA insured first mortgage bearing 1-1/2 percent interest, plus one-half percent FHA mortgage insurance fee. This mortgage can be paid off over a period of as much as 25 years in small monthly payments which in most instances are less than the rent would be for a similar dwelling. These monthly installments also include one-twelfth the annual cost for taxes and fire and other hazard insurances so there are no large lump sum payments to meet either semi-annually or annually to place a financial burden on the home-owner."

WASHINGTON'S IRON

LOS ANGELES, Mar. 20.—(AP)—These lace cuffs and collar that show up so strikingly in George Washington's portrait are supposed to have been pressed with a small iron now owned by Miss Mayna Stone of Pacific Palisades. It cost $200, her father's possession in 1840 and as a child she used it surreptitiously to press her father's clothes.

Seminoles' Ability Is Found Greater Than Other Tribes

MIAMI, Mar. 20.—Deaconess Horriet M. Bedell, who has for the past 14 years taught, lived and worked among the Indians of North America, has found that Florida's Seminoles possess greater innate ability than other tribes on the continent.

Deaconess Bedell, who conducts her mission under the auspices of the National Episcopal Council and the South Florida Episcopal diocese, visited Miami this week and exhibited several pieces of Indian art at the Daughters of American Revolution convention at the Miami-Biltmore.

In her collection was a wide range of articles, including dug-out, such as the Indians use to pole themselves through the narrow waterways of the "Glades," carved from Cypress, and other more common articles, such as spoons and salad forks, also deftly carved from Cypress.

Deaconess Bedell is highly enthusiastic over her copper-colored charges, the Seminoles, with whom she has been living for the years for WLW, Cincinnati.

WHAT DO YOU MEAN
"MODERN"?

WHY is an all-electric kitchen
"modern"?

Because an all-electric kitchen
