

Demos Slow To Switch

By TOM RALM
Associated Press Writer
TALLAHASSEE, Fla. (AP)—State GOP Chairman L. E. "Tommy" Thomas says he isn't disappointed "Operation Switchover" has only netted a few big-name Democrats thus far.

"We're not just looking for chiefs, we're looking for Indians, too," he said.

Thomas said the list of Democrats switching parties was shorter than first predicted because some changed their minds at the last minute.

"There were a couple of very prominent Democrats who were sure were going to switch, and after talking with the governor and others they decided not to switch," he said.

Gov. Reubin Askew denied he made any concerted effort to dissuade Democrats from reregistering Republican. But he acknowledged that he had discussed the subject with at least two Democrats who were reportedly considering a switch.

Tampa Mayor Dick Greco and Palm Beach Elections Supervisor Horace Beasley.

Greco, active in Democrats for Nixon, said reports he was planning to switch were unfounded. Askew related.

The governor said he had urged Beasley not to switch parties "until such time as we had a chance to visit. I don't believe that I talked him out of doing it."

Beasley said both Askew and state Democratic Party Chairman Joe Moyle called him Monday asking him to not switch parties during Vice President Spiro T. Agnew's visit to Tallahassee on Tuesday.

"They said they didn't want to see me leave the party," said the Palm Beach County official. "But I never said for sure I would switch. I only said I was thinking about it. I still must, but there's no rush."

During Agnew's visit to kick off "Operation Switchover," Republicans announced Senate President Jerry Thomas and 11 other Florida Democrats had reregistered.

Could Save Policemen's Lives

Agencies Testing Small Patrol Car Computer Terminal

By JAMES F. DONOHUE
Associated Press Writer
BOSTON (AP)—Every cop has a story about another cop who has been slain in the most innocent of circumstances—giving a traffic ticket or checking a car registration.

Now several law enforcement agencies in the U.S. are testing computerized communications equipment they hope will save policemen's lives by letting them know when they are dealing with a potential killer, even in innocent circumstances.

Four law enforcement agencies are testing a particular computer terminal manufactured by Kustom Electronics, Inc. of Chanute, Kan., a terminal small enough and safe enough to be mounted in the front seat of a patrol car.

The principle idea behind these tests is to save the lives of the police officers," said Chief

William J. Bennett of the Palm Beach County Sheriff's Office. Bennett, who attended a recent demonstration of the equipment in Boston at a convention of the Association of Police-Safety Communications Officers (APSCO), said in an interview the terminals will put patrol officers in direct contact with a national network of computer data banks.

"Law enforcement agencies have spent billions of dollars gathering data on crime and criminals and putting it into a series of computers," Bennett said.

"This data is in the National Crime Information Center (NCIC) in Washington and in state, county and municipal computers throughout the land," Bennett said.

"The problem is that, in a system based on voice communications, the information stored in these computers seldom is able to trickle down to the police officer on the road," he said.

Bennett said the terminal allows the patrol officer, by typing on his car's terminal, to make an inquiry directly to the NCIC computer in Washington or to other computers and get an answer back on his screen in about eight seconds.

"Under the present system of voice communications," Bennett said, "the patrol officer asks his dispatcher to query the various computers by teletype, and then he waits about 90 seconds on the average for a reply."

"A patrol officer in the city of Palm Beach in Palm Beach County was killed recently, waiting that way," Bennett said.

"He stopped a car for a traffic violation and asked the dispatcher to check the registration through the computers. While he waited, the traffic offender came back to the patrol car, showed his license, pulled out a gun and shot the officer to death."

"The vehicle was wanted in an armed robbery of a gas station," Bennett said. "If the officer had known that, he would have been more cautious and he may have saved his life."

Bennett said the FBI's Uniform Crime Report, issued in August, showed 126 police officers killed in the line of duty in 1971, up from 106 killed in 1970.

"The tragedy of these figures," he said, "is that a majority of these lives could have been saved if law enforcement communications were not so very archaic and slow."

"The FBI reports on crime show clearly the police law enforcement agencies are paying for our present slow, archaic system of voice communications," he said. "The price is human life."

He said it is hoped the equipment eventually will eliminate all voice transmission from police radio frequencies except "the cry for help."

"When radios were first put in patrol cars, they were there primarily so the officer in trouble could cry for help," he said.

"Now the police radio frequencies have become so crowded with transmissions—dispatching, inquiries, instructions—that the emergency cry for help sometimes has a tough time getting through," he said.

Bennett said computerized communications will give our officers higher accuracy records since they will be able to check everything through the terminals.

"There has always been the feeling on the part of many police officers that if an inquiry was not important, they would not make it, in order to save air time for their fellow officers in emergency situations," he said.

"The result is that as you put more officers on the road to check crime, the officers make fewer inquiries. And they become less efficient."

Agnew To Light-Up U.S. Holiday Tree

By DONALD SANDERS
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP)—Something of a flap over the ornament which crowns the national Christmas tree near the White House has fallen short of its goal of replacing the atomic symbol of peace with a more traditional star.

When Vice President Spiro T. Agnew presses a button to light the tree at dusk Friday, the ornament will be a spherical decoration made up of four circles lighted with 120 bulbs and, in its center, a brighter bulb of 500 watts.

John T. Suter, an architect and designer for the General Electric Co. who designed the lighting for the 76-foot tree, has said the outer rings symbolize the many peoples of the world and the inner light stands for the large glow of hope for peace.

In an editorial last Friday, the Alexandria (Va.) Gazette urged that the ornament be replaced by some more traditional version of a star.

"By unleashing Suter's imagination," the Gazette editorial said, "GE is able to present to the American public a Yuletide ornament that mocks all that is historically sacred to Christmas—the act constitutes a blatant sacrifice to those Americans who respect the sanctity of Christmas and refuse to idolize the awesome energy and power of the atom."

The editorial suggested that readers call the National Park Service in a "mass protest" to restore the Christmas star to that tree.

Arthur J. Lamb, director of special events for the Park Service, told a reporter his office talked to an estimated 35 to 40 callers, most of whom dropped their objections when told there has not been a traditional star on top of the tree since 1964.

The crowning ornaments, he said, have included representations of ice cream cones, teardrops, snowflakes and pointed objects with flowers. He said there is no plan to change the atomic symbol, which resembles the path of electrons around a nucleus.

The tree, in the Ellipse park adjacent to the White House lawn, is the focus of the annual pageant of peace, a series of songfests and other events running through the holiday season.

Since 1966 GE has designed and furnished the lighting for the tree. This year there are about 8,000 lights on the main tree, a 76-foot Englemann spruce from Wyoming, and 8,000 more on smaller trees representing the states and territories.

Fight For Life Truman Is Setback

By F. RICHARD CICCONE
Associated Press Writer
KANSAS CITY (AP)—Harry S. Truman has lost some ground in his fight for life and his daughter says each setback is taking a toll on the former president's weakened heart.

The 83-year-old Truman remained in serious condition today at Research Hospital and Medical Center where he was admitted nine days ago suffering from lung congestion.

Dr. Wallace Graham, Truman's personal physician, reported Wednesday afternoon that Truman was "weaker, and he is beginning to show signs of renal impairment and early pulmonary fluid collection."

Later Wednesday, Graham said, "his weakness and lessened responsiveness remain the same as noted earlier."

Margaret Truman Daniel, the 33rd president's daughter, talked with newsmen Wednesday and said she was less optimistic than earlier in the week.

"We still are up above what we were when I arrived," she said.

Mrs. Daniel arrived Dec. 6 when Truman was listed as critical after heart and kidney problems developed. He remained critical until Sunday when he rallied and his condition was graded as serious.

Doctors said Truman could "fluctuate within the serious category for some time."

At 10 p. m. EST Wednesday, Truman's pulse was 90, his blood pressure 136-70 and his temperature 101. Pulse and blood pressure were reported within his normal limits.

"I think he's better than last week," Mrs. Daniel said. "It's a question of strength, I think he's not losing that much strength but he's not gaining as much as we would like. Every little bit takes a toll."

Alcoholic Parents Are Problems To Their Children

By JURATE KAZIKAS
Associated Press Writer
MOUNT KISCO, N.Y. (AP)—"My mother drinks all night and sleeps all day. She knows she has a problem but just won't do anything for herself. I thought by coming here I could help her."

Janet, with long blonde hair framing her round, freckled face, knew that the 12 teenagers grouped around her understood. Each one of them had a parent who is an alcoholic.

"But you can't help her. She'll have to hit bottom and find her own way," said Linda, twisting her school ring around her nail-bitten finger. "This meeting is for us. We have to learn about the disease of alcohol and learn about ourselves."

The teen-agers belonged to a group called Alateen, the youth counterpart of Al-Anon, the organization of family and friends of an alcoholic, which works closely with Alcoholics Anonymous. More than 1,000 Alateen groups in the United States and Canada have been meeting since Alateen's inception in 1957.

The AA estimates there are about nine million alcoholics in the country, whose problems affect more than 45 million family members, including children.

In this suburban New York town, an Alateen group has been meeting for two years. "This is our home away from home."

The Alateen groups start off their meetings with the AA's serenity prayer—"God grant me the serenity to accept the things I cannot change, courage to change the things I can, and wisdom to know the difference." They follow the 12 steps of the AA as they apply to them, and close with the Lord's Prayer said with joined hands.

Besides the 12 steps of AA, Alateen has its own set of do's and don'ts and slogans, many spiritual in tone, that it encourages its members to follow.

Kids are advised to learn about alcoholism as a family disease, to be honest and forgiving of themselves and others, and to confide in other members of Alateen. The kids often exchange phone numbers for help in a panic situation.

Children of alcoholics are cautioned not to argue with an active alcoholic or throw out his liquor or criticize the sick person, and not to expect things to get better overnight.

The Alateen slogans, often repeated during a night's meeting are, Live and let live. First things first. Think Easy does it. Let go and let God. One day at a time. Listen and learn.

Some nights the kids talk around a theme — violence, fear, serenity. There's a strict rule that the kids must not talk about their parents, but some of them do talk about anything else. There were stories of drunken beatings, nighttime shouting matches, the hostility the kids felt and, most of all, their feelings of loneliness, rejection and despondency.

"I could never talk to my mother about my problems because she was drunk in bed all day," said Barbara. "Some parents deride their children for attending the meetings. 'My father used to say, 'When are you going to that idiot drunk's meeting,' but I went anyway," said one girl. "I needed it for myself."

One girl said she left AA literature lying around the house, hoping her father would take the hint. He did, as many do. Even though these youngsters have lived with alcoholism as daily problem, many said they do drink themselves, even though they often worry that alcoholism might be hereditary. And most still cannot understand why their parent's drinking problem began in the first place.

"I see now that I have to reach out to him and meet him more than half way."

To 25 Per Cent U.S. Funding Of UN Cut

By WILLIAM N. OATIS
Associated Press Writer
UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP)—After a hard fight in the U.N. General Assembly, the United States today had the world organization's promise that it won't have to pay more than 25 per cent of the regular U.N. budget in a year or two.

The assembly brushed aside last-ditch Soviet opposition and voted 81-27 late Wednesday to place a 25 per cent ceiling "as soon as practicable" on annual individual assessments levied against the member nations. The United States now pays 31.25 per cent of the total.

"You can't compel a great power to pay if it doesn't want to pay," Jamil Baroody of Saudi Arabia told the assembly. "If you can't get what you want, settle for what you can get."

The United States fared better earlier in the budgetary committee. The committee approved the resolution on Dec. 1 by a vote of 67-30 with 22 abstentions. But 14 countries that obtained or were absent in the committee voting sided with the United States in the assembly.

The United States is paying almost $64 million of the $203 million U.N. budget this year. It would have paid about $13 million less at the 25 per cent rate. The soonest it can get that rate is 1974, when a new assessment scale for all members will go into effect.

Sen. Gale McGee, a Wyoming Democrat on the U.S. delegation, told the assembly its decision would "strengthen the United Nations." On behalf of President Nixon and as a member of the loyal opposition, he expressed "deep appreciation for what this body has done today for the United Nations."

Congress had voted to appropriate no more than a 25 per cent assessment in 1974 no matter what the assembly might do, but McGee said no national legislature could determine U.N. assessments, all it could do was "vote whether to default or not."

A 25 per cent ceiling has been a stated American objective since 1946. The 1970 Henry Cabot Lodge Commission on the United Nations revived the idea, and congressmen angered by the ouster of Nationalist China seized on it.

U.S. diplomats pushed the proposal at the United Nations in Washington and abroad. They argued that the world organization should not be overly dependent on any one country. They promised if they got the cut, the United States would continue to make big voluntary contributions to the extra-budgetary U.N. economic and social programs.

Vegetable Thefts Organic Food Fads Are Blamed

GAINESVILLE, Fla. (AP) — Parsley pilferers, cabbage collectors and Swiss chard chompers are stealing ornamental vegetables from University of Florida flower beds and the groundskeeper blames the harvest on the organic food fad.

"No doubt about it," said Noel Lake, the university's landscape and groundskeeping superintendent. "Several years ago we had ornamental herb and vegetable plants scattered all around this campus and nobody noticed it. Then six weeks ago we planted vegetables we had grown from seed in our greenhouses," he said. "Three weeks later I inspected the flower bed and found bare spots. The health food kick is undoubtedly responsible for the increased interest in our landscaping."

Lake said the flowering cabbage and Swiss chard plants are in a 10-by-50 foot plot behind Tiger Hall, the administration building on the 23,000-student campus.

"However, we've used parsley for a long time as an edging plant," he said. "It's located in several flower beds on campus."

The ornamental herb and vegetable plants scattered all around this campus and nobody noticed it. Then six weeks ago we planted sage, rosemary, and thyme as well as a few strawberry plants a farmer gave him.

"Right after we planted the latest batch of cabbage, parsley and Swiss chard we inspected them and found some had been damaged by worms," he said. "We dusted them with insecticide ... but our next problem was to get rid of the two-legged animals who liked to eat the vegetables, too."

Lake said he knew of no penalty for the health food holdups and wasn't too upset about them. "The whole thing has gotten to be sort of a joke around here," he said. "In fact, I've even kidded some of the administrators who complain they're underpaid."

"Now every time they start griping about their paychecks I tell them that even though we can't guarantee a chicken in every pot we might be able to swing a little parsley for every plate," he said.

Motorized Cars; Handicapped Aid

By EARLE JOSIAH
Associated Press Writer
MIAMI BEACH, Fla. (AP)—Electrically powered arms, motorized wheelchairs and simplified controls that will enable the severely handicapped to drive a vehicle or make a phone call should be available by next year, a Veterans Administration official says.

"The development of the new devices is to enrich the lives of patients who might otherwise live out their days without being able to do anything for themselves," said Dr. Robert E. Stewart, director of VA's Prosthetics and Sensory Aids Service.

"Cost of the equipment will be reasonable," a VA spokesman said. For instance, an electrically powered wheel chair would sell for $100 over the average $800 price and an electric limb could be bought for about $650.

He said the new devices and controls permit the severely paralyzed person to cope more independently with his environment and give him added powers of "mobility, communication, recreation and self-care activities."

Most of the veterans using the new devices expressed delight with their new found independence.

"This is a whole new world," said Collins. "Now I can move about freely."

quadruplegics who sustained paralysis of both arms and legs were essentially bed-bound and completely dependent on others for such activities as eating, drinking, moving, writing, reading and recreation."

The new hardware will be introduced to patients at a half-dozen VA centers dealing specifically with victims of spinal cord injury and may be on the commercial market within a year, Stewart said.

Asylum Granted Haitians

By JOHN MUELLER
Associated Press Writer
MIAMI (AP)—U.S. Immigration officials have granted temporary asylum to 65 Haitian nationals who landed in a leaky sailboat on a Florida beach earlier this week.

Authorities said the refugees could stay in the United States until March 12 amid reports that their story of sailing 19 days to the United States with stops in Cuba and Bimini was being questioned.

The 65 were "paroled" to the care of an interdenominational church relief organization, which put them in a downtown hotel, while immigration authorities investigated the case.

"They may have been living in the Bahamas," said Victor Baboun, Haitian consul in Miami. "I think they just want to stay here in the United States and they didn't think they could get a visa."

Asked about published reports raising doubts about his story, Yvon Bruno, self-proclaimed leader of the group, repeated his statement that he and two others escaped a Haitian prison Oct. 18 and that the group left the country Nov. 23 after commandeering a boat.

"The boat seems too fragile to carry them across all the way from Haiti to Miami," said Leo Joseph, a Haitian exile leader in New York. "And I doubt very much their story of a jail-break."

Police officials in Bimini said Wednesday the sailboat did come ashore there for supplies on Monday and then left later in the day. They said the captain told them the same story of coming from Haiti by way of Cuba but they had no way of telling if it were true.

Baboun and Joseph said they had not heard of any reports of a jail escape in Haiti.

When told of these reports, Bruno reiterated his story and added that he had been jailed in Haiti three times on charges of conspiracy.

"Haiti is a slaughterhouse," he said. "For it to be better the American government has to step in and do something."

Bruno, who said he was a heavy equipment operator in Haiti, said he didn't know what the group would do now that they have been granted the temporary shelter.

"We cannot go back," he said. "I don't know what to tell them to do."

Earlier in the evening he helped the refugees check into a 45-year-old downtown hotel that served as a temporary home for Cuban refugees during the first Freedom Flight in 1965. The Church World Service is paying $5 nightly per person to the hotel for the lodging, the hotel manager said. Project director for the church group, David Ortiz, said his organization would be paying out nearly $1,000 a day to house and feed the refugees.

Immigration officials had taken the group into custody Tuesday and brought them from from Pompano Beach, where they landed, to Miami International Airport, where they were questioned.

Apollo 17; End Of A Space Series

It was the saddest chapter in the Apollo story and a grim time for North American officials directing work on the command module. The tragedy touched off a high-echelon shakeup at North American. It brought about, however, a drive to restrict work on the spacecraft, use fire-resistant materials and lessen the hazard of a blaze by changing the mixture of gases which make up the command module's atmosphere inside the astronaut cabin.

North American came through after long and tortuous months. Subsequent Apollo command modules became as SATURATED COVERAGE WITH THE Herald Bargain Section

Don McNeill Is Speaker At Gala Deltona Party

Members of the press, representing the news media throughout the country, and many residents, who aided in the growth of Deltona, were guests of the Deltona Corporation Thursday night at a gala cocktail party and dinner. Special guest was Don McNeill (Chicago Breakfast Club fame) and his charming wife, Kay. The affair was held in the Community Center with about 150 persons present, 60 of whom were reporters from newspapers and TV Stations in the U. S. A. and Canada.

Sanford Herald was represented by Publisher and Mrs. Walter A. Gielow, Associate Editor and Mrs. John A. Spolski, and Deltona correspondent Fannette Edwards and photographer, Charles Edwards. It was an enjoyable affair, especially when William Prentiss, vice-president in charge of public relations for the Deltona Corp. served as Master of Ceremonies and had something amusing to say about all the press representatives present. Another prominent guest was Mrs. Everett M. Dirksen, of DeKalb, widow of the Illinois Senator featured in Sunday's Herald.

Among those also present, were: Charles McCarthy, general manager of the Mackle Bros., Deltona Corporation, and Mrs. McCarthy; Gaston Bridges, vice-president in charge of sales of the Deltona Corp. and Mrs. Bridges; F. M. Ford, who sold his 15,000 acres of virgin land to the Mackle Bros. in 1962; Dewey Boster, president of Deltona Civic Association; and Mrs. Boster. Fannette was happy to see James Sloan, of the Chicago Tribune, because that is where she got her start in Journalism. They talked about old times and the people they worked with on the paper.

Don McNeill was called upon after dinner as guest speaker of the evening. He took the audience 10 years when he and several others had purchased their first lots in Deltona, then a wooded virgin territory and how much fun it was trying to decide the location of those lots. He gave Mackle Bros. all the credit they so rightfully deserve for creating the most modern, most suitable and satisfactory place for people to live, especially those who have retired and want a quiet, yet growing settlement in which to live the remainder of their lives.

Crackdown Is Urged By Nader On DES Pill

By JOHN STOWELL, Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP)—Fearful of a "possible second cancer epidemic" from the controversial drug DES, Ralph Nader is urging the Food and Drug Administration to crack down on its use as a morning-after birth-control pill.

The consumer advocate's Health Research Group issued an eight-page report Monday charging that university health clinics are handing out diethylstilbestrol—DES—without warning coats that they and their possible offspring are being exposed to a risk of cancer.

"It is clear that widespread and totally uncontrolled use of DES as a morning-after pill is a serious problem with possibly heavy, although unknown, consequences for the public health," the report said. "The drug industry, the FDA and the doctors must act to prevent this abuse."

The deputy director of FDA's Bureau of Drugs, Dr. Marion Finkel, said the agency hopes to resolve the problem within a few weeks.

The FDA's National Drug Advisory Committee has concluded tentatively that DES effectively prevents pregnancy within 72 hours after intercourse, she said.

"What we don't know is certain safety problems and the degree of efficacy," she added.

Drug companies, she said, have not responded to FDA appeals for further research so "I think we're going to have to come to a decision without the help of manufacturers."

DES, a synthetic hormone, has been linked to vaginal cancer in about 100 women whose mothers took it during the 1940s and 1950s to avoid miscarriage. It since has been judged ineffective for that use, and now is prescribed most often for post-menopausal complications.

The Nader group said the unapproved use of DES as a post-coital contraceptive "has apparently been going on uncurbed for a number of years."

The report mentioned specifically the University of Michigan, which has treated more than 1,000 young women with DES, and the University of Pennsylvania, which has FDA approval for its use in treating rape victims. Medical officials at the Pennsylvania and Michigan schools discounted the warnings.

"I've not seen anything yet in medical literature that anything has happened to the mothers" who used DES, said Dr. Paul F. Schrode, director of student health services at the University of Pennsylvania.

The only reported risk, he said, has been to children born to mothers taking DES. "Happily, most girls who get the morning-after pill would not go on to pregnancy."

WORLD OF WORK Health May Determine Benefits Eligibility

By SECRETARY OF LABOR JAMES D. HODGSON

L. R. of Trenton, N. J., writes: I'm 53 years old and have worked all my life. A few years ago I developed arthritis and the doctor suggested I move to a warm climate. I would like to know if I will be eligible for unemployment insurance if I am out of work for a while.

Dear D. L.: Last summer President Nixon signed an amendment to the Equal Pay Act which extends the law's protection to previously exempt executive, administrative, professional employees and outside sales people. These employees must work for companies or institutions now covered by the Federal Wage and Hour Law. For the first time, an estimated 15 million persons in these types of jobs will be protected from sex-based wage discrimination.

M. S. of Corvallis, Ore., writes: Could you please tell me how unemployment statistics are compiled and how accurate the figures are? Dear M. S.: The Bureau of Census surveys the unemployment situation for the Bureau of Labor Statistics. They define unemployed persons as all persons who did not work during the survey week, who made specific efforts to find a job during the previous four weeks and who were available for work during the survey week. About 500,000 households are surveyed. Since the estimates are based on a sample, they give the relatively large size of the sample, the data derived from it are subject to relatively small errors. For example, the chances are 90 out of 100 that the over-all number of unemployed—currently close to five million persons—is accurate within plus or minus 150,000.

Editor's note: If you have a question regarding job training and placement, labor-management relations, job health and safety, equal employment opportunity, wages and hours, employment prices and earnings and other matters involving the U.S. Department of Labor, send it to: Secretary of Labor James D. Hodgson, U.S. Department of Labor, Washington, D.C. 20210

Dear D. J.: The Age Discrimination in Employment Act prohibits employers of 25 or more employees from discharging workers aged 40 to 65 because of their age. However, if the employee you mention participates in a retirement plan which states that he must retire after a certain number of years, such as 30 years, but he is not yet age 65, his discharge may not be in violation of the Act. Check with the nearest office of the Labor Department's Wage and Hour Division to be sure. It's listed in the telephone directory under U.S. Government.

Union Defends Students

BELLE GLADE, Fla. (AP)—Cesar Chavez' United Farm Workers Union, accusing Palm Beach County deputies of "harassment," has jumped to the defense of a migrant organizer and two students arrested at a sugarcane labor camp.

The three teen-agers were leaving Sugar Cane Growers Cooperative Camp No. 2 after a visit with friends Sunday night when they were taken into custody at the front gate and charged with trespassing, a union spokesman said. He added, "This is simply another case of harassment."

The three were released Monday on their own recognizance after a requirement of $50 bond each was dropped, the sheriff's office reported today.

Sheriff's deputies said the trio balked when a supervisor ordered them out of a barracks where foreign cane cutters have been living.

Miss Bessie Long observed her 91st birthday Dec. 5 at the Lakeview Nursing Home, where she is a resident. Two friends, Mrs. James G. Lee and Mrs. William E. Bristol, arranged a surprise party for her. Following the regular luncheon at the nursing home, several friends began arriving with gifts and the two hostesses served ice cream and cake.

Miss Long was born Dec. 5, 1881, in Plymouth, N. C., and moved to Sanford when she was 12 years old. She has lived at 410 Oak Ave. since 1899 until she became a resident of Lakeview in April, 1972.

She was very active in the Presbyterian Church in younger days when she played the organ and sang in the choir. Many friends called to wish her happy returns of the day.

Mrs. V.M. Smith Hosts Garden Club Yule Fete

Members of Geneva Garden Club met on Wednesday, Dec. 6, at the home of Mrs. V. M. Smith. The Smith home was ablaze with many brilliant Christmas ornaments and glowing candles.

A very short business meeting was conducted and then the annual Christmas program (now a tradition) was begun with a devotion by Mrs. Lloyd Hampton who read the story of the Christ Child's birth.

Each member related her most memorable Christmas day and reminisced briefly after which Mrs. Edward C. Putnam read aloud to the group about the commencement of Christmas cards, Christmas trees and the legend of the holly.

In lieu of the annual exchange of gifts, each member gave monetary gifts to benefit the Boy Scouts and Brownies in the Geneva area.

The refreshments table was overlaid with a bright red cloth which was topped with a lavishly embroidered nylon cloth. Centering the table was a triple-branched antique sterling silver candelabra which held an epergne arrangement of tall red candles and deep red velvet grapes. Crisp fern fronds were used to highlight the centerpiece.

An assortment of open-faced and finger sandwiches, miniature fruit cakes, Christmas cookies, brownies, nuts, cream mints, coffee and Russian tea were served to all in attendance.

Hostesses were Mrs. Smith, Mrs. Donald Dunn, Sr., and Mrs. Edward C. Putnam.
