

Will South Florida Get Jetport?

Dade Commissioners will reconsider their vote on a 50 square mile site.

By NICK TATRO
Associated Press Writer
MIAMI (AP) — After a seven-year, $1.2 million dollar search for a suitable site, some Dade County officials are wondering if South Florida really needs a jetport after all.

The federal government to spur South Florida on other projects.

The federal Department of Transportation has offered Dade County $80 million to purchase the North Dade site.

Another $1.2 million of federal, state and county money was used to find the location.

Jack Orr, "All of their (planners) figures with respect to this need are based on the present rate of growth."

On Jan. 23, the Metro Commission voted 3-2 to reject the latest proposed site for the 50-square mile site near an uprisings by North Dade homeowners.

Ben Shepard, a former commissioner who heads the Chamber of Commerce's Aviation Committee, said he was "surprised and shocked" by the commission's rejection of a second site.

Joe Browder, a lobbyist for a coalition of environmental groups in Washington, D.C., led the fight against the original Everglades site but said the North Dade site represented a long sought compromise.

Others involved have suggested that a rejection of the jetport site in North Dade will have a "domino effect" causing the issue is not just the question of a good faith search but a good faith effort to relocate the Everglades training base, he said.

As planned, the jetport would cost more than $2 billion, be able to handle 120 million passengers a year and serve the air traffic needs of Broward, Palm Beach and Dade counties beginning about 1985.

Recovery Of Stennis Considered Doubtful

By GREGG HERRINGTON
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP)—The condition of Sen. John C. Stennis worsened following new surgery today and a hospital spokesman said his chance of recovery "is considered grave."

The 71-year-old Mississippi Democrat was in the operating room at Walter Reed Army Medical Center for 45 minutes after doctors suspected a blockage had developed in his small intestine, said hospital spokesman Frank Garland.

The next briefing was scheduled at 3 p.m. Stennis' wife, Coy, and his son, John Hampton Stennis, and daughter, Mrs. Margaret Syme, were at the hospital during the night.

Stennis is chairman of the Senate Armed Services Committee and one of the most influential members of the Congress. First elected to the Senate in 1947, he ranks seventh in seniority among the 100 senators.

He was shot twice in front of his home last Tuesday evening by two male teen-agers after they robbed him of his wallet and wristwatch.

The FBI and police have not arrested any suspects. Stennis, who stayed conscious and walked 50 feet into his house after the shooting, underwent 6 1/2 hours of emergency surgery at the medical center.

A hospital spokesman said his general good health was a factor in his favor, but Stennis' condition was listed throughout the week as very serious, the hospital's designation for its most gravely ill patients.

Auto Outmoded In San Diego?

By BOB EGELKO
Associated Press Writer
SAN DIEGO, Calif. (AP) — With luck and a little help from the federal government, the automobile could be a thing of the past in downtown San Diego within five years, a city planner says.

In its place could be electric-powered, one-car "people movers," rolling quietly above the city at 30 miles an hour on elevated concrete tracks, linking peripheral parking garages with any downtown street corner in five minutes.

City streets, meanwhile, would be for pedestrians only. The system, known as MAC for "Major Activity Center," is running in embryonic form at the University of West Virginia campus in Morgantown, and is in the planning stage in half a dozen cities, says Andrew P. Schaeffli, supervising transportation planner in the San Diego Planning Department.

"People will tell you regional mass transit is the only answer," he said in an interview. "Well, a mass transit system like San Francisco is now getting takes about 20 years to build. We just finished a study that says it will be impossible to bring any more autos into San Diego center city in another 10 years.

First American Prisoners To Be Liberated Saturday

By GEORGE ESPER
Associated Press Writer
SAIGON (AP) — The chairman of the international ceasefire commission said today that the first groups of American prisoners of war to be freed in both North and South Vietnam would be handed over about Saturday.

Michel Gauthier of Canada, the chairman of the International Commission for Control and Supervision (ICCS), told newsmen he entered a meeting of the commission. "I don't have any specific time or date, but I know it's around the 10th of February," he said.

After the meeting, he expanded on this and told newsmen: "There are no definite dates, but I understand American prisoners will probably be released around the 10th of February, some of them, not all, from Hanoi."

Gauthier said he also understood that shortly after the first group of Americans is released, Vietnamese prisoners would be freed or exchanged in South Vietnam.

Gauthier mentioned two possible sites for the transfer of prisoners held by the Viet Cong in South Vietnam: the An Loc area, 60 miles north of Saigon, and Phu Hoa, also north of Saigon.

Meanwhile, the U.S. Military Command announced that 2,000 more American troops were withdrawn from Vietnam during the past four days, dropping U.S. strength to below 30,000 men for the first time since December 1964.

Under terms of the cease-fire agreement, all U.S. troops are to be out of Vietnam and all prisoners released by March 28.

The Joint Military Commission — made up of the United States, North and South Vietnam and the Viet Cong — asked the International Commission to have three of its prisoner recovery teams ready to move out on two hours' notice.

"They're on short standby," an official said of the eight-man teams. "They are ready to be available within a few hours."

Killer Claims 2 More

By CRAIG AMMERMAN
Associated Press Writer
BOSTON (AP) — Sandra Ehrmanjian decided to take a few days off from her job as a cable last Nov. 27 so she could visit her family in East Mendon, N.Y. She left her Cambridge apartment and headed south. She was hitchhiking.

Two days later and only a mile away, Danmaris Synges Gillispie was running late. She only had a few minutes to get to her part-time job in Boston. She looked for a quick ride to the nearest subway station. She, too, was hitchhiking.

Neither Miss Ehrmanjian, 21, nor Miss Gillispie, 22, was ever seen alive again. They were two of eight young, Boston-area women who have been slain since last summer.

As scores of lawmen and prosecutors gather in Boston today to attempt to find a common link in this area's most recent wave of killings, a district attorney says he has sufficient evidence to prosecute for the slaying of Miss Gillispie.

But law officials say they do not yet have conclusive evidence to tie one man to the eight murders, all of them committed against young, white women and all by strangulation or suffocation.

As Boston-area law officials work on this most recent series of killings, their counterparts on the suburban North Shore are investigating a wave of rapes.

Seminole Is Removed As Police School Site

Tallahassee sources said today proposed Seminole and Jackson County sites for a State Police Academy have been eliminated because they are at airports and federal regulations prohibit the state from taking free-and-clear title.

The Cabinet voted 6-1 at noon today to build a state police academy on 400 acres in Gadsden County, Treasurer Thomas O'Malley voted against the proposal without explaining his decision.

The State Cabinet was left with only one choice on a site — 400 acres in Gadsden County which a Cabinet-appointed site selection committee recommended two weeks ago.

Sources said all other sites were eliminated by requirements that the state get unrestricted title to 375 to 400 acres at minimum cost.

Seminole Sheriff John Polk reacted to Seminole's elimination with "It's a lot of hogwash, but they're using it." Polk said he doesn't believe the Academy will ever be funded because of increasing opposition to a single Academy concept from legislators led by Rep. Ed Blackburn, D-Tampa, a former Hillsborough County Sheriff.

"I think the program will eventually be spread out throughout the state's Junior Colleges," Polk said, noting that Seminole County already has the 300-hour Police Standards course at Seminole Junior College, Sanford.

"SJC offers also an Associate Degree in Criminology," Polk said, "plus special police management and supervision and fingerprint courses."

Polk said if the State Police Academy is never implemented he foresees more advanced and specialized police courses at SJC with guest experts and instructors.

The State Cabinet was scheduled today to make a decision on the academy site. Selection of the Gadsden County site about 15 miles west of Tallahassee would end a four-year fight between counties for the academy payroll, but it would not settle the question of whether the training center should be on position on the site.

The Gadsden County site on U.S. 90 would be given to the state by the county. County commissioners said a land swap had been arranged with the present owner, Jacksonville millionaire Ed Ball's St. Joe Paper Co.

4 Sanford Officials To Attend

By BOB LLOYD
Reservations have been made for four Sanford representatives to attend a national conference on the successes and failures of city-county government consolidation.

Sanford Mayor Lee Moore, Commissioners John Morris and Gordon Meyer and City Manager Warren Knowles said Monday they want to attend the conference in Jacksonville Feb. 20, 21 and 22 along with 1,000 city and county officials from across the country.

Seminole County Commission Chairman Sidney Vinken Jr. said today that County Commissioner Greg Drummond and possibly other commissioners will attend.

Vinken said sponsors of the conference expected today to explain how Seminole municipalities were excluded from the invitation list and the County included.

When receiving first notice of the conference from The Herald Monday officials of several south Seminole municipalities expressed interest in attending and concern that Seminole cities didn't get invitations.

Treatment Plant Plans Pursued

By BOB LLOYD

Sanford city commissioners have instructed consulting engineers to pursue planning for a second sewer treatment plant on the city's south side. The plant will include advanced treatment, which currently isn't required by pollution control agencies but will be in the future.

City Manager Warren Knowles told commissioners engineers are in a "time squeeze" and needed the decision on a second treatment and the go ahead to alternate bid the "Big Inch" sewer interceptor line a pipe size larger than the 36-inch planned size.

Commissioners were given a preliminary draft of engineering design to provide sewer collection system for several new developments on the city's south side.

Knowles said the design was prepared by engineers for the developers as a "joint venture" with the city to participate in an overviewing of lines. The city would be the coordinating agency to let bids and contract and supervise the work, he said.

The developers system will connect the "Big Inch" which will run from the present treatment plant on Lake Monroe along a former railroad right of way through Goldsboro to a point just north of West 25th Street.

Knowles told commissioners he believes the report points up the need of a southern sewer treatment plant since the areas in this report are not all that will need service during the next 20 years.

Also in the Monday work session the commission:

- Declined to approve the master development plan for 2,714 dwelling units in the "Carriage Cove" Planned Unit Development south of Airport Boulevard and east of U.S. 17-92.
- Approved the 1973 Interstate Development Corporation of Sarasota and McCormick Enterprises of Sanford are the developers. Dreyfus wants to develop a 45 mobile home park with entrance on the Old Orlando Highway north of Sunland Estates. McCormick calls to development calling for 457 townhouses and 122 apartment units in "The Americana."
- Commissioner A. A. McClanahan maintained the master development plan shows 400 more units than the new PID zoning ordinance allows. Under the old ordinance maximum density was 11 units per acre. Under the new ordinance density is eight units per acre.
- "They're taking the best parts of both the old and new" ordinances," McClanahan said, "I can't understand the zoning and planning commission letting it get by."

He pointed out that under the city's former zoning ordinance, trailer parks weren't permitted.

Commissioners commented that McCormick paid $1.5 million for acreage in the PID before asking the city what requirements would have to be met.

"The ground rules should be followed by all," McClanahan commented.

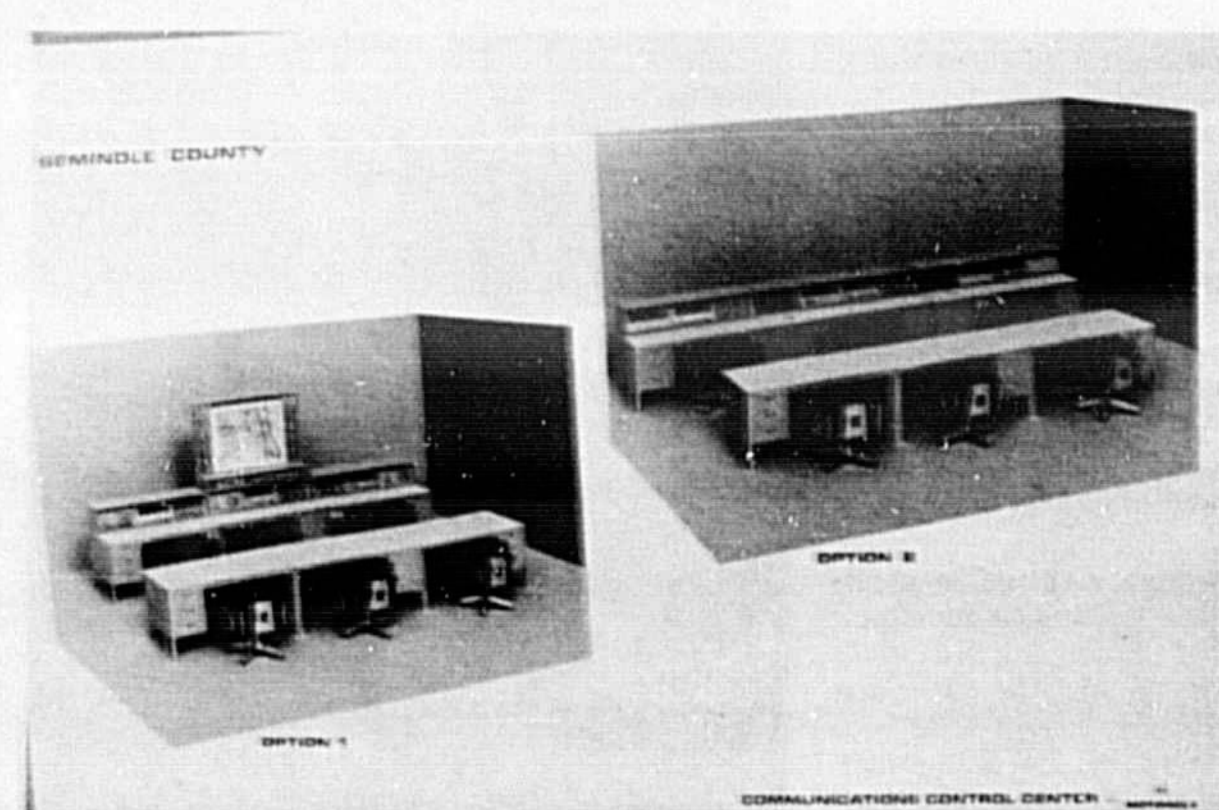

Commissioners said there was no intent to "grandfather" the Carriage Cove PID when the new zoning ordinance was passed.

"Was told by Knowles that annexation petitions have been given to A. J. Thomas and Bud Merrill for the same tract on the north side of S-464 across from Mayfair golf and country club and A. K. Shoemaker Jr. for acreage north of S-464, that would jump Utopia Road and connect the Thomas-Merrill townhouse development with the present city limits at section three of Shoemaker's highway subdivision.

City commissioners estimated, if the Mayfair is annexed, the operators would pay the city between $1,300 and $2,000 annually in city taxes.

PURCHASE ORDERS for the Central Communications Center for Seminole County were awarded yesterday by Sheriff John Polk. Motorola was the only company to bid on the project and they received the $78,421 order from Polk. Motorola received an earlier order of $48,803 for mobile units. Polk said an additional $20,000 will go to Sanford Police and $7,000 to Casselberry Police for equipment purchases. Brown 'Puts Down' Meet Attendance

By MARION BETHEA

WINTER SPRINGS—Although it had been reported in Monday's Herald that city officials throughout the county felt attendance at a three-day conference in Jacksonville would be beneficial to their communities, Mayor Granville Brown turned "thumbs down" upon the meeting.

The city officials indicated they had not been accorded an invitation to the conference, but Sanford Mayor Lee Moore and Longwood Mayor Eugene Jaques mentioned they are interested in attending, feeling that the matter of importance. The conference will deal with the successes and failures of city-county government as well as a discussion of finances, merging of public safety agencies, and environmental problems, and other subjects.

Mayor Brown told City Council at Monday's meeting that the only knowledge he had of the conference was from a newspaper report. He also mentioned he did not know the matter. Mayor Brown revealed many of other municipalities.

Commissioner A. A. McClanahan maintained the master development plan shows 400 more units than the new PID zoning ordinance allows. Under the old ordinance maximum density was 11 units per acre. Under the new ordinance density is eight units per acre.

For Police Complex Bid Taking By City

By BOB LLOYD

Bids for site preparation work for Sanford's new $250,000 Police Headquarters-Security Complex on West 25th Street at Marshall Avenue will be advertised Thursday and opened March 2, according to City Manager Warren Knowles.

Knowles told city commissioners bids for the building construction are scheduled for advertising Friday with opening March 12.

Knowles said today that construction time for the complex won't be known until contractors' bids have been opened.

In other business, council members agreed to hold scheduled public hearings at 7 p.m. Feb. 12 and then adjourn to attend Seminole Legislative Delegation public hearings on proposed local bills at the courthouse.

After the hearing on a proposed Sanford bill to allow annexation of "pockets" already surrounded by the city the commission will return to city hall to finish the business on the agenda for the regular city commission session.

A majority of the city commissioners agreed to stand firm on Commissioner John Morris' plan for four geographic city commission residency districts with the east-west dividing line 20th Street and the north-south line Elm Avenue. Voicing support of the plan were Morris and commissioners Julian Stenstrom and A. A. McClanahan.

Mayor Lee Moore suggested the east-west line could be made 13th Street and therefore bring the districts more equal in population.

Morris said, "Within two weeks, I believe you would have to move the line back to 20th Street because of growth."

Commissioner Gordon Meyer said he wanted the districts, even though they are geographic, as near equal in population as possible.

The Morris Plan uses population figures from the 1970 federal census.

City Attorney Vernon Metz said if the Morris Plan is challenged a special census would be required by the courts.

Signal Light Imminent At 434, 17-92

By MARION BETHEA

WINTER SPRINGS—Area residents will be overjoyed to see the signalization of the traffic light at SR 434 and U.S. 17-92 is imminent.

Several weeks ago, the matter was brought to the attention of City Council by former Councilman Charles Rowell, who contended it is almost impossible to execute a left turn at this intersection. Proper officials were contacted and progress began. It was also noted by City Attorney Thomas Freeman the intersection is one of the county's most dangerous, with four accidents occurring in one day.

Council Police Hassle

By MARION BETHEA

WINTER SPRINGS—Echoes of the recent controversy concerning dismissal of Walter Bachelor as police chief, in which he alleged the matter was "cut and dried" and in which he has brought charges of violation of the sunshine law, were in evidence at last night's meeting of City Council, although in more muted tones.

The controversy arose over a recommendation by Council member Victor Miller that Fred Roselle be advanced to full time patrolman with the city police, having qualifications of two years on the force, as well as a Bachelor of Arts in police science.

Councilman Clifford Jordan moved to table the appointment until the next meeting of council in order to review the patrolman's qualifications and application as well as discussing the matter with the personnel with whom Roselle would be employed.

The motion passed by a 3-2 vote. However, Miller advised Jordan the policy of the city has changed since Jordan's former tenure on council; that it is now the policy to adhere to the recommendations of the department head (police chief Donald Dobson) and that Roselle must serve a six-month probationary employment period.

Miller termed the delay foolish and unnecessary.

Councilman Troy Piland reminded council they had, at a previous meeting, authorized a police officer as of Feb. 1 and had increased the salaries in the department. Miller commented that he had been authorized to locate a full time patrolman and had done so, and that a more qualified man could not be found.

Attempted Arson Fails At Crooms

By BOB LLOYD

County School officials today revealed an arson attempt was made over the weekend at Crooms High School, Sanford, where fire of undetermined origin last week destroyed the ninth grade school's auditorium, administrative offices and four classrooms.

High Caelson, director of Auxiliary Services for the District School Board, said the arson attempt in a frame building, once used as the school library, caused "little damage."

The building is now being used to house a teacher's lounge, clinic and temporary administrative offices.

Sanford Fire Chief G. M. Harriett said, "a definite arson attempt was made sometime between Friday and Monday" to set the frame building afire.

Carlton said the door to the school on Sanford's west side and "some type flammable material or liquid tossed inside on the floor."

Officials said portions of the wooden floor were charred but the blaze failed to spread and burned itself out.

Carlton and Harriett said state fire marshals Monday cut away samples of the charred floor and sent them to a laboratory for analysis. A report is expected from the laboratory Friday or Monday.

Fire marshals have not determined what caused a pre-dawn inferno Thursday that destroyed most of the 46-year old Crooms administration building and destroyed school records and damaged records of over 800 students.

Sources today indicated the Thursday fire could have been started by faulty electrical wiring in the aging auditorium of the school on Sanford's west side.

HAROLD DEESE (left) of the State Fire Marshal's office and Lt. Jim Dwoyer of the Sanford Fire Department sit through the ruins at Crooms High where fire destroyed most of a 46-year-old building last Thursday. Lt. Bill Lee of the Sanford Fire Department also assisted in the probe which is continuing. Sanford Fire Chief G. M. Harriett said some samples from the ruins have been sent to Ocala for analysis.

Police Investigate School Break-Ins

By GARY TAYLOR

Sanford Police are investigating break-ins at three schools, including Crooms High where a typewriter was taken and an arson attempt apparently tried.

Patrolman D. H. Whitmore and Donald Robinson reported entry was gained by breaking a glass on a south side of the library building. A flammable liquid was poured on the floor in a teacher's lounge, and the floor and a rug were burned.

At Pinecrest School on 27th Street, the custodial office was entered and a power drill and miscellaneous tools worth $50 were taken.

At Char's Bar, 27th Street and Sanford Avenue, an unknown amount of food was taken, according to Patrolman Mike Tindel.

Tindel also reported break-ins at the Food Stamp Building on U.S. 17-92 and at a residence on Piney Woods Drive. Drawers were ransacked at the Food Stamp building, but apparently nothing was taken.

A portable television worth $250 was reported missing by Mrs. Ron Morgan, 204 Piney Woods Drive. The report said the television was taken about a week ago when the house was vacant.

Sanford man arrested Jan. 27 by the Sanford Police was transferred to the county jail Monday on charges of carrying a concealed weapon.

L. C. Davis, 33, of 1803 Poncegranate Avenue, was arrested last week at the Trailways Bus Terminal, Second Street and Park Avenue, by Patrolman D. H. Whitmore and Sgt. William Dube.

The man was lodged in the county jail under $202 bond.

Four Mill Levy Report Slated Wednesday

By BILL SCOTT

Seminole County School Superintendent William Lyster will give a report on what has been done to pass the four mill tax election set for March 13 at Wednesday's 7:30 p.m. School Board session to be held at the board office at Sanford.

The superintendent stated "things looked good" right now in speculating whether the voters will accept or reject another two years of the four mill levy, which is expected to raise some $5.5 million for use in a school building program.

Lyster also advised he would recommend the School Board take bids in order to clear the site at Crooms High School, where a fire last week burned a portion of the Sanford ninth grade facility.

Asked what would be his recommendation toward the future use of Crooms, now that the fire had destroyed the auditorium, four classrooms and the administration area, the superintendent said he would have no recommendation to make along that line right now.

"We are at present studying the situation and until this is completed we have no recommendations," Lyster added.

School Board vice chairman Jean Bryant advised The Herald a week ago of her intention to bring the matter of making Crooms a vocational school during Wednesday night's meeting.

Her reasoning for the proposal was based on the fact that a vocational school is needed, plus the 800 or so students at Crooms could be accommodated. Seminole High School if money from the insurance loss at Crooms and from intended renovation work at the school was used for new additions to Seminole.

Council Session Will Review New Charter

By DONNA ESTES

LONGWOOD—Work session of the City Council on the proposed new charter for the city is scheduled for 7:30 p.m. today at the city hall in an effort to work out details to permit the document to be submitted to the local legislative delegation by the end of this month for passage in the upcoming session of the Legislature.

Attention is expected to be given to the proposal which would make the mayor a voting member of the City Council. Some members of the board have expressed the view that if the mayor becomes a voting Council member, an additional man should be added to the Council to make a six-man board.

Also expected to be looked at carefully is the proposed section to permit hiring of an administrative assistant to be answerable to the mayor.

The proposed charter also allows the revision of a city manager.

A charter revision committee worked many months last year composing proposals for the new charter.

Fluoridation Controversy Is Expected

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The 20-year-old fluoridation controversy is likely to flare anew this spring when Rep. Lee Earle reintroduces a bill in the Legislature mandating decafluoridation in all public drinking water.

Despite extensive campaigns, numerous referenda and three previous attempts, the legislation over the last two decades, only in Florida are fluoridated. This accounts for roughly 25-32 per cent of the state's population.

Dr. Wilson Sowder, director of the Department of Health and Rehabilitative Services in Jacksonville, says scientific tests prove that adding sodium fluoride to a community's drinking water reduces cavities in children's teeth by two-thirds.

Earle, a Winter Park dentist, plans to reassert the measure "require public and private operators of public water supplies to adjust fluoride content to a level set by the state health department."

"It makes quite a marked difference," Sowder claims. "It cuts cavities and apparently aids in hardening the teeth."

The American Dental Association says 95 million Americans are drinking fluoridated water without a single documented medical complaint.

Sowder is confident fluoridation will eventually catch on, "but it's taking too long," he says.

City Tackles Zoning Plan

By MARION BETHEA

ALTAMONTE SPRINGS—City Council, in session continued from the past two weeks, will again tackle today at 4:30 p.m. the controversial public hearing upon the city's new comprehensive zoning plan and master land use map.

At each of the meetings upon the issue vehement opposition has been voiced by the residents of the area. The only approval which has been indicated is from builders, etc. At last week's meeting, Councilman Daniel DeLoach was the victor of much vituperation and objective comments concerning his action in the clerk's office.

According to City Clerk Jane Richards, more people are anticipated to appear at this meeting, and presumably they, too, will voice objections.

Re zoning requests will also occupy the attention of council, providing they emanate past the public hearing on the agenda, as was the case two weeks ago when this was the only item considered included in the rezoning, requests is one from the Thomas and Waller property requesting rezoning from R-1A to mobile home park. The property is located off Maitland Avenue.

James Davis is requesting rezoning of property located off Ballant Street along the railroad from R-1A single family residence to C-2 general retail commercial district.

Also applying for rezoning is Cecil Cummings upon property located off Newberryport Avenue at Third Street and

City OKs Bond Sale

By DONNA ESTES

CASSELBERRY—Resolution to permit the sale of $4 million in bonds to acquire, improve and expand the CASSUCO water and sewer system was approved unanimously by the City Council Monday night.

The bonds are scheduled for public sale at 11 a.m. March 7 with the city expected to take over operation of the utility company by April 9.

Fledged to repay the bonds at no more than 7 1/2 per cent interest annually are revenues of the system with a secondary pledge of utility tax receipts. Life of the bond issue is 30 years.

Paying agents for the bonds, as set forth in the resolution, are the First National City Bank of New York and the First National Bank of Maitland.

The city for the past several years has been negotiating with private companies to purchase the utility company on the purchase.

Zoning Change Okayed By City

By DONNA ESTES

CASSELBERRY—Conditional approval of a change in zoning to permit construction of 850 apartments and condominiums on the Land-O-Lakes Country Club property was given by the City Council Monday night on a scant three-to-two vote following a two-hour public hearing.

Mayor Bill Grier gave his support to the proposal of Stanley J. Meadows and David Meadows to develop the land while retaining and upgrading the golf course green belt. Grier said the proposal was the best which had been presented to the city.

Dr. John Zacco in voting against the rezoning said he hoped the city "was not gaining a golf course at the expense of losing a city we love to live in."

Council Chairman John Leighty, who also voted against the matter, had earlier pressed his fears that the city would be financially unable to pay the estimated $400,000 necessary to four-hole Winter Park Drive to handle the influx of traffic from the development. He also stated the belief that the rezoning would open up the area for apartment development, particularly the 100 acre area surrounding the country club parcel.

The audience by a show-of-hands, 87, were in favor of the rezoning to "keep our green belt," while 31 raised hands to indicate opposition. In addition, a petition said to contain the signature of 1,500 residents of the city, indicated they wished to keep the green belt. Vari-colored signs distributed by Dan Newhall, a representative of the developers throughout the 175-180 person audience.

Newhall said his company is willing to execute an agreement that the green belt-golf course will be retained for not less than 50 years with an option for an additional 50 years. Rezone was holes 7 and 8 on the front nine and holes 11, 12, 14, 15, 16, 17 and 18 on the back nine.

To be denied to the city is a parcel at Winter Park Drive and South Triplet for a mini-park as well as an additional 25 acres for a drainage easement and park area.

The builders pledged to spend $350,000 improving the golf course and to post a performance bond to this effect. Lots facing Park Avenue are to be sold off for private single-family home building.

And the developers are to construct a "civic center type" building to accommodate 250 persons. They are also to deed a street 50 feet by 170 feet between Sunset Drive and the proposed Oxford Road extension to SR 66. Units are not to exceed 30 feet in height. Most of these restrictions are to be filed with deed of the land and are conditions of the rezoning.

'Fringe' Taxpayers Fighting Annexation

Following receipt of letters from Eugene Mooney, State Representative in the Legislature, many taxpayers are residents of the "fringe" areas, especially because of the fact that the City of Sanford and other municipalities in Seminole County, are planning to introduce legislation, through these representatives, that would, in effect, annex them to the City of Sanford and other cities.

This legislation was put in written form and distributed by Representative Mooney at a meeting held recently at Seminole Junior College. It would have the effect of giving permanent permission for any municipality to just annex any adjacent property without giving the owners any vote or say in the proceedings.

Aimed principally at the so-called "pockets," this method of petition annexation, this legislation would be a permanent method to avoid the state annexation law, which calls for two referendums, one by the ones to be annexed and the other by the city.

Mrs. Edna L. Norman, representing the Seminole County Taxpayers Association, issued the following statement:

"We do not have to take this lying down," she said. "The taxpayers association is fighting it in two ways. A petition against the action, which will be presented to the Legislators at a hearing to be held on Feb. 12, at 7 p.m. at the Court House. Also we are urging every Seminole County taxpayer, who does not want to see this legislation enacted, to appear at the hearing and make their wishes known and heard."

"The petitions are circulating now in several territories, and if anyone wishes to sign one, they may call Mrs. Norman, 322-3546."

HERALD BUSINESS REVIEW

For Your Story And Picture (322-2611 or 831-9993)

JON AND SUE SWANSON are shown setting up for a banquet party in their new establishment, the Bon Appetit. This young couple brings to Sanford their unique experience in dining and catering. Give them a call to arrange for them to take all the headaches out of your entertaining problems.

Planning Your Party Makes Their Business

By ANN SIECZKOWSKI

There are some new faces on the Sanford eatery scene, folks. And very handsome and ambitious and talented and extremely interesting. They are the young, dynamic couple, Jon and Sue Swanson, who have recently purchased the Bon Appetit catering, service and dining establishment.

What these kids have in store for the folks in their area is really something to anticipate with joy. They come here from years of experience and education in the food business to share with us their expertise in planning parties, catering any kind of "shindig" you can dream up, or hosting at their establishment, your club meeting for lunch or dinner.

Jon has a degree in hotel and restaurant management from the University of Michigan and in business administration as well. He has had extensive experience with the Red Lobster Inns management with the McDonald corporation. He has managed several restaurants in several large cities including Seattle, Washington, and Detroit.

Pert and pretty Sue has a degree in education and is really with it as far as this business is concerned. This couple works together in a manner lovely to behold—one seems to be an extension of the other and that is why, dear Seminole and area folks, that the Bon Appetit is going to mean so much to our delicate taste buds and aesthetic yearnings.

Because a redecoration process is currently going on, and the Bon Appetit is going to be the "hot" place to be seen and very soon. And to have a party catered by the Swansons of Bon Appetit will be the only way to go because they have the newest ideas and plans of entertainment and food service. You see, they are vibrantly young and they really exude enthusiasm and joy in this kind of venture.

Jon said that they have been engaged to provide food service to the new Brant Towers residents on a daily basis now. Some of the services available at Bon Appetit now are these:

There are several rooms for group meetings, with lunch or dinner. The dining area will seat 75 guests. If your young one is getting married, you can call the Swansons, give them the date, place and how much you want to spend on the wedding and they will take it from there, including the flowers, reception, decorations, everything—all you have to do is enjoy. You can't beat that arrangement. If you want to have an ethnic party or a special theme party, call Swansons, tell them the theme and they take it over and plan your party to end all parties, centered around your idea—they will make you the most acclaimed hostess in this area.

And you do know that when the Swansons of Bon Appetit cater a function for you, they supply the linens, silverware, china, crystal, and they prepare, serve and clean up when the party is over. Even your subway sparkle before they leave and then you realize, "Why this is absolutely the best party I ever had and I never enjoyed entertaining so much before." Well, my dear, that is because the Swansons are now a part of the Sanford-Seminole scene.

But, don't take our word for it—just call Bon Appetit at 322-0882 or 871-5982 and let Jon and Sue Swanson relieve you of all the headaches of entertaining and provide for you the loveliest of all possible parties with the best food you ever served to your guests. Or if you belong to an organization which requires a special place to meet, why not select the Bon Appetit, located at the corner of 13th Street and Sanford Avenue, and let the Swansons cater to your gourmet appetites. You will be delighted and you will want to go back again.

In Beauty Salon Operators Know Job

By ANN SIECZKOWSKI

Out in Lake Mary, there is a busy, little beauty shop staffed by three of the loveliest, and nicest girls you could want to work with. They are Mary Bailey and her sister, Joyce Hobbs, new owners of the shop and Roma Meadors, who is the former owner and is now with the shop as an operator.

Altogether, these girls have nearly twenty years experience in hair dressing and friends, that is impressive. Isn't it good to know when you go into a shop, that the operators really know their job and that they like people.

Mar-Joy's Shop is a happy place—it sounds happy—customers fill the chairs and the operators are busy going from one to the other in clock work timing—and laughter and visiting between the folks is a good thing to hear.

What impressed us most about Mar-Joy's is that it is a place where a busy gal can go and get in and out in a minimum of time. There is no long wait for your hair to be washed—if you have an appointment, the time is honored and the girls work quickly and efficiently. They visit but they get your hair done and you look beautifully coiffed in a minimum of time.

At Mar-Joy's, you will find that you can get your hair done in a hurry, in any other way you prefer. The girls are specialists in the varied fields of hair dressing—Roma, for instance, enjoys working with long hair and she really does a fantastic job with it. Joyce particularly likes to do haircuts—all the modern styles including short, shag, and curly shag, or the new cut and gyp styles.

The new Phase VII permanents are the favorites of the girls at Mar-Joy's shop. They say that this permanent reform more to the individual hair needs than others they have used. Of course, if you want to change your entire image with a new hair color as well as style, why not let one of these very expert operators help you.

They will also do an expert job with your style as well and the way they style those handy cosmetic items is fantastic.

When they set your hair or your wig, it stays set and you don't feel like a shellacked entity either. Your hair is set and it holds and still feels good to touch. Husbands like that, you know.

The shop is open from Tuesdays through Saturdays from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. Roma says that if you call her and make an appointment, she will go in as early as 7 a.m. if it is necessary to serve your convenience. The shop is open late on Thursday evening only. It is closed on Sunday and Monday each week.

Call Mar-Joy's at 322-1010 in Lake Mary for your appointment with beauty today.

It's not the thought that counts, it's the gift

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: I've had a three-year romantic relationship with this guy who has got to be the cheapest man in the world. We get along just great until about two weeks before Christmas, then he picks a fight with me over nothing and we break up and don't hear from him until after New Year's. Then he calls up and says he's sorry, and like an idiot I start up with him again.

Things are wonderful between us until just before Valentine's Day, which just happens to be my birthday. Then he pulls the same trick and disappears so he doesn't have to give me anything for Valentine's Day or my birthday. As Feb. 14 approaches, I can see the signs already and he pulls this again, should I tell him I'm wise to him if he calls it quits?

DEAR ABBY: My husband's favorite sister made an announcement yesterday. The man she is going to for the past year is going to "join" her in her home.

I cannot approve of this arrangement and I told my husband that I do not wish to be in their company in the future. He feels that since it is his sister, he has to accept it, and he wishes to remain friendly with them.

DEAR ABBY: Please print this for the nurses who work in obstetrics. I just had my fourth baby, and all four times I was fully conscious. The only time a nurse spoke to me was to give me an order to drink that Mother's Milk, turn over to each other. They babble endlessly about the cute new infant, what they did last weekend and the latest hospital gossip. No one bothers to say a kind word to me, and needless to say I kept praying that my doctor would arrive before my baby did.

Women in labor are not deaf, and at a time like that they desperately need a few comforting words and some friendly conversation.

DEAR MOTHER: Consider it done. All right, nurses! Talk to the mother, not to each other!

Dredge Policy Provokes Talks

By TOM RAUM
TALLAHASSEE, Fla. (AP) — More than 150 persons have signed up to be heard today and Wednesday on a proposed new dredge and fill policy which a state Pollution Control Department spokesman says does little more than outline "in writing what already is done in practice."

"These proposed changes just set down on paper the criteria we have been using to date anyhow," said Dick Shelton, information officer for the department.

However, the proposed new dredge and fill rules are expected to produce what may be one of the most heated—and possibly one of the longest—hearings ever held by the department.

Essentially, the proposed rules would prohibit: —Any dredging in class one or class two waters. Class one waters are fresh water drinking sources and class two waters are ocean, gulf and estuarine waters capable of harvesting shellfish.

—Any dredging where applicants can't give "reasonable assurance" that the project won't degrade water quality in any way.

"There are a lot of developers and builders who, apparently, won't like to see these policies put into print," said James Lewis, staff director of the House Environmental Protection Committee.

Almost every major developer in the state will have a representative at the hearing to protest the new guidelines, virtually every conservation group in the state has asked to speak in their behalf.

The Pollution Control Department must pass on all proposed dredge activities that could threaten Florida waters. In that capacity, it has more actual say in what goes on in wetlands areas than the state Cabinet, which sitting as the trustees of the Internal Improvement Fund only has jurisdiction up to the mean high water line.

Pollution Control Department jurisdiction doesn't stop there, but also goes up into shallow marshes and swamps where water may only be inches deep and where no boats can navigate.

Liquor Licenses Revoked

By JERE MOORE JR.
Associated Press Writer
TALLAHASSEE, Fla. (AP) — House Speaker Terrell Sessum says he is drafting legislation to immediately revoke the licenses of liquor dealers convicted of felony offenses.

Sessum's said his bill would strike at a policy of Beverage Director Winston Wynne who says he allows liquor dealers to sell licenses threatened with revocation because the sale risks the industry of undesirable operations in a very short time while revocation proceedings can drag out for two or three years.

"Convicted felons who are not entitled to enrich themselves with the license should not be able to enrich themselves through the sale," Sessum, D-Tampa said Monday.

Gov. Reubin Askew, however, has said he doubts if a proposal like Sessum's would stand up in court.

Expressing support for Wynne's policy, Askew told a news conference last week that the Florida Supreme Court has found liquor licenses to be property which can not be taken away by the state without due process.

Sessum said he believed holding a liquor license was a privilege and he intended to file a bill soon to prevent abuses by convicted felons such as recently occurred in Tampa.

In reporting Wynne's decision on allowing license sales, the Tampa Tribune and Palm Beach Post-Times reported that Raul and Luis Charbonier of Tampa were allowed to sell their licenses and pay fines of $4,000 and $2,000 respectively, after they were convicted in federal court in December of extortion and interstate gambling charges.

Liquor licenses reported sell for $35,000 to $50,000 in the Tampa area.

MISS MARY NELL HOOPER, a Field Home Economist in the Educational and Consumer Relations Department, will present a program on role identity to local educators at the Langford Hotel in Winter Park today.

'Role Identity' JCPenney Role

A thought-provoking new education program called "Role Identity: Who's Who?" provides the theme for JCPenney's Spring 1973 program for local and state home economics and consumer educators. The program will be held on Feb. 6, 1973 at the Langford Hotel in Winter Park.

Mr. Charlie Cearley, manager of the JCPenney store in the Winter Park Mall, will co-sponsor the program here along with the other stores in the Orlando area.

Miss Mary Nell Hoover will involve the educators attending the program in communication techniques that would be particularly applicable to teaching role identity. She will indicate ways educators can help students to identify their roles and to define new methods of communicating concepts about roles that meet the needs of today's young people.

In these areas, Miss Mary Nell Hoover, a Field Home Economist for the JCPenney Company, has an extensive background. Like all the members of the JCPenney Company's Educational and Consumer Relations Department, she holds master's degree in Home Economics and was formerly an educator.

Miss Hoover's job, along with her colleagues on the staff in New York, is to help determine what subjects are of special interest to home economists, research the topics thoroughly and then, present a carefully prepared and documented information program for educators throughout the country.

This year, Miss Hoover's topic is "Role Identity: Who's Who?", a new educational program designed to help students identify their roles.

To prepare the program, Mary Nell did extensive research on role identity and interviewed authorities in the field.

"Leading researchers have questioned the divorce rates, the shorter life expectancy for men and the success motivation among women in relation to role identification," Miss Hoover said. "We feel that our current program is in pace with the changing times," she added.

Kremlin Cooling On European Talks

When the Soviet Union was pressing for an all European Security Conference a few months ago, the United States of America and several other Western nations with experience and foresightedness as guides proceeded with caution.

Today when the Western nations are taking the initiative in preliminary discussions for the conference, the Soviet Union is dragging its feet.

The about-face by Moscow speaks well of the earlier wisdom of the West. The United States wanted to proceed slowly because we were aware that the Soviet Union wanted only a vague, meaningless conference that would nevertheless legitimize the status quo of Eastern Europe simply by the fact that it had been held at all. We wanted specifics, a meaningful agenda that would indeed work toward the right of all people in Europe to live in freedom. Such an agenda logically should begin with a promise by the Soviet Union to permit the free exchange of ideas and the movement of people between East and West. It also should include iron-clad guarantees of mutual and balanced arms reductions.

Our hard-nosed attitude did pay off to a certain extent. Moscow reluctantly agreed to a separate but parallel conference on Mutual and Balanced Forces Reduction later this month, but is still arguing about the format.

Other than the Soviet Ambassador Viktor Maltsev says, the USSR wants to discuss at the European Security Conference only such things as "security matters" among European states, cultural cooperation, widening of trade, environment, science and "confidence-building measures."

On the face of it a Security Conference without talking about the gravest threat to that security — some 350,000 Soviet troops poised in Eastern Europe — appears rather futile. It is apparent that Russia still wants to make the conference as vague as possible while she attempts to wrest economic and technological benefits from the West.

Any "confidence building" the Soviet Union has in mind certainly would have more credibility if Moscow didn't send her own cultural elite to mental prisons, didn't levy prohibitive taxes on Jews and other emigres and if there were more tangible evidence that the Iron Curtain indeed has been raised to any great degree.

After all, it was long ago as 1945 that Josef Stalin promised at a conference near Yalta that his nation agreed to the "right of all peoples to choose the government under which they will live," as well as free elections for all and "governments responsive to the peoples."

It is a melancholy fact that if the Soviet Union promised far less in 1973 at Helsinki — and if it lived up to its promise — the European Security Conference would be considered a landmark in history.

Remote Edge

The arrival of another Lunokhod vehicle on the moon tells us that the Soviet space program is alive and well—even if Lunokhod 2 in a sense is operating in the shadow of our own recent Apollo 17 Mission. The sometimes erratic movements of the Russian vehicle, which has only a television camera for eyes, seems to point up the fact that American astronauts were driving a car in the same neighborhood on the moon five weeks ago with a far greater capability for scientific exploration.

There are two sides of the coin, however. The Russians again are exhibiting a high degree of remote-control technology going beyond any demonstrated U.S. achievements in that field.

We also are confronted with the fact that while we have the capability of sending men to the moon, we have ended our Apollo program prematurely and have no plans for returning to the moon in this century. The Russians have the capability of exploring the moon mechanically, on a continuing basis, and are doing so. Whether their moon flights are primarily for the sake of science, for propaganda or for some unrevealed purpose is something that remains to be seen.

St. John's Journal

By JEFFERTY ST. JOHN
Copley News Service

NEW YORK — "We the public," warns retired General Electric executive Lemuel R. Boulware, "have let ourselves be misled into neglecting what should be done about (a) harmful union monopoly which is not regulated by government, but instead, is itself actually regulating government."

In 1973 we are likely to see a stark demonstration of the monopoly of organized union power over government. While the Nixon administration has said much about reform of the federal government in its second full four-year term, the White House has said almost nothing about the chaos organized labor can cause the country in the coming year.

In fact, more labor contracts will expire this year than during the last decade or even in 1970 when a wave of inflationary labor settlements and costly strikes savaged the economy.

What is troubling, moreover, is the strong indication that the Nixon administration is willing to knuckle under to organized labor as repayment for A.F.I.O.'s "neutrality" in the recent presidential election which was crucial to the Nixon landslide.

No one in the nation is more qualified to talk and write on labor affairs than Lemuel R. Boulware. His name and reputation in successful handling of labor while with General Electric before his retirement a decade ago, earned him the endless enmity of organized labor and the admiration of American industry.

In his new book, "What You Can Do" (Loeffler & Co., San Diego), Boulware directs his fire at his fellow businessmen when it comes to the labor union monopoly.

"Businessmen know that they

are in the deepest trouble ever and that they face problems of truly lethal potential," he writes, "but despite the many happy exceptions, MOST of them — and especially those in the more conspicuous companies — still judge it important to be known to be making much of an frontal attack on overgrown union power and its abuses."

Boulware is pessimistic that Congress, state legislatures, and city councils will move against the labor monopoly and its abuses until such political bodies recognize that it is "good politics." However, what the Nixon administration has failed to do about the problem is disturbing.

For example, prior to the presidential campaign last year, the administration quietly dropped its support of a bill

These lines of argument are, however, defective. The Republican party must try to live on after the President leaves. It must choose a successor nominee in 1976, and in 1974, as a vital preliminary, must try to retain important governorships in Massachusetts, New York, Michigan and California — and seek to recapture Ohio and Pennsylvania. (GOP Gov. William Cahill's chair in popular New Jersey is at stake this year.)

Watching the President's recent party-building efforts with organized labor, one might contend he isn't doing badly for starters, that he is not ignoring the question of the party's legacy.

It's a little early to claim too much for that effort. And, besides, a party trying to prepare for its next tests needs a lot of top-level guidance, almost any, on grubby but significant political matters. In this regard, the White House is the inescapable power focus, the natural center for inquiry.

The President simply doesn't have time to fill that need consistently. Attention to political problems is bound to be erratic. In a vacuum, decisions either won't get made, or they may be made inadequately at lesser levels.

Furthermore, Mr. Nixon's personal performance isn't altogether reassuring. With some limited exceptions, he relied heavily in 1972 on political mechanisms designed to serve his re-election needs rather than help his party and other office-seekers. The whole White House operation was geared for narrow purpose.

For the presidential election results are the gauge, it worked — for him. But a lot of people in the party weren't pleased.

Churches Helping Nicaraguans

By CLAIRE COX
Copley News Service

NEW YORK — As the Nicaragua earthquake has faded from newspaper headlines, the devastation and misery it left in its wake have become a deeper concern of religious organizations.

In almost every disaster of modern times, regardless of where they have occurred, the churches have been among the first to stand up and be counted among those who have rushed to help their fellowmen.

Whether it has been famine in India, slaughter in Bangladesh or floods in Pennsylvania, regardless of the need, the churches have dug deep into their pockets to provide money for relief supplies. They have contributed blankets and clothing and other material help as well as medical aid and spiritual sustenance to victims of disaster.

And, often of more importance, they have sent experts to help alleviate misery and volunteers to do whatever labor is required.

The Managua earthquake of last Dec. 23 was no exception. The ground was still trembling with aftershocks when church groups, long well organized for emergencies, began to offer help in a variety of ways.

Japan's Racism

Tokyo Bomb Blast Stirs Up Ainu

Kyudo — Copley News Service

TOKYO — A time bomb explosion that blasted a group statue in a park in the northern Japan city of Asahikawa one night recently has rekindled the disputes over one of Japan's dormant racial issues — the problem of the Ainu.

The statue, a group of four Japanese and one Ainu, stood in Tokiwa Park for two years as a "symbol of harmony" between the Japanese and the Ainu, the indigenous Caucasoid tribes of Hokkaido.

Despite its pruned objective, the statue had cast an ominous shadow from the beginning. When its clay model was presented by sculptor Jhan Hong, a group of Ainu immediately voiced their protest.

They claimed that the statue was an insult to the Ainu, because it had an Ainu old man kneeling before "wajin," or people from Japan proper.

The sculptor and his patrons backed down and raised the old Ainu to a seated position.

The modern history of the Ainu has been one of exploitation by the Japanese. Some even see a remote parallel between the case of the Ainu and that of the American Indians.

A recent survey by the public welfare bureau of Hokkaido places the present Ainu population at 18,300, which is roughly 0.5 per cent of the total population on the northernmost Japanese main island.

The majority of them, the survey found, do not mix with the "wajin" community, and isolate themselves in their exclusive villages.

They earn a living from small-scale farming and fishing, or by carving toy bears. A few of them still put on bear-hunting shows or traditional Ainu dances before Japanese tourists.

Their average annual income per household still hovers around about $2,670, compared with the national average of over $4,300.

The survey also found that the Ainu still face considerable discrimination in many phases of their social life with "pureblooded" Japanese.

A young Ainu elementary school teacher recently complained she had to quit her school because some PTA members pressed her to change her name which clearly indicated her ancestral background.

Political Notebook

Nixon at Political Helm a Loner, Now

By BRUCE BOSSAAT
WASHINGTON (NEA)

President Nixon, for awhile at least, is evidently going to try to be his own political man, without any ranking on-scene adviser. The situation is unique in modern presidential history.

White House officials of course have told us they are dismantling the inside political setup used to help reelect the President. Even if it were so, no one on the special staff really qualifies as a well-grounded national political tactician.

Nor do others, like top adviser H. R. (Bob) Haldeman, fit that role. He may execute political judgments, but that is not setting the agenda.

Obviously the President isn't looking to the Republican National Committee for help. Otherwise he would have named as new chairman the former UN ambassador, George Bush, whose political experience beyond Texas is limited.

On several counts, it could be argued that Mr. Nixon's lack of a close-hand political strategist doesn't matter. First off, he's not running again. Secondly, his circumstance is not wholly new to him. In critical phases of his 1972 campaign, he was making his own key political decisions. Third, he's a pretty good reader of the public mood, so he knows the country is bored silly with politics and wouldn't want to hear about any political maneuvering right now, anyway.

These lines of argument are, however, defective. The Republican party must try to live on after the President leaves. It must choose a successor nominee in 1976, and in 1974, as a vital preliminary, must try to retain important governorships in Massachusetts, New York, Michigan and California — and seek to recapture Ohio and Pennsylvania. One Man's Opinion

Ex-Presidents: Ties to History

By DON OAKLEY

With the deaths of Harry S. Truman and Lyndon B. Johnson, the nation is losing two living ex-presidents.

There have been as many as five former Chief Executives alive at one time. This was at the beginning of Abraham Lincoln's first term.

But that was an exception. The usual number has been only one or two, and in at least four instances, all former presidents have died sometime during a current president's term.

Never before, however — with the exception of the administration of the first president, George Washington — has America had no living ex-president at the time a new president took office or a re-elected president began another term, as is now the case with President Nixon.

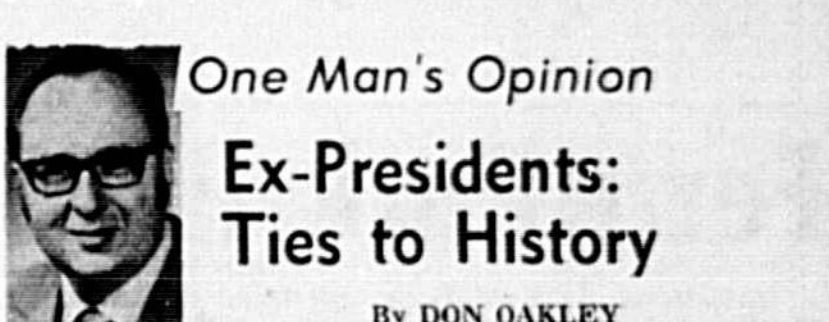

All this may be of purely statistical interest. It has often been remarked that we treat our former presidents rather strangely. We confer all the power in the world on a man for four or eight years, and then at the stroke of noon on Jan. 20 abruptly dismiss him.

The suggestion has sometimes been made that we ought somehow to utilize the experience and talents of these men, possibly by making them honorary members of the Senate with at-large votes. It is an interesting idea, but most outgoing presidents seem to have welcomed the lifting of a tremendous burden from their shoulders and looked forward to retirement into private life.

The outstanding exception is Martin Van Buren, who went from the White House to a long and useful career in the House of Representatives.

Nevertheless, whether they have been relegated into voluntary or involuntary obscurity, whether they left office loved or reviled, former presidents have always served as a link with the past, growing in the esteem and affection of their countrymen as the years passed and political passions were kindled.

Sometimes they have been a kind of bridge over the troubled waters of the present. This was especially true following the death of John F. Kennedy. The nation drew strength from the living presence of Harry Truman and Dwight D. Eisenhower, reassuring it that the continuity of the nation could not be smashed by an assassin's bullet.

On Apopka Floor Darters Tough Test For Lions

By HERKY CUSH
Herald Sports Editor

Having already clinched their second straight Orange Bowl Conference regular season championship the Greys and Lions will not set their sights on the Orange Bowl trophy until they begin their prep work by meeting with the Apopka Blue Darters this evening on the Apopka court.

The Blue Darters have given the Lions their toughest test this season other than the game the Lions lost to Leavitt. That contest was a double overtime affair won by the Lions 44-40 on the Ovens court.

While they have an unimpressive 8-1 record on the season the Blue Darters have come on strong lately and in their last two games have knocked off the top two teams in the Apopka League.

Lesson Hall is the fellow the Lions will have to be most concerned with. Hall tallied 21 points and handed down 21 rebounds in the January 24-25 contest.

Others who usually start for the Lions are Carlton Brun-ridge, super guard Freddie Rhodes, and Don Allen. The other "extra-regulars" are Daniel, Robbie McCall and Frank Good.

After tonight's game the Lions will close out their regular season schedule with a pair of games this weekend. The opposition Friday night will be Lakeview while DeLand will be the foe on Saturday night.

Others in the AP Top Ten were not as fortunate as N.C. State. No. 4 Indiana was upended by Big Ten rival Ohio State 70-69 at Columbus.

Two Jacksonville pro ballers for 18 holes on a Putt-Putt play-off for the $125 first place money at Arlington Park-Putt in Jacksonville, while Orlando and Fern Park professionals almost completely dominated the rest of the 20-man pro field.

However, it was two amateurs who took the best home after the play, and a one rounder with the course record.

Rollins Dumps FTU In Overtime, 80-79

By HERKY CUSH
Herald Sports Editor

ORLANDO—Failure to convert free throws when they counted most cost the Florida Tech Knights heavily as they lost to FTU in overtime.

FTU had a chance to win it during regulation time when their leading scorer this season, Arnet Hall, stepped to the foul line with four seconds left and sent four free throws to the extra session to seal it.

Frank Bucci, a 64 junior who was a starter for the last year, came off the bench as a replacement for one of the Rollins regulars who fouled out and sent four free throws to the extra session to seal it.

Rollins led briefly in the early going, but the Knights came back to build a six point lead.
