The decision is the second and final one favorable to Germany in the cases which were reopened at the request of American agents to permit submission of new evidence.

ZIMMERMAN AND HITCHCOCK GET MOST OF PRAISE

Coaches And Sports-Writers Select All-Southern Grid Team

ATLANTA, Dec. 1.—(AP)—Jimmy Hitchcock and Don Zimmerman, triple-threat backs from Auburn and Tulane, drew most praise from coaches and sports writers who selected the eighth annual Associated Press all-Southern conference football team.

Each of these backs furnished the inspiration for their team's victories. Most of the victories were traced directly to the play of these men.

Gracey probably was the outstanding southern lineman. Roma expeta rats him the best center in southern history. He was an accurate snapper-back, a fast charger and unsurpassed as a defensive shank.

Legendycker and Crawford also were bolwarks in the line, almost unmovably on defense and lighters on offense. Hupke probably was the best guard. Arlall and Rayburn, both lanky, lean boys, were excellent pass receivers, fast down and punts and quick to diagnose enemy plays.

One of the features of the balloting was the close race between the five star backs—Beattie Feathers, of Tennessee, Clyde "Dink" Roberts, of Vanderbilt, John Cain, of Alabama, Zimmerman and Hitchcock.

Feathers was third in the tabulation as Cain won place over Roberts by a handful of votes. Although a back, Hitchcock received more votes for quarterback than any other and was named at that post. Ralph Kercheval, Kentucky's fine back and kicker, polled a heavy vote but was crowded off by the landlubber in favor of the other ball carrier.

The closest duel of ballots among the linemen came at tackle and guard. Charles Legendycker, of Vanderbilt, and Fred Crawford, of Duke, finished with a small margin over Bill Grinus, captain of Virginia Tech's first team. Tom Hupke, of Alabama, and John Scalfide, of Tulane, topped the guards but the race for second team positions was split.

Pete Lacey, of Vanderbilt, had little competition for center, and David Arlall, of Auburn and Virgil Rayburn, of Tennessee, were easily the choice at ends.

Five players—Zimmerman, Cain, Gracey, Scalfide and Legendycker—were captains from the 1931 honor team. Feathers, Hupke and Arlall are juniors while the others, all seniors. Joe Rupert, of Kentucky, and Harry Rooster, Duke, named on the second team as ends, are sophomores.

The second team: Rupert, Kentucky, and Rooster, Duke; ends: Bill Grinus, V. P. L., and Malcolm Atken, Tennessee; tackles: Marion Talley, Vanderbilt, and Eugene Hite, V. P. L.; guards: Howard Nebbett, Georgia Tech, center: Lowell Mason, Duke, quarterback: Clyde Roberts, Vanderbilt, and Norman Mott, Georgia halfbacks: Ralph Kercheval, Kentucky, fullback.

Every man selected in the backfield is an all-around performer who can pass, punt, kick and block. Cain and Feathers have no equals in the nation as kickers while Zimmerman and Hitchcock continually gave good punting exhibitions. All are crack passers and pass receivers.

There were few games in which Feathers, Zimmerman and Hitchcock Rollins And Stetson Golfers To Play Here

Debt Payment In Champagne Seen As One Way Out

CHICAGO, Raymond Recouly, famed war correspondent of the Paris newspaper "Le Temps", and later editor of "Figaro", was in this city recently for a short halt in a current tour of America. He believes the French war debt should be paid—but in champagne and out in cash and in banks everywhere should go to live in the south of France where, he says, one can "get by" on a dollar a day.

"Frenchmen like Americans", said the ruddy-faced smiling little journalist. "Everybody in my country reads Sinclair Lewis. If you will repeat this Volstead Act and make some arrangement under your new administration to accept champagne for what we owe you in war debts, everything will be lovely."

"However", he added, "champagne is not France will pay this year of Britain does. And while we're worrying about money, the best thing anybody with a few dollars who is waiting for the tide to turn, can do is go to the south of France. You can live there for a dollar a day including wine with every meal."

Mr. Recouly inherited the intimate papers of Marshal Ferdinand Foch from the famous soldier. He has written "Memoirs de Foch" and plans to get out still another book on the commander on whose staff he served during the latter part of the war.

Miami Is Mecca For Figures Once High In Cuban Politics

MIAMI, Dec. 2.—(AP)—A little band of Cuban exiles has gathered here to dream of return to the native island.

They are nearly 160 in the land and its roster carries names of some of Cuba's greatest men—men who differed politically with the administration and who sought to force change things.

Gen. Mario G. Menocal, former president of Cuba and a hero in the island's war for independence, heads the group by virtue of the leadership bestowed on him by the legislative resolution of August, 1931. Two sons are in this country after release as political prisoners.

Other prominent names here are Domingo Merdes, Captain, who headed the New York Junta in connection with the August rebel lion last year; Dr. Carl de la Torre, former president of the University of Havana, and Octavio Sotelo, formerly a prominent Havana business man.

The exiles keep a weather eye to the south in hope an uprising will restore them to their homes. Many students are in the land, boys who, with or without choice, fled Cuba as political refugees.

"Our time will come," says General Menocal. "Things in Cuba are changing. Maybe two months, maybe two years, who can tell?"

Some will say if there are definite plans for a change.

FARMING STATUS OF SEMINOLE IS SHOWN IN REPORT

Census Figures Indicate Agricultural Strength Of County

TALLAHASSEE, Dec. 2.—Census is king in Seminole County. The report of the county enumerator received here at the office of Commissioner of Agriculture Nathan Mayo as approved by the county commissioners, reveals. The report is a part of the twelfth state wide census of agriculture and manufactures required under state law.

Every brought into Seminole county last year $1,433,000 as returns on 1,791,927 crates produced on 4,436 acres. The acreage shows a slight increase since the last census in 1927 but production and price are reduced.

Although Seminole is one of the smallest counties in Florida in area, its agricultural importance is attested by the unusually large production of both field and truck crops and citrus fruits. Seminole county has 2,391 acres in corn, 597 acres in hay and considerable acreage in sweet and Irish potatoes, field peas and velvet beans.

Truck crops are grown in large quantities adding hundreds of thousands of dollars to the value of agriculture. Lettuce and peppers are next in importance to celery in the county although the acreage in each is less than five years ago. Cabbage has increased from 56 to 310 acres and string beans from 142 to 341 acres.

The growing of ferns continues to be an important factor in the wealth of the county and 292 acres was valued in this census at $198,769.

Changes, led the fruit and nut crops in importance in Seminole with 427,732 bearing trees, an increase of nearly 50,000 in the last five years. The citrus crop was worth approximately three quarters of a million dollars in Seminole county, the enumeration shows.

Most interest is apparently being taken in milk, butter and egg production in the county. Production of 275,099 dozen eggs is a marked increase since the last census and 27,005 gallons of milk indicates that the county is producing much of its own supply.

With a greater per centage of total acreage under cultivation than most counties and emphasis upon crops which command high prices Seminole county ranks with many larger counties in agricultural importance.

Prices Of Food In Local Stores Beat Last Year

(Continued From Page 1) on Sanford Avenue at 10 cents for 49 cents. This year Mr. Gatechell will sell 10 pounds of sugar for 47 cents. Last year Mr. Gatechell advertised a pound of creamery butter for 33 cents. This year the same kind of butter is advertised and sells for 29 cents.

Nationally, eggs this year are being offered in wholesale markets at 37 1/2 cents per dozen whereas last year they were sold for 35 1/2 cents per dozen. The present retail price of eggs today varies from 38 to 45 cents per dozen while last year the price varied from 35 to 40 cents per dozen.

A glance through today's Herald reveals numerous bargains that are offered by the leading grocers of this city. From The Herald's files of 1931 is brought as a means of proving that food is lower than ever before, a score of comparisons that should be of interest to the housekeeper of the city.

A comparison of prices at the Atlantic and Pacific Tea Stores, Forrest Gatechell's Cash Grocery, The Piggly-Wiggly Stores, and Fischer's Market, grocery stores which are among the leading ones in Sanford, is as follows:

Table with 2 columns: Item, Price. Lists items like Butter, Flour, Sugar, etc. with prices for 1931 and 1932.

Among The Herald advertisers of today who are advertising specials that are considerably lower than advertised prices of last year are The Better Food Stores throughout the city, and Roberts Grocery on First Street.

Here are some sample Better Food prices: Tall can evaporated milk, five cents; Campbell's tomato soup, 3 cans for 20 cents; 12 pounds of flour, four pounds of lard and 10 pounds of sweet potatoes, all for 65 cents; three pounds of large bananas, 13 cents; 10 pounds of sweet potatoes, 10 cents; eight pounds of York Imperial apples, 25 cents, and white lard at seven cents per pound.

Locally, milk and buttermilk prices have gone to new low levels along with prices of the same commodities in other parts of the country. Sweet milk is now sold in all Sanford dairies at 16 cents per quart where last year it cost 18 cents per quart. Buttermilk has dropped from 13 cents per quart in 1931 to 10 cents this year, and on both the prices of sweet and buttermilk it is possible to secure an even lower price if tickets calling for a month's supply of either are purchased.

In national textile markets wholesale prices of cotton have maintained almost the same price of last year. Cotton, middling upland in grade, in 1931 sold at wholesale for .06 per pound, while this year it is .06 per pound. Print cloths are one-quarter of a cent off last year's price of .033-8 cents per yard, while wool has dropped from 60 to 47 cents per pound in a year. The largest drop in textile prices is in the silk trade where the $2.87 cent per pound of last year is now $1.65 per pound.

The J. C. Penney Store today advertises an article, made of wool, that shows a drop in retail value since last year. Children's sweaters are advertised at the Penney Store at 79c, 88c, and $1.49 each, where last year the low price territory was at 98 cents.

Among other Herald advertisers who today are seeking the interest and patronage of the bargain hunting customer is McLuskin's Jewelry Store on Park Avenue. Mr. McLuskin today announced a fifty percent reduction in the price of all diamond platinum diamond rings, wrist watches, and brooches. He advertises a 50 piece set of sterling flatware at $10; a 12 piece set of China ware at $5, and a $2.50 set of China ware for $1.50.

CINCINNATI, Dec. 2.—(AP) Told that "We wanted employers who could wait no longer to reevaluate and revive the spirit of the masses," the American Federation of Labor convention today approved plans for state unemployment insurance systems paid for by industry.

A Business Proposition

The statement by Great Britain that American foreign trade will suffer if the December 15 payment on war debts is collected and revision of the debt situation denied is no idle gesture. Neither is it to be regarded as a threat to intimidate us into cancellation. A simple statement of a self-evident fact should never be regarded as a threat. It is plainly apparent that England cannot make large payments on war debts and at the same time continue to purchase from us more than we buy from England.

It is sometimes argued that such a situation as this could exist through the manipulation of the trade of other foreign countries. England's means of imports from us, it is said, could be balanced through the sale of British merchandise to Brazil, for instance, to which we are indebted for coffee. This of course could be done but the fact remains that it is not. For while England sells merchandise to Brazil, it also buys coffee from Brazil; and while we buy coffee from Brazil we also sell automobiles to Brazil.

We buy and sell to dozens of other countries; so does England. In the final settlement of all these transactions we have a favorable balance of trade which has to be paid in something besides imports, and the amount which England owes us in addition to war debt payments for the excess of her exports to her over her imports to us, is approximately the equivalent of the debt payment itself.

The relation of international debts and foreign trade to nations is much the same as the debts and net income to a private corporation. A business concern can continue to meet payments on its financial obligations only if it has an excess of receipts over expenditures. It may meet a temporary emergency where the sales are less than the expenses by borrowing or by drawing upon cash reserves, but such practices cannot continue for long without resulting in bankruptcy.

The United States, while being the largest creditor nation in the world consistently maintains a favorable balance of trade. In 1930 we exported $3,843,000,000 worth of American products, importing $3,060,908,000 of foreign commodities, leaving the rest of the world in debt to us for this exchange by some $782,092,000. In 1928 we had a favorable balance of trade of over one billion dollars. During the war period this trade balance extended to figures of three and four billion dollars a year. In fact, we have to go back to the year 1898 to find a single instance when our imports exceeded our exports.

By far the largest part of our exports are raw materials. Of the total production of the United States, only ten percent is exported, but of all the cotton produced in the United States 53 percent is exported. During 1930 we exported over $496,000,000 worth of raw cotton and $88,000,000 worth of cotton manufactures. We also exported $494,000,000 of petroleum products, and $145,000,000 of tobacco, or 44 percent of the total production, and $157,000,000 worth of wheat, or 17 percent of the total. It is thus clear that it is the cotton and tobacco growers, and the other producers of raw materials who suffer most through the loss of foreign trade.

Whether with conscious intent or not, England would buy less from us if the present debt arrangement is continued. In anticipation of the December 15 payment, the pound sterling has dropped from $3.75 to $3.15. Obviously England cannot buy as much cotton from us with a pound worth $3.15 as she could with a pound worth $3.75. Obviously the present debt arrangement increases the difficulties of meeting curtailments payable at par of $4.86.

The problem for America to decide is whether we want to collect a debt and lose a customer or to revise the debt so as to enable the customer to continue to do business with us.

New York's Troubles

Several weeks ago New York bankers warned the city administration of America's metropolis that unless drastic cuts were made in the budget figures financial support would not be forthcoming from the big investment houses. None but Mayor McKee and a few other officials took the bankers seriously and every effort of Jimmy Walker's successor to slash expenses to any appreciable extent was met by opposition from Tammany controlled factions.

The time has arrived when the city of New York must have some $15,000,000 to $20,000,000 for providing unemployment relief during the next five months or face serious consequences, must have further financial assistance if payless months are to be avoided in the near future.

Distress signals have been sent up and calls for help have been issued to the money markets, but just how friendly the bankers feel towards putting up more funds in the face of continued municipal prodigality might have been detected from the solemn expression on their faces, as reported by the New York Herald Tribune, following a conference with Mayor McKee and his special committee on financing. It appears that the banks are going to make good their threat that unless the city's fiscal policies are set in order there will be no further lending.

Coincident with the meeting between the bankers and the Mayor's committee on financing there was issued by Samuel Seabury, special investigator into the affairs of New York's city government, a report which showed that in the last ten years salary expenses in the operation of the municipal government have been increased more than 84 percent, or $167,184,850.98.

During the entire period of the depression there has been no disposition, except recently on the part of Mayor McKee, to cut expenditures and to put the city's finances on a sound basis. To expect investors to keep on pouring money into municipal coffers which appear to be bottomless, certainly very leaky, is the supreme example of optimism, and the realization must dawn soon on Tammany controlled New York that if it hopes to stay in business it must present a better financial statement.

AMONG THOSE prominently mentioned for the position of secretary of the treasury in the Roosevelt cabinet is Carter Glass of Virginia. Senator Glass was for many years publisher of the Lynchburg Daily News, and as such has had much personal experience with the bitter problems of finance. In addition he achieved national reputation as secretary of the treasury during the Wilson administration and is well and favorably known for the many bills relating to financial matters which he has steered through the Senate. It will be hard for Roosevelt to find a better choice for the treasury post.

HYDE PREDICTS IMPROVEMENT IN FARMING STATUS

Material Income Improvement Is Seen In Next Few Years

WASHINGTON, Dec. 1.—(AP)—Reporting to President Hoover on the present status of the American farmer, Secretary Hyde said yesterday there are "many indications that material improvement in the income from agriculture will occur within the next few years."

Hyde said in his annual report that agriculture "felt the shock of this depression earlier and harder than other industries and it may lead in the recovery." He warned, however, that "temporary setbacks are to be expected."

Citing the difficulties in which the farmers have been enmeshed, the agriculture department head advocated additional action toward relieving the burden of farm mortgages and of taxation on farm lands.

In addition, he explained that the $306,400,000 expended and obligated by the department during the last fiscal year ending June 30, was an abnormal amount. Eighty-one percent of the total, he added, went to the general public through road funds and otherwise for emergency relief action.

"In any period of deep and prolonged depression," Hyde said, "it is difficult to recognize exactly the first signs of improvement. Nevertheless, it is significant that after a ruinous three-year decline agricultural prices rose materially during July, August, and September of 1932."

"In October they receded somewhat, but not to the low registers in mid-summer. Farm commodity prices rose from 88 percent of the prewar level in June, 1932, to 69 percent of that level in September; in the succeeding month they fell off three points to 56 percent."

Considered merely as net gain, that was not much. But the change was encouraging. It was the first substantial improvement in agricultural prices since the onset of the depression in 1929.

"To some slight extent," he continued, "this improvement in prices reflected a reduction in the supply of farm commodities, from many fundamental readjustments in the financial and business world."

"This renewed confidence is not confined to the United States. Gold is again coming into this country, indicating restored world confidence in the American dollar."

"These readjustments and the changing outlook are providing a basis for an improvement in the demand for agricultural products."

"While unemployment and reduced wages of urban consumers are still a great handicap in the marketing of farm products, the upturn in the financial situation in the past few months, if sustained, will be a stimulus to increase employment and will thus increase the purchasing power of threatened French injection of the Louvain agreement on reparations, and argued that this agreement was an outgrowth of the meeting a year ago between President Hoover and Premier Laval.

Last night the issue again seemed to be up to the European debtors—either to pay or default on Dec. 15. The President has asked the payment of them in accordance with creation by Congress of special agency to review the debt situation.

There was no party division on the question in Congress, Republicans and Democrats joined in reiterating firm opposition to additional relief. The also struck hard sharply at the British suggestion of a higher tariff wall against the United States.

Chairman Smead of the finance committee said: "If Great Britain desired to carry out the plan suggested she has a perfect right to do it, but in my opinion she will be the sufferer instead of the United States."

Senator Harrison, of Mississippi, ranking Democrat on the committee said: "Threats of stringent regulations of exchange or increased retaliatory measures will not affect the sober judgment of the American people against cancellation or postponement."

Representative Small, of New York, Republican leader, said: "I am not disturbed about any special tariff retaliation. They will buy, as always, where they can buy cheapest."

Senators Copeland, (D. N. Y.), and Dickinson, (R. Iowa), joined in declaring for European disarmament before debt relief.

Apprehended by police answering an emergency call, as he left the office of the Popular Amusement Company, operated by the Goldbergs, Rachman was disarmed of a pistol and taken to police headquarters, where he told Detective Captain Fris Franks:

"They were trying to ease me out of the company and beat me out of my life's savings. When I kicked they started to get rough and I thought they were trying to beat me up. I had to shoot them to protect myself."

Rachman had been associated with the Goldbergs for several years. The company which they headed formerly owned a large chain of theatres throughout New York.

Miss Jeanette Laing told that flowers were placed on all World War veterans' graves on Armistice Day. The flowers were donated by Mrs. Roy F. Symes, Stewart the Florist, A. K. Rosseter, and J. M. Gleason, of Lake Mary.

Plans were made to send a Christmas box to the Crippled Children's Home in St. Petersburg. In order to make up the box members were asked to take two ten cent toys to Mrs. F. E. Roumillat by Dec. 15 in order that the box will reach the home by Christmas.

As activities chairman Mrs. R. E. Stevens announced that the annual New Year's Eve ball will take place as usual this year and the proceeds will be used for charity.

The Christmas box to receive gifts for the Veterans Hospital at Lake City will be placed in front of Roumillat and Anderson in the near future, it was stated. Mention was also made during the meeting of the fact that the Auxiliary is providing lunches for five children in the schools of the city.

Schools To Observe "Conservation Day"

After spending the past week visiting all the schools of the county with Mrs. Roland S. Read, chairman of the Junior Garden Club, Mrs. Clara L. Thomas, of the Florida Forest Service, is now completing arrangements in the Seminole County schools for a conservation program to be carried out by the pupils this fall.

Mrs. Thomas has made arrangements for a local Conservation Day which will be observed in the schools of the county Tuesday with the assistance of the Garden Club of Sanford. At this time a special program will be given in every school in the city and members of the Garden Club will be in attendance to distribute trees to the pupils who will plant them at their homes. Local nurserymen have raised 10 varieties of flowering trees for Mrs. Thomas' project which was begun last Spring.

Because of the splendid co-operation of the local school authorities, Mrs. Thomas feels that the community will be richly rewarded for the effort expended by the teachers and pupils.

The program, with its bluish purple flowers, the yellow elder, the Jerusalem thorn, the sweet acacia with its wealth of yellow flowers, the Mount Ebony or baobab with its lavender blossoms, the brilliant pepper, the Australian silk oak, and the mimosa or silk tree which is covered with a mass of rosy pink

DIXIE'S OUTLOOK ON DEPRESSION FOUND IN SURVEY

Most Of Those Interviewed Think Everything Will Be Okey

ATLANTA, Dec. 3.—(AP)—A survey of the outlook of business men in Atlanta says "Things ain't so bad, they're going to get better quick," while some of those unemployed are concerned over possible jobless days, taxes and world conditions.

That's what the Atlanta staff of The Associated Press found when they sought out the fellow sitting in the curb, the girl behind the restaurant counter, the college president and the operator of one-man street cars.

Seeking a cross-section, the interviews included a cafe proprietor who felt confident everything is going to be all right; a sculptor who doesn't feel that beer will relieve a depression and a prize fight promoter whose chief worry is taxes and the slashing of prices so low even the legitimate profit is cut.

The girl at the switchboard was concerned about her possible unemployment, but then she could go to her brother in California, the secretary to a prominent business man hoped that if beer is returned she won't have to drink it and a ranking tennis player who looks forward to another big year in that sport.

The college president, with his cultured phrases said America's greatest problem is to bring her people back to a better sense of values and select worthwhile objectives while an insurance salesman felt that the psychology of the change brought about by the election will go a long way toward coaxing the prodigal "prosperity" to return.

Results of the staff's interviews are thus recurred:

W. H. Harris, railroad switchman, 18 months without a job: "Things ain't so bad, they're going to get better quick. Folks been pretty decent to me and I've had some breaks. I ain't been hungry much. My business will get better soon as that tariff is cut and business can start up. All the big shot railroad men I see say so and when the railroads get busy so will everything else."

Dr. Harvey W. Cox, president of Emory University, America's greatest problem as I see it, is to bring her people to a better sense of values so that they may be able to select permanent and worthwhile objectives. We have tried to dominate the world economically and have won the world's resentment and hatred. So far, it seems, we have failed as a people in choosing the right national objective. No goal will be permanently satisfactory and successful unless it is based upon co-operation instead of competition.

George Hanjates, restaurant proprietor: "For why they burn coffee in Brazil? Why the farmers burn wheat when people are hungry? Why the United States send wheat to China in foreign ships? Never mind. Mr. Roosevelt he'll do everything he say he'll do. We gonna collect all that money 's cross the water. The breweries going to give the poor folks work. We say, we fix things up so we can sell something to other countries, then our factories gonna start running. Ha! Everything, she's gonna be all right!"

Dorothy Davenport, secretary to a prominent Atlanta business man: "I do not think beer will be legalized by Christmas. When it does come back, if ever, I hope I won't be expected to drink it because I do not like it. When we pull through this crisis we should prepare for a possible next unemployment insurance might offer a solution to any future economic slump. I am heartily in favor of it. Although a native of a mild Democratic state, I still think Mr. Hoover is one of the most fearless and honest men that has ever been in the White House and that in after years when new histories are written, he will be recognized as one of the greatest of presidents. The law of average will surely take care of the adjustment conditions."

Stefan Tommas, sculptor and a Russian: "Work must be started around by the government of the week and the money. A return to normal is certain to come and we certainly also in a new appreciation of the arts. About beer? Germany has it and always will have beer, but over there they have a depression too."

Neil Edge, telephone operator: "I'm sort of puzzled. What am I supposed to do in this anyway? What's going to happen to me? I want to do something but I don't know what. Then all this unemployment has me worried. If I don't get better, I guess I could go and live with my brother in California. Always wanted to go out there anyway."

PROHIBITION SEEN ULTIMATE GOAL OF RUM CONTROL

However, Success Lies In Support Of Public Opinion, Is View

PHILADELPHIA—The verdict of all history points to prohibition as the final and ultimate goal of the control of the liquor problem, and only with the coming of prohibition have we made any progress at all in this control, according to Frederick A. McCord, head of the fact finding commission of the Society of Friends here.

Out of eight methods of liquor control which have been experimented with in this country, Mr. McCord said, prohibition has been the most effective and is the only scheme which shows promise of ultimate success. But this success, he says, will be forthcoming only when it is backed by public opinion, which must be won through educational efforts.

Sketching the history of legislation concerning intoxicants, Mr. McCord disclosed that this legislation falls into two classes—that of regulation and that of revenue, on a basis, contradictory, and operating to nullify each other.

"The liquor traffic has fought every effort at control and even today," Mr. McCord said, "and has openly broken every law that has ever been put on the statute book. It is essentially a lawless business and we must expect its opposition under any scheme of regulation."
