Clinton's life threatened

WASHINGTON — A Montana man was arrested in a Washington suburb after someone called 911 and said "demons" had instructed him to kill President Clinton and then commit suicide, the Secret Service said.

David Craig Davis, 33 of Great Falls, Mont., was unharmed when he was arrested in Arlington, Va., Saturday, said Special Agent Gayle Moore.

Davis was to be arraigned today in U.S. District Court on a felony count of threatening the president, Moore said.

Moore said Davis arrived in Arlington on Saturday and was arrested later that day.

Two tickets split jackpot

TALLAHASSEE — The owners of tickets sold in Fort Walton Beach and in South Daytona will split a Florida Lotto jackpot fattened to $20 million by a holiday promotion and a rollover.

The two tickets were the only ones sold that had all six of the numbers drawn late Saturday in the weekly game. The numbers were 6, 12, 27, 30, 36, 41.

The drawing also produced 287 five-of-six winners worth $1,653 each, 19,080 four-of-six tickets worth $59.50 each, and 327,965 three-of-six tickets worth $4.50 each.

Army soldiers play elves

FORT RILEY, Kan. — Thousands of miles from their North Pole headquarters, Santa's little helpers are getting a hand from elves in combat boots.

"If there were a real Santa's workshop, this would be it," said 1st Lt. Dan Nabors, head of Operation Santa Claus for the Army's 34th Engineer Battalion.

In a back room of a building at Fort Riley, soldiers clean and dress dolls, put toys through fun tests and work on bikes.

We take a part from this, a part from that and build new bikes and toys for kids who otherwise might not get a toy at Christmas, Nabors said.

Last year, Operation Santa Claus delivered more than 29,000 new and used toys to more than 4,000 children at the fort and in the area. This year, even more families ask for help because of the summer flooding.

The 34th Battalion unit is being deactivated, but the 70th Engineer Battalion has already committed to taking over Operation Santa Claus for next year.

Old Sanford Regulations

Many Duany plans stricken; hearing tonight

By NICK PFEIFAUF
Herald Staff Writer

SANFORD — After two years of discussion, and several months of government workshop discussions, the Old Sanford Regulations are scheduled to come up for formal action tonight.

The Sanford City Commission has placed the public hearing and first reading of the regulations on the agenda for tonight's commission meeting.

The regulations are based on the suggestions advanced by Andres Duany two years ago. They are intended to establish guidelines for the preservation of the city's historic districts.

Since first presented, many of the Duany suggestions have been stricken from the proposals. The city staff has determined that many of them either do not pertain to the actual preservation of the historic district. Rather, they call for changes in building codes which are either already enacted, or will be required at a later time.

The fine-tuning was the result of a lengthy study by the Historic Preservation Board. The City Commission worked extensively on the proposals during an extended workshop on Nov. 22.

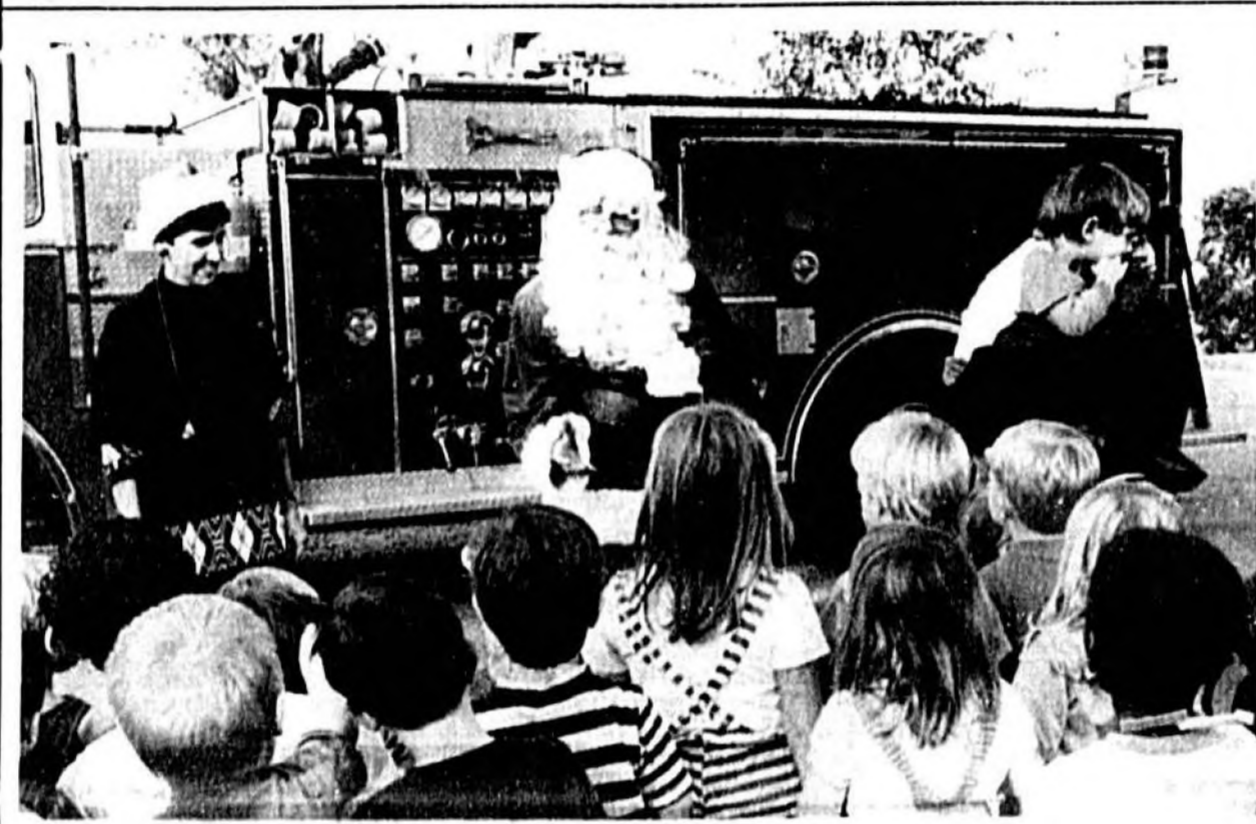

The city's Planning and Zoning Commission reviewed the plans and recommended their approval during a meeting on Dec. 2.

The Director of Planning and Development as well as the city manager have also recommended the regulations be adopted.

In addition to setting forth specific requirements for historic restoration, the document also allows for appeals. With decisions on specific restoration projects to be left in the hands of the Historic Preservation Board, any denial of a request may be taken up before the City Commission.

Soap Box Rally

Derby enthusiasts gather this weekend

By NICK PFEIFAUF
Herald Staff Writer

SANFORD — Soap Box racing enthusiasts from various parts of the nation will be gathering in Sanford next weekend. They plan to participate in what is considered as the First Annual Holiday Soap Box Rally.

"Now that we have our new Derby Park," said Parks and Recreation Director Mike Kirby, "we'll be holding this event every December. In addition to the regular Soap Box Derby events in July."

The July races are prelude to the All American

Soap Box Derby races which will be held in Akron, Ohio on Aug. 6 next year.

"These holiday races are more of a fun time," Kirby said. "But it will give derby car owners an opportunity to try out their cars and hone their driving skills."

The competition to be held on Dec. 18 and 19, at Sanford's Derby Park, is actually a National Derby Rally (NDR) with boys and girls ages eight to 21 as the participants.

The cars must be built to Soap Box Derby specifications by either the driver or another party.

County 11th graders to explore options at SCC

By VICKI DeSORMIER

SANFORD — Eleventh graders from all over the county will converge on Seminole Community College Tuesday.

No, they won't be starting their post-secondary education early, but they will be taking an opportunity to explore what direction that education might take.

"We're trying to give the kids a chance to look over their options," said Robert Lyles, a spokesman for the college.

The college has annually invited the juniors from Seminole County high schools to participate in the career exploration.

Employers from around the county, the region and the nation will be on hand to answer questions, offer guidance and help students choose the career path that best suits their talents and their interests.

"It's a very good opportunity for the students and the businesses to get to know a little about each other," Lyles noted.

While most of the students who will attend the function have settled on, at least, a career category, most are still working out the details about which classes would best prepare them for employment in that field.

"I think this is a very good opportunity for the juniors who are making some key decisions for their lifetimes."

Organizers of the event feel that the opportunity for the students to interact with in the field is a unique one.

"They will have the chance to ask questions, seek advice and listen to the experience of those already in the business," Lyles said.

Principals at area high schools look forward to the opportunity for their students.

"I think this is a very good opportunity for the juniors who are making some key decisions for their lifetimes," said Carlton Henley, principal of Lyman High School in Longwood. "We like to present our students with as many of these opportunities as we can."

Amtrak wreck hearing begins today

MOBILE — At least 23 witnesses were called before a federal panel to help sort out what caused Amtrak's worst disaster, a middle-of-the-night derailment into a foggy bayou that killed 47 people.

Several survivors of the wreck and the people who rescued them were to open testimony today at the National Transportation Safety Board hearing, which was expected to last three days.

The hearing was to focus on the design of Amtrak cars, track signals and warning devices, said board spokesman Ted Lopatkiewicz.

Also scheduled to testify during the week were Andrew Stabler and Willie C. Odom, pilots of the towboat Mauvilla. With Odom at the wheel, the boat was pushing barges in heavy fog when they struck a rail bridge over the Big Bayou Canot at about 2:50 a.m. on Sept. 22, board investigators said.

Three engine and two passenger cars of the coast-to-coast Sunset Limited derailed into the bayou when the seven-car train rumbled onto the damaged bridge at 72 mph. About half of the 500-foot-long bridge collapsed, the board said.

Many of those killed in the wreck were trapped in a submerged passenger car, others in a burned engine. There were 183 survivors. At least 100 people were injured.

Publix advertises workplace diversity

LAKELAND — Publix Super Markets Inc. has begun an advertising campaign aimed at polishing an image attacked by critics of its record for promoting women and minorities.

"We're going to start being more pro-active about this whole thing," spokesman Bob McDermott said.

Over the past five weeks, Publix has taken out full-page ads in Georgia and Florida newspapers featuring minority and women employees in management jobs.

The ads tell how the employees learned teamwork, patience and determination in entry-level jobs such as bagger and checkout clerk, and eventually moved into management.

They boast of a 250 percent increase in women and minorities in management posts since 1986.

Critics, including labor and black religious groups, say that's misleading.

The ads don't say the record reflects only promotions at Publix stores, not its four warehouse complexes in South Florida and Jacksonville or its headquarters and food production facilities in Lakeland.

They don't say the company won't publicly disclose how many store managers are members of minority groups, even though it disputes critics' estimates.

Two missing after boat capsizes

MIAMI — Two fishermen are safe, but two others are still missing after what began as a carefree fishing trip among buddies off the Florida coast turned tragic when the boat sunk in heavy seas.

The men hadn't listened to weather reports, had no radio on board and hadn't told friends and family when they would return. Furthermore, they weren't wearing life jackets.

Pounded by seven-foot waves Saturday night and whipped by 20-knot winds, the four fishermen hung on desperately to the crudest of rafts: a couple of foam ice chests held together with a jacket and life preserver which floated to the ocean after the 19-foot bow rider boat went down.

For 12 hours Jeff Williams, of Coral Springs, and Chris Price, of Margate, clung to an ice chest about 500 miles east of Miami before being rescued Sunday. Their friends Calvin Hudson, 42, of Miami, and Melvin "Bobby" McCutler, 42, of Margate, were lost.

Williams, 39, and Price, 26, were saved by boatman John Jones, who heard their feeble cries for help and saw two heads bobbing next to the red and blue ice chest.

"We stayed together for quite some time," Price said. "We were trying to swim in toward the shore. The current was very strong. Everyone was very fatigued."

At least a couple of cruise ships passed by without noticing the foursome. Finally, the two who disappeared grew too tired to hold on to the ice chests, and despite efforts of their friends to hold on to them, disappeared into the ocean.

Employee arrested in bribery scheme

ORLANDO — A Hughes Aircraft employee was arrested at Orlando International Airport as part of an investigation into a missile contract bribery scheme.

Rock A. Lee, 38, a program manager for the Tomahawk Cruise Missile Maintenance Facility at Hughes/General Dynamics in San Diego, was arrested Friday by agents from the FBI and the Naval Investigative Service after a three-week probe.

Lee, who played professional basketball in 1981-82 with the San Diego Clippers, was accused of flying to Orlando to pick up $50,000 in exchange for confidential bidding information involving the Tomahawk cruise missile. He was accused of passing the information to an intermediary and later a McDonnell Douglas employee in Titusville who contacted authorities.

Insurance rights

Lawmakers asked to notify injured of insurance services

By Associated Press

BRADENTON — Since Florida requires motorists to pay for medical insurance, some lawmakers say they'll push a proposal to force insurers to tell customers the services they're required to provide.

Bradenton activist Paula Littwin proposes a policyholders' "Bill of Rights" advising that insurance companies must pay promptly if policyholders are injured — and pay interest if payments are delayed.

The state Department of Insurance probably will support such a bill in the 1994 legislative session, if costs to the department aren't prohibitive, spokeswoman Jill Cham-berlain said.

State Rep. Shirley Brown, D-Sarasota, told The Tampa Tribune for a story Sunday she will introduce Littwin's proposed bill with Reps. Mark Ogles, R-Bradenton, and Julie McClure, D-Bradenton.

Littwin, 64, said her crusade began seven years ago when an auto accident damaged her spine and her medical claims were lost, misplaced and ignored. She said she is still disabled and in constant pain.

Insurance companies that "deny, delay and ignore" claims for as long as possible are the rule rather than the exception, Littwin claimed. "They must want to earn interest on their money for as long as they possibly can."

Her bill would force companies, within two days of being notified of an accident, to advise injured customers of rights they have under Florida law.

Those include payment of 80 percent of all medical expenses, 60 percent of lost wages and the cost of household services made necessary by the accident — such as child care, transportation and housekeeping — and a $5,000 death benefit.

If payment is delayed longer than 30 days after a claim is submitted, 10 percent interest must be paid, but it must be specifically requested.

The three lawmakers backing the proposal say it has a good chance of passing, though it was voted down in the waning hours of the 1993 legislative session.

Insurance Commissioner Tom Gallagher estimated it would cost his department more than $8 million to enforce and cost insurance companies nearly $8 million to implement.

Staff directors influence over spending

By Associated Press

TALLAHASSEE — Staff budget directors in the House, Senate and governor's office often have more to say than better-known elected officials about Florida's $35 billion in state spending.

Lawmakers frequently defer to Senate Appropriations staff director John Andrew Smith, House Appropriations staff director Peter Mitchell and David Coburn, the governor's budget director, on budget technicalities.

And the three make key declarations about which programs get highlighted during budget debates and which get buried.

"Their decision-making power over what issue of yours gets listed or dropped is total," Amy Baker, Senate Republican analyst, said.

The three are longtime friends who have six decades of state budget experience between them and make salaries ranging from $90,000 to $102,000.

After legislators go home, the three men and their staffs oversee millions of dollars of budget amendments submitted by state agencies.

The agency amendments sometimes move money out of accounts such as subsidies for food and medical supplies and into operating accounts that pay for agency expenses and office equipment.

"It has always bothered me that we sit down and deliberate and have arguments over $1 million issues, and then we go home and there are multimillion-dollar movements made without us knowing it," said Rep. Jim King, R-Jacksonville, a member of the House Appropriations Committee.

The staff directors say their influence is overstated. "The committee decides the subjective issues, and we simply make the sterile calculations," said Mitchell.

But senior staffers clearly play a major role in the issue of budget reform.

Smith, for example, has criticized proposals to create more program and performance information in the budget, saying decision-makers wouldn't pay much attention to it.

Attempted murder charged

Curtis Eugene Campbell, 44, 1713 W. 14th St., Sanford was arrested by Sanford Police and charged with attempted murder, shooting into an occupied building, possession of a firearm during the commission of a felony and possession of a firearm by a convicted felon.

Campbell, also known as "Soup," "Soupbone," and "Bubba" was charged with shooting Samuel Fuller on West 15th Street Dec. 9 during a foot chase. Another bullet went through a window at 1705 W. 15th St. in a building occupied at the time by three adults and four children. A woman with Campbell, Meg M. Burke, 40, was arrested at the time of the incident, but Campbell was not found. He was arrested Friday.

No key leads to arrest

Fredrick Devon Beasley, 18, 18 Olive Ave., Sanford was charged with resisting arrest without violence by a sheriff's deputy Friday. The officer saw Beasley trying to gain entry to the house at 18 Olive Avenue through a side window. Beasley told the officer he lived at the address with an aunt. Beasley had no identification and the aunt could not be reached. The officer asked Beasley if he had any drugs or weapons on his person. The youth said he did not and agreed to a search. When a handgun was found concealed in Beasley's pants, the youth fled on foot attempting to elude the officer but was apprehended nearby, according to the arrest report.

Gambling charged

Two Sanford men were charged with gambling Friday after agents of the Sanford Police Special Investigation Unit checked a store parking lot on 13th Street where a group of males were allegedly gambling.

Lucius Bradley, Jr., 21, 21 Castle Brewer Court and Larry D. Jarrells, 37, 1023 W. 12th St. were each charged with gambling. The men were observed shooting dice and fled on foot when the agents approached, according to the arrest report.

Bradley was caught after running several blocks and jumping over fences. He was also charged with resisting arrest without violence.

Jarrells was apprehended in the alley between 12th and 13th Street. He was also charged with possession of cannabis.

Grand theft auto charged

Lake Mary Police arrested Kenneth Everett Matthews, 24, 334 S. County Club Road for grand theft of an automobile Friday. A woman claimed Matthews forcibly took the keys to her car and took the car without permission while she was at a bar.

While police were investigating an automobile accident in the area of Hidden Lake Drive and Laurel Court, in which a car hit a tree, another officer advised he had taken a stolen car report from the woman. Matthews was arrested at a pub on Crystal Avenue. The woman identified her car as the vehicle in the accident.

Grand theft

David Phillip Mahoney, 19, 222 E. Lake Mary Blvd. was charged with grand theft when two Susan B. Anthony silver dollars were found in his personal property at the John E. Polk Correctional Facility. He was at the jail on another charge. Sanford Police arrested Mahoney for grand theft when the silver dollars were identified from a Dec. 5 burglary at Rosecliff Apartments.

Battery, domestic violence

Albert Wesley Teeboby, 45, 220 Springside Road, Longwood was charged with domestic violence battery after his girlfriend claimed he threw her to the floor, up against a wall and punched her. He told a sheriff's deputy she hit him and he hit her back.

Petit theft

Tamera Shemise Littles, also known as Erica Racheal Barfield, 1521 Mangoustine Ave., Sanford was arrested for shoplifting at the Altamonte Mall Friday. A department store security guard stopped Littles after she exited the store with out paying for merchandise concealed on her person. She was arrested by Altamonte Springs Police.

Downtown street fight

Sanford police arrested Glen Allen Cox, 30, of 115 French Avenue, following a reported fight in the street, in the 200 block of W. First Street in downtown Sanford. Cox was charged with aggravated assault.

Officer mooned

Kenneth Frederick Brady, 37, of 2445 Sanford Avenue, was arrested by Sanford police Thursday at a restaurant in the 3700 block of Orlando Drive. A police officer, in the restaurant for a meal, reported seeing Brady drop his trousers and expose himself inside the restaurant, in full view of the customers. Brady was charged with exposure of sexual organs.

Domestic violence arrests

Merita Eva Knight, 26, 808 Bay Avenue, Sanford, was arrested by Sanford police at her residence Thursday following a dispute with her mother. Police said when they attempted to place her under arrest, she refused, went into the house, undressed, and began taking a bath.

After officers removed her from the tub, she was charged with resisting arrest without violence, and assault, domestic violence.

Incidents reported to the sheriff

A blue and white 1979 Cadillac, license number LZE-69L was reportedly stolen Thursday from the Church Street and Midway Avenue area.

A 32 caliber handgun was said to have been taken during a residential burglary Wednesday at a home in the 3400 block of Second Avenue in Midway.

A Sanford man reported he had parked a homemade utility trailer on S.R. 48 near Hickman Drive Thursday due to mechanical problems. He said when he returned, the trailer, containing approximately $6,100 in lawn equipment, had been taken.

A booth at Flea World, 4259 highway 17-92, was reportedly burglarized early Friday morning. A security guard reported seeing two men fleeing from the area, and managed to retrieve some of the items they reportedly were trying to take. The items included 13 guitars, 3 amplifiers and related equipment with a total value of approximately $7,025.

Incidents reported to Sanford police

A pager, valued at $150 was reportedly stolen from a car parked at a convenience store in the 1500 block of W. 13th Street Thursday.

A 1987 Buick, license number FDQ-44Y was reportedly stolen Thursday from a parking lot near the Sanford Chamber of Commerce building at 400 W. First Street in Sanford.

An unoccupied building was reported burglarized Thursday in the 2100 block of W. 16th Street. A number of items was reported missing, but no listing was made.

A burglary was reported Thursday at a residence in the 100 block of Clear Lake Circle. The woman resident said someone took her purse with $19 in cash and personal documents, from the living room.

A gas powered blower valued at $396 was reportedly stolen Thursday from a trailer parked in the 600 block of E. 9th Street in Sanford.

Tasty tid-bits

The fine food at the St. Lucia Festival warmed the cockles of many a heart this past weekend. While many are not familiar with the culinary habits of those who first settled the Sanford area, there were plenty of opportunities for the public to sample food. While Karen Chase (left) mixed and stirred a huge batch of Swedish soup at the American Pioneer Food Concession, there were some less authentic, though no less tasty, examples of fine food. Roger Craft (right) was ready for diners with his "mean" shish-ka-bobs. All in all, one could not have gone hungry at the festival on Saturday and Sunday.

Keepin' them safe

Heather Fulghum enjoyed some of the fun activities at the St. Lucia Festival this past weekend, but she also took some time out for the more serious business of being fingerprinted for safety's sake by the Sanford Police Explorers.

Wildlife worker stable after mauling by lion

By Associated Press

WEST PALM BEACH — A worker at a wildlife park underwent extensive surgery after a lion attacked her, tearing multiple gashes in her head, neck and body, park officials said.

Katrina Dillon, 27, of Loxahatchee, was in critical but stable condition early today at the intensive care unit of St. Mary's Hospital after the attack, a hospital nurse said.

The attack occurred at Lion Country Safari, a park which has had animals attack workers in the past. A 450-pound lion, Helmut, apparently was able to push open a steel door into a holding area and attack Dillon, the park's general manager Robert Holcomb.

A steel rod used to secure the door apparently was not in place, but Dillon, despite being severely wounded, was able to lock herself in the cage to get away from the lion, he said. It was unclear how long she remained locked away from the animal before she was discovered by a co-worker.

"Our employees are trained thoroughly, but when you work with animals the unexpected can happen," park spokesman Sydney Smith said. "They take every precaution to protect themselves."

Dillon, who had worked at the park for 18 months, suffered a severed jugular vein and two collapsed lungs as a result of severe bites from the lion, said hospital spokesman David Feng.

The vein was repaired Sunday in emergency surgery, in which Dillon received five pints of blood, he said.

Big thanks to organizers of St. Lucia event

Even well laid plans can go awry from time to time. Fortunately for the people of Central Florida, this past weekend's St. Lucia Festival and parade in Sanford had very few flaws.

Each of the events was well executed. The only loss was the lack of participation in the planned parade of decorated boats, which caused a cancellation of that event.

Certainly, the festival could have been better. Nothing is ever perfect. There are always people who have complaints. These however, are generally the same ones who refuse to help, even if asked to do so.

But for the people who came to the downtown area to take part in the various festivities, and stand along the lakefront for the parade, it was the best ever.

A list of names of people who played a part in this success would be lengthy. Many have helped stage the event for many years. Some look part for the first time.

All of them deserve the appreciation of not only the people who attended the festival, but the entire business and residential community of Sanford.

By combining the holiday spirit through Santa Claus's participation; with the historic element of St. Lucia and the city's origin, this event provides enjoyment for young and old alike.

For newcomers, who for the first time, became aware of the St. Lucia connection with Sanford, we suggest going to the Seminole County Public Library for more background material on the city.

For persons who may have suggestions on how to make this excellent event even better for next year, we urge you to contact the First Street Gallery, which serves as the St. Lucia Headquarters. Give them ideas, and volunteer to help next year.

Our hats are off to everyone who planned for, participated in, and enjoyed the 1993 St. Lucia Festival. You did a great job in helping provide the people of Sanford and Central Florida with an excellent holiday event.

On crime problem

Governor Chiles recently announced that the State of Florida would spend $8.7 million to build two boot camps for juvenile criminals. This is a good idea and, unfortunately, a necessary expenditure. At the same time, the Florida Council on Economic Education is mandated by the Florida State Legislature to help teach the free enterprise system to students in kindergarten through the 12th grade. The majority of the funding comes from private donations, with the state contributing $250,000.

One of the Council's programs is to involve students in the Stock Market Game. This game requires students to read newspapers, listen to TV news, understand economics and the political system. Math teachers are enthusiastic about the game because it teaches students to understand fractions, multiplication tables and ratios. Last year over 100,000 students in 43 Florida counties participated in the game.

The Stock Market Game is the type of program that can help prevent crime. It teaches many who come from economically disadvantaged families that the system does work and that there is opportunity for all. It teaches that everyone has a chance to be part of the system. We all know that if you own something you are less likely to destroy it. Unless the criminal cycle is broken, starting with our youth, the crime rate will continue to increase. Even in the youth boot camps it makes sense to have a program like the Stock Market Game teach the inmates that there is another way.

If we had all the money in the world, we could afford both prevention and rehabilitation, but we don't and we can't. The percentage of criminals rehabilitated is extremely low. Most inmates come out of prison with a Ph.D. in crime. My suggestion is that we invest the vast majority of our money at the front end, in education, in health care, and in job training to break the criminal cycle. $8.7 million for two prison camps to lock up juvenile offenders, compared with $250,000 to help teach 100,000 young people a better way is a pretty convincing argument. You choose.

America's own Devil's Island

In 1974, Federal District Judge Frank Johnson was about to investigate Alabama's prison system. He set forth the criterion by which he would evaluate the conditions of imprisonment:

"Where conditions within a prison are such that the inmates... will inevitably and necessarily become more sociopathic — and less able to adapt to conventional society as the result of their incarceration than they were prior thereto — cruel and unusual punishment is inflicted."

After much testimony, Johnson decided that the Eighth Amendment had indeed been violated in Alabama. Recently, in San Francisco, Chief Judge Thelton Henderson of the federal Northern District of California has been presiding over a trial to determine whether inmates of Pelican Bay state prison have had their Eighth Amendment rights demolished.

It is claimed that some inmates are made much worse, and therefore more dangerous, by what is done to them in Pelican Bay. And the class action suit also charges unwarranted excessive force, deliberate indifference to the prisoners' serious medical needs, and other regular appalling abuses.

Located in the most remote corner of northern California, this supermaximum prison is the jewel of California's system and has had admiring visitors from correction officials in other states and abroad. (The Senate crime bill provides for more such high-tech prisons.) Most of the insistent controversy about Pelican Bay concerns a prison within the prison — the Security Housing Unit (the SHU). It has 1,200 to 1,500 prisoners at various times who are locked in their cells 22 1/2 hours a day, and never see direct sunlight or, for the most part, other inmates. They have to learn to deal with cumulative sensory deprivation over a period of years.

The story of Pelican Bay — America's Devil's Island — is finally getting some national attention. Kathy Slobogin brought light to its "high-tech dungeons on CNN; and in August, Lowell Berman produced for "60 Minutes" the most sharply focused look yet at an approach to penology that, in another country, would merit a scathing international human rights report.

It is claimed that some inmates are made much worse, and therefore more dangerous, by what is done to them in Pelican Bay.

Dr. Stuart Grassian, a professor of psychiatry at Harvard Medical School, is an expert on the effects of isolation and solitary confinement. Having interviewed scores of inmates in the SHU, he told Mike Wallace on "60 Minutes" that "over a third are psychotic. We're talking about people who have acute emergent psychiatric needs, who should be in a hospital and should be seen on an hourly or every two-hour basis.

"The California Department of Corrections tries to create the impression that they're dealing with the incorrigibles," Dr. Grassian continued. "What they're often dealing with is the wretched of the earth, people who are mentally retarded, mentally ill... one of the really tragic parts of this is that there are treatments for these kinds of conditions... but instead, their behavior is viewed as criminal behavior to be punished. They get punished, and they get sicker. They become more violent and more out of control."

National heroes' long struggles

"But patience, cousin, and shuffle the cards, till our hand is the stronger one" — Sir Walter Scott, "Quentin Durward."

To hear the critics talk, we Americans are an impatient bunch. We take the ax to the wilderness and bulldozers to slums and expect Utopia to arise from the stumps and rubble. When it doesn't, we are more disappointed than we should be and, too often, walk away from the unfinished work and toward more promising projects. According to the conventional wisdom, ours is a short-term society in which six months is the far horizon and one year is eternity.

There is more than a little truth in the indictment, but more than a little exaggeration as well. On one recent White House afternoon two presidential ceremonies reminded me that if some Americans expect instant gratification, others are capable of long campaigns against heavy odds.

The first reminder came when the president signed the so-called Brady bill, mandating a five-day waiting period for the purchase of handguns. Its seven-year road to passage was as rocky as it was lengthy. On more than one occasion, it appeared doomed by the tenacious opposition of the National Rifle Association.

But its backers simply would not give up. Jim Brady, President Reagan's former press secretary who was crippled by a would-be presidential assassin in 1981, and his wife, Sarah, carried their campaign from one end of the nation to the next. With each setback, they redoubled their efforts, playing point in an effort that wouldn't take no for an answer. Eventually the politicians caught up with an electorate terrorized by street crime and fed up with gun violence.

"How sweet it is, how long it took," Jim Brady said after Clinton made it official. The law will bring "the end of unchecked madness and the commencement of a heartfelt crusade for a safer and a saner country."

Over-optimistic? Definitely, but the Bradys are entitled. They have already proved that perseverance pays. It's a lesson that has to be relearned over and over again, but happily for us all, history is stuffed in the rafters with evidence on its behalf.

So was the East Room of the White House on that same late November afternoon when the president awarded five Presidential Medals of Freedom, two of them posthumously. One went to the late Supreme Court Justice Thurgood Marshall, legal architect of segregation's downfall and first black American on the high court. Another went to Washington-based attorney Joseph Rauh, who until his recent death was one of the best-known and most passionate fighters for equal rights and economic justice in America.

Both were great men whose greatness was hard-earned. They pushed the rock of change up the hill repeatedly, only to see it roll back almost as often. Even when each eventually reached the top of a particular rise, no one had to explain to either man that the heights they newly commanded were plateaus rather than final destinations. Each kept pushing on until the day he died.

Marjorie Stoneman Douglas, "Grandmother of the Glades," and retired Supreme Court Justice William Brennan rose from their wheelchairs to receive their medals from the president. Ms. Douglas is 103. She has spent most of those years battling to protect "the fragile ecosystem of the Florida Everglades" and to advance the cause of equal rights, as her citation noted. She has spent two lifetimes proving that a woman's place may be in the home, but that home is the world itself.

Justice Brennan's majority opinions over several decades quite simply redrew the nation's political and social landscape. When he was no longer in the court majority, he refused to give up, passionately reasserting the primacy of his convictions in one dissent after another. Some politicians' names may be better remembered, but Justice Brennan's works will endure far longer. The final recipient was John Minor Wisdom of New Orleans, former military officer and former Republican national committeeman who in nearly 40 years on the federal bench put his rare integrity and intellect in the service of far-reaching change in his native region. He knew and loved the South, loved it enough to insist that it cleanse itself of official racism and inequity, knew it well enough to know how hard the transformation would be.

Men and women cried during the Brady bill signing and men and women cried as Bill Clinton made his graceful, thoughtful way through the presentations of the Presidential Medals of Freedom. The tears were of joy and happiness, but also of remembrance about the years of failure that preceded success.

Looking at Sarah and Jim Brady, listening to the president talk about the medal winners, reflecting on the collective national consciousness they had raised and the institutions they had helped redeem, I wished that every American would have been present.

To hear the critics talk, we Americans are an impatient bunch.

Companies cash in on outdated law

WASHINGTON — Sen. Larry E. Craig, R-Idaho, styles himself a rugged Westerner who believes in less government, a balanced budget and welfare reform — with one exception.

Craig is championing a multibillion welfare program called the 1872 Mining Law. The 121-year-old law was passed when national policy was to encourage settlement of the West with the lure of mineral rights and free land. But now it has turned into the ultimate free lunch: Individuals and corporations can prospect on federal lands for minerals and buy the land for either $2.50 or $5 an acre without paying any royalties if they strike it rich.

The federal government has sold approximately 3.2 million acres of land — an area the size of Connecticut — at these fire-sale prices. According to the General Accounting Office, nearly 592 million acres of public land remain open to mining. Some estimate that these lands contain more than $85 billion worth of mineral reserves.

"Some of the biggest beneficiaries of the... mining program are large corporations, many of which are foreign-owned," says Rep. Mike Synar, D-Okla., who has been crusading against the government giveaways. "Each year they take billions of dollars worth of gold, silver, uranium, copper... from the public lands and don't pay one red cent of royalties to the American taxpayers."

Synar cites how the Department of Interior may transfer 2,000 acres of the Custer National Forest in Montana to the Stillwater Mining Co., which is owned by the Manville Corp. and Chevron. Stillwater would pay about $10,810 for this land in exchange for platinum and palladium deposits worth $43 billion. "The American taxpayers would get $1 dollar for every $4 million in strategic minerals extracted from these public lands," fumes Synar.

Other examples are equally egregious: — In Elko, Nev., a Canadian-owned mining company is in the process of buying 1,800 acres of land for less than $10,000. This land is home to the Goldstrike Mine, which is expected to produce $10 billion worth of gold over its lifetime. Once the government approves the purchase (the Department of Interior is stalling, and the company is suing to compel the government to approve), American Barrick Resources will be free from paying any future royalties on what it extracts. In the meantime, the firm has already mined about 1.2 million ounces of gold on the site.

— A bureaucratic blunder allowed two convicted felons to lay claim to more than 2,000 acres of pristine oceanfront property on Coos Bay in Oregon. The applicant, James Aubert, laid claim to the land on April 26, 1993, just three days before and Interior Department order would have placed the land off limits to mineral claims. He later sold mineral rights on 790 of the acres, which sit on the Oregon Dunes National Seashore, to a friend he met in an Idaho prison.

The land had been under a two-year order banning mineral claims while local authorities made long-range plans to house an industrial park there. The first ban expired March 8, and was supposed to be renewed by a five-year ban. Partly due to confusion resulting from the change in administrations, the first order expired before the second one could take effect. Embarrassed local officials ("We've been apologizing quite profusely for this one," a Bureau of Land Management spokeswoman told us) would not to let the land be sold.

Some of the biggest beneficiaries of the mining program are large corporations, many of which are foreign-owned.

The NDR race program, hosting races throughout the United States, is designed to give several opportunities to fine tune the cars and perfect driving abilities.

Norm Perry, who is heading up the event for the city Parks and Recreation Department, said, "Both the National Derby Rally and the All American Derby emphasize and promote family participation in all aspects of the program."

Kirby said cars have already signed up from Indiana, Alabama and Georgia, as well as many from all areas of Florida. "We expect up to 40 cars in the two day event," he said, "and with people wanting to come to Florida during the cooler weather up north, this could really grow to a major event."

The rally will take place from 9 a.m. until 5 p.m. each day. Kirby said trophies will be awarded to the first eight place winners on each of the days. "We'll have almost all of the cars running each day," he said, "so there will be plenty of action."

The public is encouraged to stop in for the races. There is no charge for admission, and food and drink will be available for purchasing.

Kirby said signs will be put up at the Oregon Avenue intersections on the days of the races to assist people in locating the park.

While district high schools try to provide proper guidance to their students who are selecting career paths and the appropriate avenues of post-secondary study, the opportunity to meet with those in the field is a unique one that can not effectively be provided at each school in the district.

"That's why we're bringing them all together here," Lyles said, "This is the most effective way of doing this."

The eleventh graders will be at SCC for much of the day on Tuesday, but organizers believe it will be an unparalleled educational experience.

New laws unlikely to curb availability of guns

By JAMES ROWLEY
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON — Guns are so easy for young people to obtain in crime-ridden urban neighborhoods that new laws controlling their sale probably would not reduce their availability, a Justice Department study concludes.

Twenty-two percent of 758 boys at 10 inner-city high schools reported owning guns in 1991, and 12 percent said they carried weapons routinely, according to the study by two Tulane University sociologists.

In addition, 83 percent of 835 juveniles in the same age group who were incarcerated for serious crimes at six detention centers said they owned guns at the time of their arrest.

Guns were easily available to students and inmates, either at home or "on the street," said the study released Sunday. It was based on responses from schools and detention centers in California, New Jersey, Illinois and Louisiana.

Youths in the inner-city neighborhoods also were reported to have ready access to "easy-to-shoot, accurate, reliable firearms" including high-powered revolvers and semiautomatic handguns, the report said.

Six percent of high school students said they had possessed a military-style assault weapon at the time of the survey. Among the inmates, 35 percent reported having assault weapons when they were arrested.

Even if young people did not own a firearm, 53 percent of the students surveyed and 45 percent of the inmates said they could borrow guns from family members. And 54 percent of the inmates said they could get guns on the street if they wanted one, according to the study.

Beside family members, drug dealers were seen as a major source of a firearm, the study said. Twenty-two percent of the students and 36 percent of inmates said they could get guns from drug dealers.

"Controls imposed at the point of sale likely would be ineffective, at least by themselves, in preventing the acquisition of guns by juveniles studied here because they rarely obtain their guns through such customary outlets," said the study commissioned by the Justice Department.

The report did not directly comment on the new five-day waiting period for handgun purchases that President Clinton recently signed into law. Nor did it refer specifically to other gun-control proposals, such as one floated last week by the Clinton administration to license gun owners.

But sociologists Joseph F. Sheley and James D. Wright, the report's authors, voiced skepticism that new gun-control laws would keep firearms away from criminals or youth.

"Most of the methods of obtaining guns reported by the juveniles are already against the law," the report said.

The study found a high correlation between gun possession and involvement in illegal drug trafficking with 72 percent of the juvenile inmates and 18 percent of the students reported either having dealt drugs or worked for drug dealers.

The four states were picked because they reported having problems of youth violence in inner-city schools. Thus, the results were not representative of the nation's high school population. No cities, schools or correctional facilities identified.

The study was commissioned during the Bush administration by the Justice Department's National Institute of Justice and the Office of Juvenile Justice and Delinquency Prevention.

Meanwhile, Rep. Charles Schumer, D-N.Y., a leading gun control advocate in Congress, said Sunday he expects Congress to pass strong crime legislation next year, including prohibitions against the sale of assault-like weapons.

"There's going to be a new look with regard to assault weapons," agreed Sen. Alan Simpson, R-Wyo., a gun-control critic. Both lawmakers appeared on ABC's "This Week With David Brinkley."

Sen. Dianne Feinstein, D-Calif., appearing on CBS' "Face the Nation," said new gun-control laws are so hard to get approved because gun advocates make up the strongest lobby in America.

"The strongest lobby in America isn't big business, isn't big labor, isn't big oil, it's big gun," she said, calling Americans, "particularly the women of America ... to stand up and say we've lost too many children" to gun violence.

Feinstein led the fight earlier this year for a ban on assault weapons in the crime bill that passed the Senate. She called the licensing of gun owners "a very good idea."

Court limits property forfeiture in drug cases

By LAURIE ASBEO
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON — The Supreme Court today limited a major weapon in the war on drugs, ruling that people must be given a hearing before their real property may be seized as linked to illegal drug sales.

The 5-4 ruling marked the second time in recent months that the high court has reined in the government's power to take over property it contends was involved in a drug crime.

"At stake in this and many other forfeiture cases are the security and privacy of the home and those who take shelter within it," Justice Anthony M. Kennedy wrote for the court.

"Unless exigent circumstances are present, the due process clause requires the government to afford notice and a meaningful opportunity to be heard before seizing real property subject to civil forfeiture," Kennedy said.

Last June, the court ruled that seizures of drug-related property are subject to the Constitution's 8th Amendment protection against excessive fines.

Today's decision upheld a federal appeals court ruling that said James Daniel Good of Hawaii was entitled to be notified and given a hearing before his home was seized.

However, the justices unanimously reversed another portion of the ruling that questioned whether the government waited too late to seek the forfeiture, even though it was filed within a five-year time limit set by federal law.

Courts cannot dismiss forfeiture actions filed within the five-year limit, the high court said.

County

reviewed by commissioners. Commissioners will vote to create a new taxing district for the unincorporated areas of the county to raise money for stormwater needs. County officials estimate it will cost nearly $22 million during the next five years for state- and federally-mandated drainage improvements and maintenance. The cost for the next 20 years is expected to soar over $100 million.

The county has not established a specific funding source for the program yet, despite the suggestion from staffers for more than two years. This year's spending will come largely from a cut to the reserve fund.

Although commissioners will decide whether to create the tax district during their 1:30 p.m. meeting, they won't vote on whether to adopt the tax until next summer. Most commissioners oppose the tax idea and prefer an alternative. Staff have proposed a per-lot fee, such as now used in most cities of the county, and an increase to the unincorporated utility tax. Commissioners have rejected both.

In other matters, commissioners will:

- decide whether to allow Seminole Soccer Club expand their gaming hours from weekend daylight hours to daily until dark. Area residents oppose the increased activity in their quiet neighborhood and charged the club had not complied with the county's 1982 requirements. Commissioners continued their October decision to Tuesday to allow the two sides to meet. The club has offered to install more landscaping near homes and limit league games Sunday mornings.

●decide whether to approve changes to their conditions for two local borrow pits, the Excavated Products pit near Geneva and the White Construction Co. pit south of County Road 427 and west of Sanford Avenue.

Excavated Products wants to eliminate their 1991 requirement of having an off-duty deputy to direct traffic during school hours and to extend their hours of operation. County staff recommend a approval of eliminating the deputy, but to reduce their weekday operations hours from 7 a.m. to 7 p.m. to the hours of 9 a.m. to 5 p.m.

Expressway builder White is seeking a six-month extension to their pit permit, set to expire in January. Staff have no opposition to the request.

●decide whether to vacate what has been alleged is a historic roadway which may have linked Lake Jesup commerce to Orlando. Adjacent property owner George Means asserts the Orlando Lake Jesup Road never through his citrus grove near Oviedo, but nearby resident Bill Blackburn asserts it did and points to Orange County commission records dating to 1879 which created an Orlando to Lake Jesup Road.

Means is asking the county vacate the right of way to clear his title. Blackburn wants the county to preserve it as a future lake access.

Commission during a specified time period.

The portion of the city to be included in the regulations includes almost all of the historic area. The western line runs midway between Laurel and Elm Avenues with the exception of a brief block and a half between E. 3rd and E. 1st Streets which extend to French Avenue.

With the exception of that area, the northern boundaries run along 3rd Street, from Elm Avenue to midway between Sanford and Palmetto Avenues. The line then follows the mid point between the two streets south to near 13th Street.

It then meanders back to the western side of the limits.

The first reading of the ordinance has been scheduled as the first order of business at the regular meeting of the Sanford City Commission this evening, beginning at 7 p.m., in the commission chamber of Sanford City Hall, 300 N. Park Avenue.

Goodies stores in Central Florida. Lake Mary city staff members have been asked to donate canned, dried or non-perishable food items as part of the project. They are to be dropped off at the main lobby of City Hall by no later than the morning of Dec. 15.

Later that day, the food items will be gathered together and taken to a WESH-TV collection point.

"This seems like an excellent project," said Lake Mary Police Chief Richard Beary. "All of the food obtained here in Lake Mary and other locations in Seminole County is supposed to be returned here to Scott in need right here."

Beary said the food distribution will be handled through the local Salvation Army and food banks, who are well aware of the needs of the local people.

City Manager John Litton sent a memo to all city employees on Thursday, urging them to participate in the "Share Your Christmas" community food drive.

"I would ask each of you to consider participating in an effort to help those who are not so fortunate," Litton said.

Beary added, "Many of us plan to join in on this project, but that doesn't mean just the employees can be involved. Any resident, whether or not they live within the Lake Mary city limits, can bring a non-perishable item of food to City Hall or the Public Safety complex (on Rinehart Road) and join in this drive."

Beary commented that there may be people who would like to help others, but don't know exactly what to do or how to do it. "This is one excellent way to join in the spirit of the holidays," he said. "And I know whatever we can gather for the drive here in Lake Mary will really make a difference."

The Lake Mary City Hall is located at 100 N. Country Club Road, in downtown Lake Mary.

King assassination claim labeled 'sham'

By Associated Press

MEMPHIS, Tenn. — A new claim that James Earl Ray did not murder the Rev. Martin Luther King Jr. is a "sham," a prosecutor said.

District Attorney General John Pierotti said he was asked to reopen the investigation into King's 1968 assassination but refused.

Pierotti said he was contacted by reporters throughout the country asking about claims by Memphis attorney Lewis Garrison that he represents five people who have new information about King's murder.

"I believe it is a sham and a fraud upon the public," Pierotti told The Commercial Appeal newspaper.

But Garrison defended his story Sunday, saying that truth had made his clients come forward.

"If the public wants to hear from them and know what really happened that day — great," Garrison said. "If not, I'll close my file."

A second Memphis attorney, Wayne Chastain, said he has filed a petition to open a grand jury probe into the new claims.

The Observer newspaper in London reported Sunday that Garrison said a retired Memphis millionaire businessman was paid $100,000 to hire the gunman who shot and killed the civil rights leader on April 4, 1968.

Ray pleaded guilty to the shooting and is serving a 99-year sentence at a Nashville prison. Ray reneged on his confession shortly thereafter and has been seeking a trial ever since.

Besides the businessman, the other four people represented by Garrison were described as three of the businessman's employees and a male ex-convict hired later to take care of people "who knew too much."

Pierotti said the businessman is seeking immunity from prosecution in return for the gunman's name.

Pierotti said he reviewed the claims with former District Attorney General Phil Canale and others familiar with the case before reaching the decision not to pursue them.

"We were of the unanimous opinion that someone is running a game," Pierotti said.

Lawyer: Jackson back in the USA

By Associated Press

ARLINGTON, Va. — Michael Jackson has returned to the United States and is cooperating with authorities investigating child molestation claims, his lawyer told USA Today.

In today's editions, the newspaper quoted attorney Johnnie Cochran Jr. as confirming the singer was back after halting his world tour and seeking drug-addiction treatment overseas.

Cochran declined to give details, but there were reports Jackson was in California after arriving by private jet in nearby Santa Barbara.

The New York Post quoted a U.S. Customs spokeswoman as saying Jackson cleared customs Friday afternoon in Billings, Mont., site of the smallest international airport in the country.

"There was nothing unusual about the flight," Customs spokeswoman Cherise Miles said.

Jackson's lawyers said last week that they were negotiating with authorities on the terms of Jackson's return.

Amid driving rain, gusty winds and fog Saturday, a lone security guard sat in a shack behind the gated entrance to the sprawling ranch in the Santa Ynez Mountains, about 35 miles northwest of Santa Barbara.

"There is no one here," the guard said. The ranch homes are not visible from the road.

Outside, a half dozen news media trucks camped out, reporters waiting for some sign of the star's whereabouts. Several vehicles arrived and left from the ranch, activity not unusual for Neverland.

Jackson canceled a concert tour last month for treatment at a secret location in Europe for what he said was an addiction to pain-killing medication. He said the drug problem was brought on in part by the molestation allegations.

Racial segregation spreading in school

By SONYA ROSS
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON — Racial segregation is spreading in America's public schools to a degree unseen since the 1960s, according to a study. But educators say today the quality of a class is more important than the color of a classmate.

The study by the Harvard Project on School Desegregation found that two of every three black children attended schools where blacks were more than half of the student population during the 1991-92 school term.

That's the highest percentage since 1968, when 77 percent of black students attended predominantly black schools.

"This report reflects what may be the beginning of a historic reversal," said Harvard Project director Gary Orfield. "The civil rights impulse from the 1960s is dead in the water and the ship is floating backward toward the shoals of racial segregation."

About 73 percent of Hispanic children attended minority-dominated schools in 1992, the study said. That number has increased steadily since 1988, when 54 percent of Hispanic students were enrolled in schools where blacks or Hispanics were more than half the student population.

Orfield attributed the increases to segregated housing patterns and "a huge change" in birth rates and immigration. But he discounted the flight of white students to suburban or private schools as a factor.

Public school enrollment grew 7 percent between 1984 and 1991, while private enrollment fell by 9 percent, he noted. And he said there has been a polarization in suburban as well as city schools. Fifty-eight percent of black and 64 percent of Hispanic children, who live in suburbs near large metropolitan areas attend schools that are more than 50 percent minority.

But others, including the Council of the Great City Schools, a coalition of the nation's 50 largest urban school systems, contend that white flight is a major reason for increased school segregation.

Yet educators say there is less anxiety about this segregation than there once was.

The parents of students who remain in inner-city schools "are less concerned about issues of numerical segregation than they are (about) the quality of education," said Mike Casserly, executive director of the urban school coalition.

Mary Hoover, a professor of education at Howard University, said that "black parents are not as adamant as they were in years past to make sure schools were desegregated." She cited a thrust among black parents for Afrocentric education with lessons oriented toward black history and culture.

"Recent research says people can learn wherever they are," she said. "Though we certainly support desegregation, this research, coupled with the new Afrocentric emphasis, says children might be better off in schools that are not integrated."

Orfield, meanwhile, maintained that integration is important because it gives children contact with people of other races and cultures. He urged that the federal government restore aid to school systems with successful integration strategies and step up enforcement of civil rights laws.

"Successfully integrated schools will not happen by accident," Orfield said.

United Way donors earmark money for local problems

By NOEL K. WILSON
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON — United Way, a charity that traditionally has emphasized funding national groups such as the Boy Scouts and Salvation Army, is putting new focus on solving local problems, according to an internal survey.

The survey conducted by United Way of America of its 259 local chapters showed that increasingly contributions are being used to help small, local agencies to solve problems such as homelessness, AIDS, child abuse and health care.

"There's a sentiment there that people would rather keep dollars in a local community and see it actually working than send it off someplace and not know what's going to happen to it," said Nancy Perry, the director of the United Way in Topeka, Kan.

The United Way findings also reflect a general desire by more and more charity contributors to earmark their donations to deal with problems closer to home.

United Way of America, an umbrella group for the local chapters, has struggled to maintain contribution levels after a scandal last year involving the freewheeling spending and management practices of its president, William Aramony, who eventually was ousted.

Last year contributions to United Way of America plunged by 42 percent as many chapters withheld support because of the controversy. United Way chapters also saw donations decline on average in 1992, although many of them tried to distance themselves from the national dispute.

Fund raising appeared to have rebounded this year, according to preliminary figures.

The survey covers how donations were used between 1988 and 1992.

"United Ways are rooted in the local communities and as such, they would be a barometer to the conditions and needs of human welfare," said Elaine Chao, president of United Way of America, who replaced Aramony last year.

The poll found that during the four-year period:

—Funding for groups that work on sexually transmitted diseases soared 165 percent to $5.9 million. The number of AIDS groups receiving money went from zero to 57.

—Funding for hospitals jumped 154 percent.

—Donations for education, particularly for the learning disabled, rose 148 percent.

—Funding for groups that deal with teen-age pregnancy rose 109 percent and it doubled for those that deal with spouse abuse.

The large umbrella agencies still received the bulk of United Way donations.

The American Red Cross received the most with $269 million last year; the YMCA and YWCA received $183 million; Boy Scouts and Girl Scouts received $148 million and the Salvation Army $119 million.

But even with those groups, some chapters are changing the way they solicit donations.

"With the YMCA, for example, we make a point that we don't fund the health fitness part; we're funding the daycare, the scholarship programs," said Perry of the Topeka chapter. "I think our message has to let people know where their dollars go."

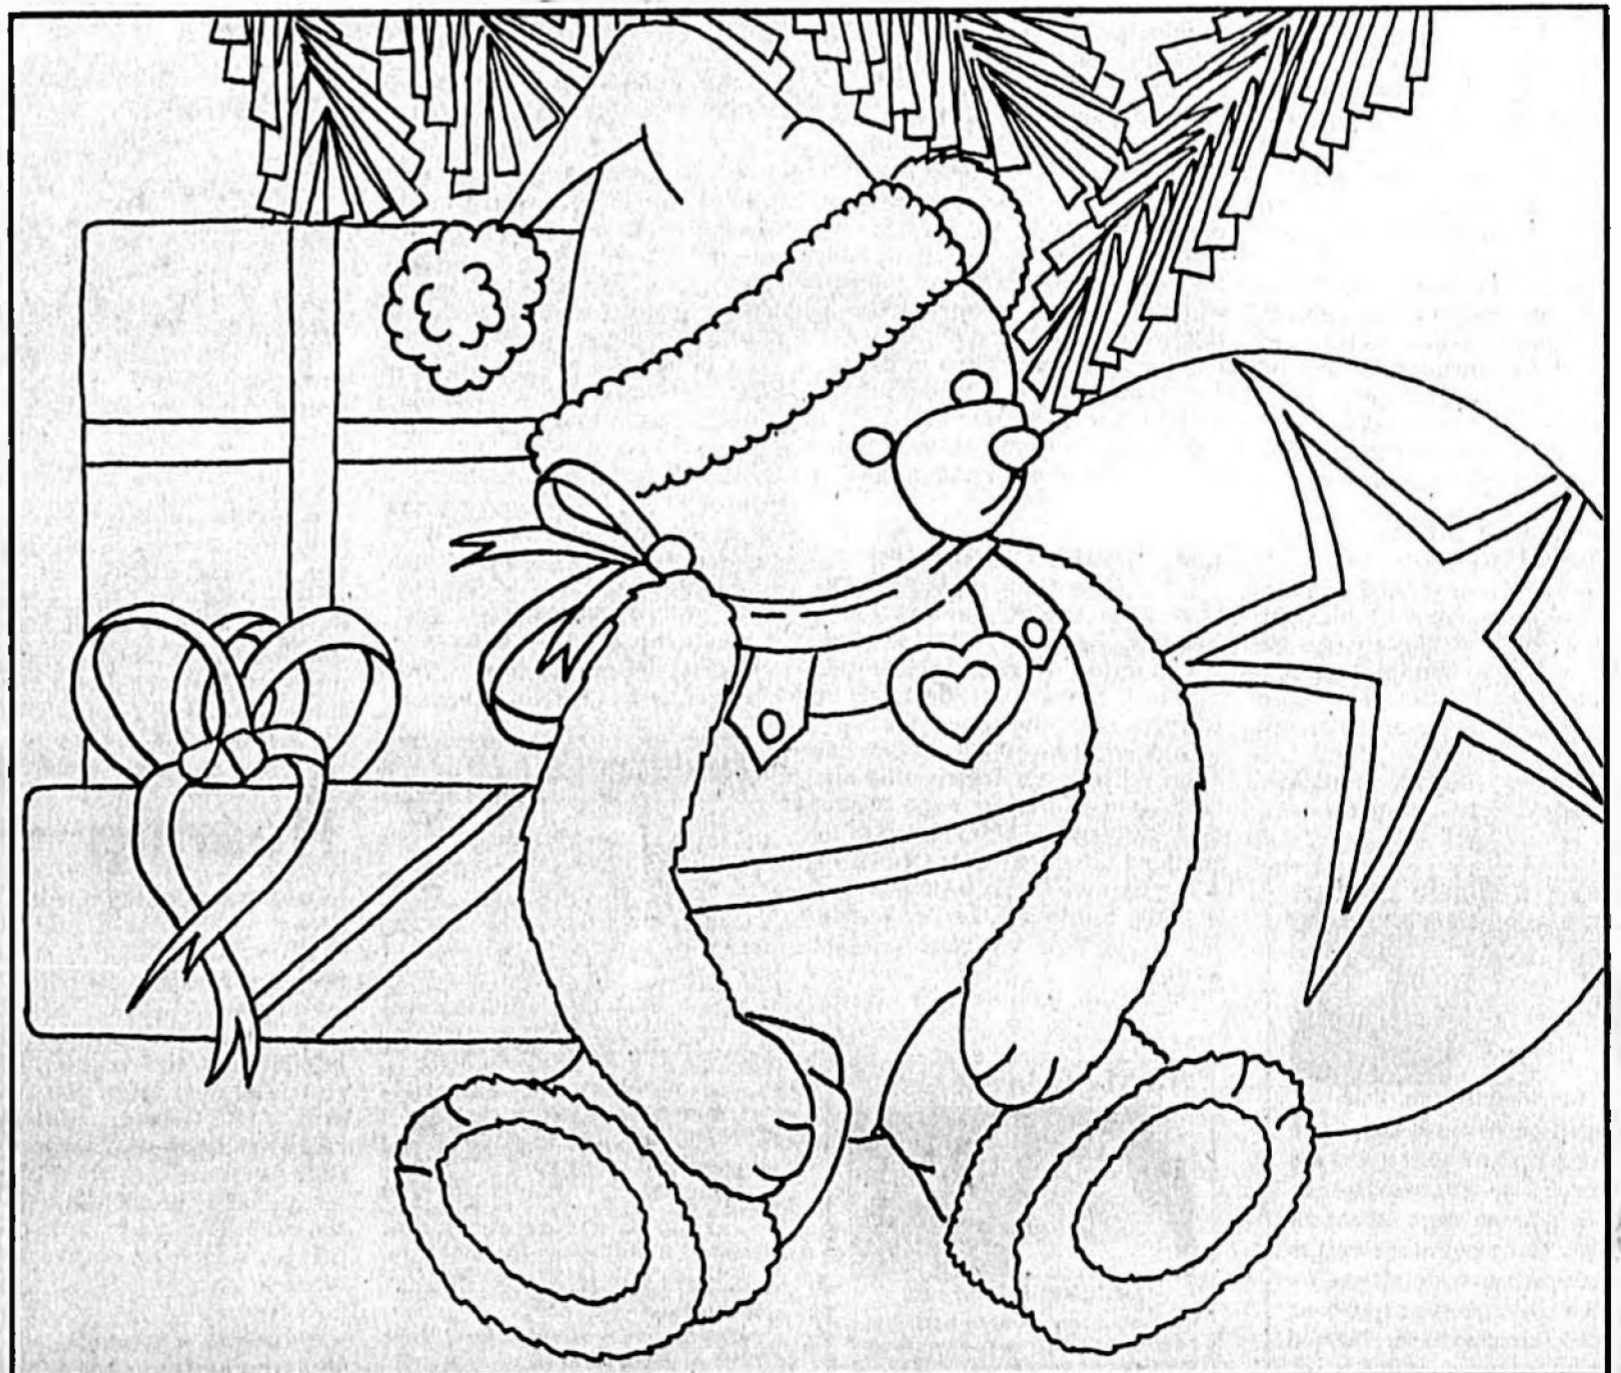

Some agencies lost funding over the four years.

Donations for the military, primarily the United Service Organization (USO), dropped 27 percent from 1988 to $5.4 million last year.

Cystic fibrosis groups received less than $800,000 last year, a 19.8 percent decline from 1988.

Funds for the Arthritis Foundation of America, the Epilepsy Foundation of America and National Multiple Sclerosis Society also fell.

There will be food, music and an opportunity to be photographed with Santa. The cost is $3 per person. For more information, contact Susan Combs at 323-0149.

Poinsettia poisoning a myth Christmas plant has been falsely accused

Poinsettias add a touch of beauty, color and warmth to the holiday season and after reading this article you won't need to worry about them poisoning someone, as the plant has been falsely accused.

Since 1919, stories unsubstantiated by medical or scientific fact have circulated about the poinsettia. According to one tale, a two-year old child of an Army officer stationed in Hawaii died from eating a poinsettia leaf. This unfortunate, unfounded story helped scare people into thinking that the poinsettia is poisonous. It has led to the belief that parts of the plant, if ingested by humans or pets, could be fatal.

To scientifically resolve the charges against the poinsettia and to alleviate public fear, an intensive study was conducted at Ohio State University. The study established that when rats were given unusually high doses of various parts of the poinsettia plant, they showed no mortality, no symptoms of toxicity, and no changes in dietary intake or general behavior pattern. It's important to note that animal tests are accepted as valid by the United States Consumer Products Safety Commission in determining whether any product or natural growth is harmful to human health. The conclusion of the Ohio State University research was that the poinsettia is not harmful to animal health when ingested.

Since the poinsettia is considered non-poisonous, should we feel safe about eating parts of the plant — the answer is of course no. The leaves, stems and flowers of the poinsettia should be treated like those of any other plant — assume that they can cause varying degrees of symptoms and should be placed out of the reach of small children. To prevent even the remotest possibility of danger, all children should be warned not to put anything in their mouths except food. They should also be taught respect for all potential hazardous substances including medicine, cleaning agents and insecticides.

The poinsettia derives its name from Joel R. Poinsett, an American Ambassador to Mexico, who introduced the plant into the United States in 1828. The poinsettia is also known as the Eastern Flower, Lobster Flower, Mexican Flame Leaf, and Christmas Flower. The poinsettia is a symbol for the holiday season and should be enjoyed without the fear of poisoning a loved one.

Here are a few tips to get the most from your poinsettia this holiday season: Place in a well-lit room, but away from direct sunlight. Avoid drafts or excess heat from fireplaces or heating vents. Keep out-of-reach of children or animals. Place in waterproof containers to protect furniture. Water plants thoroughly when soil is dry to touch, and always discard the excess water in the drain tray. When the bracts (red, colorful parts) begin to fade, cut plants back to eight inches and grow as a foliage plant. Poinsettias may also be placed out-of-doors in pots or into the landscape when temperatures begin to warm or danger of frost has past — avoid temperatures below 50 degrees. Potted plants can be returned to the indoors for reflowering next season — starting Oct. 1 avoid artificial night lights to ensure bract color by next Christmas.

Poinsettias make wonderful gifts and are perfect for adding that festive touch to your holiday decorating. They are beautiful and timely for the holidays and no more toxic than other house plants — so enjoy! Happy holidays.

One call led to lifetime conversation

DEAR ABBY: Some time ago, you asked your readers to write to you if they ever had one telephone call that changed their lives. Well, I did, and here's my story:

In January 1966, I was a senior at the University of South Carolina in Columbia. One Tuesday night, I strolled into a sorority sister's room, and she was on the phone talking to her fiancé's friend, Dennis. Out of the blue, she just handed me the phone and introduced us. We "clocked" immediately, and he asked if he could call me again. I said, "Sure, call me anytime."

Well, on Friday, Dennis called at midnight and we talked for six hours, but by 3 a.m., I knew that he was the man I was going to marry. In fact, I proposed to him, and he accepted! Mind you, Abby, we had never even seen each other. He had no idea what I looked like, nor I him.

ADVICE

Dennis was a highway patrolman and worked six nights a week, so we couldn't arrange to meet until Tuesday. After we met in person, we both knew it was love at first sight.

Most of our courtship was meeting at a local restaurant for dinner, with friends joining us so I could get out of the dormitory. (In the '60s, women couldn't leave the campus at night unless they were accompanied by a male escort or two females.)

We had only three real dates when we eloped on March 11, 1966, and we've been living happily ever after.

CONNIE AND DENNIS PARBER
COLUMBIA, S.C.

DEAR CONNIE, DENNIS: As you now know, I phoned for permission to use your names, and ask if there were any children. You proudly told me that you had one daughter, Amanda, presently a college student in Madrid, Spain. Congratulations!

DEAR ABBY: The letter from "Asian-American From Montgomery, Ala." who complained about strangers who asked him where he was from, reminded me of an amusing incident I witnessed several years ago when I lived in Canton, Ohio.

I was waiting in the office of a dental clinic when a young dentist of Asian descent came out to talk briefly with the clerk. The gentleman next to me seemed fascinated with this situation, and immediately started to tell the dentist about his experiences as a soldier in the Far East after World War II.

The young dentist listened politely, but obviously wanted to return to his patient. The man, however, would not release the dentist from conversing, and finally asked him where he was from.

"I came here from Cleveland," the dentist replied softly. "NO! I mean where are you from originally?" insisted the ex-GI. "Oh! Originally I came from New Jersey," replied the dentist. End of Conversation.

GENE CONNELLY,
BROOKSVILLE, FLA.

DEAR ABBY: You advised "Asian-American in Alabama" to respond, "I am an Asian-American" when asked his nationality.

Well, in my book, he is an American, period! My father's parents came from England by way of Canada. My mother's grandparents came from Norway; so am I a Scandinavian-English-Canadian-American? No, I am an American.

Americans come in all sizes and colors. Some have been here for many generations, others a short time, but we are all Americans.

Phooey on this Afro-American, Asian-American, native American business. Why divide this beautiful nation? America is a great melting pot — and we are all Americans.

AN AMERICAN IN OREGON
DEAR ABBY: In answering

"Asian-American in Alabama," you missed the implied racism in the question, "Where are you from?" As a Caucasian woman married to an Asian-American, I have become acutely aware that racism still exists.

My German family and my husband's Japanese family came to the United States at approximately the same time. My husband's family spoke English sooner and acquired American mannerisms sooner, yet they were often asked, "Where are you from?" and, "Where is the best Japanese restaurant in town?" Such questions were never asked of me or my family, probably because we looked "American" — while my husband's family looked "foreign."

MARILYN IN HOUSTON

DEAR MARILYN: Your point is well-taken. There is no typical American "look"; today's American is a meld of people from every corner of the world — Europe, Asia, Australia, Africa, as well as the Americas.

They're home Endeavor lands in Florida darkness

By MARCIA DUNN
AP Aerospace Writer

CAPE CANAVERAL — Endeavour and its seven astronauts returned to Earth early Monday after completing the biggest repair job in space history — overhauling the Hubble Space Telescope.

The shuttle streaked through the dark Florida sky and landed at Kennedy Space Center at 12:25 a.m. EST.

Mission Control radioed congratulations to the crew after Endeavour rolled to a stop on the floodlit runway. It was only the second time a shuttle landed at night in Florida.

"We're home!" shuttle commander Richard Covey said. "Thank you for the flawless flight." Mission Control replied. "During the 4.4 million-mile journey, which began 11 days ago, the astronauts stepped out into the vacuum of space five times to work on Hubble."

"This mission inspired us all and it laid the basis for tremendous leaps in our knowledge of the universe," NASA astrophysics director Daniel Weedman said after Endeavour landed.

Although NASA won't know until tests are done whether the optical repairs to the telescope worked, the astronauts' ability to install 11 new parts with ease has boosted morale at the space agency and, for many, demonstrated that a space station can be built.

Jeremiah Pearson III, head of NASA's space flight program, said the mission is "not the end-of-end-all" in quelling congressional critics, but did demonstrate "if you plan, train, replan, retrain, you come out with success." An unprecedented amount of training and testing went into the flight, without turf battles or second-guessing by budget cutters.

"It's very important when we think ahead to the future and to space station and any other project that NASA's undertaking, to realize the reason for the success of this mission ... is NASA went for it 100 percent," astronaut Jeffrey Hoffman said Sunday.

"Everybody was behind this mission," Hoffman said during a news conference from orbit.

NASA said the Hubble Space Telescope, orbiting 369 miles high, appeared to be in good condition. The astronauts released the $1.8 billion telescope Friday after five lengthy spacewalks in the shuttle's cargo bay to install the new parts. The flight began Dec. 2.

Hubble was launched in 1990 with an improperly ground mirror that prevented it from focusing on the more remote objects in the universe.

NASA wanted desperately to vindicate itself for that costly mistake and to show the world, especially critics in Congress, that despite problems it still can accomplish its goals.

"We went into this scared," said payload commander and chief spacewalker Story Musgrave. "It meant an incredible amount to us and to others to get this job done."

This year has been particularly trying for NASA. The Mars Observer vanished, two shuttle countdowns ended in launch pad aborts, and budget battles continued over building a space station. And even as Endeavour flew, the FBI was investigating alleged kickbacks and bribes by a few NASA employees and some of the agency's contractors.

The $629 million repair mission helped to restore confidence.

Said President Clinton after putting in a congratulatory call to the astronauts from the White House on Friday: "This probably will galvanize the public's imagination and support again in a way that nothing we could have ever done in this town would have accomplished."

The five arduous spacewalks — a U.S. record for one mission — were carried out over five straight days.

"There's no doubt as the days went on, we started to feel that," Musgrave said.

Musgrave and Hoffman performed the first, third and fifth spacewalks. Kathryn Thornton and Tom Akers the second and fourth. They installed new optics, solar panels, gyroscopes, compasses and computer memory.

Covey said he and his crew enjoyed "little celebrations of joy and relief" after each spacewalk. "But we saved most of it until the end," he said.

They don't expect to have any trouble adjusting to a slower pace and more mundane affairs once they're back on Earth.

"It's like any space flight," Covey said. "After you train so intensively and have been so focused on one item, once you come back ... it takes a while to adjust to that. Sometimes you feel like you don't have enough to do."

"I think we'll all be able to adjust to that well. We've done it before."

Coast Guard intercepts 111 Haitians on sailboat

By KAREN TESTA
Associated Press Writer

MIAMI — More than 100 Haitians jammed onto a 35-foot sailboat were intercepted about 30 miles off the island's coast by the U.S. Coast Guard on Sunday and will be returned to their homeland, officials said.

Coast Guard officials working on "Operation Able Manner" spotted the vessel late Sunday morning about 30 miles northeast of Cap-Haitien, off the northern coast of Haiti.

The group of about 111 men, women and children were all in good condition, said Petty Officer Alex Worden of the Coast Guard in Miami. They will spend two nights on the cutter, Legare, and be returned Tuesday morning, he said.

"We'll feed them, give them water, medical attention," he said.

It was the third group intercepted in eight days as they attempted to flee the island nation.

Eighty-one Haitians were intercepted Thursday and repatriated the next day. Another group of more than 20 were spotted by Coast Guard officials

Dec. 5 and returned.

Operation Able Manner began after the White House ordered that all Haitians intercepted at sea be returned to their troubled homeland without a hearing to determine if they were fleeing political persecution.

The order followed an overflow of Haitians seeking to flee the nation after the ouster of President Jean Bertrand Aristide in September 1991. The wave of Haitians forced federal officials to set up tent camps and employ additional immigration officers to hear asylum cases.

Autonomic imbalance causes perspiration

DEAR DR. GOTT: I'm a 48-year-old female, about 90 pounds overweight, with mild diabetes, for which I take Micronase. I've already lost 40 pounds with no improvement in my symptoms. I am following a healthy diet and exercise six days a week. My problem is that I sweat profusely on the left side of my body, primarily from the top of my head to my waist. Any slight exertion, even standing up, can bring this on. I've had blood work performed, an MRI done, have seen five internists and a neurologist. What might be causing my symptoms?

DEAR READER: Your puzzling tendency to perspire more on one side of your body than the other may reflect what is called an autonomic imbalance: certain nerves are stimulated, while others are not. Although diabetics often suffer from nerve malfunction (due to metabolic abnormalities stemming from acidosis), your symptom is very unusual. Perhaps this is why several doctors have failed to diagnose your affliction.

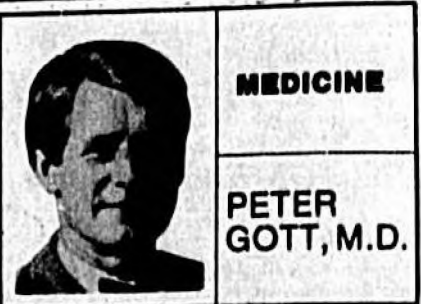

At this point, it seems to me, your doctors need to define your condition more precisely. For instance, are just the autonomic nerves of sweating involved or do you also have difficulty with the nerves that control circulation? Does part of your body flush or turn red during your sweating episodes? Are there also problems with the perception of touch? Do you experience weakness, too?

These and other questions must be answered. In my opinion, the neurologist is your best resource. Return to him (or her) for further clarification and advice.

DEAR DR. GOTT: I've been under my physician's care for years because of low back and neck pain, as well as for general physical therapy. Frankly, I'm tired of the painkillers and muscle relaxants. In talking with a friend who suffers similar problems, he referred me to his chiropractor, with visible improvement. How do you feel about this?

DEAR READER: I've found that chiropractors are often very skillful at treating back pain, using massage and manipulation. Therefore, I do not object to your seeing such a practitioner.

However, if the chiropractor is unsuccessful, you should be examined by an orthopedist or a neurosurgeon.

WIN AT BRIDGE

By Phillip Alder
What do you do with a book when you have finished reading it? Do you lend it to a friend? Or do you put it out for recycling? Do you slot it alphabetically into your bookshelf? John Milton had a great respect for books: "Books are not absolutely dead things, but do contain a potency of life in them to be as active as that soul whose progeny they are: nay they do preserve as in a vial the purest efficacy and extraction of that living intellect that bred them."

In bridge, we must be careful to retain our potent cards until the most efficacious moment to extract the maximum benefit from them — as in today's deal. How should South plan the play in six spades against a diamond lead?

queen at trick one, but East won with the king and returned the diamond 10. Now declarer couldn't make his slam, whether he tried the heart finesse or attempted to set up a long heart for a discard.

Note the difference if declarer plays dummy's diamond two at trick one. A nervous East might win with the king, making declarer's life easy. But let's suppose he wins with the eight. Unable to return a diamond, East switches to a club, which South wins with the ace. Declarer cashes his spade ace and heart king, plays a heart to dummy's ace and ruffs a heart high in hand. A spade to dummy's king permits another high heart ruff. Declarer draws West's last trump, plays a diamond to dummy's ace and discards his club loser on the established heart jack.

HOROSCOPE

By Bernice Bede Osol
YOUR BIRTHDAY
Dec. 14, 1993

Your ingenuity and resourcefulness will be ranked among the major qualities that could contribute to your success in the year ahead. Don't be reluctant to try things you've never attempted previously.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) An unusual arrangement that previously was fortunate for you financially looks like it might replicate itself today. Don't change anything which worked the first time. Know where to look for romance and you'll find it. The Astro-Graph Matchmaker instantly reveals which signs are romantically perfect for you. Mail $2 and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope to Matchmaker, c/o this newspaper, P.O. Box 4465, New York, N.Y. 10183.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Friends could play more prominent roles in your affairs at this time than they have in the past. It's a period where each could be lucky for the other, so stay in touch.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19)

Your greatest asset today is your ability to derive benefits and advantages where you have to adjust to shifting circumstances. Your instincts will influence your moves.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Devote as much time as possible today to a new and exciting interest that has recently captured your fancy. This venture could have greater ramifications than you realize.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Couple your will to win to your imagination and visualize the type of end results you desire or the type of changes you would like to make. They're doable today.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Your ability to absorb and catalogue new information and facts is better than usual today. Strive to use this gift to your advantage.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) You could be quite lucky today, but not necessarily in ways for which you hoped. Benefic trends will be influenced by changes you can't control.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Fortuitous developments might be generated today through partnership arrangements, especially alliances which were bonded on a social basis.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) A situation that has been causing you some anxiety looks like it is going to work out rather favorable today. Instead of producing negatives, it could produce a substantial bonus.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) One of your friends is a purveyor of good news, but neither you nor he/she will be aware of this until you've had a chance to talk. When you do, both could be in for a big surprise.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) You're in a cycle and will continue to be so for quite some time where you're profitable possibilities could be rather remarkable. It's a spotty trend. Today is one of those days.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) This is a favorable period for you where new enterprises or endeavors are concerned, especially those you had a hand in conceptualizing.
