Israel May Consider Trade

Hijackers Renew Demands, Threaten Other U.S. Sites

BEIRUT, Lebanon (UPI) — Moslem militia leader Nabih Berri, chief negotiator in the TWA hijacking, released a Greek singer and two American hostages today and said the rest could be freed "in 24 hours" if the United States asked Israel to free Arab prisoners.

At Beirut airport, the hijackers renewed their demands and, giggling, warned: "Remember that we will strike American interests and we will show America what it has not seen yet. We might even reach the White House."

And, in Israel, Prime Minister Shimon Peres said he would consider trading 700 to 800 Arab prisoners for the remaining hostages if asked by the Red Cross.

Berri today freed Greek singer Demis Roussos, who holds dual Greek and American citizenship, Roussos' American girlfriend, Pamela Smith, and Arthur Targontsids, a Greek-American from Brockton, Mass., during a news conference at his home in Moslem West Beirut.

He said the remaining American hostages — 40

by a State Department count — could be freed "in 24 hours if the American people put pressure on the government to ask Israel for the release of our prisoners in Israel."

"The matter now is on the American side of the table," Berri told reporters.

Roussos, smiling and occasionally patting Berri on the shoulder, referred to the Shiite militiamen in the room as "these good people."

Smith, whom the Shiite militiamen referred to as his wife, praised the hijackers for their manners.

"They were extremely considerate. They were extremely kind and generous to us and we greatly appreciate their hospitality," she said.

Roussos, who celebrated his 40th birthday during the ordeal, said he didn't realize how long he had been held because he'd lost his concept of time during five days in captivity.

"I didn't have a sense of time ... They mentioned my name and told me I was being released," he said.

Roussos said his captors were "very nice" and that he sang for them.

Builders Get One-Stop Permitting

By Donna Estes
Herald Staff Writer

In its first day of workshops on the 1985-86 budget, county commissioners Monday approved "one stop permitting" for builders, adding six new employees to its land development department to accomplish the task. Currently builders must get permits from several offices to complete a project.

The commissioners also gave the public works department everything its director asked for except a new building and granted requests by the supervisor of elections to allow any possibility of another fiasco occurring as in November 1984 when it took all 11 hours after the polls closed election day to complete the count on election returns.

Yet, the four members of the board at the day long workshop — Commissioners Bob Sturm, Sandra Glenn, Fred Streetman and Barbara Christensen — stayed well within anticipated revenues and at this point no increase in taxes is foreseen, said Budget Director Eleanor Anderson.

But Mrs. Christensen, made it clear she is willing to raise property taxes to get needed roads built, if that becomes necessary. Commissioner Bill Kirchhoff was absent.

The surprise of the eight-hour session was a report from Deputy County Administrator for Development Woody Price that it will cost near $500,000 to update the county's comprehensive land use plan, following all the state requirements. It would take, he said, nine nine new employees assigned specifically to the project plus a professional consultant to accomplish the task by the 1987 deadline.

The commission approved $178,000 of the requested money for the fiscal year to begin Oct. 1.

Even Public Works Director Larry Sellers was surprised when after an impassioned hour-long plea, the commissioners voted to give him $681,563 in new money including a $113,000 budget for the Seminole County Expressway Authority.

The expressway authority money is to be used to hire an executive director and a deputy director and do some planning. Sellers has been handling the executive director role as well as his own public works director post at no additional pay for the past eight months.

While County Administrator Ken Hooper had recommended approval of four new employees for public works, plus six traffic counters and aerial photographs of the Wekiva-Monroe Basin at a total cost of about $185,000, Sellers pleaded to be given the resources, including funds cut by Hooper for the acquisition of drainage and road rights of ways, to let his department do its job.

Sanford's 'Unkempt' Image Blamed On City Hall

By Rick Brunson
Herald Staff Writer
Last in a series

When Sanford's Scenic Improvement Board issued a 16-page report earlier this month calling the city "unkempt," it didn't level the charge at only Sanford residents. The board said City Hall needed to clean up its own act, too.

The board attached more than 400 violations of city maintenance codes to its report, some of which had the city's name on them. In addition, the board submitted a list of city-owned properties that need to be improved, including City Hall, which board chairman Sara Jacobson called a "cold fortress" that needs to be "softened" with landscaping.

The city commission acknowledged that city property has been neglected and determined to set the pace for seeing the city restored to a clean, charming community.

"The city should set the

Geneva Boy Dies In Fall From Car Hood

A four-year-old Geneva boy who was riding on the hood of a car fell to his death at about 8:15 p.m. Monday.

Jason Cuevas of 280 Jungle Road North, was riding on the hood of the car along with three other persons when he fell off the vehicle. Florida Highway patrolmen today said the trooper who responded to the scene on Jungle Road did not report on whether or not the boy was struck by the car he fell from or if he was fatally injured from the fall alone.

No other car was at the scene, troopers reported, and charges are pending against David M. Heizer, 34, of 150 Cloister Road Casselberry, the driver of the car involved.

The boy was helicoptered to Orlando Regional Medical Center, Orlando, where he was dead on arrival, hospital spokesman Joe Brown said.

Brown said air ambulance workers and emergency room staff reported the boy suffered "multiple trauma," but there was no apparent indication of a significant head injury. He had an abrasion on his back and likely died from internal injuries, perhaps to his lungs, Brown said.

An autopsy was scheduled by the Orange County medical examiner today, Brown said.

Cuevas' parents weren't identified in the Highway Patrol report, but Brown said the hospital has his mother's name listed as Teresa, of the same address, but with no last name listed.

The boy's death brings to 18 the number of traffic fatalities in Seminole County this year.

Ex-Jaycee Chief Gets Year In Jail For Embezzlement

The past president of the Altamonte-South Seminole Jaycees, elected to the position while serving probation for grand theft, has been sentenced to one year in the Seminole County jail for embezzling about $17,000 from the club.

At least one Jaycee official said he thinks the sentence Leonard Neil Schnack, 34, of 133 Veppers Place, Lake Mary, received was too light.

"Personally, I think he should burn," said Jaycee's vice president Nick Waggoner following Monday's sentencing.

Schnack was also ordered by Circuit Judge C. Vernon Mize Jr. to serve 5 years of probation and repay the Jaycees at the rate of $140 a month.

Waggoner said the restitution plan would not cover the interest the organization would have earned on the embezzled funds.

He said the money was intended to help build a playground for handicapped children. "In my opinion, he should have gotten more than he did," Waggoner said. "He was put in a position of trust. I think a year is not nearly enough time."

Schnack, elected Jaycee president May 1983 and who served for 10 months, embezzled the cash between July 1983 and March 1984. He was arrested Sept. 21 after surrendering himself to sheriff's deputies at the Seminole County jail. An investigation into Schnack's activities began with an internal probe by the Jaycees in May, 1984, and was eventually turned over to the sheriff's department.

While Schnack was Jaycees president he was serving 4 years of probation for a grand theft case in Orange County. In that case, according to Orange County court records, Schnack was accused of taking $3,000 from his Orlando employer. He pleaded no contest to the charge and was sentenced to 4 years probation Feb. 13, 1980. He was also fined $400.

In the recent case, Schnack opened two bank

Graham Tells Bikers: Put Helmets Back On

TALLAHASSEE (UPI) — Gov. Bob Graham has killed two bills that would have allowed motorcycle riders to ride without helmets and permitted "a more indiscriminate use" of billboards along highways in Florida.

But the governor did sign into law Monday a measure instructing that children educated in the home be examined by school officials who would test whether they were learning.

The helmet bill would have repealed a law requiring headgear and allowed bikers over 21 to ride helmetless. Jill Chamberlin, Graham's deputy press secretary, said statistics indicate repealing the law could have led to many casualties.

"In states that repealed the helmet law, there has been a marked increase in serious injuries and fatalities," she said.

"Any time there is an injury, some of the burden of their health care is going to be transferred to the public — to the taxpayer," Graham has said.

Casselberry Man Guilty Of Attempted Manslaughter

A Casselberry man on trial for attempted second-degree murder has been found guilty of the lesser included charge of attempted manslaughter.

Desmond Assam, 34, of 771 U.S. Highway 17-92 was found guilty Monday by jury of the Nov. 4 shooting of Richard DeFazio, 35, of 30 Jackson Circle, Winter Springs, and Jerry Stahley, 32, of 390 Marigold Road, Casselberry.

Both men have since recovered. Assam was found not guilty of a second charge, aggravated battery. He could receive to up to 5 years when sentenced in July by Circuit Judge S. Joseph Davis Jr., according to Steve Laurence, prosecuting attorney on the case.

According to court records and testimony, DeFazio and Stahley were shot while they were near Joe's Pawn Shop, 761 U.S. Highway 17-92. The shop is owned by Desmond Assam and his father Joseph Assam, of 81 S. Devon Ave., Winter Springs.

On the day of the shooting, a garage sale was being held for a boy's football team at a nearby business, Dun-Rite Transmission, 775 U.S. Highway 17-92. According to testimony of one of the owners of the transmission company, people attending the sale were told to park in the area of the closed pawn shop, though permission had not been obtained from the Assams for anyone to use the parking spaces.

According to court records, shoppers cars at the garage sale were blocking or using the pawn shop's parking spaces and DeFazio and Stahley were about to move two vehicles from the parking spaces, when a 1979 beige Buick owned by Joe Assam drove at them, striking DeFazio according to witness Ron Mason, a Casselberry realtor.

According to Mason, DeFazio then entered the car through the driver's door and confronted the

Mother Jailed For Child Abuse

By Deane Jordan

A former Altamonte Springs woman who let her toddlers sleep in their vomit and wastes has been sentenced to 21 days in the Seminole County jail.

The Department of Health and Rehabilitative Services took her children into custody.

In similar cases, children stay in the custody of HRS for 6 months to a year or longer if necessary, according to HRS program analyst Mike Robinson.

Sharon Lynn Carr, 19, formerly of 829 Ash Lane, was given credit by County Judge Alan Dickey for 16 days already served. Dickey also ordered Ms. Carr to serve one year probation, pay the public defender's office $100 and to cooperate with HRS officials.

According to court records, an HRS counselor informed authorities of several alleged abuses after attempts to contact

Ms. Carr. She was arrested in Orange County Feb. 25 on misdemeanor charges of child abuse filed in Seminole County, according to the court docket. She failed to appear for trial in Sanford in May and a bench warrant was issued for her arrest.

Ms. Carr, who has a 7th grade education and was unemployed for 2 years prior to the charges, was rearrested June 3 in Orange County, according to court records.

According to sworn statements mentioned in court records, Ms. Carr's children, a girl, almost three years old, and a boy, 20 months, were often left several days with their diapers unchanged, were not fed regularly and when they were fed had food stuffed into their till they would vomit. The statements came from other adults living with the children's mother while she lived in Altamonte Springs.

According to court records, the sworn statements also state that besides sleeping in their own vomit and wastes, the boy was often locked in a room except one or two hours a day, and the girl beaten with shoes, wooden spoons, and punched and kicked. According to the statements, when the mother slept she tied the children to her bed.

The statements also reportedly said that when the children were bathed in their mother's absence, bruises shaped like shoes were seen on their bodies.

Ms. Carr, who will be 20 this month and is blind in her right eye, was accused of abusing her children while in New Jersey, where her mother lives, and possibly in Georgia, records show.

According to court records, she is now employed and lives Orlando where she may face charges.

Pow dered Wigs Next?

MIAMI (UPI) — Judge Richard Feder says he wants to bring dignity to the Dade County Circuit Court, so he's requiring lawyers to wear flowing, knee-length black robes.

"When they walk into a British courtroom, they are hushed, reverent and respectful. When they walk into an American courtroom, they are reading a newspaper, eating an apple — it's not a movie theater," Feder said.

Feder brought a box of the county-purchased $50 robes to the courtroom Monday and ordered the lawyers to "pick out one that fits."

The judge overruled complaints from defense lawyers who called the robes uncomfortable and said they would restrict their right to represent clients.

"Everybody wants to know when the wigs are coming," Feder said.

Teen Who Axed Parents Sentenced To 40 Years

SOUTH BEND, Ind. (UPI) — Years of abuse may have driven a teenager to kill his father with an ax, but slaying his mother was "gratuitous and senseless" because she was controlled by her husband, a judge said in sentencing the youth to 40 years.

Dale Whipple, 18, of Lydak, was sentenced Monday to 10 years more than the minimum in Indiana for a double-murder conviction, but one-third of the maximum 120-year sentence prosecutors requested.

St. Joseph Superior Judge Robert L. Miller Jr. told Whipple at a hearing Monday the bloody New Year's Day killings were "gruesome."

A jury last month found Whipple, 18, guilty but mentally ill on two counts of murder in the ax attack on Wayne and Sandra Whipple, both 39, in the family home in Lydik, west of South Bend. He will have to serve at least 20 years before becoming eligible for parole.

2 More Spy Suspects Indicted

NORFOLK, Va. (UPI) — Federal grand juries have indicted two retired Navy veterans accused of being links in a family-and-friend spy ring on charges of passing military secrets to the Soviets.

Indicted Monday were Arthur Walker, 50, a retired lieutenant commander, and Jerry Whitworth, 45, a retired communications specialist.

Attorneys for Walker, a former engineer at VSE Corp., a defense contractor, said Monday he will plead not guilty at a hearing today to the seven counts returned against him by a federal grand jury in Norfolk.

Whitworth's lawyers said he is scheduled to appear at an arraignment today in San Francisco — where he was indicted Monday on a single count of espionage — but would not say if he would enter a plea.

Walker and Whitworth are believed to be links in a wide-area spy ring thought to have operated out of Norfolk, site of the world's largest Navy base and home to the U.S. Atlantic Fleet.

Walker's brother John, 47, charged as the ringleader, and John's son, Michael, 22, a sailor last assigned to the aircraft carrier Nimitz, were indicted on espionage charges late last month and are being held in Baltimore.

Cheese Probe Widens

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Health inspectors have expanded their search for the source of bacteria infection in a Mexican-style cheese blamed in 30 deaths to include more than two dozen milk suppliers.

A weekend inspection of the Jalisco Mexican Products Inc. plant, which made the cheese linked to the infection, turned up only minor sanitation problems and the plant was given a passing grade by health officials.

Meanwhile, authorities Monday confirmed an 82-year-old Hispanic man had died from the Listeria infection, bringing to 30 the number of reported deaths connected to the cheese in Southern California.

Officials said it probably will be several weeks before the full extent of the outbreak — the deadliest case of tainted food in California history — is known because incubation of the bacterial infection takes up to three weeks.

Counting the three new cases, 91 people have been confirmed stricken with the infection in Los Angeles and Orange counties.

Lawyers Want To Question Mobster In Pope Plot Trial

ROME (UPI) — Defense attorneys at the trial of eight men charged in the 1981 attack on the pope asked a judge to summon a crime syndicate informer who says the gunman was coached to implicate the Soviet Union.

Manfredo Rosal, a lawyer acting for two former officials of the Bulgarian Embassy in Rome, asked Judge Severino Santapichi Monday to call as a witness mob informer Giovanni Pandico who claims he helped an Italian intelligence service agent prompt Turkish terrorist Mehmet Ali Agca in 1982.

Agca, 27, initially said he acted alone in shooting Pope John Paul II in St. Peter's Square May 13, 1981. An Italian court sentenced Agca to life imprisonment and he turned state's evidence in May 1982.

He now is being tried on a new count of smuggling a gun into Italy and three Bulgarians and four Turks are on trial on charges they plotted the attack.

Last week Agca claimed a Soviet diplomat in the Bulgarian capital Sofia ordered the attack on the Polish-born pope and Bulgarian agents helped him carry it out.

Mengele Dossier Arrives

SAO PAULO, Brazil (UPI) — World War II medical data could yield solid evidence that a 6-year-old skeleton dug up in Brazil is that of Nazi war criminal Josef Mengele, a forensic pathologist says.

More than a week after the bones were exhumed from a suburban graveyard near Sao Paulo, the 17-member team of coroners from around the world finally received detailed medical records on Mengele Monday.

The Simon Wiesenthal Institute in Los Angeles sent the dossier to Brazil for comparison with the cleaned, reassembled skeleton unearthed June 6.

The dossier contained wartime X-rays, a pre-war dental chart and information about a motorcycle accident Mengele suffered during World War II.

Court Defers Major Religion Case

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Supreme Court, deadlocked in one of this year's major religious freedom cases, has deferred until next year a decision on when government regulations impede the right to worship.

The justices, in their eighth tie vote of the term Monday, failed to set a precedent in the case of a Nebraska woman who objected on religious grounds to the use of her picture on her driver's license.

The 4-4 vote, with Justice Lewis Powell not participating, upheld a lower court that said requiring Frances Quaring to be photographed as a condition to getting a license interfered with her belief against the making of a "graven image."

At the same time, the high court placed on next fall's agenda two similar cases involving the First Amendment right to exercise religion.

In one, an Orthodox Jewish rabbi is challenging an Air Force dress code preventing him from wearing a traditional yarmulke while on duty. The other involves a religious objection to the use of a Social Security number.

Joseph Conn, spokesman for Americans United for Separation of Church and State, said the court's stalemate in the Nebraska case showed just how divided the justices are on the issue. But he said the court seems eager for some resolution.

"It sounds like they're trying to decide what is compelling government interest and what isn't," he said. "We were thinking this term was going to be the big one on church-state issues. It looks like next term is going to be as well."

Marc Stern, lawyer for the American Jewish Congress, said he was surprised by the court's reluctance to come down strongly for individual religious rights.

"They're obviously troubled by what standards the court ought to use to review free religion claims," he said. "Until now, we've understood that a state has to show a compelling interest. They may be changing the standard."

Powell did not vote in the Nebraska case because he was recovering from surgery when oral arguments were heard. His absence also caused a deadlock earlier this year on whether a New York suburb could prohibit a Nativity scene in a public park.

The court also:

—Held 8-0, with Powell not participating, that Western Airlines must consider making pilots into flight engineers if they request it when they reach the Federal Aviation Administration's retirement age of 60 for commercial pilots.

—Held 7-2 in a Maryland case that the purchase of obscene material by an undercover police officer is not a seizure under the Fourth Amendment and does not require a search warrant.

—Ruled unanimously in a case from Massachusetts that revocation of an inmate's "good time credits" must be supported by some evidence from prison officials.

—Ruled 7-1, in a suit involving the controversial drug Bendectin, that a trial judge's decision to disqualify attorneys cannot be appealed before a ruling on the merits of the case.

Simian Surprise

Getting hearty congratulations from a gorilla for being certified by the Florida Supreme Court is Seminole Circuit Court Clerk David Berrien. Actually it was Sanford resident Gwynne Chandler of Balloon Boutique just monkeying around. On behalf of Berrien's courthouse crew, she also presented Berrien with a cake. To remain Clerk of the Circuit Court in Florida, the elected official must be certified within six years by the high court, Berrien said. Because of past experience and education, Berrien was certified in five months, according to the Supreme Court. Berrien took office in January.

Housing Starts Plunge In May

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Housing starts dropped 13.7 percent in May, the steepest decline in more than a year, the Census Bureau said today.

Despite the drop the pace of starts remained healthy, averaging a higher rate so far this year than housing production for all of last year.

Housing starts in May were at an annual rate of 1.663 million after seasonal adjustment.

The rate of starts from the beginning of the year through May averaged 1.795 million, still above 1984's total for housing starts of 1.749 million.

Building permits rose 3 percent in May, an encouraging sign that the downward trend may not continue.

Housing so far this year has been the brightest spot in an otherwise slow economy.

Starts of single-family houses dropped 10 percent while those of multi-family buildings dropped 19.1 percent.

The decline was spread throughout all regions of the country with the greatest setback in Western states at 18.5 percent. Northeastern states reported a 17 percent drop, southern states were down 15.3 percent and Midwestern states slipped 5.7 percent.

Woman Sought In Abduction Of Daughters

Seminole County sheriff's deputies continue to search for two girls and their mother who is suspected of abducting them from a Longwood foster home on Sunday.

Deputies reported that Deborah Graham, 30, address unknown, visited the foster home where her daughters Amber, 8, and Michelle, 4, had been placed by court order.

Cynthia Portalatin, 17, of 2260 Charlotte St., the daughter of the girls' foster mother, Juanita Portalatin, 51, told deputies she did not let Ms. Graham into the home when she came to visit about 3 p.m.

Ms. Portalatin told Ms. Graham to wait outside and she could talk to her daughters through a screen door, according to a sheriff's report. But when Ms. Portalatin brought the girls to the door they ran outside, the report said.

Ms. Graham allegedly grabbed her daughters and placed them in the backseat of a black and green Chevrolet. She got into the passenger's seat and an unidentified driver sped away, the report said.

A pickup order has been issued for Ms. Graham, but neither she nor the girls have been found. Deputies reported they make have fled to Alabama or Georgia.

POT IN CAR

The man sitting in the driver's seat of a car parked at the Hotline Bottle Club, state Road 436, Altamonte Springs, along with two other men, has been charged with possession of marijuana.

An Altamonte Springs policeman who approached the car at about 2:45 a.m. Saturday reported smelling marijuana smoke and spotted cigarette rolling papers and partially smoked hand-rolled cigarettes near the driver's seat in the car.

A small bag of pot was also reportedly found in the pants pocket of the man charged. The other two men were not charged.

William Britton Weller, 20, of 1520 Ormond Ave., Apopka, has been released from jail without posting bond. He is scheduled to appear in court June 28.

Stafford said he was hiding behind a counter when the suspect, with the missing keys in his possession, entered the building, the report said.

Albert Lee Cain, 24, of 520 Oaks St., Altamonte Springs, has been charged with burglary and petty theft. He was being held in lieu of $8,000 bond.

BATTERED WIFE

A 27-year-old Longwood man has been charged with battery spouse abuse after allegedly hitting his wife in the head and face.

Seminole County sheriff's deputies responded to a disturbance call at 865 Lake Irene Drive at about 11:30 a.m. Saturday and were met by Cheryl Lott Walker who told them her husband had attacked her because she hadn't gotten him up to go to work, a sheriff's report said.

Mrs. Walker was transported to South Seminole Community Hospital, Longwood, where she was examined for possible head injuries and released, a sheriff's report said.

Eugene Charles Walker Jr. was arrested at his home and later released on $500 bond. He is scheduled to appear in court June 26.

BURGLARIES & THEFTS

John M. Stewart, 34, of Telford, Tenn., reported to Seminole County sheriff's deputies that $200 in travelers checks were stolen from a suitcase in his room at the Holiday Inn, Interstate 4 at state Road 46, west of Sanford, on Sunday.

A $250 camera, two watches worth $150 each, and a $325 handgun were stolen from the home of David Sherman Hall, 31, of 1245 Rising Sun Blvd., Oviedo, between Friday and Sunday, a sheriff's report said.

Deputies have the name of a suspect who may have stolen a $500 couch and a $350 loveseat from the home of Peter Matix, 21, of 1022 Worthing Court, Winter Park, on Sunday.

A 1983 Honda worth $10,000 and a briefcase were stolen from the garage of George W. Carroll, 32, of 3928 Villas Green Circle, Longwood, on Saturday or Sunday.

Three suitcases containing clothes and $200 cash were stolen from a rental truck at 772 Baker Drive, Altamonte Springs, on Sunday. Eva J. Biasi, 36, of that address, gave deputies the name of a suspect who may have grabbed the bags, a sheriff's report said.

Jessie Anna Wilt, 64, of 760 Honeysuckle Lane, Casselberry, reported to sheriff's deputies that $300 cash and five rings with diamonds and other stones with a total value of about $3,000 were stolen from a purse in a closet in her home between April 15 and Saturday.

Three potted citrus trees with a combined value of $125 were stolen from the driveway of Edward Eugene Wagner, 40, of 1364 Westdale Ave., Winter Park, between June 12 and Saturday, a sheriff's report said.

Auditor Who Tried To Silence Whistleblower Fired

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Merit Systems Protection Board, in an unprecedented action, has fired the chief of Pentagon auditing for retaliating against an auditor who blew the whistle on his agency.

In its toughest action since taking over civil service duties seven years ago, the board late last week ordered the removal of Charles Starrett Jr. — since July 1981 the $72,300-a-year director of the Defense Contract Audit Agency — and fined him $1,000 for "taking actions against agency auditor and whistleblower George Spanton."

The board also demoted and fined two other audit agency managers in Atlanta, Paul Evans and Arlin Tueller, who were found "to have taken or recommended taking actions" against Spanton.

As an agency auditor in 1982, Spanton reported serious alleged pricing improprieties at Pratt & Whitney Co. in Florida. Starrett said he believed the disclosures were false.

Told of the board's action, Spanton, now retired, said, "This is one of the greatest days of my life."

Starrett and the Pentagon had no comment. "This is the first time the board has imposed this penalty," board spokesman Lon Anderson said at a news conference, adding the Defense Department "has to abide by this action" but can appeal to the courts.

The fine imposed on Starrett was the maximum allowed.

Evans and Tueller were ordered demoted to non-supervisory positions and fined $500, each.

Anderson said the board is studying possible additional penalties against the two men and is examining a fourth person, Starrett's assistant, James Brown.

Congress, in the Civil Service Reform Act of 1978, gave the board broad authority to protect "whistleblowers," often government auditors ferreting out waste and fraud.

The board found the three Pentagon employees "committed prohibited personnel practices when they attempted to reassign Spanton to the West Coast in an effort to silence his whistleblowing."

Reached at his home in West Palm Beach, Spanton, 64, said, "I was pushed out because of my tough audit approach and my reluctance to back down."

Saying he had found "waste and abuse was rampant throughout the Department of Defense," he added, "It was easier to get rid of me than to clean it up."

"About one-third of the defense budget is wasted," Spanton said. "Maybe now, as a taxpayer, I can look forward to more effective protection of the tax dollar at the Defense Department."

In 1982, Spanton released a controversial report on Pratt & Whitney's pricing policies and revealed "possibly improper expenses" incurred by the company for entertaining Pentagon personnel. A year later Starrett reassigned Spanton, an action that was stayed until Spanton retired in December 1983.

Group Works To Prevent July Fourth Eye Injuries

Special to the Herald

TAMPA — Parades, picnics and fireworks displays are all July Fourth traditions enjoyed by most Americans. Another, often overlooked tradition, comes in the aftermath of the holiday — those news reports about people blinded, maimed, or killed by fireworks.

The National Society to Prevent Blindness-Florida Affiliate reports that in 1984, fireworks-related injuries rose 19 percent over the previous year. An estimated 9,857 people required hospital emergency room treatment last year, 1,255 of them having sustained eye injuries.

"Fireworks are not toys," cautions Herbert Goetschius, president of the NSPB Florida chapter. "Yet, 74 percent of all those people injured last year were under age 24. Without doubt, we need to keep fireworks out of the hands of young people."

In a recent study conducted by Arkansas ophthalmologists, bottle rockets were found to be the leading cause of fireworks-related injuries there.

The study revealed that nearly three-fourths of all injuries resulting in permanent vision loss were sustained by people harmed by bottle rockets.

"Small, but lethal, a bottle rocket is a single firecracker attached to a stick, and shot from a stationary object. Usually, the suggested object is a pipe. However, more often than not, people use soda-pop bottles," Goetschius said.

According to the National Society to Prevent Blindness, these bottles can explode. Glass shrapnel thrown during the explosion can strike the face and eyes of bystanders, often causing severe, painful and irreversibly blinding injuries.

Among the other commonly available fireworks involved in injuries are firecrackers, M-80's, Roman candles, salutes and snakes. Even sparklers are unsafe. The society says that a blinding burn can result if the sparkler makes contact with the eye.

"We recommend that people enjoy fireworks the one safe and sane way this July Fourth," Goetschius said. "That is, view them at a licensed public display, not on a street corner or in the backyard."

Established in 1908, the NSPB is the oldest voluntary health agency nationally engaged in preventing blindness through a comprehensive program of community services, public and professional education and research.

The 1980's Bank ShakeUp: How's It Going To Shake Out?

In five years of deregulation, we've seen more changes in the American financial system than in all the other years put together.

Today, banks offer discounts on commissions when you trade stocks and bonds. Stock brokers offer services that seem like bank accounts.

S&L's no longer have their legal "1/4% edge" in interest rates. On the other hand, they can offer more kinds of loans.

Even department stores and insurance companies can get in the act. Now, most places are going to "wait and see" before they make a move; but, at NCNB, we're not.

We'll keep working to deliver the best possible service. It may not always mean the lowest price, but we'll work to see that it means the best value. For example:

More For Less.

Lots of places offer you money market rates, but only one offers them along with other bank services at special rates or no charge.

We call it Deluxe Banking[®] and we've made it easier to get. Now you can qualify by depositing just $1000; keep a $15,000 balance and there's no charge.

High Rates For More People.

Maybe you've thought about investing in Certificates, but you haven't wanted to commit a $2500 lump sum. Now you can invest in any certificate we offer with a minimum deposit of only $1000.

Until this year, you've had to deposit $2500 in an account to earn money market rates. Now, on personal accounts, we've cut our minimum deposit to just $1000.

More IRA Flexibility.

A lot of people like the IRA idea, but would like more control over their investment situation.

That's what our new Investor Option IRA is all about. It lets you combine fixed-rate certificates, a money market account, stocks, and bonds—whatever works for you. So come in and let's talk it over.

More Retirement Benefits.

If you're retired with pension and/or Social Security payments, have them deposited direct with us. We'll give you free regular checking, free personalized wallet checks, a free 24-hour banking card and a free 2x5 safe deposit box for a year.

NCNB Extra Checking[®] some places offer some of these things, some offer others, but no place that we know of offers all of them. A Changing Neighborhood.

What you see here is just the beginning. We'll keep working on better ways to handle your money.

So, if you're not sure where your bank, broker or S&L is shaking out, come see us.

This year, next year, and long after the dust has settled in the shakeup of 1985, we'll still be here working harder than ever to be the best bank in the neighborhood.

Meese's Bad Legal Advice

The Competition in Contracts Act, which became law last year, is designed to boost competition among federal contractors and to keep the cost of government down. President Reagan signed the bill but is now refusing to enforce one key provision. That gesture puts the president above the law.

The provision that has aroused the president's ire authorizes the General Accounting Office, Congress's investigating arm, to suspend contract awards up to 90 days when an unsuccessful bidder cries foul. Though GAO evaluations aren't legally binding, they are often influential. Allowing GAO time to look into disputes discourages the kind of sweetheart deals that have lately gotten the Defense Department into so much hot water.

The administration claims that this provision turns over to Congress what should be an executive branch decision. What it finds troubling is an action giving GAO discretion to issue its opinion at any time during the 90 days, rather than imposing a rigid 90-day review period. This technical legal controversy should be settled in a lawsuit challenging a contract delay; indeed, there are such suits presently in court. Instead, the administration has taken the law into its own hands, ordering government agencies to ignore the GAO.

That order prompted an angry reaction from the House Judiciary Committee, which recently voted to cut off funds for the attorney general's office until Ed Meese rewrites his instructions. This theatrical gesture, though unlikely to receive full congressional approval, certainly got the administration's attention. A new federal court ruling rejecting the administration's argument against enforcing the law, while less dramatic, deserves equal attention. What the administration is doing "flatly violates the express instruction of the Constitution that the president shall 'take care that the laws be faithfully executed,'" wrote Judge Harold Ackerman.

A century-old Supreme Court decision, cited by Judge Ackerman, puts the administration's legal argument in perspective. "No man in this country is so high that he is above the law. All the officers of the government, from the highest to the lowest, are bound to obey it." That includes the attorney general — and the president.

Has Apple Computer Inc. founder Steven Jobs lost his job?

No, Apple's in trouble.

There is talk of layoffs. But Jobs' just been sent back to the garage, where he first designed the personal computer.

Jobs' new job description: "product visionary."

Maybe he can invent a better purpose for the personal computer.

Reagan On Campaign Trail For Tax Reform

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Reagan is back on the campaign trail — this time to keep the spotlight on his tax reform plan.

Reagan has been making two trips a week outside of Washington to promote the program that observers believe he wants to leave as the most important legacy of his White House years.

The president has four more side trips before he heads for his California ranch for a week, but aides indicate he may make another short trip on the Fourth of July and then return to the ranch.

The staging for his speeches are reminiscent of his 1984 campaign with the emphasis on American flags, bunting, red, white and blue balloons — everything but the cheerleaders.

He is stressing that his tax reform plan is "bipartisan" but lately he has been combining his appearances with the promotion of senators up for re-election.

So it gets sticky at times when Reagan accuses the Democratic Party of being led by the left wing, without naming names.

When a reporter asked an aide how the president "can get away with it" in terms of praising bipartisanship and attacking the opposition party at every opportunity, the aide replied: "He is."

The president recently briefed economics reporters on his tax plan, and may have regretted his decision to take one more question.

The question: "Mr. President, education for the handicapped has been proven to be an investment rather than an expense. For instance, at Cal State Northridge in Long Beach in Los Angeles, the Masters program produces graduates who are able to earn up to $45,000 to $60,000 a year, thanks to the program for deaf mainstreamed education there, at the cost to the taxpayer of $6,200 a year.

"May I ask, what is the proposal in the tax plan at the moment to maintain such programs to help these people to be able to find employment and so relieve the government of the tax burden of supporting them?"

The president: "I don't think I heard. You're talking about our aid to college students now?"

Question: "To the handicapped students, the deaf students, particularly."

Stumped for an answer, the president said he should have let Treasury Secretary James Baker take the question.

Baker stood up and said: "I think that's a budget question, if I may say so. You proposed a budget question, not a tax question."

Reagan agreed, but went on to say that federal funds had not been actually cut for those programs but were enfolded in block grants to the state.

ROBERT WALTERS

Tax Code For Park Avenue

WASHINGTON (NEA) — "We want a tax code for Main Street America," proclaims President Reagan — but many of the proposals he advocates have been crafted to benefit the denizens of New York's Park Avenue or Los Angeles' Rodeo Drive.

The populist rhetoric the president is offering to promote the "reforms" he unveiled in late May is not matched by the specific provisions of his tax package.

Citing "the Reagan plan's bias toward the rich," conservative political analyst Kevin Phillips notes that only modest financial benefits would accrue to middle-income families, but "for upper bracket families, the overall ... reduction involves big numbers."

Similarly, William A. Niskanen Jr., a recently departed member of the president's Council of Economic Advisors, notes that the Reagan administration has "changed the progressivity of the system."

Progressivity — the concept that wealthy people should pay income taxes at higher rates than those who have less money — has been a guiding principle of the income tax system since the federal tax code was first enacted in 1913.

In the initial version of the federal income tax approved by Congress 72 years ago the tax rate began at 1 percent for those earning less than $20,000 yearly and rose to 7 percent for those making more than $500,000 annually.

When Reagan assumed office, the rates ranged from 14 percent to 70 percent. His 1981 omnibus tax package slashed the top rate to 50 percent while reducing the bottom rate to 10 percent.

The president's new proposal would again dramatically reduce the top rate, to 35 percent, while raising the bottom rate to 15 percent.

Thus, if Congress adopts this plan, Reagan, since he came to office, will have cut in half — from 70 percent to 35 percent — the tax rate for the nation's wealthiest people while slightly increasing — from 14 percent to 15 percent — the rate for the country's poorest taxpayers.

Individuals at the bottom and in the middle of the income scale would receive some modest benefits from increased standard deductions, higher personal exemptions and other components of the president's package.

But the inescapable fact remains: "When measured either in dollars or as a percentage of income, the tax cuts for the wealthiest taxpayers dwarf those for all other groups."

That's the conclusion of the Center on Budget and Policy Priorities, a Washington-based public interest group.

Air Force Pays For Company's Mistakes

By Jack Anderson and Joseph Spear

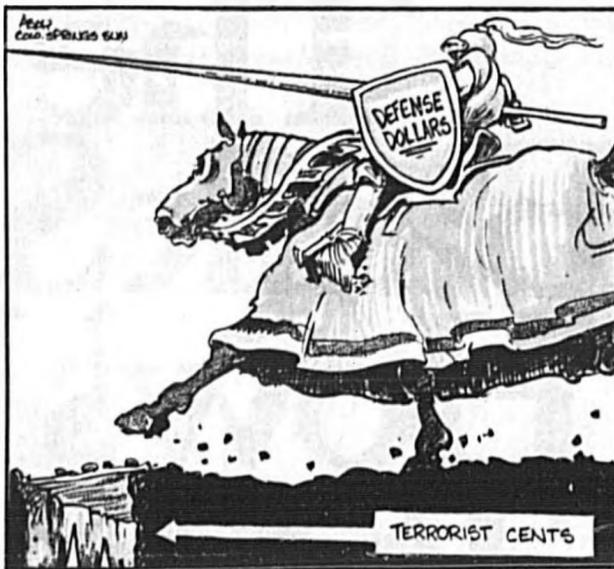

WASHINGTON — When a defense contractor cracks the whip, the Pentagon jumps obediently through the hoop — even when the contractor is one of such demonstrated malfeasance as General Dynamics.

The Air Force, for example, has agreed to pay General Dynamics any costs it may incur if it condescends to help investigate technical problems with its own F-16 fighter planes.

Yet General Dynamics is under no obligation to help with accident investigations. Should it decide to do so, the Air Force has agreed to keep the company's findings secret.

We've been exposing the costly sins of the military-industrial complex for more than three decades, but it's still a jolt to learn that the Pentagon kowtows so abjectly to defense contractors.

The Air Force not only admits the shameful agreement but defends it

Victorianism Reborn

Victorianism did not die with the grumpy queen. It seems to be a recurrent state of mind, and we are now in the midst of another bout of it. The spirit of "Don't do it," "It's not good for you," and "It's insensitive" is rampaging around the land.

The campaign against smoking, of course, has been in high gear for about five years. It's a rare restaurant where you can enjoy an after-dinner cigar these days. Now I know that some people are asthmatic or allergic to tobacco smoke. They have every right to be spared even a whiff of it. But the anti-tobacco movement has taken on an ugly ideological character and become a vehicle for the universal human desire to push people around. A friend of mine recently complained vociferously that he had been obliged to ride for more than an hour in an automobile with a man smoking a pipe, a horrible experience. When it was explained to him that he might have opened a window in the car, he acted as if this were a new and startling idea.

Everyone knows that college professors smoke pipes. As a matter of fact, that is about all that some of them do. But anti-smoking ideologues have been mounting a major attack on that, and faculty meeting areas now have smoking sections.

Ads for tobacco products have been banned from television since 1970, and there is now a move on in Congress to similarly ban ads for alcohol. At a Senate hearing last February, Senator Paula Hawkins, a Florida Republican, said that the pressure on Congress to do this has "turned into a runaway freight train." At the same time, state legislatures have been raising the drinking age, often to 21. Thus all individuals under 21 are penalized because of the small minority who abuse alcohol, drive while drunk, etc. Women under 21 are penalized despite the fact that statistics demonstrate that, as a group, they do not drink more than the general population. Why has there been no protest against this resurgent prohibitionism? Mrs. Grundy and the Bluebonnets are rampaging around the land but no H.L. Mencken has arisen to smite them.

We also have a federal commission looking into pornography. The last one, back in 1970, found that there was no evidence linking sexually explicit material to criminal behavior. The new commission is headed by a man named Henry Hudson who, as chief prosecutor in Arlington, Va., has succeeded in banning most pornography there.

It's a pretty safe bet that the new commission will discover all sorts of links between pornography and criminal behavior.

It is my opinion that a community has the right to restrict material that can be publicly displayed, just as it has the right to enact zoning ordinances. But there is every indication that the anti-porn drive has much wider goals in mind, and that we may have to fight the old battles over Dreiser, Joyce, Lawrence and Henry Miller all over again.

As in Victorian times, we are now seeing an enormous compulsion to be healthy. As headmaster of Rugby, Thomas Arnold virtually equated vigorous exercise with Christianity. When not kicking a ball, Victorians climbed Alps. Today, hundreds of thousands of people are crippling themselves jogging, and even women are lifting weights. We are also facing a wave of seat-belt and air-bag legislation, all for our own good, of course.

DON GRAFF

Buchanan In World Of Past

White House communications director Patrick J. Buchanan says the administration's tax reform proposal is designed to benefit the "traditional" American family, one where the husband goes off to work every day and the wife stays home to take care of the kids.

As a consequence, he is taking considerable flak, especially on Capitol Hill. And well he should, since he is hopelessly out of date on the current composition of the American family.

How far out happens to be the subject of a fortuitous study of changing family and employment patterns just released by the Conference Board, an industry-supported nonprofit research organization.

What the study finds is that Buchanan's traditional family hasn't been typical since at least the end of World War II, which, with the population surge that followed, marked a major turning point in the characteristics of the country's working population.

By about 1960, for example, working men whose wives worked outside the home began to outnumber men who were the sole support of households — i.e., men in the Buchanan family. The rate of change in this and other family characteristics has accelerated with every passing year.

Today, married men providing the sole support of families are down to 10 percent of the total work force — less than 12 million out of 112 million. They are far outnumbered by working couples — 47 million individuals constituting 40 percent of all jobholders.

What the study shows is that there is no longer any such thing as a typical working family. What is typical is that most adult Americans of whatever gender and marital status work.

Broadly classified, there are 40 million married men at work, 27 million married women, 16 million individuals who were formerly married (predominantly divorced and widowed women) and 29 million singles (mostly men).

The working population can also be broken down into several other categories, which, to some extent, overlap.

Working women, married and not, represent 40 percent of the total. They include a majority of women with children — 60 percent of all mothers. Working men still outnumber working women, but the Labor Department projects a work-force gender split of 50-50 in another decade.

Another rapidly growing category are the singles, now a quarter of all jobholders.

statement explained why:

"It is important to the military branches that when investigating an accident, they have access to reports provided by the manufacturers without regard to possible adverse reflections," the statement said, apparently referring to public outrage over fatal flaws in a multi-million-dollar weapon.

"Further," the statement added, "the candor of information supplied voluntarily in confidence may be substantially greater than that of information compelled to be produced with the knowledge that it will be made public."

If the Pentagon truly believes this, it is extraordinary. Applied to the Justice Department's own operations, for example, it would mean discarding subpoena powers and trying to wheedle information out of underworld bosses by promising not to make it public — and paying them for their testimony to boot.

Sun Bank Makes 1st Deposit

First Federal catcher Mike Dillion has the tag on Sun Bank's Lorenzo Polk but he forgot one important item — the ball — which is floating near his right knee.

Taylor's Grand Slam Bombs First Federal

By Chris Flister
Herald Sports Writer

The question of which of the two unbeaten teams was unbeatable was pretty much answered Monday night in the opening game of the Sanford Little League City Series.

Behind the pitching and hitting of Derrick Taylor, and some fine defensive plays by second baseman Tony Duncan, Sun Bank dominated every aspect of the game en route to a 17-5 thrashing of First Federal before 200 fans at Fort Mellon Park.

Sun Bank, which won the Little American League with an 18-0 record, can wrap up the city championship tonight at 6 in game two at Fort Mellon Park.

Although he wasn't at his best, Taylor still overpowered First Federal as he tossed a two-hitter and struck out 14. The 12-year-old righthander also rapped two hits including an inside-the-park grand slam home run in the fourth inning.

"Sometimes you never know what's going to happen so we had to go with our best man," Sun Bank manager Bootsie Jackson said. "We had to go for the win in the first game."

Duncan turned in the best defensive performance in a game that had 12 errors including nine by First Federal. Of the 18 outs recorded, 14 were Taylor strikeouts while Duncan had a hand in three of the remaining four outs.

Sun Bank jumped out to a 2-0 lead in the top of the first off losing pitcher Joe Wiggins with a pair of First Federal errors paving the way. With one out, Lorenzo Polk reached second on a pair of errors and, with two outs, Taylor lined a single off the center field fence for a 1-0 lead.

Jeffery Ingram roped a ground-rule double to left center to drive in Taylor with the second run. Wiggins then walked the bases loaded but got out of the jam by striking out Jason Sutton to end the inning.

In the bottom of the first, Taylor walked leadoff man Andrea Williams who took second on a passed ball. Taylor then caught the next two hitters looking at third strikes and fanned Wiggins swinging for the third out.

The roof fell in on First Federal in the top of the second when it made four errors which enabled Sun Bank to push across six runs. Michael Clark singled up the middle to leadoff but was forced at second on James Jackson's grounder. Polk then lofted a high fly to left field which Reggie Smith tried to make a basket catch of. But the basket had a hole in it and the ball fell in for a two base error. Polk scored on an error on Al Perkins' grounder for a 3-0 Sun Bank lead.

Perkins went to second on the play and scored when Taylor reached on another error. Ingram followed with a walk and a passed ball moved the runners to second and third. Keith Armond then drew a walk and Duncan also walked to force in Taylor for a 5-0 lead. Ingram then scored on a wild pitch and an errant throw to third on the play enabled both Armond and Duncan to score as Sun Bank took a commanding 8-0 lead.

First Federal broke up the no-hitter and the shutout in the bottom of the second. Alonzo Brundidge reached on Taylor's three-base error to lead off and scored on another error on the same play. With one out, Al Dixon slapped a single up the middle for First Federal's first hit. Smith then hit into a force play for the second out and Taylor struck out Andre Cooper to end the inning.

Sun Bank tacked on two more runs in the top of the third with both runs scoring via First Federal errors.

First Federal's brightest moment of the game came in the bottom of the third but it wasn't enough to stall Sun Bank's machine. After Taylor struck out the first two hitters of the inning, he walked Mike Dillion and Wiggins. Brundidge then stepped up and smacked a Taylor curveball over the fence in left-center for a three-run homer which trimmed Sun Bank's lead to 10-4. It was the first homer Taylor has given up this season.

"I was slacking up a little when he hit it," Taylor said. "They weren't hitting me so I let up some."

Taylor pitched hitless ball the rest of the way and First Federal scored just one more run, that coming on a bases-loaded walk in the fourth.

Hunt's Double Caps 6-Run Rally As Adcock Roofing Wins Crown

Quint Hunt doubled home the winning runs in the bottom of the fourth inning Monday night to lift Adcock Roofing past Clem Leonard Shell, 16-15, to the Pee Wee championship at Fort Mellon Park.

Adcock Roofing and Clem Leonard Clem finished the Pee Wee regular season with identical 9-1 records. They split their season series so a playoff was needed to determine the champion.

Jamie King went the distance for the winners. King walked 19 but still won as he allowed just four hits. King struck out four. Nevil Ford was lower despite giving up seven hits. Ford walked eight and whiffed three. Ten errors by Clem Leonard made the difference. Adcock committed just two for manager Henry Collier and coach Dion Brown.

Hunt, who had a pair of two-run two-baggers, came through with his clutch hit as Adcock erased a 15-10 deficit without making an out.

Baseball

The first game of a best 2 out of 3 series is always very important. Sun Bank, the Sanford Little American League champions, controlled its own destiny in game one of the City Championship Series Monday with Derrick Taylor on the mound.

Taylor, who threw one no-hitter and two one-hitters during the regular season, overpowered National League champs First Federal as favored Sun Bank won the opening game of the series.

Alonzo Brundidge will be on the mound for First Federal, which lost for the first time Monday, while Sun Bank manager Bootsie Jackson said either Al Perkins or James Jackson will pitch for her unbeaten team.

Adcock Roofing's champions run off with trophies after Pee Wee title game.

Cobb's 2-Hitter Carries Orioles Past SW Volusia

OVIEDO — Richard Cobb

hurled a two-hitter as the Oviedo Orioles shut down Southwest Volusia, 6-1, in District 14 Top Team Tournament baseball at the Oviedo Little League complex Monday night.

Manager David Austin's Orioles move into tonight's 7:30 losers' bracket final against West Volusia or Deltona. A win tonight would pit Oviedo against Eustis or Maitland, the winners' bracket loser.

Cobb blanked Southwest Volusia for six innings Monday before giving up a meaningless run in the seventh. "Richard gave up a single to the first hitter but he was in control after that," said Austin. "He did an outstanding job."

Micha Kinnaird got the Oviedo boys going in the first when he drew a walk, moved up wild pitch and stole third. He when the right fielder dropped Poochie King's fly ball.

Oviedo added to its lead in the third when Bobby Wyatt walked but was forced at second by Cedric Watson. Watson stole second and scored when Kinnaird reached on error by third baseman. A balk moved Kinnaird to second and a wild pitch moved him to third. Alan Greene then reached on error by shortstop to push the lead to 3-0.

The Orioles picked up one more in the sixth and two in the seventh. In the sixth, Gary Gotwalt singled, stole second and stole third. R.D. Pellartin walked and stole second before Ron Fahy walked to load bases. Wyatt coaxed another free pass to collect the RBI.

Rouse Has The Spirit For Kiwanis

You've heard of Willie Horton. He's a former Detroit Tiger slugger now employed by the New York Yankees as a "spirit coach." It's his job to pump up Dave Winfield or Don Mattingly when they have "one of those days."

Baseball players will tell you success on the ball field is more mental than physical. There isn't much difference in ability. That fine winning edge may be the difference in attitude.

You've probably haven't heard of Charles Rouse. The 45-year-old Sanfordite serves the same role as Horton for Kiwanis, which will play Ball Motor Line in the Junior Major League City Series Wednesday night at 6 at Chase Park.

The ballplayers may 10 to 15 years younger but Rouse says they need the same boost that the major leaguers need. "It's my role to keep my players mentally prepared," he says. "If we can keep our players cool and not fighting among themselves, we have a much better chance to win."

Rouse really couldn't pinpoint why a 13- or 14-year-old would be so easily discouraged, but he did have one theory. "People put too much pressure on one individual," he says. "Then that player thinks he has to do everything, that he's the difference between winning and losing. That put him in a bad situation if something goes wrong."

Rouse says when something does go wrong, the player pouts. Then it's time for a little Charles Rouse pick me up. "I encourage the boy," he says. "Sure, if he makes a mistake, you might yell at him. That's the way coaching is. But if he does something good, you pat him on the back, too."

He says discipline is sometimes lacking. "Sometimes parents don't like it when we yell at a boy," he says. "But you have to have discipline to be a good player. There would be a lot better ballplayers coming out of this league if they had more discipline."

Jesse Bell manages Kiwanis while Rouse takes care of the morale. Bell says he knows the importance of a positive attitude. "If we keep our spirit and play like we did last Wednesday, we can beat anyone," Bell says.

Last Wednesday, Kiwanis surprised Moose in a one-game playoff to earn the right to face favored Ball Motor Line in Wednesday's best 2 out of 3 series. The second game will be Friday and the third, if necessary, Monday. All are set for 6 p.m. starts.

Rouse, whose son Adrian patrols center field for Kiwanis, says morale isn't just a problem on his team — but every Sanford team. "I watched the whole league this year," he says. "That's the key to the ballgame. I saw some teams lose that shouldn't lose because of their attitude."

It was a problem for Kiwanis last Wednesday. It trailed Moose, 4-1, in the second inning and things looked bleak. "When we get behind and someone makes a mistake, the players have a tendency to yell at that player," says Rouse. "That doesn't help."

When that happened, Rouse had a ready reply for his boys. "We weren't very far down," he says. "I just told them if you're getting to get angry at someone, get angry at that team on the field. They're the ones who are beating you."

Kiwanis took his advice. It erupted for four runs in the top of the seventh to pull out a 11-7 win. Bernard Mitchell, Oscar Edwards, Chuck Williams, Duck Grayson, Ruben Blake, Shawn Roberts

Optimistic Carter Heads Full Steam Into UCF Cage Challenge

ORLANDO — Maybe Lee Corso is catching. Phil Carter, armed with optimism which could make the Orlando Renegades' coach seem bland, headed full steam into the job of University Central Florida basketball coach Monday before a media gathering.

Carter, 33, left a secure job as assistant at Hardin-Simmons (Texas) to tackle the UCF challenge. A challenge, indeed. He will not have a paid assistant and only five players remain from a 10-18 team.

No problem, he said. "I think that the future and the possibilities are limitless," said Carter, making sure the last word ended in "less", not "ed."

The former Daytona Beach Community College coach was one of three finalists to replace Chuck Machock, who departed with a 25-31 two-year record. Mark Friedinger, who coached previously at Rollins, and Virginia Tech assistant Ron Schneider were pared from an original list of 156. Friedinger withdrew and Carter received the nod from Cal Miller, UCF's associate athletic director.

"Personally and professionally, I was very impressed," said Miller Monday. "The fact that he is experienced with budgets such as ours and his will and work within our budgets was a very big asset for him."

Carter said he will recruit the Central Florida area, schedule a lot of Florida schools and play home games at the UCF gym as opposed to the Orange County Convention Center.

Bulls Name Albeck New Coach

CHICAGO (UPI) — Ask Chicago Bulls general manager Jerry Krause to select someone for an NBA head coaching job and he'll pick Stan Albeck.

Monday, Krause did it again.

Krause, who became Bulls general manager after Jerry Reinsdorf bought controlling interest in the club last February, officially named Albeck as Chicago's coach in a move that had been anticipated for at least last week.

Details of the pact were not released, but Albeck, who had one year remaining on his contract to coach the New Jersey Nets, reportedly will make more than $300,000 a year for three years. The Bulls also paid the Nets $100,000 as compensation.

An official for the Nets denied reports Monday that Villanova coach Rollie Massimino had been named to succeed Albeck. Massimino, who guided Villanova to the national championship last season, met with Nets officials last week.

Others who are reportedly candidates for New Jersey's vacant post are Indiana University coach Bobby Knight, and NBA assistant coaches Jimmy Rodgers of Boston and Dave Wohl of the Lakers.

Gamblers Land Playoff Spot

HOUSTON (UPI) — Since they ran off five straight victories at the beginning of the season, the Houston Gamblers have talked of little else but the U.S. Football League playoffs.

It took longer to secure a spot than they expected, but with Monday's 49-21 rout of the San Antonio Gunalingers, the Gamblers became the eighth and final team to qualify for the USFL playoffs which begin in two weeks.

"This is sure a relief," said quarterback Todd Dillon, who threw for 365 yards, including four touchdown passes, and ran for a fifth score. "We really didn't want to wait for the final game to qualify for the playoffs. This gets the monkey off our backs."

Gamblers head coach Jack Pardee said the difference in the two teams was in the trenches.

"Our offensive line gave Todd all the time in the world," Pardee said. "But I have more and more respect for (San Antonio quarterback) Rick Neuheisel every time I see him. He took a tremendous pounding, and he bounced back up time after time and got after it."

Stadium Turns Into Homerdome

Memorial Stadium turned into Sanford's version of the "Homerdome" Sunday as, in two games, six balls were hit out of the ballpark.

In Sunday's first game, DeLand Boulevard Tire remained unbeaten as it outslugged the Kherdan Stallions, 15-10.

Jeff Drury didn't hit one out for Boulevard, but he crunched three doubles and drove in four runs. Jeff Spina smashed a homer runs and double and drove in three runs while John Brenner unloaded a three-run shot.

The Stallions also shared in the fireworks display as Andy Moffat and Larry Jones both socked three-run homers and Jeff Altire ripped a pair of doubles and drove in three runs.

In the second game, the Orlando Braves won their first game with a 17-7 shellacking of New Smyrna Beach.

Phil Ramsey blasted two homers and collected four RBIs to lead the Braves and Ron Childress added a homer, single and three RBIs.

TAC Sanctions Lake Mary Meets

Lake Mary High is preparing for its third year of Summer Track Meets which begin Friday, June 28.

This summer, the meets will be sanctioned by the TAC, track's governing body under the name Lake Mary Track Club. Athletes participating in the Lake Mary meets can join the TAC for a $1 membership fee which includes group accident insurance for the meet and for the trip to and from the meet.

To participate in the meet, which has a number of age groups from under nine to 50 and over, there is a $1 fee for any number of events the participant wishes to enter. Athletes may also pay a $5 fee in advance to run in all seven summer meets.

Field events being at 5 p.m. with running events to start at 6:30. Meets will be held each Friday in July (5, 12, 19, 26) and two Friday's in August (2 and 9).

Lake Mary track coach Mark McGee said he encourages parents of kids or anyone interested to help run off meets.

O-Twins Overpower Greenville

GREENVILLE, S.C. — Mark Funderburk, Greg Morhardt and Mark Davidson each homered Monday night as the Orlando Twins overpowered Greenville, 11-6, in Southern League baseball.

Funderburk's blast was his 17th while Davidson's was his 10th. Morhardt's homer was a three-run clout which highlighted a four-run fifth inning.

Orlando, 27-33, is in last place in the SL, nine games behind Columbus. The O-Twins play Greenville again tonight.

In one other game Monday, Lakeland turned back Ocala, 7-4, in Florida State League baseball at Lakeland. Marty Freeman and Max Soto drilled homers for the Tigers.

Ex-SCC standout Bob Parker had a good night for the Astros with two singles, three runs scored and a stolen base.

Extra Exciting: Jackson's Arm, Bat Propel Tigers Past Oviedo

By Chris Flaster
Herald Sports Writer

EUSTIS — Chris Jackson drove in the winning runs in the top of the seventh then prevented the tying run from scoring in the bottom of the inning Monday as the Altamonte American Tigers outlasted the Oviedo Angels, 6-5, in the District 14 Top Team Tournament Major Division winner's bracket final at the Eustis Little League complex.

The Tigers, who ran their record to 21-2 with the win, advance to the Top Team finals which they will host Friday night at Eastmonte Field.

Oviedo, which had a 21-game winning streak snapped by the Tigers, will play in the loser's bracket final Thursday night at 7:30 at the Oviedo Little League complex. An Oviedo victory would set up a rematch between the two teams that slugged it out for seven innings Monday.

Monday night's battle was an exciting one from start to finish. It started as a pitching duel between Altamonte's Chuck Lamb and Oviedo's David Blanton. The two teams then traded the lead back and forth before it ended up tied at 4-4 going into the seventh inning.

Baseball

"The kids all pulled together and never gave up when we were down," Altamonte manager Mike Morro said. "We're ready to play the finals now, especially on our home field."

Neither team scored in the first two innings as Lamb and Blanton were both at their best. Altamonte's Chris Koepke then broke up the scoreless tie with a solo home run in the top of the third.

Oviedo was held scoreless through three innings but got to Lamb for three runs in the bottom of the fourth. Morris Jacobs reached on an error to start the rally and Dana Allen followed with a double. A walk loaded the bases and Terry Smith stepped up and ripped a double that drove in two runs for a 2-1 lead. Tommy Stickleather's RBI single gave the Angels a 3-1 advantage.

Altamonte scored twice in the top of the fifth to tie it at 3-3 but Oviedo pushed across a run in the bottom of the frame for a 4-3 lead. David Blanton singled and eventually scored on a passed ball for the go-ahead run.

Altamonte battled back with a run in the top of the sixth and held Oviedo scoreless in the bottom half to send the game into extra innings.

With runners on second and third in the top of the seventh, Jackson drilled a shot down the third base line that went for a two-run double and a 6-4 Altamonte lead.

Oviedo didn't give in, though, as it mounted a comeback attempt in the bottom of the seventh. Blanton drew a two-out walk to keep the inning alive and Marvin "Bubba" Fore doubled to put runners on second and third. Stickleather then lined a single to left to score Blanton and Fore also tried to score on the play. Jackson, Altamonte's left fielder quickly got the ball to relay man Pablo Abreu who wheeled and threw to Koepke at the plate who tagged out Fore for the final out.

"Chris (Jackson) made a perfect throw to the relay man (Abreu) and he threw the runner out at the plate," Morro said. "It was an exciting ending to a tough game."

"Oviedo has a very well organized team," added Morro. "They're pitcher was always around the plate so we had to hit. And they had some kids who put the bat on the ball. They're the best competition we've had all year and it's the best game we've played."

Expos Hold Off AWS; Move Into Title Game

Baseball

ROLLING HILLS — Kevin Wainscott revived the quiet Altamonte Expos bats with a three-run triple that highlighted a five-run fifth inning and Curt Prom drove in the go-ahead run in the top of the eighth as the Expos held off a tough Apopka-West Seminole Angels team, 7-6, Monday night in Top Team Tournament District 14 Junior Division action.

While Kevin Wainscott got the Altamonte bats going, his father, manager Kelly Wainscott, made a daring move in the bottom of the eighth to aid the victory.

The Expos advance to the finals which will be played Wednesday night at 7:30 at Rolling Hills with a second game, if necessary, Thursday at 7:30 at Rolling Hills.

Apopka-West Seminole built up a 3-0 lead through four innings Monday before the Expos roared back with five runs in the top of the fifth.

David Hamilton got the inning going when he dropped a bunt down the third base line. The pitcher fielded it but overthrew first and Hamilton motored all the way to third. Mike Locke then drew a walk and, with one out, Pat Battle singled in Hamilton.

Kent Brubaker then walked to load the bases and Wainscott drilled a fastball off AWS pitcher Mark Gabrovic over the right fielder's head for a three-run triple and a 4-3 Altamonte lead. Wainscott scored on wild pitch for the fifth run of the frame.

Apopka-West Seminole came back with two runs in the bottom of the sixth to tie it at 5-5 but Altamonte scored once in the top of the seventh for a 6-5 lead. Prom walked, stole second and scored on a two-out single by Locke.

AWS took advantage of a pair of Altamonte errors to tie it at 6-6 in the bottom of the seventh. Raul Otero rapped a base hit and took second when the left fielder bobbled the ball. Altamonte reliever Brubaker then struck out Ryan Lance on a curve ball but the catcher couldn't handle it and, while Lance was forced at first on the dropped third strike, Otero went to third. On the same play, the Expos' first baseman threw wild to third and Otero scored.

Altamonte came right back with a run in the top of the eighth. Battle, the number nine hitter in the order, led off with a single but was picked off first. Brubaker then walked and Wainscott smashed a double to right center to put runners on second and third. It was the third hit of the game for Wainscott. Danny Hendricks was then intentionally walked and, with two out, Prom looped a single just out of the reach of the second baseman to score Brubaker for a 7-6 lead.

Apopka-West Seminole threatened in the bottom of the eighth

Kevin Wainscott ripped three hits Monday, including a bases-loaded triple, to lead the Altamonte Expos past Apopka-West Seminole.

when, with one out, Brubaker walked Robert Brown and Scott Casialdo walked. Brubaker came back to strike out Gabrovic bringing up cleanup hitter Brett King.

Wainscott decided to intentionally walk King, the best hitter in the AWS lineup, putting the tying run on third and the go-ahead run on second.

"King knocked me out of top team last year," Wainscott said. "And I wasn't going to let him beat me again."

The move paid off for the Expos as Brubaker induced Otero to pop out to third on the first pitch for the final out.

"We played pretty well but our defense let them stay in the ballgame," Wainscott said. "We made four key errors. AWS has a very sound baseball team. We'll probably play them again in the finals."

Astros Stay Alive, 13-11

MAITLAND — Altamonte's National League Astros have made a habit of playing in the Top Team Tournament. They've been a participant the past three years. Monday night, however, it took some doing to stay alive in District 14, Division 2 field.

Manager Duke Pleicones' club used a six-run second inning to take an 8-2 and then held off a last-inning rally for a 13-11 victory at the Maitland Little League complex Monday night.

Chris Pleicones went the distance and struck out five. The Astros (1-1) play Maitland tonight at 7:30 at Pierwan.

Jay Kane was hit by pitch to open the six-run second. Alie Cornell and Chris Weimer walked to load the bases before Mark Pleicones drilled a line drive to second baseman, who let it get past him for an error which scored two runs. Rich Schou followed with a single to drive in Weimer and Andy Spolski singled to score Pleicones. Dave Robison then reached on an error by the shortstop to score Schou.

Spolski, who led the Astros with a single and a double, came through with his hit two-bagger in the fifth. Spolski's blast over the left fielder's head scored Kyle Eischman and Chris Pleicones.

Pleicones came back with two runs in the bottom of the sixth on a two-run homer by Scott Seirert but Pleicones settled down to get the final three outs on two groundballs and a strikeout.

Chen Was Real Open Winner

BIRMINGHAM, Mich. (UPI) — By the way everybody mobbed him in the parking lot, telling him how much they enjoyed watching him play and congratulating him, you would've thought for sure Tze-Chung Chen was the U.S. Open winner.

Actually, Andy North struggled for that distinction, winning the Open by one shot with a less than spectacular 4-over-par 74 Sunday that included five bogeys that gave him his second Open title in seven years.

But in a broader sense, the much bigger winner was Chen, Taiwan's shy, wispy-like 140-pound fifth-year pro, even though he blew a three-stroke lead and wound up in a second-place tie with Dave Barr and Denis Watson.

North merely won $103,000. That was the first prize, but it was only money.

Chen, or T.C., as they call him on the tour, did better than that.

He won the people. Not only all those who watched him here, but many of those who saw him on national TV. He won them over by the indomitable manner in which he refused to submit to "The Monster," as Ben Hogan once referred to Oakland Hills' tough 6,996-yard layout, and by the way he battled his way back into a share of the lead once more after double hitting his ball and taking a hacker's eight on the par-4 457-yard fifth hole.

Milton Richman
UPI EDITOR
-SPORTS

The details are almost too heart-rending to recount. T.C. was four shots ahead of North, six in front of Barr and nine ahead of Watson when he ran into disaster trying to outguess the wind on the fifth hole by using a 4-iron for his second shot instead of a 5-iron.

That was one mistake. He compounded it when he put his third shot into the rough. Chen had a bad lie for his fourth shot and, trying too hard to hole out with his wedge instead of simply putting it up on the green, he hit the ball twice.

His shot never reached the green, falling short and landing on the collar. Striking the ball twice cost him a penalty stroke despite the fact his action was purely inadvertent. He then chipped eight feet past the hole and took two more putts to get down, but that wasn't the end of it. Successive bogeys on the next three holes dropped him three strokes behind North.

"Long day," Chen smiled wanly at the group of reporters collected around his locker.

"Bad head," he said, touching his white cap with the Taiwanese flag sewn on.

Chen's confession was reminiscent of nothing so much as Roberto DeVicenzo's classic "I made a stupid" after he mistakenly signed his scorecard showing the wrong total on the 17th hole of the 1968 Masters.

Like Chen, DeVicenzo called the penalty on himself. It cost him his chance to be in a playoff and gave that Masters to Bob Goalby.

Chen had led through three rounds and after that horrible eight, some wise guys suggested T.C. stood for tight collar. He showed them it wasn't so, pulling into a tie for the lead with North and Barr on the 13th after North took three straight bogeys himself on the ninth, 10th and 11th.

By then the whole thing began to look like the Botch Up Open.

Former Judge Accused Of Lying About Gambling

ORLANDO (UPI) — A federal grand jury has accused attorney Edward Joseph Hanlon Jr. of lying to it when he denied discussing establishment of a high-stakes, illegal gambling operation in Orlando in 1981.

The indictment was handed up Friday but was not unsealed until Monday after Hanlon had his initial appearance before U.S. Magistrate Donald P. Dietrich.

The indictment charged Hanlon with five counts of making false declarations to the grand jury May 6.

The grand jury is investigating allegations of possible illegal conduct in the operation of the Orange-Osceola County State Attorney's office.

29 Rescued From Burning Ship

MIAMI (UPI) — Twenty-nine crewmembers stranded aboard a burning Mexican cargo vessel for four days have been rescued by a passing freighter and are en route to Miami, leaving behind three crewmen reported dead and two presumed missing.

The Coast Guard said the Puebla caught fire Friday in the Atlantic Ocean off the Florida coast, but the mishap was not discovered until Monday, said Petty Officer Dave Anderson.

accounts at Sun Bank, Longwood, with at least $39,100 of the Jaycees' money without the Jaycees' permission or a corporate resolution, according to Seminole County court records. He then withdrew part of the money, records show.

Mize stipulated that Schnack's jail time include a work release program which means he will work during the day at a job away from the jail but spend nights in the lockup.

Waggoner said the Jaycees have taken steps to assure a similar embezzlement cannot occur again.

He said the organization has tightened its auditing procedures and requires its checks to have two signatures.

Waggoner said the incident would not prompt the club to conduct background checks on people who join the organization.

Such checks, he said, would not be in keeping with the Jaycees' philosophy which is what a person is going to do is more important than what they have done. —Deane Jordan and drainage projects completed which he was assigned in the past year. "They will be done," he responded. And she made the motion to grant his requests except for a new building which he said should be constructed northeast of the present public works administrative building at Five Points.

Sellers said the old building was a jail at some time in the past, he has been told, and it has become something of a jail again with his employees crammed into the limited space.

He asked for $1.75 million in his budget which when added to an identical amount from the environmental services department would permit construction of $3.5 million two-story facility sufficient in size for the next seven to 10 years. The environmental services department is now operating out of temporary trailers at Five Points.

The commissioners said they will consider that request again later this week.

In addition to the four new employees recommended by Hooper — a senior accounting clerk, a financial services manager, a secretary and a project engineer — the commissioners approved a four-member tree crew to beef up Sellers' staff.

Also approved was the upgrading in salary of a receptionist to a clerk-typist. Sellers said the receptionist also does secretarial work for him and numerous other chores not included in her job description.

Also approved were a storage building, 10 mobile radios, a road extension into Mitchell Hammock, surveying equipment, computer software, two computers, a pickup truck and expansion of the department's sign shop.

On the one-stop permitting for new construction, Price said he conferred with the county Homebuilders Association whose members agreed to a 10 percent increase in building permit fees for the new service.

Price said it now takes builders two weeks to get a building permit from the date of applications and this will be cut to two-to-three days.

Shuttle Set To Launch $44.7 Million Arab Satellite

CAPE CANAVERAL (UPI) — Taking no chances, the crew of the shuttle Discovery today closely inspected a costly Arab communications satellite before proceeding with preparations for launch to earn NASA $11.6 million.

The $44.7 million Arabsat satellite is owned by the Arab Satellite Communications Organization, a consortium of 21 Arab League nations including Moammar Khadafy's Libya and the Palestine Liberation Organization.

Commander Daniel Brandenstein, co-pilot John Creighton and crewmates Shannon Lucid, Steven Nagel, John Fabian, Frenchman Patrick Baudry and Prince Sultan Salman Al-Saud blasted off Monday after a flawless countdown to begin the 18th shuttle mission.

The international crew launched Mexico's first communications satellite about eight hours after blastoff on the weeklong mission. A third relay station is set for launch Wednesday.

Instrument readings indicated one of Arabsat's two stowed solar panels had partially unfolded inside a canister in Discovery's payload bay that protects the satellite from high temperatures prior to release from the spaceship.

But mission managers said a position sensor must have failed because the sun shield would prevent the solar wing from unfolding enough to activate the switch. To make sure, the crew was told to open the sun shield and inspect the relay station with a television camera on the shuttle's robot arm.

"And there it is, Houston, a guided tour of the Arabsat sun shield," Brandenstein said after showing both solar panels firmly locked in the launch position.

"Roger, that's good work, we like the pictures we see," replied Robert Springer in mission control. "I think that should wrap it up for us."

Saud, a nephew of King Fahd of Saudi Arabia, is on board Discovery to monitor the launch of the relay station. He has few other assignments. The Arabsat was designed to serve as an orbital spare for a similar satellite launched in February atop an unmanned French Ariane booster. A third Arabsat will be held on the ground as an additional spare.

Alli Al-Mashat, director of the Arabsat program, said Saudi Arabia owns the major share of the satellite system at 29 percent. The other four major shareholders, in order, are Kuwait, Iraq, Qatar and Libya. A NASA spokeswoman said the PLO owns less than 1 percent of the relay station.

The international flavor of Discovery's mission was highlighted Monday when Saud celebrated the end of the Moslem holy month of Ramadan by breaking fast in orbit.

David Leestma in mission control told Saud the new moon had been sighted in Saudi Arabia signaling the end of the holiest month in the Moslem year. During Ramadan, devout Moslems do not eat or drink until sunset.

"Well, thanks very much," the 28-year-old prince said. "That's good news because I'm really starving up here and thirsty."

city properties, in the order the board believes they need to be cleaned up, are listed, as well as a promotional campaign the board hopes will spark clean-up fever.

Improvement of City-Owned Property

The board recommended a priority list of city-owned properties that need to be improved. The list is divided into two groups — those sites that would be complicated and expensive to improve and those which would be simple and inexpensive to improve. Miss Jacobson said both lists could be tackled at the same time because those tagged as simple projects would cost little or no money.

The first list is as follows:

- 1) Municipal Parking Lot, Seminole Boulevard and Palmetto Avenue. Place more trees in and around the lot and extend the irrigation system around the lot.
- 2) Marina and Holiday Isle. Redesign and replant the greenbelt along the front entrance, the entry road and the strip on the east side of the marina parking lot. Place trees and picnic tables along the shoreline near the sailboat ramp and provide irrigation to all areas along the entrance to the marina and the Holiday Inn.
- 3) City Hall, 300 N. Park Ave. The area around City Hall needs to be totally redesigned, replanted and irrigated, the report said. Large trees and shrubs need to be planted around the perimeter and in the parking lot. This could cost about $15,000, the report said.
- 4) Medians at French Avenue and Seminole Boulevard, Park Drive and French Avenue, and west First Street and French Avenue. These need to be redesigned, replanted and irrigated. Medians, the gateway to the city, provide a "first opportunity" of Sanford's image, the board said. Therefore, they need much attention.

- 5) Cultural Arts Building, Fifth Street and Oak Avenue. This "wonderful old" building, as the board calls it, needs a paint job and the grounds need to be replanted and redesigned.

Park at Sanford Avenue and First Street. The site is owned by developer and frozen food entrepreneur Jeno Paulucci. The city maintains the park and does not charge Paulucci for use of the land. The city should provide irrigation and redesign, replant and trim up the park, the report said.

The prioritized sites that would be cheaper to improve are:

- 1) Lakefront greenbelt along the seawall, between French Avenue and Mellonville. Ten years ago, 35 beds were planted with azaleas, pampas grass and viburnum along the lake. Holly bushes were added later. Now, because of the way they are maintained, the view of the lake is blocked, the report said. The Sanford Woman's Club has offered to help pay for the redesigning of the beds. Irrigation of the beds also needs to be extended to surrounding grassy areas.
- 2) Lake side of seawall, across from the Sanford Civic Center, at the entrance to the marina, in front of the Holiday Inn and along the shoreline to the marina fence. These areas are weedy and are lined with trash, green scum and dead fish. The board recommends the trash, scum and fish be removed and the weeds be cut or replaced with more attractive plants, like elephant ears.

Some of the weeds may not be removed without a permit from the state departments of Environmental Regulation and Natural Resources because the weeds keep the lake healthy.

- 3) Police Department, French Avenue. Beds on the south and east sides of the building should be replanted.

- 4) Fire Department, 14th Street and French Avenue. Dead plants on the south side of the building need to be removed and new plants need to be placed on the north side.
- 5) Rinker Stadium, Mellonville Avenue. Provide irrigation to roadside greenbelt and buffer zone on street side of fences. Require lessee to mend the fences and fertilize grass. The city should try to terminate the lease and sell the property to the school board, using the money from the sale to fund Scenic Improvement Board projects.
- 6) Catholic Church, Park Avenue and Eighth Street. Provide irrigation to entire lot and plant grass seed. Remove the chain link fence and plant a buffer zone.
- 7) Brick planters on First Street. These planters were provided by the city to help the merchants spruce up First Street. The plants need to be removed and replaced with spargery fern and the parks department need to water them on a regular basis, the report said.
- 8) Water Department, French Avenue and 13th Street. The building needs to be repainted and repaired and the grounds need to be replanted, with all dead plants and trees removed.
- 9) Chase Park, 13th Street. Replace tree trunk parking posts with proper posts and paint recreational equipment. Remove painted tree stumps and transplant trees to there from another site.
- 10) Speer Grove Park, Mellonville Avenue near 20th Street. Add more picnic tables.

Jaycee Park, French Avenue and Fourth Street. Clarify lease agreement. If it's the Jaycees' responsibility to maintain the grounds, the city should see that it is done. The board also recommends redesigning and replanting the parking area.

Fort Mellon Park

One of the more controversial aspects about the board's plan is its recommendation for Mellonville Park. This park, which extends from Mellonville Avenue to Sanford Avenue has "the potential of being one of the most breath-taking sites in the county," the report said.

But it is "overgrown and underplanted" and it has too much activity for what it's supposed to be — a passive park.

The board recommends that the two softball fields be removed from the park, a suggestion strongly opposed by board member and parks department head Jim Jennigan.

The board says there are other fields in town where softball players can enjoy their sport. Games at the fields, with fans yelling and screaming, disrupt the passive nature of the park, the board said.

It would prefer creating a scenic park similar to a lakefront park in Geneva, Switzerland. The board recommends hiring a landscape architect and "begin at once to create construction, planting, irrigation and funding plans for this massive project."

'Pick A Park'

Lastly, the board recommends that the city undertake a promotional campaign to raise money to help implement its massive plans. Civic, garden and women's clubs, as well as businesses, could be lobbied for donations, the board said. Such organization could "pick a park" and help pay for its improvement. A plaque bearing the individual's or group's name could be placed in the park.

The board wrote a promotional jingle, called "Pick A Park," to help sell the idea.

"Pick your part and pick a park
Pick a park and put it pretty
Pick a plant to plant in a park
Pick a park to plant your plant in
If you plan to plant a plant in a park
And plan to pick a park to plant in Where's the plant you plan to plant
And where's the part of the park to plant it?"

"They asked me to sing and I didn't see why I shouldn't," Roussos said. "It was my 40th birthday on Saturday and why shouldn't I sing for them."

Asked what he would like to say to Lebanon before he left, he told reporters: "I'd like to come back and sing for peeps."

Berri assured reporters the rest of the hostages were in good condition and were being well cared for.

"I check their menus.... I check what they eat, where they sleep.

"They are here in the capital (Beirut). They are not in the plane. I cannot tell you everything now, but they are not all in one place."

A spokesman at Berri's home said the minister freed the three as a gesture of goodwill in response to appeals from the Greek government.

But as the three were being released, the hijackers aboard the TWA jet at Beirut International Airport said they were growing impatient with the apparent lack of progress in securing the release of fellow Shites from an Israeli jail and others from jails in Kuwait and Spain.

In Israel, the respected Haaretz newspaper said Shite, U.S. and other officials discussed a compromise to give the hostages to the Red Cross in exchange for Israel's commitment to free its prisoners "within a short time."

"The U.S. has approached us to tell us the International Red Cross may make an approach to us," ABC News quoted Israeli Prime Minister Shimon Peres as telling schoolchildren in Israel. "If they do, we will listen to them and respond."

Israel said earlier it would consider freeing its prisoners — taken in security sweeps in south Lebanon during the Israeli occupation of the country — only if asked by senior U.S. officials.

Prime Rate Down To 9 1/2%

NEW YORK (UPI) — Morgan Guaranty Trust today lowered its prime lending rate to 9 1/2 percent from 10 percent, the first time this benchmark rate has been in single-digit territory since September 1978.

Morgan became the first to make what is expected to be an industry-wide move.

Analysts said Monday the question isn't whether the prime will come down but when.

Most believed, however, that banks would wait for the Federal Reserve to lead the way with another reduction in its discount rate.

Erwin Motors' motto is "You work, you ride." Older models are financed at zero percent interest. In addition to selling cars, Erwin also has excellent repair facilities.

Dealer: Customer Satisfaction Is Number One Concern

George Erwin has been in the car business for 15 years — including 10 as used car sales manager for Don Reid Ford. He knows his business well. Erwin established his own business two years ago on Monroe Boulevard in Lake Monroe. He says not only is business booming but he has become friends with many of his customers.

"Customer satisfaction is our number one concern," Erwin said. What makes Erwin's car lot different from others is the fact that after a car is sold it is not forgotten about. Every car on Erwin's lot leaves with a warranty. Erwin also has a full-time mechanic on duty and he has a mobile air conditioning repair service.

"We are in the process of opening a body repair shop, too," Erwin said.

Erwin said that the motto for his business is "If you work, you ride." He said that he stocks cars from $200 to $20,000. Erwin has also set up a system where older cars are financed with zero percent interest.

Erwin sells to many dealers because his prices are so low. He said he also does much repair because his reputation for being honest has grown.

"We are the largest and most picturesque dealership in Lake Monroe. We are also only one in Lake Monroe," Erwin said with a chuckle.

In addition to cars, Erwin said he sells a lot of trucks. But you won't find many imports on his lot. He doesn't like them.

One of the new things that Erwin is trying is to take his mobile air conditioning repair unit to Flea World. He said no one has ever tried a drive-in mobile repair unit of this type before but he thinks it will be a big success.

Erwin said that customers call all the time for the unit to come out to their houses or businesses for repair work.

"I can beat anybody's price. I have a car for everybody's needs. You work, you ride," Erwin said.

Court Makes It Tougher To Force Retirement

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Supreme Court, ruling in favor of firefighters and airline pilots in separate cases, Monday gave older Americans with physically demanding jobs greater rights to work beyond traditional retirement ages.

The justices ruled unanimously that Baltimore could not force its firefighters to retire at 55, despite a federal policy of retiring most government firefighters at that age.

The court also held 8-0, with Justice Lewis Powell not participating, that Western Airlines must consider making pilots into flight engineers if they request it when they reach the Federal Aviation Administration's required retirement age of 60 for commercial pilots.

In both cases, the court said employers, in setting mandatory retirement ages, must be able to prove that age is a "bona fide occupational qualification" for a specific job. The court said neither Baltimore nor Western had done that.

Five of the high court's nine members are more than 75 and another three are more than 60. They serve for life.

In other actions Monday as the court pressed toward the end of its term, the justices:

- Affirmed on a 4-4 vote, with Powell abstaining, a ruling that a Nebraska law requiring a photograph on a driver's license interfered with a woman's religious belief against the making of any "graven image."
- Accepted for arguments another religious rights dispute over whether the Air Force can forbid a Jewish officer from wearing a traditional yarmulke while on duty.
- Held 7-2, in a Maryland case, that the purchase of allegedly obscene material by an undercover police officer is not a seizure under the Fourth Amendment and does not require a search warrant.
- Agreed to decide whether the federal law banning discrimination against the handicapped applies to newborn infants suffering from birth defects who are denied certain medical care.

Both mandatory retirement cases stem from the 1967 federal Age Discrimination in Employment Act, which bars discrimination on the basis of age. The act, which has been amended over the years, protects workers from forced retirement up to age 70.

Robert Johnson, a Baltimore city firefighter, and five of his colleagues challenged the city's mandatory retirement policy. Johnson was involuntarily retired on May 1, 1979 — two days after his 60th birthday.

A court temporarily barred the city from forcing the firefighters' retirement until the case was completed, and Johnson was returned to his job.

The city argued firefighters' ability to perform their duties safely and efficiently diminishes after age 60. The city also pointed to federal firefighter retirement provisions as reasoning for their rule.

But Justice Thurgood Marshall said the retirement rule for federal firefighters was not based on any "bona fide occupational qualification for firefighters" and is not a defense for the city.

"We're going to have older firefighters in the business," Capt. John Harrington, a Baltimore city fire department spokesman, said Monday after the ruling.

"I think each case needs to be treated separately," Harrington added. "Some people are more adept at firefighting, others are not. When they reach a certain age, they seem more susceptible to injuries."

In the pilots' case, Western Airlines had extended the FAA mandatory retirement age for pilots to flight engineers, who usually monitor instruments but may be called on to take over the controls of the plane in an emergency.

The case began in 1977 when pilots Rulon Starley and Charles Criswell sought transfer to the job of flight engineer on their 60th birthday, and Albert Ron, a flight engineer, refused to retire at age 60. In November, 1980, a federal jury agreed with the three. In June 1983, the 9th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals agreed.

Justice John Paul Stevens pointed out in the Western case that Congress required employers to "evaluate employees between the ages of 40 and 70 on their merits and not their age." He said any exception, such as setting a mandatory retirement age, must be justified.

Honda, Rover Collaborate On Auto

LONDON (UPI) — British car maker Austin Rover and Japanese partner Honda signed an agreement Monday to collaborate on a second new car.

An Austin Rover statement outlined a complex arrangement. The two countries will jointly design the car, but each will produce its own version. Honda will manufacture the British version in Japan, Austin Rover the Japanese version in Britain.

The move followed Monday's announcement in the House of Commons by Norman Tebbit, secretary of state for trade and industry, of Government approval of the latest British Leyland corporate plan.

An Austin Rover statement said that the Honda Motor Company Limited and Austin Rover Group Limited were now able to announce that, encouraged by the excellent progress being made on the joint "XX Executive Car" program.

The new document, signed by Honda Motor Co. Chairman Noboru Okamura and Austin Rover Chairman Harold J. Musgrove, takes their collaboration several steps further.

Besides switching technology on the new car project, Austin Rover will manufacture other Honda models for sale in Europe through Honda's networks

Reagan Orders Review Of Military Purchasing

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Reagan, fed up with those who blame the Pentagon for $435 hammers and $640 toilet seats, has ripped into defense contracting abuses and ordered a top-to-bottom review of military buying habits.

On the counterattack against critics of his military buildup, Reagan let loose with a broadside at the defense community Monday as he tapped industrialist David Packard to oversee a year-long review of Pentagon procurement and decision-making practices.

"Waste and fraud by corporate contractors are more than a ripoff of the taxpayer," Reagan said. "They're a blow to the security of the nation. And this the American people cannot and should not tolerate."

Careful not to hint at dissatisfaction with his Pentagon team, Reagan heaped praise on Defense Secretary Caspar Weinberger for "a tremendous job at ferreting out waste and fraud" and said "many management reforms" already are in place.

But on Capitol Hill, Rep. Dennis Hertel, D-Mich., accused Reagan of trying to divert attention from congressional action on Pentagon procurement reforms, which Democrats have used as a political issue against the administration.

"We don't need a commission to study defense reform, because we've all read about the expensive $400 hammers and the $7,000 coffee-makers," Hertel said.

White House spokesman Larry Speakes said the idea for the commission, first raised on Capitol Hill, caught on with Reagan in part because of the outcry over cost overruns, bill-padding and illegal expenditures by some of the nation's leading defense contractors.

Reagan contended the furor was not an indictment of his defense buildup but "a misconception born at least in part of a drumbeat of propaganda and demagoguery that denies the real accomplishments of the last four years."

"The situation reminds me of the old saying: 'Don't clear the skeletons out of the closet; they'll accuse you of murder,'" he said. "Well, we've ignored that advice in this administration."

Weinberger, the president said, "went straight to the skeletons in the closet, and there were many."

Packard brings professional experience on two levels to the chairmanship of the Commission on Defense Management. He is a former deputy defense secretary and co-founder of Hewlett-Packard Co., which did more than $144 million in business last year with the Pentagon.

He promised to conduct "a top-to-bottom review and a tough review."

"I know as well as any person that these problems did not begin in your administration," Packard told Reagan. "I had to deal with the same problems when I was at the Pentagon 15 years ago."

Speakes said Reagan wants recommendations from the commission by December, with an interim report by next spring and a final report in June.

The other commission members will be named later.

Athens Easy Target For Hijackers

United Press International
Despite concern by world airlines over lax security at the Athens airport, the Greek government last month ordered the airlines to dismantle their own supplemental security system, air transport officials say.

A survey by United Press International showed most international airports have reasonably tight security measures and that many have stiffened their requirements for flights to and from the Middle East.

But at Athens' Hellinikon airport, parts of the perimeter fence are down, allowing for easy access by a determined terrorist. Last March, for example, an Arab terrorist drove a truck onto the tarmac to fire a bazooka at an Alia Royal Jordanian airlines jet.

"We have been able to operate out of Athens only because airlines have supplemented government-provided security with their own program," said Rodney Wallis, director of security for the International Air Transport Association, the world body representing more than 100 airlines.

"Everywhere else in the world, either the standard comes up to what international airlines and governments require, or, where we have identified weaknesses... we tend to have them corrected pretty quickly."

Wallis would not say that lax security at the Athens airport led to the hijacking, "but it didn't provide much of a deterrent," he said.

The Greek government last month told the airlines to dismantle their security systems on June 1 but the directive is being negotiated with association officials, Wallis said. The program involves sending passengers through a second metal de-tor and a second inspection of hand baggage at the terminal.

The association sent a cable Monday to Greek officials requesting that the supplemental system be kept in place.

Wallis said "at least one country" in Europe has said privately it will refuse to allow its airlines to fly into Athens unless the program is retained.

The Greek government denied it has security problems any worse than any other international airport, pointing to hijackings in the last year in Paris and Munich.

Town Mourns Slaying Of 'All-American Kid'

WALDORF, Md. (UPI) — Friends of Navy diver Robert Dean Stethem, who was pistol-whipped and killed by Moslem hijackers, struggled to understand why the "All-American kid" was singled out by the terrorists.

"So many people don't give a damn about anyone and then this happens to a good kid all the way across the world," said Dale Cornett, a business teacher at Thomas Stone High School, where Stethem graduated in 1980.

"He was a nice kid — an All-American kid."

After an agonizing three-day wait, Stethem's family was officially notified

Monday that their 23-year-old son was the hostage on TWA Flight 847 who was slain during a refueling stop at Beirut International Airport Saturday and dumped on the tarmac.

The body was to be returned to the United States today.

The passenger who sat next to Stethem on the flight, Ruth Henderson, 16, told reporters in London the hijackers kicked the victim in the face and broke his ribs, bludgeoned him with the butt of a pistol and shot him.

"He was very proud of being in the service," Stethem's father said. "We probably need more fighters like him."

The Stethems are a military family. Stethem's father is retired from the Navy. His mother, Patricia, worked for the Navy. His older brother, Kenneth, 24, is stationed in Norfolk, Va., and younger brother Patrick, 19, will enter the Navy next fall.

Robert Stethem enlisted for a five-year stint in the Navy six months after graduating from high school and enjoyed his work, family and friends said.

Stethem, a diver and underwater steelworker in the Seabees, held the rank of petty officer second class.

More Freed Hostages Back Home, Glad Of It

BOSTON (UPI) — American hostages freed by Moslem hijackers on a TWA jetliner returned home relieved to be out of danger, but some felt guilty about leaving more than 40 fellow passengers in the hands of the terrorists.

Families and friends tearfully welcomed 26 freed hostages with flowers and balloons at Logan International Airport Monday afternoon.

"It was like a nightmare," said Sharon Barnes of Bar Harbor, Maine, who was released Saturday. "I felt very guilty that I was leaving those men on the plane."

Dorothy Tressler, 62, of Braintree, Mass., said it felt "marvelous" to be back in America. "I just want to go home and be with my family. I've seen enough planes, believe me," she said.

Tressler said the freed hostages who flew to Boston made a pact not to say anything to reporters that might endanger those still held by the terrorists.

"We decide not to say anything because the wives whose husbands are still on the plane asked us not to. We don't want to jeopardize their safety," she explained.

"They were compassionate," she said of the hijackers. "That's what made it so hard. They were very good to women and children. They fed us."

Reunions were delayed more than an hour as the freed hostages went through U.S. Customs and spoke with FBI and Federal Aviation Administration agents.

"It was a terrible way to end a beautiful vacation," said Agnes Leber, 53, of Middletown, R.I. "I'm delighted to be back in the U.S.A."

The group returned four days after their abduction on a flight from Athens to Rome that was bound for Boston.

Of the 26 hostages who returned, 15 flew on to Chicago while the others remained in New England.

Barnes said she did not witness the fatal shooting of an American Navyman aboard the plane, but she heard the gunshot from her seat in the coach section. "It all took place in the first-class compartment," she said. "We could hear it."

Barnes said the passengers spent hours bent forward in their seats with their arms over their heads, and could not see much.

"They never threatened me personally," she said. "They went into everyone's bags and just threw out what they didn't want. They threw it everywhere."

"It's a great to be home," said William Cocoris of Milton, Mass. "I was very apprehensive at times that I'd never get home."

In Chicago, 15 passengers from the same hijacked flight arrived home Monday night and were hustled off to waiting relatives. Most had no comment.

But Sophie Kowalczyk, asked if she would travel to the Holy Land again, said, "No, no more. I'm just not going over there anymore."

Ed Liebst was asked what was the most trying time of the ordeal.

"All of it," he said.

Flight attendant Judy Cox, back home in Kansas City after being released from the airliner, said the terrorists threatened several times to kill those on board. "Everyone on board knew you had to stay calm to stay alive," she said.

"A lot goes through your mind," said Cox, who was not harmed. "We had a lot of time to think about things, too. I thought a lot about my family and how they must feel about all this. I just prayed that everything would be all right."

Navy Task Force Waits Off Coast

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A Navy task force waited off Lebanon's coast today despite what officials say are dwindling prospects for a dramatic military rescue of more than 40 American hostages held by Moslem gunmen in Beirut.

The force is led by the nuclear-powered aircraft carrier Nimitz, which was ordered to the eastern Mediterranean as a precaution in response to the hijacking of TWA Flight 847, Navy officials said Monday.

At the same time, a three-ship amphibious force headed by the helicopter carrier Sarpan with 1,500 U.S. Marines aboard cut short a port visit to Gibraltar and steamed eastward in the Mediterranean, the officials said. How far east the force will go was not immediately known.

The prospects of U.S. military action to free the remaining hostages — believed to number 43, most American men — diminished once the passengers were shifted from the jetliner to hideouts somewhere in the lawless capital.

Lake Mary Residents Give City Officials Piece Of Their Minds

Despite dreadful weather, 51 Lake Mary residents went to Lake Mary's city hall Saturday and gave Mayor Richard Fess, City Manager Kathy Rice, Commissioner Harry Terry and three developers a piece of their minds.

"What's Happening In Lake Mary Day" gave residents a chance to meet the developers who are rapidly changing the face of Lake Mary and confront city leaders about growth and other issues. Residents were also asked to fill out a survey.

Mrs. Rice said the gathering was a real success.

"I felt people were impressed and excited that they got a chance to give their input," she said.

Mrs. Rice said the results of the survey will be available at Thursday's city commission meeting. The survey asked residents their feelings about growth, land-use plans and other city issues including drainage and garbage collection.

Although no decisions were made at Saturday's gathering, Mrs. Rice said the input from the residents will be highly useful and given much consideration.

The issue that concerned residents the most Saturday was the city's land-use plan, a blueprint for managing growth in this town of about 4,000.

Lake Mary has three separate plans under consideration and hopes to have one picked out for the city soon. A special work session of the city commission is scheduled to meet on June 25 to discuss the three plans.

Mrs. Rice said many people who don't normally come to city commission meetings showed up Saturday.

"Many people said we ought to have more of these meetings," she said.

Urinary Block Causes Pain; See A Urologist

Dr. Gott

DEAR DR. GOTT — Sometimes it hurts very much when I urinate. It is especially true in the morning. I am a 36-year-old man. I don't think it is possible for me to have VD. What could it be?

DEAR READER — You may be suffering from an obstruction in the urinary outflow tract. This can be physiological (from spasms) or it can result from an actual anatomical problem, like an adhesion or enlargement. Some men have difficulty emptying a distended bladder; the act of urination can be painful if a full bladder causes disruption of the normal voiding reflexes. Some men have venereal disease and are not aware of it; others may have a low-grade urinary infection, especially in the prostate gland, and not know it. Your best bet is to see a urologist. After appropriate evaluation, he will very likely be able to solve your problem.

DEAR DR. GOTT — I am 75 and don't seem to have good control over my kidneys now. I often wet myself. I have had a Pap test and a sugar test, and both showed nothing.

DEAR READER — As women grow older, particularly if they have had babies, anatomical changes are inevitable in their reproductive tracts. One of these changes is a loss of angle of the urethra (urinary conduit) as it leaves the bladder. The condition is called a cystocele. Surgery is sometimes necessary to "tack" the bladder up and re-establish the necessary angle for control. However, pelvic-strengthening exercises are often useful in alleviating the problem. Your gynecologist will be able to train you in these simple exercises, and they might enhance your control to the point where you could become continent. Your difficulty is probably not in your kidneys; it is undoubtedly in the area between the bladder and vagina — home territory for a gynecologist.

DEAR DR. GOTT — I went to the doctor for my annual checkup. He found a polyp in my rectum and wants to take it out. I'm afraid that he might find something and I don't want him to do it. What do you think?

DEAR READER — Get it out. Polyps are typically benign growths, but they can enlarge and bleed. Some polyps are exceedingly dangerous because they are pre-malignant; in time, they can degenerate into cancer.

If you believe that you can wish away something unpleasant by ignoring it, you are engaging in a form of magical thinking

WIN AT BRIDGE

By James Jacoby

Declarer knew his percentages. First he won the spade ace. After drawing trumps with the heart ace and king, he led a club back to his king. West took the ace and queen and played a third club, trumped by South.

Next South played a spade to dummy's jack, which lost to the queen. When the diamond finesse also failed, so did the contract.

South was unlucky in that three out of three key cards were badly placed, but making the right assumptions would have led to a favorable result.

First, he should assume that West's nine of spades lead denies possession of the spade queen. Accordingly, after cashing the ace and king of trumps, he should play the spade king, which eliminates the second spade from West's hand.

Now it is time to lead clubs. If East plays low, South should put in the 10. If East puts up the jack, South should cover with the king. In any event, South should leave West on lead and when West plays the third club, South should simply discard a third low spade from his hand.

With no more spades to play, West must either lead away from the king of diamonds or give declarer a sluff and a ruff by playing still another club.

I won't criticize West for overcalling two clubs; I, too, like to get into the bidding early at a low level. However, without that overall it is unlikely that a wise declarer could make all the right assumptions to help him play the hand.
