

LIFE OF SPY IS BRIEF AND FULL OF EXCITEMENT

Notebook of Official in France Discloses Stories of Many Daring Feats.

SHORT SHRIFT WHEN CAUGHT

Take Most Desperate Chances and Usually Die With Back to Wall— If Taken in Zone of Battle They Are Tried on the Spot.

London—These notes were written by a man engaged by the allies in an official capacity, whose duties continually called him from Paris to the firing lines of the Belgian, English and French, and who thus has unusual opportunities of talking with the soldiers and frequently seeing the battle. The general and his staff have established their headquarters in a village a few hundred yards from the Belgian frontier. From the north comes the roar of heavy German artillery brought up during the night, from the west the duller sound of the big guns of British warships maneuvering four miles from the coast and doing good work. I have slept two hours in a deserted farmhouse in company with three wounded British soldiers and a whining dog, evidently left behind by his master in his flight.

A shuffling of feet in the roadway and shouted orders awaken me. A squad of French soldiers led by a lieutenant is gathered at the door, around two civilians, hands tied behind their backs. Spies! Caught on top of a haystack within a hundred feet of the general's headquarters. They had been in the neighborhood for a week, it seems, getting food no one knows where. They refused to speak. They had fled through vineyards with the numbers of French and British regiments. The names of generals and numbers of batteries were found buried in the hay. On both men sewn in the lining of their caps, were passes through the enemy's lines signed by one of General von Kluck's aide-de-camps.

Their case is settled in advance. Interrogated, they neither make denials nor confessions. Simply refuse to speak. Caught at eight o'clock, they are tried at 8:30, a broken table serving as judge's bench for a colonel and three captains called hurriedly from staff headquarters.

Six Shots End Their Lives. A few questions to which no answers are forthcoming a glance at the notebooks and papers found on the prisoners and it is over. Back of the farmhouse are a poultry yard and decrepit stable. Against the stable wall, eyes bandaged, hands tied, kneeling, the two Germans are placed, the six soldiers' ten paces away. The lieutenant's sword is raised, six shots mingle into one. The law of war is carried out. It is nine o'clock.

Such incidents form a part of every day conversations in the camps and trenches on the firing line. If a spy is caught within the zone of battle he is tried on the spot, the trial consisting of an examination of the papers and documents found on the suspect, the hearing of witnesses and of the prisoner's defense. If no papers or documents are found and the witnesses are not sufficiently affirmative the suspect is released or sent to Paris for further examination, according to the views of the commanding officer.

If a suspected spy is caught outside the battle zone, say in Paris, a lawyer is designated to defend him, and in nine cases out of ten the spy is found guilty, and, unless he is French, in which case he is a traitor and dies, is only sentenced to hard labor or imprisoned in a fortress.

Serves for Country.
A French counter-spying system with headquarters in Paris has done good work in sending to a quieter and, we hope, better world, several hundred too-well informed Germans. Unlike that of Germany's, the French organization is recruited among volunteers, all civilians. None are paid in any way and no other incentive but to serve France is offered them. In this way the government has secured from all walks of life a good number of men, and even women, fond of excitement, who are after neither gain nor honor, but who would not stoop to such work in time of peace.

Up to date a dozen or so of these unarmed soldiers have disappeared, some prisoners, most have ended their lives, eyes bandaged, against a farmhouse wall, 12 German bullets in their bodies. When they started out it was with the understanding that the French government could not recognize them in case of trouble. Those that have died took a chance and lost. The "flyer" is worth while, for a week at counter-spying will often furnish more excitement than a month in the trenches.

The stories of spy chasing are now innumerable in French and British army circles. Here are a few of the most daring attempts made by the Germans since the beginning of the war: S— is a large town, 55 miles northeast of Paris. The houses are low, the church steeple alone being visible at any distance. The German artillery bombarded S— for three days, the church and its steeple alone, much to the surprise of the inhabitants, remaining untouched.

The third night of the bombardment a French sentry saw a light from one of the small windows high up in the steeple. The guard was called, and three men sent into the tower, which had seemed to bear a charmed life. There a man was found. For three days his lantern had served the Germans, who trained their guns a few points to the right and left of the light, certain their shells would strike the town. The spy was janitor of the churchhouse; had been for four years, and confessed he was a German, having been sent to S— to report regularly to the military authorities in Berlin.

Spy Poses as Priest.
Two sentries guard a railway bridge near A—. It is ten o'clock at night. The village is a mile away. All day trains loaded with British and French troops have passed over the bridge. A priest approaches the sentries, going to the next village, he says, to give the communion to a dying farmer. Disregarding orders the sentries, good Catholics, allow the priest to pass. He disappears on the other side of the bridge. Suddenly one of the sentries sees a flicker of light along the ground 50 yards away. A rush to the spot and the good priest is discovered stooping at the base of one of the bridge arches. The stick of dynamite on the ground and blackened fuses in his hand leave no doubt as to his intentions. The sentries did not wait for a court-martial, but executed the "priest" on the spot. Papers found on him proved him to be a captain in a Hessian Hussars regiment.

In a trench near the Belgian border, a few days ago. A jovial old chap, a farmer, comes along with a basketful of peats. The shooting has stopped for an hour or so, both sides needing a rest after 12 hours of uninterrupted fighting. A number of farmers in the region having refused to abandon their homes, no one questions the farmer's presence among the troops, and his basket is soon emptied. As they are given away the farmer is thanked all around and is just leaving when he is grabbed by the throat suddenly by one of the troopers, who half chokes his victim before shouting, "He's a German. He was my boss in Paris." And so it was. For 12 years Joseph Habig had been chief accountant in a big Parisian wall paper factory. He was German, every one knew it, but he was a good accountant. Under him worked half a dozen young Frenchmen. Two days before the declaration of war his consul had warned him to leave Paris—and he had. His knowledge of French had been used by his officers when he joined the German army, and he returned. This time he stayed.

The best is the best. In Paris last month, at the war department offices, officers hurry in and out, orderlies pass like the wind, generals and their staffs discuss the campaign in the hallways, a young artillery officer, lieutenant of the general staff, according to the insignia on his collar, walks up and down idly smoking. A captain passes by, asks for a light for his cigar, and remarks, "Nice weather, lieutenant." No answer. The captain, surprised, repeats his remark. The lieutenant turns away. Angered the superior officer goes after him. The other runs toward a door.

It's all over in a jiffy. Friend Lieutenant brought into a private office, answers questions with an over-the-Rhine accent, which is a trade mark. He is a lieutenant all right, but in the Eleventh Bavarian regiment. He has made the French war office his headquarters for over a week. Some of the Paris papers got hold of the story, which was, of course, cut out by the censor.

MARRIED FORTY YEARS

We have received a card from Col. T. J. Appleyard announcing the fortieth wedding anniversary of this estimable couple.

ALL STATE TEAM

With many baseball teams coming to Florida for the training season it is not untimely to pick an all-state team of newspaper men.

Pitcher, Ed Lambright Tampa Times; catcher, Robert Bentley, Tampa Times; first base, S. Boho Dean, Miami Metropolis; second base, Willis Ball, Times-Union; third base, Geo. A. McClellan, Florida Metropolis; short stop, M. F. Betherington, Lakeland Telegram; right field, S. A. McBride, Arcadia News; center field, A. K. Taylor, The State; left field, Chas. E. Jones, Dixie.

Champion stealer, Robert J. Holly, Sanford Herald; w. c. boy, W. B. Harris, Valley Gazette, Kissimmee; mascot, Wayne Thomas, Plant City Courier; officials scorers, C. E. Howard, Orange County Citizen; and Joe Reese, Orlando Reporter Star; umpire, Willis Powell, Clearwater Evening Sun Orlando Sentinel.

JOYS OF COUNTRY EDITOR

With skillful brush does Willis H. Powell of the Clearwater Sun paint a picture of the joys of life that go with the editor of a small country daily.

"(Time 8 a. m.—The Sun editor starts to write an editorial) WITHIN A (swat a fly) COUPLE OF M— (telephone) ONTHS THE LEGISLA (taller must see the editor) TURE OF TYE (telephone), STATE (half hour taken to closing an order for job work) OF FLORIDA (conferenced over county seat matters) WILL (phone) CONVENE (darn that fly) (phone) AND (man pays his subscription) THE USUAL (more job work and contract made for advertisement) ON BILLS (money paid on account) WILL BE (phone, read advertising copy, pass on job work, pay freight bills, mmore subscription money, etc.)

"What's the use. It is 11 o'clock Begin all over again."
"This is no fanciful picture... Many is the day that we do not find time to finish a single page of copy from 7 in the morning until ten or eleven o'clock.

"This is written not because we object to the business, but as a slight excuse for the proper manner in which we sometimes express ourselves, the faulty diction, grammatical mistakes, the sequence askew.

"Editors of big papers have only to grind out their column or three of matter each day—no business or office cares—stuck back in a secluded corner far from the madding crowd. But the editor of the small country daily—well, that is a different matter."

BENEFITTING PUBLISHERS

For years the newspaper men have been advocating the organization of fruit growers, vegetable growers, merchants, etc., and all the time the printing business, which is one of the most important in the community has been unorganized and very few of the country newspapers or small city papers have been making more than a bare living.

A few years ago, when the average weekly and job office only represented an investment of $1,000 to $2,000, it was not so bad but nowadays, when typesetting machines, which cost $2,500 or $3,500 each, modern presses and up to date material and equipment of all kinds are a necessity, representing an investment of $5,000 to $15,000, the business should be made to pay a better profit.

At the meeting of the Florida East Coast Press Association held in Fort Pierce on Monday, it was shown that the printing trade was making less for the amount invested and the work given to it than any other business known of.

It was also shown that the subscription price of papers was, in most cases, where large, twelve and sixteen page papers are gotten out weekly, insufficient to actually pay for the white paper and postage.

ORGANIZATION OF STOCKMEN

Several different cooperative organizations in Florida have, during the past two years, accomplished a great deal of benefit to the fruit and truck growers of the state.

Chief among these organizations is the Florida Citrus Exchange which has taught the fruit growers of the state better methods of operation in almost, if not quite, every phase of the industry.

Now that the question of raising better stock is uppermost in the minds of many Florida farmers, the Florida Farmer and Homeseeker believes that it is time some action was taken to effect an organization of livestock farmers.

In other live stock sections throughout the United States are found many different breeders' associations, in some cases confined to one breed alone, that are responsible to a great extent for the high grade cattle, hogs and sheep for which these sections are noted.

There should be today in Florida a live stock farmers' association. Possibly an organization made up of divisions for cattle, sheep and hogs would suffice at present.

Florida oranges and grapefruit are becoming more famous and in greater demand every day, largely because of the Citrus Exchange, and it is reasonable to assume that Florida beef, pork and mutton would be vastly improved in quality, with a resulting increase in demand at much better prices if a complete organization of livestock farmers could be formed for the purpose of improving present conditions.

It is up to the leading stock men of Florida to start the movement. Properly administered it will grow in numbers, influence and benefits to the farming interests of the state, almost without other effort.

The action of Seminole county men in calling a meeting at Sanford on Feb. 4th, during the Seminole County Fair, for the purpose of forming a livestock association should meet with a prompt and hearty response from every county in the state. Arrange to be at Sanford February 4th, 1918.—Florida Homeseeker.

CACTUS

The spineless cactus is coming into the limelight in Florida lately, there being several large companies formed at various cities in the state to exploit the sale of slabs and to foster the growth of this great cattle and forage plant.

Mr. Ross and M. M. Stewart planted the cacti slabs on their place on Union avenue and while they have not made much fuss about the plants they have steadily increased the acreage and are now able to supply 8000 slabs for the trade.

Utilizes the forbidding thorn covered cactus in the production of a tempting dainty that is at once nutritious and satisfying. The ancient Aztecs are said to have used this same cactus in a crude way in the preparation of a sweetmeat.

Although 40,000 pounds of fruit may be expected to be produced per acre by a well established cactus garden, it is in the forage value of the plant that the future prospects of the new industry seem to center.

The fact that cacti will grow and flourish in the sandy wastes of the west or south with no irrigation, fertilizer and that it is available for so many purposes makes it a plant that should be given recognition by the people of Florida.

Good pasture grasses for Florida are Bermuda, Para, Rhodes, the various species of Paspalum and Guinea grass.

Bermuda is a grass that is adapted to nearly all parts of the state and to all kinds of soils. However, like other crops, it makes a better growth, and therefore furnishes more pasturage, when planted on good soils.

Para grass furnishes an abundance of good pasturage over a large portion of South Florida. It is a grass better adapted to the southern portion of the state than to the north and western parts, because it is injured more or less by hard frosts.

Bermuda and Para grass are propagated from stem and root cuttings. Bermuda may also be propagated by sowing the seed.

The fruit also finds generous use in the preparation of jams, preserves and cakes of a jelly like consistency. These preparations are among the most prized delicacies of Mexico, and during later days in southern California a cactus candy factory has been utilizing a ton of cactus per week in the manufacture of a confection that may be said to give the palate a new sensation.

Laura Jean Libbey's Talks on Heart Topics

(Copyright, 1914, by the McClure Newspaper Syndicate)

IN HONOR OF GRIP.

If you are too weak to journey
Up the mountain steep and high,
You can stand within the valley,
While the multitudes go by.
You can chant in happy measure
As they slowly pass along
As they slowly pass along
Tho' they may forget the singer
They will not forget the song

It is not unusual for a merry, light-hearted young fellow to imagine himself deeply smitten with a bright, vivacious, pretty young girl at the first moment of the introduction. A whirlwind of courtship ensues, and their engagement follows.

As the old saying goes, "quick to fall in love, quick to fall out again!" Another girl, or, perchance, another young man comes upon the scene. He or she is more courteous to the stranger than the ocean demands. Jealousy arises, and a lover's quarrel follows. There is a parting of the ways.

Of themselves, these incidents are of small moment to him, but when the girl carelessly recounts to his sweetheart that the lover she has such confidence in has been beating her home from evening affairs, taking walks with her, sending her flowers, her faith in him is shaken to its foundation. He may explain the matter frankly, but that is not saying her fears are groundless, and forever set at rest.

The woman who believes her trust betrayed always harbors a doubt in her heart. This is the blighting frost that sooner or later kills love. If the heart is disturbed in its love dream, it can never afterwards beat with the same joyous rhythm. It is always wisest and best for a lover to explain at the time being just how this or that occurrence took place, that he may have her views on the subject. Her confidence is worth everything to him. With it a happy future is assured for them. Without it, their lives will drift apart. Lost is the whole world to him if he possesses not the 'jewel of her confidence.'

BLAMING HERSELF.

I hold it true what'er befall,
I feel it when I sorrow most:
'Tis better to have loved and lost
Than never to have loved at all.

When a woman does the best she can with either her daily tasks or her love affairs, she should not fall into lamentation and grieve if they go wrong.

In regard to even the duties she knows best how to perform, it is comforting for her to hear that mistakes will happen even in the best of families. It is quite as true that love affairs the whole world over have not run smoothly. If she has a quarrel with her lover, and he goes off in a huff, when she sits down and thinks the matter over, nine times out of ten she blames herself. She goes over the whole affair carefully. When he said he could not come, the following evening but stubbornly refused to give the reason why she shouldn't have pumped at the conclusion that he was going with some other girl, accused him of it, and been unprepared for his later explanation.

At the time she supposed he would assure her to the contrary. His excuses made matters worse. She should have remembered that a gentle word turns aside wrath.

As the years go on, she grows longer, and she does not hear from him, she wonders if she were not at fault in not giving him encouragement to bridge over the difficulty. She does not stop to consider that many another girl of spirit would have done just as she did. That is really twice two to make a quarrel. It is the girl who has a will of her own, based upon every thing going her way.

No matter how long a girl may know her lover, she will find traits in him, even at the end of the longest courtship, which she never knew he possessed. The careless, easy-going man she discovers to be capable of sudden and unforeseen obstinacy. He on his part discovers that the girl he thought had the sweetest of dispositions can be distrustful and capable of downright petulance. A little kindness on the part of the man can do the rest.

Let the woman blame herself? Never. He considers that a girl has no right to pry into his private business, even if they are betrothed. It is time enough to inform her when she becomes his wife. Men seldom, or never, die over a love dream which had a little acid in it. He does not say to himself: It was all my fault. The truth is, he is more than apt to get the greater part of the blame or credit on the subject.

Will you not do this or that to prevent him into an angry report?

As the years go on, the more set he is in his belief. Girls should realize that the men who are content to leave their hearts once made, each should consider wedlock a grip, tender and sweet as it is firm.

LOST! A WOMAN'S CONFIDENCE.

Ah, world unknown! how strange is this view.
Thy pleasures many and new, pleasure new,
Ah! world experienced! where of thou art old,
How few thy pleasures, and how few how cold.

Contented is the woman who has implicit faith in the man she loves. The pang of jealousy are unknown to her. The most beautiful and brilliant of women may flutter about him, but if a fillet of love binds his eyes he does not see them. He is deaf to their flattery. Absence makes his heart grow fonder toward the object of his affection; but it happens once in a while that even the most conscientious of men are caught in a whirlpool of circumstances from which they find it difficult to extricate themselves to the entire satisfaction of sweethearts.

A girl rival of his loved one may be persistent in her efforts at setting her cap for him. If he meets her at the home of a friend, quite unexpectedly, he must be courteous to her, and, especially at night. If she asks him archly if he will execute a little errand for her—stop at a florist's and order her a dozen choice roses, her favorite, he, as an old acquaintance of her family, would not disclose her.

If he is taking a short cut through the park and happens to encounter the same girl, it does not occur to him to hurry past with a slight nod. If she's going in his direction he feels it duty bound to shorten his pace and walk beside her as far as the con-

BUDGET OF OPINION "JUST BETWEEN YOU AND ME."

EVEN THE GATE POST NOT IN IT

A CHIEF IS AMONG YE TAKING NOTES AND FAITH. "HE'LL PRENT 'EM"—SO SAYS SAUNTERER.

The Arcadia Enterprise has made a most excellent suggestion to the effect that a Newcomers' Day be held in that city. This idea, it seems, originated in Cedar Rapids, Iowa, where it has been carried out most successfully, with the result that new residents have immediately been made to feel contented and at home, and at the same time the municipality has been advertised broadcast throughout the land as "a city with a soul." Here is a plan which might well be adopted by New Smyrna to advantage. The Enterprise speaks very interestingly of the Cedar Rapids idea as follows: In Cedar Rapids the Board of Trade carries a continuous advertisement in the newspapers asking each newcomer to call and register. They then give him a badge which contains his name and it is understood that all citizens when they see a person wearing the badge of the new comer are to give him the glad hand and the welcome smile.

If they can do anything to smooth life's pathway for him they do it. If he wants to rent a house, purchase property, is in need of credit, work, friends or any accommodation anywhere, the new comer gets everything that he is due. On Newcomers Day the women make it their business to call on newcomers who live in their immediate vicinity. The school children are also impressed with the spirit and bid a welcome to all of the new pupils, endeavoring to make them feel at home. Aloofness vanishes, loneliness gives way to human love, and helpful hands bridge great gulfs of pride. Deserts of emotion are made to blossom like the rose; waste places in desolate hearts are made green, and sorrow and sighing flee away. Here is a municipality flavored with friendship—a city, with a soul.

Hearing that Dr. Brownlee of the Presbyterian church would lecture on "They Said" last Sunday morning I attended the services for I have also lectured on this subject many times in The Herald. I expected something good and I was not disappointed for Dr. Brownlee gave the most clear and forceful sermon on the evils of gossip that I have ever heard. It was a sermon that could be taken home by every one who heard it for all of us are too prone to repeat the evil and none of the good things we hear about our neighbors. After he had given the lecture to the grown folks he supplemented it by talking to the little folks and with the aid of three sitters he told of the manner in which the children should treat gossip. He first brought to light the large flour sifter called "Truth" and told them to always sift the story through that first. He then brought out a smaller one called "Kindness" and told them to try that next on the story and last the very small sifter called "Is it necessary" and told them the story would never get through the meshes of that sifter and if they would use all three of these strainers for the stories they heard about any one the stories would not get any farther than the first person.

Dr. Brownlee also read the poem of Ella Wheeler Wilcox on the great family of "They Said" and his exposition of this numerous family was the best that I have ever heard. It was a loss to the people of Sanford that they could not all be present to hear this lecture, for it was good in every particular and Dr. Brownlee is to be congratulated on bringing these great truths home to the people. Every one needs this lesson. We all talk too much without saying anything.

The Southern Lumberman, Nashville, Tenn., this week in an editorial on the "Build Now" campaign being launched by the builders and contractors' exchanges, chambers of commerce and other commercial organizations in various cities throughout the country, advises builders to go ahead with whatever building they have planned while costs are low. The Lumberman says:

"The 'Build Now' campaign for the south launched at Atlanta appears now to be making good progress, and to have already worked up a feeling of optimistic confidence that will find expression in increased local building."

The move ought to be helped along in every possible way all over the south. It ought to be helped as much as possible by a "do it now" policy on the part of all towns and cities with respect to municipal improvements and extensions, especially street paving.

The idea of the south, with all her immense resources practically untouched, being seriously crippled by a mere failure to market at normal prices an immense yield of one of her crops is shearest absurdity.

All over the country, but nowhere more than in the south, the war in Europe has already been permitted to depress business and dampen the spirits of the people far more than there was ever any sense in or excuse for.

It is time for all of us to wake up, crawl from beneath the structure erected by that pale architect, fear, and vigorously fall on whatever of legitimate undertaking lies before us.

There is not only nothing now to wait for, but every good reason on earth for going ahead with every kind of needed building and improvement. And the sooner the better. The man who puts off building any sort of a house for six months will pay 10 per cent more for all his material. If he puts it off for a year he will pay 25 per cent more.

There never was a time when the building season ought to open up earlier or be more vigorously prosecuted.

The saving to be effected in lumber alone should constitute ample incentive to build this year, and as soon in the year as possible.

End Ancient Omcs.
The town's bellman is a functionary who has come down with the history of various ancient communities for hundreds of years, but Stirling (England) town council recently resolved to abolish the office. It was decided to ask that the bell be returned by its present holder, and if he is employed by third parties to make announcements, that he provide a bell for himself.

Bridge Luncheon

A charming event of the mid-winter season was the attractive bridge luncheon at the home of Mrs. D. L. Thrasher on Monday, with Mrs. Thrasher and Mrs. W. E. Watson hostesses to the members of the Every Week and Auction Bridge Clubs and a few other friends. The charm of simplicity pervaded the decorations of the rooms, which were very attractive with their vases and bowls of cut flowers. A tempting four course luncheon was daintily served. Mrs. W. D. Holden was winner of the Every Week prize, two pairs of white silk hose. The Auction Bridge prize was won by Mrs. S. E. Barrett. This was a lovely fancy silk workbag. Mrs. Anno was presented with a memorandum tablet, the consolation prize. Guests of this happy occasion were Mesdames O. W. Brady, M. L. Raines, LaVerne Hurt, Geo. Bishop, S. E. Barrett, Sr., S. E. Barrett, Jr., C. O. McLaughlin, C. M. Vorce, Margaret Barnes, T. A. Neal, Forrest Lake, W. D. Holden, W. R. Anno, G. F. Smith, R. A. Newman, Samuel Puleston, A. P. Connelly, B. W. Herndon and F. L. Miller and Miss Fish.

St. Agnes Guild

The young ladies of St. Agnes Guild were delightfully entertained by Miss Salome Hampton at the home of Mrs. S. O. Shinholser, Monday afternoon. Two new members were added to the roll, Mrs. Spicer and Mrs. Tifts. Olives, sandwiches, hot chocolate and the inevitable mints were served. The girls of St. Agnes never enjoy a menu unless "mints" have a conspicuous place on the table. Miss Hampton's guests were Mrs. Braxton Perkins, Mrs. Spicer, Misses Martha King, Eva Walker, Lucille and Frances Aspinwall, Gusdie Ogram and Zoe Munson. The next meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. Braxton Perkins, with Miss Zoe Munson hostess.

Outing Party

A delightful little outing was enjoyed by a congenial party of young people Sunday afternoon, who motored over to Altamonte Springs, had supper at the hotel and spent the evening hours in "the shady nooks, beside babbling brooks" of the park. In the party were Misses Florence Frank, Olga Schultz, Gretchen Schultz, Saidee Williams, Meers W. J. Thigpen, Ernest Houliholder, L. D. Roberts and Arthur Yowell.

New English Supper

The ladies of the Country trial church will give one of their famous New England suppers in the Hynes block Saturday afternoon and evening of this week. Home baked beans, brown bread and all the et ceteras will be served at moderate cost.

Announcement

The Christian Endeavor Society of the Presbyterian church will give an entertainment at the Imperial Theatre Tuesday, January 26 for the benefit of the church fund. The play will be taken from the Hoosier Schoolmaster, which is enough to insure its success. The "Hoosier School" is replete with comical situations, lovely music and costumes adapted to the "deceitric." Popular prices will prevail.

At the Imperial Thursday, Jan. 28th the Welfare Department will give a charming little college play or musical comedy, "Pretty Polly Primrose." Pretty Polly is one of Sanford's most attractive and popular girls. The Irish maid is a popular young married lady who has already made a hit on the Sanford stage. Other parts have been successfully cast and the rehearsals promise a fine entertainment.

Called Off

It has been deemed advisable to call off Dr. T. A. Neal's address to the Welfare Department Wednesday afternoon in view of the fact that a large part of the exhibit used at the Health Association meeting at Jacksonville will be on display during the Seminole County Fair. It is believed that Dr. Neal's subject will be of more value and interest after seeing this exhibit. Through the courtesy of Dr. Neal the address will be given later instead of tomorrow (Wednesday) afternoon as at first planned.

Sew-Sew Club

A delightful meeting of the Sew-Sew Club was held at the home of Mrs. F. L. Woodruff Friday afternoon, with Miss Mamie Devlin the charming young hostess. Interest centered in the correct pronunciation of words, affording a period of amusing fun and educational amusement. A delicious salad course was served, consisting of fruit salad, banquet wafers, dinner biscuits, olives, coffee and cream. Enjoying the hospitality of Miss Devlin were Mesdames Dingee, Peck, McKinnon, B. A. Howard, Holly, DuBose, C. C. Woodruff and F. L. Woodruff.

Better Baby Contest

The committee at work on the Better Baby Contest that will be held Feb. 5th report progress and an enthusiastic interest in the contest. Information will be given with reference to examination and application blanks will be furnished and sent out by the committee. All names of contestants should be sent to Mrs. John Meisch, chairman of Better Baby Contest Committee. Babies are eligible from six months to three years old. The committee have been requested to enter the winners from Seminole county in the Orlando Mid Winter Fair Contest. FIRST NATIONAL IN ANNUAL MEETING

SEMINOLE'S OLDEST BANK IS IN A FIRST-CLASS CONDITION

The regular annual meeting of the stockholders of The First National Bank of Sanford was held in its banking rooms on Tuesday, January 12th being the 27th meeting of this character convened since the organization of the bank over twenty seven years ago, and it is worthy of note that, passing notice that the presiding officer of that first meeting, Mr. F. H. Rand, presided at the recent meeting having been elected president, which position he has held continuously since organization. And further, Mr. F. P. Forster, who was then elected cashier and secretary, has been secretary of the board during all these years, and served in that capacity at the meeting of the 12th.

Soon after the disastrous freeze of the early nineties, feeling that the capital of the bank, then $50,000.00, was larger than needed, it was reduced one half and $25,000.00 in gold cash paid over to the stockholders.

During these years when the citrus growing sections were slowly recovering from the destruction wrought by freeze, The First National Bank was one of the first to see the need of a bank in the citrus growing sections, and it was the rehabilitation of the industries to which our people turned their attention. Slowly but surely Sanford has regained all that was lost and is forging ahead in importance and standing as a business center.

Being to meet once again, the First National Bank of Sanford, with only a few years of its history, stands today with a capital and surplus of $100,000.00, and a reserve fund of $50,000.00, the largest working total of any bank in the county.

The business of The First National shows a healthy increase, and with the new blood and the new men brought into connection with it, by the sale of the new stock, it is felt that its opportunity for usefulness is greatly increased.

At the last meeting held on the 12th the board of directors was increased to seven, and the following were elected to serve for the year: Frederic H. Rand, F. P. Forster, S. O. Chase, Theo. J. Miller, J. A. Brumley, T. I. Hawkins and B. F. Whitner.

At the meeting of the board of directors held later, Mr. Rand was re-elected president, Mr. Forster, vice president, Mr. Whitner, cashier and Mr. Betts, assistant cashier.

THE EUSTIS BAND WILL ATTEND FAIR

WILL BE THE ATTRACTION ON THE FOURTH OF FEBRUARY

The Eustis Band will be here during the Seminole County Fair, coming on Eustis Day, Feb. 4th. The Eustis Band has been an organization ever since Ponce de Leon discovered Fort Mason and they have always had a first class organization. For many years Billy Senoole has been the leader and under his splendid leadership the band is better and bigger than ever and if they come to Sanford during the fair we will see that they get a good hot lunch and no cold banquets. The following letter of acceptance is from Mr. Senoole:

Eustis, Fla., Jan. 20, 1915. Henry B. Marks, Director General Seminole County Fair, Sanford. Dear Sir:

Yours of the 15th inst. to hand and in reply will say that it will be a pleasure for the Eustis Concert Band to attend the Seminole County Fair on Eustis Day, and we are making every effort to come. I believe I am safe in saying you may look for our organization in Sanford on that day and also a good delegation from the Eustis citizenship.

Wishing you success in this affair I am, Yours respectfully, W. L. S. ACOLLE, Director.

German's Raid England

London, Jan. 22. Raids from hostile aircraft occurred Wednesday night at Yarmouth, Cromer, Sandringham, Hunstanton, Heacham, Dersingham and Kingslyn.

The raids began shortly after 8 o'clock and lasted until 11. Two were killed at Yarmouth, a man and a woman. A soldier, widow and child were killed at Kingslyn. The police here say the report that a young Zeppelin was brought down there is untrue.

So far as can be learned five or six were killed in all the raids and an equal number wounded. It isn't known if the craft were aeroplanes or Zeppelins.

King George left Sandringham last night before the German raid. The raiders skillfully planned and executed a series of raids and dropped the bomb accurately. Some of the tracks were within a hundred yards of London.

Great Fireworks Display at Fair

One of the greatest pyrotechnic displays ever witnessed in this section of the state will be seen each evening at Sanford, during Seminole County Fair. The fireworks display is not going to be of the mere Roman candle or sky rocket variety but it will be a wonderful and glorious exhibition of all that is beautiful and novel in fireworks. Wonderful aerial bombs, after reaching several hundred feet in the air will release gorgeous canopies of feathery plumes in the richest coloring. Some will display grand bursts of golden hanging spurs representing the branches of the willow. Some will send forth mammoth yellow streamers, tipped with beautiful jeweled stars of bewildering beauty, while others will explode dozens of times, sending forth a shower of a thousand different sparks and tiny balloons besides these aerial works, there will be a great number of fancy exhibition set pieces running from 25 feet to a hundred feet long. The most pretentious and one of the most popular with the spectators will be the huge piece constructed to read "Boost for Seminole County." This beautiful piece will be outlined as the central figures. This will be a masterpiece in the art of firework building. Besides this there will be a great number of wonderful set pieces of wonderful designs. This tremendous firework display will be presented each night in connection and conjunction with Seminole county's first fair and absolutely free.

Prominent Author in the City

Dr. H. Beauchamp, one of the leading Sunday school authorities of the south, whose home is Dallas, Texas, has just closed a week's institute for the training of Sunday school workers at the Baptist church. Quite a large class will receive diplomas at the Sunday school on next Sunday morning as a result of the week's work. In the opinion of Mr. Beauchamp the Baptists here have one of the best regulated Sunday schools in the south. He gives his best endorsement of the plan of the new building now nearing completion and has taken notes of many items, in order to pass them along to other Sunday schools. The Baptist Sunday school is managed largely by the superintendent, Hon. Jno. D. Jackson, superintendent, Mr. George Ballard as secretary and Miss Allie Traford as primary superintendent. Mr. Hyman, the pastor, has been for several years a Sunday school specialist.

GOOD ROADS ALL OVER THE STATE

STATE ASSOCIATION WOULD MAKE TRUNK LINES IN FLORIDA

The direct and definite purpose of the Florida State Good Roads Association, said F. O. Miller, president of the Association, in reply to an inquiry made by a representative of this paper, "is to secure action by the coming legislature which will create a state Highway Department and place the construction and maintenance of main roads under state supervision.

Several counties in Florida have issued bonds and built a considerable mileage of good roads. In many instances the lack of connections through counties not so progressive prevents the fullest use and benefit of the improved roads to the communities which built and paid for them.

Good roads will make Florida the writer playground of America. They will also make a multiplicity of its fruit and vegetables and other foodstuff production. They will cause the establishment of great canning and preserving establishments for the consumption of supply products. They will open up new markets for the products of the state.

Florida every winter attracted by the advertisements of real estate companies. They are pleased with the climate, the soil and the possibilities of agricultural production. They are looking for real estate agents to sell them homes. They are looking for real estate agents to sell them homes. They are looking for real estate agents to sell them homes.

Though the main roads under state supervision will in no wise lessen the demand for county roads, it will make their necessity more apparent. At the same time the engineering services of the State Highway Department will be at the service of the counties for information and advice as to methods and materials which can be used to the best advantage and with the greatest economy in any given locality.
