Red Paper Reports Holiday-Like Air In Russian Buying

MOSCOW Dec. 22 (AP)—Izvestia published dispatches from many parts of the Soviet Union today reporting that since rationing was abolished Sunday, there has been wide-scale consumer buying in a "holiday-like" atmosphere.

Russian citizens currently are trading their old rubles for new at rates varying up to ten to one. The currency revaluation and the end of rationing were announced in the same edit.

Izvestia said 120,000 retail stores had been repaired or organized anew in a short period, and were selling goods.

"The stores have large quantities of goods," the newspaper said.

The article cited the trade ministries of Armenia, Moldavia and Uzbekistan, however, as "lagging behind" in the development of trade.

"The network of stores in Cheljabinsk, Rostov and Kitov regions is not sufficiently organized," the article said.

Many stores remain unoccupied and the law giving ground floors in certain new buildings to stores has not been carried out everywhere.

It is now up to the workers that all mass goods should reach the consumers and rapidly. Collective and cooperative stores should be organized more energetically and more farmer markets should be set up.

The article said collective farms were selling more produce to the state and that a huge amount of business had been done throughout the Soviet Union on Monday.

Many stores were said to have doubled their staffs.

The gastronomes—Moscow's super-delicatessens—also are selling unrationed food now.

Portioners who formerly had their own gastronomie to sell their rationed food now have been told by Russian authorities they must purchase on the same basis as all Soviet citizens, through regular retail channels. This also affects diplomats.

"The consumer is boss," Izvestia said.

The newspaper said 300 new stores and 250 kiosks had been opened in Moscow and that more than 1,000 stores now were selling bread in the capital.

Similar conditions were said to prevail in Leningrad.

A dispatch from Kiev, capital of the Ukraine, said 400 new stores were opened there and that sales of bread had tripled.

At Minsk, 90 new stores and kiosks were opened.

Izvestia said hardly any bread queues existed.

A Tashkent dispatch said buying was in progress without interruption.

A Kharkov dispatch said "serious deficiencies" had developed in the preparation of stores for business and that in one district, there was not enough food.

Pennsylvania Enters Truman In Primary

HARRISBURG, Pa., Dec. 22 (AP)—President Harry S. Truman's name will "definitely" be entered in the Pennsylvania Democratic Preferential Primary next May, State Democratic Chairman J. Warren Mickle disclosed.

"It will give the people a chance to vote for the man they want to continue as president," Mickle told a reporter last night.

Under Pennsylvania law, the only requirements for placing anyone's name on the presidential primary ballot of either party are the signatures of 100 qualified voters in each of 10 counties and a $50 filing fee.

Mickle said the decision to enter President Truman's name followed a precedent established in the third and fourth terms elections of President Franklin D. Roosevelt. FDR's name was placed on the Pennsylvania Democratic Primary ballot in both 1940 and 1944 before he had made any formal announcement of a decision to be a candidate.

FRIENDLIEST TOWN

Charles H. Cole, former manager of the Florida Power and Light Company here, who came up from Miami Friday to attend the company's big Christmas party, declared, "Sanford looks wonderfully well, and I am glad to be back in the friendliest town in Florida."

BIBLICAL VERSE FOR TODAY

EVEN OUR SOARING IMAGINATION CANNOT PASS BEYOND THE SUSTAINING HAND OF GOD. HIS WANTS OUR MINDS AND SOULS TO SOAR AND BEING GOD IS THE AUTHOR OF FREEDOM; IF I TAKE THE WINGS OF THE MORNING—Psalm 139:9.

It is a real pleasure to go Christmas shopping, again, with so many attractive gifts in the stores.

Reports of an unfavorable tourist season may have some basis, but there is no sign of it on the incoming trains.

Jack Dempsey says Joe Louis is through. And Jack ought to know. He went through the same tapering of process twenty years ago.

People who knock local institutions and brag about how much better they are somewhere else are not doing much to better the conditions of which they complain or to make Sanford a better place in which to live.

Remember the "red tide" with which our west coast beaches were plagued last summer? Well, the State Fish and Wild Life Service has just decided what caused it. Too much "gymnadium" it seems. No kidding, that's what it says.

Rep. Sikes of Florida's Third District, sees no danger of another World War. "All the Allies of the last war have cooperated," he says, "except one—and that one is operating mainly on bluff." A nice thought at the Christmas season anyway. May he be everlastingly right.

Freedom Train carrying 131 outstanding American historical documents visits Florida stopping in Jacksonville, Miami, Tampa and Tallahassee. We are sorry the American Heritage Foundation could not bring the train through Central Florida with a brief stopover in Sanford so that hundreds of our local Sanfords young people could view these priceless papers. It means more to a person who sees it in black and white than these instruments guaranteeing the American way of life.

We do not like that half page we have been running in our paper lately any better than you do, but we are grateful to the Poles who made it for us nevertheless. Better a half page than none at all. Incidentally this paper came from Poland at twice the price we normally pay and it is not bad paper considering the difficulties under which it is made and shipped. The reason the one page is narrow is because their rolls are made in 66 inch widths instead of 70 inches, the size we customarily use.

It is too bad that everybody did not read the article by William L. Shirer in Sunday's Times-Union. It was about the current repetition of the follies of the 1920's and was so true it hurt. New Amalgamation

A Southeastern Asiatic federation is being discussed. It would include Siam, Malaya, Indonesia, the Philippines, Burma, Vietnam, Laos and Cambodia, if all can be persuaded to come in.

Such a project will not be accomplished this year or next. Some of the states mentioned are free, some are not. Most have national and racial antagonisms. The idea may be looked upon with disfavor because it suggests the notorious Eastern Asia Co-prosperity Sphere, which the Japanese pushed, and which meant Japanese domination. But changes in the East are coming fast nowadays, and this federation, at least in part, may come about sooner than expected. It would be a start at a United States of Asia.

Such federations would not be apt to militate against a strong United Nations, at least in the opinion of observers as keen as Winston Churchill. They set, on the contrary, an example of what can be accomplished by co-operation of small states. These co-operative groups are then more inclined to join larger groups of somewhat the same type and purpose. Our own states, each part of the United States, show the way in which peoples as diverse as the English descendants of Maine and the Spanish descendants of California, the Swedes of Delaware and the French of southern Louisiana can work together in one federation.

Backward Glimpse

The Iron Curtain -- only this time it was an Ice Curtain -- has been parted to reveal what a young Russian girl and youth looked like 2,000 years ago. In Siberia, Russian archaeologists discovered a tomb with almost perfectly preserved bodies frozen through the ages in a burial pit. The dress of their age can be recorded with certainty since the clothes were in almost perfect condition. Also, the food placed by relatives in the grave as a picnic lunch for the journey into the next world was so well protected by its coating that it was still edible, the discoverers affirmed. There was cheese, for instance, not very different from some of ours, still good.

The girl, said to have been beautiful, as all young girls of any age should be, died apparently of some internal illness, but the youth had had his head bashed in. He was her servant, her lover or possibly a tribesman. In any case, he was unlucky, in that long past time some two thousand years ago, and probably was picked to be her companion into the next world.

Some ancient vandals did history a good turn, shortly after the burials, by opening the tombs, thereby letting in enough freezing Siberian air so that the bodies and their appurtenances were kept in ice all these years.

There is something thrilling about discoveries like this when mankind suddenly and accidentally gets a peek into "the dark backward and abyss of time."

Christmas Treat

Britons are going to have a Christmas present from their Government. It's an extra holiday ration of ten cents' worth of meat, a pound and a half of sugar, and four ounces of chocolate.

Popular excitement greeted the news. It got bigger headlines than the Foreign Ministers or the Parliamentary by-elections. The Government was commended for its sportsmanship in holding back the news until after the elections. December grew brighter.

Writing of this pitiful enthusiasm in the New York Times, Anne O'Hare McCormick comments on how difficult it is for people who have to think of food all the time to take sustained interest in other questions. Yet the British can see beyond their rations. Another Times correspondent, Herbert Matthews, writes of their true resources, the sterling character, the courage and common sense, that can carry them through this crisis as through others.

He quotes Emerson's words at Manchester during the terrible economic crisis of 1847, that "in adversity they were grand... with a kind of instinct that (Britain) sees a little better in a cloudy day, and that in storm of battle and calamity she has a secret vigor and a pulse like a cannon."

Consider this: Despite its own dire needs, British papers have kept before their readers the greater needs of some of the peoples of Europe. And they have given generous praise to the United States for her willingness to contemplate restrictions on her own fabulous standard of living in order to help Europe. Such honesty deserves a sugar plum in its much-darned Christmas stocking. --Christian Science Monitor.

THE WORLD TODAY

By DEWITT MACKENZIE
AP Foreign Affairs Analyst

Each passing day since the failure of the Big Four Foreign Ministers' Conference in London it has become more and more clear that U. S. Secretary of State Marshall rendered democracy a notable service by saying that the parley long had been on its feet and was merely being used as a dummy for Soviet propaganda purposes.

While the conference dragged on, Moscow was getting ahead with its officially declared war against the Marshall Plan. With the meeting out of the way as an acknowledged flop, the western Allies have been able to concentrate on developing their program for the rehabilitation and defense of western Europe as a counter-move against a fiercely aggressive and determined Communism.

It's no longer the Big Four. It's the Big One—Russia—versus the Big Three—America, Britain and France. For the strong-arm efforts of Bolshevism to secure control of the Paris government forced France to abandon her middle-of-the-road course toward Moscow and come completely into the American-British camp.

So the battle is swelling between the two Europes—East and West. As Secretary Marshall said in his broadcast last Friday night, helping western Europe reach a high level of economic recovery is probably the only way to force a lasting peace on hostile Russia, and Communist leaders have predicted that this restoration won't take place.

"Until the result of this struggle becomes clearly apparent," said Marshall, "there will continue to be a very real difficulty to resolve, even on paper, agreed terms for a treaty of peace." Meantime all hope of an early unification of Germany—so important to the economic recovery of Europe—must be abandoned. The indications are that America, Britain and France will combine their resources to create a unit, while Russia will continue in possession of the rich Eastern Reich.

The Soviet Union is going all-out to consolidate eastern Europe economically and politically and thus create a unit which the Muscovites can use as a spearhead in the offensive to secure domination of western Europe. In this connection a European foreign minister yesterday told Arthur Gavahan, member of the HOLLYWOOD, Dec. 22.—(AP)—Mark Hellinger, one of Broadway's most prolific chroniclers, is dead. The former newspaper reporter who turned out hundreds of shirt stories about New York life, and then turned to the movies, died Saturday of a heart attack. He was 44 years old.

HELLINGER DIES

Associated Press staff in London: "Tightened political and economic ties between these Communist-led countries (of eastern Europe) will unite eighty to ninety million people and in effect will mean that a great new power has arisen in Europe."

That may be, but we shouldn't try to put a tape-measure on this new power until we see how it develops. Before eastern Europe can become formidable, there must be tremendous industrial expansion.

I spent considerable time in central and eastern Europe and the Balkans just before the war. Virtually all that area was under Hitlerian domination and the father had so developed economic relations that Germany provided manufactured products for all these states while they in turn supplied the Reich with raw materials and agricultural products. These small countries were dependent on Germany economically, and consequently politically.

Russia now has supplanted Germany politically in this great area, but the Soviet hasn't replaced the Reich industrially. Moscow still is a long way from being able to meet home demands, to say nothing of supplying all the satellite states.

Can Russia turn the trick as Hitler did? That question must be answered before we can gauge the potential strength of Moscow's dependencies. Early this month she was

3 Year Old Looks Forward To Party Despite Condition

By HAL BOYLE
YONKERS, N. Y., Dec. 22. (AP)

There is a stranger at the door of a small basement apartment here, and he isn't Santa Claus. The stranger is death. He has been waiting at the threshold for so long now that Thomas and Lila Linehan have almost reconciled themselves to the time when he will enter.

Their three-year-old daughter, Peggie Ann, knows that he is coming for her, but she doesn't quite understand what it all means. The endless lethargy she soon will know already has slowed her.

But she is looking forward happily to a Christmas party. She doesn't remember she already has had her Christmas party -- three weeks ago, when it seemed the stranger at the door could be put off no longer.

The mother told me about it in the small family living room, bright with Christmas decorations, as Peggie Ann played listlessly on a sofa with her 18-month-old sister, Judy. Mrs. Linehan, a slim, dark-haired girl, is Canadian. She met her husband while working with the Red Cross in Alaska, where he was stationed with the American Air Forces. She came here four years ago, one of the first war brides. Tom Linehan works in a fish store here.

In September, 1946, an operation on Peggie Ann disclosed cancer and the young parents were told their child's condition was hopeless.

Early this month she was

The next three will deal with "organizing," "staffing," and "financing" higher education, and the last volume will be a collection of facts, figures, and other material used by the commission.

The commission said that in 1945, nearly 75 percent of all the children under 18 in this country were living in families whose total monthly incomes were less than $3,500 a year, and nearly 50 percent were in families with incomes of $2,500 or less.

It recommended that Congress provide $15,000,000 in the next school year for scholarships and fellowships, divided as follows: 1. Scholarships amounting to $120,000,000 for an estimated 300,000 undergraduate non-veterans, at a maximum of $800 a year, an average of $400. This program would be expanded each year through 1952 as federal spending for GI education declines.

2. Fellowships amounting to $15,000,000 for graduate and professional study, for 10,000 outstanding students at $1,500 each -- this to be expanded to 20,000 student in 1949-50 and then 30,000 each year through 1952-53.

Handiwork Shown At PTA Meeting

An exhibition of the handiwork was held during the regular meeting of the Grammar School PTA held last Thursday in the school auditorium with Mrs. J. M. Stinecoper presiding. The auditorium was attractively decorated with red poinsettias and Brazilian pepper berries and foliage. In the center of the stage was a brilliantly lighted tree. The theme of the entire meeting was Christmas.

The display included work done by pupils of the fifth and sixth grades which included hand made rugs, knitted articles, painted vases, embroidery, sand tables, woven pot holders and many other articles. In charge of the display were Sandra and Sonia Monforton and Jean and Joan Wilke.

Preceding the business meeting James Davis, pupil in Mrs. Sybil Routh's room, read the Scripture taken from Luke 2 and led the group in prayer.

Mrs. M. L. Nichols reported on the recent rummage sale and stated that it was a success. She thanked her committee and all mothers who helped in any way with the work involved. Mrs. James A. Wright told of the progress in the school library and Mrs. J. N. Azzarello stated that 11 members had taken the recent study course.

Miss Robson's gift to the honoree was a silver silent butter. The hostess was assisted in serving by Mrs. David Thrasher. Those invited to be with Miss Meisch were Mrs. W. W. Wharton, Mrs. William Osborn, Mrs. Jerry Ross, Miss Jean Caswell and Miss Mary Adele Wharton.

Parties Given By Woman's Home Dept.

The American Home Department of the Sanford Woman's Club entertained on Thursday afternoon at the club house with a party for children of the members and at night with a Christmas dance for members and their husbands.

Dick Payne, dressed as Santa Claus, appeared in the afternoon and listened to the wishes of all the young guests present. Each child brought a gift for underprivileged children. Thirty-five children enjoyed the party. Late in the afternoon cookies and punch were served.

Dancing at the club began at 9:00 o'clock. A brilliantly lighted tree stood in the center of the stage and elaborate decorations in the club included lovely arrangements of white camellias, Brazilian peppers and magnolia leaves. Refreshments were served from an attractive table covered with a bright red cloth centered with white camellias and white tapers. Punch, hors d'oeuvres, cookies, salted nuts were served. New Amalgamation

A Southeastern Asiatic federation is being discussed.
It would include Siam, Malaya, Indonesia, the Philippines, Burma, Vietnam, Laos and Cambodia, if all can be persuaded to come in.

Such a project will not be accomplished this year or next. Some of the states mentioned are free, some are not.
Most have national and racial antagonisms. The idea may be looked upon with disfavor because it suggests the notorious Eastern Asia Co-prosperity Sphere, which the Japanese pushed, and which meant Japanese domination. But changes in the East are coming fast nowadays, and this federation, at least in part, may come about sooner than expected. It would be a start at a United States of Asia.

Such federations would not be apt to militate against a strong United Nations, at least in the opinion of observers as keen as Winston Churchill. They set, on the contrary, an example, of what can be accomplished by co-operation of small states. These co-operative groups are then more inclined to join larger groups of somewhat the same type and purpose. Our own states, each part of the United States, show the way in which peoples as diverse as the English descendants of Maine and the Spanish descendants of California, the Swedes of Delaware and the French of southern Louisiana can work together in one federation.

Backward Glimpse

The Iron Curtain -- only this time it was an Ice Curtain
-- has been parted to reveal what a young Russian girl and youth looked like 2,000 years ago. In Siberia, Russian archeologists discovered a tomb with almost perfectly preserved bodies frozen through the ages in a burial pit. The dress of their age can be recorded with certainty since the clothes were in almost perfect condition. Also, the food placed by relatives in the grave as a picnic lunch for the journey into the next world was so well protected by its coating that it was still edible, the discoverers affirmed.
There was cheese, for instance, not very different from some of ours, still good.

The girl, said to have been beautiful, as all young girls of any age should be, died apparently of some internal illness, but the youth had had his head bashed in. He was her servant, her lover or possibly a tribesman. In any case, he was unlucky, in that long past time some two thousand years ago, and probably was picked to be her companion
into the next world.

Some ancient vandals did history a good turn, shortly after the burials, by opening the tombs, thereby letting in enough freezing Siberian air so that the bodies and their appurtenances were kept in ice all these years.

There is something thrilling about discoveries like this when mankind suddenly and accidentally gets a peek into
"the dark backward and abysm of time."

Christmas Treat

Britons are going to have a Christmas present from their Government. It's an extra holiday ration of ten cents' worth of meat, a pound and a half of sugar, and four ounces of chocolate.

Popular excitement greeted the news. It got bigger headlines than the Foreign Ministers or the Parliamentary by-elections. The Government was commended for its sportsmanship in holding back the news until after the elections.
December grew brighter.

Writing of this pitiful enthusiasm in the New York Times, Anne O'Hare McCormick comments on how difficult it is for people who have to think of food all the time to take sustained interest in other questions. Yet the British can see beyond their rations. Another Times correspondent, Herbert Matthews, writes of their true resources, the sterling character, the courage and common sense, that can carry them through this crisis as through others.

He quotes Emerson's words at Manchester during the terrible economic crisis of 1847, that "in adversity they were grand . . . with a kind of instinct that (Britain) sees a little better in a cloudy day, and that in storm of battle and calamity she has a secret vigor and a pulse like a cannon."

Consider this: Despite its own dire needs, British papers have kept before their readers the greater needs of some of the peoples of Europe. And they have given generous praise to the United States for her willingness to contemplate restrictions on her own fabulous standard of living in order to help Europe. Such honesty deserves a sugar plum in its much-darned Christmas stocking.

THE WORLD TODAY

By DEWITT MACKENZIE
AP Foreign Affairs Analyst

Each passing day since the failure of the Big Four Foreign Ministers' Conference in London
it has become more and more clear that U. S. Secretary of State Marshall rendered democracy a notable service by saying that the parley long had been on its feet and was merely being used as a dummy for Soviet propaganda purposes.

While the conference dragged on, Moscow was getting ahead with its officially declared war against the Marshall Plan. With the meeting out of the way as an acknowledged flop, the western Allies have been able to concentrate on developing their program for the rehabilitation and defense of western Europe as a counter-move against a fiercely aggressive and determined Communist.

It is no longer the Big Four. It's the Big One—Russia—versus the Big Three—America, Britain and France. For the strong arm of Stalin's Bolshevism to secure control of the Paris government have forced France to abandon her middle-of-the-road course toward Moscow and come completely into the American-British camp.
So the battle is swelling between the two Europe—East and West. As Secretary Marshall said in his broadcast last Friday night, helping western Europe reach a high level of economic recovery is probably the only way to force a lasting peace on hostile Russia, and Communist leaders have predicted that this restoration won't take place.

"Until the result of this struggle becomes clearly apparent,"
said Marshall, "there will continue to be a very real difficulty to resolve, even on paper, agreed terms for a treaty of peace."

Meantime all hope of an early unification of Germany—so important to the economic recovery of Europe—must be abandoned.
The indications are that America,
Britain and France will combine their zones of western Germany
into a politico-economic unit,
while Russia will continue in possession of the rich Eastern Reich.

The Soviet Union is going all-out to consolidate eastern Europe economically and politically and thus create a unit which the Muscovites can use as a spearhead in the offensive to secure domination of western Europe.
In this connection a European foreign minister yesterday told Arthur Gavahan, member of the

HELLINGER DIES

HOLLYWOOD, Dec. 22—(AP)— Mark Hellinger, one of Broadway's most prolific chroniclers,
is dead.

The former newspaper reporter
who turned out hundreds of short stories about New York life, and then turned to the movies, died Saturday of a heart attack. He was 44 years old.

Associated Press staff in London:
"Tightened political and economic ties between these Communist-led countries (of eastern Europe) will unite eighty to ninety million people and in effect will mean that a great new power has arisen in Europe."

That may be, but we shouldn't try to put a tape-measure on this new power until we see how it develops. Before eastern Europe can become formidable, there must be tremendous industrial expansion.
I spent considerable time in central and eastern Europe and the Balkans just before the war.
Virtually all that area was under Hitlerian domination and the Fuehrer had so developed economic relations that Germany provided manufactured products for all these states while they in turn supplied the Reich with raw materials and agricultural products. These small countries were dependent on Germany economically, and consequently politically.
Russia now has supplanted Germany politically in this great area, but the Soviet hasn't replaced the Reich industrially.
Moscow still is a long way from being able to meet home demands, to say nothing of supplying all
the satellite states.

Can Russia turn the trick as Hitler did? That question must be answered before we can gauge
the potential strength of Moscow's dependencies.

3 Year Old Looks Forward To Party Despite Condition

By HAL BOYLE

YONKERS, N. Y., Dec. 22, (AP)—
There is a stranger at the door of a small basement apartment
here, and he isn't Santa Claus.

The stranger is death. He has been waiting at the threshold for so long now that Thomas and Lila Linehan have almost recollected themselves to the time when he will enter.

Their three-year-old daughter, Peggie Ann, knows that he is coming for her, but she doesn't quite understand what it all means. The endless lethargy she soon will know already has stowed
her.

But she is looking forward happily to a Christmas party. She doesn't remember she already has had her Christmas party — three weeks ago, when it seemed the stranger at the door could be put off no longer.

The mother told me about it in the small family living room,
bright with Christmas decorations,
as Peggie Ann played listlessly
on a sofa with her 18-month-old sister, Judy. Mrs. Linehan, a slim, dark-haired girl, is Canadian. She met her husband while working with the Red Cross in Alaska, where he was stationed with the American Air Force. She came here four years ago, one of the first war brides. Tom Linehan works in a fish store here.

In September, 1946, an opera-told their child's condition was hopeless.

Ovations Of First Nighters Are Like The Good Old Days

By JEAN MEEGAN AP Newsfeatures Writer

A HALF-DOZEN times this season on Broadway big, resounding ovations that rank with ovations of the good old days rang from the prettily dressed first night audiences and echoed in the morning papers.

The cheers were for the ladies. These of them: June Lockhart, Jessica Tandy, and Ethel Griffies were merely minor theatrical attractions until this season; one of them, Wendy Hiller, was an English movie star; and the other two are our heroic female artists, Katharine Cornell and Judith Anderson.

Stiff-necked, stylish first nighters, who usually get out of their seats only to go home, rose with full-throated bravos the night, Judith Anderson, head reared, eyes flashing, roles flying opened in "Moslem." It is the artistic triumph of her 32 years on the stage.

Katharine Cornell's classic, timeless, she is quite simply at her best loaded with royal jewels, seated on a throne intoning Shakespeare in her grand queenly manner.

Jessica Tandy has the longest role on Broadway as the rufous-haired, school-mistress Tennessee Williams records in "A Streetcar Named Desire." Her performance as a nervous, unbalanced, and accurate and revealing, "It is incredible," that she could understand such an elusive part so thoroughly and that she can convey it with so many shades and impulses.

Wendy Hiller plays the Pygmalionish part in "The Heiress," the young, shy, gauche girl who is transformed into an ice-cold, calculating, cynical, and cheerless woman—fittingly named, the British actress, said she is better than the play, pulled the stops out of their dictionaries to pay tribute to her performance.

June Lockhart's comet swooped across the sky the night of November 10, 1946. "For Love or Money" opened. There was a personal demonstration in the audience when the curtain came down and the pretty, 22-year-old daughter of character actors Gene and Kathleen Lockhart took her bow.

All of these performances are rich, exciting; but the performance with possibly the greatest theatrical experience is of timer Ethel Griffies portrayal of the old mother in "The Druid Circle."

Satira Sentenced

The former night club dancer from Toledo, Ohio, who was billed professionally as "Satira," was reported to have sent word to her father in Toledo that she was ready to accept the prison sentence which she believes is inevitable.

Gustavo Reno, a special prosecutor employed under the Cuban trial system by Mees's parents, said he had learned from an unimpeachable source yesterday that two members of the tribunal which conducted the trial voted for 12 years imprisonment and that the third favored 20 years.

The penalty for manslaughter ranges from six to 26 years. He visited yesterday a family friend, Joe Azcue, Havana hotel operator. She asked him to notify her father that she was resigned to the fact that she might have to remain in the prison where she has been since she was shot in Miami last April in the cabin they shared aboard Mees's yacht.

As she left the visitor's room to return to her cell she waved to newsmen through a door, then burst into tears.

During the trial, which ended Friday, Patricia maintained that Mees, an American naval officer during the war, was about to beat her and that she grabbed a pistol to ward him off. The weapon went off accidentally, she said, and the bullet struck Mees in the neck. He died four days later.

The judges reached a decision in the case Saturday and gave it to a confidential clerk. Court officials said this customarily would mean a conviction.

Presiding Judge Cristobal Moro said the announcement probably would be made today.

Sons Don't Think Their Moms Like Fancy Presents

Ask a son what his mother would like for Christmas and almost invariably he will say, "Oh, she doesn't want anything fancy." How Sonny underestimates his Mom! Just because she has reared a family, battles with pots and pans and is the family seamstress is no reason to suspect she doesn't enjoy the charm of a glamorous gift.

Here are some suggestions: Scented Soaps... A variety of colors, shapes and sizes, scented with her favorite fragrance. Sachets... Hangings, lingerie cases and handkerchief bags are sachet scented in spicy, tangy, floral scents.

Cologne... Take your choice of scents which run the gamut from woody bouquets to exotic fragrances. Most colognes are light enough not to clash with Mother's personality, even if your choice is strong.

Perfume... You must use a bit of intuition and lots of good taste when selecting perfume. Here is where your mother's personality does count. A shy little mother can't run around smelling like a perfume man's dynamite.

Lovely, unusual bottles and packages missing since before the war are available again. Take your choice in gold bottle with a circle of rhinestones; a hat box containing decorative, batpina besides its three small trial-size bottles of perfumes; perfume enclosed in a gold Christmas bell complete with clapper.

Senator Ferguson (R-Mich.) said publication of traders' names will be only the first step in congressional efforts to learn whether there is any connection between government, food buying and private speculation.
