Bilbo Starts New Attack On Lynching Bill

Senate Is Warned On Possibilities Of Racial Troubles In Northern Sections

Senator Ready For 30-Day Talk

Southerners Confident Farm Bill To Be Considered Soon

WASHINGTON, Feb. 7.—(AP)—Senator Bilbo, Mississippi Democrat, today warned the Senate in an attack on the anti-lynching bill that the South might not be the only section to face race troubles in the future. He said he "hoped to be in the Senate" when members from other sections brought their own problems to that body.

Bilbo announced as he took up the southern filibuster against the bill that he was ready to give the balance of his "thirty day" speech which was halted last week.

Senator Connally, Texas Democrat and leader of the southern group, predicted the argument against the bill would be continued until Wednesday when a conference report on the farm bill is expected to come up.

Southerners said they were confident that once the anti-lynching bill is laid aside for the farm measure, it will be sidetracked for the balance of the session.

The new anti-lynching bill will come to a vote on the week ending Feb. 10. It is expected to pass the Senate by a narrow margin.

AAA officials have advised congressional leaders that the measure must be approved quickly if it is to be effective for this year's cotton crop.

Since the bill establishes new methods of allocating acreage, the AAA officials said it will take some time to work out details. Planting time already is approaching in the bottom belt.

The compromise bill worked out by a senate-house committee from the separate proposals passed by the two bodies last fall will be ready for house consideration Tuesday.

Hitler Plans In Retreat While Europe Wonders

High Officials Say Nothing Sensational To Take Place

BERLIN, Feb. 7.—(AP)—In his mountain retreat in Bavaria, Chancellor Hitler is planning his next move in a Europe already buzzing with conjectures as to what that move will be.

Hitler left Berlin Saturday night by special train after his cabinet had given full approval to the drastic governmental reorganization Friday that centralized full control of Germany's armed forces and foreign office in Hitler's hands.

Members of his immediate entourage flew south to Berchtesgaden at about 5 p. m.

Hitler's personal secretary, von Ribbentrop, personal secretary of Hitler who was made foreign minister, and Fynn von Papen, recalled as ambassador to Austria, were reported to be at Berchtesgaden.

Official quarters warned, however, against assuming "anything sensational" was afoot.

"Sources close to the British government expressed fear that von Ribbentrop's elevation to control of foreign affairs might wreck the little progress already made toward friendship between Britain and Germany."

Von Ribbentrop, the ambassador to London until the outbreak, is regarded by many London observers as an extremist and as anti-British.

Behind him in Berlin, Hitler, left diplomat, considering seriously the significance of Friday's cabinet shakeup. The first formal indication was not expected until the Reichstag meets Feb. 20. The German parliament has frequently been the sounding board Hitler uses to make his most dramatic and important announcements.

Bowers previously told officers that he entered the widow's home Dec. 19 to rob Mrs. Carpenter and 23-year-old Mary Griffin, and that he and Griffin were caught by Mrs. Carpenter, finally shooting her. He said that he had shot Mrs. Griffin and attempted to shoot her.

Swollen Rivers On Rampage Do Much Damage In North

DETROIT, Feb. 7.—(AP)—Swollen streams that flooded highways, homes and many thousands of acres in the north central states, and western Ontario, resulted in unseasonable rains ceased and falling temperatures checked the melting of ice and snow.

In the wake of the flood waters were broken dams, water filled basements and washed out bridges and highways.

Michigan and Wisconsin bore the brunt of the flood which caused damage estimated in hundreds of thousands of dollars. Huge ice cakes were still strewn over Sable Lake, Mich., a city of 1,550 population on St Ignace Bay.

Scores of families were unable to reach their homes in the flooded basin of Clinton River, near Mt. Clemens, Mich. Half of Vanar, Mich., was without gas or telephone service. Two bridges were washed out there.

Dynamiting of the ice jam in Pine River at Alma, Mich., averted a serious flood menace.

Three children and a man who tried to rescue them crashed through soft ice and were drowned in Social Pond, Woonsocket, R. I., in the center of the city. Another man who went to their aid also went through the ice and was pulled out by companions.

The youngsters had walked approximately 275 feet across the pond and were within 25 feet of shore when the ice softened by a thaw, broke under them.

Partly cloudy tonight. Tuesday, mostly clear with showers; the rest of the week, slightly colder with some rain and wind.

Hitler Steps Out

Further distracting attention from the East, and perhaps co-operating with Mussolini in his Mediterranean piracy campaign, Adolf Hitler has found the moment opportune for strolling to an even greater extent at home and for concentrating to an even greater extent on all political and military power within his own hands.

The event which has been advanced for the military coup was the marriage of Gen. von Blomberg, rich and powerful Prussian war lord, to a woman of rather humble origin. But there is no reason to believe that Hitler, who was himself at one time a paper hanger, and not a very good one at that, should have any objection to his war minister marrying the daughter of a carpenter.

The significance in these sudden drastic changes in German high positions lies in the fact that the army has exerted a restraining influence over Hitler's rather grandiose imperialistic ambitions. The German army was not ready for any first class war and the general knew it. Again and again he was reported to have cautioned Hitler to go slow when he seemed on the verge of putting into execution some of his earlier and more irresponsible threats.

What Hitler's intentions are, given the power to persons, should be rather well known as he has written a book about them, and he has reiterated them again and again since he came into power. There is no reason to believe that he has modified his views for expanding German influence in Central Europe and Russia since his rearmament program has nearly completed. It is more likely that he has merely been awaiting an opportunity to strike.

Now that every remaining influence has been removed from the political and military advisers, it will be interesting to see what Hitler contemplates next.

Increasing Traffic

When one stops to consider the tremendous increase in the number of automobiles which are daily using our streets and country highways, and the comparative slowness with which improvements in facilities for accommodating this heavy traffic have been made, it is small wonder that highway accidents constitute one of the major national problems of today.

In the average American city having a population between 100,000 and 500,000, there is one automobile registered for every four inhabitants, and if the number of automobiles not registered in the city but using city streets after coming from the country, is considered, there is one motor vehicle for every two and one-half persons.

This information is contained in a report from the C. I. T. Safety Foundation which shows that the average population of all the cities in this group was 238,000 and that the average number of automobile registrations was 61,000, while 68 percent as many vehicles as are registered come into the city and use its streets.

The figures further show that these cities have an average of 100 on the city police force, per 100,000 population, and this average police force of 100 would be available for patrol, 18.5 automobiles, and 7.7 motorcycles. The patrol cars of the average city are very largely equipped with radio.

The average American city in this group spends yearly for expenses relating to traffic facilities and traffic control, a little over $3 per city inhabitant, or a little over $11 per motor vehicle registered, the report shows. Of these 40 cities, 21.85 report that they have been able to do away with tickets fixing errand, and 70% report that the number of tickets fixed is less than 10%.

In those cities which have records available on the question, 21% were shown to have a ratio of 10 or more convictions for moving traffic violations to an injury accident. In various analyses of local traffic ordinance enforcement, it has been estimated that a traffic conviction ratio of ten or more to one, is one good indication of efficient traffic control.

Robert A. Gray, not later than April 7, seven qualified for the three places on the supreme court before the time expired Feb. 1.

Bottomless Gas Well To Be Swimming Hole

ALTO, La.—(AP)—Come summer, the children here will have their swimming hole—probably the most expensive in the world—in a pond on top of a hill. The pond is in the crater of the Alto gas well, which blew out in 1928, caught fire and for two years made a pyrotechnic display at a terrific loss in labor and money. In the two years before it could be brought under control it boiled fumes, water and mud.

The crater is a quiet eye and just 100 feet in diameter. No one knows the depth of the water in it, but it is deep enough for good swimming and has been for several years.

Administration's Hard Tasks Are Given Kennedy

Diplomat Convinces Wall Streeters Of Value Of SEC Bill

WASHINGTON, Feb. 7. — There's a little garden restaurant here that serves 50-cent lunches. The floor is stone-flagging. The furniture is rustic. Sparrows hop around gartering crumbs.

Four men met there for lunch on July 2, 1934. And that meeting tells as well as anything the story of man President Roosevelt's sending to England as ambassador that man Joseph Patrick Kennedy who was the host. He was first at the restaurant arriving fresh in white flannels, though the day was a winter.

Smuggling Is Heard

Now, Kennedy's arrival in Washington the day before had been accompanied by a lot of back-stage grumbling from New Dealers. He was the new Securities Exchange Commissioner. But there was the rub—until then he had been a Wall Street man himself; had played ball with the very group he was supposed to reform.

The SEC bill that gave him his position had been fathered by two men who had no love for Wall Street, the "Frankfurter Twins," Tomah Corcoran and Ben Cohen. What's more, the bill had been refined by another "brain trust," James Landis.

Well, who do you think Mr. Kennedy invited to eat his first lunch with him? None other than Corcoran, Cohen and Landis.

He arose to greet them, grinned his frank, engaging, new-boy's grin and asked, "Why the hell do you boys hate me?"

Up to $250,000,000.

Public record on that luncheon says there, but Kennedy soon got busy trying to convince Wall Street that the SEC act would simplify its work. When he had been in Wall Street, Kennedy had wanted something like the SEC himself.

And he got results. Wall Street doubts vanished. In the 17 months prior to March, 1935, there had only been $89,000,000 in new bond issues. In September, 1935, the new issues totaled $250,000,000 for that month alone. That was all Kennedy wanted. He quit—a quiet, peaceful life. With his lovely wife Rose Kennedy and their nice children.

That's what HE thought. Then, some time later President Roosevelt needed a man to head the Maritime Commission. Among other things, that agency had to settle claims totaling $72,000,000, made against the government by 22 shipowners.

The President persuaded Kennedy to leave his retirement and become maritime commissioner. Kennedy settled the $72,000,000 claims for $750,000.

So it's excusable that people expect a solemn adding-machine of a man in Kennedy. A man slightly set up on himself. But Joe Kennedy doesn't fit a pattern.

Send St. Park Ave., Back Bay. He's tall, square-shouldered, with a heart-shaped, ruddy freckled face. He's friendly and open. His clothing look like home street; his manners (except for swift flashes of temper) are Park Avenue, his English is Boston Back Bay.

Kennedy was born in East Boston of kindly Irish parents. His father's name still is remembered gratefully by Boston Democrats. The father was a state senator, a neighborhood banker later on.

Young Joe was full of enterprise. He sold candy on excursion boats (now he's making over the whole merchant marine). He organized a spectacular boy's baseball team and then proved himself the perfect captain by winning the mayor's cup for high batting.

That cup started another story. It was awarded by Mayor John F. Fitzgerald, who had a beautiful daughter, Rose. She spent her high-school days abroad where she won a Belgian medal as a pianist.

Kennedy went to Harvard. When Rose came home she was acquired by many, among them Kennedy, whom she married in 1914.

Their affection for each other has been notable.

About The Stork

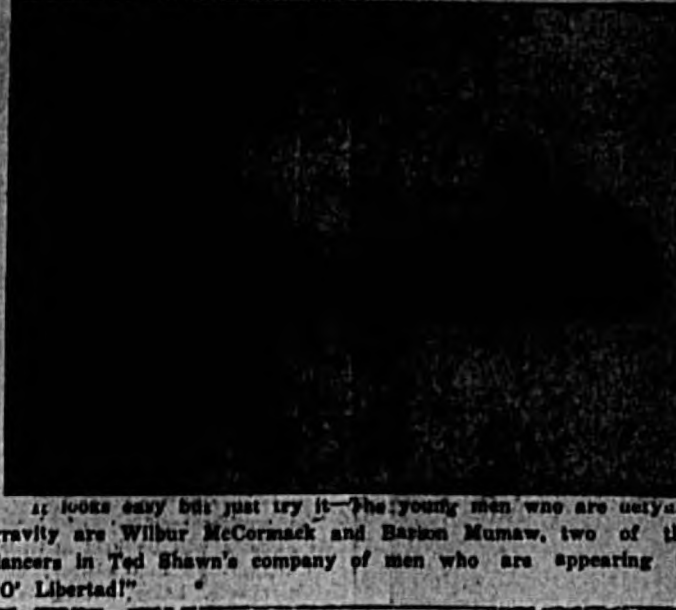

Just the other day Mrs. Kennedy was rushed to a New York hospital for an appendicitis operation. Kennedy couldn't leave his desk here. He's winding up the merchant marine affairs and allowing state department secrets in big chunks.

Twenty-four hours after the operation Kennedy answered his office phone. Mrs. Kennedy was on the line.

"Hello, Darling!" Kennedy almost shouted. "Your courage is amazing. I wish I had it."

He's the originator of the best story about her. She has had also children, yet it still is difficult to pick her among her daughters.

"She's the answer," says Kennedy, grinning. "To the story that there is a stork there must be."

When they were married Kennedy was earning $125 a month as a bank examiner. But there were signs his father's small bank was to be gobbled. Young Kennedy borrowed money and gained control of the bank, became its president at 25. That was a newspaper sensation. Kennedy was annoyed.

"It's no crime to be young," said he.

See! No Pattern

Since then he's done many jobs. He gets bored when everything is running smoothly. He says, "I'll work for nothing, but I want to be interesting."

However, he did not work for nothing. One way or another he's built a fortune estimated at nine to thirty-five million. He went from the bank to shipping. Then back to banking. Took a whirl at motion pictures from 1927 to 1930. That was an endurance race in commuting. He left the family in New York, commuted to Hollywood by plane. He helped consolidate RKO. Then he went into Wall Street. And he cashed out long before the crash. His life has no set pattern.

Want to know how he spent a recent week-end? He rushed to New York for a Friday night performance of "The Valkyrie" (that the systematic spraying controlled late blight and enabled the vines to hold up better.

to talk; one is Franklin Roosevelt, the other is Arturo Toscanini. See! No pattern.
