Arab-Americans Back Group, Give To Palestinians

By DONNA ESTES
Herald Staff Writer

Central Florida Arab-Americans turned out nearly 300 strong Friday night to show their support for a new committee organized to aid Palestinians and Lebanese nationals in that war-torn country.

And they put their money in prepared envelopes to aid the newly organized American-Arab Anti-Discrimination Committee whose chairman, former U.S. Sen. James Abourezk, D-S.D., listed the priorities for using the money collected.

The three areas where the money will be used, Abourezk said, are:

- 1.) To help American Lebanese and Palestinians locate their family members in Lebanon.
- 2.) To give financial assistance to Palestinian and Lebanese attending school in the United States, who have lost their sources of support since the invasion of Lebanon by the Israelis.

— 3.) "Make a big push" to have the U.S. government allow 600,000 Palestinian and Lebanese refugees into the country as it has for nationals of other nations.

Abourezk said the organization currently has 7,000 dues-paying members and hopes to double that membership in a short time. "Then we will be able to influence the U.S. government in a positive way," Abourezk said. "We will not lobby for an Arab country, but for justice."

The meeting, held at the Syrian Lebanese American Club in Orlando, was billed as a public rally for "Americans Against Human Suffering in Lebanon."

Featured speakers included Abourezk, Rabbi Elmer Berger,

Elizabeth Elliot and club president Joseph F. Hatem Sr., Dr. John W. Livingston, introduced as a college professor of humanities and Middle East history, was master of ceremonies.

Each of the speakers attacked the government of Israel, comparing it to the fascists of Germany.

Hatem, disclaiming any affiliation directly or indirectly with the Palestine Liberation organization (PLO) or the governments of Syria or Lebanon, said for the first time in the club's 43-year history it was criticizing the U.S. government.

The aggression and murder upon Lebanon by the "renegade Begin government could not have happened without supplies by our government," Hatem said referring to Israeli Prime Minister Menachem Begin.

"The U.S. government is an accomplice in the degradation of Lebanon," Hatem said.

At this point, a man in the audience yelled, "I think you are wrong. I walk out." He left the meeting with two others.

Hatem, denouncing the "terrorism of the PLO, Israel and other nations," said "the Israeli armed forces have committed more acts of terrorism and aggression than has been committed by the PLO in its years of existence."

Comparing the Israeli invasion of Lebanon to the Russian invasion of Afghanistan, he said the war is a "repetition of the so-called holocaust suffered by the Jews in Germany."

Hatem said the Israelis have committed acts of terrorism and murder on a defenseless nation in the guise of self defense. Elizabeth Elliot, described as an assistant professor of Eleanor Anderson, Seminole County's director of the Office of Management and Budget, reviews the 1982-83 budget appropriations.

County Budget

Anderson Loves Her County Job

By MICHAEL BEIJA
Herald Staff Writer

As director of Seminole County's Office of Management and Budget, Eleanor Anderson is one of the county's most influential appointed officials.

But it hasn't been an easy road to success for Ms. Anderson. Her career in county government began at the lowest levels in 1962. After 20 years of hard work, drive, determination and achievement, she has become an active participant in every financial decision facing the county.

Her rise through the ranks of county government coincides with the explosive growth of government in the county. And she has carried the added burden of mothering two children and pursuing a college degree.

One quality which has remained a constant throughout her career has been a love of her work.

"I've always enjoyed my work here," Ms. Anderson said. "The people in this county have always been good to work for. There have always been opportunities."

Ms. Anderson was the county's first budget analyst, working with a consultant when the county first instituted an office of management analysis and evaluation in 1975. She remained in the office when it became O.M.B. and eight months ago she was promoted to director.

She's proud of the performance record which allowed her to be promoted.

"The county commission and other officials have always been good about giving people within the system a chance," Ms. Anderson said. "Roger (Nelswender, current county administrator) started out as planning director."

Her entrance into OMB was one of several major promotions received by women in county government in the mid 1970s but she refuses to believe the pressures of the women's movement had anything to do with her success or the success of several others who were moved into management positions.

"There were several women who came up through the ranks like I did who became department heads right before I went into OMB," she said.

"We've been lucky enough to have some very progressive people in county government who were willing to give women a chance. They weren't looking at whether you were a man or a woman, just whether you could do a job."

Ms. Anderson's professional success has not been without some personal problems. The long hours spent working for the county combined with the pressures of being a wife, mother and student broke up her marriage.

"I worked in a lot of aspects of county government, raised two children and went to school at night. I'm divorced and my career played a large part in it."

Ms. Anderson's position carries with it a lot of responsibility. "When I first started working for the county back in 1962, there was something like a $6 million budget. This year we've got $63 million in the budget."

The responsibility of compiling the budget figures falls upon OMB and the office oversees the overall figures but has day-to-day communication with the departments to manage the figures they submit.

But working on the budget is only a small part of OMB's overall responsibility. The OMB staff spends six months a year working on the county's comprehensive management program to analyze the needs of the county in coming years. The office also analyzes the county's programs to ensure their cost effectiveness and is beginning to perform management analyses as well.

"Most people feel the OMB's duty is to prepare the budget," she said. "That's true, but it's only part of the job."

"We're not a finance office. I don't like to be called finance director. We have one of those and it's not me," she said. "We're a budget office. We develop a program and then figure out how we're going to get there from here."

Ms. Anderson takes her responsibility very seriously feeling that OMB is a "watchdog" office, there to guarantee that the taxpayers are getting as much as possible for their tax dollars.

"One of our big responsibilities is to provide more input into the services people receive," she said. "It's a misconception that government is just spending money down the drain."

Ms. Anderson said the job is frustrating because people always think government is wasting their money. "They don't realize we pay low taxes here in Seminole County, yet they want more services."

County OMB Has Big Job

The Office of Management and Budget, responsible for compiling the county's $63 million budget, will spend $241,378 in fiscal 1982-83.

The duties of OMB, according to OMB Director Eleanor Anderson, are labor-intensive. That is, they require research and analysis by the staff. The department monitors the spending of the other departments and analyzes proposed projects to find the best, least expensive methods.

"We must do a lot of research — finding how things were done, how they're currently done and determine what are the best ways to do them in the future," she said.

When the department heads compile their annual budgets the figures are given to OMB to analyze. The purpose of those analyses is to determine the most cost-effective methods of accomplishing the goals in the budget.

After OMB completes its studies, the budget is put into book form and OMB's recommendations are passed along to the county administrator and then to county commissioners.

The office has undertaken several new projects including some projects which were previously handled by outside consultants.

OMB has taken over responsibility for the county's investments (investing money in county accounts on an overnight basis) and has begun performing some auditing functions. OMB also takes on unrelated projects like the sale of Seminole Memorial Hospital.

OMB, which was a one-person department in 1975, will have eight staff members soon. The budget for salaries and benefits in 1982-83 is $209,788. The director's salary is about $26,000.

The department's budget for operating expenses is $22,278 and $9,312 is budgeted for new equipment.

County, Sanford Officials Discuss Bug Control

Maybe there's a chance a cooperative, countywide mosquito control program can be undertaken in Seminole if not this year, next year.

Sanford City Manager W.E. "Pete" Knowles, even after a meeting with Roger Mulrennen Friday, was skeptical about whether such an arrangement requiring so much cooperation will come to pass.

Unsuccessful in reaching each other by telephone, Knowles went to Nelswender's courthouse office Friday and waited until Nelswender was free for a moment and could discuss the issue.

Knowles said Nelswender's staff was to meet later Friday to consider detailed methods and costs involved in mosquito control.

The city manager said he and Nelswender are to meet again in mid-week and see what evolves toward a countywide program.

After this meeting, Knowles said contact will be made with the other cities in the county to determine their interests and needs. "The results will then be brought to each governmental agency's elected officials for consideration," he said.

Even if there is agreement all around that a program is needed it will take some time before one can be in effect, he said.

If a countywide or even Sanford-operated mosquito control program is begun here, Dr. John Mulrennen, an entomologist with the State Department of Health and Rehabilitative Services, told Sanford Commissioners recently the state will help.

Mulrennen said the state would provide at least $15,000 in financial support plus 8 percent of the funds budgeted for the program.

He said the state would help set up the program and provide other expertise to make sure it is effective.

Mulrennen said a dual program would have to be undertaken to control the insect.

He said a specific type of chemical — an adulticide — would have to be used to eradicate the adult mosquito and a different chemical used to kill the mosquito larvae. He said the danger of using an adulticide, such as malathion, on the larvae is that the larvae will develop an immunity meaning the chemical will no longer be effective against the adult bugs.

Mulrennen said the mosquito problem has worsened since the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency and the state Department of Environmental Regulation has required developers to build drainage retention ponds on construction sites and to build swalls rather than curbs and gutters.

He said while the regulations are designed to protect water quality, the ponds and swalls actually provide a habitat for mosquito breeding.

Court Clerk Explains System

What To Do When You Need To File A Civil Suit

By TENI YARBOROUGH
Herald Staff Writer

Where do you go and what do you do after you get there when you want to "tell it to the judge?"

With its 91 employees spread out over two floors of the four-story Seminole County courthouse, the Court Clerk's Office is there waiting to "help you file lawsuit petitions, in some instances, serve as a collection agent of traffic fines, support payments and what-not and just assist people, lawyers and judges with the court process," according to Court Clerk Arthur Beckwith Jr.

Beckwith has served as the court clerk since 1960 with the help of his deputy clerk, Eloise Pfeiffauf, who has served since 1958. Together, they have seen the court clerk's responsibilities "mushroom" since Article V of the state constitution went into effect, outlining the court's duties," Beckwith said.

In 1971, the constitutional amendment changed the entire court structure dividing it into two levels — county and circuit courts, including county civil and county criminal, as well as circuit criminal and circuit civil cases.

But how do you know which court you should go to in order to take care of your particular problem?

"The simplest way of getting into court for claims under $1,500 is to go through summary court, or as most people call it, small claims court," Beckwith said. "On the second floor, our staff will assist you in filing your petition and handling paperwork to move your case through the system. No lawyer is required in this court although some people may opt to retain one."

"Small claims court cases are the only cases where the law and our judges allow us to help people with cases," Beckwith said. "Lawyers are required by people seeking damages over $1,500."

"Let me add, though, that the majority of cases in small claims court are disposed of before a judge ever sees it," Ms. Pfeiffauf says. "About 90 percent never make it to the judge because when people hear they are being sued, often that is enough to make them want to settle it out of court."

Beckwith says persons wishing to file cases seeking from $1,500 to $5,000 damages are directed to the county civil court where their lawyer files a petition on their behalf and starts the process through the system.

"However some of those cases may never go to trial but be handled in a hearing before the judge," Ms. Pfeiffauf says. "But all cases seeking over $1,500 in damages go to the judge for disposition."

Persons wishing to file suits seeking damages in excess of $5,000 are directed to circuit civil court, Beckwith says. Actions to change names, as requested by women, for example, who wish to retain their maiden name after a divorce or anyone else who wants to change his name, are also handled in circuit civil court, he adds.

But how much does all of this cost?

"Well, in cases where higher damages are sought, there will be a lawyer's retainer fee," Beckwith says. "And, the fees for filing will vary depending upon the size of the estate and damages sought. But, let me assure you, all of our fees are set as required by law. We don't set anything, the law tells us what to charge for what."

"In simple terms, we're also a big collection agency," Mrs. Pfeiffauf said. "Last year, we collected about $8 million and then turned that money over to the appropriate state agents, municipality or person who is to receive the money. We, ourselves, operate the office on a budget of about $1.9 million."

Mrs. Pfeiffauf also said the most rapidly growing area of collection comes from child support and alimony payments. "We collected over $4 million and dispersed it in this county in a period of one year," she explains. "The year before we collected about $3.5 million in support payments."

"We understand that when people come to see us in the clerk's office they are not happy about being here, or they're not happy about what is going on in their lives and they look at us as bureaucrats with a lot of red tape for them to cut through," Mrs. Pfeiffauf continued.

"That's why we have orientation for our new employees and explain that to them and remind them that people are not going to be happy about being here and to just assist them in any way possible. We have very capable workers here who can help if people will let them," she said.

"Probably the happiest people we see are those in here for marriage licenses and some for adoptions," Beckwith said.

"But few others are very pleased."

But how long does it take for a case to "go through the system," as Beckwith refers to the court system?

"If you've retained a good lawyer, who'll move that case through the system in a normal, routine manner, your case could be disposed of within three to four months," Beckwith said. "But I've seen cases drag on for months and years because of continuances and other motions."

Beckwith says cases are assigned to the county's three judges and circuit's five judges on a rotating basis, showing no partiality of cases to any judge.

"Each judge sees all types of cases within their jurisdiction or what is allowed by law," he says.

"If a judge has a conflict with a particular case, the chief judge of the circuit, S. Joseph Davis Jr., hears why and makes a determination if the case should be reassigned to any one of the other judges."

"We're fortunate," Mrs. Pfeiffauf said. "We have enough judges to keep cases going along so we aren't faced with backlogs and backlogs of cases."

"But one thing people should know," Beckwith added, "There are people in the clerk's office who are capable and qualified to help you and direct you through the process. And, if necessary, I and my deputy clerk are here to help."

Coast Guard Can Squeeze Offshore Drug Smugglers

ATLANTA (UPI)—The Coast Guard can seize drug-smuggling ships on the high seas without proving they were bound for the United States, a federal appeals court ruled Friday.

The 11th Circuit Court of Appeals cited law dating back to 1861 in upholding the convictions of nine Latin American men who were caught by the Coast Guard cutter "Dependable" had become "The scourge of drug traffickers plying the Caribbean."

The nine men were arrested 85 miles off the west coast of Cuba—about 300 miles from Florida—aboard the boat "Four Roses," which held about 57,000 pounds of marijuana.

The Four Roses was "a vessel without nationality," the court said.

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The chief accuser in the allegations of homosexual sex between pages and members of Congress insists it's true he had relations with three members of Congress, but admits he lied about the frequency of the acts.

Leroy Williams, 18, of North Little Rock, Ark., who flunked an FBI lie detector test, told reporters Friday his lawmaker-lovers were in the process of using their influence to help him when he decided to leave Washington.

Williams met with congressional investigators Friday and gave them the names of the three congressmen with whom he said he had relations and a senator for whom he alleges he arranged a meeting with a male prostitute.

Williams, a former page, said he had sex a total of four times with members of Congress and admitted he had said originally the liaisons had occurred more frequently.

"My story is true and I intend to stand with it," he said.

Urban Woes Are Local

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The Reagan administration is toning down its language but not backing off its contention it is basically up to the states and cities to solve the nation's urban problems.

In its long-awaited National Urban Policy Report, the administration said it intends to pass on "the maximum feasible responsibility for urban matters to states" and to "limit federal government responsibilities to those matters where a clear national interest is at stake."

Judge Denies Downtown Suit

G. Algernon Speer and his nine downtown property owners have no recourse now but to the Fifth District Court of Appeal in their lawsuit challenging Sanford's downtown development plan.

Circuit Judge Roger Dykes Friday night denied Speer's petition to rehear the case. Speer had asked the court to issue an injunction against the city of Sanford forbidding the city to spend tax funds for improving and beautifying the downtown area. Dykes ruled against Speer on April 19 and confirmed that decision Friday.

Speer has not said if he will appeal the decision.

Pro-Gun, No-Gun Towns Claim Crime Rate Decline

KENNESAW, Ga. (UPI)—An ordinance requiring a gun in every household has "played a major role" in virtually eliminating residential burglaries, city officials say—but the burglary rate also is down in Morton Grove, Ill., where guns are illegal.

"It's certainly made my life easier," said Kennesaw Police Chief Robert Ruble, who said Thursday only one home has been burglarized since the ordinance was approved in March—and none since it went into effect June 1.

Ruble said his department handled 27 residential burglaries between March and July 8 of last year.

Kennesaw drew national attention when its City Council passed an ordinance requiring the head of every household to own a gun. The ordinance was submitted after Morton Grove banned guns.

"I'm just happy with my statistics," Ruble said. "I'm just wondering how Morton Grove is doing. I understand the burglars are having a field day there and I hope they stay up there."

Two Escapees Caught

By TENI YARBOROUGH
 Herald Staff Writer

Two Orlando men who escaped from the Seminole County Jail late Friday are back behind bars today along with a Casselberry woman who reportedly helped one of the inmates to flee.

Robert John Hayter, 21, was arrested within two hours after he scaled a 25-foot wall and climbed a 12-foot fence topped with barbed wire, and was discovered at the home of a woman friend in Casselberry, deputies said. Janice Leigh Whitten, 22, of 611 Wilshire Drive, who told deputies she received a call from Hayter to pick him up in the Park Ridge subdivision, in Sanford, then drove him to her home. She was arrested and charged with aiding Hayter's escape, jail officials said.

Meanwhile, Robert Dale Wesley Buie, 20, of Houston, Texas, who police said escaped from the jail's inmate exercise area along with Hayter, was picked up at about midnight Friday after he called and turned himself in to deputies, deputies said.

Deputies had been searching for Buie, whom they thought may have sought help from a woman friend in Kissimmee. Deputies added the woman had left her home shortly after Buie's escape and reportedly was with him when he called deputies and was rearrested.

Hayter and Buie are being held without bond, awaiting transfer to a state prison, while Ms. Whitten is being held on $5,000 bond, jail officials said.

The two men reportedly constructed a makeshift rope using sheets and other cloths, tossed it up and around a security camera, pulled themselves up and perched themselves atop the exercise area wall. Their escape was undetected by the security camera, officials said.

According to Sheriff's spokesman John Spolski, the area directly below the camera is the only place in the exercise compound that is out of the camera's scanning range.

Jail officials said the escape was discovered within 10 minutes when a corrections officer conducted a head count of the inmates and discovered two men were missing. Use of the exercise area has been suspended pending reevaluation of the incident to prevent further escapes, officials added.

Spolski said deputies were able to pick up Hayter shortly after his escape because a Park Ridge subdivision homeowner told deputies he had let a man, described as Hayter, make a telephone call from his home. The man also gave deputies the license number of the car in which the man left and deputies traced the car to the Casselberry woman's address where Hayter was arrested, Spolski said.

Hayter was arrested Nov. 11, 1981, on burglary and grand theft charges, and convicted in February. While awaiting sentencing, he also was charged with possession of marijuana and drug paraphernalia during an in-house jail search March 26 and was charged with marijuana possession again March 27. He was sentenced April 5 to five years in the state prison on the burglary charge and is awaiting trial on the drug-related charges.

Buie was jailed June 14 on charges of grand theft and violation of probation. He has been sentenced to two years in prison under the Youthful Offender Act, officials said.

WOMAN FOILS RAPE ATTEMPT

An 83-year-old Fern Park woman told deputies she was awakened at her home at 10 p.m. Tuesday by a man who had his hand on her chest and told her to "just relax" in an apparent rape attempt.

The woman told the would-be rapist that if he didn't leave she would shoot him, deputies continued. The man fled through a window which he apparently broke out to enter the home, deputies said. The woman, reportedly, was not injured.

WAREHOUSE WOES

Someone pried open three warehouses at the I-4 Industrial Park, stealing an undisclosed amount of property.

Thomas C. Davis, warehouse superintendent told deputies the culprits pried open the doors of three warehouses between noon Friday and 11:30 a.m. Tuesday. Davis is reportedly notifying the owners of the stored property to determine what, if anything, was stolen, deputies said.

THANKS, BUT NO THANKS

A Crystal River man who was repairing his truck along State Road 46 near Sanford Thursday probably could have done without the "help" of three teens who stopped to assist him.

Leroy Hart, 61, told police he was repairing his truck at about 5:30 p.m. Thursday when three boys approached him there. "They (burglars) should go up there and to San Francisco (where handguns also have been banned) where no one will bother them... then all the residents up there will move to Kennesaw where they feel safe," he added.

But Morton Grove Police Chief Larry Scheey said, "Our burglaries are down, as a matter of fact."

Scheey said he had no figures immediately available and "I won't say they're down sharply, but any decrease at all is welcome. Nothing is running rampant here, that's for sure."

Kennesaw Mayor Darvin Purdy would not put all the credit for the low crime rate on the new ordinance but said, "We think that it has played a major role in the dramatic reduction. 'I'm sure it had a lot to do with it,' Ruble said.

Violation of the ordinance carries a $50 fine but Ruble said no one had been charged with violating the law, which provides exemptions for residents physically unable to use a gun, or with religious principles forbidding it.

and offered to help. A short time later, one of the boys grabbed Hart, wrestled him to the ground while the other youths stole his wallet which contained about $10 cash. Hart, reportedly was not injured during the incident.

VACATIONER'S HOME HIT

Deputies said someone broke into a Longwood man's home while he was on vacation and stole an undisclosed amount of property between 3 p.m. June 2 and noon Thursday.

Deputies said the thieves broke into the home of Richard J. Harris, of 190 Canterclub Court, after removing a window.

CULPRITS TAKE CAR

A 1981 Pontiac Bonneville, valued at about $11,500, was stolen from the garage of a Longwood woman's home between 6:30 p.m. Wednesday and 6:30 a.m. Thursday.

Clair J. Marks, 64, of 104 Stag Ridge Court, told deputies she was awakened by the sound of a car engine but went back to sleep without investigating. When she awoke, she discovered that someone had stolen her car, using keys left in the ash tray, along with gasoline credit cards, a 35mm camera, a movie camera, binoculars, and tools, deputies said.

SANFORD MAN HELD

A 21-year-old Sanford man is being held in the county jail today on charges of possession, sale and delivery of Qualudes, battery on a police officer and resisting arrest with violence.

Jerry Lynn Smith, of 114 Anderson Circle, is being held on $10,000 bond following his arrest at 2:14 a.m. Friday in the parking lot of Woogle's Pub, U.S. Highway 17-92 and Woodson Dr., Sanford, deputies said.

According to undercover drug agents, a man was observed delivering Qualudes to a woman in the bar and was reportedly asked by agents if they could also purchase the drug from him. Agents said the man told them he didn't have any drugs for sale but later approached the officers and agreed to sell them as many Qualudes as they wanted, deputies said.

The drug agents followed the man out of the bar to the parking lot where he handed them a plastic bag containing about 80 Qualude tablets.

While the agents were attempting to arrest Smith, he reportedly struck one in the face with the bag of Qualudes and during the ensuing struggle, both the agent and Smith were injured, deputies said.

Smith was treated for a minor head injury at Central Florida Regional Hospital and taken to jail while the agent was treated for a bruised and strained arm and released from the hospital, deputies added.

HIGH SCHOOL JANITOR JAILED

Theodis Jones Jr., 21, of 302 Teakwood Lane, Altamonte Springs, is being held in the county jail today on $8,000 bond following his arrest at 4:20 p.m. Thursday on charges of aggravated assault and battery.

Jones, who is employed as a janitor at Maitland High School, was arrested after deputies received a call that a man had discharged a blast from a sawed-off shotgun into the air near 113 Plymouth Drive, Altamonte Springs, Deputies said.

Deputies said they arrived at the scene and were told by witnesses that a man came to the home, looking for owner Phyllis Lomay, fired the gun into the air which brought Ms. Lomay out of a neighbor's home to investigate. Ms. Lomay then ran toward her home with the man in pursuit, deputies said.

Witnesses said the man hit Ms. Lomay, knocking her to the ground, and then he entered her home and reportedly threatened to kill everyone inside.

Deputies also said that Jones, a convicted felon on probation, will have his probation revoked because of his possession of the gun.

Ms. Lomay was not seriously injured, deputies said.

Eagle To Get Second Chance Sunday

By JOE DeSANTIS
 Herald Staff Writer

A young female bald eagle, which appeared to have left the nest sooner than it was ready to—will get a second chance of winging it on her own Sunday morning when officials from the Florida Audubon Society release the bird back into the wild at Lake Jesup.

"The bird was found a good six months ago on Lake Jesup near the Duda property," explained Rene Priest, assistant editor of the Audubon Society's quarterly magazine Florida Natural.

"Apparently it fledged too soon and never really learned how to hunt and eat."

But the problem has hopefully been taken care of. "Blackie" has literally been going to camp with Christa Morgan, the Audubon Society's curator of injured birds of prey.

Morgan and Blackie have been camped out together on the shores of Lake Jesup for several weeks, Morgan functioning as the patient professor of survival with Blackie acting as the sometimes foul-tempered student.

By day and by night, Morgan has been instructing the bird how to hunt for itself.

"This is the first time a release like this of an eagle has been attempted by the Audubon Society," said Mrs. Priest. "It's a big step for us."

When Blackie is released early Sunday morning and whisks away on her six-foot wing span, she won't completely have flown the nest so to speak.

Morgan will monitor the bird's activities daily and food will be available if Blackie finds it tough out there in the cold, cruel world.

"There really isn't any right or wrong time to release a bird like this," said Mrs. Priest. "But Blackie is ready to hunt and she knows there's food there."

Although this is the Audubon Society's first attempt at releasing a rehabilitated eagle, the organization has had plenty of experience in dealing with injured birds.

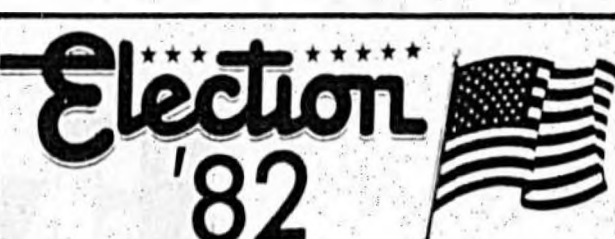

Priest said that at any one time between 30 and 50 birds of prey recuperate at the Society's permanent aviary. Most of the "patients" are hawks, owls, buzzards, osprey and a few eagles.

"We try to return as many to the wild as possible," said Mrs. Priest.

While humans have become more conscious about the plight of endangered birds such as the bald eagle, man still appears to be the biggest threat to the birds of prey.

"A lot of them are hit by cars," said Mrs. Priest. "And for some reason eagles have somewhat of a penchant for flying into power lines and severing their wings."

Priest said at the present time the aviary is housing an owl that was blinded in one eye when a juvenile hit it with a coke bottle.

So Far, Campaign '82 Shaping Up As Planned

TALLAHASSEE (UPI)—After the first week of qualifying, Florida's U.S. Senate race has shaped up exactly as planned.

Democratic incumbent Lawton Chiles and Republican challengers Van Poole and David Bludworth all paid their fees during the first hour of the qualifying period and the third announced GOP candidate, George Snyder, made it official later in the week.

The three Republicans have been quick to talk about Chiles, describing the two-term senator as a big spender who has failed to take a stand on the issues until the election year neared.

They have been less adept at making distinctions among themselves—something that must happen before the Republican primary Sept. 7. They concede they are very close, if not identical, on the issues.

Bludworth, a 42-year-old state attorney from Palm Beach County, said it comes down to who has the best chance against Chiles in November.

He says he is that man because his Panhandle upbringing gives him an affinity to the conservative Democratic voters he says a Republican must attract to win a statewide election.

Poole, 47, a 12-year veteran of the state Senate from Fort Lauderdale, says he is the man. So does Snyder, 53, a Sarasota businessman and a former Maryland Democrat. Snyder says his legislative record in Maryland gives him the edge over his GOP rivals. Poole says the same of his record in Florida.

But distinctions on the issues have been few. All three say they are fiscal conservatives. They say Chiles is not, Poole accusing Chiles of helping to bring about double-digit inflation and Bludworth holding him responsible for more than a third of the national debt.

All three say they are tough on crime, although Snyder stands out by advocating the death penalty for drug smuggling.

All three say they are for equal rights—but not the Equal Rights Amendment, which was voted down by the Florida Senate last month but is due to be re-introduced in some form in Congress.

All three suffer from a lack of name recognition. What it adds up to is that Chiles, without having begun to campaign seriously and still early in his fund-raising efforts, has a comfortable lead.

Poole, the self-proclaimed GOP leader, trails Chiles by a 51-20 margin in a recent statewide poll by MGT-Market Research.

nursing at Northwestern University Medical Center in Chicago and one of a group of medical personnel in Lebanon when the war began six weeks ago, showed slides she took while there.

Showing the slides, she described children injured in the war including a six-year-old she said was wounded with shrapnel and a one-month-old orphan whose lower back she said was blown away.

Ms. Elliot said when Israeli planes dropped leaflets warning civilians to leave their homes, the people refused to pick them up because poison pens had been dropped over a Palestinian camp a few days before. Because medical supplies and food have been cut off to the Palestinians and Lebanon by the Israelis, she said she fears widespread infection.

Rabbi Elmer Berger, introduced as the founder of the American Council for Judaism from which he resigned in 1968 after a difference in policy, said Israel has "historically lusted after real estate."

He said the officials in Israel today are reminiscent of Adolph Hitler 50 years ago. Berger referred to those Lebanese who are cooperating with the Israeli army as "Uncle Toms" and called the Israeli soldiers "iron-fisted conquerors."

He said the Israeli purpose in invading Lebanon is to commit genocide on the Palestinians, calling the war a "holocaust by the Jewish state."

Berger said, "Reagan and his celluloid cabinet members" are cooperating with the Israeli government at the "cruel expense of the Palestinians" and allowing the U.S. to be held hostage of Israel's Zionism.

Abourezk also accused Israel of attempting the genocide of the Palestinian people. "They want to destroy the PLO including every Palestinian in the world," he said. "They are trying to commit genocide on 3 million people."

Speaking of Israel's demand that Syrians fighting in Lebanon go back to their homeland, Abourezk said, "I agree Syrians should go back to Syria. Israelis to Israel and Palestinians back to Palestine."

Saying the purpose of his organization is to mobilize the American people, Abourezk warned, "What has happened in Lebanon can happen somewhere else. Unless we turn out in great numbers, it will happen to us again."

State Rep. Robert Hattaway, D-Altamonte Springs, who is expected to run against State Sen. Toni Jennings, R-Orlando, stayed in a front row seat for the entire meeting. U.S. Rep. Bill McCollum, R-Altamonte Springs, walked out with an aide midway in the rally.

"Generally, the public is paying more attention to the fate of the birds," she said. "Abuse of the birds is pretty much under control and the ban on some of the more dangerous pesticides that have been used in the past has helped."

The editor added there have been few instances of hunters firing on eagles, but the possibility is always present because it is difficult to distinguish the bald eagle from other birds while in flight.

"Until the birds are about five-years-old, a lot of them resemble hawks except for a little darker coloring," she said. "But it's not until about the fifth year that the white coloring and marking on the head that distinguishes the bald eagle comes out."

The bald eagle is not all that uncommon to spot in Florida skies.

Priest said the Sunshine State ranks second only to Alaska in the number of bald eagles.

"There's roughly about 1,400 in the state. That's second only to Alaska which is much larger and has a far smaller human population," she said.

Priest added that Blackie's return to the wild couldn't have come at a better time. Last week marked the 200th anniversary of the bald eagle being adopted as the national symbol. And if all goes well on shores of Lake Jesup Sunday morning, Florida will have one more healthy, proud and majestic bird spreading its wings on the horizon.

Discussing St. Johns

The St. Johns River Task Force of the Greater Sanford Chamber of Commerce will meet at 8:15 a.m. Monday at the chamber building, 400 E. First St.

The committee will discuss the St. Johns River Water Management District efforts to acquire marshlands to control the flow of the river.

The district commissioners on Wednesday will consider whether to raise taxes from the current 12.1 cents per $1,000 assessed value on real property to provide money to purchase the marshlands. Water would be stored in the marshlands and during the process it would be purified. During times of low water levels in the river the water would be released.

There Goes Another Tree

PEKING (UPI) — Every time someone lights a match, China's timber shortage gets worse.

Rather than watch the country's precious wood supply go up in a flicker, "we have to find another way to meet the need" for matches, Radio Peking said Thursday.

The official broadcast suggested China's next generation of matches likely would be made of paper, straw, wheat and cotton stalks and discarded sugar cane.

The waste material, dipped in a bit of wax, make good burning matches, it said.

The state currently allocates 400,000 cubic meters of timber each year to matches but the supply is far from adequate to meet the demand, it said. China's population of 1 billion is the world's largest, and many of them are keen smokers.

Housing Project Financed

Gov. Bob Graham has announced the Florida Housing Finance Agency has sold bonds which will be used to finance more than $22 million of rental housing.

The bond sale was negotiated with Merrill, Lynch, White, Weld Capital Markets group and will be used to provide construction and permanent financing on 10 rental developments throughout the state. A total of 690 rental units will be built under this program.

"This bond sale will further our goal of expanding Florida's rental housing opportunities, while creating additional jobs in construction during this national recession," Graham said.

The projects, all designed for occupancy by the elderly and low income families, include Ridgewood in Winter Park, a 33-unit development by Morrow, Inc., of Lakeland. It is expected to cost $974,900.

Viewing The Mortgage Muddle

The recent U.S. Supreme Court decision sharply curtailing the availability of assumable mortgages is spreading a thick pall of gloom over an already depressed real estate industry.

And why not? Assumable mortgages plus "creative financing" gimmickry are about all that has kept the market from collapsing altogether since interest rates climbed to record levels more than two years ago.

Now, with federally chartered savings and loan institutions empowered to enforce due-on-sale clauses, assumable mortgages would seem to be a thing of the past.

Thus, the court's ruling would appear to make it all but impossible for most first-time buyers especially to purchase a home.

How many would-be home buyers can afford current mortgage loan rates of 17 percent, and the attendant payments of, say, $1,200 per month for even a tract house?

But there is another side to the debate over assumable mortgages. The cash-starved savings and loan industry argues that enforcing due-on-sale clauses will enable the thrifts to liquidate many of their older, unprofitable loans.

That, in turn, could generate enough additional revenue to lower mortgage rates a full percentage point on new home loans.

A 16 percent mortgage loan rate isn't likely to trigger a housing boom. But if interest rates dropped to about 14 percent, a further 1 percent decline caused by enforcing due-on-sale clauses could release pent-up demand and resuscitate a housing market now at its lowest ebb since before World War II.

With a little help from Washington on monetary and fiscal policy, a drop of several percentage points in the prime rate by year's end is certainly possible. In that event, the Supreme Court's 6-2 decision on assumability could conceivably prove decisive in revitalizing the housing market.

Unfortunately, that still leaves short-term housing prospects undeniably grim. Well over half of all home sales last year were dependent on buyers assuming existing mortgages pegged to the bargain rates of past years.

Whatever the economic consequences of the court's ruling, the six prevailing justices at least deserve credit for deciding this issue strictly on whether federal savings and loan regulations preempt the policies of individual states.

The temptation to rule on socio-economic grounds would have swayed a lesser court, as it apparently did the California Supreme Court in the original Wellenkamp decision in 1978.

Supreme Court justices who stick to their constitutional knitting are likely to make fewer mistakes than those who imagine they have a mandate to set economic policy as well.

It Goes On

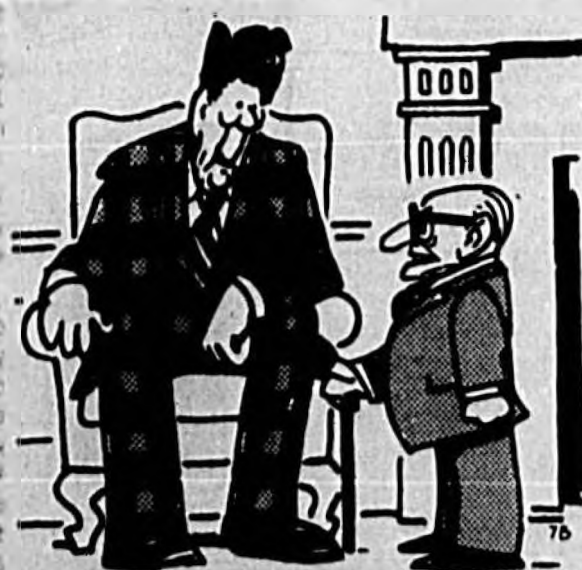

While the nation is facing a massive budget deficit of $104 billion and social aid programs are slashed right and left, price supports and loans to farmers are being boosted this year to a record $10.5 billion.

These expenditures by the Commodity Credit Corp. to farmers are 2½ times what the CCC spent last year. They far outstrip earlier estimates by the Reagan administration. In addition, the Farmers Home Administration will squirt an additional $4.5 billion into the farm economy this year in operating expense loans and relief funds for natural disasters.

What's worse, members of Congress are currently promoting farm bills to grant even more aid to the nation's farmers. It's one big entitlement program. When the nation's farmers do well, fine.

The government price support system has been coddling farmers for so long that now the aid is taken for granted, and there is loud complaint if it's not forthcoming. Price supports can't go on forever. It's time for the farmer to take his financial lumps with the rest of the nation.

BERRY'S WORLD

"Menachem, you ought to see my friend, Bob Young. Maybe you're over-cafed!"

By DORIS DIETRICH

Impelling pangs of acute homesickness attack my bones at times and I longingly "wish I was in the land of cotton."

The sure cure for this temporary, benign malady is to load up the buggy with daughter Mary and granddaughter Laurie and make a wild razzle-dazzle in the sizzling heat to reach the distant homeland. There's nothing like gloriously basking in the love 'Bama sheds on us for a few days.

The only thing better than having a lot of kin folks pet, pamper, please and protect a person is more kissin' cousins administering the same tender loving care.

Enough is enough, though, and before long, "Way Down Upon the Suwanee River" and the land beyond seems far, far away.

I must admit that the only cotton I saw on this trip was in the shape of expensive fashions in several shoppes. But there is no forgetting the patches of fluffy white puffs that dot the rolling, panoramic countryside.

Some of my relatives still raise cotton on their small "plantations" and even raise a little cane on Saturday nights. They graciously accept the concrete jungle as a place to work and the homes nestled back in the woods as meccas for fun and games.

And food.

Southern cooking has been considered a high form of slop by gourmards during the years, but a gal can't go back on her raisin' — or so the old story goes.

The table at my sister's was literally groaning under the platter of crisp fried chicken, freshly-shelled field peas with ham hocks, succulent tomatoes, cukes and onion rings in a spicy vinegar bath, buttered, steamed okra, golden corn on the cob, potato salad, cornbread, iced tea and peach cobbler — a typical country summer dinner which is what I ordered.

There's no doubt about it, the times have changed in Alabama as well as everywhere else. But the people are the same — gentle, sweet, loving. And many traditions handed down from forefathers remain the order of the day.

En route home — home, sweet home in Florida, that is, we observed produce stands in front of spacious brick homes in rural America where Cadillacs lurched in garages behind electrically operated doors. An attractive farm wife approached us smiling from ear to ear with, "Cayn ah hep y'all?"

It was great — just great — seeing the folks in such fine form. A favorite 84-year-old aunt still mows her lawn and grows gorgeous flowers and vegetables. Her home is her work-out spa, she says.

And then, too, she admits to having a couple of toddlers nightly. "It gives me strength," she winked coyly.

RUSTY BROWN She's A Foe Of Equality

With diabolical genius and a quick tongue, an Illinois mother of six was able to take three simple sentences and twist them into a monstrous threat to all women.

Phyllis Schlafly began her campaign against the Equal Rights Amendment with vitriolic wit. Over the years, she progressed to self-righteous smugness and a surety that God was on her side.

The Equal Rights Amendment simply asks: that the equality of rights under the law not be denied by the United States or any state on account of sex; that Congress shall have the power to enforce equal rights through appropriate legislation; and, that the amendment shall take effect two years after it is ratified.

Somehow, this sometime housewife was able to insidiously manipulate those sentences to mean unisex toilets, favors for homosexuals and massive federal funding for day-care and abortion.

She predicts the ERA will cast women out of their homes, take away their gender and put them fighting in the trenches with men. About women in war, she has quipped, "I think they think it is like an Outward Bound coed camp. It's kind of fun, being with the boys."

How she managed to pull off this flagrant corruption of simple justice is truly astonishing. As a member of the press, I accept some guilt for that. Journalists gave her prominence she did not deserve, validity her arguments just did not have.

I remember interviewing her in 1977 and reporting some of her outlandish statements: "The leaders of the woman's movement are like Typhoid Marys, spreading a germ called lost identity."

She continued: "They have just made women miserable. They take a reasonably contented woman, make her unhappy with her life, and she walks out on a lifetime commitment."

Women should stay home instead, she said, admiring and appreciating their husbands and maintaining a happy disposition.

Only one of her glib remarks related to the ERA, a proposal she claimed "threatens the superior rights a woman has going for her — mainly a husband who supports her, so she is free to follow her own interests."

She didn't talk about the inequalities in Social Security benefits. She ignored the women without husbands, those slugging it out at the low end of the wage scale, earning 59 cents for every $1 a man makes.

Unfortunately, as more people listened to her, her confidence grew — and so did her feeling that her work is divinely inspired, that God is actually helping her.

She told Henry Schipper in an interview in Ms. magazine that she prayed for the defeat of the ERA in Iowa and it lost.

On an earlier ERA vote in Illinois, she prayed again. "It took 71 votes to kill the ERA," she told Schipper. "We knew where 69 were, but we got 71." She considers the unexpected two votes "divine" gifts, adding, "We were able to accomplish victories that were beyond our own capabilities."

Though all polls show a clear majority of women favor the ERA, its unflappable foe has only self-righteous disdain for the opposition. When pro-ERA women groan and fume during her speeches, she stays cool, but afterwards may refer to them as "slobs," "unlikable people," "calculatingly dishonest," and speculates "some are probably Marxist revolutionaries."

Her most absurd posture of all occurred recently when she said that "the atomic bomb was a wise God's gift to a deserving America."

"My Husband Likes Me Up On A Pedestal!"

JULIAN BOND

White Rioter School?

I went to see my friend Robinson last week. When I last visited him, he had just opened his Negro Training Academy, a school for blacks seeking jobs in the Reagan administration.

But now the posters of black conservatives like Dr. Thomas Sowell and Clarence Pendleton were gone from the walls. In place of the black students with their close-cropped hair and three-piece suits were sullen and unkempt young men in blue jeans and combat boots. They were shouting in unison: "Look out, whitey. I got your mama!"

And they were all white. "What's going on here?" I whispered, trying not to attract the attention of a blond behemoth who was trying to master a schematic of a Molotov cocktail. "What happened to the Reagan Negroes? Who are these people?"

Robinson motioned me outside. "The bottom dropped out of the Reagan Negro business," he explained. "I placed two or three people, and then the supply caught up with the demand. So, I'm back with the liberals again."

"These days I'm training rioters. There's a big demand now for looters, trashers, arsonists. In fact, anyone who can hold an alley apple and run a city block in nine seconds can probably find immediate employment this summer."

"I can't believe that you'd actually teach anyone to commit mayhem," I exclaimed.

"Calm down," said Robinson. "These rioters are the opposite of the neutron bomb; they attack property, not people."

"That doesn't make it much better," I said. "Do you realize that you are encouraging anarchy in the streets?"

"I'm just filling a need," said Robinson. "The liberals have been predicting riots for more than a year now. They are depending on the summer streets to convince the country of the wrongness of the Reagan budget cuts."

"But," I pattered, "all of your trainees are white. We black people have the traditional edge as rioters."

"You haven't been keeping up, have you?" Robinson said sadly. "Black people aren't 'in' as rioters anymore. Even William Bradford Reynolds, the man in charge of civil rights for the Reagan Justice Department, has warned that the 'previously advantaged population' — that means whites — might riot this summer."

"He was talking about white people who feel they're victims of reverse discrimination," I said. "That's no justification for what you're doing."

"Besides," said Robinson, "blacks figure that it's someone else's turn to riot. Let someone else get shot by the National Guard. Let someone else lose his neighborhood. Let someone else's desperation become the rationale for government spending. You can't say it has made us popular."

"That's not the point," I argued. "Riots are riots, no matter who the rioters are. And what makes you think that whites, including your so-called students, will ever riot anywhere outside a college campus — or Fort Lauderdale in the spring?"

"Oh, they're ripe for it," Robinson said smugly. "The white middle class is a seething mass of social dynamite. Their tax breaks have turned out to be spare change. They have lost their jobs and can't find new ones. They can't afford to send their kids to college. They can't buy a new car or sell their old house. And their president suffers from sleeping sickness."

"I think you're misreading the national mood," I said with exasperation. "President Reagan is still popular, and there are no indications that whites are dissatisfied enough with his policies to start a riot."

"You can't con me," Robinson retorted. "I've been out talking with the white people where they live — in the suburban malls, at the bowling alleys, in the country-club locker rooms, at the symphony concerts in the park. I tell you, they're poised at the brink!"

"You're out of your mind," I said. "Besides, who's going to pay for all this? Who are your students going to work for?"

"I'm doing this on spec right now," Robinson conceded. "But just wait. Once the whites find out that we blacks won't riot, they'll be so made that they'll do it themselves."

"Don't count on it," I said as I walked away. "They'll find some way to make us do the dirty work in the end. They always do."

JEFFREY HART

ERA: Rest In Peace

The Equal Rights Amendment went through its death throes, unable to muster the votes necessary for ratification by the states — even after the extraordinary extension period voted by Congress, an extension which, it seems to me, violates both constitutional tradition and the political theory of the amending process.

That is to say, to get ERA through, its proponents were willing to make it procedurally unequal to all other constitutional amendments. The political theory behind the usual period for rallying an amendment assumes that the population deliberating the matter will remain relatively the same. The extension tended to undercut that assumption.

In 1980, at both the Republican convention in Detroit and the Democratic convention in New York, passions ran very high over ERA. The Republicans were overwhelmingly against it, the Democrats vociferously in favor of it.

I saw some Republican women in Detroit actually shedding tears over the Republican platform.

I myself have never been especially worked up over this issue. I am against ERA because I do not think the Constitution ought to be amended in the absence of a demonstrated and compelling need to do so. As far as I am concerned, such a demonstration has not been made in the case of ERA. A rationale may exist, but I have been listening for 10 years and I have not heard it.

I would, of course, require a similar demonstration by the proponents of the various amendments now being discussed on buses, school prayer, a limit on the national debt or on the federal deficit, and abortion. I can argue for some of those amendments myself, but constitutional prudence does require a persuasive demonstration.

As for preventing discrimination against women, as in the case of discrimination against ethnic minorities, there is already a great deal of legislation on both the state and federal statute books.

A further argument against ERA is that it would shift a variety of issues into the area of constitutional litigation. And, as we have already seen, the Supreme Court has done some highly whimsical things with the plain language of the Constitution. It has treated the First and 14th amendments, in particular, like silly putty.

In my judgment, the kinds of concerns that motivate ERA proponents would best be handled — indeed largely have been handled — through legislative remedies.

All of the above reasoning does leave out of account the passion that has surrounded the ERA issue, the passion of both ERA supporters and ERA opponents, the National Organization of Women on the one hand, and Phyllis Schlafly's Eagle Forum on the other. It seems that what ERA supporters are really asking for is a kind of campaign ribbon in the form of a constitutional amendment. As far as jobs and social freedoms are concerned, women have already gained substantial equality. Ask Justice Sandra Day O'Connor, or Margaret Thatcher.

The present equality of women is the result of a process extending over decades, at least since the 1920s, greatly speeded up by defense-plant work during World War II — Rosie the Riveter — and by the recent high inflation, which drove more women into the work force.

The opponents of ERA also have symbolic fish to fry. Many of them are traditionalists who believe that a woman's place is in the home, and are passionately opposed to the greater social and vocational freedom women have gained.

What worries Congress is that Arab investors are in a position to sway decisions by officials of companies — like Whittaker — which have top-secret defense contracts with the Pentagon.

What worries Vivian Wilder, of course, is the influence that cost her a job. The article was seen by an Arab official. He complained to the company, and Wilder's position at the Abu Dhabi hospital was "terminated." A Whittaker spokesman acknowledged to my associates Donald Goldberg and Vicki Warren that Wilder was transferred at the insistence of the UAE government.

Since then, Wilder has been told the only travel supervisor's job has already been filled, and the company has arranged for interviews with other firms. She's suing. A Whittaker official said her charges are "without merit."

Arab Money Influences U.S. Business

WASHINGTON — This is the story of a woman who offended the brittle sensibilities of an Arab potentate and was fired for her transgression. It is a perfect illustration of the way the sheiks use their financial muscle to influence the decisions of American corporations that do business with them.

I've already reported on attempts by the Saudi Arabian royal family to use its multibillion-dollar financial investments in the United States as a means of influencing U.S. foreign policy. And many thoughtful observers have expressed misgivings over the fact that both Defense Secretary Caspar Weinberger and Secretary of State-designate George Shultz were high officials of Bechtel Corp., which does extensive business in the Arab world.

These warnings have been dismissed by the Reagan administration with pious proclamations that Arab petrodollars are not a serious consideration in the formulation of U.S. policy in the Middle East, or even in the conduct of corporations doing business there.

Vivian Wilder, a valued employee of the Whittaker Corp. since 1980, takes issue with that claim. In July 1980, she was summarily fired from her job in Whittaker's United Arab Emirates operation because an Arab official took offense at something she wrote for the company's employee newsletter.

What was Wilder's heinous offense? As the company's travel supervisor in Abu Dhabi, the UAE capital, she suggested in a house-organ article that Whittaker employees might want to take advantage of their presence in the Middle East to visit "the Holy Land" — that is, Israel.

Whittaker operates hospitals in Saudi Arabia, Yemen and the United Arab Emirates. These operations are undeniably lucrative. In fact, almost half the company's net earnings last year represented profits from their business with the oil sheiks.

Much of Whittaker's success in the Middle East can be traced to Prince Khalid bin Abdullah, a member of the Saudi royal family. He will probably own nearly half of the company's Saudi operation by the end of this year, and his undoubted influence is considered responsible for Whittaker's success in the region.

But the company claims Prince Khalid's influence does not work the other way. In recent hearings before the House Commerce Subcommittee of Rep. Ben Rosenthal, D-N.Y., Whittaker Chairman Joseph Allibrandi was asked how much influence the company's Arab stockholders have.

"Zero," replied Allibrandi. "I assure you beyond any question there is no influence."

What worries Congress is that Arab investors are in a position to sway decisions by officials of companies — like Whittaker — which have top-secret defense contracts with the Pentagon.

What worries Vivian Wilder, of course, is the influence that cost her a job. The article was seen by an Arab official. He complained to the company, and Wilder's position at the Abu Dhabi hospital was "terminated." A Whittaker spokesman acknowledged to my associates Donald Goldberg and Vicki Warren that Wilder was transferred at the insistence of the UAE government.

Since then, Wilder has been told the only travel supervisor's job has already been filled, and the company has arranged for interviews with other firms. She's suing. A Whittaker official said her charges are "without merit."

OUR READERS WRITE

Goat Lady Supported By Reader

The most recent episode in the long-running "saga of the Butler Goats" prompts me to at last break my silence on this subject, although I have followed the story for the full two years or so it has provided some light reading for Seminole county residents.

I do not expect this letter to affect any decision the judge in this case may make, but as a goat raiser, I feel obligated to point out that while many breeds of goats, including the 14 I own, which are Nubians, are raised for milk production, the Butler goat has but one purpose for its existence. That is to be an "unusual pet", since it gives too little milk to be kept for that use, and is too small to be raised for meat. In short, it is in fact, a "house pet."

Mrs. Morris made a serious tactical blunder from the legal standpoint by not immediately appealing her first court loss and attempting to get a court of appeals to rule that the Butler goat is not a "farm animal" but a pet. Maybe she would have failed in her effort, but certainly it would not have cost her any more in time and money than her long and hard-fought battle with the bureaucrats has cost her.

I feel it is a disgrace as well as a waste of my tax dollars to have pursued this case with the diligence the state attorney's office appears to have done, especially in view of about a half dozen cases recently dismissed because the attorneys failed to bring their cases to trial within the speedy trial time limit. They do have time, it seems, to harass a poor lady who happens to get her major enjoyment from raising an unusual and very affectionate little animal that certainly never did anyone any harm.

It is legal in Florida and in most states for those who desire them to own what are called "exotic pets", namely cougars, ocelots, etc., even though these animals pose a potential threat to the safety of others, as evidenced by the mauling of a little child by a trained cougar several months ago during an advertising promotion. However, for reasons that are too vague for my mind to grasp, Seminole County has chosen to declare that a perfectly harmless little animal is somehow a "nuisance."

Let's be done with this business of using cantankerous and totally useless laws to harass our citizens, especially when such harassment not only abuses the victim, but also costs us all tax dollars we need for other purposes.

Humane Shelter Points To Need

Our thanks for printing our information whenever possible! Through your news media we hope to increase adoptions, encourage support of our efforts and educate the public to proper care of and kindness towards all animals.

Daily we are faced with the frustrating fact that many pet owners refuse to have their pets altered and ignore the staggering reproduction potential of each animal.

Shelters, locally and nationwide, are forced to destroy thousands of unwanted dogs and cats each year simply because the owners did not have their pet altered. The owners do NOT want the offspring, which are often abandoned — sometimes given to supposedly "good homes" — and frequently turned in to shelters ... Yet they let it continue.

A recent caller stated he had twenty-two cats that needed homes! He would keep one male and one female and allow them to reproduce again, because it is "cruel" to have them altered. The others were turned into Animal Control — no doubt destroyed as there are never enough homes. Before long he will again have an abundance and no place for them. But, he said it is "cruel" to have them altered.....?????

Another caller, whose female dog had it's third litter, could not find homes for all of them — but could not bear to have them destroyed — so would dump them in the woods and let them fend for themselves. She, too, would not think of having her pet altered. Where is the logic?

The excuses are endless. But the fact is it is your responsibility to care for your pet properly — if you choose to have one. And that includes not allowing the birth of more unwanted animals.

Don't be angry when there is no room at our Humane Society Shelter or if Animal Control is forced to humanely destroy them. The blame is on you! You allowed it. There is an alternative. You have no excuse. Please spay or neuter your pets now!

If you doubt this information or feel it is directed only at someone else, please take the time to visit the shelters in your area. What do you see? How many dogs, cats, puppies and kittens waiting to be adopted? The majority are waiting in vain. There will be no home. No one who cares enough. Simply because you did not care enough to have your pet altered.

School Problems Are Noted

The Regional Coordinating Council here in Region 19, which includes both Orange and Osceola Counties would like to call to your attention a significant problem we will face during the coming summer months. The gravity of the situation was highlighted by a Resolution of the State of Florida Cabinet acting as the State Board of Education. In part, that Resolution requested that we, who provide a wide variety of community services through the Community Instructional (CIS) Services Program as well as fulfill our traditional educational roles, solicit and "examine ways to provide for the unique needs of unemployed youth on summer break from school." The resolution also urged that we take the lead in our local regions in meeting the needs in any practical manner we are able to develop.

As our initial step, we are calling on your organizations to join us in this effort. We would like to encourage you to examine your local employment opportunities for youth, and wherever possible, actively pursue prospective employees for those positions from among our youth. We are not unaware of current economic difficulties. However, it appears that Central Florida is having less difficulty than other areas. We also realize Central Florida's sense of community responsibility for helping meet emerging problems before they become national concerns.

The Community Instructional Services Program, which is shared by the Orange and Osceola County Schools and Valencia Community College, has operated as a catalyst for a wide variety of community activities for several years. We now hope that we are able to call on your organization to join forces with the CIS Program to attack yet another difficult community problem. Your cooperation and understanding are appreciated. Once again, we believe that we can show the way and successfully face a major community problem.

Should you desire more information concerning the Resolution, the operation of the Coordinating Council, or the CIS Program, please call the individuals and numbers shown on the enclosure. The CIS Program and the Coordinating Council are national models for community action. We know that you take pride in that just as we do and will join us in writing another chapter on Community Action Projects that might be emulated throughout the country.

Region 19 Coordinating Council

Death Penalty Should Be Abolished

In the state of Florida and in your country, the death penalty is still enforced.

In accordance with the Universal Declaration of Human Rights of the United Nations, especially articles 3 and 5, the death penalty should not be practiced.

It is, therefore, that I write to you, wishing that you and the readers of your paper will devote yourselves to the abolishment of the death penalty in the State of Florida, as in so many other countries, as a step to a world-wide abolishment.

Big Rat And Black Snake Break Up Good Friendship

Yours truly moved into his present abode on Wymore Road, Altamonte Springs, on Oct. 1, 1981. A week or so ago, I discovered a rat had moved into the storage room.

Duke the dog and I were sitting out on the patio soaking up a few rays when this rat ran across in front of us. Duke took off after the rat while I looked around rather frantically for something to bash his head with.

By the time I had found a stick, Duke had lost the chase and the rat was tucked safely away in his hole.

At that point, I did two things. I went and told the girl who was promising to love, honor and not like rats that we had a visitor.

And I called Willard. I do not hate rats. I don't like them either, but I don't hate them.

Willard hates rats. As soon as I said, "Willard, there's a rat in my basement," Willard said, "It has been fun, but we are no longer friends. You live too close to me."

And the girl who was promising to love, honor and do the laundry told me point blank that she would no longer go to the laundry room, which happens to be just off the patio, as long as that rat was alive.

I figured I had to do something in a hurry.

On Wednesday, I purchased a rat trap. That night, after the late news

With A Grain Of Salt

went off, I checked my trap and found that I was the proud owner of one very large, very dead rat. That rat was graveyard dead and it filled up the shovel I used to throw him into the woods.

Thursday morning I called Willard. The first thing he wanted to know was, "How big was he?" Then, "Are you sure he was dead?" And finally, "What did you do with him?"

I replied, "A shovel full. His head was crushed. I chucked him into the woods."

That's when Willard told me about his snake. Willard doesn't hate snakes. He doesn't like them either, but he doesn't hate them.

I hate snakes. Willard has this house he rents and was expecting a new tenant to move in that weekend.

On Wednesday, the tenant came by with some wasp killer because the tenant doesn't like wasps. But that's another story.

Anyway, Willard's wife heard somebody yelling and looked out the window to see the new tenant out in the yard screeching and jumping about in a manner closely resembling the tango.

She asked what was wrong, and the tenant stammered something about having seen a snake. A big, long black snake.

Now please, do not write to the paper and say black snakes are good snakes and do nice things like kill rats and mice. That's exactly what Willard's wife told the tenant.

The tenant wasn't thrilled. He allowed as how he was going to get a stick and kill the snake. But the snake managed to slither under the house before he got his head bashed.

Willard called the fella who used to own the place and asked, "Did you ever have any trouble with snakes?" And the fella replied, "Just the black snake that lives 'neath the house. He kills rats and mice."

"And occasionally he'll crawl up into the bathroom window and sun himself on the window sill."

Now, Willard isn't real sure he has a tenant anymore and he won't visit me because he isn't sure all my rats are dead. And I won't visit Willard until that snake has been dispatched to that great window sill in the sky.

Maybe we can meet somewhere for lunch.

Can A Boss Cancel A Policy?

Q. Last week was my 65th birthday. I work for a corporation in the state of Washington and plan to continue working there for several more years before I retire.

Last month I was notified by the company that my comprehensive health-insurance coverage would be eliminated when I turned 65 and that I would only be able to purchase insurance to supplement my Medicare coverage.

The company's health insurance plan is more comprehensive than the Medicare program. Can my employer stop paying for my health insurance when I turn 65?

A. First, congratulations on your 65th birthday.

Under present law, an employer may discontinue health-insurance coverage for an employee who reaches age 65. To obtain health-insurance coverage, you should go to your local Social Security office and apply for Medicare.

The main reason for this law is to assure that all older workers and Social Security recipients have some form of primary health insurance.

Many employers do not provide health insurance for their employees or provide only limited coverage. Under this law, all people over 65 are assured of adequate health insurance under the Medicare program.

Congress previously considered and rejected legislation that would have required all employers who provide health insurance to continue to cover their employees who are 65 and older.

Growing Older

A major concern raised during the debate on this proposal was the possibility that if employers were required to cover their older employees under their health-insurance plans, they would have a strong incentive to reduce the number of older workers on their payrolls in order to save money.

Q. My mother is 92. I wonder whether she should still be driving.

What can I do about it? She is pretty obstinate about the subject, saying that she has been driving for 75 years and that nothing is wrong with her driving.

A. If you fear for your mother's safety or the safety of others on the road, try again to reason with her.

Statistically, older Americans have good automobile safety records. They are responsible for fewer accidents and fatalities than other age groups, according to the National Safety Council.

However, the accident and fatality rates do rise among those in the 75-and-older category. This could be because their reflexes have slowed down a bit so that they are unable to respond to threatening situations as quickly as younger people.

The increasing number of cars on the road and the complexity of traffic patterns might also be a worthwhile argument for you.

As long as your mother passes the eye examination required periodically by your state and as long as her driving record is relatively accident-free, there is little that you or the state in which you live can do.

If she receives driving tickets, the state department of motor vehicles may summon her for a re-check of her driving. She may also be re-checked if the family or the neighbors notify the department of incidents that raise questions about her ability to drive.

I would counsel you to move cautiously. You don't want to do anything that would cause a prolonged period of hard feelings between you and your mother.

If there is substance to your fears about her driving, you should take whatever steps are necessary to keep her off the road. But an older person's independence is very important, and driving is an important factor in that independence.

Have a question on Medicare, Social Security or other topics of interest to the elderly? Write to Rep. Pepper in care of this newspaper. The volume of mail prohibits personal replies, but questions of general interest will be answered in future columns.

Disarmament Style Discussed

By WALTER LAMMI

Public Research, Syndicated, 1982
In his May 9 commencement address to the students of Eureka College, President Reagan put forward his plan for a reduction in the strategic nuclear arsenals of the U.S. and the Soviet Union.

The "Eureka Plan" consists of two parts. The first calls for a one-third reduction in the number of strategic warheads deployed by both sides and an unspecified reduction in the number of missiles deployed by the U.S. and U.S.S.R.

The second part of the Plan calls for a reduction in the lifting power or "throw-weight" of deployed missiles. This reduction would serve to limit the number of warheads each side could deploy after part one of the plan had been implemented.

Overall, the Eureka Plan is designed to effect a reconfiguration in the strategic arsenals of the U.S. and the Soviet Union. The objective is to create the conditions under which both sides could be certain that they possessed an assured second strike capability. To be sure, the Soviets will be called upon to sacrifice more of their strategic arsenal than will the U.S. But the size of the changes the Soviets would be required to make is an accurate reflection of the margin of superiority over the U.S. that they now enjoy.

Despite the fact the President's plan would result in a mutual and balanced reduction in strategic arms, it is not likely to gain the approval of those who have been supporting a bilateral nuclear weapons freeze between the U.S. and the U.S.S.R.

The reason for this is that the movement for a bilateral freeze took shape from a specific demand: stop all of this nuclear madness now. However, the insistence that both sides freeze their weapons procurement is not a necessary part of this demand. In fact it is a weak link, since it runs immediately into the elementary political problem, that bilateralism cannot be unilaterally decreed.

On its face the freeze seems ingenious. But it is, in fact, disingenuous. It is nothing more than a respectable cloak for a less respectable, but more consistent, plan: unilateral disarmament. One suspects that somewhere in the heart of every fervent bilateral freeze proponent lurks an unspoken but equally fervent desire for us to go ahead and do the job on our own. This suspicion would be hard to prove through opinion polls, since most people would deny it, but it is easy to argue in terms of political logic.

The basic moral imperative is to do something — anything — to stop nuclear arms. Unilateral disarmament looks too much like surrender to command wide public acceptance. Bilateral freezing will be difficult to be sure, so the logic goes, but the difficulties cannot be inseparable if we have the will to overcome them.

At this point, however, the bilateral freeze argument gets into trouble. The major difficulties concern strategy, verification, and political responsiveness.

The bilateral freeze movement has a very good chance of influencing American strategy, perhaps decisively, because our political system is responsive (eventually) to public pressure. However, whether it can influence Soviet thinking for the better depends entirely on how the American position fits with Soviet plans and goals. In order to know this — in order to make the policy fit — we have to know what Soviet plans and goals are. In other words we have to study and take careful account of Soviet military and political strategy.

Bilateralists resist delving into strategy, Soviet and American alike, because they see the exercise as a cold and inhumane numbers game. They are right. Unfortunately, if we are really interested in human survival it is not enough to have humane interests and good intentions. We need plans that will work, and it is obvious that they are much more likely to work if they have been tailored to the geo-political situation of the world as it is here and now. There is no way, as long as one is genuinely committed to a bilateral approach, to avoid thinking about strategy.

For unilateralists the problem is much simpler. We can disarm regardless of Soviet intentions. We can be reasonably assured that the Soviets will not wantonly destroy a non-nuclear America. To do so would be absurd.

Verification is a knotty problem because it depends on expertise. Clearly a freeze that is unverifiable is no freeze at all.

Perhaps the most telling objection to the bilateralist position is the widely acknowledged fact that mass revulsion against nuclear weapons can be directly translated into public policy only in western-style democracies. A movement for a bilateral freeze in the United States is unilateral regardless of its rhetoric, since no corresponding mass movement is possible in the Soviet Union.

AT&T Introduces Picturephone

WASHINGTON (UPI) — American Telephone & Telegraph Co. inaugurated its new two-way video teleconferencing service by placing the first call between New York City and Washington, D.C.

The full-color service, called Picturephone Meeting Service, allows businessmen to conduct face-to-face discussions in separate cities.

"Picturephone Meeting Service will be one of the most innovative and worthwhile business tools of the decade," Robert Casale, AT&T's national director of business sales, said in remarks prepared for a news conference. "It is an excellent opportunity for companies to increase the effectiveness and productivity of their managers."

AT&T said it plans to make the service available in 14 other cities this year and in a total of 42 cities by the end of 1983.

The service is available in two ways: customers may rent public rooms, or they may choose to build rooms on their own premises. A typical Picturephone room will be equipped with color monitors, microphones and cameras to display slides, charts and other graphic material.

The rooms also will offer a copy machine to reproduce images displayed on the incoming monitor; a videotape recorder to record either incoming or outgoing picture and sound; and audio add-on capability.

Typical charges for a customer using a public room in Washington and a public room in New York to conduct a one-hour meeting are $1,340. A similar meeting between New York and Los Angeles would cost $2,380.

Charges for customers using their own rooms are lower: $60 for a one-hour New York-Washington meeting, and $1,640 for a one-hour New York-Los Angeles session, excluding monthly equipment rental charges.

Customers installing a typical room will pay one-time Bell System installation charges of $117,500, as well as monthly equipment rental of $11,760. There is also a monthly charge to connect each room to the nearest Bell System facility.

Picturephone will be available this year in Philadelphia; San Francisco; Boston; Los Angeles; Pittsburgh; Chicago; Detroit; Dallas; Houston; Cleveland; Columbus; Cincinnati; Buffalo and Atlanta.

In 1983, service will also be available in Minneapolis; Hartford, Conn.; Richmond, Va.; Raleigh, N.C.; Kansas City, Mo.; Omaha, Neb.; Des Moines, Iowa; Tulsa, Okla.; Rochester, Syracuse and Albany, N.Y.; Memphis and Nashville, Tenn.; San Diego, Calif.; San Antonio, Texas; Louisville, Ky.; Denver; Miami and Orlando, Fla., and Seattle, Wash.

EMPLOYEES SCHOOLING

City employees from Winter Park, Maitland and Sanford are pictured with classmates following a recent eight-week "Supervisory Training Program for Municipal Employees" held at the Crummer Graduate School of Business at Rollins

College. The course was conducted by Crummer School Associate Professor of Management Dr. James Higgins (front row in dark suit).

Freedom Savings Will Buy ComBanks

Freedom Savings and ComBanks Corporation have jointly announced plans for Freedom to acquire ComBanks' six banks with 17 offices and $354 million in assets.

The acquisition, which also includes certain other assets of the Winter Park-based ComBanks Corporation, will enable Freedom to extend its banking operations into the fast-growing Orlando market area.

The agreement was announced by Freedom President Fred F. Church Jr., and ComBanks Chairman Marvin L. Warner. Directors of both companies have unanimously approved the agreement and recommended approval by their respective stockholders. The acquisition will also require regulatory approval.

Church said the acquisition would significantly expand Freedom's commercial banking and trust service activities in the state. "It will also enlarge the market reach of our retail banking services, giving Freedom a 16-county market area in southwestern, central and northern Florida."

ComBanks' commercial banking operations recorded a $3.6 million net income before securities transactions for the year 1981. This resulted in an above-average 1.3 percent return on assets.

The total cost of the cash acquisition of the banks and other holding company assets of ComBanks is estimated at some $57.5 million.

"ComBanks," said Church, "is well-positioned in one of the nation's most attractive financial markets. With the addition of ComBanks' commercial banking expertise and management depth, Freedom anticipates becoming a major force in the state. We are especially impressed with ComBanks' professional management and personnel, and we are counting on them to play an important role in Freedom's plans."

Warner, the former U.S. Ambassador to Switzerland, said, "ComBanks will contribute substantially to the commercial banking organization at Freedom. There will be no change in the tradition of quality service for the customers of ComBanks."

Bank officials said the purchase will not affect the new ComBank now under construction in downtown Sanford. Also, they said current employees will be retained.

At April 30, 1982, the ComBanks system had $354 million in assets and $285 million in deposits. Freedom had $1,372 million in assets and $1,062 million in deposits.

Sun Bank Buying Two Other Banks

Sun Banks of Florida has received regulatory approval to acquire Coronado Beach Bank and will merge that bank into the Sun Banks group, according to Joel R. Wells Jr., president of Sun Banks of Florida, Inc., the parent bank holding company based here.

Coronado Beach Bank, located at 715 Third

Avenue in New Smyrna Beach, has assets of $23 million. It will become part of Sun Bank of Volusia County, which has nine offices in the county and assets of $171 million. Following the merger, it will become the second largest bank in terms of assets in Volusia County.

Henry C. Coleman Jr., chairman of the board and president of Sun Bank of Volusia County, said that Coronado Beach Bank has an excellent reputation for efficient and convenient banking in the rapidly growing New Smyrna Beach area. The increased asset size due to the merger will allow larger loans to be made to customers.

Sun Banks also announced it has signed a preliminary agreement, for the acquisition of

First National Bank of DeFuniak Springs in DeFuniak Springs, Fla.

Under the terms of the agreement, Sun Banks will ask shareholders of the bank to vote to merge the bank into a new wholly-owned subsidiary of Sun Banks that would be organized in DeFuniak Springs for purposes of facilitating the acquisition.

Couple Moves Into 1-Day Home

POST FALLS, Idaho (UPI) — In less than seven hours a swarm of workers from the struggling housing industry — many of them unemployed — fulfilled "the American dream" for Richard and Mindy Galbraith by building them a home.

The jubilant Galbraiths popped the cork on a champagne bottle in their new home, a three-bedroom structure they watched built and landscaped from start to finish in the North Idaho community in six hours, 55 minutes and 23 seconds.

"I'm just too excited," Mrs. Galbraith said as she watched her home go up. "I can't believe it's really happening. We're going to have our own house in one day. Not too many people have that experience."

The quick work was done by 200 construction workers who donated their services to demonstrate their desire to get back to work and encouraged each other with chants of "go, go, go" as the house neared completion.

Jim Crowe, co-director of the contractors' association that organized the work, said his group first decided to attempt a "one-day home" after being asked to "do something spectacular" to call attention to the depressed housing industry.

"We're trying to show the United States and the homebuilding industry we can build a quality home in one day," he said. "And we want to show the public the building industry is alive and ready to start serving the public again as soon as interest rates come down."

With an American flag flying from the newly completed rooftop and a festive crowd of 1,000 onlookers gathered in a nearby field, the head of the group which organized the marathon building project — North Idaho Homebuilders Association President Jerry Wimmick — called the $39,500 house "a symbol of the American dream."

Galbraith said he wasn't worried about the quality of construction of the 960-square-foot house despite the record building time.

"It looks like a well-built house," he said. "With having this many guys on here and having the inspectors watching and having the architects watching, I think the quality will be good."

A moving van was parked near the suburban, tree-covered lot throughout the day, waiting for the moment workers finished.

When a city building inspector signed a certificate of occupancy a little before 2 p.m. and the couple received a key to the home, the furniture moving crews took over.

The first item out of the van was dining room furniture — and a catering truck then pulled up with the complimentary champagne dinner from the homebuilders group.

Camera crews from the television show "That's Incredible" spent the day filming time-lapse sequences of the construction from start to finish.

Flagship Buys Gainesville Bank

Flagship Banks, Inc., has completed the acquisition of the Century Bank of Gainesville from Sun Banks of Florida, it was announced by Phillip F. Searle, chairman and chief executive officer of Flagship.

The $24 million asset bank, which Flagship acquired for $3.9 million in cash, has been renamed the Flagship National Bank of Alachua County. The present management, staff and board of directors, however, will continue in their positions. The bank operates three offices in Gainesville, the county seat of Alachua County and the home of the University of Florida.

"The addition of the Gainesville bank and its offices to the Flagship system is another step in the Company's program of expanding its market coverage throughout Florida's regions of important population and economic growth," explained Mr. Searle. The county's mixture of industrial, agricultural, governmental and residential growth potential makes it one of the state's most economically balanced counties," he said.

Banks Try To Unseat Controller Lewis

TALLAHASSEE (UPI) — Barnett Banks of Jacksonville and other big banking groups are pumping big money into outgoing House Speaker Ralph Haben's campaign to unseat Comptroller Gerald Lewis.

Lewis, the state's chief banking officer, isn't accepting campaign money from banks or their employees, but he continues to hold a commanding lead over Haben in campaign contributions.

Haben, however, according to reports filed with the Division of Elections Wednesday, is starting to close the gap.

Lewis reported total collections of $871,856, including $302,382 during the last three months. He has spent $384,978, including $371,355 in the last quarter — most of it for a television advertising campaign that began in early June.

Haben listed $321,830 in contributions in Wednesday's report. He didn't announce as a candidate and begin his fundraising until after Lewis already had generated close to 400,000, so the differences aren't as great as they seem.

The speaker has spent $209,169, with most of the money going to prepare political ads and buy television time for a broadcast advertising campaign that won't begin until late this month or in early August.

Haben will need $600,000 or $700,000 to beat Lewis in the Sept. 7 Democratic primary, his campaign manager, Ted Phelps, figures, so lots of fund raising remain ahead.

The money is starting to come in, however, and much of it is from banks, banking group political action committees, savings and loan institutions and bank or S&L directors.

Haben also is getting a lot of money from lobbyists or lobbying organizations that work the Legislature.

Lewis has refused to accept campaign money from banks or S&L's, although he is taking it from members of boards of directors.

Haben reported receiving $32,000 from banks, savings and loan institutions, their political action committees and their directors or employees, including $18,000 from groups or individuals affiliated with Barnett, one of the state's largest banking chains.

He got $3,000 each from Barnett Banks of Florida, Barnett People for Better Government, an association of the banking group's employees, Barnett Mortgage Co., Barnett Credit Services and Barnett Operations Co. He received $1,000 from Barnett Computing Co., and $1,000 each from two Barnett directors.

Three-thousand-dollars is the maximum amount Haben could get from a single contributor, although there obviously are ways to exceed that cap by the use of affiliations.

Haben received $3,000 each from Sun Banks of Florida's political action committee, Century Banks' "PAC," the S&L's PAC, and Southeast Banking Corp. He got $1,500 from American Banks of Florida.

He received dozens of smaller contributions from bank and S&L directors, officers or employees.

He got $3,000 from Rep. Lee Moffitt of Tampa, who will succeed him as House Speaker in November, and from Hyatt Brown of Daytona Beach, his predecessor as speaker and a leader in his campaign organization.

Jack Skelding, a prominent Tallahassee lobbyist who has used his close friendship with Haben to win legislative favors for clients, contributed $3,000. Another $3,000 came from Skelding's law firm.

Also contributing $3,000 were the Florida Manufactured Housing Association, Florida Association of Insurance Agents, Florida Medical Political Action Committee, Florida Physicians Association. Several big insurance companies also contributed as did the Seminole Indians of Florida.

Most of Lewis' money has come from lawyers throughout the state, political action groups, friends, and prominent citizens who serve as bank directors.

Lewis says it wouldn't be right for him to take money from groups or people he directly regulated. Bank directors are different, he says, because they aren't on regular salary and act mainly in an advisory capacity.

There is no difference, Haben says, and he accused Lewis of taping a good source of banking money while pretending to the voters he isn't accepting any banking money at all.

Haben says he sees nothing wrong with taking money from groups he would regulate if elected comptroller and banking commissioner. The contributions all are being reported publicly and he will take money from anybody or any group willing to give it, he says.

Teufel, Holmes Home Runs Lift Mulligan Past Sounds

Tim Teufel and Stan Holmes clubbed home runs Friday night as the Orlando Twins blitzed Nashville, 9-4, in Southern League baseball action at Tinker Field in Orlando.

Righthander Bob Mulligan scattered 11 hits while picking up his eighth victory in 11 decisions. A four-run fifth inning gave Mulligan a 7-1 lead and he coasted in from there.

Catcher Rick Austin bailed Mulligan out of a sticky situation in the seventh inning by throwing out two runners who had topped the ball in front of the plate.

The O-Twins travel to Chattanooga and Jacksonville for a six-day road trip beginning Saturday.

No Pressure For Wilander

ST. LOUIS (UPI) — Maybe Mats Wilander is too young to start feeling pressure.

The 17-year-old leading player on the Swedish Davis Cup team, in the absence of Bjorn Borg, took a two-set lead over Elliot Teltscher of the United States Friday night but saw it disappear in a hurry.

Wilander knew he had to regroup in the fifth set of the opening night of the quarterfinal round match, or Sweden would be down, 2-0, with the United States having three chances for the clinching victory.

Wilander, the French Open champion, did just that as he broke Teltscher's serve three times to win the final set, 6-0, and take the nearly four-hour match, 6-4, 7-5, 3-6, 3-6, 6-0.

The victory pulled Sweden even with the U.S. at one win each going into today's doubles match. The remaining two singles matches will be played Sunday.

"Teltscher started to play badly in the fifth," Wilander said. "Maybe he was getting tired. I was playing better."

The United States had taken a 1-0 lead when John McEnroe, playing his first match since losing the Wimbledon final Sunday, defeated Anders Jarryd, 10-8, 6-3, 6-3.

"It was not one of my better matches," McEnroe said. "It was an up-and-down match. The guy played better than I expected."

McEnroe blew a 5-1 lead in the opening set but recovered to beat Jarryd for his eighth consecutive singles victory in Davis Cup competition.

"I kind of relaxed in the first set and lost my rhythm," McEnroe said. "It was tough to come back. That's not very good at all."

USFL: Firm Stand On Drugs

CHICAGO (UPI) — The United States Football League owners took a firm stand on establishing a drug-control program for players and incorporated a little more excitement for fans in an "historical" summer meeting.

"The meeting was productive and historical in the sense we established a drug-control program for players," Chicago Coach George Allen said Friday.

Dozens of owners and coaches attended the two-day meeting that began Thursday at the O'Hare Hilton Hotel. A similar one will be held in August.

Allen, who also serves as chairman of the President's Council on Physical Fitness, said the drug-control program was long overdue.

Allen said the drug control program will require the testing of athletes during physical exams and in periodic "mini-camps" held before the season.

He said the players have objected to such a program in the past because of the required testing.

No, it wasn't hailing at Fort Mellon Park Friday night. Those were baseballs — eight of them to be exact.

The Sanford Nationals amassed 27 runs on 22 hits and ripped eight home runs en route to a 26-8 crushing of Tavares. Sanford advances to play Leesburg American, an 8-4 winner over Leesburg National, Saturday at 6. In the second game Orlando Bruton battles Groveland in a game that features the tournament's only unbeaten teams.

A 14-run fourth inning put Sanford in the driver's seat and it coasted to the victory. Leonard Lucas led off the fourth by lining a shot over the center field fence, it was his second homer of the tourney. Todd Revels then launched one into orbit for his third homer of the tournament. Willie Walton made it three homers in a row as he hammered one over the right field fence. Also in the fourth inning, Ron Blake belted a three-run shot and Willie Grayson blasted a solo homer.

Up until the fourth inning the game was an interesting one. Sanford scored five times in the first two innings on six hits. But the scrappy Tavares squad took advantage of wildness by Sanford pitching and tied the game 5-5 after three innings of play.

In the top of the first, Jeff Blake reached on a fielder's choice and scored on a double off the bat of Lucas. Lucas scored on Revels' single and Revels scored on a solid single up the middle by Shawn Green.

Tavares responded with two runs in the bottom of the first. Jeff Humphrey walked, went to second and third on wild pitches and scored on a passed ball. J.D. Dyer, who had also walked, scored on an error.

RBI doubles by Jeff Blake and Revels put the Nationals up 5-2 in the second.

In the bottom of the second Sanford starting pitcher Ron Blake, walked four straight batters to force in a run and he was lifted in favor of Revels. Revels struck out the first batter he faced then hit Tim Caruthers in the backside to force in another run. Caruthers turned the other cheek instead of charging the mound.

Tavares tied it in the bottom of the third when Lance Reaves reached on an error, was sacrificed to second and scored on an error.

Sanford scored six more times in the fifth inning. Included was a two-run homer by Willie "Sugar Tex" McCloud and a three run blast by Grayson, his second of the game.

But a blenish was also put on Sanford's win in the fifth. After grounding out, it was the first thrown one pitch with the score tied in the top of the inning.

Manager Sylvester "Slick" Franklin was then able to pull McCloud in favor of Tarance Carr and save "Sugar Tex" for Saturday or Sunday's big game.

The opening game Friday was one of the most exciting of the tournament and well played by both teams. It was a grudge match between the two Leesburg squads.

Leesburg National held a 2-1 lead going into the fifth inning but Leesburg American erupted for seven runs in the fifth and held on for an 8-3 win.

McDaniel Turns Key For Seminole High Athletic Success

Herald Photos by Tom Vincent

Bill McDaniel, the Seminole High weightlifting coach for the past eight years, gives a little assistance to one of his prize pupils, Mike Good, a standout performer at Seminole and Florida State University.

By SAM COOK
Herald Sports Editor
Bill McDaniel has turned a big key at Seminole High School for eight years now.

No, it's not to any administrative office. It won't get you into the band room. And it won't open the doors of the gymnasium. But you're close.

For the past eight years, McDaniel has religiously opened the door of the Seminole High School weightroom. With that simple turn of the lock, the former Chicagoan has opened many athletic doors for his lifters.

"Mac's a big reason that Seminole athletes go somewhere," says former Seminole High and Florida State standout Mike Good. "I'd never had the success I had without him."

McDaniel began working at Seminole as a maintenance man. He's always been involved in weightlifting, so it seemed only natural he'd pursue it at Seminole.

"I coached the weightlifters for two years as a volunteer and the last six as a regular," said McDaniel who had moved up to maintenance assistant manager. "It's become a way of life."

A way of life spent around grunts and groans and boys getting stronger and better athletically. "I bet he's only missed five workouts in those eight years," says Good. "And that's after working all day."

The hard work has paid huge dividends for McDaniel who also coaches the junior varsity football team.

In eight years, he has produced nine state champions. Good (1976) set a state record in the clean and jerk at 310 points. Paul Albini (1977), Danny Flint (1978), Reggie Campbell (1979 and 1980), Reggie Cotton (1980), Abdul Baker (1981) and Antonio Davis (1982) make up Mac's list of champions.

And when you throw in Issac Williams, who is headed for Florida State as an offensive lineman, it adds another feather to McDaniel's cap. Williams won the National Junior Olympics in Colorado last year.

Seminole County Profile

McDaniel has been busier than ever this summer. On Mondays, Wednesdays and Fridays, he has two groups — the high school athletes and what he calls, "the Over-The-Hill Gang."

This group is made up of Good and fellow '75 and '76 graduates John Spolski, Scott Haws and Jeff Maddox.

"Coach Mac brought us up from little boys to young men," says Maddox.

Then on Tuesdays and Thursdays, McDaniel worked with his current college crop of Reggie Branch, Gee Knight, Robert Guy and '82 grad Butch Carter.

This summer, however, will be McDaniel's swan song at Seminole. It's been a bittersweet one behind the stadium because he'll move to Lake Mary High as a security guard this fall. He'll also do weightlifting and JV football.

"It was a tough decision. I hate to leave because I've got a heritage here with these kids," said McDaniel Tuesday. "I get invited to a lot of weddings and christenings."

And as Spolski, one of Mac's charter members, points out, he will be missed. "The time he puts in is really incredible," says John, son of the Seminole County Sheriff's Spokesman of the same name.

"It's doubtful they'll ever find a guy that devotes as much time as Mac," he added.

A line forms as usual about every night of the week during the summer for weightlifting coach Bill McDaniel (left) who opens the door for new and old Seminole musclemen.

Altamonte Assessment

Determined Letterio, Juniors Look For Pitch To Go Their Way

Last year Altamonte's Major All-Star team came within one pitch of going to Williamsport, Pa., and the Little League World Series.

The manager of that team, Gene Letterio, came so close that he figured he would stay with the same players when they moved up to Junior League.

Letterio has 10 players from last year's All-Star team and is hoping that if it comes down to it, that one pitch will go in his favor this time in the District 14 Tournament.

"Our biggest asset is determination," Letterio said. "If hard work is an ingredient to success this team will go a long way. I've never coached a team that works as hard as this team."

...slick shortstop

The Altamonte Junior League All-Stars will begin play July 14 against the winner of Ocoee and Rolling Hills at the Winning team's home field. Due to change in the schedule Altamonte drew a bye in the first round of the double-elimination tourney.

Mike Schmit will be the starting pitcher in the first game and Neal Harris will go to the hill the second game. Both have 9-3 pitching records.

"We're working hard on speed too," Letterio said. "We're going to run like crazy so the opponents catcher better have his arm warmed up." Letterio is implanting lefthanded hitters in the lineup after his leading base stealers to "shield the catcher so we can get a few umps ahead. They aren't going to throw us out unless it's a perfect throw.

"Altamonte will be an exciting team because of the aggressive style we will play. We're hoping to force our opponents into making a lot of mistakes," Letterio said.

The starting lineup for game one is: Shane Letterio, second base, .566 average for Phillies.

Brett Marshall, shortstop, .419 for Indians.

Mike Schmit, pitcher, .600 for Phillies.

Neal Harris, first base, .412 for Astros.

Ryan Lisie, catcher, .436 for Astros.

"Our biggest asset is determination. If hard work is an ingredient to success this team will go a long way."

Junior Manager
Gene Letterio

Marty Posey, center field, .323 for Indians.

Bruce Carlson, third base, .443 for Padres.

Dan Beaty, right field, .386 for Padres.

Other team members are: Bill Henley, Phillies, .365. Scott Verille, Phillies, .294. Rob Seligson, Padres, .439. Gary Nuss, Orioles, .440. Brian Bellan, Orioles, .375. Alternates are Sandy Hovis, Astros and Dick Sienkiewicz, Indians.

There are some tough teams to get by if Altamonte wants to make it as far or farther than Letterio's team last year.

"There are some big strong teams in this tournament, Ocoee and Winter Garden are powerhouses and Maitland is another strong team," he added.

Altamonte righthander Mike Schmit will open tournament play for the Juniors. In addition to having a live arm, Schmitt swings a good bat.

Laszaic Leads Major Stars

Just glancing at the Altamonte Major League All-Star team roster it's pretty obvious why manager Terry Haggin feels his team should be a good one.

"We have a very strong team all-around," Haggin said.

Pitcher Anthony Laszaic will lead Altamonte into battle Monday night at 7:30 as the Major League All-Stars begin play in the District Tournament against Oviedo at Eastmonte Field.

"We're going with our horse Monday and hope we can stay in the winner's bracket," Haggin said.

Laszaic is the only player returning from last year's state runner-up squad. He was the most overpowering pitcher in the Altamonte Major League this season with a 9-2 record and six no-hitters. Included in the no-hit games was a perfect game masterpiece in which Laszaic struck out all 18 batters he faced.

Laszaic pounded opposing pitching also and has the All-Stars' best average, .525. Joining Laszaic in the starting lineup Monday will be Scott Stiles, Indians, will do the catching and carries a .350 average. Jeff Hagen, Astros, first baseman with a .395 average. Wes Weiger, Astros, second ing and defense," Haggin said. "We have speed in the outfield and good arms," he added.

Haggin said that bench strength is also a big asset for Altamonte's Major League All-Stars. The non-starters are: Greg Heiser, Astros, .375. David Fencik, Astros, .385. Mario Riveron, Astros, .325. Doug Lawson, Padres, .275 and Cory Prom, White Sox, .325.

Other than Laszaic the pitching staff includes, Brock, who will start the second game, Siqueros, Hagen, Heiser and Messina.

Four alternates were also selected, they are: Craig Radzack and Kenny Jackson from the White Sox, Alex Birle from the Indians and Brian Parent from the Phillies.

"If they hit and play like they can, they will give a lot of people trouble. We have a very strong all-around team."

Major Manager

base, the only 11-year-old on the team, hit .390.

At third base is Penny Siqueros, the first girl to make the Altamonte All-Stars. She hit .375 for the Indians. Matt Messina, who hit .410 for the Pirates, will play shortstop. In the outfield are: Eric Birle, Indians, .380. Chris Brock, A's, .420. And Greg Metzger, Blue Jays, .325.

"I feel that we have excellent pitching and defense," Haggin said. "We have speed in the outfield and good arms," he added.

Seniors Have Potential For Greatness

The Altamonte Senior League All-Star team has the potential to be a great one. With 12 of the 14 players on the roster having played high school baseball, manager Clayton Garrison's team has the experience and talent that makes a championship ball club.

The Altamonte team also has four players off the league champion Orioles, who went undefeated in post-season play en route to a district title.

Jim Brubaker said that the team shows a lot of promise and should do well in the tournament which starts Monday night at 7:30 when Altamonte plays its first game at Eustis. If the All-Stars win they will play again Tuesday in a 5:30 p.m. game at Altamonte's Westmonte Recreation Center at Altamonte Springs.

"The team has a lot of good pitching and a lot of defensive talent," Brubaker said.

The Senior All-Stars are: Derek Livernols, Orioles pitcher and infielder. Hit .375 and is one of the best pitchers on the staff. Played JV at Lyman.

Tony Johnson, Orioles pitcher and infielder. Hit at a .370 clip and came up with key pitching performances in the Orioles' drive for the district title. Also played JV at Lyman.

Steve Hutsell, Orioles pitcher and infielder. Another strong pitcher, batted .310. Played JV at Lyman.

Alan Wing, Orioles first baseman. Wing boasted a .300 average and did some clutch hitting in the district tournament. Played JV at Lake Brantley.

Mark Chasey, Phillies pitcher and first base, carries an impressive .429 batting average and played at Lake Mary.

Rod Metz, Phillies catcher. Metz also swings a hefty bat with a season batting average of .423. Metz also, played at Lake Mary.

Scott Underwood, Phillies center fielder. Underwood has the team's top average at .461. He played for Lake Mary.

Keith Wallace, Phillies outfielder, .341 average.

Mark Whittington, Phillies infielder, .333 average.

Scott Morrissey, Athletic infielder. Played JV at Lyman, hit .330 for the Athletics.

Kyle Brubaker, Athletics catcher and infielder. Another of the Lake Mary connection, hit .310.

Eric Hagen, Pirates pitcher, .290 average.

Kevin Hill, Astros pitcher and infielder. Also played at Lake Mary, hit .390 for Astros.

Van Golmont, Indians pitcher and infielder. Golmont played varsity for Lake Howell and is one of the All-Stars' strongest pitcher. Hit .354 for the Indians.

Let's meet a typical Little League team. Here's Johnny the pitcher.

Unknowns Zokol, Diehl Lead Milwaukee

FRANKLIN, Wis. (UPI) — It's almost impossible to figure out whether Dick Zokol or Terry Diehl is the most improbable co-leader after two rounds of the $250,000 Greater Milwaukee Open.

Zokol is an unheralded rookie who has earned the nickname "Disco" for his habit of listening to rock music on his stereo headset between shots. Diehl is a master of the oneliner, who has struggled on the tour for a decade.

They both shot 3-under-par 69s Friday to go 10-under at the halfway mark of the GMO with 134 totals.

One shot back of the "Odd Couple" is Scott Simpson, the 1980 Western Open champion who has already won $128,000 this year and finished twice. Four more golfers were two strokes back at 8-under — including Calvin Peete, who won the 1979 GMO title, and 1972 GMO champ Jim

Pro Golf

Colbert.

Peete shot the low round of the day, a 5-under 66, while Colbert carded a 69. Joining them at 136 were Mark Lye, who shot a 67, and Wayne Levi, who carded a 68.

Zokol and Diehl shot 65s the first day to share the lead with three other golfers — including Simpson — but they surprised everyone by hanging tough the second day.

Both struggled at times but came up with some long putts to stay ahead of the pack at the Tuckaway Country Club course.

"I've been in double figures most of the year (after two rounds) but this is the McReynolds: Next Hrbek?

The kid wanted to be a ballplayer in the worst way. He made it, too — in the worst way.

Bob Freitas, president of the Northwest League with headquarters at Eugene, Ore., tells the story.

Freitas was general manager of the Stockton club in the California League at the time. It was Class D then and it's Class A now, but the league still is a professional starting place for those youngsters hoping to make baseball their career.

"This kid's name was Frank Murray ... and was no more than 19," says Freitas. "He was an infielder, a third baseman, and unfortunately for him, we had more third basemen than we could use."

"Murray was cut three times, but kept coming back. The other players felt sorry for him and the fans loved the way he always hustled even in infield practice."

"He stayed with us so long, he finally made it. Eventually, we needed someone who could play the infield and outfield and was available. One thing about him — he could run. When they finally put him in the lineup, he broke in with five consecutive safe bunts. I wonder if that was ever done before or since in the history of professional baseball."

"He finished the season with us and played two years at Stockton. Ultimately, he developed as a player and got as high as Triple A with San Diego in the Pacific Coast League. The last time I saw him was in 1959 in Amarillo. I heard someone say to me, 'Where's my meal money?' When I turned around, there was Frank Murray. He was with the Fire Department in Garland, Texas."

Jack Maloof, who manages the Reno Padres of the California League, believes he has at least two big league prospects in Ozzie Guillen, an animated shortstop from Caracas, Venezuela, and Kevin McReynolds, a strong right-handed hitting 21-year-old outfielder from North Little Rock, Ark.

"I don't think I'm prejudiced when I say Ozzie is the class of the league at shortstop," says Maloof, 33, who once played in The Cincinnati Reds' organization. "He's 17 and should be in the big leagues in three years."

Guillen, now batting .338 with 35 RBIs, played under former big league shortstop Luis Aparicio in winter ball in Venezuela and also is friendly with Dave Concepcion.

"Oh, yes, I know him," Reno's teenage shortstop says about Cincy's veteran All-Star. "He say to me, 'When I am 17, I don't make so much money like you are.'"

Then he laughs about what he has said.

McReynolds got $125,000 from San Diego for signing after starring for the University of Arkansas. He injured his right knee in a collision at home plate in a game with Missouri last summer and underwent surgery a few weeks later. The knee still troubles him a bit.

"He could be playing in Triple A," Maloof says. "If Kent Hrbek can go from this league to the big leagues the way he did with the Minnesota Twins last year, there's no reason why McReynolds couldn't make that same jump, in my opinion. Right now he's hitting .388 and he's got 94 RBIs and 28 home runs—all league-leading figures. He's in line for the Triple Crown in this league."

McReynolds doesn't seem to mind playing this far down in the baseball structure.

"Professional ball is a lot different than I thought it would be. You see better pitching day in and day out than you do in college. I think about my progress. My knee still swells a little, but once that's all over, I'm sure I'll progress rather quickly."

Maybe it's because they're younger and haven't gotten so many kicks yet, but I find the players in the minors much more upbeat, generally much happier, than most of those in the majors.

first time I've been under par," cracked Diehl, whose sense of humor has helped him through some tough times on the pro tour.

Zokol has captured the fancy of fans with his small FM radio and headsets. He says the music calms him down and has helped him ease the pressure of being a tour rookie.

"After shooting a 65 yesterday there was a tremendous amount of pressure on me. I'm trying to tune it out with my stereo."

A field of 71 golfers made the cut, which was at 1-over-par 143. The pros have easily handled the 7,010-yard Tuckaway course but most rounds were lower the second day as some wind came up.

Sweep Of Tigers Breathes Life Into Texas Party

The Texas Rangers suddenly have become the life of the party.

The Rangers, who have played over .500 the last month after an horrendous start, won both ends of a double-header from the slump-ridden Detroit Tigers, 3-2 and 3-1, Friday night to sweep their first twin bill since Aug. 17, 1980.

Buddy Bell's dramatic two-run homer in the ninth inning gave the Rangers a come-from-behind victory in the first game and Billy Sample drove in two runs with a single and a homer to trigger the second-game triumph.

Sample attributed Bell's first-game heroics with providing an emotional lift for the nightcap.

"Personally, I try not to play on emotion too much because you still have to go out and play the second game, win or lose," Sample said. "But as a confidence-builder for the team it really helped."

American League

In the opener, Detroit's Pat Underwood coasted into the ninth with a two-hitter but Sample led off with a double and Dave Tobik, 2-3, took over on the mound for the Tigers. One out later, Bell hit a 1-and-0 pitch down the left-field line to make a winner of reliever Danny Darwin, 5-2.

Sample singled home George Wright in the third inning of the nightcap and homered in the sixth off loser Larry Pashnick, 1-3, to give the Rangers the only runs they needed. George Medich, 7-7, and three relievers combined for the victory.

Elsewhere, Boston beat Minnesota, 4-1,

Milwaukee downed Kansas City, 9-6, Toronto edged the Chicago White Sox, 7-6, Cleveland defeated Seattle, 7-4, California trimmed the New York Yankees, 4-1, and Baltimore topped Oakland, 7-5.

In the National League, it was: the Chicago Cubs 12, Cincinnati 0; San Francisco 3, Montreal 2; Atlanta 6, Pittsburgh 4; Los Angeles 6, Philadelphia 4 in 11 innings; St. Louis 3, Houston 2; and San Diego 5, the New York Mets 3 and New York 6, San Diego 3.

Red Sox 4, Twins 1

At Boston, rookie Frank Viola tossed a six-hitter and Tom Brunansky and Randy Johnson drove in fourth-inning runs to lead the Twins.

Brewers 9, Royals 6

At Milwaukee, two-run doubles by Cecil Cooper and Gorman Thomas highlighted a seven-run fourth inning that lifted the Brewers.

Blue Jays 7, White Sox 6
At Toronto, Ernie Whitt cracked a two-run homer and Al Woods drove in two runs with a double and a home run to lift the Blue Jays.

Indians 7, Mariners 4
At Seattle, Larry Milbourne and Chris Bando belted two-run homers in the fourth inning to pace the Indians.

Angels 4, Yankees 1

At Anaheim, Calif., Geoff Zahn tossed a two-hitter for his 10th victory and Don Baylor's leadoff homer sparked a three-run second inning that carried the Angels.

Orioles 7, A's 5

At Oakland, Calif., Dan Ford's three-run double highlighted a five-run second inning that sparked the Orioles' win.

Jenkins Blanks Reds, Needs 30 For 300

United Press International
 Ferguson Jenkins plans on giving the 300-victory mark an honest shot.

"My goal at the beginning of this season was to win 15 games this year and 15 next year," Jenkins, 6-9, said Friday after notching his 270th career victory, a 12-0 battering for the Cubs over the Cincinnati Reds at Chicago. "That would still put me six games short of 300 victories."

"It depends on how many starts I can get... and whether I can keep myself in good physical shape."

Jenkins struck out seven and walked two in collecting his 48th career shutout and first since Sept. 28, 1979.

"Jenkins' smarts rub off on our other players and when he is on the mound they automatically seem to perform better," said Cubs' Manager Lee Elia.

Cincinnati Manager John McNamara also marveled at Jenkins' performance. "We not only faced a tough pitcher but one who refused to give us many chances."

Cincinnati has lost 11 of its last 12 games to hold the worst record in the NL this year with a 32-51 mark.

Chicago center-fielder Gary Woods drove in three runs, two on his third homer of the season, which came in the sixth inning.

Giants 3, Expos 2

At Montreal, Joe Morgan and Jack Clark cracked sixth-inning home runs and Allee Hamannaker and three relievers combined on a six-hitter for the Giants. Padres 6-3, Mets 3-5

At New York, Dave Klingman's 20th homer, a two-run shot in the seventh, snapped a tie and enabled the Mets to break a seven-game losing streak. In the opener, Terry Kennedy drove in two runs, including the tie-breaker in the seventh.

Cardinals 3, Astros 2
 At Houston, George Hendrick hit his 13th homer and Keith Hernandez singled home the winning run in the sixth for the Cards.

Dodgers 6, Phillies 4
 At Philadelphia, Ron Roenicke, a .117 hitter, doubled home two runs with two out in the 11th to lead the Dodgers.

Brewers 6, Pirates 4
 ATLANTA (UPI) — Larry Whisenton laced a two-run single to cap a three-run fifth inning Friday night that carried the Atlanta Braves to a 6-4 come-from-behind victory over the Pittsburgh Pirates.

With Pittsburgh leading 4-3 in the fifth inning, Atlanta scored three runs off loser Rick Rhoden, 5-8. With one out Glenn Hubbard and Chris Chambliss singled and Dale Murphy followed with a double to left to score Hubbard. After Bob Horner was intentionally walked to load the bases, Whisenton followed with a two-run single to right to help reliever Carlos Diaz, 2-0, to the triumph.

Death Of Five Babies Cared For By Sitter Investigated

TALLAHASSEE, Fla. (UPI)—The Florida Medical examiners Commission has agreed to appoint a committee to look into the deaths of five children linked only by a common babysitter.

The unanimous vote came Friday at the request of Dr. James T. Howell, deputy secretary of the Department of Health and Rehabilitative Service.

Howell said the committee should make sure that the various medical and law enforcement investigators looking into the cases are talking to each other and ensure "That no stones are left unturned."

The commission action was prompted by the death last week of 2-month-old Travis DeWayne Coleman of Blountstown.

The Coleman infant, like four children before him during the past two years, had been in the care of 19-year-old Christine Fanning, a high school dropout who suffers from epileptic seizures.

OPEC Tackles Disputes Over Production And Oil Prices

VIENNA, Austria (UPI)—OPEC, apparently agreeing to keep its 17.5 million barrel-per-day ceiling, extended its emergency session into today in an attempt to solve disputes over the prices and production of individual members.

"The ceiling will not be raised," Iraq's Oil Minister Qassim Ahmed Tari said during a break in Friday's first session by the troubled oil cartel, which is trying to limit production to firm prices.

Palestinians Denied Sanctuary

The worst bombardment in three weeks raged until early today in Beirut, with the trapped Palestinian guerrillas denied sanctuary by Syria and pessimistic that negotiations will prevent an Israeli assault on their west Beirut stronghold.

In a basement shaken by the shelling, Palestine Liberation Organization Chairman Yasser Arafat's second in command, Salah Khalaf (who is known as "Abu Iyad") said Friday he saw no grounds to hope complex negotiations to end the war were bearing fruit.

Mules Ain't Stubborn, Just Unexcited

SANTA FE, Tenn. (UPI) — John Robert Skillington's yelping Australian sheep dogs are the first living things to greet the visitor to his 530-acre farm.

But his pair of mules, Katie and Alice, are his pride and joy.

Skillington, a 61-year-old bachelor, has been living in the same house for 58 years and for almost the same length of time has been around or working mules.

"I never had a public job all my life," said the bearded farmer, sitting in the cool of his front porch with a perfect view of a tree-lined ridge across the gravel road.

His mail is addressed to Santa Fe (pronounced "fee") and many folks in the rolling hills of Middle Tennessee think of the Skillingtons when they think of mules.

"My father was a muleman. A muleman was one who worked fine mules. He knew what fine mules were. Before World War I, when mules were the only thing, he was known all around for his mules. I've been around mules all my life."

Skillington, well aware that the heyday of the mule in agriculture is over, does see a comeback for the cross between a jack and a mare horse.

"I'm in the process of getting back in the business," he said. "I bought a pair of Belgian mares last fall. They're sorrels. I like a lot of color."

He said inflation has hit the mule business "like everything else. The better mules are selling for $1,500 to $3,000. In the olden days mules ran for $100 a pair."

Outside of the Amish in Pennsylvania and a few loggers, Skillington said, there's not much demand for working mules.

"About 90 percent of the demand comes from people who just want to own mules. It's really hard to explain why they want them but they do."

"A banker in Lewisburg said that he's got a pair of mules and people say to him, 'why do you have a pair of mules?' He's caring for them like someone else has a boat."

Skillington said he still uses his mules on his farm when he can.

"I do a little cultivating and planting with my pair," he said. "It takes too much time. I'd work them more if I had more time. You can't give a man $3 an hour and expect him to work mules any more."

Skillington plans to breed the two Belgians for another team to replace Katie and Alice who are eight years old.

Skillington and his team and show wagon are always a featured attraction at the Annual Mule Day at Columbia, about 11 miles down the road, where every spring around 50,000 people come to watch up to 200 mules parade.

"Back in the 1930s Columbia was the largest open street mule market," Skillington said.

Mule Day was held in the 1930s, was interrupted by the war, then resumed before finally dying out in 1953. The celebration was resumed in 1975 with Skillington's father as one of the principal supporters.

Skillington is skeptical about mules ever coming back in agriculture.

"There's no way. It's hard work. It's not like sitting on a tractor. The younger ones (farmers) don't know how to work mules and don't want to learn."

He said there's a bigger future for the animal from people who just want to own a mule.

"There are a lot of people who want mules to ride. They're supposed to be more sure-footed. They use them in the Grand Canyon."

Asked about the mule's best known trait — stubbornness — Skillington replied.

"I don't call them stubborn myself. They have a tendency to take care of themselves. Horses get more excited. A mule will just stand there and take care of himself. Mules ain't stubborn. They just take care of themselves."

Woman Firefighter Quits, Another Applies For Job

One of the Seminole County Fire Department's two female firefighters has resigned to take a job as a paramedic in Lancaster, Pa.

County Public Services Director Gary Kaiser said he received a letter of resignation from Nancy Burnham, effective July 4.

Kaiser said Mrs. Burnham resigned because she felt it was too hard to care for and arrange babysitting for her two children while she was on duty.

In her letter of resignation, Mrs. Burnham, a widow, said she was moving back to her parents' home where she would have an easier time in arranging babysitters for the children.

Kaiser said her departure had nothing to do with reports of complaints from wives of firefighters over sleeping arrangements at the fire station.

He also denied there were any problems with sleeping arrangements.

Kaiser said he had received no complaints from any firefighters or their families over a decision to provide gym shorts and T-shirts and sleepwear at the stations.

The remaining woman firefighter is now on regular duty and another woman has applied to become a firefighter.

Kaiser said, "We will take any woman who is qualified." — MICHAEL BEHA

151 Killed In Plane Crash

NEW ORLEANS (UPI) — A Pan American World Airways jet carrying 145 passengers exploded two minutes after takeoff in a violent storm, killing everyone aboard and at least six people on the ground — the second worst air disaster in U.S. history.

Witnesses said the three-engine Boeing 727-200, packed to capacity with vacationers headed for Las Vegas, Nev., and San Diego, took off in a fierce thunderstorm Friday and may have been hit by lightning before it plummeted into the suburban community of Kenner, La., west of New Orleans.

The crash was the worst since 275 people died May 25, 1979, when an American Airlines DC-10 went down shortly after takeoff at Chicago's O'Hare International Airport. All 272 aboard the plane were killed and three more people died on the ground.

The Boeing 727-200 took off from Miami before landing in New Orleans. It crashed at 4:11 p.m. CDT.

Witnesses said the plane first struck a tree, clipped a large shed, plowed into a house containing a woman and her three young boys — all killed within seconds — jumped 70 feet to the left, destroyed a second house, then landed on the third.

Pieces of the jet also struck two other houses that were damaged by fire.

Within seconds, the New Orleans' bedroom community resembled a bombed-out war zone. Cremated, blackened bodies and body parts were scattered among white-hot aircraft parts and the razed houses.

There was speculation the adverse weather contributed to the crash, but National Transportation Safety Board spokesman Jim Burnett said, "We do not know what kind of impact weather had on this particular flight."

"We will have a team that will determine whether or not the pilot was under any pressure" to take off in bad weather.

Despite the tragedy, one scene brought tears of joy to rescue workers when a 16-month-old "miracle baby" was found alive in the rubble of what was once her home, huddled only yards away from the massive wheels of the jet.

She was identified as Melissa Trahan, whose mother and older sister were killed instantly when the plane leveled the house. The child was hospitalized with burrs on her feet and fingers.

At least seven other people on the ground also were injured, two of them critically and one seriously. Among the dead aboard the plane were seven members of an Addis, La., family en route to Las Vegas to attend the funeral of a relative.

Minister Of Music: 'The Time Has Come For A New Song To Be Sung'

By DORIS DIETRICH
PEOPLE Editor

Making a joyful noise into the Lord has been the hallowed hallmark of Louise Touhy, minister of music and organist of the First Presbyterian Church, Sanford.

Serving the Lord with gladness and coming before his presence with singing is a way of life for Mrs. Touhy who is retiring Sunday, July 11, after 33 years of devoted service to her church.

The decision did not come easy for the accomplished organist who began a letter to the church as follows: "To everything is a season, and a time to every purpose..."

Mrs. Touhy's letter met resounding opposition, but was reluctantly accepted after she ruefully noted "the time has come for a new song to be sung."

Beginning her music career at age 7 in West Virginia, Louise was playing piano for her church when she was in grade school—nearly a lifetime of joyfully praising God.

According to a church bulletin in 1966, Louise was reared by parents who were "steeped in Presbyterian devotion." Her father was a church elder and her mother was a church school teacher and an ardent Women of the Church devotee.

Described as "another stalwart and dean of the church staff," Louise had hardly been placed on the church rolls in 1944 when the minister urged her to develop a church choir—an unexplored potential at the time. Five years later, Mrs. Touhy was deservedly advanced to minister of music when Mrs. Helen Vernay, organist-choir director, moved to Orlando.

Shortly after her move to Sanford when her husband, George Touhy (Capt., U.S. Army) was discharged from the service in Columbia, S.C., Louise was named organist at Winter Park's Congregational Church, where she worked with Mrs. Edna Johnson, eminent musician and choir director of the church for two years, according to Marge Echelberger.

Out of this relationship and her continuous study of the organ with the organist-teacher at Knowles Chapel, Rollins College, Winter Park, Mrs. Touhy served as organist for the Bach Choir with Dr. Christopher Honaas conducting.

As she undauntingly assumed responsibilities of minister of music at Sanford's First Presbyterian Church, including the choirs and the demands of the organ, Mrs. Touhy renounced her "out-of-town" commitments—giving her all to her church.

During the years, the talented musician embarked on various phases of educational ventures exploring new vistas. North Carolina University for Women (Greensboro) afforded organ study and music courses under outstanding teachers which led to her advanced work at the Cincinnati Conservatory of Music under teacher-concertist Parvin Titus.

An interlude in her music participation resulted in diligently becoming familiar with Presbyterian policy and practice as a church secretary, experience she says helped in understanding the activities of the minister and the administrative detail in the church.

Rarely does a year pass that the genial musician has not attended a music conference, seminar or workshop, among them the Montreat Music Conference (North Carolina), Massanetta Springs (Virginia), University of Alabama, "The Church Music Explosion" at Fort Lauderdale and a Fred Waring "sit-in."

Mrs. Touhy is a staunch supporter of continuing education and she practices what she preaches. "Music is not a static thing," she points out. "There are always new ideas to try out, new music and new ways of doing the old things."

Prominent in her work with the American Guild of Organists, Mrs. Touhy has been president of the Central Florida Chapter for several terms and is a former member of the AGO Board of Directors. She is past president of the

P.E.O. Sisterhood and a member of the Board of Directors.

Her continuing dedication to the widespread activities of the church prompted the Women of the Church to elect her to Life Membership, an honor bestowed on a deserving member annually.

Mrs. Touhy is active in the Presbyterian Association of Musicians and Choristers Guild. She frequently attends sessions of Presbytery of St. Johns to keep abreast of the policy and programs of "the larger church."

Basically, Mrs. Touhy says she is interested in the "contribution the ministry of music can add to the 'preached word' and support of the choirs' and congregation's generous response in their addition to the worship services."

In the earlier years, Mrs. Touhy taught music in public schools—but that was another era before she was blessed with the role of ministering music. "It hasn't been a job, it's a privilege," the gifted musician cheerfully commented. "Just a delightful experience."

Retreating momentarily into a state of euphoric nostalgia, Mrs. Touhy attests that she has had so many interesting experiences during her tenure that it would be impossible to cite any one particular outstanding incident.

"All of my music experiences have been exciting," she happily acknowledges.

"Working with so many nice people," is the rewards of Mrs. Touhy's labor of love. "It takes the cooperation of lots of people."

In glorifying the image of Mrs. Touhy and her dedication to the church a church member, Phyllis Conklin, notes, "She is such a beautiful, lovely lady. She has done so much for us."

Many of the fourth graders in youth choirs of years past have married and have their own families today. "I feel like a grandmother," Louise lovingly laughs. "I watched them grow up and

Mobley Studies At Tanglewood This Summer

Sherwood A. Mobley is studying for the summer at Tanglewood. He was selected to participate in the 1982 session of the Fellowship Program at Berkshire Music Center as a Fellow in Percussion.

Tanglewood is a 210 acre estate located between Lenox and Stockbridge in the Berkshire Hills of Massachusetts. The center is maintained by the Boston Symphony Orchestra for advanced study in music.

The Berkshire Festival, presently eight weeks in length, comprises the 24 weekend concerts and other events given by the orchestra during July and August.

The music center provides an environment in which young performers can continue their professional training under the guidance of eminent musicians.

Sherwood says that the center offers a wide variety of educational programs to over 400 young musicians from all parts of the world. He is fortunate to have been chosen to participate in such a Fellowship Program.

On his way to the music center, Sherwood was the houseguest of Mr. and Mrs. Wesley Wright, Hyannis Mass., where he says he enjoyed a beautiful visit with the Wrights.

Mobley will return to New England Conservatory in Boston at the end of the summer where he is pursuing a Master's degree in Percussion.

Photographer's Wife Not Getting The Picture

DEAR ABBY: The wife of a professional photographer is "Baffled" because they've been friends with another couple for 20 years, but when it came time for their friends' daughter's wedding, another photographer was engaged to take the pictures. May I be "Dear Abby" for a minute?

"Dear Baffled: Haven't you ever heard that it's not wise to mix friendship with business? Perhaps because this couple values your friendship so much, they hired an outside photographer.

"Reason No. 1: They want you to attend as a guest — not someone who has come there to work. (Taking pictures is a lot of work if it is done properly.)

"Reason No. 2: Even if your husband is the greatest photographer in the world, something could go wrong, or the bride might not like the shots, and she will scream, 'You ruined my day!' Then a 20-year-friendship would be ended.

"Please give your friends the benefit of the doubt. Believe me, they're doing you a big favor."

SADDER BUT WISER

DEAR SADDER: "Understanding in Cold Spring Harbor, N.Y., adds Reason No. 3:

Dear Abby

"Your friend may have engaged another photographer because she feared that your husband might use his professional talents and materials without charging her, and this is her way of avoiding an embarrassing situation."

DEAR ABBY: I'd like to add my 2 cents' worth about wedding pictures: It doesn't really matter who takes them as long as they're taken by a professional. The worst mistake anyone can make is letting a friend or some member of the family take pictures of a wedding — or any other memorable occasion.

I know. My brother was an amateur photographer, and some of his pictures were pretty good, so when he offered to take the pictures of my wedding I said OK.

That was the dumbest thing I've ever done. Some of the film was bad, and most of the pictures didn't turn out at all. Also, he was trying to make an impression on a girl at the time, so he brought her to the wedding, and Abby, every single picture he took had this girl in it!

He just followed her around and took pictures of her. We do not have one really decent picture of the bride and groom. The family and members of the wedding party were totally ignored.

It's been years now, but every time I think of it I get mad all over again.

HAD IT WITH AMATEURS

DEAR HAD IT: If my readers can stand one more bit of recycled advice: "Hire the best photographer you can get to cover special occasions, because once the occasion has passed, it's gone forever. Don't rely on well-meaning amateurs just because they have a fortune in equipment and 'love' to take pictures."

DEAR ABBY: To the bride's mother who included little notes with the wedding invitations to "remind" the guests that her daughter had everything she needed, so an ideal gift would be "something that could be tucked into a purse or pocket":

How thoughtful! My suggestion would be two handkerchieves: One for the bride and one for the groom.

And possibly a third for the bride's mother to be used to wipe away the tears when she realizes that no cash will be forthcoming.

 played for their weddings." Looking back, Mrs. Touhy expresses pleasure in working with the chancel choirs and three other choirs. "They are all so devoted and volunteer so much of their time and talent," she enthusiastically extols.
 And now, retirement is here. Mrs. Touhy says she plans a more relaxed schedule. "George has been so supportive. We will have time to pick up and go. I plan to visit other churches and sit back and enjoy it." The loved and respected minister of music was honored at a reception Thursday night in the church fellowship hall. A steady stream of well-wishers called during the appointed hours to pay tribute to Mrs. Touhy who was presented an inscribed silver tray by Nick Pfeifauf, church elder.

 Cooking is one of Louise's favorite hobbies, she says, along with collecting recipes and preparing quality meals for her family. While devoted to God's work through her ministry of music, she is primarily wife and mother to George and son Jim.

 She will have it no other way. Nor has she ever given thought to a career change.

Perez Receives Bachelor's In Religion From TTU

Joseph Wayne Perez of Sanford, received the bachelor of religious education degree from Tennessee Temple University in Chattanooga, Tenn.

Perez was one of the 395 graduates to receive a diploma from Dr. Lee Roberson, founder and chancellor of the Baptist institution.

He is the son of Oscar A. Perez of Sanford. While at Temple, Joe was actively involved in the youth ministry, bus ministry, pianist for sophomore and junior classes in the Bible and Christian Ministries division and two years on Temple Messianic Society staff.

He is also a former member of Palmetto Avenue Baptist Church in Orlando. He is a 1977 graduate of Central Adult High School of Seminole Community College.

Vacation Church School

First Presbyterian Church, Sanford, will conduct a Vacation Church School July 19-23 on the theme, "Come Follow Jesus." The Rev. Hugh Pain will direct the school assisted by associate leader Jan Freeman. The five-day course will wind up with a church fellowship dinner and program on Sunday, July 25.

Youth Activities Slated

The Youth Alive fellowship of Trinity Assembly of God, Deltona, have two outings planned. On Tuesday they will leave the church grounds at 9 a.m. for Sportsman Park in Deltona where the girls will play softball against the boys. The day includes lunch and a swim at the nearby lake.

On July 16 the group will leave at 8 p.m. for a baseball game at Tinker Field at Orlando. The Twins baseball tickets were provided by Mr. and Mrs. Jerry Hartnet. They will return to the church grounds at 11:15 p.m. Youth pastor Mike Modica will accompany them to both outings.

Missionaries In Deltona

The Rev. and Mrs. Bryon Herchenroder and children Heather, Phillip, and Mark, missionaries to Mexico, will be special guests in all services of First Baptist Church of Deltona July 11.

The Rev. Herchenroder will speak at both the 8:30 and 11 a.m. morning worship services.

A covered dish dinner will be held in their honor immediately following the second worship service. He will be showing slides and presenting some of their work at Instituto del Manantial, the Bible Institute at Quince de Febrero in Mexico at the 7:30 p.m. service. The public is invited to attend.

'Image Of The Beast' Coming

"Image Of The Beast" from Mark IV Pictures, a powerful motion picture about the Great Tribulation period predicted in Bible prophecy, will be shown at First Assembly of God, Sanford, on July 18, at 6:00 p.m.

This intense, 90-minute drama depicts the stark realities of the sufferings to be undergone by those alive during the years of tribulation.

As the movie begins, the Rapture has removed Christians from Earth, a new world government has been established and those who refuse to take its computerized "mark" are being executed.

The intensity of this fast-moving drama will grip viewers as God's Word is revealed. It is a hard-hitting movie with an impact that cannot be forgotten.

OMS Director Guest Speaker

THE REV. ROBERT ERNY... missionary in Indonesia

The Rev. Robert Erny, field director for OMS International in Indonesia, will speak at Sanlando United Methodist Church in Longwood on Sunday, July 11 at 8:30, 9:45 and 11 a.m. worship services.

Born in China of missionary parents, Erny grew up in the cities of Peking and Shanghai. During the Second World War, the family lived in India. Following seminary graduation in the States, Erny spent a number of years in Hong Kong where he directed the OMS work of church planting and roof-top schools for the refugees who throng the colony. He was recalled to the headquarters of OMS in 1971 to serve as treasurer and vice-president of administration.

As field director of OMS in Indonesia, Erny supervises one of the Society's newer fields. At present the OMS work includes a university student center, missionary children's school, and Bible seminary. The opportunities for evangelism and church planting in that country are presently more than his team can seize for want of personnel.

With his wife, Phyllis, he has completed his first term in Indonesia. The couple have four children.

OMS International, formerly The Oriental Missionary Society, is an undenominational faith mission with work encircling the globe. It specializes in evangelism, training nationals and planting churches.

Prayer Books And Polls Dispute

Episcopalians Call Issue 'Anti-Anglican'

By DAVID E. ANDERSON
UPI Religion Writer

George Gallup is best known as one of the nation's most reliable pollsters, but he is also an Episcopalian and the combination of those two hats have stirred something of a dispute in the 2.8-million-member denomination.

Gallup recently undertook, at the behest of the independent Prayer Book Society, a survey of Episcopalian attitudes toward the church, focusing especially on the denomination's new Book of Common Prayer, adopted in 1979, and the old, 1928 version of the book.

Gallup told a Washington news conference that among Episcopalians who have a preference, most churchgoers prefer the old 1928 version as the book of services for their worship.

So does the prayer Book Society, a group formed to fight for the retention of the 1928 book against what it believes is the "anti-Anglican" Prayer Book adopted by the church in 1979.

During the course of his report on the survey, Gallup also said the denomination has lost a third of its membership in a little over a decade.

That comment brought a sharp retort from church officials, especially the Rev. John A. Schultz, director of Management Information Systems at the Episcopal Center in New York and the denomination's pollster.

Schultz said Gallup's figure was "ridiculous."

"For years," Schultz said, "Gallup has projected a much larger membership than the clergy have listed on their parochial reports. We count only active Episcopalians and poll only their opinions."

Both sides agree that the denomination — like other mainline Protestant religious bodies — has lost members since 1966, the peak of the religious revival that began in the 1950s.

But they disagree not only on the size of that decline but on the causes — especially the role of the Prayer Book.

It is a dispute that has been festering in the denomination for more than a decade as the church went through several trial prayer books in an effort to update the 1928 prayer book.

And the Prayer Book Society, claiming a majority of the laity on its side, is not going to let the issue go away.

It hopes to elect similar-minded deputies (delegates) to the denomination's September convention, seeking to pass legislation allowing for use of the 1928 book at local, parish option.

"Hundreds of thousands of Episcopalians want it used in at least one service weekly," says the Rev. Jerome Politzer, president of the Prayer Book Society. He accused the Episcopal hierarchy of "systematically destroying a living religious and literary tradition."

Gallup's poll, however, doesn't make that overwhelmingly clear.

He reports that between 1979 and the present, the number of laity favoring the 1928 version has declined from 62 percent to 57 percent, suggesting perhaps that continued exposure to the new book by the laity has had some moderating effect on their preference for the 1928 book.

At the same time, the clergy, who in 1979 were overwhelmingly in favor of the modern version, have moderated their feelings as well, with 72 percent — compared to 80 percent in 1979 — saying they prefer the new version.

Gallup reports that both clergy and lay and both supporters and opponents of the new book are virtually identical in feeling very strongly about their position.

Meanwhile, Schultz said the church will make public its own extensive "Profile of Episcopalians" at the September General Convention in New Orleans.

'No Love' Society Replacing Good Neighborliness

Loveless sex is only one manifestation of the "no love" society we live in today.

People now don't help out their relatives and neighbors as they used to. In the old days the electrician would come over and fix the radio for the lawyer who lived down the street.

When the Philco was going again, the lawyer would say, "How about a highball, Al?" Money was never mentioned. Al was glad to help.

When Al would want a will made out or need some legal advice, he would come and see his lawyer friend. As he was about to leave, he would say, "What do I owe you, Paul?"

"I'll send you a bill," Paul would reply. But he never did. It would be hard to say why that kind of neighborliness went out of style. I have an idea, though, that it was Al and his ilk that were responsible. The working man today in many cases can afford to live in the same style as his former "betters." He now can pay his own way and doesn't have to do favors or

Saints And Sinners

accept them.

Today if Al installs a three-way switch for Paul, he sends a bill. And Paul makes out a statement "for services rendered" when he makes out Al's income tax.

A "no love" society also means that people think only of themselves.

Dave had a favorite restaurant across the street from the paper where he ate every noon. He was a celebrity there. All the help made a fuss over him.

One day he saw a friend of his in the restaurant being rudely treated by one of the waitresses who always fawned upon Dave. Dave was angry. He not only mentioned the incident to the waitress, he vowed not to eat there any more. And he didn't for a long time.

LIVING IN GOD'S LOVE

Children attending the Vacation Church School of the St. Stephen Lutheran Church, Longwood, truly reached the "Rainbow Connection" during the summer school session. The slide, made by the Rev. Don Nolt, standing by Freddie the Frog, may have been the pot of gold at the end of the rainbow for those attending, including Freddie. The Rev. Nolt constructed the slide as an added activity for those attending the VCS.

My Eyes Are Squinting, Lord; I'm Looking For You — Everywhere

Robert A. Raines is the Director of the Kirkridge Retreat Center in Bangor, Penn. One of my experiences this summer was spending a week in Kirkridge. The mountains in the distance reminded me of the words from the Old Testament of the Bible:

"I will lift up my eyes to the hills, from whence does my help come? My help comes from the Lord who made heaven and earth."

The mountains reminded me that my search for God has ended. God is the creator who made everything.

A conscience is not a gadget built for comfort, but an internal time bomb. It ticks away the days, ready at a decisive moment to blow your life apart by turning you against your self-interest or setting you apart from your neighbors.

My conscience reminds me that over the years, the trust in God that is mine has been forming my conscience. When I least expect it, my conscience reminds me that God expects me to trust Him in all things. Most of us can look inward and find God in our consciences.

Christians look to Jesus Christ and see God. The Bible tells about two people who were going to a village called Emmaus, about seven miles from Jerusalem. They were talking to each other and Jesus drew near and talked with them. They did not recognize him until they arrived at the place where they were staying. Jesus ate with them and then they knew him.

Seminole Heights Baptist Church

Discover Your Spiritual Gifts

Seminole Heights Baptist Church, Sanford, will begin a new church training unit for adults this Sunday at six p.m. in Room D103 of Lake Mary High School. Title of the unit will be "Discovering Your Spiritual Gifts." The study will help adults to identify, personally discover and develop their spiritual gifts for more effective discipleship.

Jennie Billingsley and Cookie Paul will be team teachers.

A new five-session unit for boys and girls in grades one through three ministered to by Seminole Heights Baptist Church will begin Wednesday, at 7 p.m., in the Covenant Presbyterian Church.

The study will be named "What a Church Is," and the youngsters will learn that a church is a group of baptized believers who are following Jesus' teachings and who are doing Jesus' work on earth.

Jennie Billingsley, Evangelism-

Outreach Director for Seminole Heights Baptist Church, announces that the church's first Backyard Bible Club this summer will be July 18-23 at the home of Mrs. Roger Paul, 102 Ramblewood Drive.

Deloris Pickens and Jennie Billingsley of the Seminole Heights Baptist Church will be at Lake Mary Baptist Assembly the days of July 16-17 for the Sunday School Mini-Conference.

Pastor's Corner

By Rev. JAMES E. ULMER, SR.
Sanlando United Methodist Church

Christians look for God and find Him in the life, death and resurrection of Jesus Christ.

I look for God and find him in others. I see Him in the needs of others. I see Him in the deeds of love done by people. As the poet says:

My eyes are squinting, Lord.
I'm looking for you
In the restaurant,
during the coffee break,
across the supper table.
Are you looking at me
through the eyes of that waiter, in the frown of my secretary,
in the smile of my daughter?
My eyes are squinting, Lord.

KIT 'N' CARLYLE™ by Larry Wright

CARLYLE, WHY WON'T YOU WEAR THIS FLEA COLLAR?

WHY IS IT ALWAYS ME? WHY DOESN'T SHE HAVE TO WEAR ONE?

WIN AT BRIDGE

Seven spades would not be a bad contract, but it is doomed to defeat by the 4-0 spade and 5-1 heart breaks. Even six spades is a hard contract to reach, so there is no reason to criticize anyone who stops at game.

Now for the fun at six spades. South ruffs the diamond lead, plays one spade and notes that West has shown out. What should he do now?

There is one way to guarantee the success of the contract in spite of finding all four trumps in one hand. It is a form of the play which the late Geoffrey Mott-Smith called the "great unblock." Actually, it is a double unblock.

You have used one trump to ruff a diamond and led one. Play out three more to pull all East's. On this fourth trump lead you must discard dummy's ace of clubs. Unblock No. 1.

Now cash your king and queen of clubs to discard dummy's ace and king of hearts. Then lead your jack and let West take his queen whenever he wishes. You still have one trump left to ruff whatever he leads and the rest of your hearts are winners. (NEWSPAPER ENTERPRISE ASSN.)

HOROSCOPE

By BERNICE BEDE OSOL
For Sunday, July 11, 1982

YOUR BIRTHDAY
July 11, 1982
The possibility of your making past errors again is slight in the year ahead, because you'll bear in mind the lessons taught you by experience. With this wiser approach success will be yours.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Have the courage of your convictions today. If you believe the course you chart for yourself is the right one, don't let others dissuade you from it. Find out more of what lies ahead for you for each season following your birthday by sending for your copy of Astro-Graph. Mail $1 for each to Astro-Graph, Box 489, Radio City Station, N.Y. 10019. Be sure to specify birth date.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) If there is someone who needs your help today and you feel inclined to aid this person, do so quietly. A self-sufficient friend might demand the same favor.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Don't let it be said of you that today you are only selecting associates based upon what they can do for you. Pals who can't help will be offended.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) You're very efficient at doing things today, but perhaps only in short bursts. You could lose interest too quickly. Discipline yourself to finish what you start.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Success in your endeavors is likely today, provided you stay in familiar areas. Excursions into the fields of others could lead to costly mistakes.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) You'll know today the types of changes to make which will benefit your family, yet you could be talked out of them and settle for something less desirable.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) In partnership situations today little may result from your joint efforts. Each of you could be waiting for the other to make the initial move.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) This is one of those days where you could come out on the short end if you are involved in a business or financial deal with friends. Be careful!

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Activities you organize today could fall flat if you include persons who do not mix well. Select your participants with this in mind.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Persons to whom you make promises today will take you at your word. They'll be extremely disappointed if you fail to follow through.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Be extremely careful today in managing your resources and those of others. Your ideas are sound, but you may not execute them responsibly.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Ambitious goals you set for yourself today have a good chance of being fulfilled, but try not to advance yourself at the expense of anyone else.

For Monday, July 12, 1982

YOUR BIRTHDAY
July 12, 1982
You will have some unique career opportunities presented to you in the year ahead. However, they may be a trifle complicated and you'll have to carefully sift through them.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) If you become too critical of your work, chances are you'll accomplish very little today. Be as kind to yourself as you are to others when assessing your talents. Mail $1 for each to Astro-Graph, Box 489, Radio City Station, N.Y. 10019. Be sure to specify birth date.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) You may hear some negative gossip about someone with whom you're thrown together today. Don't let this influence you. Evaluate the person yourself.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Don't feel that you have to explain your sentiments or behavior toward your family to outsiders. They may not have the same warm domestic relationship you have.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Your interests are so vast and varied today that, unless you get organized, you could waste the entire day debating what to do, where to go and with whom.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) In financial situations, you're at your best today when you make quick decisions. Prolonged appraisals serve to confuse, rather than to explain.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) The old saying, "When in doubt, do nothing," may not be the wisest advice to follow today. In fact, it might be responsible for your missing out on something interesting.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Logic has its role, but sometimes when dealing with the family your emotions are far wiser. Today may be one of those times.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Concerning your career today: When in doubt, listen to the advice of others. You could be so close to the situation you can't see it clearly.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Just because some unsolicited opportunities may prove lucky for you today doesn't mean you should gamble in other areas as well. Know when to call it a day.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) You'll have all the answers today for everything, except how to deal with the family. It may be wiser at this time to let them have their way.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Too much questioning can lead to confusion and self-doubts today. Let the inner voice guide you. Your intellect won't steer you wrong.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) People are drawn to you today because of what you are and not for what you have, so don't feel you have to make a wealthy impression in order to be accepted.
