

States Continually In Squabbles Over Boundary Lines

Shifting River Beds, Ocean Tides Change Land's Regularly

CHICAGO, June 6.—Shifting river bed ocean tides and just plain disagreements keep the question of state boundaries a perennial issue between commonwealths.

From the earliest days of the Republic, they have been fighting over "block yard" for the record decision of the United States Supreme Court in the Michigan-Wisconsin row only took care of two of about a half dozen differences of opinion over borders.

The high tribunal in this case returned to a special master that task of equitably dividing the lake grounds between the Great and Menominee River areas and directed how the line should be plotted. Its action settled once and for all the dispute which had been pending in 1926 but reopened in 1932.

One of the most interesting cases involved the adjudication of rights to river banks made in the seventeenth century. It involved the property of the Washington, D.C. airport and the waters of the Potowmack River. The area involved is practically the only kidnaper to have escaped temporary forces of law. Some have been put behind prison bars, others have been freed by police, and the kidnapper, John H. Haughton, kidnaper of the Linda baby, and Walter McElroy, kidnaper of Miss Mary McElroy, of Kansas City, were turned at large, although his wife and his father are in custody awaiting trial.

Haughton, kidnaper of the Linda baby, and Walter McElroy, kidnaper of Miss Mary McElroy, of Kansas City, were turned at large, although his wife and his father are in custody awaiting trial.

Virginia and Kentucky have set up commissions to determine boundaries between the two areas along the Potowmack-River, Maryland, out of which the District of Columbia was carved, received grants from the federal government in 1926 and Virginia her charter from Lord Culpepper in 1688—each province was given in the Potowmack. The matter was supposed to be settled after a year of conflict, in 1758, but has bubbled up once more.

Nebraska and Iowa through the years of shifting on the part of the Missouri River have acquired some of the other's "territorial" rights. Gov. R. L. Scott of Nebraska has suggested a trial commission to confer with Iowa on the "swapping" of Iowa land on the Nebraska side for Nebraska land in the Iowa side of the river. The case why won't reach the high court.

Kentucky has territorial problems with Indiana and Ohio. A boundary fixed in 1800 has become a matter of some conjecture because of a shift in the Ohio River. Kentucky has asserted its claim to territorial rights by filing suit against Evansville, Ind., for $270,000 in taxes levied on its waterworks, which it alleged were overvalued.

In another case Kentucky and Tennessee are seeking permanent location of a boundary mark or point. Tennessee's attorney said "that has been moved three or four hundred yards."

Texas and Oklahoma are contended over the ownership of 600 acres of land along the Cimarron River.

Kidnapping Back As Major Menace Plaguing Nation

Weyerhaeuser Case Revives Memories Of Late 'Snatches'

WASHINGTON, June 6.—Kidnapping of George Weyerhaeuser brought kidnapping back as a national menace, according to the sheriff, who said he had been the most fearsome crime of all had been stamped out by the relentless drive of federal agents since the abductions of Charles A. Lindbergh Jr.

For months there had been no major abduction. The last was made by a man who had been kidnapped from her Louisville home in October, 1934. Her kidnapper, Thomas H. Robinson, was captured here late Monday, was arrested without a struggle.

The sheriff said Westberry was arrested without a struggle.

Provisions Of Repudiated NRA To Be Retained

WASHINGTON, June 6.—A survey of reactions to the Supreme Court ruling against the National Recovery Administration shows that most of the provisions set up by the NRA are still valid, though some changes are being made.

Dr. Isaac D. Kefley Jr., chairman of the Senate Select Committee on Small Business, said yesterday that the NRA director, Mr. Edward F. Ross, had agreed to retain the 80-hour week, the minimum wage, the maximum working day, the maximum hours of work per week, and the maximum number of hours worked per week.

Primarily, as agricultural conditions there were no major changes. All industries in state are small. Leaders believed code provisions, where feasible, would be continued voluntarily by industry.

There is a city ordinance here requiring operation of the machines, but Ross served notice that it would be enforced regardless of what the legislature did about retaining them in other parts of the state.

This state planned to continue existing rules of the NRA.

Mile Windstorm
Damages Homes In North Miami Area

MIA., June 8.—A single wind striking northward

about 1 o'clock yesterday

uprooted large Australia trees, many small houses, trees and electric poles.

Northwest section of the area received the greatest damage from the winds.

The house at the corner of 14th Ave. and 52nd St. was completely down with only removal remaining to show the house stood when the winds were partly unbroken.

Three meetings took place in

Apostolic Church of God,

W. 24th St. between Fifth

England Hints At Settlement Of Debt

Hunting at the possibility of a future debt settlement perhaps Great Britain yesterday told the United States that it would default on war debt in installments of $25,000,000 due on June 16 and payments in arrears amounting to roughly $300,000.

Sir Ronald Lindsay, British

ambassador, informed Secretary

Hull the British government had given a comprehensive explanabeen unable to make payments in the past "pending the negotiation of a final revised settlement."

Roosevelt Asks For Control Of All Carriers

President Pleads For Legislation Which Would Place Every
Agency Under ICC

WASHINGTON, June 8.—(AP)—

President Roosevelt asked Congress in a special message yesterday to give the Interstate Commerce Commission control of highway, rail, inland waterway and air transportation.

He called for the enactment of bill to:

Help along railroad refinancing

By air transportation under the Interstate Commerce Commission.

Regulate highway motor carries.

Put inland waterway and coastal carriers under the Interstate Commerce Commission.

Mr. Roosevelt and Secretary

Morgenthau, indirectly, gave new impetus yesterday to talk of a fresh distribution of wealth through stiff gift and inheritance

taxes.

The general of developments outlined in that direction included

The President and at his press conference he hoped to give the people "greater distribution, not only of wealth in the narrow terms but of wealth in the wider terms."

Secretary Morgenthau arranged to confer with Congressional tax leaders shortly.

It was reported that the President would propose new inheritance and increased gift

taxes.

Secretary Roosevelt advocated before a meeting of federal and state representatives at a tax conference which means of eliminating double and overlapping taxes

overlapping taxes include:

1. Some instances the government has helped a little. In other cases it retarded. In still others it has given special advantages from time to time—in many instances without rhyme nor reason—in all instances without considering each aspect of the problem in the light of all the others.

It is small wonder that in a transportation picture as com-fused as ours the public has been greatly served."
