County Delays Firing Of Parks Employee Solitro

By MICHAEL BEHA
Herald Staff Writer

A Seminole County Parks Division employee's job is in limbo today after he failed to appear at a hearing to discuss charges he falsified his job application.

Bill Solitro, who said he was instrumental in the investigation that led to the July arrest and firing of Facilities and Parks coordinator John Varney, said today he chose not to appear because "they had already made up their mind to fire me."

Solitro, contacted at his home in Orlando, said he had talked with an attorney and had decided not to contest the action.

Personnel Director Lois Martin and Public Services and Development Director John Percy were at the hearing in the county personnel office. Ms. Martin said she would initiate action to dismiss the 47-year-old air conditioning mechanic if he did not appear at the hearing.

Ms. Martin said today that no formal action has been taken to fire Solitro. A three-day suspension given to Solitro Monday expired at 8 a.m. today.

Ms. Martin said no formal action would be taken until the county's labor attorney arrives in Sanford Friday.

Solitro had requested a hearing with Percy to appeal a work evaluation in accordance with county personnel policy. But when the hearing was held Monday morning, Percy informed Solitro that he was being charged with putting false information on his application.

The charge, Percy said, was that

Solitro had said he did not have a criminal record. A background check revealed Solitro had a criminal record, including a 1977 arrest for indecent exposure.

Solitro admitted he had been convicted of several misdemeanor charges but claimed he felt the question referred to felony convictions.

"They got me out on a technicality," Solitro said this morning. "They wanted me out of there. I just wonder how many others in the county were convicted of misdemeanors when they were kids."

County Administrator Roger Neiswender said Solitro is not being singled out. The falsification charge is a serious one he said. Other county employees have been fired when it has been discovered they falsified their application. Solitro contends people within the parks division have harassed and intimidated him and other parks employees for their involvement in the probe which led to Varney's arrest for misusing county personnel and work orders.

Solitro said his previous evaluation had shown all satisfactory marks. The latest evaluation, done last week, rated his performance as unsatisfactory in all areas. Solitro said the unsatisfactory performance evaluation was a direct result of his involvement in the Varney probe.

Solitro said he is not the only worker in the division who has been given a negative review since the Varney arrest.

Sheriff's Department Investigator Dan Eslinger said the investigation which led to Varney's arrest is expected to be wrapped up by the end of next week.

He declined to say whether more arrests would follow.

Neiswender said today he will begin an administrative investigation into the parks division. That probe had been planned to follow the criminal investigation but he said now his probe will be moved up because of the claims Solitro has made.

Neiswender said the situation has gotten out of hand and morale in the division has gotten very low because of the investigation. He said the probe could begin this week.

The Zoo

County Commissioners Favor Tax Referendum

By DONNA ESTES

(Fifth in a Series)

Sanford and Seminole County supporters of the Central Florida Zoo are rallying around in an effort to keep the zoological facility in the Sanford area.

And the zoo's financial problems are recognized by Seminole County authorities. And at least three county commissioners are willing to do something about it.

But no answer has been found as yet to solve the zoo's terrain problems, which Zoo Director Al Fuzon says is detrimental to the animals health and a major reason why the 21-acre park cannot be expanded and why new exotic creatures can't be added to the zoo's collection.

County Commissioners Sandra Glenn, Barbara Christensen and Bob Sturm said today they favor placing the issue of specific funding from tax money on the November election ballot.

And Mrs. Christensen and Sturm said they are ready to look at amending the new 1982-83 fiscal year budget to designate money for the facility.

Mrs. Glenn, who serves on the current board of directors of the Central Florida Zoological Society, said today she would have no objection if the matter of funding for the zoo was placed on the November election ballot.

Mrs. Christensen, who said she's "soft on animals," went even further by saying there are a few days left for discussion of including an item for the zoo in the new budget.

She would like, however, to examine all the financial aspects of the zoo's operation and look at its books. "It's something we would have to take a good look at to find what is being done as far as operational costs at the zoo are concerned," she said.

"But, I would favor a referendum anytime, and would hope it would be on the November election ballot," Mrs. Christensen said.

And Sturm said he will recommend that the Commission consider annual financial support for the zoo that could be used to match grants for federal, state and foundation money that may be available.

The best way to designate that money in the budget would be to hold public hearings after Oct. 1, he said.

All three said they want to keep the zoo in Seminole County.

"I simply do not want to see the zoo move," Sturm said. "We should do what we can to keep the zoo here if at all possible."

Commissioner Bill Kirchhoff said the question of zoo funding ought to be taken to the Legislature by Seminole's legislative delegation.

He noted that last year the Legislature refused to change the resort tax requirements to include zoo funding.

Kirchhoff said with a change in that law, permanent and long-term financial help could be given to the zoological park. "It would put the zoo on a better financial footing so that it could look to the future and expansion," he said.

State Rep. Robert Hattaway, D-Altamonte Springs, reminded today that Orange County plans to take advantage of a state law to permit the local levy of a 1 cent additional sales tax for special purposes.

And Hattaway said the possibility is good that such a tax could be used for the zoo. "But the Seminole County Commission has to vote to bail out the zoo. That board must make a positive decision if it wants to retain the zoo in Seminole County," Hattaway said.

Hattaway, one of the early workers in the movement to save the zoo in the early 1970s, said he still supports the zoo and wants it to stay in Seminole county. "There has been a tremendous investment at that site," he added.

Many leaders in the Sanford and Seminole County Community want to see the zoo remain at its present location.

And many favor a special tax to financially support the operation.

Former County Commissioner John Alexander supported a special allocation for the zoo in 1979 before he went out of office the first time.

"And I still favor a tax for the zoo," he said.

Clifford Nelson, a former Lake Mary councilman and a past president of the zoological society, says the financial assistance the zoo needs can only be provided with tax money.

Jim Ryan, two term president of the society and a member of its board of directors for four years, also envisions tax support as a savior of the zoo.

While he praises Rozon for his management of the facility, Ryan said the answer to financial problems there is tax support. Ryan also noted that only three zoos in the nation exist today without tax support.

Housing Loans

Seminole Eyes Probe In Orange

By TOM GIORDANO
Herald Staff Writer

Seminole County will monitor closely the sale of homes under a special program providing low-interest loans to qualified buyers as a result of a probe in Orange County that disclosed abuses in the program.

At least one Seminole County real estate agent is among the more than a dozen agents and homeowners under investigation by the Orange County Housing Finance Authority for allegedly misusing the program. They are accused of purchasing the homes as investments rather than as primary residences, as required by law.

The Seminole County real estate agent was identified as Gertrude Nash, an agent with Tuskawilla Realty in Winter Springs.

Ms. Nash, according to the housing authority, bought a home in Apopka for $55,900 under the program at 11.5 percent interest, and a week later advertised it for rent. Homes bought under the program are specifically for people with modest incomes and first-time homebuyers who intend to live in them.

Ms. Nash said this morning she has sold the home in Apopka for $58,000. She also said she was unaware of the rules prohibiting renting homes bought under the low-interest program, although she signed documents twice before the closing indicating she read the stipulation.

The Orange County project was established in 1980 under a bonding program that provided home mortgage money at 11.5 percent — about 4 to 5 percentage points lower than conventional mortgage rates — to first-time homebuyers whose annual income met the requirements.

More than 2,400 homes were financed under the program at the low interest rate, and a recent spot check of about 100 sales disclosed the violations, according to Sam Mazzotta, executive director of the Authority.

He said at least 13 cases have been discovered where individuals bought the homes as investments. Five of the 13, he said, are real estate agents and eight are individuals, all of whom either bought for themselves or relatives. He said he is continuing his probe and expects to find more violations.

Although Seminole County was not involved in that 11.5 percent bond issue, there may be more Seminole Countians who bought homes under the program a year and a half ago.

Seminole County, on Feb. 1 this year, joined with the Orange County Housing Finance Authority as part of a three-county project to provide 13 percent home mortgages under the same bonding program. Lake is the third county in the tri-county arrangement.

Since Seminole County joined, there have been at least 15 homes sold in Seminole under the program, according to Jim Easton, assistant Seminole County administrator and liaison in the low-interest mortgage program.

Easton said today since learning of the violations from the earlier Orange County bond issue, he has thoroughly reviewed the contracts on the 15 sales in Seminole County under the 13 percent bond issue.

"I've looked at them closely, and it appears at this time that they are clear of any violations. However, I intend to go over them a second time to make sure and to monitor very closely future sales under this program in Seminole County," Easton asserted.

"What needs to be made clear here," Easton emphasized, "is that when we (Seminole County) joined with Orange and Lake in February, it was with the understanding that Seminole

Murder Trial Jury Still Out

By TENI YARBOROUGH
Herald Staff Writer

A 30-year-old Midway woman could receive a death sentence if a Seminole Circuit Court jury returns a verdict of guilty today in the case involving the Dec. 26 shooting death of her estranged husband.

Gloria Jean Neal Harrison, of 2301 Dollar Way, is accused of killing Ronald "Doc" Neal, 34, formerly of State Road 46, Midway, on the day after Christmas at the Club Two Spot bar. Bernice Golden, 46, of Broad Way, Midway, who was a patron in the bar on the night of the shooting was also injured during the incident.

After two hours of deliberation Wednesday, jury members unable to reach a verdict asked to hear again the 30-minute taped interview in which Ms. Harrison admitted shooting her husband.

Prosecutors claim Mrs. Harrison entered the bar with a friend and argued with Neal. Neal punched Harrison's male friend when he intervened in the argument and Neal also struck Mrs. Harrison, who left the bar claiming she would kill Neal. About 20 to 30 minutes later, Mrs. Harrison returned to the bar with a gun, fired at Neal who pulled Ms. Golden in front of him as a shield according to Assistant State Attorney Steve Plotnick. Mrs. Harrison continued shooting, wounding Mrs. Golden and killing Neal, Plotnick said.

Marlene Alva, Assistant Public Defender, argued that her client did not "single out" Neal but came into the bar waving the gun wildly, adding that the shooting "was a crime of passion" and not "premeditated." Mrs. Alva also objected to the taped interview being played for jurors.

Prosecutors said Mrs. Harrison, who is charged with first-degree murder and aggravated battery, could face life imprisonment and a minimum sentence of 25 years in jail, if convicted.

Crowds Cheer As Rapist Is Led Back To Prison

TRENTON, N.J. (UPI) — Joseph "Jo Jo" Giordanni, the 365-pound rapist whose release from jail caused a national outcry, was back in custody today to serve a 15-year prison sentence to the glee of crowds who cheered as he laboriously climbed into a police van.

Another Air Force Crash

Rescuers searching in heavy rain found the wreckage of a military cargo plane that crashed in the Tennessee Appalachians with a nine-man crew, but saw no sign of survivors today. A helicopter crashed in the South Dakota hills — the third fatal Air Force accident within 24 hours.

A UH-1 helicopter went down Wednesday while working near Minuteman missile silos about 20 miles of Ellsworth Air Force Base, S.D., killing one crewman and injuring two.

An Air Force jet en route to Ohio from California crashed during a thunderstorm late Tuesday in southern Illinois, killing the pilot.

The Air Force did not announce the causes of the crashes.

No Way To Balance Budget

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Balancing the federal budget is not a realistic possibility in the next three years, the Congressional Budget Office predicts, predicting deficits averaging $155 billion unless Congress acts.

More taxes will have to be imposed and further cuts, including some in Social Security, will have to be made to lower the deficit, the budget office said.

In its mid-year economic and budget review Wednesday, the CBO projected the deficit will climb from $112 billion in fiscal 1982, which ends Sept. 30, to $155 billion next year, even if Congress enacts the remaining spending cuts called for in the 1983 budget resolution.

Chicago, Miami Bid For Fair

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Chicago and Miami are in fierce competition over which city will get a chance to host a 1992 World's Fair to commemorate the 500th anniversary of Columbus' discovery of the New World.

President Reagan will make the final choice between the cities, possibly as early as Oct. 25. Then the Bureau of International Expositions in Paris will decide between the U.S. winner and another contender, Seville, Spain.

WEATHER

NATIONAL REPORT — Flash-flood waters swirled 4-feet deep through streets in east Tennessee, but receded almost as quickly as they rose during a second day of torrential rains. Portions of the Plains and Southwest baked under temperatures that topped the 100-degree mark Wednesday. The Midwest was plagued with heavy rainstorms that set off minor flooding in western Indiana and damaged crops in northwest Iowa with hail and winds up to 80 mph. Southern California suffered through its smoggiest day of the year, wilting under temperatures that hit 108 degrees in San Bernardino, 107 in Burbank and 95 in downtown Los Angeles. El Paso's 104 degrees was its warmest September reading ever and Palm Springs, Calif., registered 118 degrees. Flash-floods, rising to 4-foot depths, surged through eastern Tennessee, forcing up to 300 people to flee their homes in Clinton. Students at David Crockett High School in Jonesboro were stranded for a while as they waited for waters to drop from the bridge that led out of school. Up to a half-foot of rain in the last two days was blamed for the latest round of floods. In Iowa, 80 mph wind gusts crashed through Pringhar and Sioux Center, snapping trees, power lines and heavily damaging some crops.

President Reagan Calls For Palestinian Self-Government

BURBANK, Calif. (UPI) — President Reagan, stepping out of the traditional U.S. role of Middle East mediator, spelled out a precise, "fresh start" in American policy toward finding a home for the region's displaced Palestinians.

While grounding his comments with the vow, "America's commitment to the security of Israel is ironclad, and I might add, so is mine," the president, in a surprise address to the nation Wednesday, called for Palestinian self-government in the Israeli-occupied West Bank and Gaza Strip, under Jordan's guidance.

He said the plan, first proposed by the Israel rejects Reagan's proposal on Palestine.

late Egyptian President Anwar Sadat, would "involve an exchange of territory for peace."

He warned Israel against expanding its settlements in its occupied areas of the West Bank and Gaza and said the United States would not support an Israeli annexation of those lands.

But even before Reagan spoke, Israeli officials vowed to resist any U.S. attempts to sidestep the Camp David formula for Middle East peace and said they would "never allow" the creation of a Palestinian state in the West Bank or Gaza.

When Israeli Prime Minister Begin received the Reagan proposal in a letter Tuesday, he cut short a vacation and scheduled an emergency meeting of his Cabinet today to review the new U.S. stand.

It was uncertain how Jordan's King

Hussein would react. Reagan did not detail the exact relationship envisioned between Jordan and autonomous Palestinians in the areas currently administered by Israel.

Reagan was lauded by two Republican senators for making a "courageous" proposal in his surprise nationwide television address on the Middle East.

But a House Democrat said Reagan had damaged the role of the United States as a mediator by laying down conditions in advance for Israel to accept as part of a comprehensive Middle East peace.

"I'm afraid the Israelis are going to panic and that will just blow the whole show," said Rep. Benjamin Rosenthal, D-N.Y.

Officials of major Jewish organizations said they were pleased Reagan reaffirmed the U.S. commitment to Israel's security and ruled out support for an independent Palestinian state.

Sounding weary of the continuing Middle East conflicts, Reagan said the now-completed evacuation of PLO fighters from Lebanon offers a chance for "a more far-reaching peace effort in the region — and I was determined to seize that moment."

The president said the defeat of the PLO did not diminish "the yearning of the Palestinian people for a just solution of their claims; and ... while Israel's military successes in Lebanon have demonstrated its armed forces are second to none in the region, they alone cannot bring just and lasting peace to Israel and her neighbors."

He said he would never ask Israel to live in the shadow of enemy guns, but feels "a new realism" is demanded in the area. A vital part of the new process would be recognition of Israel as a state with "unchallenged legitimacy."

"Israel exists," he said. "It has a right to exist in peace behind secure defensible borders." But he added, the Lebanese war "dramatizes more than ever the homelessness of the Palestinian people."

He emphasized details could be worked out in negotiations but the important thing was to get on with the peace process.

After a week at his mountaintop ranch near Santa Barbara, Reagan was in good spirits in the television studio.

A roar of laughter went up as he, apparently unaware his preparations were being monitored by reporters in a nearby press center, looked into the camera and said, "Welcome to 'Death Valley Days,'" a reference to the television show he hosted for a number of years.

Court Clerk Freed; Probe Continues

By TENI YARBOROUGH Herald Staff Writer

A Seminole court deputy clerk is free from the county jail under the pre-trial release program today following her arrest Wednesday on charges of unauthorized practice of law, witness tampering and attempted evidence tampering.

Mary Ann Knight, 34, of 3644 Main St., Sanford, was arrested at about 10:30 a.m. following a probe by State Attorney's Office (SAO) investigators into allegations the eight-year-veteran deputy clerk prepared legal documents for a Sanford woman, charged the woman $180 for the work and later offered her $50 to destroy evidence in the case and disavow her claims.

Ms. Knight, a deputy clerk and clerk's office Microfilm Department supervisor, was suspended without pay Aug. 24, said Clerk of the Court Arthur Beckwith Jr. Beckwith said Ms. Knight will continue in that status until her case has been resolved through the court system.

Ms. Knight, who has vigorously denied the charges, is slated to appear before County

MARY KNIGHT ...free on pre-trial release

Judge Alan Dickey Sept. 17 to enter a plea of guilty or not guilty, clerk's office personnel said. If a not guilty plea is entered, a trial date will be set.

Ms. Knight could face a maximum sentence of five years in jail and a $5,000 fine if she is convicted of the felony charge of witness tampering, prosecutors said. The remaining charges are misdemeanor offenses carrying a maximum penalty of one year in jail and a $1,000 fine each.

Investigator Douglas Huth of the SAO Consumer Fraud Division said today his investigation reveals Ms. Knight may have been preparing divorce and property documents, offering legal advice and accepting payment for her work "for about five years according to witnesses we've talked to and evidence in the case."

Huth said his department will continue to seek those people who may have had such dealings with the deputy clerk, adding that if someone has had such dealings with Ms. Knight, they should contact the state attorney's office immediately.

"It is doubtful that we'll put additional charges on her unless we get hit with something out of left field although I don't expect to," he said. "We won't pursue the extra income angle and taxes but if the IRS (Internal Revenue Service) wants to look into that, fine."

"We probably won't do anything more than talk to additional witnesses and other possible victims between now and the time she goes to court," Huth said. "We won't do anything that even hints of overkill in this thing."

The allegations against Ms. Knight came to light during divorce proceedings before

County Judge S. Joseph Davis Jr. several weeks ago when Beatrice Lee Baker of 2411 Granby St. in Midway, told Davis she needed to seek information from Ms. Knight concerning a matter in the case, adding that Ms. Knight had prepared her divorce case and she paid Ms. Knight $180 cash for her work.

Davis turned the investigation over to the State Attorney's Office, which completed its investigation Tuesday.

According to Beckwith, no one except a licensed lawyer is permitted to offer legal advice or prepare legal documents on another's behalf for profit.

Ms. Knight is not a licensed lawyer, Beckwith said. He added his office will determine whether or not Ms. Knight acted improperly as a member of the clerk's office after the court process is completed.

Ms. Baker also told Huth she and her daughter, Mary Daugherty, were offered $50 by Ms. Knight to destroy courtroom instruction notes "in Ms. Knight's own handwriting," and to disavow her claims. The money and other information was turned over to Huth, as evidence in the case.

Sanford Woman Shot After Lovers' Spat

A 24-year-old Sanford woman was listed in satisfactory condition today at Central Florida Regional Hospital after she was shot in both legs in her home at 12:30 p.m. Wednesday.

Gloria Ann Bennett, 32 Lake Monroe Terrace, told police she was shot with a .22-caliber handgun by an ex-boyfriend after the two argued. Ms. Bennett also told police she was shot after telling her ex-boyfriend that she did not want to date him any longer.

Hospital officials said the bullet fragment went through Ms. Bennett's left thigh and lodged in her right thigh. Police are continuing their investigation of the shooting, however, no arrests have been made.

MURDER PROBE CONTINUES

Winter Springs police today said that their probe into Tuesday's murder of a 31-year-old woman in her Highlands condominium is "progressing" but that no arrests have been made.

Barbara A. Gilmore, of 60-37 Sheoak Blvd., was found shot to death and lying in a pool of blood in her home at about 9:30 a.m. Tuesday after her employer went to her home when she failed to report for work. Ms. Gilmore, who moved to Winter Springs about nine months ago, was shot in the head and back, possibly with a .22-caliber handgun, police said.

Police declined to disclose details of their investigation, saying only that it does not appear that burglary was the killer's motive because nothing appears to have been stolen.

Neighbors told police that the 31-year-old Michigan-born woman was a private person, keeping pretty much to herself.

Police said she was in the process of a divorce and had no children.

Investigators said Ms. Gilmore may have been shot at about 2 a.m.

DOORS STOLEN

Eight doors were taken from a home under construction at 156 Wildwood Drive, Sanford, between 5 p.m. Friday and 8 a.m. Monday.

Police said someone broke into the house and stole the doors, valued at $300.

ROTC Program For LMHS OK'd

A junior Marine ROTC program for Lake Mary High School has been approved by the Department of the Navy. Lake Mary Principal Don Reynolds said Secretary of the Navy John F. Lehman gave his approval to the program earlier this week.

The program now becomes eligible to receive supplies from the Navy. Some supplies already have been delivered to the school from Apopka High School which also operates a junior ROTC program.

The program had been offered for Lake Mary students this year without formal approval by the Department of the Navy.

Comptroller Has Alibi For Strongarm Attempt

TALLAHASSEE (UPI) — Comptroller Gerald Lewis, involved in a bitter election battle to keep his job, was at the Hyatt Regency Hotel in Tampa when two of his associates allegedly tried to muscle $65,000 in campaign contributions from a pair of banking institutions, according to radio reports.

Louie Wainwright Jr., Lewis' campaign manager, said the comptroller was asleep in his room while the meeting took place July 8 and was not a participant, Florida Network said Wednesday in a copyrighted story.

Lewis, who is seeking a third term as Florida's top banking officer, had said previously that he was asleep during the meeting but had never specified where.

During that meeting, former campaign aide Mary Repper said she was pressured by Wainwright and former Deputy Comptroller Raymond "Vic" Vickers to raise $25,000 from the Exchange Bank of Tampa and $40,000 from North Carolina National Bank, a bank holding company seeking a merger with exchange.

Deer Hunt Area Reduced

FORT LAUDERDALE (UPI) — This fall's curtailed deer hunting season will go on in the Everglades without flooded Conservation Area III, the subject of the "mercy kill" controversy this summer.

Game commission spokesman Biff Lampton said the deer herd in the southern portion of the conservation area had been stabilized by the disputed "mercy hunt" but the population is still low. The herd there was reduced by 723 deer in the hunt.

In the northern portion of the conservation area, in which hunters were not allowed during the summer hunt, many of the deer have been wiped out by starvation and disease, he said. High waters from flooding have destroyed their food supply, the reason for the hunt.

Refugees Won't Be Punished

MIAMI (UPI) — Immigration officials say three freed Haitian refugees who failed to report for hearings or their sponsors won't be punished because they didn't know they were doing anything wrong.

"Apparently there was some confusion in their minds about exactly what they were supposed to do, but they contacted us," said Beverly McFarland, a spokesman for the U.S. Immigration and Naturalization Service.

She said the court order freeing the Haitians "specifically said inexcusable failure" to comply would be the only grounds for re-detaining the Haitians, some of whom had been held for more than a year in camps located in six states and Puerto Rico.

WORLD IN BRIEF

Israel Rejects Proposal For A Palestinian State

United Press International
Israel rejected President Reagan's new Mideast peace plan today, charging that it violated the Camp David accords and would lead to a Palestinian state on the West Bank threatening Israel's existence.

The Israeli Cabinet met for three hours to consider Reagan's initiative, which calls for self-government, under Jordanian supervision, for the Palestinians living in the Israeli-occupied West Bank and Gaza Strip.

There was no immediate reaction to Reagan's plan from the leaders of the Palestine Liberation Organization, but in Washington a PLO representative said it contained "many positive elements" and showed "compassion" for the Palestinian people.

In Lebanon, police rolled into west Beirut in their first serious attempt to restore order to the city since the 1975-76 civil war.

Dissidents To Be Tried

WARSAW, Poland (UPI) — Following bloody street clashes in which three people were killed and more than 4,000 arrested, Poland's military rulers plan show trials for leading dissidents accused of crimes "against the state and society."

Such trials would be the most important in Poland since the Stalinist era of the 1950s, but the statement did not name any dissidents who face indictments.

Nothing remains of the Burpee Building on First Street in Sanford where three men were killed Aug. 13 when a wall collapsed.

Wall Collapse Probe Results Expected Soon

Investigators from the Florida Department of Labor office in Tampa have completed their on-site investigation into the collapse of a wall at the Burpee Building in Sanford.

A spokesman for the Labor Department said the investigators are studying the information they accumulated to determine whether citations should be issued.

He said no information on the probe will be released until it is completed.

The Department of Labor investigates any industrial or construction accident which has a fatality. The collapse of the wall on First Street killed three men, including William Gracey, owner of the firm which was doing the demolition.

Sanford police earlier ruled that the collapse of the wall was the result of a strong gust of wind. They judged the incident an accident.

Teacher Strikes Hurt 150,000 Kids

United Press International
A bomb threat forced grade school children to evacuate a strikebound school in southeast Ohio — the most explosive of strikes by 6,800 teachers in five states, affecting almost 150,000 students.

Agreements were reached Wednesday in several of the nation's largest districts, including Philadelphia, Flint, Mich., and Providence, R.I.; but teachers in Detroit, St. Louis, Fort Lauderdale, Fla., and hundreds of other districts were still without contracts.

The Ohio dispute flared in New Matamoras, where the Wednesday morning bomb threat cleared an elementary school thought by non-union teachers. A teacher was arrested in the same county Tuesday and charged with disorderly conduct.

Police said substitute teachers were harassed while going to class and tires on a car belonging to one were slashed and windows smashed in others. A judge later issued a restraining order, limiting pickets to two per school.

In all, Ohio had 500 teachers on strike at schools with 9,600 students.

Strikes also affected 2,000 teachers and 61,000 students in Pennsylvania; 2,800 teachers and 48,500 students in Illinois; 1,000 teachers and 20,000 students in Michigan; and 500 teachers and 6,800 students in Montana.

Pay and classroom size was a factor in most of the strikes. A tentative agreement reached late Tuesday was made official Wednesday in Philadelphia.

By an 8-1 vote, the Philadelphia Board of Education approved a three-year contract with unionized teachers calling for an 18 percent raise in pay.

Nearly 34,000 students in Flint, Mich., were told to return to classes today after teachers agreed to a new pact also calling for 18 percent pay increases over three years.

But Detroit, a district with 200,000 students and 11,000 unionized teachers, moved closer to a strike as teachers resisted demands for concessions of up to $2,300 per teacher.

Game, Fish Agency Denies Wrongdoing

TALLAHASSEE (UPI) — Game and Fresh Water Fish Commission officials vow that they're not going to be dragged into the scandal over the misuse of state airplanes.

Auditor General Ernest Ellison questioned some commission airplane flights Wednesday, but officials of the agency quickly denied they have done anything wrong.

"Every flight we have made involved, a bonafide, legitimate game commission purpose," said Maj. Jimmy Jordan, deputy director of law enforcement.

"I don't believe you will see anybody get fired or have to retire or reimburse money to the commission because we just don't have that type of problem," he said.

Several Florida Highway Patrol officials, including director J. Eldridge Beach, and Chester Blakemore, state highway safety director, have lost their jobs for letting wives or family members accompany them on state aircraft or for other questionable use of the planes.

At least 15 people not working for the commission traveled on the agency's planes during the last 12 months and he is unable to tell from aircraft records whether the travel was for legitimate state business, Ellison said.

The auditor also questioned flights on game commission planes by three secretaries from the Lake City regional office and a flight by a commission radio teletype operator from Ocala who was off-duty at the time.

"I can honestly and safely say that any people who have ever been aboard a commission airplane were there for the benefit of the State of Florida and the game commission — without exception," Jordan said.

The 15 passengers whose trips were questioned by Ellison included U.S. Sen. Lawton Chiles, who wanted to fly over Osceola National Forest where phosphate strip-mining was being proposed, and a Palm Beach County judge who wanted to see if a manatee protection area was properly posted, according to Jordan.

The judge was hearing charges against people accused of violating manatee protection regulations and wanted to get a first-hand look at the protection area. And the commission was opposing phosphate mining in Osceola and happy to fly Chiles over the area in hopes that he too would fight the mining.

Jordan said the three secretaries were taken along on a routine law enforcement flight so they could become familiar with game commission operations because they to operate the Lake City radio network on a backup basis from time to time.

And the teletype operator wanted to go along on a law enforcement flight on her own time at night and was allowed to do so.

The FHP controversy prompted Ellison to launch a special audit into the use of airplanes by all state agencies. He will make a report in the next several months.

But his criticisms of game commission flights came in his annual audit of the agency.

Ellison complained that he couldn't tell from commission aircraft logs if all of the flights were proper. Jordan said his pilots simply are filling out trip records developed for state agencies by the Department of General Services.

Untangling Tape Tangle

There have always been some clashes of rights and interests for which no very satisfactory resolution is apparent. The home taping of copyrighted movies and records by millions of Americans would seem to pose one of those clashes.

Clearly, those whose labor and talent go into films, television programs, and records are entitled to copyright protection and full compensation for their work.

Ensuring this was no problem until the proliferation of home taping technology — audio and video cassette recorders — made it easy for anyone to build a home library of feature films and record albums without paying for them.

Enforcing the applicable copyright laws is next to impossible given the 98 million audio recorders already in homes and the forecast of up to 40 million video recorders expected to be sold by 1990.

The alternative urged by motion picture studios and the music industry is addition of a "royalty fee" onto the purchase price of audio and video recorders. The resulting revenue would be placed in a fund from which copyright holders would be compensated.

But the royalty fee would penalize relatively innocent consumers right along with those guilty of deliberate, repeated copyright infringement. Surveys suggest, for example, that most purchasers of video cassette recorders tape primarily for "time shifting" purposes rather than to build film libraries.

Should the video cassette owner who taps the Monday night movie because he is watching football on another channel have to pay a royalty fee on his equipment because someone else is building a film library?

And should everyone who purchases an audio tape recorder for whatever purpose be compelled to pay a premium because some use their recorders to expand an album collection without first buying a copy of so-and-so's greatest hits?

But if the royalty surcharge is inherently unfair, and it is, how can those whose livelihoods are earned in the entertainment industry be compensated for what amounts to the systematic theft of their work?

Imposing a royalty charge on tapes alone would shift more of the burden to those building film libraries and taped album collections. But even a surcharge on tapes would be too indiscriminate to pass a reasonable test of fairness.

Nevertheless, it would be infinitely preferable to the most drastic remedy favored by some in the entertainment industry when the debate over home taping first went to court six years ago. Courts hearing a suit filed by the industry against the Sony Corp. could have prohibited all future sales of video recorders in the United States.

That would have throttled a $1 billion per year market and effectively denied millions of Americans a technology they manifestly want.

As it is, a federal appeals court has already ruled that any video recording of copyrighted material without permission is illegal whatever the purpose. This decision, now under review by the U.S. Supreme Court, makes even the "time shifting" tapper guilty of copyright infringement.

If the appeals court ruling is upheld by the Supreme Court, Congress may be compelled to authorize some royalty fee arrangement as the cost of preserving home video taping in any form.

BERRY'S WORLD

"OK, so the Israelis want to play hard ball, eh?"

There seems to be something about political campaign signs, with the huge pictures of political hopefuls all jockeying for some lofty government post, that brings out the Rembrandt in some.

There are those people, usually of the younger persuasion, according to law enforcers, who just can't resist adding a mustache, beard or other physical feature to the political candidate's portrait.

There are still others who enjoy writing clever little words, most of which could not be printed in this column, on the face of billboards and posters and even others who just like to become human bulldozers and tear down the signs from their street corner where they maintain their vigil with countless other signs all bolstering their political favorite.

But, as creative as these people think they are being by rearranging the candidate's face or otherwise destroying or damaging or defacing the sign, the act is criminal, and if caught, the culprits will be arrested, according to Sheriff John Polk.

We all know or have at least heard that "boys will be boys" or "girls will be girls," as the case may be. But there is a difference in mischief and criminal mischief.

Criminal mischief is the charge that would be levied against a person who is caught vandalizing the political signs or any other sign, or property, Polk said.

If convicted of criminal mischief, a person could face a penalty of 60 days to five years in jail, depending upon the total cost of the property ruined, he said.

Polk said that if the damage totals $100 or less, it is a second-degree misdemeanor with a penalty of 60 days in jail. If the damage totals $200 but less than $1,000, the crime is a first-degree misdemeanor, with up to one year prison sentence. If the damage totals $1,000 or more, the charge is a third-degree felony with a maximum penalty of five years in jail.

Sheriff Polk says his department is obligated to and will strictly enforce the law, adding that he hopes parents will remember their obligation with regards to the actions of their children.

Economic Tragedy In Mexico

While the United States Congress wrestled over tax hikes and budget cuts last week, a different kind of fiscal chaos unfolded south of our borders. On August 12, the Mexican government ordered that all money in foreign currency bank accounts be withdrawn only in pesos. On Friday the 13th, the government closed all foreign exchange markets to the purchase of dollars.

The move was the latest in a series of shocks to the Mexican currency and Mexican economic stability, that has now forced the Mexican government to approach the International Monetary Fund, figurative hat in hand, for a $3.9 billion loan and assistance in renegotiating its foreign debt.

Last week, the U.S. Treasury loaned Mexico $1 billion, and private bankers throughout the world have agreed to make emergency loans at up to $2.5 billion. Fifty-five major U.S. banks are being asked to "voluntarily refinance" Mexico's $80 billion in debt: in a word, a bailout.

Mexico's latest fiscal crisis is a case study in socialist fiscal management, aggravated by worldwide recession. In the seventies, Mexico became recognized as one of the world's energy powers. With known reserves of more than 70 billion barrels of crude oil and natural gas equivalent, and the world's industrialized nations clamoring to buy, the Mexican government went on a borrowing and spending binge that rivaled the worst of the banana republics. The government of a painfully underdeveloped country saw nothing but flush times ahead. "You can divide the countries of the world into two types," said President Lopez Portillo in 1977. "The ones that have oil and the ones that do not have oil. We have oil."

Unluckily for Portillo, world consumption of oil has slumped precipitously. Revenues from Mexico's oil and gas exports, which skyrocketed from less than $2 billion in 1978 to $14 billion in 1981, will probably come in at around $11 billion for 1982. Government estimates, meanwhile, had been as high as $17 billion, and government spending rose commensurately. While the country basked in its oil wealth, other sectors of the economy remained stagnant or declined. While overall economic growth reached 8 percent, inflation was up to 30 percent.

Government spending soared to 14.2 percent of the gross national product in 1981, up nearly double the 7.6 percent rate in 1980. In February of this year, the government allowed the peso to float freely against the U.S. dollar. On the first day, it lost 28 percent of its value. Inflation ballooned, and is expected to reach 100 percent this year.

Today, an economy built on oil is drowning in debt. The government faces some $58 billion in foreign debt, with about $17 billion in loans due this year.

The freezing of foreign currency last week is both a sign that the Mexican government is simply unable to support its own currency, and a timely signal to U.S. policymakers. For years, Mexico has aped the worst wild-spending fiscal policies advocated and practiced by American liberals. The difference, of course, is that the United States has had a wealthy industrial economy to milk, while President Portillo and his predecessor, Luis Echevarria, have only the fleeting value of oil in the ground. But the distinction is only a quibble; the policy is the same.

The Mexican fiscal tragedy will last for years, and will plunge that nation back into bleak poverty, deprivation, and social turmoil. The stunted and scarred Mexican economy will remain, like a skull in the desert, for Americans to reflect on.

Lebanon Valley Booming Hashish Area

WASHINGTON—The military focus in the Middle East has shifted from Beirut to the Bekaa Valley in eastern Lebanon, where Syria and Israel are building up their forces.

At stake is one of the most fertile areas in the whole Middle East. But the most important crop isn't melons or wheat; it's hashish.

Intelligence sources in Israel, Lebanon and Washington agree that hashish production has increased since 1976, when the Syrians occupied the Bekaa Valley as a United Nations peacekeeping force. Some sources suggest that hashish is one reason Syria wants to stay in the valley.

A classified "narcotics intelligence estimate," prepared with the help of the CIA and shown to my associate Dale Van Atta, estimates that the valley's annual production of hashish is 230 to 260 tons—almost double what it was before the Syrian occupation. Nearly 75 percent of the crop has been going to Egypt each year, the report notes.

"Generally, only one crop is grown per year," the narcotics report explains. "It is harvested from mid-August to mid-September, before the advent of the rainy season."

In other words, the Lebanese farmers are harvesting their crop right now; at least, they're trying to. The intelligence experts say this year's hashish crop isn't nearly as big as usual, because of the Israeli invasion. But no one can even guess at the exact size of the crop because, as one report notes, "the flow of narcotics intelligence from Lebanon has been seriously curtailed because of the turmoil there."

Anywhere from 9,000 to 13,000 acres of the Bekaa Valley are devoted to cultivation of cannabis, the plant that produces marijuana and hashish. Because of the valley's lushness, an acre yields a 3,000-pound crop. This can be transformed into more than a ton of marijuana, or 35 to 60 pounds of hashish.

When the Syrians moved in, "some of the land abandoned by Christian villagers (was) confiscated by Moslem farmers and put into cannabis cultivation," the narcotics estimate reports. It adds that "the livelihood of two-thirds of the valley's population" depended directly on hashish cultivation under the Syrians.

Before the Israeli invasion, the Bekaa Valley was controlled "by approximately 20 family organizations," each of which had its own well-armed, para-military force whose arsenals reportedly contain automatic weapons and, in some cases, tanks," the report states.

From the Bekaa Valley, the hashish is taken to the Lebanese ports of Beirut, Tripoli

It's A Double Whammy

Today's subject is Subsidiary Communication Authorizations and we'll start at the very beginning with a definition.

A Subsidiary Communication Authorization — or SCA, as it hereafter will be referred to — is the portion of the frequency channel assigned to an FM radio station that is not used for the station's own transmission and can be utilized for specialized programming. For example, the ubiquitous Mutaz, religious and foreign language programs, financial reports and services for the blind.

The subject comes up because the Federal Communications Commission has in the works rule changes that would significantly affect who uses SCAs, for what purposes and — most significantly — at what price.

The changes apply in general to both commercial and public stations, but it is the effect on the latter that is of concern here. Restrictions on advertising and other remunerative activities in public broadcasting's regular programming already have been loosened, and it is proposed to extend this tilt toward commercialization to the SCAs.

This development does not distress the public broadcasters, for reasons to be discussed later, but it greatly alarms various organizations involved with services for the blind because most utilize public radio SCAs, either as part of a station's own programming or leased. In fact, reading services at present are by far the largest user of public SCAs.

The fear is that once these are opened to commercial interests, escalating rates will make continued use prohibitive for the blind services, most of which operate on minimal budgets with volunteer staffs and are already pinched for adequate funding.

"It's like a double whammy," a spokesman for the American Association for the Blind says.

Too true. Public radio is also in a financial bind. Federal underwriting, upon which it has been heavily dependent, is being cut back. In five years, it will be eliminated entirely.

National Public Radio, with which some 270 of the thousand or so non-commercial FM stations in the country are affiliated, is conducting a vigorous corporate underwriting campaign. But it isn't finding private enterprise as forthcoming as President Reagan has forecast.

New money has to be found somewhere else. NPR sees cashing in on the SCAs for, among other uses, a new satellite data transmission service as the only realistic source.

Not at the expense of the blind services if it can be helped, however. The stations now participating have indicated they wish to carry on.

There are in the United States a half-million legally blind individuals — those with vision that is 10 percent or less of normal. But the potential audience for the service is much larger. Some 3.1 million sufficiently handicapped in reading through poor sight or inability to hold printed material are also dependent upon radio services.

It is essentially a situation in which both parties are the good guys.

The visually handicapped are dependent upon the radio services and legitimately concerned about being priced out of the market.

But public radio has to find a replacement for federal dollars that already are in short supply and will be non-existent in five years.

The most promising potential solution is yet another proposed FCC rule change that would widen the present frequency bands assigned to FM stations. This would permit each FM band to carry two SCAs, one of which could be revenue producing and the other available for public purposes.

ROBERT WALTERS

Reagan Soars, For Now

WASHINGTON (NEA) — What apparently has just occurred to both the nation's economy and President Reagan's popularity is the political equivalent of a breath-taking maneuver regularly performed by stunt pilots at air shows.

After gaining altitude, the pilot forces the plane into a terrifyingly steep dive. Just as the aircraft appears to be irrevocably destined to plunge to the ground, it dramatically levels off and surges skyward again.

During the past year, the president's "economic recovery program" often had the appearance of a plane plummeting to its doom. The innocent victims of the presumably imminent crash included countless Republican candidates in this November's elections.

Now that plane has miraculously (if only temporarily) turned its nose up again, possibly requiring a drastic revision of the conventional wisdom that holds that the Republicans probably will suffer a net loss of 15 to 20 seats in the upcoming elections for the House of Representatives.

Interest rates are dropping precipitously. The major commercial banks' "prime rate" fell 3 percentage points, from 16.5 percent to 13.5 percent, in the month between July 20 and Aug. 20. That rate now is a full 7 percentage points below where it stood one year ago.

The stock market, in a truly dazzling performance, staged a rally of unprecedented proportions in only six business days, beginning on Friday Aug. 13 when the Dow Jones Industrial Average stood at a dismal 776.92 as the market opened.

When the market closed on Friday Aug. 20, the index stood at 869.29, representing a phenomenal increase of more than 92 points. More than 500 million shares of stock, a record-breaking total, were traded during the period.

Business failures, climbing almost steadily since last autumn and peaking at a post-Depression record high of 65.9 per 1,000 in June, dropped sharply to 53.3 per 1,000 in July.

Personal income increased 1.0 percent in July compared with the previous month, the largest gain achieved in almost a year. New housing starts surged in July to a level unmatched since the spring of 1981 and 33.7

percent higher than in June.

Reagan enhanced his prestige when he gained a hard-fought battle in his campaign to secure congressional approval of a tax bill providing the revenues necessary to reduce the huge deficits forecast for future fiscal years.

For the frosting on the president's cake, he scored a significant foreign policy coup when his personal emissary, Philip C. Habib, negotiated a disengagement of military forces in Beirut, thus defusing a potentially explosive situation.

Reagan's problems have hardly disappeared, however. There is, for example, the special irony in the fact that the economic forecast widely credited with touching off the frenzied stock market rally and accelerating the decline of interest rates was actually very pessimistic about the prospects for recovery from the country's deep recession.

"The present decline in interest rates will continue" because of "generally poor economic prospects," predicted Henry Kaufman, chief economist for the investment firm of Salomon Brothers. "A smart recovery in economic activity in the second half of this year is not likely to materialize."

The improvements in personal income, housing starts and business failure rates represented only modest advances following months of dismal performance. Unemployment still hovers near the very unhealthy level of 10 percent.

The president's congressional success in the struggle over the tax bill may come at a very high price to him — the alienation of the hard-core conservatives who long have been his most fervent and loyal political supporters.

For the moment, however, Reagan looks very good. He has repeatedly appealed for time to allow his economic program to take effect, voters (many of whom have suffered) generally have been patient — and now there are the first signs of at least a modest payoff.

The timing of that payoff is especially important because the crucial mid-term elections are only slightly more than two months away — and momentum and appearance invariably overwhelm substance and content in the political forum.

and Jounieh, where small craft like rafts or lifeboats deliver the stuff to ships waiting beyond the 12-mile limit.

Lebanese authorities have generally winked at the lucrative, illicit traffic. In fact, it is one of the ironies of Lebanon that the hashish trade has been one of the principal areas of close cooperation between Moslems and Christians.

"Traditionally, Christians have controlled most of the business and financial arrangements of the hashish trade, (including control of) two of the major hashish export cities in the north," says a classified government report. "Moslems, on the other hand, have been the hashish cultivators."

Clearly, this unholy alliance is still operational, waiting only for the Syrians and Israelis to settle their differences and let the hashish traffic get back to normal.

Greyhounds Must Heal To Be Contenders

"Our strong point was that we have five returning veterans in the skill positions, but now four of them aren't healthy. We're at the point now that time is running out for the injuries to heal."

— Bill Scott

By CHRIS FISTER
Herald Sports Writer

Don't be surprised if you see an ambulance hanging around the Lyman High practice field. Coach Bill Scott's Greyhounds have been giving the medical profession a lot of business lately.

"We're at the point right now that time is running out on the injuries healing up," Scott said. "Hopefully the injured players will get better within the next few weeks."

Adding to the Hounds misery is the fact that star running back Vince Presley is nursing a wound that could sideline him for as long as six weeks. Presley injured his leg playing summer basketball, according to Scott.

Injuries Hit 8 Starters

At least eight probable starters were struck by injuries either over the summer or during recent practice sessions. If the casualties keep piling up the Greyhounds are going to have a struggle in 1982.

Fortunately for Lyman, the first opponent on its schedule is Boone which is consistently the worst team in the Metro Conference as last year's 1-9 record attests. But, Scott's troops will have to be healthy for its second contest, a Sept. 17 battle with conference foe Daytona Beach Mainland.

Scott and his assistants, Doug Dane — offensive line, Dan Bridges — offensive backs, Dan Johnson — defensive line and Paul Thomann — defensive backs, are hoping the injuries will heal as the Greyhounds are considered contenders for the Five Star Conference title.

"Before we got into the injury situation we were definite contenders," Scott said. "If they heal quick enough we will be one of the teams that can be in the race for the conference title in the end."

The offense has been hit the worst by the injuries. Presley's running mate, Theo Jones has been hampered by a knee injury and is questionable for the season opener. "If he's (Jones) healthy he will get the nod at halfback because of experience. Other prospects at halfback include Phil Germano and Carl Simmons, David Jacobs and Gene Allen are running neck and neck at fullback, according to Scott.

The Greyhounds have experience at quarterback in senior Jerry Axley who will be counted on to lead Lyman in '82. Todd Marriott is one of Axley's main targets but the senior split end has been sidelined with a sprained ankle.

At flanker the Greyhounds also have experience but senior Willis Perry is still recuperating from an injury due to an automobile accident that occurred during summer vacation. John Poor and Robert Quesinberry are both steady at tight end.

Tschieder Bolsters Line

Scott said the offensive line should be strong this season if it can stay healthy. Chris Tschieder, a second team all-star guard as a junior last year, will anchor the offensive line as a senior at the right tackle position. Mike McFadden is the leading candidate at right guard. Adding to the experience of the offensive line is senior center Dirk Smith. However, Smith has been nagged by a hip pointer received over the summer. At left guard Scott will go with Graham Mays who is also a senior and at left tackle senior Chad Denny and junior Mark Schofield are battling for the starting slot.

Linebackers Key Defense

On defense, Scott has a talented corps of linebacker but lost most of his secondary and a few defensive linemen. "Right now the linebackers are the strength of the defense," Scott said.

Seniors R.J. Goida, Paul Arceky and James Pilot are the defensive line leaders while Tyrone Simpson will step in and start as a junior at defensive tackle.

Four rugged seniors make up the linebacking corps along with a promising junior. Mike Hill, Gene Allen, David Williams and Shane Harwell are the seniors who will lead the Greyhounds defensively while junior Paul Ellis should see plenty of action.

The defensive secondary may be the weakest part of the defense but with hard work Scott believes the defensive backs will be capable of handling their duties.

The secondary includes seniors Willie Pashe and Tarance Burden along with juniors Mike Battle and Greg Pilot.

In the kicking department, Tschieder is an outstanding place-kicker as is Robert Abernathy. Poor will handle the punting for the Greyhounds.

If Lyman wants to contend for the conference crown they have to avoid any further injuries at key positions. "The conference is a balanced one and there are four or five teams that could compete for the title. Whoever gets the breaks and stays healthy should win it," Scott stressed.

Did Wrong Way Perez Trip Put Braves On Right Path?

For a while, Pascual Perez, the Atlanta Braves' Wrong Way Corrigan, wasn't allowed to forget what he had done.

A couple of his teammates hung a road map of the city of Atlanta over his locker and inked in an arrow pointing to the stadium. You know ballplayers.

The Braves have quit kidding him, though. They think what he did while they were in a 19-of-21 tailspin turned everything around for them. They say Perez loosened all of them up with that crazy episode of his in Atlanta Aug. 19 when he couldn't find the ballpark and missed his pitching turn against the Montreal Expos.

At the time, the Braves were sinking fast. They had gone from leading the National League West by nine, to four games behind the Los Angeles Dodgers. But after beating the Mets Sunday, they were back on top again with eight victories in their last nine.

Perez has become their good luck charm. What happened that day to the skinny, 24-year-old, right-handed Dominican was just what they needed. "I think that did it for us," Manager Joe Torre says. "It got everybody laughing and forgetting their problems. Maybe we needed something like that."

Perez shrugs off the whole thing now. "Nobody's perfect," he says. "I didn't try to get lost. It just happened." Bobby Watson, the Braves' first baseman, told Perez it could've happened to anyone. Not only that, Watson said, it happened to him the first day he drove to Atlanta-Fulton County Stadium.

"I live in the same area, College Park near the airport, that Pascual is staying in," Watson explains. "The first day I drove to the ballpark I left in plenty of time but I made a wrong turn — I can imagine myself driving in his country and doing the same thing. It's no fun, either, when you don't know the language that well. I really felt for him."

Although the Braves now laugh over what happened to Perez, they were concerned when he was supposed to pitch and didn't show up.

"They called his home and his wife said he had left two and a half hours ago," says reliever Gene Garber. "We know one of two things happened — he either got lost or had an accident."

Darrel Chaney, who played with the Reds and Braves and now is part of Atlanta's broadcasting crew, claims most fans in this country aren't aware of the problems Latin players encounter traveling and living here.

"If the positions were reversed, we wouldn't have a prayer in their place," he said.

Milton Richman

UPI Sports Editor

The Braves got Perez last July 27 when they traded Larry McWilliams for him. Perez has pitched well for Atlanta although he still doesn't have a victory to show. He lost his third game of the year Monday night at Philadelphia.

When Perez didn't make it to the park on time to start against the Expos Aug. 19, Phil Niekro replaced him and was the winner with the help from Garber.

The following night, Perez started against the Mets, held them scoreless for nine innings, gave up a homer to rookie Brian Giles in the 10th and was replaced by Steve Bedrosian, who was the eventual winner when the Braves rallied for two runs in the bottom of the inning.

Torre likes Perez. The Braves' manager likes his aggressiveness. "He told me 'Don't forget to bring a check tomorrow' when I came to the park the day I got lost," Perez laughs.

Torre was informing him it would cost him a $100 fine. Perez paid it. The Braves' pitcher had gotten his Georgia license only the day before. He had left his wallet home and when he had to get gas, he didn't have the money to pay for it. The gas station operator trusted him for the money when Perez told him he pitched for Atlanta. The man still hasn't called to ask for his money and Perez doesn't remember his name.

Perez now knows how to get to the stadium in Atlanta and on the road stays with the team bus instead of taking a taxi.

"When I was still playing for the

Braves Win Again,

Lead Grows To 1½

Mets, I got in a cab once and told the driver, 'Take me to the Stadium,'" Torre remembers. "I meant Shea Stadium; he took me to Yankee Stadium."

"Sometimes, I get in a cab, tell the driver to go to the ballpark and he'll say, 'Is there a game today?' Or when we're in Cincinnati, the cabbie will turn around and ask us, 'You here to play the Reds?' 'No,' I say to him. 'We're here to play the Chicago Cubs.'"

Martina Follows McEnroe Advice, 'Hurry Up And Win'

NEW YORK (UPI) — John McEnroe didn't even take the time to complain. He just packed his gear and ran off the court.

McEnroe, the top seed and defending champion, departed because he couldn't see. With his opening-round match at the U.S. Open against Tim Gullikson tied, 3-3, the lights went out on the National Tennis Center's stadium court. By the time they were turned back on, it had started to rain. The match is to be continued this afternoon.

Martina Navratilova, after enduring a shower that delayed the start of her match 44 minutes, trounced Laura DuPont, 6-1, 6-1, in 47 minutes.

"John (McEnroe) told me to hurry up and win," said the No. 1 seed, bidding for her first Open singles title. "So I followed his advice."

Jimmy Connors, the second seed, Tracy Austin (3) and Andrea Jaeger (4) also won opening matches, but Vitas Gerulaitis and Jose-Luis Clerc fared as poorly as the weather.

Gerulaitis, the fifth seed, was upset in straight sets by Fritz Buehning, 6-4, 7-6 (7-4), 6-3. Clerc, taken to an exhausting fifth set, lost to Kim Warwick of Australia, 3-6, 6-4, 1-6, 6-1, 7-6 (7-3).

Gerulaitis said "everything went wrong," and he had difficulty adjusting to Buehning's serve-and-volley. "Nothing clicked at all," he said.

Clerc said he was pleased with the way he "managed to hang in there." "Of course I'm disappointed, but I really blew the tiebreaker and I guess I didn't deserve any better."

Navratilova, seeking to complete a personal Grand Slam, termed her match with DuPont "just a breeze."

She can win a $1 million bonus from a clothing manufacturer should she complete a sequence of winning four Grand Slam events.

Connors was taken to a tiebreaker in the opening set against former UCLA teammate Borowiak but didn't have much difficulty in his 7-6 (7-5), 6-2, 6-3 triumph.

"It was a good tuneup," said Connors. Jaeger, who has been beset with shoulder and back problems, posted a 6-

NFL Owners Say 'No' To Lockout

NEW YORK (UPI) — NFL owners, stalled in their negotiations with the Players Association, Wednesday rejected the possibility of a lockout.

In a possible pressure tactic by the owners, the decision ensures that if the football season is interrupted it will be because of a job action by the players.

"Owners have decided to open the season, although from a labor relations standpoint, a lockout would be the wisest course," said Jack Donlan, the executive director of the NFL Management Council.

"We all know the union has made every attempt to avoid sitting down at the bargaining table and now they have rejected our call for federal mediation because they know the federal mediator would force them to respond to our July 13 proposal.

"The lockout rejection was unanimous and the decision was made out of respect for the fans, who deserve to see pro football, and for the players, who have worked hard during training camp."

Donlan said the decision applied to all games this season.

The NFLPA met in Chicago Monday and said it would strike unless ownership had direct representation at the bargaining table. The players refused to set a strike deadline and said no job action was likely before the start of the season.

Pro Football

The players are asking for 55 percent of gross revenues, a demand the owners have dismissed.

"They (the owners) have put it back to us, and that's where we've wanted it all along," Ed Garvey, executive director of the NFLPA told Cable News Network Wednesday night. "I never thought they'd seriously lock out."

Donlan claimed the union has not replied to the league's July 13 proposal, in which life insurance and medical benefits were doubled and major medical benefits appreciably increased.

"No one, not one person a year, ever turns down federal mediation, but they have done just that," said Donlan.

Donlan also said the NFL Management Council was working on a new proposal for the players, but it would not be ready by Friday. The Management Council's target for the final version of the new proposal is Sept. 8.

The proposal is to be presented to Garvey and the NFLPA by Kay McMurray, director of the federal mediation and conciliation service, or someone else appointed by the federal mediator.

Jai-Ali Opens Tonight

The Orlando-Seminole Jai-Alai fronton opens its doors tonight at 7 with Players manager Santi Echaniz expecting a banner year.

Echaniz, a former player who brought the local roster to a Grade A level last year with several excellent additions, has once again stocked the Fern Park complex with some more big-time stars.

The popular Echaniz procured Jesus, Zulaica II, Irazabel, Javier and Luis from Tampa as part of a lend-lease program initiated by World Jai-Alai Inc. More quality imports include hard-throwing Charola, Hartford's Gabiola and Chena, Daytona Beach's Arca and Las Vegas' Foruria.

In addition to the new-look of talent, the fronton has a scraped-look to the interior. Fourteen coats of paint have been stripped from the front wall and resurfaced with one coat to ensure lightning-quick returns.

Echaniz estimates the balls will come off the wall 10-12 miles per hour faster than last year.

The fronton, located at U.S. Highway 17-92 and State Road 436, is open for evening performances every night except Sunday at 7. There are three matinees weekly at 12 noon on Monday, Wednesday and Saturday.

'Canes, Gators Set To Battle

NEW YORK (UPI) — Traditional college football rivalries, such as Michigan-Ohio State and Penn State-Pittsburgh, are usually reserved for later in the year. However, there still are a few to go around at the start of the season.

While the 114th college football season officially opens Thursday night with No. 19 Brigham Young at Nevada-Las Vegas,

College Football

Saturday's Miami (Fla.)-Florida game at Gainesville, Fla., and Monday night's matchup between defending national champion Clemson and Georgia, at Athens, Ga., highlight the first weekend of action.

Miami (Fla.), coming off a year of NCAA probation and a 9-2 season, is rated 15th in UPI's pre-season rankings while Florida, still annoyed with its 26-6 loss to West Virginia in the Peach Bowl, is ranked 16th.

Simply put, these schools don't like each other.

"I've been waiting three years to be able to start against the Gators," said Miami kicker Jeff Davis.

Davis has been waiting for Danny Miller to graduate. It was Miller who kicked a last-second, 55-yard field that gave the Hurricanes a 21-20 victory over Florida last year.

The rivalry dates back to 1938 and currently stands at 22 wins for Florida and 21 wins for Miami. Since Schnellenberger took over at Miami, his Hurricanes haven't lost to the Gators.

Monday night's nationally televised game pits the No. 9 team (Clemson) against the No. 7 team (Georgia).

"It should be a magnificent spectacle," says Georgia Coach Vince Dooley.

Georgia leads the series, which began in 1897, 33-14-3.

The selections:

Clemson 24, Georgia 21 (Monday night) — Clemson quarterback Homer Jordan has a knack for finding the end zone while Georgia may have to play without Herschel Walker.

Others: Louisville 24, Western Kentucky 16;

Mara Leads League In Hospital Visits

FAST RUTHERFORD, N.J. (UPI) — One way or another, Wellington Mara generally can find something to smile about. That's his nature.

Apart from the Chicago Bears' George Halas, Mara has been involved with professional football longer than anyone else and all of his involvement has been with the New York Giants.

He's their principal owner and president now, but started as secretary of the club nearly a half century ago. That means he has been with the Giants in the good times and the bad, staying unobtrusively in the background for the most part while delighting with them in triumph and suffering with them in despair.

But, no matter how bad it got for the Giants, Wellington Mara always could find some reason to be hopeful, some reason to smile.

How can anyone do that in light of the news about their recently retired running back, Doug Kotar, who lies in the intensive-care unit of a Newark hospital with an inoperable malignant tumor in his brain?

And, quarterback Phil Simms is in the same hospital.

His season came to an end Sunday when he tore two ligaments in his right knee in the first quarter of a 22-10 preseason win over the Jets.

Wellington Mara is an owner, but at heart he's also a fan who lives, dies and bleeds with his players. He leads the league in caring, making hospital visits and showing personal concern, so you can imagine what a one-two to the stomach it was for him when he learned first about Kotar, then Simms.

If all that isn't enough, Mara also faces the distinct possibility of strike.

But he is far more concerned with Kotar, who underwent brain surgery a week ago, and Simms, operated on Monday.

"Doug, from what I understand, is very depressed," Mara said. "All of us want more than anything else for him to get well, but we realize the best thing right now is not to disturb him."

"It's just a shame what happened to Phil. He's going to be in a room next to Doug in the hospital. After being out because of that shoulder injury of his last year, he worked so hard during the off-season and was living for this year. He's a fighter and a tough-minded kid, though. He's not giving up by any means."

Baseball

Doc Medich may have found peace of mind with the Milwaukee Brewers.

With relief help in the ninth inning from Jim Slaton, Medich won his third game for the Brewers Wednesday night, a 7-3 victory over the Seattle Mariners that kept Milwaukee 4 1/2 games ahead of second-place Boston in the AL East.

"My pitching has improved quite noticeably since I came over here and started working with pitching coaches Pat Dobson and Cal McClish," Medich said. "(Before) I wasn't as able to get as much power and move the ball around as much."

Cecil Cooper and Paul Molitor hit two-run homers in support of Medich's five-hit performance in which he struck out seven and walked five to bring his record to 10-11.

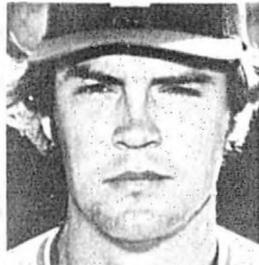

"He's done an outstanding job for us since he came over here," said Brewers' Manager Harvey Kuenn.

"We knew he'd be a good pitcher when we got him but he's done more than we ever expected."

White Sox 6, Indians 0
At Chicago, Jerry Kosman hurled a four-hitter and Aurelio Rodriguez had a two-run single to cap a four-run sixth inning, leading the White Sox to a sweep of their three-game series. The loss was Cleveland's seventh straight.

Rangers 7, Royals 3
At Kansas City, Mo., rookie George Wright and Buddy Bell homered to help the Rangers' Mike Smithson collect his first major-league victory.

Twins 7, Yankees 2
At Minneapolis, Gary Gaetti hit a two-run triple and Kent Hrbek cracked a two-run double to lead the Twins.

DOC MEDICH
Tonic for Brewers

Tigers 5, Angels 3
At Detroit, Alan Trammell drove in three runs with a bunt single and a triple and Mil Wilcox went a strong 8 2-3 innings, to pace the Tigers.

Orioles 5, Blue Jays 2
At Toronto, Jim Dwyer knocked in two runs with a solo homer and a single and Al Bumbry drilled a two-run double, lifting the Orioles to their fifth straight victory.

Red Sox 7, A's 4
At Boston, Jerry Remy, Jim Rice and Carl Yastrzemski singled home sixth-inning runs to lead the Red Sox to their fifth win in a row.

Mets End Losing Streak

National League

The Mets, staggering toward a club record, happily stumbled before they made it.

"I certainly didn't want 17 in a row," New York Manager George Bamberger said Wednesday night, after New York stopped two short of the club record for straight losses with a 5-1 victory over the Houston Astros. "But then, I didn't want 15, either."

George Foster drove in three runs with a two-run homer and a sacrifice fly and Pete Falcone hurled a six-hitter to help the Mets snap their 15-game losing streak.

In breaking the longest losing streak in the majors this year, Falcone, 7-8, also recorded his first win since July 21, striking out five and walking four.

"This is the first time in the last 15 games that we got good pitching, good hitting and played good defense all in the same game," said Bamberger.

Braves 4, Phillies 0
At Philadelphia, Bob Horner drove in two runs with a single and a double and Rick Camp and Gene Garber combined on an eight-hitter to lead the Braves.

Cubs 7, Giants 6
At San Francisco, pinch-hitter Jerry Morales' double capped a three-run sixth that rallied the Cubs.

Expos 2, Reds 1
At Montreal, Andre Dawson tripled home one run and scored another to support Randy Lerch, acquired by the Expos from the Milwaukee Brewers Aug. 14, who earned his first National League victory since Aug. 17, 1980.

Padres 4, Pirates 1
At San Diego, Joe Lefebvre, inserted in the lineup as a last-minute replacement, hit a solo homer in the fourth and drove home another run in a three-run sixth for the Padres.

Cardinals 6, Dodgers 5
At Los Angeles, Ozzie Smith singled home rookie Kelly Paris with the tie-breaking run with two out in the 13th to move the Cardinals 3 1/2 games ahead of second-place Philadelphia in the East.

Ready For A Holiday?

By JANE CASSELLBERRY
Herald Staff Writer

With summer vacations coming to a close, Seminole counties will have their final fling this Labor Day Weekend with backyard cookouts, picnics in the park and trips to the beach and the river.

The Sanford-Seminole Jaycees and Jaycettes will devote their holiday to hosting a phone center in Sanford for the Jerry Lewis Muscular Dystrophy Telethon. They will operate taking pledges for 24 hours beginning at 6 p.m. Sunday out of the Chelsea Title office in Sanford.

Labor Day, giving most employees a long weekend off.

Seminole County schools, financial institutions and post offices also will be closed.

There will be no garbage collection on Monday in Altamonte Springs, but in Sanford the usual pick-up schedule will be maintained.

In neighboring West Volusia County, the DeLand Chamber of Commerce is sponsoring a Labor Day Weekend festival that will include a series of events. It will include an "Anything that Floats" raft race on the St. Johns River sponsored by the DeLand Fireman's Association, a horse show, a boat race, fishing tournament, bicycle race and a hot air balloon race.

The Deltona Chamber of Commerce will sponsor an art exhibit, poetry contest and baking contest Saturday between 9:30 a.m. and 4 p.m. at the Deltona Community Center on Lake Monroe.

The Jewish Community Center at 851 N. Maitland Ave., Maitland, will sponsor Labor Day festivities on Sept. 6 from noon to 5 p.m. Plans for the day include family entertainment, pool games and poolside activities. There will be a Family Fitness program from 1 p.m. to 1:45 and a soccer clinic from 2:30 p.m. Refreshments will be sold and barbecue grills available. It is open to members and non-members.

...Zoo Move Opposed By Officials

Jack Hanna, executive director of the Columbus, Ohio, zoo, and a past director at the Sanford-based zoo, said his zoo receives tax support from the city of Columbus.

Val Colbert, one of the founders of Sanford's Interested Sarahs to Encourage Rejuvenation (SISTERS) also noted that tax support is a must. SISTERS worked from 1969 and thereafter to keep the old zoo and then to benefit the new one. That organization helped form the original Seminole County Zoological Society.

Others, meanwhile, like former County Commissioner Greg Drummond, past zoo board director Art Grindle, Sanford City Commissioner David Farr and past zoo director John Sobik, don't like the idea of tax support for the facility. Nor do they like the idea that the zoo operates with a $100,000 deficit each year. They support the zoo in Sanford, nonetheless.

Many simply want the zoo to stay where it is. And that list is long. And they are concerned about the animals' welfare.

Jack Horner, president of the Greater Sanford Chamber of Commerce, is only waiting for the word from the Central Florida Zoological Society officers to call a meeting of general community leaders to get the "wherewithal to print a brochure and promote the zoo."

"The community needs to be awakened to what the zoo's problems are. Maybe someone has land to donate. The zoological society should not give up on this area without giving the people and leadership a chance," Horner said.

"I don't think the zoo belongs in Orange County," he said. School Superintendent Bob Hughes, noting the school children of Seminole County continuously support the zoo with money they raise, collect or donate, said, "It would be tragic" if the zoo moved.

Grindle said he is against government funding for the facility. "We should try to do it ourselves." But he added that gate receipts are not enough to financially support the zoo.

Noting he is upset with the idea that the zoo may move, Grindle said, "I feel we've got a beautiful piece of land, an outstanding zoo, but there probably are problems with bringing people from all over Central Florida here."

"I would like the zoo to stay at its present location," Grindle said.

Hanna, gone from Seminole County for several years, said that he wouldn't want the zoo to leave the Sanford area. He said he still thinks of Sanford and Seminole County as his home. And he said he wants the zoo to be here when he returns.

Farr, now a Sanford City Commissioner and the county planner when first plans were made for the new zoo, feels problems at the zoo should be handled without "going to government for a hand-out."

But he hates "to see a one-of-a-kind thing like the zoo move from the Sanford area."

Former Sanford City Commissioner Gordon Meyer feels if the people don't financially support the zoo properly the only way to continue the facility will be through tax dollars. "There should be a referendum," he said.

Drummond called on the zoo board to look "for a sugar daddy other than government. If the soil conditions are bad at the zoo, something should be done," he said.

Sobik said he was not aware of any terrain problems at the zoo when he was on the board of directors. "But," he added, "if the only way to save the zoo is by its movin' to Orlando, I want to see the zoo saved."

... Housing Loan Probe Is Started

County or its taxpayers would not be held liable should there be a default on the bonds for any, I mean any, reason. It is understood and agreed to by the arrangement, that should there be a default for whatever reason, the Orange County Finance Housing Authority would be solely responsible."

In the Orange County issue, Mazzotta, concerned the Internal Revenue Service may abolish the financing program, said he would ask the housing board to turn the cases over to the authority's attorney for possible legal action.

"If the intent is to turn these houses into rental property, they are in violation, and that's a possible misdemeanor," said Mazzotta.

Housing authority investigators said in most of the cases under investigation, witnesses said the homes were purchased as investments.

If the authority can prove the buyers had no intention of living in the homes, then the financing institution that holds the mortgage can demand immediate payment in full. Mazzotta said the buyer also could face criminal actions for attempting to defraud the program.

If the authority takes no legal action, said Mazzotta, the buyers will still have to move in or sell the house.

IRS monitors the financing program to ensure home buyers meet income qualifications and residency requirements. Mazzotta said IRS has the power to stop the entire program and recall all of the 2,400 loans if the program has serious problems.

Gator Bowl Work Moves Forward

JACKSONVILLE (UPI) — Despite a labor dispute that threatened to stall Gator Bowl renovations, the stadium is expected to be ready for the Nov. 6 Georgia-Florida football game, officials say.

The dispute, which arose two weeks ago between Hobbs Construction Co. of Panama City and steelworkers from A.O.K. Steel Co. of Gainesville "has been resolved," City Engineer Stan Nodland said Wednesday.

"The project is on schedule and on some items they are ahead of schedule," Nodland said.

The labor dispute surfaced on Aug. 17 when at least 14 steelworkers walked off their jobs and threatened to shut down the renovation. They returned to work the next day, saying they were disgruntled because Hobbs had not paid them since July 22.

Company officials said Hobbs owed the workers about $80,000, but city records indicate the back pay was about $8,500.

Hobbs fired A.O.K., the subcontractor doing structural steel work at the complex, because of problems with the firm, Nodland said.

Heartless Daughter Speeds Dad's Death

DEAR ABBY Perhaps there's no answer for me, but I must try. Because of multiple medical problems, I'm dying much sooner than I should. My heart, however, is dying faster.

daughter everything she ever wanted. She is now 19, attending college locally — five miles from my home, and one mile from her mother's home. My daughter drives a beautiful sports car — a gift from me. She doesn't pay one cent for fuel, upkeep, repair, taxes, etc. I do. She has no money worries, thanks to the trust fund I established for her. She wears beautiful clothes and jewelry — gifts from me. Everything I own has been willed to her with no strings attached. All these years I have remained unmarried, and have skimped in order to give my daughter all these things.

My daughter doesn't come to see me. She drove over here seven weeks ago and stayed five minutes. She's never spent a holiday with me. Christmas Eve she came to pick up her presents and didn't even sit down. When she talks with me on the phone, it's always in a sarcastic, hateful manner. Once she came right out and told me she didn't care if she never saw me again!

I am barely able to move around and must remain on oxygen 22 hours a day due to cardiopulmonary disease. I am going into a VA nursing home because I can no longer care for myself physically. My daughter won't even consider handling things for me. She wrote saying, "I don't want you to talk to me about death." I haven't, but I do use the phrase, "If I'm not around anymore."

If anyone has any suggestions, I would appreciate them. However, don't tell me to tell my daughter I love her. I've told her a million times. BROKENHEARTED IN ABILENE, TEXAS

DEAR BROKENHEARTED: Your story is not new. ("How sharper than a serpent's tooth it is to have a thankless child!" — Shakespeare.) If there's a message in your sad letter, it's this: Love cannot be bought with money.

DEAR ABBY: There have been many theories explaining why some people are always late for appointments, meetings, engagements, etc., but do you have any idea why some people have a mania for being early?

C. IN THE BRONX DEAR C.: People with a mania for being early probably have a phobia about being late.

Problems? You'll feel better if you get them off your chest. Write to Abby, P.O. Box 38923, Hollywood, Calif. 90038. For a personal reply, please enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

MOTHER'S DAY MARIGOLD

Vicki Naipavel of Brownie Troop 569, Winter Springs, measures the 42-inch marigold she planted last Mother's Day under a tree. The marigold was 6 inches tall when planted and local nurseries say it is unusual to have grown so large.

Search On For Seminole County Junior Miss

Plans are being announced for the first annual Seminole County Junior Miss Pageant, to be held on Oct. 2, at Lake Mary High School at 8 p.m. The program is a project of the Altamonte South Seminole Jayceettes, P.O. Box 695, Altamonte Springs, 83701.

Adventure is the word for Seminole County Junior Miss which offers substantial scholarship awards, new friends, as well as the thrill of competition and accomplishment for the participants.

The local competition is part of a nationwide program to honor and reward the country's leading high schools girls for achievement in scholastics, creative talents, self-development and community betterment.

Some $2 million in college scholarships and other awards will be offered to Junior Misses at local, state and national levels this year. A total of $100,000 in scholarships, topped by a $15,000 prize to the 1983 America's Junior Miss, will be awarded at the National Finals in Mobile, Ala.

Winner here will represent Seminole County in the Florida Junior Miss program at Pensacola, on January 28-29, 1983, competing with others for the many scholarship awards and a chance to participate in the America's Junior Miss National Finals at Mobile.

"The nature of the Junior Miss program — the high ideals established and maintained throughout its 23 years — has earned the program approval of educators and civic leaders throughout the country."

Answer to Previous Puzzle

Be Sensible When Adding Salt To Diet

DEAR DR. LAMB — I am on a salt, soda and baking powder-free diet and would like some information on foods that are high in sodium. All of the canned vegetables contain salt and I understand that some do in their natural state. Any information you can give would surely be appreciated.

low in sodium with only 3 mg in 100 gm of shredded wheat. The role of sodium and potassium and their food sources are included in The Health Letter number 10-12, Salt: Your Vital Sodium and Potassium Balance, which I am sending you. Others who want this issue can send 75 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it to me, in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019.

DEAR READER — It would help to know why you need to restrict sodium. Almost everyone could benefit from limiting their sodium salt intake, unless a person is sweating a great deal and loses a lot of sodium that way. On the other hand, unless there is a medical condition that warrants severe salt restriction most people can tolerate a reasonable amount of salt and not be harmed.

DEAR DR. LAMB — I am troubled with a skin disease of red spots, particularly around my nose and cheeks. My doctor informs me that it is seborrheic dermatitis and that there is no cure for it. I asked about seeing a skin doctor for further help or treatments. Surely, somewhere in the medical world there is something to help eliminate this condition.

Usual medical problems that are benefited by sodium restriction include elevated blood pressure and fluid retention causing swelling from any cause. In the presence of a weak heart with fluid accumulation or shortness of breath, very good attention to salt restriction often significantly improves the person's condition.

DEAR READER — Your doctor is right in that there is no permanent cure but the condition can be treated with good results. You will probably continue to need treatment to control the skin disorder.

Normal people need about 200 mg of sodium a day, which is about 500 mg of sodium chloride. There is some sodium naturally in almost all foods. Food preparation often results in added salt, such as canning which you mentioned. The amount of sodium in relation to the amount of potassium may be important.

There are several different types of involvement with seborrheic dermatitis but that on the face is usually treated with a 1 percent hydrocortisone cream — not fluorinated. It will help to eliminate the red spots.

Ideally a person should get more potassium than sodium in his diet from fresh fruits and other foods.

The disorder is a close cousin to dandruff, which is scaling without inflammation. Your condition includes inflammation. It sometimes mimics other skin disorders. There is no reason why you can't see a dermatologist, and if you have not been receiving some atretic cream for your skin it might be a good idea.

Raw meat that has not been processed or cured in any way is relatively low in sodium compared to potassium. Ham, bacon and cold cuts are high sodium foods. In general fruits and vegetables are low in sodium unless you add salt in preparation and fruits are high in potassium. For example, 100 gm of green peas contain only 2 mg of sodium. Raw cereals are also

HOROSCOPE

By BERNICE BEDE OSOL

For Friday, September 3, 1982

YOUR BIRTHDAY September 3, 1982
Persons who have been helpful to you in the past will be the ones who are likely to give you the biggest boosts this coming year. Maintain solid relationships.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22)
In negotiating agreements today, try to be both flexible and cooperative. You still may not get everything you want, but you won't come out a loser. Predictions of what's in store for you in the seasons following your birthday and where to look for your luck and opportunities are in your Astro-Graph, Mail #1 for each to Astro-Graph, Box 489, Radio City Station, N.Y. 10019. Be sure to specify birth date.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 21)
Others are likely to make more demands of you today than usual, yet you could also reap surprising rewards by going out of your way to be helpful.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22)
Avoid groups or cliques today where there is a possibility that you might run into someone you're not too fond of. Spend time with your true friends.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21)
Be realistic today regarding your objectives. You are a very capable person, but it's wise to know your limitations.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19)
Do not discuss career matters today with persons you know from experience to be nonsupportive. Shun them in favor of your loyal allies.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19)
Be helpful to those who need your assistance today, but also be very careful about making loans. Try to supply the right advice, not dollars.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20)
Joint ventures offer promise, as well as complications, today. The degree of success will be proportionate to everyone's collective input.

ARIES (March 21-April 19)
You may have to contend with additional responsibilities not of your making today. Try not to let others take advantage of you.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20)
Even though you will be putting forth your best efforts in social situations, you might not be fully appreciated. Shrug off any objections with a smile.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20)
The degree that goals you establish for yourself today will be worth what it will cost you to achieve them. Avoid hollow victories.

CANCER (June 21-July 22)
There's a possibility your views today could seriously conflict with those of someone you're fond of. Disagreements must be patched up promptly.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22)
Be extra-careful in business or financial matters today. There is a chance you might make mistakes which would be hard to rectify.

WIN AT BRIDGE

The defense starts with four rounds of diamonds. South chucks her three of hearts and one of dummy's spades on the fourth diamond. Norma does not give East's discard, but we assume it was a club.

In any event West shifts to a club and South runs off four clubs while discarding her 10 of hearts. East hangs on to all four spades.

Now South cashes three top spades. The suit fails to break so she leads her queen of hearts in the two-card ending. West is too smart to cover and South is down one.

Norma points out that if South had chucked the queen of hearts instead of the 10 she could have finessed dummy's jack and made her contract.

Why would South take that heart finesse? Couldn't East have been dealt the king of hearts and four spades? Wouldn't that mean that a squeeze would be the winner and a finesse lead to two down?

Possible, but most unlikely. If East held the heart king he would have chucked a spade in the hope that South didn't hold four spades.
