U. S. EPIDEMIC SWEEPS EAST FROM PACIFIC

Public Health Service Predicts Disease Is To Grip Entire Na- tion In Its Advance

Middle West Is In Center Of Ravage

Several Schools Are Forced To Close On Account Of Malady

WASHINGTON, Dec. 11.—

The influenza epidemic, which has swept from the Pacific Coast, will spread to the entire nation, the public health service predicted today. Information from 26 states showed that 21,228 new cases were recorded in the week ended Dec. 8, and that the epidemic is now centered in the Middle West. There were 1,400 new cases reported in Kansas, 1,100 in Missouri, 1,000 in Iowa, and 800 in Illinois, according to the health service. That would push the total for the states to more than 100,000.

Sanford Gets Two On Non Conference Mythical Eleven

Yancey And Hansell Chosen Among Best Lineemen In State; Leesburg Has Three

Two Local Backs Receive Mention

Tatterson And Peters Described As Among Best Ball Carriers

TAMPA, Dec. 10 (Special From Tampa Tribune). One of the greatest seasons in the history of high school football in Florida has passed, leaving glorious victories and defeats for fans to talk over with another year rolls around. The feats of players will form the major part of every conversation about the past season, and will be talked over.

Perhaps the greatest number of outstanding players would be found on teams in the Florida "Ten" conference, but throughout the season The Tribune sports staff has kept an eye on players performing outside the circle and with the aid of coaches and officials has lined up an array of backs and line men on an honor roll that includes stars who could hold their own with the best. The past season, as fans will testify, has produced numberless football players on small teams capable of lining up alongside of stars on the teams representing the large schools.

Jackets Get There

Sanford, undefeated and with a winning point total, was in the thick of the fight between the smaller schools. The team has been one of the strongest for two seasons and it is generally admitted that some of the best gridder of the state can be found in the Sanford ranks.

Leesburg stars have been selected for honor positions, with the best of the job being made up of each from Tarpon Springs, Leesburg, Sanford and one each from St. Leo and Sacred Heart Academy of Tampa.

Many Great Backs

The stars have not been abundant on the smaller town teams. Good backs can be found in Leesburg, Adams and Tarpon Springs, of Leesburg; Crusoe Lopez, of Sacred Heart; Peter Tatterson, of Sanford; Miller and G. Tulmaris, of Tarpon Springs; and Howell and Webb, of Leesburg.

Motive For Slaying Doubtful By Attorney

ATLANTA, Ga., Dec. 10 (INS)—Doubt of a "home wrecking" motive in the slaying of Hall Davis, prominent business man shot to death here by W. L. Shippey, grocery clerk, was expressed today by Attorney General Boykin. Boykin, in declining his request as to the motive assigned by Shippey for the shooting, said that trial would be delayed until a thorough investigation of the shooting can be made. "I am not satisfied," Boykin said, "with the Shippey story of how Davis had wrecked his home, and how he shot to avenge his honor."

Tex Rickard And His Garden Officials Await With Anxiety Outcome Of Battle In Elimination Tourney

By Davis J. Walsh
International News Service
Sports Editor
NEW YORK, Dec. 10 (INS)—Jack Sharkey, the restrained, distant young man from Boston, will be returned to circulation up to his home town for a 10 round fight with Arthur De Kuh tonight and Tex Rickard and his directors of Madison Square Garden probably aren't casually interested. They are scared stiff for all they know, Mr. Sharkey may be fixing to enact another Hanson-Christie disaster.

They got the tidings on that one only a few days ago and expect to recover with kindness and tender care. It completely eliminated one of the hand men before the heavyweight elimination event could start doing big things in a big way, while they had realized that the Boston had one of the most promising things in all pugilism. They couldn't had reason to expect slightly more, willfulness than this. Besides, they had wanted to save it for a handful of knucks that could be used to further advance, meaning theirs.

for Hanson and Johnny Black. The uncertainty of Heeny as to whether he cares to play or not and the decision of Sharkey, to fight De Kuh the first time out.

Ordinarily, De Kuh doesn't long in the same building with Sharkey. I am not convinced that the latter is quite the ball player he claims himself to be. He has one of those chin that goes into the windpipe when he is punched, thereupon, swallowed, the victim to death. In fact, he is a stand-up fighter and a kind that always are made of a swinger like Sharkey. He would win in the early stages of play, if his preparation is adequate.

Out for a protracted period a wrenching knee, his timing is not to suffer. He won't last how much or little the knee will stand. He won't last as much about fighting as he several months hence. One of the worst performers Sharkey made was against Heeny, who made a swing for Heeny in six months.

Fortunately, De Kuh isn't hurt him, he might be better. Heeny ever could hope. Heeny's trouble is that he can't fight much, De Kuh's, that won't still, with things as they are. Sharkey should have an evening.

MAN TO SEND WILL GROUP HERB'S TRACK

Will Be To Gain England Portion Hoover's Success

By J. Kingsbury Smith
SANFORD, Dec. 11.—(INS)—The possibility of a member of the Hoover Government making a flight to South America to avoid an airship to contract with the "Hoover's Warship Trade" is being talked of in trade circles.

American President-elect's flight to South America is not expected any too favorably in the English trade world. It is a direct step on the part of Hoover to strengthen the relations between the United States and Latin American countries.

It has long been expected that Hoover was always a hope that he might make such a step in the future. A considerable time ago business interest have been shown in the development of commercial relations with the South American continent.

It was presumed from this that inspired the Prime Minister, Stanley Baldwin, to deliver a recent speech that the Hoover Government would leave no stone unturned to cultivate and cement this country's happy relations with the great and growing continent of South America.

The announcement of Hoover's contemplated visit to the Latin American countries further was brought to bear, and it is understood a suggestion was made to members of the Hoover group that an airship should be sent to South American capitals.

At present Hoover, the present Secretary of State for Air, is speaking of the possibility of such a flight.

It is understood the scheme as highly probable, and Sir Alfred Robbins, the British journalist and author, says: "If we desire to impress upon American peoples from a neutral point of view, we should have a much better opportunity of presenting our object by airship, by battleship, for the American peoples have little knowledge of battleships, but an intense knowledge of airships."

EPIDEMIC KEEPS EAST FROM PACIFIC

The epidemic of influenza in Missouri at Columbia and Culver Military Academy, Ind., is one of the most serious outbreaks in the United States.

T. O. Banning, superintendent of the city's schools, reports that 200 pupils, representing 10 per cent of the total enrollment, are laid up with the disease. The office of the University of Missouri reports more than 1000 cases.

The epidemic rages with greater force throughout the United States, and south into Texas. In Kansas, Nebraska, and Oklahoma, the epidemic, Dr. Keating says, is being started and is sweeping eastward. It is sweeping eastward from the Pacific coast.

FIEND ADMITS SLAYING CHILD LAST AUGUST

day to the makeshift grave.

Police had little hope for finding the girl's body, however, for in a conflicting statement made later this morning the slayer declared he had cut up the little girl's body in the box car, put the pieces in bag weighted with brake shoes, and thrown it off the moving train into the Delaware water gap.

Police said they obtained a written confession, in which the fiend stated he had choked and mistreated the girl after she screamed.

Believing that Kuzinowski was responsible for the disappearance of other missing children here and in New York, police had been grilling him for hours. The confession was obtained following a dramatic scene between the slayer and his 67 year-old mother, Mrs. Veronica Kuzinowski of Scranton, Pa. Calling her wayward son a "bandit," she indignantly denied his statement that he had confessed the murder of the Storelli boy to her and that she had shielded him.

Police here were convinced today that Kuzinowski, who in a drunken moment in Detroit confessed to the murder of the Storelli boy, may have slain many other children. The prisoner intimated as much after signing the confession to the girl's murder when he seized the confession, tore it up and shouted defiantly: "Well, you wanted a story and I gave you one. Now I suppose you'll want to know about a dozen other."

Kuzinowski was questioned by John Beggans, director of public safety; Captain Harry Wals, Lieutenant Patrick Brady, Inspector John Underwood and Mayor Hague, of Jersey City. Mayor Hague, it was said, was instrumental in obtaining the confession.

The city officials and even the police veterans, hardened by years spent in questioning criminals, gasped as the murderer stumbled through his revolting story. Kuzinowski told how he had approached the little girl as she played with other children at a picnic at the lake, and lured her aside just as he had done with the Storelli boy. The details of his new confession scarcely had been written down when the prisoner, who was not handcuffed, jumped to his feet seized the alleged confession, and tore it in half.

In his new confession, Kuzinowski said, "I picked the girl up at the lake. She was standing near two women. I called her away from them, and crossed the road. I offered to take her for a boat ride on the lake, but instead of going to the lake I went down toward the railroad."

"Then I grabbed her but she screamed and I choked her," Kuzinowski said he dug the girl's grave with a pick axe which he found in a tool chest nearby, and buried the little girl about a foot deep.

GRANTS NEW TRIAL
ATLANTA, Ga., Dec. 11.—(INS)—Homer Strickland, convicted slayer of Melvin Lowe, in Hall County on Nov. 14, 1925, was granted a new trial through a decision of supreme court handed down today. The court ruled that a dying statement of Lowe should not have been given to the jury trying the case.

Here's What MOTHER Really Wants for Christmas

This "1929 Model" Hotpoint Electric Range Read Our Special Offer

THE secret is out. We now know "What Mother Really Wants" this Christmas. Dear Mother, always doing for others, never thinking of herself, has cast longing eyes at this "something" that will bring joy not only to herself but to her family as well. Mother wants a modern, new Hotpoint Automatic Electric Range. She knows it will mean easier and better cooking with less time in the kitchen—giving her more time for rest and recreation—more time to spend with her family and friends.

Your 1929 car especially needs an oil like this

ANY car runs smoother and sweeter with Pan-Am motor oil in the crankcase. And in the newest cars an oil of this type is almost a necessity. For they depend upon greater engine speeds to deliver their better performance. That means terrific heat and vastly increased wear. Under such conditions you need an oil that will keep its body in spite of heat and friction. An oil like Pan-Am! This motor oil is tougher and sturdier because it is refined with unusual care from pure paraffin-base crudes. Try Pan-Am in your car new or old. Every dealer has a chart showing the correct grade for each model of all makes of cars.

Christmas Savings Clubs

Few of us probably realize how great a stimulus to business the Christmas savings clubs are proving to be. In the last three or four years these clubs have been taking a more and more important place among the more traditional aspects of the Christmas season. The December checks from the banks, representing small savings over a period of twelve months, have made Christmas a more pleasant subject to contemplate for the head of the family than it formerly was.

Participation in the Christmas Savings Club idea is not only nation-wide, but seems to be taking hold of the people of the country almost one hundred per cent. The Times-Union reports that seven banks in Jacksonville have just released $286,000 to Christmas savers. At the same time a check up among the officials of eight thousand banks in the United States shows that $550,000,000 have been distributed among the members of the Christmas Savings Clubs.

In Sanford with only one bank operating such a club during the past twelve months, approximately thirty-five thousand dollars was saved and checks covering that amount were sent out on the first of the month to between 750 and 800 members. The First National Bank also reports that over twenty-five thousand dollars in club memberships have already been signed up for during the coming year. The Sanford Atlantic National Bank will also operate Christmas Savings Clubs this year, and although this is its first year of Christmas Savings Clubs, at the end of the first week it reported over ten thousand dollars in memberships.

The answer to the question what is done with all this money when it is turned over the club members is not much in doubt. Practically all of it finds its way within a few weeks into the coffers of the merchants. Gifts for the children, and remembrances for other relatives and friends all come first when one is spending his Christmas Savings Club money, but it is more than likely that some of it is also spent on first-of-the-year insurance premiums, interest on mortgages, taxes and charity. In other words, the clubs provide a sinking fund for every line of December business activity.

But what is of even more importance is the relief it provides to those who would otherwise be burdened with excessive December bills. The penchant for Christmas giving is inherited in all of us and unless we distribute the cost of gifts equally throughout the year, December probably finds us short of funds and faced with the necessity of going into debt in order to do our part toward Christmas. The Christmas Savings Clubs avoid this for those who are wise enough to get in on them.

"The Best Teacher"

Dr. Hamilton Holt, president of Rollins College, frequently breaks into print with his original ideas or his unique way of doing things. When he remarked recently that "the best teacher in modern colleges is the football coach," he brought to the attention of his hearers, one of the greatest faults of the modern educational system. We do not mean that there is too much football, but rather too little scholastic training. Commenting on his statement, the New York Herald Tribune says:

"He meant it for a reflection on our system of higher education, which it is. But whose is the fault? Not that of the students, certainly, who as clay in the hands of the potter merely follow the line of least resistance. Nor that of a coach, whose business it is to teach his pupils the subject to the "chair" of which he has been appointed at a handsome salary. Nor yet that of the public which rewards football prowess far more sumptuously than faculty in the classics. Probably it is no one's fault. The blame belongs to an utter misconception, traditionally entrenched, of adolescent notion that boys and girls with the ichor of youth pumping in their veins can prefer a "liberal education" to something that represents a storming of their environment.

"Success at football is not only a symbol of victory in the game of life; it is an immediate open sesame to preferment in a 'go-getter' world. And the reason why its instructors score so heavily in the teachings of their art is because their pupils meet them more than half way in their eagerness to master it. This is true not only of football but of other major sports. If the coach of the eleven or the nine or the crew happens also to be a teacher of some subject in the curriculum, his pupils will even 'hump' themselves scholastically just to gain his favor. The football coach at Phillips Exeter has been also a French instructor. Never was such a French instructor. The principal of Phillips Andover once trained its baseball teams. Never was such a principal. There is a well known preparatory school in Boston whose head was once a Harvard crew man and who alternates between teaching his boys Latin and coaching them in eight-oared shells on the Charles. When he gets through with them they can recite Virgil backward.

"Possibly the answer is that every college or school teacher should also be an athlete capable of getting out with his charges in the rough and tumble of sport. Probably it is that the faculties of our educational institutions should be made to relate themselves in spirit to the point of view and ambitions of the young people under them who demand a show of vitality for every exercise of the intellect."

THE NEED OF A CHAMBER OF COMMERCE

Until fairly recently a point of view prevailed that the need of a Chamber of Commerce, in the United States, was confined to the business community. It is now becoming a more general conviction that the Chamber of Commerce is a community organization and its activities should encompass the entire United States, for no field of activity is exempt.

John J. Tigert, president of the University of Florida, may be a non-businessman, an athlete, a student of the world, but he has a point of view that is worth noting. He has said that a Chamber of Commerce should be a body that is not only a business organization, but also a community organization. "Your wrath the blue ocean has brought you
 From land of the orange and thyme."

The Seaboard's new departure in serving orange juice free of charge to patrons on its trains in Florida represents an enlightened self-interest and Florida-interest. Many a visitor to Florida has been amazed to find that he must pay fifteen to twenty-five cents for an orange at soda fountains and as much or more for half a grape-fruit at hotels in some of Florida's principal cities. In a state whose chief fruit is its chief symbol to visitors it seems penny-wise to place selling profits above the advertising color and good will that could come of a whole-handed largesse in distribution of oranges and grape-fruit locally. In Florida there is more eventual profit in giving away an orange than in selling it at a handsome margin over cost.

Now that the American Auction Bridge League is drawing up a new set of laws for the game it should give attention to the enforcement of some sort of etiquette between husbands and wives at bridge. Harsh words across the table between these are making a time-honored game a favorite theatre of domestic warfare. The dire of battle has caused many an innocent at third or fourth party to ever bid his hand or trump a partner's ace.

The thing about married people at a bridge table is that the ordinarily subservient one becomes a the bully and browbeater. Under cover of the game many a timid husband talks back to his wife and many a self-subservient wife becomes an utterly shrewish husband-baiter. The Auction Bridge League has its work cut out for it.

An alliance between Southern and mid-Western members has been a provoker by the action of the United States shipping board in removing its shipping ports which have been operating from Gulf ports. But the significance of the alliance is far beyond the incident which has brought it about. It may well be the beginning of a political unit which will pit the West and South against the East, the provinces against the great centers of population, the economic center of America against the hills and plains against the skyscrapers, the growing parts of the country against the overgrown parts.

Every time Editor Hanson of the Titusville Star-Advocate erroneously attributes to us paragraphs written by the beautiful and wise Mrs. Ivy Clough Johnson of the Leesburg Commercial (and three have been three-times of late) our market value in sagacity and personal pulchritude goes up fifty points.

The Fairchild Aviation Corporation announces a new mechanical sound destroyer which will permit airplane motors to run in silence. We hold no brief for noises but when you are up in a plane and are somewhat nervous about it the din of the exhaust and propeller is one of the most reassuring things about the whole situation. It suggests power—and you have a breathless conviction that the thing needs all the power it can summon to keep up and going.

Dr. W. A. MacKenzie, light of Leeburg, is out with a strongly heart-felt endorsement of our remarks against the proposal to have men wear knapsacks for better exposure to the violet rays of the sun. Having observed the grace and gentility of Dr. MacKenzie's platform stride we imagined that he must possess a knee which could meet the most violet ray without a blush of an apology. His attitude was in disillusioning and we fear the worse.

John J. Tigert, president of the University of Florida, may be a non-businessman, an athlete, a student of the world, but he has a point of view that is worth noting. ### THE VALUE OF THE DIGEST POLL

In a letter to the New York Times, Mr. Fabian Franklin demonstrates rather neatly that the Literary Digest has been astonishingly accurate in its claim as to how accurate was its forecast of the popular vote in the election. The Digest, it will be recalled, predicted that Hoover would have 53 per cent and Smith 35.7 per cent. On the basis of the figures available, on Nov. 14 Hoover received 53.8 per cent and Smith 41.2. Since the difference between the percentage predicted for Hoover by the Digest and the percentage received by Hoover is 4.4 per cent, the Digest is now claiming that its poll was inaccurate by only 4.4 per cent. It arrives at this conclusion by forgetting to note that its prediction of the Smith vote was 5.5 per cent wrong. As Mr. Franklin points out, the Digest gave Hoover 4.4 per cent too much and Smith 5.5 per cent too little, which constitutes a total error of 4.4 per cent but of 9.9 per cent. A considerable error this was may be seen when it is pointed out that if the Digest forecast had been accurate Hoover's plurality would have been 9,700,000 votes instead of 6,200,000.

The popular impression is now pretty well settled, however, that the Digest poll is a virtually infallible forecast of the result of a national election. The Digest has forecast successfully the general result both in 1924 and in 1928, and while the actual errors have been considerable, the accuracy of the forecast of the net result has made a profound impression on the nation. The strict truth is that the inaccuracy of the poll have not seriously affected the forecast of the result, because neither 1924 nor 1928 was a close election. Had they been close elections an error of nearly 10 per cent would have made the whole forecast unreliable.

There is, however, a much larger question than the reliability of the poll. That is the question of its social usefulness, and for the purposes of the argument we shall assume that the Digest has so perfected its poll that on Oct. 1 throughout it can predict infallibly the result in November. The question which we should like to raise is whether it is in the best interest of popular government that the people should have an infallible device by which the result of an electoral campaign is known before the lesson of the campaign have been seriously learned.

Let us see first what can be said in favor of such a forecasting device, assuming that experience has convinced the public of its

You can't even guess how convenient Snowdrift is to use. You can't imagine how creamy and easy Snowdrift is until you actually dip some out of the can and use it. And it's only after you've stirred up a cake or made pie crust or biscuit dough with Snowdrift that you realize how that creaminess dissolves and leaves the work. For Snowdrift is special—fluffy—more like whipped cream than like ordinary shortening. You can almost fold it into the other ingredients. And just as well-baked eggs give added lightness to a cake mixture, so fluffy, creamy Snowdrift gives a light, delicious texture. You'll love it for biscuits and pie crust. Snowdrift dissolves in shortening, butter, oil, etc.

THE SHINING ROAD TO FLORIDA'S DREAMS OPENS BEFORE US IN THE DAWN OF A NEW DAY!

Aided with progress and experience Florida approaches a new horizon with greater Faith!

A NEW DAY has dawned in Florida. Opportunity greets that day with outstretched arms. The future, realization of this new-dawned day, is a common challenge.

The shining road of our dreams is open ahead. The past with all its progress and its passing moments of depression is the foundation upon which we stand . . . the threshold to a greater Florida!

Florida had a boom—an incident in a hundred years in building—and perhaps national enthusiasm will be concentrated in another such expression . . . it will still be an incident—Florida is eternally marching toward finer and higher horizons. No incident can retard destiny!

The boom has long since passed . . . likewise, now, the effects of that economic conflagration are in the discard; facts of the moment have replaced fiction conceived in the estimate of tomorrow. The low mark of reaction is behind us—Florida is beaded upward! And values walk hand in hand with this movement.

Florida's golden citrus crop means gold. Vegetables springing from our rich soil are going forth to feed a nation and enrich us. The rolling tide of tourists is coming. On every hand, in every section of this commonwealth, the elements of prosperity are astir.

Florida is a commodity which the whole nation wants . . . its sunshine is the dream of millions today . . . its mild climate is the hope of multitudes who love life and are dominated by the urge to preserve it.

Our problem is to merchandise these things which the public already wants and to embellish them with friendliness and fair dealings so that the human factor will facilitate the endowment of nature rather than constituting a liability.

Faith and courage have been ever-present factors in the development of this commonwealth—faith over the whole period which has seen the state rise from wilderness and woods to the present hour; courage especially in the rare spells of temporary setback. The hour has come when this courage expressed defensively against discouragement can join with the undimmed faith of all time and launch the offensive aimed at fuller realization of our hopes.

Making more secure the glorious future which faces Florida, the whole southern section of the United States is entering an unprecedented era of development; and aside from all the things which make this state appealing, Florida will feel the strong acceleration of this movement.

The new day is here, Florida! The open road is ahead. In the immortal words, let all the lines advance!
