Violence mars Israeli election

JERUSALEM — Israelis voted today in what many consider the nation's most important parliamentary election and early balloting was marred by a Molotov cocktail attack that injured three people.

While voters were casting their ballots, Israeli warplanes bombed targets near Sidon and Demour in southern Lebanon, destroying "terrorist headquarters" and ammunition dumps, an army spokesman said. It was the fourth raid on Lebanon in the last 10 days.

Scattered election violence and electioneering were reported in the most serious incident, three Israelis were injured, one seriously, by a Molotov cocktail thrown at a car in Arab East Jerusalem, police spokesman Rafi Levy said.

Parade turns into riot

LOS ANGELES — An annual and unofficial Halloween sidewalk parade in Hollywood erupted into a ruck and bottle-throwing riot that left three police officers injured, stores looted, windows broken and 23 people arrested, officials said.

An estimated 100,000 revelers, many wearing costumes, gathered along Hollywood Boulevard for the traditional congregation, Sgt. John Zrofsky said.

"It's completely out of control and it began the way these things always begin. Alcohol, rowdiness and a complete lack of respect for the spirit of the holiday," Zrofsky said.

The rioting began about 10 p.m. along the famous street, which was closed to traffic, and police finally regained control of the area three hours later.

Shipyard closing angers Walesa

WARSAW, Poland — Prime Minister Mieczyslaw Rakowski's decision to close the Lenin shipyard in Gdansk — a symbol of workers' rights — makes planned round-table discussions on Poland's economic problems pointless, Solidarity founder Lech Walesa said.

The government announced Monday that the shipyard, where Solidarity was born eight years ago, would be closed for economic reasons Dec. 1.

In a telephone interview from Gdansk, Walesa branded the decision political and provocative, stating that many other unprofitable enterprises are being permitted to remain open.

Colts saddle Broncos, 55-23

INDIANAPOLIS — One year after his blockbuster trade to Indianapolis, Eric Dickerson rushed for 159 yards and a career-high four touchdowns, leading the Colts to a 55-23 Halloween rout of Denver.

Dickerson ran for 112 yards and scored on carries of 41, 12, 12 and 1 yards in the first 18:13 as the Colts pulled to a 31-0 lead. After that, it was just a matter of how badly Indianapolis would defeat the two-time defending AFC champions.

Prison gets green light

Officials claim they won't change plans

By BRAD CHURCH

SANFORD — A federal official said Monday the government intends to build a medium security prison southeast of here, barring unforeseen circumstances.

Patricia Sledge, head of the U.S. Bureau of Prison's procurement division, said that among those circumstances would be "widespread community opposition."

However, she explained, any opposition from one area, such as that coming from Geneva, would not change bureau officials' minds. "By widespread opposition, I mean throughout the entire community, or the withdrawal of the offer by the city," she said.

Sledge and Larry Long, a facilities procurement specialist, presented information about federal prisons to the city commissioners Monday afternoon, and commissioners had few questions for them.

They also met with Geneva area residents Monday night and will hold public meetings at the Sanford Civic Center Tuesday and Wednesday nights. They will also talk to the Chamber of Commerce and civic clubs this week.

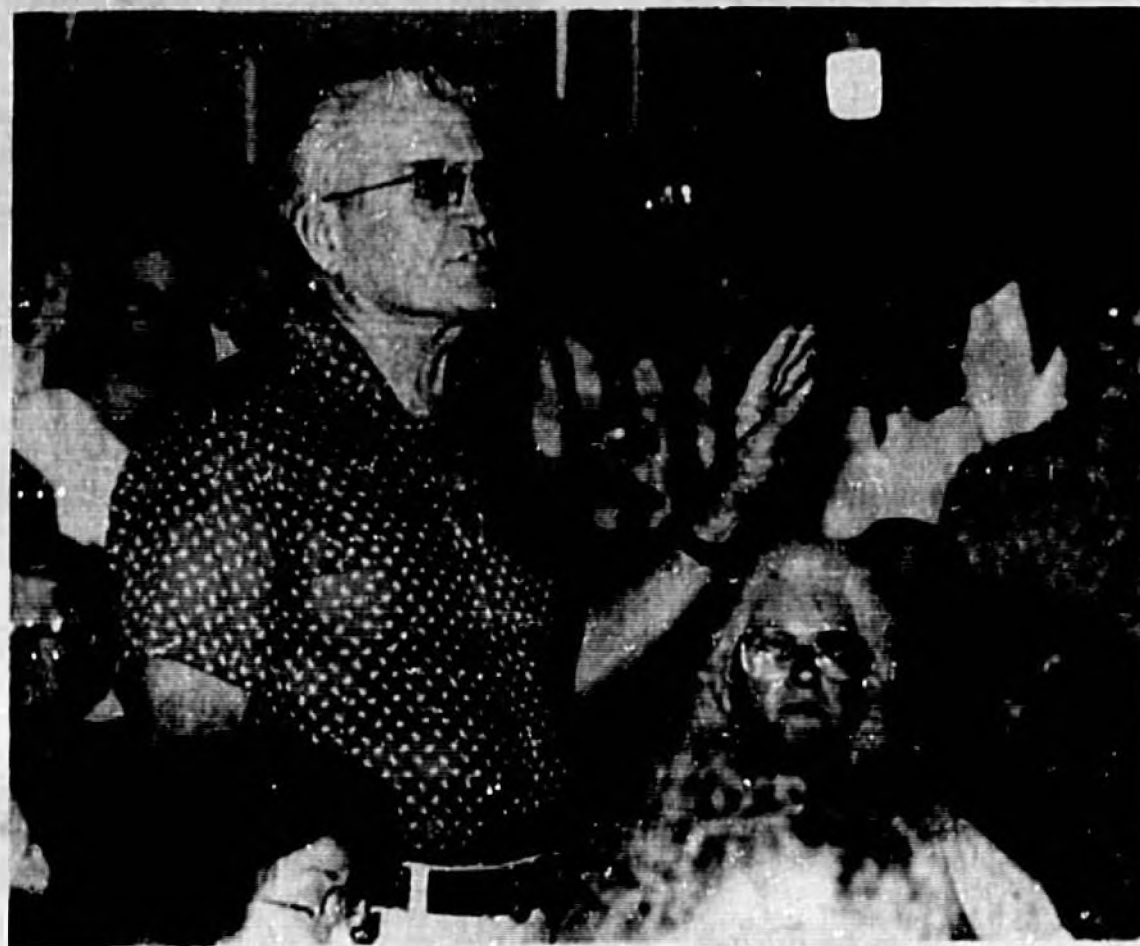

Among those who have previously announced opposition to the proposal to build the 600-bed, medium security prison and an adjacent 300-bed minimum security camp, is Sanford Mayor Bettye Smith.

Following the prison bureau officials' presentation, Smith said she still has reservations about the plan.

"I have heard from businessmen who, with few exceptions, are in favor of having a prison here; and from homeowners who, with few exceptions, are against it," Smith said.

The commission's meeting room was packed with

Geneva crowd unites against prison proposal

By J. MARK BARFIELD

GENEVA — It was no treat for U.S. Bureau of Prison officials on Halloween night at the Geneva Community Center.

Facing a standing-room only crowd of more than 150 people, one wearing prison stripes and another dressed as a grim reaper standing outside, two federal prison officials Monday night heard frequent objections and little support in the brightly-lit, little room.

Geneva residents are concerned that water and sewer lines to the proposed prison facility might attract more growth in their direction.

Other concerns expressed include fears the 2,200-acre city-owned site might be too environmentally sensitive for both a prison and the city's proposed effluent spray irrigation field.

"We in Geneva want to be rural," said Bill Koppenhofer, past president of the Geneva Civic Association. "We've been fighting to be rural. This is a political deal with this piece of land. (The Sanford city commission) is hell-bent to come out and slaughter our neighborhoods."

Koppenhofer's comments were met enthusiastically with applause and cheers.

FDLE report refutes claim against Polk

By SUSAN LODEN
Herald staff writer

SANFORD — Allegations that a Seminole County sheriff's deputy fired shots at the Democrat Party challenger to Sheriff John Polk, are unfounded, according to a Florida Department of Law Enforcement report.

The FDLE investigation initiated March 9 found no evidence to support the claim of Patrick Paul Wilson, 39, of Fern Park, that shots were fired at him while he was on duty at a Sanford sewer plant at about 10:35 p.m. Feb. 26.

The confidential FDLE investigation, conducted by Special Agent Supervisor John Van Tronk and Special Agent J. Barr, of Orlando, followed initial probes by Sanford police and the Seminole County Sheriff's department. A copy of the report was obtained through a Freedom of Information Act request.

Polk said yesterday that he agreed with the report's findings but Wilson termed them politically motivated.

The report said that Wilson, on Feb. 26, reported to Sanford police "while he was working on one of the catwalks at the water plant, he looked over to an adjacent road and, parked under a street light, was a sheriff's green and white vehicle. He heard three loud bangs from this vehicle, which he believed to be gunshots, and saw a flash. Wilson further stated that he heard 'the wind split next to my left ear,' and then he watched the vehicle leave, accelerating very fast," the report said.

Seminole charter won't change election process

John DeGrove, the godfather of modern state planning, once told a group of Florida county officials that a sure way to undermine a county charter-adoption effort would be to change the status of the constitutional officers from elected to appointed.

"If you have a sheriff out beating the bushes against you, it will be difficult to have a charter passed," said DeGrove. The former secretary of the state Department of Community Affairs, DeGrove is now director of the Florida Atlantic University-Florida International University

Teacher reacts to school vandalism

Veteran educator charged with pointing gun at boy

United Press International

TAMPA - A veteran teacher who colleagues said had grown frustrated by repeated vandalism of his school garden plot was charged with pointing a pistol at the head of a 12-year-old boy he chased after two youths hurled obscenities and rocks at the teacher's class. Clarence Warren "Coach" White, an agriculture teacher at the inner-city Middleton Junior High School, was charged Monday with false imprisonment and aggravated assault. The youth, whose name was not released, earlier was charged with trespassing. Charles Otero, chief of security for the school system, described the situation on the school campus as "quite serious." Three years ago, a school security guard was assigned to patrol Middleton in the afternoon and evening. But at night the inner-city school has been a target of prowlers and thieves. Cars parked near the school were vandalized and people broke into the school. Tampa police Sgt. Wiley Howell said the Thursday incident that led to White's arrest began as a shouting match between two boys who were walking across the Middleton yard and a group of students who were standing outside with White. As the two groups shouted at each other, they also began throwing rocks. One of the rocks hit White, Howell said. Authorities said White chased the boys in his car, caught one of them at a nearby street corner, forced him into his car and held a gun to the boy's head as he drove him back to the school. "From what witnesses told us, he pointed a gun at one of the boys and told him, 'You are going to get into this vehicle.' He got out, put the boy's arms behind his back and threw him into the car," Howell said. White placed the pistol in the waistband of his pants and began driving back to the school grounds, Howell said. During the drive, the boy started to get out of the car at a stop sign. "At that point, White placed the gun to the boy's head and said, 'Try it. Go ahead and run." After his release from jail Monday on $2,000 bail, White, 39, gave a different account of the incident. He said the two boys interrupted his fifth-period agriculture class, as the students planted vegetables. "I approached the kids and they ran... calling me all kinds of names," said White, a former head football coach at Jefferson High School who once ran for Tampa City Council but dropped out before the March 1968 election. "I returned to the office, got in my car and pursued them." "The gun was never pointed at the young man," said White, who has been in the school system 22 years. "I did nothing wrong. That's my belief." "If I'm going to run a program out there, I've got to have discipline."

Three share $8.9 million prize

TALLAHASSEE - Three Jacksonville bachelors working at a custom yacht building company claimed an $8.96 million Lotto prize Monday, saying they had been buying tickets with pooled money for 29 weeks. "I was so excited I couldn't even drive my car," said George Michael King, 25, appearing at a news conference with fellow winners Fred Green, 40, and Bernard A. MacArthur, all employees at Hopkins Yacht Corp. in Jacksonville. The win marked the second time in two weeks more than one person has shared a Lotto jackpot. Two sisters from Indiantown won last week's $31.5 million jackpot, the first time the game had produced a multiple grand prize winner since it began in May. King said the men have been pooling their money for weekly Lotto purchases for the past seven months. He said his sisters tracked him down Sunday at the beach to tell him he had won the grand prize. The prize will be paid in annual installments of $448,000 before taxes. The men said they had made no definite plans about how to spend their money. Lottery Secretary Rebecca Paul said the Lotto prize came on the heels of another drawing Friday night in Jacksonville in which Robert Rowell won $1 million in the lottery instant game contest.

Governor orders investigation of school

TALLAHASSEE - Gov. Bob Martinez said Monday he had ordered an investigation of the Florida School of the Deaf and Blind because conditions at the school presented "a danger to the well-being of its students." "When we set out to protect the children of Florida, we did not exempt those that are housed in state facilities," Martinez said in announcing the investigation of the 103-year-old facility at St. Augustine. "Our preliminary investigation shows that the ratio of staffing is inadequate, that the facilities that the youngsters use are inadequate for handicapped children," he said. Martinez ordered the state departments of Law Enforcement and Health and Rehabilitative Services to report in one month on administration practices and possible criminal violations at the school. He also ordered HRS to conduct a licensing review, not normally required of state-run facilities, within the next two weeks. The investigation was prompted in part by the Oct. 13 death of 9-year-old Jennifer Driggers, a deaf and mentally retarded student who was fatally scalded after she was left unattended in a shower.

Tourists plead guilty to attacking police

ORLANDO - Three members of a Massachusetts family pleaded guilty Monday to charges of battery on law enforcement officers during a highly publicized dispute at an airport rental car counter last winter. Although attacking a police officer is a felony, John Roma, a Taunton, Mass., used-car dealer, was sentenced to two years' probation and fined $300. His wife, Diane, and their 18-year-old daughter, Deenah-Jean, escaped with judicial warnings. Orange County Circuit Judge James Byrd also withheld declaring the Romas guilty, thus preventing them from having criminal records. All three family members appeared in court for the proceeding. The Roma's son, Anthony, 12, pleaded guilty in May to a reduced charge and was sentenced to community service. The Romas went to Boston-area newspapers and television stations after their arrest in February, vowing to fight the charges on grounds they had been the victims of Southern police prejudiced against tourists from the North. The Romas changed their minds, however, when their Orlando-area lawyer, Gene Stephenson, learned that about 20 witnesses to the incident at Orlando International Airport were ready to testify against them.

Shuttle launch period announced

CAPE CANAVERAL - The shuttle Atlantis will be launched on a day in late November between 6:32 a.m. EST and 9:32 a.m. on a classified military flight, NASA said Monday, but the exact time will be kept secret until nine minutes before blastoff. The reason: To keep the Soviets in the dark until the last possible moment in a bid to hamper their ability to precisely track the shuttle and its classified satellite payload. Even the day Atlantis will blast off on the second post-Challenger mission was in doubt Monday, with the shuttle's trip from the Vehicle Assembly Building to launch pad 39B tentatively planned for one minute past midnight Tuesday - 12:01 a.m. EST Wednesday - two days behind schedule because of a problem encountered over the weekend. Before the trouble cropped up, launch had been planned for between Nov. 26 and Nov. 30.

Widow seeks more money for distress

PENSACOLA - A woman who won nearly $400,000 from the government after it tried to force her to accept its identification of bone fragments as the husband she lost in the Vietnam War is seeking more money. Anne Hart, 45, in a motion filed Monday to amend a federal judge's Oct. 30 judgment, claims she has had to seek additional counseling and take medication because of a telephone call from an Air Force officer Oct. 13. The officer told her of a report that her husband, Lt. Col. Thomas Hart III, had been seen alive in Laos along with four other American servicemen. He also told her the report was considered unreliable.

The call came after testimony ended and before U.S. District Judge Winston Arnow ordered the government to pay Mrs. Hart more than $382,000 in damages, and to pay Mrs. Hart's daughter and mother-in-law $125,000 each. The 16-page document seeks unspecified additional damages.

Bank's refusal to pay check upheld

United Press International

TALLAHASSEE - An appeals court ruling Monday upholding a bank's refusal to cash a check endorsed to a third party provided an opportunity for the state Supreme Court to hear the issue. In declining a motion from a district court for a rehearing, the 1st District Court of Appeal also said the case involving Barnett Bank of Jacksonville and Warren Finance posed "a question of great public importance." "That is a mechanism by which certain cases can move up the review ladder if the state Supreme Court chooses to take jurisdiction," said Paul Hill, legal counsel for the Florida Bar.

"What you've got now is the possibility the state Supreme Court may review this jurisdiction," Hill said. He said the "great public importance" mechanism is part of Florida's constitution and normally used when a legal question can have wide social implications. In the case reviewed by the appeals court, attorneys for Warren Finance sought a rehearing of a lower court's decision that upheld Barnett's right to refuse to pay a cashier's check to anyone but the original payee. The case stemmed from a cashier's check made out to another person and then endorsed by that person to Warren Finance. Barnett declined to pay the check, saying the bank only had to honor it if it was cashed by the original payee. But attorneys for the finance company said the Barnett move had the effect of putting a "stop payment" on the check, a claim the lower court disputed. The appeals court said allowing the holder of a cashier's check to lay claim "to the proceeds of that check" would "truly make a cashier's check the same as cash." But in a partial dissent, the court also noted that once a cashier's check is issued, it generally is accepted as a debt incurred by the issuing bank and that after the payee has received the check, the transaction is deemed completed. Attorneys for the finance company said to allow cashier's checks to be paid only to the payee and not endorsed to someone else would "wreak havoc within the banking system which has hitherto closed countless transactions by using cashier's checks as a substitute for cash." Neither the lower court nor the appeals court agreed with that contention and in the appellate dissent it was noted only one other state, Ohio, allowed banks to refuse to honor a cashier's check for anyone other than the payee. The appeals court said the lack of precedent in Florida law was a serious enough question to have the issue deemed an important public matter.

Howell files for District 1 race

By BRAD CHURCH
Herald city editor

SANFORD — Lon Howell, 1109 Park Ave., filed nomination papers Monday for election to the city commission from District 1, making it a three-man race to succeed retiring commissioner John Y. Mercer.

Howell, 42, is concerned about Sanford's growth, about improving the safety of neighborhoods, and cooperation between groups to maintain the quality of life in the city.

"A few years ago the residents of Bram Towers used to walk downtown a lot but they are afraid to now. Residents of Georgetown are afraid for their children on the streets and people are afraid to walk in our historic district."

"We have a super police department, but the police cannot be everywhere at once," Howell said. "We need to bring representatives of all neighborhoods together to work to solve this problem."

Howell was a leader in the effort to get much of the downtown residential area rezoned from multiple residence district to single family residence district and is a member of Save Our Sanford (SOS), the group involved in historic preservation of neighborhoods.

"I think now is the time for the leaders of SOS to work with city officials, investors and renters because the people who live in the neighborhoods are all neighbors and must work together to make District 1 and all of Sanford a great place to live," he said.

Howell said the city commission must make important decisions in the coming years about maintaining the quality of life in the face of population growth.

Howell served on the Planning and Zoning Commission two years but has not run for office before.

He is 42, single, and is a territory manager for the Georgia Boot Company.

He is the third person to announce his candidacy for the District 1 seat. Also running are Sanford attorney James Sweeting III, and Jay Malone, a vice president of Southeast Bank.

Halloween brings out high spirits

United Press International

An outhouse arsonist, swarms of dressed-up darlings and even tricksters with an eerie election-year message haunted streets, bars and doorsteps for the nation's favorite fright night, but a California dentist who is paying kids to throw out their sugary Halloween loot insists he's not masquerading as an autumnal Scrooge.

America's trick-or-treaters celebrated Halloween into the wee hours today in both traditional and not-so-traditional ways, but spirits were high in most corners of the nation.

Thousands of costumed New Yorkers marched in or gawked at a parade in Greenwich Village featuring the outlandish and unsavory; the nation's sole survivor of a heart liver transplant was treated with sweets at a Pittsburgh hospital; and police in upscale New York were on the lookout for an outhouse arsonist.

Many West Virginians were left with egg on their cars as revelers with a devil-may-care attitude made a monster of a mess by lobbing the fragile items in the dark of night.

In Santa Rosa, Calif., a pediatric dentist is offering to pay $1 a pound today to youngsters who will turn in their trick-or-treat candy for disposal.

"I'm doing this to eliminate the post-Halloween problems of contamination and sugar in general," said Steven Berger, who first started buying back trick-or-treat candy five years ago.

"The unique thing this year is I'm having kids throw it right into a garbage truck after it's weighed," he said, adding it's his protest against sugar products being handed out to youngsters.

"We're trying to do this in a way where kids can still have a wonderful time trick-or-treating and have fun the day afterwards without worrying about whether the candy is contaminated or whether they'll get a cavity."

Wilson's complaint against Polk dropped

By SUSAN LOEHN
Herald staff writer

FERN PARK — Democratic sheriff's candidate Patrick Wilson has withdrawn a complaint he filed with state elections officials accusing Sheriff John Polk of campaign "improprieties."

Polk nevertheless countered the allegations.

Wilson's comments came during a press conference on Monday after Polk was informed by the state of the complaint filed six weeks ago and the withdrawal of the complaint Monday.

Wilson had charged that Polk violated a county ordinance by driving his county car to political functions. Polk said he is on-call 24-hours a day and is not going to be out of radio contact with his department while traveling.

Wilson had said deputies on duty sold tickets to a Polk fundraiser. Polk said that would not be a violation of the law. "I don't know that they did. Can he give specifics?" Polk asked.

Wilson said in one Polk campaign ad in the Sanford Herald Polk did not state that the event referred to in the ad was a "campaign fund" event. Polk said that ad was a list of those who had bought tickets to his fundraiser.

Wilson took his complaints to the Division of Elections, Tallahassee, and to the Seminole State Attorney's Office. He said he was told by the state attorney that there was no apparent criminal intent on Polk's part.

Graham to visit Sanford

Democratic U.S. Sen. Bob Graham is scheduled to visit Sanford Thursday afternoon.

A campaign aide said he is to arrive at the Sanford Regional Airport at 4 p.m. and then will drive to the Greater Sanford Chamber of Commerce at 400 East First St., then visit City Hall and the County Services Building before returning to the chamber to meet with black leaders.

He will drive around a portion of the city before returning to the airport about 6:20 p.m., the aide said.

Poachers in Kenya kill five rare white rhinos

United Press International

NAIROBI, Kenya — Poachers attacked a park headquarters and slaughtered the last five white rhinos living on Kenya's public lands in what one conservationist termed a "tremendous blow" to efforts to save the rare animals.

Kenyan authorities confirmed today that poachers Sunday night raided a section of the Meru National Park, 130 miles northeast of Nairobi, in search of white rhino horn, which is highly prized in the Middle East and Asia for its alleged medicinal qualities.

"It is a catastrophe, a tremendous blow to anyone who has been working to save the rhino," said a Kenyan conservationist.

The heavily armed poachers attacked the park headquarters, where the rhinos were kept under close watch, and butchered the animals.

The raiders reportedly wounded several game wardens before fleeing, presumably on a truck, with the rhino horns.

The Meru park rhinos, the only white rhinos remaining on public land in Kenya, were guarded day and night by wardens.

An estimated 44 white rhinos still survive on large, private ranches in Kenya, and there are fewer than 4,000 left throughout Africa.

The incident is the latest in a recent spate of poaching in which more than 100 elephants have been slaughtered in various Kenyan national parks.

Polk's record merits election

There is no question about who is the better man for the office of Sheriff of Seminole County. That man is Sheriff John Polk.

By training, experience and his record as the sheriff for 19 years, Mr. Polk is clearly the better of the two candidates. He has molded the department from one with only 35 employees when he took over, to a modern, professional one with 563 employees and an annual budget of more than $18.2 million.

However well-intentioned his opponent, Pat Wilson simply does not have the high-quality training and experience in law enforcement that is necessary to administer a modern, professional law enforcement department the size of the sheriff's department. What's more, he is unable to articulate a philosophy of management of the quality necessary to serve as the county's top law enforcement officer.

Mr. Polk recognizes the need for controlling the wildfire spread of drugs, for professional standards of law enforcement and crime detection, and for gaining control of career criminals, just to mention a few of his concerns. He is the candidate with the proven experience to cope with the county's continued growth and ever increasing demands on its law enforcement officials.

The Herald endorses John Polk for reelection as sheriff.

Buddy MacKay is better for senate

Voters will choose between Buddy MacKay, Democrat, and Connie Mack, Republican, to replace Sen. Lawton Chiles in the United States Senate. Both are serving now as congressmen. There the similarities end.

MacKay, a member of the House Foreign Relations committee, is strong on environmental issues and, following the tutelage of Sen. Chiles, chairman of the Senate Appropriations Committee, committed to cutting the federal deficit. In political philosophy, he is close to Sen. Chiles and the soon-to-be senior senator from Florida, Sen. Bob Graham.

Congressman Mack has a strong record of support for all conservative causes and philosophically stands with Senators Orrin Hatch, R-Utah, and J. Strom Thurman, R-S.C. He has supported President Reagan on many issues, including the Iran-Contra affair.

Though wishing Mr. MacKay would take a stronger position on the Strategic Defense Initiative, his positions on education and health care for children, long-term health care for senior citizens, and the war on crime and drugs are in line with the needs of Florida.

The Herald recommends Buddy MacKay for the office of U.S. Senate.

Booker makes his choice for president

With the presidential election on top of us, I visited my cherished colleague in Harlem, Booker Leroy Jackson, and asked him about his electoral intentions.

He declined to speak to me. "Don't interrupt a man when he be prayin'," he admonished me.

A few minutes later, he left the room. On the table was the prayer he had written:

Yo, Lord -
It be that time again when we be 'spected to decide who gon' lead us into the promised land, and I don't be happy 'bout either one. I don't care what Bobby McFerrin sing in that ol' dumb song 'bout "Don't Worry, Be Happy." I'm worried, and I ain't happy.

How can entee-body not worry 'bout being forced to decide between the Duke and the Spook. (Just in case that one slipped by you, Lord, the vice president once was a CIA spy.)
Man, what a pair, Mikeldehakias and Georgebush - Mutt and Jeff of 1988.

David said, "Blessed is the man whom thou chooshest." But I really don't believe you be choosin' either one of these dudes.

Every Sunday, we sing in church, "A Mighty Fortress is Our God," but no fortress can be an honest-to-goodness fortress if it be choosin' two pillboxes to run for president.

Take the one who walk closest to the ground. You know I always be a Democrat, Lord, but this little dude who be runnin' on the Democratic ticket make me want to run away from him. He can't even make his eyebrows go up and down. And every time I see him on television, he talk like he be readin' the telephone directory.

The tall Republican dude who be runnin' against him always sound like a puppy dog what just been spanked. He whines. But he do got more heart when he talk. He just ain't got much heart for us bloods. I be seein' them ads he run on television 'bout this brother who raped a woman when he be on furlough from prison. They keep showin' his picture, as if to say, "Look what this niggah did to that white lady." Everybody been talkin' 'bout the "L" word in the campaign, but Georgebush's ads only talk 'bout the "N" word.

If the woman who was raped be black, Georgebush's campaign staff wouldn't of even talked about Mikeldehakias' lein' so? on crime.

Georgebush say them ads don't be racist. I believe him. I also believed Richard Nixon when he said he weren't no liar.

What I don't understand, Lord, and perhaps you can hip me to this, is how the Republicans be gettin' away with badmouthin' Mikeldehakias' furlough program while he be governor, yet they don't be admittin' that President Ronald McDonald had the exact same kind of furlough program when he be governor of California.

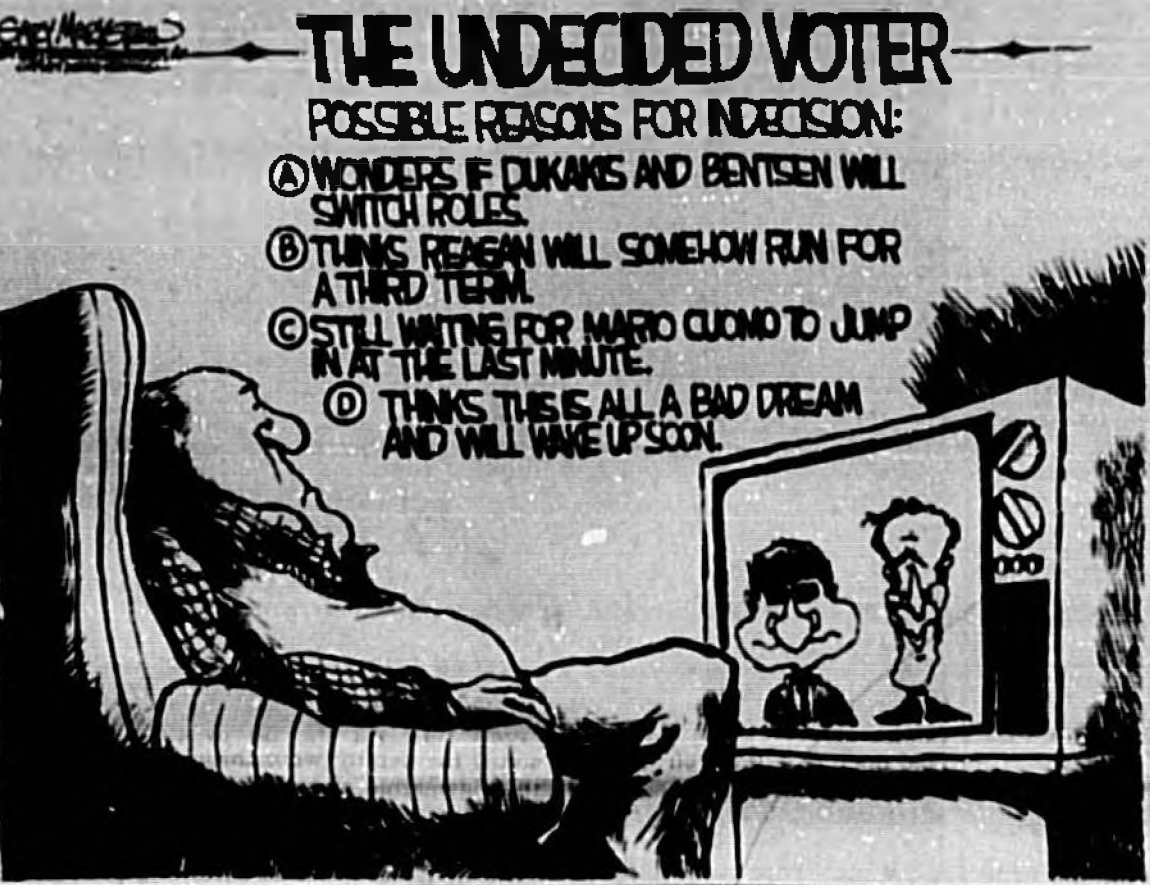

I admit I be better off today than I be four years ago. I be workin' at a good job. My friends all be workin'. Gen. Noriega be workin' sendin' drugs to America. Jesse Jackson be workin' runnin' for president.

And I'm sick of him, Jesse done done this thing twice now. He gettin' to be the equal-opportunity version of Harold Stassen.

During the civil rights movement, this old black man tol' Martin Luther King Jr., "I ain't what I oughta be, I ain't what I'd like to be, but thank God, I ain't what I used to be."

He gettin' to be the equal-opportunity version of Harold Stassen.

GEORGE F. WILL

Weicker branded with 'L' Word

HARTFORD, Conn.—Come through the looking glass, into the wonderland of Connecticut's Senate race.

Candidate A praised U.S. action against Libya and Grenada and in the Persian Gulf, questions the restraints in the War Powers Act places on Presidents, denounces Castro as "more of a Marxist-Leninist than Gorbachev," endorsed the Gramm-Rudman deficit-reduction plan and praised the nomination of Robert Bork.

Candidate B denounced the U.S. bombing of Libya as a "gutlet act," called the invasion of Grenada worse than any recent Soviet act, reverses the War Powers Act, praises Castro's "enormous intellect and idealism," opposed not only the Bork nomination but also that of William Rehnquist to be Chief Justice, opposes, SDI, contra aid, Gramm-Rudman spending restraints and criticized Connecticut's Republican 1986 Senate nominee for criticizing the Democratic incumbent's liberalism.

Candidate A is attorney general Joseph Liberman, the Democrat. Candidate B is the Republican incumbent seeking a fourth term, Sen. Lowell Weicker. Suddenly it seems possible that Weicker's seat, until recently presumed safe, may be yanked from beneath him, with many Republicans helping with the yanking.

In 1970, Weicker slipped into the Senate by winning just 42 percent of the vote in a three-way race in which a second Democrat ran as an independent. In 1976, riding a Watergate wave (Weicker honed his grandstanding skills on the Watergate committee), he won 58 percent against a poorly financed Democrat. In 1982 he won 50 percent against a Democratic opponent of Lebanese extraction whose extreme liberalism divided the Democratic Party and whose views on the Middle East drove away Jewish voters. (The Democrat got 46 percent; a minor candidate 4 percent.)

Today the Democratic Party is united behind a Jewish candidate. Polls over the last eight months show a steeply declining trend line for Weicker support. His agitated performance in a recent debate belied his professed disbelief in polls showing the race even.

Because of actions taken when Republicans controlled the state legislature, this will be Connecticut's first statewide election without a straight party-line lever on voting machines. This will stimulate ticket splitting to Weicker's disadvantage, while Bush carries Connecticut.

By preening as a maverick motivated by principle, Weicker has catered to Connecticut's independent streak. "My party," he says sonorously, "is the state of Connecticut." But Connecticut's interests probably suffer because when he tends to appeal on its behalf to collegial feelings the appeals fall on ears deafened by his noisy moral exhibitionism that has made him one of the least liked senators.

Connecticut does well from defense spending, but this is because of industries dating to the Second World War and an even older tradition. As Michael Barone writes, Connecticut "has always been a state of tinkers and innovators" where people "have worked with vast ingenuity and unusual precision." It produced Eli Whitney's cotton gin and his rifle made of interchangeable components, Colt industries, Sikorski helicopters, Pratt and Whitney jet engines, and United Technologies.

The contrasting inelegance of Weicker, whose rhetoric has been described as "communication skills indigencous to a junior-high-school playground" is illustrated by his analysis of the 1988 Republican platform: "I think the platform sucks." Of the intellectual idealist Castro, Weicker says, "I saw what he has done with my own eyes. By Caribbean standards it's Park Avenue." However, "Castro has been known to snow people, but he didn't snow me."

Republican participations in the attempt to retire Weicker involves people other than hard-shell conservatives and thinking more profound than the ideological urge to purge liberals. Liberman is a liberal, although not to the Weicker degree or in the hydrophobic Weicker manner. And serious, long-standing Republican activists who are now active against Weicker know this: A Weicker vote that would give Republicans control of the Senate would be far more important than all his other votes combined.

Because few Republicans would sacrifice Senate control even for the deep cathartic pleasure of defeating Weicker, he probably will call in some Republican senators to lie heroically on his behalf by exaggerating the chance of Republican control. But control would result only if Bush's coattails (an oxymoron?) produced a gain of four seats. A net loss is more likely.

Communication skills indigencous to a junior-high-school playground.

Witness details U.S. Castro plot

WASHINGTON — After a 25-year silence, a witness has stepped out of the shadows to tell how a covert CIA mission to liquidate Cuba's Fidel Castro backfired. The Marxist ruler was tipped off that the CIA was trying to kill him. Instead, he may have turned the hired guns against John F. Kennedy.

The witness, a Washington police officer named Joseph Shimon, played an undercover role in the bizarre tragedy. He sat in on the actual meetings where the CIA's William Harvey and the Mafia's Johnny Rosselli plotted Castro's assassination.

The covert operation had the blessing of two of America's most notorious crime figures — Sam Giancana, boss of the Chicago mob, and Santo Trafficante, who controlled the Cuban underworld before Castro came to power. Shimon quotes Trafficante as saying, "I'll get you the contacts, give you a lot of names. But keep me out of it."

Harvey and Rosselli recruited killers recommended by Trafficante. Six assassination teams were dispatched to Cuba, all six not only failed, but disappeared.

Harvey and Rosselli concluded that professional hit men wouldn't have failed repeatedly unless Castro had been waiting for them. "You don't have that many misses, and these fellows are not coming back," said Shimon.

Only six people knew about the CIA plot to use the Mafia to knock off Castro. No mention of the operation had been committed to paper. Yet Castro must have been tipped off.

The finger of suspicion pointed to Trafficante. Though he had been jailed and his gambling casinos seized by Castro, for some unexplained reason, Trafficante got out of Cuba unscathed after Castro came to power. Shimon recalled, "Suddenly Trafficante is released. ... He comes back here with all his assets, with the yacht. ... Others eventually got out, but they left Cuba broke. Trafficante came out with all his money, immediately went into business and look how big he got overnight. He spread out all over the South." The easy treatment may have set up a bond between Trafficante and Castro.

Shimon confronted Giancana and asked whether Trafficante was reliable. "Frankly," confided Giancana, "he's a rat." The CIA came to the same conclusion and abruptly called off the Mafia. But the CIA continued to look for other ways to eliminate Castro.

Without inside information, Castro no longer knew where the CIA would strike next. So he issued a public warning in September 1963. If the CIA persisted in trying to kill Cuban leaders, he said, then "American leaders will not be safe."

Two months later, President Kennedy was gunned down in Dallas. Shimon figured that Castro had conspired with Trafficante to beat Kennedy to the draw. Shimon said his conclusion was "confirmed by Harvey," who had other information from the CIA.

Shimon said, "They had other sources, too. They were satisfied that this had to be retaliation by Castro. ... Castro decided, look, if this (CIA murder mission) is gonna continue on, let's have a little self-defense. This is a two-way game."

Shimon is just one of a number of witnesses who have provided evidence that Castro turned the tables on the CIA and Kennedy. We will present this evidence on Wednesday (Nov. 2) in a two-hour, prime-time documentary on more than 150 television stations.

We believe the evidence is strong enough to attract the attention of Americans who have accepted the Warren Commission's mistaken verdict that Lee Harvey Oswald was the lone assassin.

Castro no longer knew where the CIA would strike next.

The Lake Mary Sanford area can only benefit from having a locally owned and operated bank like First Seminole Bank 531 W. Lake Mary Blvd., Lake Mary. Dennis Courson, president of the bank, opened his bank Aug. 1 and is excited about the future for both his bank and the community it serves.

First Seminole Bank: the only locally-owned bank in Lake Mary

To the Lake Mary Sanford area, a locally owned and operated bank can be a tremendous asset. First Seminole Bank 531 W. Lake Mary Blvd., Lake Mary, is just such a bank.

First Seminole Bank was opened Aug. 1. Their bank is in Lake Mary and their headquarters is in Lake Mary.

The local atmosphere of the bank provides people in the Lake Mary Sanford area with an institution more in tune with their needs and more flexible in their anticipation of those needs. Any banking that requires specialized structuring can be handled more efficiently at a locally owned bank than at a bank franchise. Courson said if a client needs a loan that doesn't fall within a cookie-cutter mold, then a locally owned and operated bank like First Seminole Bank is the place to go. "We can structure a loan to meet both the client's and our needs," Courson said.

Another aspect of a locally owned bank is community involvement. Courson has lived and worked in the Sanford area since 1979. He is a former president of the Sanford Chamber of Commerce and was on the Board of Directors of the Sanford Kiwanis Club. Courson currently is on the Board of Directors at the YMCA and belongs to the Lake Mary Chamber of Commerce and the Lake Mary Rotary Club. In addition, First Seminole Bank's vice president and cashier, Ed Crawford, lives in Maitland, and the bank's vice president in charge of lending, Lynn Tucker, lives in Longwood. All are involved in the community.

Community involvement is important to me and my bank," Courson said. "It still is."

For more information about the bank call 330-0330.

Veteran actor John Houseman dead at 86

United Press International

MAJIBU (AP) — John Houseman, a distinguished stage producer and director who began acting in earnest at the age of 71 when he won an Academy Award in "The Paper Chase," died today at age 86 of cancer, a family spokeswoman said.

Houseman, who had struggled with cancer for several months, died at his home at 8 a.m., said family spokeswoman Judy Davidson.

Houseman's death came a day after the 50th anniversary of the chilling radio broadcast of H.G. Wells' "The War of the Worlds," which he co-produced with Orson Welles and which was so realistic it almost caused a national panic.

Report: Students display ignorance about AIDS safety

United Press International

NEW YORK — Junior and senior high school age children display "dangerous ignorance" about the deadly disease AIDS, a new survey of students, parents and teachers revealed.

The report card on health education in public schools, "Health You've Got to Be Taught," also showed that many parents are not aware their children drink, smoke or take drugs.

There are wide discrepancies between parental perception and what students report in the areas of alcohol and drug abuse, said the Metropolitan Life Foundation report released Monday.

When it comes to AIDS, many students have only limited knowledge about how the fatal disease is spread, the survey said.

Although most students can identify risk-reducing factors such as not taking illegal drugs with needles (90 percent) and using a condom when having sex (85 percent), these numbers still leave many children in a state of dangerous ignorance, the report said.

Furthermore, many students are misinformed about the risks of many safe behaviors. Three out of 10 students believe not sharing a bathroom with an AIDS patient reduces their risk of getting AIDS, and 13 percent think not being in a classroom with someone who has AIDS reduces the risk.

The report concluded "Considerable ignorance is found among junior high and high school students concerning information about AIDS."

Based on a Louis Harris survey of 4,708 students in grades three to 12, some 500 parents, and teachers from 199 schools, the report also found many parents were not aware of the health habits of their children. For example:

- 46 percent of parents reported their child had had at least one alcoholic drink, but 66 percent of students said they used alcohol at least once or twice.
- 14 percent of parents reported that their child has smoked a cigarette, but 41 percent of children claimed to have smoked.
- 5 percent of parents reported that their child has used drugs, but 17 percent of students reported using drugs.

The survey was conducted in conjunction with the Metropolitan Life $5 million, five-year "Healthy Me" campaign started in 1985 to promote excellence in school-based health instruction.

Authorities contend good health instruction in schools encourages children to adopt health-promoting behaviors and can have an effect on incidence of teenage pregnancy, accidents, illnesses, and physical and mental fitness.

But the report said some 8 million public school children get little or no school-based health education.

Pollsters asked students, parents and teachers about topics ranging from emotional health and AIDS prevention to nutrition, weight control, safety, drug, alcohol and tobacco use.

The topic of AIDS has only recently been introduced into health education classes — only 54 percent of students say they have learned about it in class, the report said.

Other report findings suggest more health education results in more healthy behavior by students. For example:

- 20 percent of students with one year of health education smoke cigarettes, compared to 14 percent of students who have had health education for three years.
- 13 percent of students with one year's health education have taken drugs, compared to only 6 percent of students who have taken three years of health education.
- 87 percent of the students learned about alcohol in school health education classes, but only 70 percent feel it is important that they do not drink.
- 86 percent of students learned about health effects of smoking in health classes, yet only 79 percent consider it important not to smoke.

The student segment of the survey had a margin of error of 1.5 percentage points, plus or minus. The margin was 4 percent for the parental survey and 7 percent for the teacher segment.

Imelda Marcos proclaims innocence

NEW YORK — Imelda Marcos pleaded innocent Monday in a loud, clear voice to a $268 million federal racketeering indictment charging that she and her husband, deposed President Ferdinand Marcos, used stolen government funds to buy Manhattan real estate.

Marcos, 59, entered the U.S. District Court courtroom shortly after the appointed 11:30 a.m. hearing time, wearing her characteristic traditional Philippines derno, a turquoise-colored gown with short butterfly sleeves and a scooped back.

U.S. District Judge John Keenan set bail at $5 million and refused to detain Marcos, instead ordering her to stay in New York for 72 hours or until the bail package is arranged and approved.

Most of the assets believed held by the Marcoses have been frozen by courts around the world and Keenan said he wanted to ensure the bail money was not obtained through the racketeering scheme alleged in the indictment.

None of the eight other defendants was expected at the hearing but all were subject to arrest under federal warrants.

Iran, Iraq agree to direct talks

GENEVA — U.N. Secretary-General Javier Perez de Cuellar arranged a rare direct meeting between Iran and Iraq in the latest round of talks aimed at bringing a permanent end to the 8-year-old Persian Gulf war.

Perez de Cuellar began mediation at the new round, the third since the outset Aug. 25, in separate sessions Monday with the foreign ministers from both nations. Officials said the two sides were to meet face to face today.

The U.N. chief told reporters he wanted to "propose some new ideas" on ending the impasse and get the two sides to withdraw their forces further apart and agree to the latest possible exchange of the estimated 100,000 prisoners of war.

U.N. officials said Perez de Cuellar was hoping at a minimum to hear initial responses at today's direct meeting between full delegations.

Chinese try to recruit American spy

BEIJING — An employee of the high security communications section at the U.S. Embassy in Beijing has been transferred out of the country after Chinese intelligence agents asked him to spy for them, diplomatic sources said today.

The abortive bid by Chinese intelligence to penetrate the communications section, the embassy's most heavily secured department, was the first espionage-related incident reported in U.S.-China relations since late last year.

Gang kills baby in drive-by shooting

United Press International

LOS ANGELES — Police branded as "cowards" the gang members who opened fire on 10 people leaving a Watts birthday party, killing a 15-month-old boy, and urged anyone who may know the killers to turn them in to authorities.

Nine other partygoers were injured in the "unprovoked and outrageous attack" Sunday night, Deputy Police Chief William Rathburn said Monday.

"I'm outraged by this crime," he said. "It baffles me that anyone thinks they can get away with this kind of crime, and they won't. We urge anyone with information about the cowards who killed this infant to come forward."

The shootings followed another anti-gang sweep by about 200 police officers in South Central Los Angeles Friday and Saturday nights in which 365 people were arrested, including 233 gang members.

The shooting in Watts occurred about 7 p.m. Sunday as a group of people were leaving a birthday party. Police said those at the party were not involved in gangs and the house was on a street not noted for gang activity.

An old Cadillac cruised by the neat blue and beige stucco house and the driver yelled out a gang slogan — "What's up Cuz?"

Steven Williams, 24, said he saw someone in the car point a shotgun out a car window.

"I yelled, 'Everybody duck, he's got a gun, he's got a gun.'"

"I reached out for a kid and brought him down with me," said Williams, who was hit in the back and arm.

The child was Dalayfayette Polk, 15 months, who was hit in the head and died several hours later. His mother, Sheila Williams, 31, Compton, was wounded in the leg.

"Everybody was going home with smiles on our faces, and it just all began to end in a nightmare," said Steven Williams, a security guard, who remained hospitalized at Martin Luther King Jr./Drew Medical Center

South Africa blames Cuba for stalled Namibia talks

United Press International

PRETORIA, South Africa — South Africa blamed Cuba for preventing implementation today of a program leading to independence for Namibia, saying Havana was holding out for a possible Democratic victory in the U.S. presidential elections.

"At this stage not even Superman could get it right to start the process on Nov. 1," a South African Foreign Ministry official said Monday.

South African officials involved in four-nation talks guided by the United States said Cuban negotiators hoping for Michael Dukakis to defeat George Bush in on Nov. 8 have stalled efforts to link Namibia's independence with a pullout of Cuba's 50,000 soldiers from neighboring Angola.

A two-month start-up period needed to set in motion U.N. Security Council Resolution 435 sets the earliest next date to implement the independence plan at Jan. 1, officials said.

In a series of four-way talks in London, Cairo, Geneva and Brazzaville, capital of the Congo, South African negotiators set Nov. 1 as the start of the nine-month Namibian independence process under Resolution 435. The southwest African territory of Namibia is the continent's last colony.

The start-up date was tied to Cuba and Angola formulating a withdrawal timetable for Cuba's troops acceptable to Pretoria. Agreement stalled on conflicting proposals of a two-year program demanded by South Africa and Cuba's 36-month timeframe.

But officials in Pretoria, who asked not to be identified, said Cuba appeared to be holding out for an election win by Dukakis, who promises a cooler U.S. attitude toward South Africa than the Reagan administration has followed.

No definite cause found in Delta crash

United Press International

WASHINGTON — Mystery still surrounds the August crash of a Delta jet that killed 14 people, but a preliminary federal report says the pilots did violate regulations by talking with a flight attendant minutes before takeoff.

The report, released Monday by the National Transportation Safety Board, offered no probable cause for the Aug. 31 crash of Flight 1141 at Dallas-Fort Worth International Airport.

The document included a transcript of the cockpit tape that quotes co-pilot Cary Kirkland as saying the wing flaps on the Boeing 737 were in the proper position for takeoff. But investigators who inspected the plane's wreckage found the flaps, which provide added lift on takeoff, were in the improper, retracted position, raising the possibility that Kirkland erred.

The jet crashed seconds after lifting off from the runway at 9 a.m. Ninety-three people survived the crash, including the three pilots.

While the report drew no definite conclusions about the cause of the accident, the transcript showed that the pilots believed their engines failed when the plane stalled after takeoff.

Alaska, Siberia could become trading partners

United Press International

ANCHORAGE, Alaska — Alaska and parts of the Soviet Far East may begin commercial trade, visa-free travel and joint retail businesses under agreements signed between the local governments, officials said.

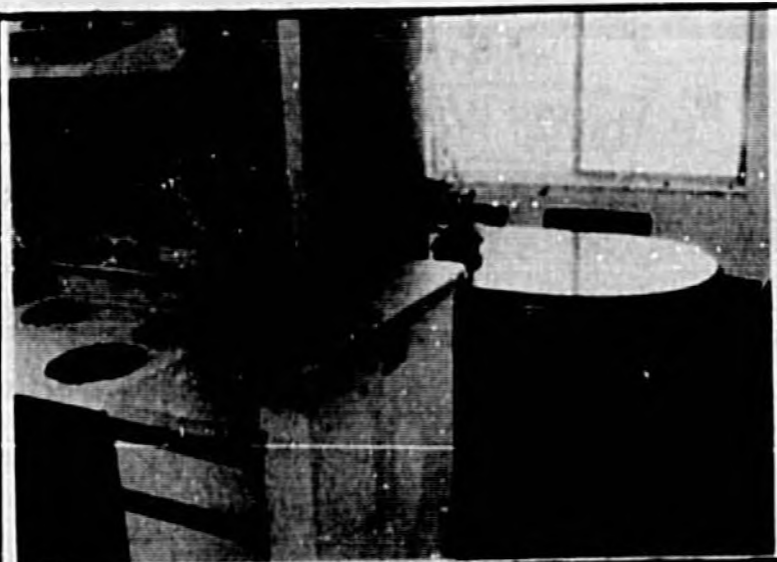

"I see this as very significant," said Gov. Steve Cowper's chief of staff, Garrey Peska, who led an eight-person trade mission to the Soviet Far East Oct. 19-29. "We accomplished more than I expected."

Some of the protocols announced Monday must be sanctioned by U.S. and Soviet federal governments, but if they are, Alaska and far eastern Siberia will join hands across the Bering Sea to become business partners.

Peska said in an interview from the capital in Juneau that "These are not just symbolic pieces of paper. This will implement real trade. We produced twice as much as I thought. Things are happening so fast."

Peska signed what was heralded as the first U.S.-Soviet sister state relationship between Alaska and the Khabarovsk region, but said the real accomplishment was signing protocols paving the way for commercial trade, travel, communication and retail business.

Seminoles keep title hopes alive

Seminole High football has gone through perhaps its most interesting period ever in the past two years.

Last year's team featured an electrifying offensive attack led by senior quarterback Jeff Blake, senior receiver Terrance Eaddy and junior running back Jerod Jones. The defense was also a senior dominated unit which punished many an opponent during the season.

This year's squad has been hampered by injuries and inexperience, but has won two big games and has put itself back in contention in the district.

In 1987, SHS put together its most successful season since the state playoff system was implemented. The 'Noles were 7-3 during the regular season, including a four-game winning streak, claimed the 4A-7 District title and went on to win the region and section playoffs before being raked over the coals by state powerhouse Tallahassee Godby in the state semifinals.

In 1988, Seminole won its first two ballgames behind a fired up defense and the play of senior leader Jerod Jones.

But SHS lost Jones to a knee injury and the defense suddenly went flat. During a four-game losing streak the best thing about Seminole football was the cheerleaders.

But the 'Noles worked hard to get back on track and did so Friday night with a 10-6 upset of previously unbeaten Oviedo. Should Oviedo defeat Edgewater next week, Seminole, Oviedo and Leesburg will have a three-way playoff for the district crown.

In that situation, SHS certainly has the athletes to take it all. If coach Emory Blake gets a shot at the tiebreaker, he will definitely have the 'Noles geared up for a run at the title.

The Fearless Fister Forecast is ready to run for cover after a 5-5 week of prognosticating (not good). The overall record is at 46-27. Here's a look at this week's games:

Seminole at Lyman

Both teams are playing their best football of the season so it should be an interesting match up. Lyman's Greyhounds appear to have the edge in size and should be able to score some points behind a solid offensive line and the running of Cedric

Oviedo at Lake Mary
The Rams, after taking more than their share of abuse, are ready to roll in the last three games of the season. Lake Mary has no chance in the district, but still has a shot in the Seminole Athletic Conference. Oviedo is still reeling after a tough loss to Seminole. Lake Mary by 8

Mainland at Lake Howell
The Silver Hawks are still in the running in District 5A-4 and they must not overlook Mainland if they wish to remain in the race. Although its homecoming, Lake Howell will be able to concentrate on the game enough to dispose of the Buc. Lake Howell by 18

Apopka at Winter Park

It's make or break time for Apopka's Blue Darters. If the Darters defeat Winter Park, they have a shot at winning the district outright. Should Winter Park win, Apopka would have to defeat Evans to set up a three-way tie. Look for Jerry Hunt, Gavin Jones and Derrick Clark to turn in their best efforts as Apopka pulls the upset. Apopka by 3

Deltona competes in 3A-4

By MARK BLYTHE
Herald sports writer

Deltona High School will enter its first district tournament in the school's short history this afternoon at 1 p.m. when it takes on Palatka in the opening round of the District 3A-4 Tournament in Middleburg.

The Lady Wolves enter the tournament on a four game winning streak and will hope to continue their streak and come away with possibly their first district title ever.

Deltona, the tourney's fourth seed, came up with a good draw against Palatka which is 0-8 this season. A win would pit the Lady Wolves against the tournament's top seed, St. Augustine, which is 8-0 this season, at 4 and the winner of that match will play in the finals at 7 in the one-day tournament.

"We came up with a good draw but I'm not sure about New Smyrna Beach being the second seed in this tournament," Deltona coach Jan Stevens said. "We beat New Smyrna twice, but that's the breaks. We just have to go out and play our game and we should do fine."

The Lady Wolves have been playing their game as of late and posted impressive victories over Lyman, New Smyrna and Father Lopez to finish its inaugural season with an 8-8 record.

Deltona has had its nucleus of veteran players come together with Joy Clover, Jennifer Dekoski and Shawna Streetman playing well down the stretch. Dekoski and Streetman have provided the team with a powerful service attack with Streetman and Clover playing strong at the net.

The Lady Wolves younger players finally came together late in the season and have made their team a dark horse contender for the district title.

"We're in a good district," Stevens said. "There's Palatka and then there's Seabreeze and New Smyrna who we've beaten twice this season. I don't want to count my chickens before they're hatched but I think we have an outside shot."

Stevens stressed that here team must play their game to be competitive in the tournament. Stevens feels if her team can stay within themselves they'll be fine.

Dr. Phillips, Oak Ridge favorites in 4A-10

By TONY DeSOMMER
Herald sports writer

In a district where there's not a clearcut favorite, things could get interesting.

Unfortunately, the eight high school volleyball teams that make up 4A-District 10 will be split up into two groups, one playing at Dr. Phillips and the other at Oak Ridge, depriving net fans of seeing all the first round matches.

Included in this gang of eight are the co-district leaders, Dr. Phillips and Oak Ridge, both with 13-1 records in district play and wins against the other. A coin toss, won by Dr. Phillips, decided the tournament top-seed and the first round opponent of eight-seeded Apopka (3-8 in the district).

By losing the coin toss, Oak Ridge will play No. 7 Boone. Ironically, Boone finished tied with West Orange at 4-10 and lost its coin toss to earn the seventh-seed spot.

Both Dr. Phillips and Oak Ridge will play on their home courts at 7 p.m.

The other first round matches, both of which are scheduled to start at 6 p.m., will match No. 3 Evans (8-6) against No. 6 West Orange (not Oak Ridge) and No. 4 Winter Park (6-8) against No. 5 Colonial (5-9) at Dr. Phillips.

According to Evans' first-year coach

Patty Gore, competition within the district has been tight all year. The defending Metro Conference and district champs, Evans lost both its matches to Dr. Phillips (one in three games) and split with Oak Ridge.

"It's been interesting, especially with us being the past conference and district champs and losing a lot of players," said Gore of her initial season leading the Evans varsity (she was the junior varsity coach last year). "It's been pretty even."

"I don't know what Dr. Phillips does to us. The last time, we took them to three games. But I don't think we played that well against them. We didn't hit at all and you have to hit the ball to beat Dr.

Phillips."

Evans had a little more success against Oak Ridge, winning its first match against the school and taking the first game of the second match before losing in three games.

"Oak Ridge has a lot of returning seniors and we're relatively young," said Gore. "We have only three returning seniors from last year's team. The rest of the team is from last year's junior varsity team (which lost only one game enroute to winning its conference championship)."

The semifinals and finals will be played at Dr. Phillips on Thursday night.

LSU starts new season for Tide

United Press International

TUSCALOOSA, Ala. — Alabama head football Coach Bill Curry says the Tide's opponent this Saturday — the LSU Tigers — will be the best team Alabama has faced this year.

"LSU is a whole brand new dimension to our team," Curry said Monday. "Last week we began with the opinion that this is, whatever it takes to beat Mississippi State, we have to do it."

Curry's lucky that No. 16 Alabama's sputtering offense showed up against Mississippi State, which scored 34 points Saturday. Alabama scored 56 points but the 34 points scored on the defense would have beaten Alabama any other time this year.

Saturday's game is scheduled for 1:42 p.m. CST in Tuscaloosa. The two last met in Tuscaloosa in 1980.

"Well this is it again, whatever it takes to beat LSU, we've got to do it," Curry said.

Alabama is now 7-1 overall and 4-1 in the Southeastern Conference for a four-way tie with Auburn, Georgia and LSU, which 5-2 overall after losses to Ohio State and Auburn.

A loss probably will knock the loser out of the SEC hunt. After LSU, Alabama has to play conference foe Auburn and non-conference Southwestern Louisiana and Texas A&M. No. 15 LSU has conference foe Mississippi State and non-conference powerhouse Miami and arch-rival Tulane.

Curry noted that Alabama beat LSU 22-10 last year but the Tigers didn't have the services of injured quarterback Tommy Hodson until it was too late.

"This time we've got to play them with Tommy Hodson, and it's a different deal," Curry said. "We were very fortunate and lucky a year ago. We won't have that good fortune this time. We're going to have to do it more on merit."

He said Alabama is going to have to penetrate LSU's defense.

"That has been the single most consistent aspect of its play this year, with only one notable exception," he said, referring to the last-minute loss to Ohio State Sept. 24.

"They have speed in the secondary, it's tough to get anything on them."

RIGGINS TOP DEFENDER

AUBURN, Ala. — In a defensive struggle more in tune with the 1950s than the 1980s, it was only fitting that the biggest gain was made by a linebacker.

With Auburn holding a slim 6-0 lead early in the fourth quarter against Florida Saturday at Florida Field, Tiger linebacker Quentin Riggins made the biggest play of the game when he picked off a Kyle Morris pass and returned it 33 yards to the Gator 9.

Two plays later, Stacy Danley swept left on a misdirection play and raced untouched into the end zone to give Auburn a 13-0 lead to put the game on ice.

Riggins, who finished with nine tackles, three for losses, led an Auburn defense that allowed only 116 total yards, 13 on the ground, in recording its third straight shutout.

For his play, the junior from Montgomery was named Southeastern Player of the Week Monday by United Press International.

"That interception changed the game," Riggins said. "It didn't win the game, but it changed it. That took away the doubt."

Auburn Coach Pat Dye said Riggins was one of several standouts on defense for the Tigers, whose job was made easier by the fact that Gator tailback Ermitt Smith remained on the sideline with an injured knee.

"It was a great team effort," Dye said. "A lot of times, especially when you play a team like Florida, it has to do with the matchups. Our defense was a mismatch for their offense."

Auburn leads the nation in points allowed with only 51 in eight games. The last touchdown scored against Auburn came in the final two minutes of a 7-6 loss to LSU Oct. 5.

While some Auburn players admitted a feeling of deja vu after taking a 6-0 lead early in the fourth quarter, Riggins said he had no doubts that the Tigers had enough points to win.

"When we were up 30, we felt like we were going to win," Riggins said. "That's not a conceited point of view. That's a convinced point of view."

Deltona tops Father Lopez

DAYTONA — Deltona High School's Lady Wolves came up with their fourth consecutive victory by downing Father Lopez, 15-7, 15-13, Monday night in prep volleyball action at Father Lopez High School.

Deltona improved to 8-8 overall and will return to action in the district tournament today against Palatka at Middleburg.

"We've been playing real well as of late and we got to play everyone tonight," Deltona coach Jan Stevens said. "We used two lineups today and we're looking real good for districts. We open against Palatka which is a good draw for us."

Deltona, in its first year of existence, will get its first taste of district action today when it takes on Palatka at 1. Stevens is looking for the play of Joy Clover, Shawna Streetman and Jennifer Dekoski to pace the Lady Wolves in the tournament.

Green meets NY press

United Press International

NEW YORK — A young pitching staff blended with veterans — including star Don Mattingly — likely will form the core of next year's New York Yankees.

"We want to get young arms and teach them how to throw properly," said Green, meeting New York reporters for the first time since being named Yankees manager Oct. 7. "The trade of Jack Clark to the San Diego Padres Oct. 24 was a step in the right direction. Lance McCullers and Jimmy Jones have fine young arms."

"Just because a guy makes $400,000 doesn't mean he should pitch in front of a guy who makes $60,000. If the guy making less money is a better pitcher."

Mattingly, a former American League MVP and batting champion hit 311 with 18 homers and 88 RBI for the fifth-place Yankees after guaranteeing a pennant. The first baseman angered owner George Steinbrenner by claiming New York players "get no respect" from management.

"I've spoken to Donnie and he's heard the (trade) rumors," Green said. "I tried to convince him that we were not shopping Don Mattingly and nobody was bowing us over with offers. But he has to understand that's part of the game. Having not repeated since 1978, there really can be no untouchables on our baseball team."

Green, 54, is a one-time pitcher who joins the Yankees after 33 years in the National League. He managed the Philadelphia Phillies to the 1980 championship — the franchise's first in 97 years.

"On pitcher Dave Righetti: 'I want to talk to Dave to find out how his arm felt when he was pitching well and how it felt when he was pitching poorly. He's gonna be part of the pitching staff and will throw well whether he's a starter or reliever.'"

Green, who replaces Lou Piniella, said he has no illusions about working with Steinbrenner.

"George Steinbrenner is no worse than anybody else in the game," he said. "And he's better than a lot of people because of his sincere desire to put everything aside and win." Green stressed the need for discipline and unity.

Surgery may help a toe deformity

DEAR DR. GOTT: Our daughter has crooked second toes. The doctor said it was because she was born breech. Now she's 4, the toes are getting worse and the doctor says nothing can be done. Is he correct?

DEAR READER: Whether your daughter's toe deformities are due to a congenital malformation or to the breech delivery, she can be helped. Ask your doctor to refer her to a pediatric orthopedic specialist who can advise you about corrective surgery.

DEAR DR. GOTT: Since I was a child I've had painful stomachaches every few months. My food does not digest or pass out of my stomach. The only way to clear it up is to regurgitate everything. At one point, my cousin gave me a muscle relaxant he was taking for his colon, and I had relief in 30 minutes. Should I see a doctor?

DEAR READER: The sequence you describe suggests that you are suffering from a periodic partial intestinal obstruction. This may be due to muscle spasms in the stomach or small intestine. Such an ailment can be successfully treated under medical supervision.

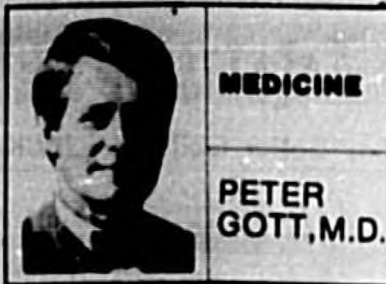

I think that you should see a doctor because the exact nature of your problem should be clarified. Also, the medicine used for this type of muscle spasm is available only by prescription. I do not believe that you are safe taking your cousin's medicine. Despite the initial benefits, it may not be right for you.

DEAR DR. GOTT: Moments after my son's birth his respirations accelerated to an alarming rate. He was diagnosed with Group B strep and developed pneumonia. He recovered and the doctor says he will have no lasting effects, but he's only 18 months old and has had bronchitis three times. What happened to him?

DEAR READER: Infections — even with strep — are common

In newborns. Your child was treated appropriately; I doubt that he will have any long-term consequences of his pneumonia.

However, you will want to have him checked regularly by his pediatrician, who will be able to advise you about preventing future health problems. Children

WIN AT BRIDGE

By James Jacoby
Los Angeles expert Billy Eisenberg has been a worthy adjunct to recent international competitions of the World Bridge Federation, serving as commentator for the public presentations of the world-class events. He is certainly no shrinking violet when it comes to bidding or play, as attested by today's deal.

Billy sat South and opened with one club. When West bid four hearts and the auction returned to South, he bid four spades — a reasonable choice. But now when North bid five clubs, Billy went on to six, gambling that his partner held the right four or five high-card points to make slam a good risk.

He ruffled the second heart and drew trumps, noting that West followed to three rounds of trumps. With 10 cards in hearts and clubs, West had three remaining cards. That made it likely that East held five spades to the K-10. Knowing that and taking advantage of it were two different things, since there were not enough entries to dummy to lead through East as many times as declarer wished. Still, Billy led the queen of diamonds and overtook with the king in dummy. He then led the jack of spades, covered by the king and ace. Now came the crucial play — he cashed his last trump, letting a low spade go from dummy, because East had to keep all his diamonds, he was forced to lead another spade go. Billy now played ace and a diamond to dummy and took a spade finesse against the 10 in the East hand. When his queen then dropped East's 10, he had 12 tricks.
