Baby Won't Keep You Waiting Long

Herald Staff Writer

Any would-be parent longing for a child has to display a characteristic they will need once the child arrives - pattence. It will be at least a nine-month wait if they opt for the do-it-yourself method. If they go the adoption route there is a considerably longer wait, often years. In Seminole County, the wall isn't nearly as long as in other parts of the country. And if you're willing to love a 'special needs" child you might be parenting within about 10 weeks.

Bill Earl of the Children's Home Society. an Orlando-based adoption agency that serves Seminole County, said there seems to be more bables available for adoption locally, but he doesn't know why.

Seminole also differs from the national norm in that most of the children Earl placed last year were highly sought newborns. The rest were "special needs" children, which means they're older, handlcapped, of mixed-race or minorities or from multi-child families where siblings want to Because so many people are looking for white, normal infants, in other parts of the country there is a 5-to-10-year wait," Earl said. "We see about a 2-year walt from the time a couple makes its first inquiry" for that type of child.

"I don't know what makes the difference here. Maybe abortion isn't as widespread. but there are abortion clinics all over the place here," he said.

About 90 percent of today's unwed mothers keep their children, which would seem to make the pool of kids available for adoption somewhat limited. But Earl said most Seminole couples, or even single persons who want to adopt, can, if they survive an indepth scrutiny of their backgound and lifestyle, expect to become parents through adoption.

And what's more, they won't have to settle for just any old kid, but can usually adopt a child who has been matched to their characteristics, "so the child doesn't stick out like a sore thumb," Earl said.

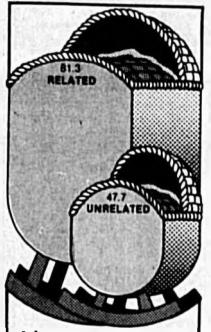

If you're in a big hurry and are willing to accept a special needs child you could have your child nestled in your home in about nine weeks, with the adoption not becoming final until you pass a state-mandated 90-day period as a parent. The quick route to parenting is to choose a child available through the Florida Department of Health and Rehabilitative Services (HRS), according to adoption counselor Cindy Morales.

Last year in Central Florida, HRS placed 74 children. There are currently four families on the waiting list for a child, Mrs.

There are 41 children available for adoption in Central Florida through HRS. They're among 300 registered in the state HRS system and are waiting placement in any area of Florida, she said.

Jobless Rate Up .. Again

Growing Labor Force Means Hikes Could Become Trend

WASHINGTON (UPI) - For in January, helping to add the second month in a row. America's unemployment rate increased, and at least one government official said the prospects for reversing the trend don't look good for the near future. The Labor Department reported Friday that the Jobless rate rose 0.2 percent to 7.4 percent in January as another 300,000 people were added to the unemployment rolls.

It was the second consecutive monthly increase in unemployment and brought the total of workers looking for jour to 8.5 million.

Most of the deteriorating job situation occurred among adult women, the department said. Their jobless rate. jumped to 6.8 percent from 6.4 percent.

But retailers and construction firms cut back employment less than usual 350,000 new jobs during the month.

The number of employed Americans rose in a record 106.4 million in January. In December, the employed numbered 106.3 million.

Since the end of the 1982 recession, the economy has created 7.3 million jobs.

The unemployment rate was 7.2 percent in December. a small increase from the previous month.

But the increase in joblesaness was a disappointment to administration economists, who are expected to forecast Tuesday in the Economic Report of the Council of Economic Advisers that the jobless rate will slip to 6.9 percent by the end of this year.

You've seen them in Orlando and other large urban centers, wretched looking street people, aimlessly wandering downtown streets seeking handouts, dragging their few worldly possessions along in a tattered bag or suitcase. They're the homeless, some of society's castoffs, many

Immigration Officials Set To Begin Deporting Cubans

ATLANTA (UPI) - Immigration officials, given the go-ahead by Justice William Rehnquist, will begin this month deporting 2,746 undesirable Cuban refugees who came to the United States in the 1980 "freedom flotilla."

Rehnquist upheld a lower court Friday and refused to delay the deportations, saying attorneys failed to prove the Cubans would be persecuted if returned to their Caribbean

Louis Richard, the Atlanta district director of the U.S. Immigration and Naturalization Service, said the "first group will be deported sometime this month - we'll notify attorneys for each of them 72 hours before we put the on the plane for Cuba, as required by law."

U.S. officials said the refugees were excludable because the Cuban government took advantage of the Mariel boatlift, then called the "freedom flotilla," to empty its jails and mental hospitals.

Many have also committed crimes in the United States, but some were picked up for minor offenses and subsequently ordered held by immigration agents.

NEW YORK (UPI) - An actress who claims she and two other women were paid to faint on a Phil Donahue television show last month blames the hoax on "creative drive gone astray."

Deborah Harmon, 26, Friday told WNBC-TV's "Live at Five" program that hoaxer Alan Abel hired her to appear on the show and faint. She went public with her accusation the day after Abel failed to pay her the $40-$50 he offered her to do the stunt.

Harmon was at the microphone asking Donahue a she paused, complained of the heat and then collapsed. Within moments, two other women collapsed.

At the time, Donahue credited the fainting spells to anxiety at being on television and an overheated studio. The incident occurred shortly after Donahue moved his show from Chicago to New York City.

Prison Revolt Ends Peacefully

officials say they will live up to their side of an agreement that ended a 15-hour uprising at a maximum security prison and led to the release of two unharmed but "emotionally shaken" hostages.

Seven guards and two prisoners were injured when several inmates wielding homemade knives revolted Friday morning. The uprising, which eventually involved about 100 prisoners who barricaded themselves in Cellhouse J, ended shortly before midnight.

"We will live up to our agreement and we expect they (inmates) will live up to theirs." said Indiana Correction Commissioner Gordon Faulkner.

Faulkner and six inmate negotiators read statements to reporters before the hostages were released. He said counselor John C. Weist of Indianapolis and officer Carl Ingalis of New Castle were "very pleased to be out." "They appear to be physically fine, but a bit emotionally shaken," he added.

A third hostage, officer Dana Millstead of Daleville, was released earlier.

Five guards slabbed early Friday were hospitalized, with one listed as critical, three as stable and one as satisfactory. Two other guards were treated and released. Both injured inmates were in stable condition. *

Some Indiana Reformatory officials said they believed the revolt was planned, but several inmates claimed the uprising was spontaneous, triggered by a guard's alleged attack on an inmate.

"They had a full-scale riot up there this morning." said Patrick T. Morrison, an Indianapolis Star reporter who viewed the cell block. "Don't let anybody fool you."

But Faulkner said, "We never believed we were going to lose it."

As part of the agreement, Faulkner said he would ask for investigations of possible civil rights violations at the prison and alleged crimes against inmates and request a legislative investigation of the uprising.

He said the prisoners understood there would be a "shakedown" after the crisis ended and that the prisoners, who had not eaten all day, had been promised a meal after the hostages were released.

14 written demands and one oral request. ranging from guarantees of adequate food and shelter to investigations of alleged brutality against prisoners.

An earlier demand that prisoners not be punished for the uprising was scaled down to "no physical harm to those directly involved" in the revolt. Reformatory officials said the revolt erupted when a guard searching Cellhouse J was attacked by inmate Lincoln Love, 32, serving a life term for murder and robbery. A man who identified himself as inmate Charles Murphy told Indianapolis radio station WTLC that prisoners were retaliating because of reports Love was beaten in the maximum restraint area. Prison officials denied the charge. Love, who has been involved in other prison disturbances, was subdued and taken to the infirmary. But officials said the confrontation escalated and four other inmates scuffled with guards in the staff supervisor's office, and other prisoners took

"We're recommending to the consumer that they consider tar, nicotine and carbon monoxide. but they should not consider any cigarette safe." said Judith Wilkenfeld of the PTC's Bureau of Consumer Protection.

The FTC has been testing cigarettes for tar and nioctine content since 1967. It began

Post: Pentagon Investing Tax Dollars In Weapons Before Need, Costs Assessed

WASHINGTON (UPI) - Audits by the Pentagon's inspector general have found that millions of dollars are invested in weapons before the defense secretary and his aides have evaulated their need or potential cost. The Washington Post reports.

In some cases, the newspaper reported, the sudden suggest that despite sloppy or inadequate documentation, the military services' actions were sensible and the weapons developed were

But in others, the audits question whether any money should have been spent and whether estimates for future spending are realistic.

The newspaper reported that the audits by Inspector General Joseph Sherick and his assistant for auditing, John Melchner, were conducted on eight weapons systems in various stages of development last summer and fall and found significant problems in each.

Pentagon officials would not discuss the audit results officials, the Post reported.

In one audit, the Army embarked on a potential 887 billion helicopter purchase without any valid estimate of how much each helicopter would cost. In another, the Navy spent nine years and $65 million trying to develop a new communications systems for its fleet without review from the defense secretary's office, without "clear program definition" or a "documented acquisition strate-

The audits found that the military services often make decisions without the approval of the Defense Systems Acquisition Review Council, a

The system is intended to prevent cost overruns. In the past, the Pentagon found itself frequently allocated billions of dollars more than it planned for weapons that did not work as well

The best-known example of the failure of the system involved the Army's DIVAD air defense gun, which got council approval even though the Army withheld key test results, the inspector general found.

While the audits showed instances of overspending for weapons systems, top officials for two major defense contractors said charges of waste in military procurement practices are exaggerated and unfair to industry.

The complaints came from Roy Anderson, the chief executive of Lockheed Corp., and Thomas Pownall, who heads Martin Marietta Corp., in testimony before a Senate task force on defense procurement.

Anderson told the panel headed by Sen. Daniel Quayle, R-Ind., that, "Sensationalized headlines and horror stories ... shatter confidence in the quality and pricing of our products."

"For every diode procured at $110, over 100,000 were procured for 4 cents," Pownall said. "For every hammer bought at $365, over 3,000 were bought at less than $7. This is the other side of the coin and it should not be ignored."

Administration Pushes Weapons As Arms Control Bargaining Chips

Reagan administration is launching a major effort to persuade Congress not to scrap the MX missile and "Star Wars" program just as U.S. arms negotiators get ready to ait down with the Soviet Union.

President Reagan called members of the House Armed Services Committee to the White House for a missile pep talk this week while Secretary of Defense Caspar Weinberger and Secretary of State George Shultz told the Senate Foreign Relations Committee the programs improve the chances negotiators can reach arms agreements.

The first arms negotiations between the United States and the Soviet Union in more than a year are set to begin March 12 in Geneva, Switzerland.

"I must tell you frankly that cancellation of key programs. such as MX. will prolong negotiations, not facilitate them, and will reduce our ability to achieve arms reductions," Weinberger

The defense secretary said the "Star Wars" program, formally known as the Strategic Defense Initiative, furthers arms reduction efforts.

"What better way to en-courage bold reductions in nuclear ballistic missiles than by devaluing their military usefulness?" he asked, "Thus, in addition to enhancing deterrence and stability, SDI could increase our chances to achieve a safer world through genuine arms reduction."

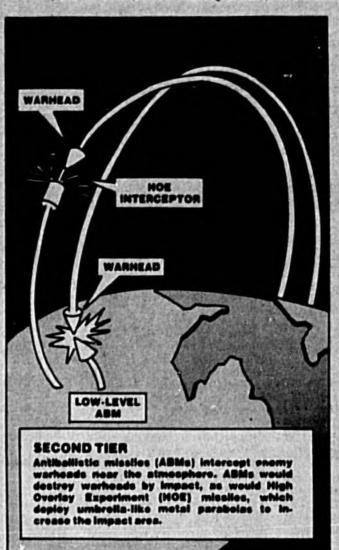

Of the talks, Weinberger said: "If we could get an agreement that had both sides with equality at half the levels we have now. I'd be delighted."

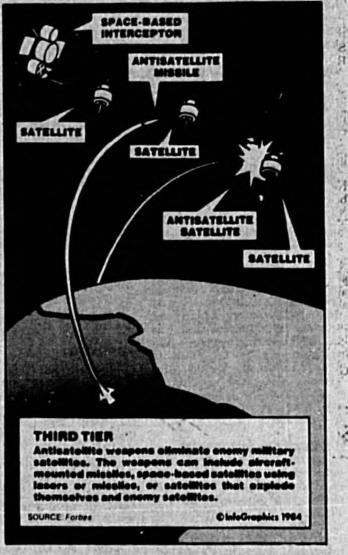

At the White House, Reagan told the House members the country should show resolve by backing the programs he belives will give the Soviets an incentive to come to an agreement.

Reagan made the same pitch to House members who actually decide whether such programs should get money.

President Reagan's proposal to develop a space-based missile defense system – complete with lasers and exploding satellites – is in jeopardy, as Congress gears up to pare the Defense budget. Pentagon officials estimated the project would cost $25.5 billion over five years for development of tracking and weapons, excluding production costs.

Congress approved 21 of the 10-warhead missiles in fiscal 1984, but this year delayed its decision until twin votes in both chambers this spring.

FIRST TIER

The administration also wants $26 billion over five years for research on the "Star Wars" be "at least 10 years, if we're program to see if futuristic lucky, before we have the technology holds the hope of weapons that can down Soviet missiles before they reach their Weinberger, under questioning from Sen. John Glenn, D-Ohio, said he did not disagree with Glenn's estimate that it will technology problems solved" on Rep. Samuel Stratton, D-N.Y., an Armed Services Committee member and an MX supporter, predicted at the White House his chamber will back the MX "when the crunch comes because everybody is aware they (the Soviets) have got a heck of a lot more of these things than we do." But missile opponents predicted its defeat.

Weinberger also said Soviet forces recently shot down an errant Soviet cruise missile "on its way at least into Finland." But Pentagon spokesman Michael Burch said later that missile was downed to stop it Weinberger "goofed" in making the statement because the Soviet missile crashed and was not shot

Weinberger's comments came after other officials in the United States, Norway, Finland and West Germany denied a British newspaper report that the from crashing into a West German city.

A brush fire stoked by high winds threatened eight homes south of Chuluota, destroyed a car, and burned about 35 acres before it was brought under control.

The blaze, which broke out at about 2:15 p.m., Friday, burned for about an hour. At one point it surrounded a home but was kept a few feet away from the structure by the first Seminole County fire unit on the scene, according to Lt. W.R. Bibb.

In total, 10 units from Seminole County. Orange County and Oviedo plus Division of Forestry land-clearing equipment and 22 firefighters responded to the scene, according to Seminole County District Commander J.M.

When the fire firefighters first arrived at the scene, the fire was moving so rapidly through the dry undergrowth and trees that Bibb ordered nearby residents to hose down their property in case the fire shifted towards them.

He said the fire traveled not only on the dry ground but through the tops of the trees as well.

The only damage reported was a destroyed two-door Toyota which was parked in a yard between two houses when the fire swept through. No one was at home at the time. Nearby, a horse and dog escaped the blaze without harm. No injuries were reported.

Elsewhere in Florida, firefigters aided by National Guard and upstate reinforcements have surrounded and contained the deadliest of the arson-set wildfires that have blackened 112,000 acres of south Florida.

With help from Guard helicopters and 70 forest rangers from north Florida, firefighters Friday night contained an 11,000-acre blaze that killed one ranger and destroyed six homes in the rural Golden Gate Estates subdivision.

Hendreith said firefighters believe they can extinguish the blaze today if they get a heavy overnight dew and the winds remain calm.

The fire broke out last Saturday in the freeze-dried woodlands and was extinguished Tuesday.

But fire investigators said an arsonist touched off the blaze Wednesday and it raged out of control until Gov. Bob Graham ordered in the additional help to battle the wildfire.

A young forest ranger trying to plow a fire line was killed in the firefighting effort Thursday. Officials said the ranger was killed when the wind-whipped fire "rolled over him."

In all, the fire has covered about 11,000 acres and destroyed six homes in the rural subdivision east of Naples. The Golden Gate blaze was just one of the 1,505 wildfires that have consumed 112,091 acres through Jan. 31.

Underbrush all over the state was reduced to fire-prone kindling by a record three-day freeze last week and a lack of rain in the southern portion has increased the danger.

"The state is dangerously dry everywhere from Orlando south," said Mike Long of the Division of Forestry

A 55,000-acre grass fire continued to burn west of Fort Lauderdale, but that fire is bounded on two sides by canals and on two sides by roads and was not a threat to homes or businesses, forestry spokesman Paul Will said.

IN BRIEF

Lebanese Cabinet Meets Amidst Host Of Problems

BEIRUT, Lebanon (UPI) - The Lebanese Cabinet met today to discuss the faltering economy, security in the nation's major cities and a peaceful transfer of power in southern Lebanon after an Israeli withdrawal.

As the meeting opened at the presidential palace in suburban Baabda, the Lebanese currency fell to another low, selling at 13.50 to the dollar compared with a closing rate of 10.75 last weekend.

Government sources said the Cabinet was discussing ways of "curbing the slide," but gave no further details.

The sources said the deliberations were also concentrating on the recurring violence in Lebanon's major cities.

A car bomb exploded outside a Mosque in the northern city of Tripoli Friday killing at least 12 people and wounding 58 others.

Government sources also reported a brief "armed skirmish" in the Israeli occupied coastal town of Sidon Friday between pro-laraeli and anti-laraeli gunmen.

Reward Offered For Killers

MUNICH. West Germany (UPI) - Authorities believe they have identified the two Red Army Faction terroriats who cold-bloodedly shot dead a leading West German armaments industry manager.

The office of West German Attorney General Kurt Rebmann said a $15,800 reward has been set for clues leading to the capture of the assassins of Ernst Zimmermann, 55, the board chairman of Munich's Motoren und Turbinen Union.

The two terrorists burst into Zimmerman's home at daybreak, tied him up in a chair and shot him in the head with a submachine gun, Rebman said. He died of massive brain damage about 12 hours later.

Authorities, who have been warning of an attack on a prominent person, said the terrorist group apparently considered Zimmermann a symbol of the system they hope

'Don't Mix Politics, Religion'

LIMA, Peru (UPI) - Pope John Paul II delivered one of his toughest warnings against mixing religion with politics following his arrival in Peru, a nation in the midst of a guerrilla war and the scene of struggles inside the church.

During his address late Friday, John Paul warned some 40,000 lay persons, clergy and brothers against lacing Catholic dectrine with political and sociological ideas.

The pontiff, recognizing the need for church involvement in social justice, said such justice must come about "by coexistence and mutual respect, of exercising the right of each one by ways of dialogue and not violence.

His remarks were clearly a reference to debate inside the Peruvian church over the so-called "theology of libera-

'Tanker War' Toll Mounts

BEIRUT, Lebanon (UPI) - Iraq, locked in an escalating frontier war with Iran, said its warplanes today attacked a large ship in the Persian Gulf south of Iran's Kharg Island oil terminal.

The reported fraqi air strike brought to 29 the number of ships fraq says it has hit in the strategic waterway this year, but only five attacks have been verified by shippers

Iraq began blasting ships near Kharg Island last year in an effort to reduce frantan oil exports. Iran has also attacked ships in retaliation for the Iraqi strikes.

The report of the latest air strike in the Gulf "tanker war" - an offshoot of the Iran-Iraq war that broke out in September 1980 — coincided with escalated ground fighting along several sections of the Iraqi-Iranian frontier.

Iraq and Iran Friday both hailed their armed forces for repelling what each side claimed was an offensive launched by the other in the third outbreak of fighting this week.

"Our perspective is from the needs of the child. We're looking for the family that can best meet the needs of the child," she said.

"Children given up at birth usually go to private agencies. HRS gets the abused. negelected, abandoned and surrendered children. They stay in foster homes awaiting adoption," Mrs. Morales said.

There are no fees involved in adopting through HRS, she said. and since 1979 the availability of state and federal financial and emotional support for parents willing to accept special needs children has boosted their adoptability.

In evaluating the financial stability of potential adopters Mrs. Morales said, "they have to be able to provide for themselves and to take care of their needs. The amount of earnings isn't what is important. How they handle money is what counts."

To adopt through the Children's Home Society you'll have to have handled your money well enough beforehand to have come up with a fee of 81/2 percent of your family's gross annual income, with the minimum fee being $2,500 and the top $4,900, Earl said.

The fees go into a pool that covers medical expences both for children and their mothers. That, Earl said, helps make babies with more serious health problems more adoptable. The burden of the $10,000-$15,000 in medical treatment that might be needed in some cases doesn't Graham said the state's jobless rate continued lower than the national rate and that Florida's employment rate ranked third among the largest 11 states.

Despite the increased proportion of unemployed, 223,000 more Floridians were working in January than one year earlier, Graham said.

Glenn Robertson, Graham's deputy budget director, attributed the slow-down in starts on commercial and residential building to a glutted market left after a previous increase in construction. Robertson added that the building bull helped depress wholesale and retail selling, since fewer consumers purchased big ticket items like stoves and furniture. "They kind of feed on each other," he said.

Retail workers hired for the Christmas rush were laid off in January, Robertson said, and others were let go because the

Rams Bounce Past Tribe

Herald Sports Writer

Before he joyously waltzed into the locker room, Willie Richardson's departing words were. "I'd rather be lucky than good."

Lake Mary was a little bit of both Friday night and they also got a lift from a vociferously supportive crowd of 1,500 fans as the Rams came back from six points down with six minutes left to claim a 56-52 victory over arch-rival Seminole in Five Star Conference action at Lake Mary High.

'We made some mistakes at crucial times but we also got lucky," Ram mentor Richardson said. "The game could have gone either way but the ball bounced our way in the end."

Lake Mary, which improved to 9-9 overall and 6-6 in the conference, shut out the Seminoles the last five minutes of play while scoring 10 straight points to come back from a 52-46 deficit. Darryl Merthic and Donald Grayson, who scored 21 points apiece to share high-scoring honors, both played important roles in Lake Mary's stretch drive along with Ray Hartsfield. Seminole, which now stands at 12-7 overall and 7.5 in the Five Star, was led by Ken Gordon and Rod Henderson with 14 points each. Mickel Wright added six points and seven assists.

Seminole, not known for its foul shooting, could have taken an even bigger lead down the stretch but missed three crucial free throws in one and one situations. "You can't win if you don't make your free throws," Seminole coach Chris Marlette said. "We just beat ourselves. We had a couple of mental lapses and missed all those free throws (12-21 for the game)."

The two teams' big men dominated in the early going as Grayson, a 6-2 senior, scored nine points in the first quarter and Seminole's 6-4 sophomore forward Henderson tossed in five points. Merthic added five points to go along with Grayson's nine as the Rams built a 18-15 lead at the end of the first quarter.

Merthic's slam dunk after the second quarter tip-off upped Lake Mary's lead to 20-15 and the Rams went up by seven. 22-15, as Merthie dropped in a layup on an assist by Hartsfield. The seven-point margin was the biggest lead for either team.

Seminole fought back to take the lead, 30-29, with 3:04 left in the first half as freshman guard Andre Whitney, who was just moved up to varsity, awished his first varsity attempt from the top of the key. Merthie made one of two free throws to tie the score at 30-30 at halftime.

The two rivals traded the lead for most of the third quarter until Seminole took a four-point lead, 44-40, with 1:10 remaining on Gordon's layup. Grayson's layup brought the Rams within 44-42 and Merthie came back to slam one in at the buzzer to tie it at 44-44 going into the final eight minutes.

'Darryl's dunks were great." Grayson said of Merthic's aerial show. "They get you fired up. The crowd was great, too.'

Grayson somehow tossed in a twisting. lefthanded jumper to open the fourth quarter and give Lake Mary a 46-44 lead. Seminole then came back with eight straight points to take a 52-46 lead with 5:52 left in the game.

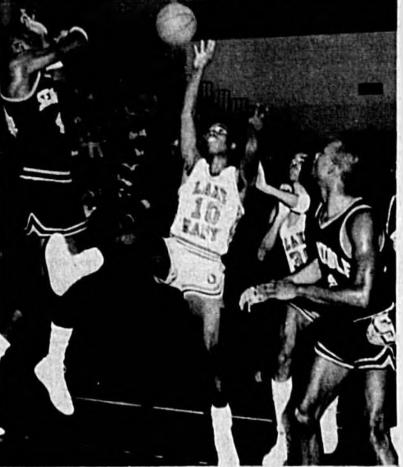

Henderson hit one of two free throws to start of the scoring surge and Gordon followed with a steal to give Seminole the ball back. Whitney then threaded the needle inside to Gordon for a layup that gave the Tribe a 47-48 lead. Gordon made a pair of free throws and Whitney made one of two from the line as Seminole took a 50-46 lead with 6:40 remaining.

Seminole got its fast break going after a Lake Mary turnover, but Merthie blocked Gordon's shot. James Rouse came up with the rebound, though, made the followup on a nice move, and was fouled. Rouse missed the free throw but his layup gave Seminole a Seminole could have added to its lead but both Wright and Rouse missed one and one's with the score still, 52-46.

Hartsfield then started the run for the Rams as he popped in a jumper from the baseline to cut Seminole's lead to 52-48 with 4:10 left to play. Seminole then turned the ball over and Hartsfield went inside for two to bring the Rams within a basket,

DeLand Zaps Lyman, 100-62

DELAND - Playing the state's No. 6 ranked team is enough of a task in itself. But when the Lyman Greyhounds Journeyed to DeLand High Friday night with only seven healthy players, the task became overwhelming.

How overwhelming? Try. 100-62. "I don't want to talk about this one." said Lyman coach Tom Lawrence. "They just beat us to death. They have some kind of team."

DeLand improved to 16-4 overall and 10-2 in the Five Star Conference. The Bulldogs trail Five Star Conference leader Seabreeze (16-3 and 11-1) by one game, Lyman fell to 5-13 and 2:10.

With team catalyst T.J. Scaletta and forward Scan Newton sidelined with the flu and sixth man George Smith out with a sprained ankle, the Greyhounds were not even in the race against DeLand.

Sharpshooter Kevin Weickel toosed in 14 points in the first quarter as the 'Dogs raced to a 14-15 lead. "They were all tiombs," Lawrence said about Weickel's points. "We had people on him and he still hit

Sophomore Robert Thomas. who tossed in a career-high 17 points for Lyman, dropped in six in the quarter while 6-4 center Raiph Philpott added four. Philpott finished with 14. Craig Radzak, a 6-2 freshman, also had a career-best with 14 points. Weickel, who finished with 20 points, turned the show over to Randy Anderson in the second quarter and the 6-5 Stetaonbound senior poured in seven of his game-high 23 points as the Bulldogs barked into halftime with a commanding 52-28 bulge.

Lyman's numbers' problems were further compounded in the third quarter when junior Brett Marshall went down with a sprained ankle. "It's just no fun this way," said Lawrence. "We only had two subs.

"It's funny, though. They played a 1-3-1 defense and it's the third straight game we've seen it. We handled it against Lake Mary and Seminole but we couldn't tonight.

Rouse & Gordon: A Class To Follow

By Sam Cook Herald Sports Editor James Rouse and Ken Gordon threw up their hands in surrender. "It's no use," they cried in unison. "We just can't get away from that man."

That man has been very persistent. He started on the Rouse and Gordon trail a decade ago. He followed closer than a private eye. Closer than a shadow. That man has been dogging Rouse and Gordon on and off since the fourth grade.

Why? He said he saw two fine athletes as fourth graders and he didn't want to lose them. He hasn't. That man is Seminole basketball coach Chris Marlette.

Call it coincidence or fate, but the lives of Chris Mariette, James Rouse and Ken Gordon have been intertwined with winning athletics for 10 years.

Mariette remembers the first sighting. "I was teaching physical education at Goldsboro Elementary," he said. "We set up a flag football and softball program. You could tell right away that James and Kenny were natural athletes. Of course, Donald Grayson and Jo Jo McCloud weren't too bad either."

From those humble flag football beginnings, all three have come a long way. And most of the journey has been with one another. There was a brief separation when Gordon and Rouse went to Sanford Middle, but even then

Mariette kept track of them. "I knew they were playing SYBA basketball and doing pretty well," he said Friday on the eve of the Lake Mary-Beminole basketball game. "I it was just a matter of time before to Crooms High where he set up a basketball program - with great athletes - which forgot how to lose. Rouse and Gordon, of course, were part of that foundation.

They were on the Crooms' team, with Grayson and McCloud, which posted the first "modern" unbeaten season and initiated a streak of 58 consecutive wins. Rouse was the leading scorer on that 22-0 team with a 13 points per game average. He had a personal best of 32 goints against Lyman. Gordon was a rugged rebounding forward who averaged nine points and seven boards a

Although both reliahed the unbeaten ason, Rouse and Gordon remember it for different reasons.

Rouse, a quiet, hard-working type, said he remembers it because he began to mature physically.

"I was an awkward player before I came to Crooms," said the just turned 19-year-old senior. "Coach Mariette showed me how to shoot the ball. I always used to bring it behind my head but he showed me how to get it more toward my face and release it the right

For Gordon, the maturation was emotionally. "Before I got to Crooms, I didn't care about life," the 18-year-old said. "I was hanging around kids who didn't go to echool, so I didn't go to echool much.

"I didn't like teachers, I didn't like coach Mariette. I guess I didn't like "At Crooms, I got into basketball and coach Marlette helped me. I made some progress at Crooms thanks to coach Marlette and my mom and dad (Sanford's Andrew and Mary Gordon). And at Seminole, I think the maturing has continued.

Marlette remembers the inner turmoil Oordon felt and couldn't understand it. "I always knew him as a great kid," said Marlette. "Now, I didn't see him when he was at Sanford Middle, so he could have changed."

Mariette said when Gordon came to Crooms he was in the alternative education program, which is for students who show a lack of interest in school and have problems getting along with other

"I guess Kenny was kind of labeled. He came out for football and missed a practice, so we cut him," said Marlette. Then he came out for basketball and I didn't know what to think. But he never missed a practice in basketball and he hasn't missed one since."

Since has been a pretty long time for both Rouse and Gordon and Marlette. The next year, Seminole coach Bill Payne took the basketball job at Seminole Community College. Mariette, who had won nearly 100 games at Crooms in four years, was named the new basketball coach at Seminole by Principal Wayne Epps.

Joining him, of course, were Rouse and Gordon. Rouse, who was more advanced basketball-wise, played varsity as a sophomore, making Mariette the only basketball coach on a prep level that he has ever known.

Lake Howell Trims Pats For 3rd Time

Elrem Brooks and Scott Anderton combined for 34 points while Kevin Lienard popped in eight key points and pulled down eight big rebounds as the Lake Howell Silver Hawks bopped Lake Brantley, 53-43, in Five Star Conference basketball before 250 fans at Lake Howell High.

The victory evened Lake Howell's record at 10-10 overall and 2-10 in the Five Star Conference. Lake Brantley dropped to 3-17 and 1-11. The Patriots, who nauped a nine-gan streak Wednesday, lost to the Silver Hawks for the third time in four meetings this year.

"We did a good job overall," said Lake Howell coach Greg Robinson, who takes his team to Oviedo Saturday night. "(Kevin) Lienard was the key. He really played well in the second quarter."

Lake Howell, with Brooks and Anderton scoring five points each, broke a 14-8 lead in the first quarter as Lake Brantley's 6-8 center Greg Courtney picked up two quick fouls to foreshadow what would be a foul-plagued evening.

The big bucket in the first quarter was a three-point play by Anderton which pushed the 118 lead up to six with 40 seconds left to play.

Anderton said the attention paid to Brooks, who is averaging 22 points per game, made his job easier. "I felt confident when they started overplaying Efrem." said the senior guard. "I knew the shot would be open around the key."

Lake Brantley coach Bob Peterson, though, said the attention paid to Brooks was warranted. "When they needed Brooks the most, he scored," said Peterson, who also had words of praise for his bench.

With Courtney, who averages 13 points and 10 rebounds. biding his time with three fouls, Lake Howell built its lead to 29-18 at halftime. Lienard contributed four points and four board during the second quarter while Brooks and Anderton chipped in seven.

Anderton and Brooks then picked up seven of Lake Howell's 10 in the third quarter while Mark Moser and Courtney combined for eight as the Patriota didn't lose any ground, but didn't gain any either, staring at a 10-point deficit entering the fourth quarter.

The l'atriota made their best rup at the Hawks during the fourth quarter. After Brooks hit a pair of short jumpers to push the lead to 46-32, the Pats scored six straight points, the last on a jumper from the free throw line by Wade Witting to pare the lead to 46-38.

Brooks, though, recharged the Hawk attack with two more jumpers to put the game in the win column for Lake Howell.

The 5-10 guard gave credit to Anderton for his success. "He's my friend, my partner and my operator," said Brooks. "He makes things happen for me."

Chung Continues Comeback With Wins As Tribe Sweeps

By Chris Fister Herald Sports Writer

Seminole High wrestler Steve Chung had high aspirations when the season began. After working out extensively over the summer and early fall. Chung felt he was ready for the 1984-85 season and he told coach Roger Beathard that he wanted to win the state title at 130 pounds.

Chung won his first match of the year, but lost his second. After losing, Chung felt all the hard work he put in might have been for nothing.

'Nobody on the team worked harder than Steve in the offseason," Seminole coach Roger Beathard said. "He came out and won his first match but lost his second. After losing he was so frustrated and depressed that he quit the team."

Beathard and some of Chung's teammates talked the senior and he decided to come back after the Christmas break. "He's reassessed his goals and is working his way back. Beathard said.

Chung came through with a pair of convincing victories at the 130-pound class Friday night as Seminole swept a pair of matches against DeLand and Oviedo in prep wrestling action at Seminole High.

Seminole defeated Oviedo. 43-27, and thrashed DeLand, 58-15. In Friday's other match, Oviedo upended DeLand, 42-39.

Chung rolled up a 14-4 lead before pinning Oviedo's David Bland in 5:40 and he came back to defeat DeLand's Brian Halle,

Will Test Buick V-6

Porsches

DAYTONA BEACH (UPI) - A Buick-powered car will sit on the pole position at Saturday's 24 Hours of Daytona endurance race but a long line of Porsche's will be breathing down its neck."
"Now we'll have to see if we can run with the Porsches for 24 hours." Buick spokesman Elliot Nelson said after John L. Paul Jr. took the top starting spot with a record 126.278 mph run in a Buick March V-6. Joining Paul on the Buick Conte Racing team are Bill Adan of Miami, and Californian Whitney Ganz.

NASCAR's Bobby Allison also will be behind the wheel of a Buick in the race, which begins at 3:30 p.m. EST on a 3.56-mile course at Daytons International Speedway. The race will be televised by Atlanta's WTBS-17 at 2:55 p.m. EST.

Allison, with teammates are Ken Madren and Wayne Pickering, will start in the 20th spot.

"As far as we know, he has never driven one of these GTP's." Nelson said of Allison. "He's in for a big surprise. The horsepower in these machines is comething phenomenal."

But Porsches have dominated the race for years, winning 12 of the past 14 starts. A Porsche March driven by 1984's winning team of South African drivers qualified for the second spot in this year's race with a one-lap speed of 124.176 mph. Drivers for the team are Tony Martin, Sarel van der Merwe and lan Scheckter.

In qualifying Friday, the learn of A.J. Foyt, Bob Wollek and Al Unser Sr. earned the third position in a Porsche 962. A Porsche 962 that will be driven by Al Holbert, Derek Bell and Al Unser Jr. will start fourth.

Defending Cam champion Randy Lanier, driving with Al Leon and Bill Whittington, will start in the 6th position in a March Porsche.

NASCAR's Terry Labonte will drive in a car that starts in the 14 position and Alison's car qualified 20th.

Paul may hore on his mind than the Buick-Porsche rivalry. however. The 24-year-old driver left the track briefly Friday to plead innocent to federal drug e in Jacksonville. In en indictment released earlier this month, Paul was charged with his father and four other people with taking part in a marijuana smuggling ring that allegedly imported 200,000 pounds of the drug into the United States from Colombia.

Paul, his father and West Germany's Rolf Stommelen won the Daytona race in 1982. The younger Paul is free on bond guaranteed by racing team owner Phil Conte.

The 1985 24 Hours of Daytona is being talked about as the best running of the event in its 23-year history, said Dick van der Feen, spokesman for the International Motor Sports Association.

"It's the best field in the history of the race. Everyone is saying the quality is unprecedented," van der Feen said.

Goodbye BIG Tournament — Hello Marc Jones

Well, the BIG tournament has come and gone. As everyone knows by now, the Pro-Am on Wednesday, Jan. 23 had a fine turnout of about 130 pros and amateurs. Although the weather was a little chilly, everyone had a good time.

Kip Byrne, who fired a 66 on the "Old Course," took honors for low pro. Kip picked up $185. There was a four-way tie for second among Gar Hamilton. Ted Cleaver, Tom Troy and Jim Smith. Each shot a 69.

On Thursday and Friday, Jan. 24 and 25, approximately 180 professionals played the Mayfair open. Both days turned out very pleasant, weather-wise.

The final results have been well publicized so I won't go over old ground, but it had a great finish and wasn't decided until the 18th green. It sure looked as though there would be an extra

Walker, Parker Propel JV Past Rams In OT

By Chris Fister

Herald Sports Writer Seminole's junior varsity lost a big part of its offense when 6-4 sophomore James Dennard didn't make grades. But, while the JV Tribe lost one key man, it picked up two more in 6-6 freshman Craig Walker and 5-10 sophomore Jerry Parker.

Walker, who just moved up after helping Seminole's freshmen to a 15-0 record, poured in 23 points and Parker, playing his first game after just becoming eligible, pumped in 21 as Seminole pulled out a 71-65 overtime victory over Lake Mary's JV Rams Friday night at Lake Mary High.

"I worked hard to get my grades up so I could play," Parker said. "I knew with James (Dennard) out we would have to have somebody else to take over. I felt I could come back and do well my first game and Craig (Walker) also did a good job."

Basketball

While it was Parker and Walker that boosted the Tribe, Terry "The Cat" Miller almost single-handedly kept Lake Mary in the game. Miller poured in a career-high 29 points, including 10 in the fourth quarter before fouling

Coach Tom Smith's Seminoles, who have beaten the Rams two out of three times this year, improved to 13-3 with the win while Lake Mary, which went in with a nine-game winning streak, now stands at 13-2. It was Lake Mary's first conference loss after 11 wins.

Neither team could take the upper hand in regulation as Seminole held a 12-10 lead after one quarter and it was tied at 27-27 at halftime. Lake Mary took a 47-46 lead into the fourth quarter.

Seminole built a four-point lead.

57-53, with 3:57 left in the game when Parker and Mike Franklin both hit a pair of free throws. Miller then took charge for Lake Mary and fired in a pair of jumpers that tied it at 57-57 with 1:43 left to play.

"Terry (Miller) told me he could take them (Seminole) every time," Lake Mary coach Charles Steele said. "He kept hitting the shots, so I let him do it. He played a great game."

Todd Kniebbe's layup after an offensive rebound gave Seminole a 59-57 lead and Walker made one of two from the line for a 60-57 lead with 1:08 remaining. Miller came back to hit another jumper to cut Seminole's lead to 60-59 and, after Seminole missed the front end of a one and one, Miller converted two free throws with 36 seconds left to give Lake Mary a 61-60

But Miller was whistled for his fifth foul with 13 seconds left and Walker made one of the two free throws to tie the game at 61-61. "I was nervous but I knew I had to make the free throw," said the 6-6 Walker, who missed his first try but came back to make the big one after Steele tried to "ice him down" with a time out.

Lake Mary had two shots in the last seven seconds but couldn't hit either one as the game went into overtime.

The Tribe scored the first four points of the overtime period, the first two on a layup by Kniebbe and the second two on a pair of free throws by Parker that made It 65-61.

Roosevelt Gaines hit a pair of free tosses with 1:31 left to cut the Tribe's lead to 65-63. Seminole then missed the front end of two one and one's but Lake Mary couldn't capitalize and the score remained 65-63 with 1:05 left.

Lake Mary missed a pair of layups that could have tied the score with 40 seconds left and Walker came back to hit a layup on an assist from Parker to give Seminole a four-point lead, 67-63.

Anthony Sutton threw in a running bank shot with 22 seconds left to make it 67-65 but Walker muscled inside for two more with 14 seconds left that sealed the victory for the Seminoles. Behind Walker and Parker for the Tribe. Craig Dixon contributed 12 points and Mike Edwards dished out 13 assists. Walker also pulled down 15 rebounds. "I should have had Oscar (Merthie) on Walker from the beginning." Steels said. "He (Merthie) did a pretty good job on him late in the game." Merthie Aded 12 points for the JV

Lions Roar Past Jackets On Unroe's Free Throws

By Sam Cook Herald Sports Editor

Allen Unroe cashed in six clutch free throws down the stretch as the Oviedo Lions clawed back from a four-point deficit with 42 seconds left to pull out a 55-50 Orange Belt Conference victory over Leesburg Friday night before 450 fans at Oviedo High.

"It looked like we were out of it." said Oviedo coach Dale Phillips about the Lions' eighth win in 18 games. "It's sure nice to come back and win one. All the kids did a great job." Especially, Unroe down the stretch, James Stewart during the first half and Terry Campbell for the duration. Campbell, a sophomore, had to handle the duties of point guard when starter Cary Justice went down with a sprained ankle in the first quarter. Phillips said Justice may be ready for Saturday night's game with Lake Howell at Oviedo.

"James (Stewart) carried us the first half and Unroe carried us the second," said Phillips who also threw accolades at junior Andrew Smith who chipped in eight points in his first start. night long. Campbell played so hard that when the game ended. he looked like a shriveled up

Coleman fouled out early in the fourth quarter but Coleman continued to carry the load as Leesburg built its lead to six points at one time and four points with just the 42 ticks to play.

Then the Lions started to roar. Sophomore Robb Hughes knocked down a free throw which cut the lead to 50-49. James Stewart then made the big defensive play as he drew a charging foul with 37 seconds

Unroe, who hit all 10 of his free throws for the night and finished with 18 points, drew another foul and finally pushed the Lions into the lead, 51-50. Leesburg then hurried the ball up the floor and got off two shots. Both missed, however, and Unroe grabbed the rebound and was fouled immediately.

Computers For Farmers Theme Of Ag Conference

Computers for farmers will be the theme of the third annual Florida Agribusiness Computer Conference and Trade Show Feb. 19-21 at the Lakeland Civic Center.

Different systems to help the farmer will be displayed. For example, simulation programs that allow farmers to practice "growing" their crops or livestock with a computer instead of using trial and error in the field will be featured. The SOYGROW program produces a visual representation of a soybean plant, showing how different management decisions affect the vigor of the crop. Another program from the animal science department will show dairymen how to try out different feed mixtures on the computer. How much they can afford to pay for each feed ingredient is included in the program.

Other miscellaneous uses of computers to be displayed will be tracking the movement of pesticides through the soll and in producing maps of citrus groves.

Bradley-Gephardt PAIR plan:

The measure would replace the current 14 tax brackets, which range from 11 percent to 50 percent, with three brackets of 14 percent, 26 percent and 30 percent. Many deductions would be eliminated but some of the most notable ones would remain, including mortgage interest, charitable contributions and state and local property and Income taxes.

Federal revenues from corporate income taxes declined 17 percent in 1983. But the total tax take increased 20 percent, with a 26 percent jump in individual and employment taxes.

The bill would eliminate income averaging and "indexing" - a process by which the tax tables are adjusted to compensate for inflation.

PAST plan: Instead of the 14 tax brackets, there would be a single, 25 percent rate. There would be an 'employee income exclusion." meaning that 20 percent of wage incomes up to $40,000 is tax free, offsetting the Social Security payroll tax. The plan also would eliminate most deductions, but would retain write-offs for major items like mortgage interest and state and local property taxes. There would be no deduction for state and local Income taxes.

The plan would retain the indexing provision. Families with incomes below $14.375 would not be subject to federal

Logo Ads Getting States' Attention

By Rebecca Kolberg United Press International

Billboards have nearly vanished along U.S. interstate highways, but lately, many states have decided to allow a more sedate form of advertising in the name of motorists' convenience. According to the Federal Highway Administration, 31 states are "already using or showing strong tendencies towards using" highway service signs bearing the corporate logos of certain gas, food, lodging and camping establishments. 'The logo program has developed mainly on the basis of helping motorists. Many people travel with credit cards that are good only at certain gas and food places - and with the billboards gone they had no way of knowing what was available at some interchanges," said an FHA spokesman,

The spokesman said the logo program, which is just going into effect in Maryland. Pennsylvania and Florida, is designed primarily for use at rural exchanges along

"Drivers should be able to see the businesses they need as they are going through an urban area." he explained.

The FHA spokesman said states' participation in the program is strictly voluntary. "There is some feeling in some states that this is advertising, and some people are opposed to advertising being on the public right of way," he said.

In 1977, Congress amended the highway beautification act to allow "logo" signs to be erected within the right of way. Such panels can contain no more than six logos for gasoline stations and four each for food, lodging and camping.

The federal government requires that a business eligible for the program be open a specific number of hours, be located within a certain distance from the interchange and offer the public certain basic services such as a telephone, drinking fountain and restroom. Despite the lip service paid to helping the motorist, it seems the strongest support for the logos in many states comes from communities seeking to increase their share of the travel dollar.

"The initial idea (for putting up logo signs) was that the program would stimulate business in western Maryland, where most of the signs are being utilized," said Barry King, of Maryland's State Highway Administration.

Maryland's logo program, scheduled to begin this spring, had received 277 applications as of Jan. 23 and approved 134, King

Unlike some states where the logos are put up free or at cost, Maryland is charging businesses $1,870 per year for the sign space, installation, maintenance and administrative expenses.

King conceded his state's price might be a bit steep for "Ma and Pa" businesses, but maintained "It is still a rather low-cost means of advertising for them."

The Week Ahead Legislature To Tackle Drinking Age, Pay Increases

By William Cotterell TALLAHASSEE (UPI) — The Senate sponsor of a bill raising Florida's legal drinking age from 19 to 21 wants quick committee action on his proposal this week when legislators prepare for the 1965 session.

With less than 60 days remaining before the opening gavel. House and Senate committees have a five-day series of conferences scheduled on major issues. The week of committee work concludes with the first hearing of the newly concludes with the first hearing of the newly created Florida Child Abuse Task Force on

Among major issues on the committee calendar this week are a constitutional amendment limiting all aix state Cabinet members to two four-year terms, reports on prison health care and coastal hurricane preparedness and a bill to raise legislative salaries from $12,000 to $18,000 a

The first bill filed in the Senate — the drinking age bill by Sen. Don Childers, D-West Palm Beach — in set for a vote by the Senate Commerce Committee on Tuesday. In the House, a similar bill by Rep. Fran Carson, D-Orlando, has been assigned to the Regulated industries Committee, but that panel only has a subcommittee hearing on the leave.

"We're just going to hit it head on," said Childers. "I would hope that it would be one of the first bills, if not the first bill, the Senate

The Carlton bill in the House would allow all young people currently 19 or 20 years told to continue drinking — a legislative technique known as "grandfathering in" a segment of the population, so they would not have to quit drinking for a few days, months or years until they are 21. Her bill would make it illegal to sell booze to anyone born after Sept. 30, 1965, which would have the effect of phasing in the drinking age by making it 20 this year and 21 late next

She said about 440 young people mark their 21st birthdays each day in Florida, and that setting one effective date for the drinking age would mean thousands who now drink legally would have to quit for a while, by phasing it in ahe said, that number is kept to a minimum.

Childers said he was not so worried that some 19- and 20-year-olds might throw one last party on the eve of his bill's effective date.

on the eve of his bill's effective date.

"I want to go the full 21 right away," he said. "I see no reason to delay any further about grandfathering in anybody, period. Each day we delay, we're causing some families to go through the grievous problems of having to lose a loved one, or see a loved one that's averely injured or disabled for life. I see no reason to delay that."

higher drinking age have changed their position since President Reagan signed the new federal law last summer.

Childers has been sponsoring the age increase since 1979. The Legislature raised the age from 18 to 19 four years ago.

On another sticky issue members of the Legislature will consider raising their own salaries 50 percent.

An obscure House committee has hearings scheduled this week on a politically anonymous bill that would not only hike legislative salaries from $12,000 to $18,000 a year, but would also give state lawmakers the same raises they vote state employees each year. The pay rules would be effective this year, under the House bill, rather than after the 1986 elections.

In the Senate, where the pay raise issue first arose last month, one of the most powerful nembers has stepped forward to sponsor the bill.

Jen. Ken Jenne, D Hollywood, the Senate president designate for the 1967-86 terms, said he rould "take the heat" for sponsoring the raise.

Jenne and current Senate President Harry Johnston, D-West Pain Beach, have suggested delaying the raise until 1987 so voters would bace 5 percent of their federal highway funds the large a chance in next year's elections to oust was year and 10 percent the following year. In members who vote for it. Although Jenne is large, the two-year loss would be about 868 members who was the sent in considered politically.

Gov. Bob Graham and other opponents of the safe because Broward County voters would be giving up the tremendous power of the Senate presidency if they defeated him for aponaoring the pay raise.

The House measure is a proposed committee bill, with no individual member's name on it. The House Administration Committee bill, unlike Jenne's planned Senate measure, would become effective next July 1 and would provide that future legislative pay raises would be the same percentage as lawmakers approve for career service state employees.

Leaders of both chambers agree that an increase from $12,000 to $18,000 a year is justified by demands of the job, which include at least 60 days in session each year, plus one week a month in committee work. Johnston and House Speaker James Harold Thompson, D-Quincy, have said most voters will understand the justification of a pay raise for a job that increasingly demands professionalism in a fast-growing state.

Alan Rosenthal, director of the Eagleton Institute of Politics at Rutgers University, recommended the pay raise to the Senate during a Jan. 13 arminer in West Palm Beach. Rosenthal, making a management study of Senate operations, said lewmakers should make no apologies for the pays biles. for the pay hike.

Salaries of the Senate President and House Speaker would go from $25,000 to $36,000 a year, under the House bill.

Playing Funeral Director In Childhood Paid Off For Miss Wilson

By Susan Loden Herald Staff Writer

Eunice I. Wilson's childhood games played in Sanford about 60 years ago became her vocation a not so unusual happening, except Miss Wilson played funeral director.

"It was a wonderful life," she said of her girlhood. And from behind her desk at her domain since 1955, Sanford's Wilson-Eichelberger Mortuary on Pine Street, she looked back on her youthful ambition and said. "Ever since I was small I wanted to be a funeral director.

'My oldest brother wanted to be a minister, which he never did. But we used to - when the cats and dogs died in the neighborhood - I'd get a little shoe box and that would be the coffin. All my little friends, they'd be the 'family' and my brother, he'd do the preaching. We used to have a set-up like a car. I'd hold a tin can like a steering wheel and behind me would be the 'family.'

'That's what I always wanted," 68-year-old Miss Wilson said: She achieved her dream and said it's everything she hoped for and more.

As the youngest of the four daughters of Thomas and Gussic Wilson, Miss Wilson demonstrated early she had the willingness to work and the ambition that could lead to success at whatever she chose to pursue.

Tve always been an independent worker," she said. "I told my dad I'm going to work for you and you're going to pay me.

Her childhood days started at 5:30 a.m. when she would feed and groom her dad's horse, hitch him to a wagon and start her father's ice delivery route. The two would meet along the way when he got off work from his post with the Atlantic Coastline Railroad and Wilson would take over while his daughter rushed to school.

Afternoons she delivered the Jacksonville Journal to Sanford homes and her spare hours, when she wasn't playing funeral director, were spent working along side her dad in the garden and helping him sell produce.

Dressed in a dapper gray suit accented with a ruffled red blouse, white-haired Miss Wilson flashed a gold-splashed grin and said, "In those days I wore overalls. Everybody thought I was a boy.

"When different little things would happen people would say, 'Tom, that big old boy of .' one of those de

Even after three younger brothers came along Miss Wilson maintained her Tomboy interests. She was the defender of her brother Aaron when classmates teased him because of his crossed

Her fights on his behalf led to their attending a private school until Miss Wilson was a fifth grader and then she entered Crooms Academy. There she developed another love in addition to funeral directing. She was a star on the basketball court. When it came time for her to prepare for a career her family urged her to become a physical education teacher. "I told my dad, 'No. If you all are going to spend your money, I'll go, but I want to be a funeral director," Miss Wilson

And as a high school student, before she headed for the New York School of Embalming to become a graduate of the class of '39, Miss Wilson brushed up on her interest.

After having been turned away from two Sanford funeral homes, because of her sex, Miss Wilson on the recommendation of a family friend became the protege of L. W. Eichelberger.

"I started with Mr. Eichelberger. He had taken a correspondence course and he gave me the literature and quizzed me," Miss Wilson said. "I saw him embalm two bodies and on the third I said, 'Let me try it,' and I've been doing it ever since." From the beginning Miss Wilson did a little bit of everything involved with her first love, funeral directing. "I dug graves, I put up tents, I filled graves. And today there's not a piece of equipment I own that I can't operate," she said, noting that today funeral directors don't get that basic foundation, which she loved.

"Nowadays they just read a book about how it's supposed to be done. All they know is how to make arrangements. But I have done it all." And the best of what she has done, she said, is her work with families who have replaced her playmates and are real-life mourners. "Mainly what I like about funeral directing is I get a chance when people are disturbed to kind of talk to them and reason with them.

"The majority of the time I try to carry their burden. I try to do everything to relieve them of their burden, other than selecting the type of funeral they want and paying for it. Everything concerning the business, I can take care of it for

When she went to New York to pursue her dream. Miss Wilson said that was her first realization that her being black meant being different. She was the only black in her class and she said it took her about three months to adjust to the all-white environment. But she said. "This was the North and they understood

The only discrimination she faced either in the North or South was not because of her race, but because of her sex, when a few funeral firms closed their doors to her because she is a woman, she said.

Miss Wilson returned to Sanford and began her career alongside Eichelberger and after he and his wife died she bought the business in 1955, but retained Eichelberger's name in her logo as a tribute to her mentor, she said.

In her office lined with plaques and awards recoginging her skill in her field and her community service, including sponsorship of a choral group The Wilson Ensemble, Miss Wilson said traditionally, even after intergration black Sanford residents have chosen the services of a black mortician - her - while whites have sought out white-operated funeral homes.

"I always let people know that we are a black firm, but sometimes white people want us anyway," she said, as she laughed recalling her first white case, which came on the heels of intergration around 1965.

She sent her workman to the hospital to pick up a baby and when he returned she told him, she said, "This baby looks white." The man explained that the father also looked white, but "talked black." Miss Wilson said.

"I said, 'He looked white, but talked black?' I laughed and said. 'Now I've heard everything." Miss Wilson doubled checked and the white parents assured her they did want her firm to handle the burial and Chuluota graveside services for their baby.

"Chuluota used to be a pretty bad place for black people." Miss Wilson said. "I said, 'Lord, why me?' I said. 'Oh, I'm going to Chuluota. Lord, I hope I don't need you - black people in black cars, with a white baby,' but everything worked out just fine."

And Miss Wilson's life has too, she said. "What I've always wanted to do and achieve, so far I've accomplished everything, but one thing, I always wanted a fleet of cars and a nice building. I have everything, but the building.

"But I've been skeptical about that, because they say when you get everything you want you just whoop and die right out," Miss Wilson said. Despite her skepticism she's working toward getting that building.

"Sometimes I think I've given too much of myself to my work, but it's what I'm really interested in and concerned about," Miss Wilson said and added she passed up any opportunity for marriage because none of the men she was interested in had any interest in her business.

Mise Wilson travels frequently, but that, too, is in the line of duty. And when she does attend a meeting of morticians she likely to be honored

In 1981 she was named top mortician in Plorida's district four. In '82 she was honored by her group again and in 1984 was named top mortician in the state.

Miss Wilson's most recent award, which she said she will make room for among her many trophies is a plaque she picked up recognizing her for her distinguished community service. She was honored on Jan. 18 by the Afro-American Society of Seminole Community College during the Fourth Annual Heritage Jubilee, celebrating black achievement.

"I have no regrets. I guess I was a born funeral director," Miss Wilson said.

Pet Health

Ferret Care Differs From Domesticated Animals

Sandy was a juventle ferret that was brought to the veterinarian about 10 days after it was purchased. While the owners originally said they were there to get the ferret examined it soon became clear that they were confused about what they now had as a pet.

The father had decided after seeing a show on otters that he would like one for a pet. Since that was difficult to achieve he felt a ferret would be the next best thing. So, on impulse, they bought one.

Soon they were made aware of the realistic side of exotic pet ownership. They didn't like the independent way the animal behaved. It didn't relate to them as their dog used to. They also didn't realize they had an older male individual. Near to maturity, he had a tendency to bite.

They were surprised that he didn't automatically take to his litter box, and didn't realise that he would have a strong body odor. Lastly, they were surprised that they would have to spend the same amount of money on his care as they would a dog or cat. Even before they came into the exam room they had decided they were going to get rid of him.

This is a true story but a fairly common example of people who are not ready for pet ownership. It is bad enough that it still happens with dogs or cats, but the situation is much worse for the exertic not the exotic pet. Far too many people are impulse buyers when it comes to unique pets. We will touch on a number of examples in the future. Today we will discuss ferrets so that you will be more familiar with their differences from dogs and cats.

The ferret is basically a carnivore which belongs to a group of animals known as the mustelids (minks, weasels, otters, etc.). This family is well known for the presence of large anal sacs used for scent marking and in some cases (skunks) for defensive purposes. There is some controversy as to whether or not the ferret is truly a "domesticated" species. Usually this is a label used for animals which have been "tamed" to coexist with man such as the dog, horse, cow, etc. dog, horse, cow, etc.

Man has supposedly kept fer-rets in captivity since before the birth of Christ. As a burrower they have been used to control rodents and flush rabbits from their holes. The North American black-footed ferret is near extension with poly two known extenction with only two known populations existing. As such it is protected. The common ferret kept as a pet and used as a laboratory animal is actually a European species.

monly ferrets are brown with the last 30 years, and one of dark colored facial areas, feet those may have been the result and tails, but there are other of the use of a modified live colors such as the albino, aliver vaccine. Since there has been no

Ferrets sold as pets have some requirements for care which differ from dogs and cats. Like dogs they are susceptible to canine distemper virus. In fact at one time the ferret was used to test the distemper vaccines.

Because of its sensititity to the distemper virus it is recom-mended that the ferret be vacmended that the ferret be vaccined with a vaccine which is derived from a chicken cell line.

rables vaccine specifically developed for use in ferrets, the Center for Disease Control in Atlants does not recommend vaccination.

Pemale ferrets become sexually mature at approximately 8 months of age. Signs of being "in heat" include vulvular swelling and some hair loss. Like the cat, the ferret must be bred before the eggs are released from the ovary. Unlike the cat, a ferret may stay in heat for up to 4 months. The presence of high levels of the female hormone estrogen may be toxic to the bone marrow of the ferret. Because this can be fatal, it is recommended that females tept as a pet and used as a hepatitis, feline rhinotracheitis which are not bred should be spayed after 6 months of age. Ferrets which are already in heat, but too weak to spay, can the females, jills, and the babies. There have only been two cases are referred to as kits. heat. This should not be done routinely.

Ferrets are susceptible to some human influenza viruses which may result in symptoms of upper respiratory congestion. Recovery usually takes place within a week. Male ferrets can have an especially strong odor and will tend to if outdoors. Castration and removal of the anal sacs will reduce the odor but it will not remove it entirely.

Ferrets tend to have an independent, curious nature. When aggravated they may tend to bite defensively. An owner of to bite defensively. An owner of a young ferret must exercise good judgement in guiding the development of its personality.

People who are thinking of owning ferrets as pets should consider these unique qualities. A home that is prepared for these differences will be a better environment for the animal.

Volunteers Needed For Annual Cancer Crusade

You can plan an active role in Lake Mary by volunteering to bring life saving literature to your neighbors. Volunteers are needed to call on three homes? the entire street? a whole subdivision? or any number convenient to the volunteer.

Each year the American Cancer Society conducts a residential campaign distributing life saving literature to area households and accepting contributions to further the work of the ACS in its fight to find a cure for cancer in our lifetime.

This year's campaign is scheduled for April 1-15.
The Sanford-Lake Mary Unit, ACS, has vowed to reach every home in the Lake Mary area. As the Lake Mary Residential Chairman for 1985, Irene Brown encourages you to become a volunteer for ACS.

The American Cancer Society, established in 1913, makes no charge for the many services it provides to cancer patients, and are able to do so because they are the largest volunteer agency in the world. In the whole state of Florida, there are only 200 paid employees of the ACS and only 21% of funds donated are spent on administration and fund raising costs; a commendable record.

An organizational meeting is planned for Feb. 5, at 7 p.m. at Holy Cross Lutheran Church, Driftwood Village.

"We are not asking for a long term commit-ment; just an hour or two and who knows ... a life may be saved by your efforts." Brown says.

"See you there. Bring a friend if you wish," she

The Lake Mary Woman's Club had Kathy Anderson from "We Care" in Orlando as a guest speaker. We Care is basically a suicide prevention center whose theme is assuring a potential victim that someone does care about their problems and helping to solve them. When necessary they will also help with runaways, unwed mothers, abused spouses and the homeless

The club, in addition to being interested in helping We Care, are currently becoming involved in the "Sunshine Connection." This is an organization started as a result of the child abuse death of Ursula Sunshine. The group has been given office space in the new South Seminole Hospital in Longwood. There is a need, however, for office supplies and whatever else you have available to donate.

Club members will be hostesses for the Orlando Opera Guild's Annual Designer Showcase to be held at Heathrow from March 9 to 31. The Crafty Ladies will meet on Feb. 11, at 10 a.m., at the home of Barbara Curtin for a sewing session. Those interested in participating should bring a bag lunch. For more information call Lillian

The next regular meeting of the club will be Feb. 28, at 9 a.m. at H. P. Cassidays.

Tickets are $2 for adults and $1 for students, available at the door. Entertainment will be provided by the Marionettes Precision Drill and Dance Team and the Odyessy Show Chorus.

Nativity Catholic Church is conducting a paper drive this weekend. Feb 2 & 3, and the first weekend of every month. There will be a container in the parking lot of the church on State Road 427 for your papers. Please bring clean papers either tied or in grocery bags.

Carol Larson Winner Of Club's Top Award For 5-Star Leadership

The Junior Woman's Club of Sanford held its annual installation and awards banquet at the Sanford Marina Holiday Inn on Jan. 28

The club is a member of the FFWC (Florida Federation of Woman's Clubs) and the GFWC (General Federation of Women's Clubs), the largest women's organization in the world.

Following the theme of last year's president. Gail Smith, "We think we can, we know we can", this year's president Beverly Huffman, chose as her theme. "Your attitude determines your altitude." The installation ceremony was conducted by Junior District Director Nancy Crawford who was quoted as saying that "Women have an important role to play as citizens in a self-governing society and the volunteer clubwoman is one of the most stabilizing. influential, and dependable forces functioning in our world today." In her installation speech she emphasized Mrs. Huffman's theme which centered around positive thinking, using the sun with a very special seaguil as her symbols. The newly installed officers are as follows: president Beverly Huffman; first vice presiden Carol Larson; second vice president Janet Ball; third vice president Becky Dunn; recording secretary Melynda Beverly; corresponding secretary Bonnie Albers; treasurer Cindi Goembel; and sponsor Emy Sokol. Wrapping up last year's outstanding Junior achievements, several awards were presented. Outstanding New Member was presented to Sharon Racine for her exceptional work in chairing the new member project "Child Safety Awareness Week" as well as other projects she was involved in: Outstanding Member, Beverly Huffman, whose countless hours as membership chairman earned her this award.

The president's Achievement Award was presented to Beth Freemen and Bonnie Albers. This award was established last year to recognize the women who not only improved themselves but also reinforced the goals and plans of the president.

The Bill Glelow award was presented to Rosalie Morace for her work not only with the Juniors but also with the Y.M.C.A., Idyliwilde P.T.A., Seminole County Dividends, Red Cross and other community groups.

The 5-Star Leadership Award is one of the club's most distinguished awards. A recipient is selected by vote of the membership as the person who through the course of the year has most developed her leadership abilities. This award was presented to Carol Larson.

Special tributes were paid to Eve Crabtree and Gall Stewart for their many years of devoted service and leadership to the Juniro Woman's Club and Florida Federation of Woman's Club.

Honorary membership was given to Vivian Buck for her countless hours of enthusiasm and support of the Juniors. Mrs Buck is also appreciated for her hard work as Junior Club sponsor for the past two years.

As Gail Smith stepped down from her 2-year term as president she was presented with a club scrapbook detailing the work done by the club over the year 1984.

These awards summed up a year in which the club completed approximately 450 projects, donating about 10,000 hours of time and goods and services valued over $125,000.

A club spokesman said, "Athough some members have been singled out for their outstanding work, all are quick to note that without the contrbutions of every member, the club would not have been able to successfully accomplish all the project goals that it has."

The Grindles Grab Gourmet Gala Award

Central Florida's Gourmet Gala 1985, held Jan. 26, in the Grand Cypress Ballroom, Hyatt Hotel, Lake Buena Vista, raised $100,000 for the March of Dimes, according to Liz Helfrich, food co-chairman with Dorothy Chapman.

The 600 guests paid $250 a couple to attend the gala. The menu featured a variety of superb cuisine submitted by 15 celebrity chef couples who competed for awards.

State Rep. Art Grindle (R-Altamonte Springs) and his wife Phyllis won one of the five awards for the Orlando's Orange Cake they prepared.

Liz says the food preparation was under the direction of the hotel chefs, but the recipes were from the 15 couples who prepared their favorite specialties in the competition.

Interior designers created settings to match the celebrity chefs' personalities and the foods they prepared. "You've never seen such inspirational displays — just gorgeous. Amazingi It was elegant. Unique. Absolutely different," Liz

Among those attending the Gourment Gala 1985 were Liz's husband, Dr. Norman Helfrich Jr., Jeri and Bill Kirk, Ki and Tom Stevenson and Sanford Mayor Bettye Smith and her husband, Dr. Robert J. Smith. A trip to Miami prevented Stella and Joe Oritt from attending, but they plan to be there next year.

And there will be a next year. Liz says they are aiready planning the gala.

Leading Central Florida businesses and individuals generously contributed to the event to make it a total success.

For several years, a group of Sanford women calling themselves the "friendship circle" meet monthly for luncheon.

Liz Helfrich was hostess to this month's meeting at her lovely home.

Attending the Wednesday luncheon with the

The reception honoring Sanford Mayor Bettye Smith Sunday at the Woman's Club of Sanford was the last word in warmth and hospitality.

About to capsize

Albatross is sailing at a sharp angle to the wind. Her sails are "fighting" the wind, turning its energy to a contradictory course.

The unseen hero in this drama is a keel weighing tons. Without it the Albatross couldn't even carry her rigging, let alone face sea and wind. Her keel is the counterbalance to all

Faith serves exactly this function during one's voyage through life. The person whose beliefs are firm can hold a true course when the winds of circumstance drive others to and fro. A person stands up to forces that would otherwise capsize them. They use them constructively to reach their destiny.

The first thing people do in building a ship is to lay the keel. In the building of human society our churches and our church schools are involved in that essential first step - the planting of FAITH.

To Find Missing Children

Falwell Forms Task Force

LYNCHBURG, Va. (UPI) — The Rev. Jerry Falwell says the Moral Majority will organize a task force to reunite missing children with their parents and lobby for stiffer sentences for kidnappers and child molesters.

The television evangelist said in the February edition of the Moral Majority Report that more than 1 million children run away from home every year in the United States, and as many as 50,000 are never heard from again.

"We are going to actively try to recover missing children, provide parents and grandparents with preventive information. and lobby congress for tougher laws on child molestation." Falwell said in a fullpage advertisement.

The Moral Majority's Child Protection Task Force will print a monthly newsletter with pictures of missing children. By dialing a toll-free hotline, (800) 824-1776, citizens with information on the whereabouts of missing children can qualify for a $1,000 murders, and psychotic childless women.

The task force will offer child protection kits containing directions on fingerprinting youngsters for identification and teaching them the dangers of trusting strangers.

The task force will also provide educational comic books for children and films for

A Time When Rights Are Wrong

If I can be asked to empty my pockets at the airport in front of everybody (which I am glad to do), I see no reason why school kids can't be asked to open their lockers if a principal thinks they are concealing contraband of one type or another. So I'm on the side of the six Supreme Court Justices who ruled that school administrators do not have to have "probable ing without inquiring into the cause" to believe a student is violating the law before searching that student.

I'm not on the side of the jurists who dissented and others before joining AA. I've been hearing who say we are depriving youth of their constitutional rights. Never mind that the lockers might contain drugs, weapons or alcoholic beverages. Youth's freedom must be defended.

Some critics of the court take another approach. They say the decision is directed against the symptoms of delinquency, not But attacking the symptoms

We used to be afraid of hell but we don't believe in hell any longer. We used to have a fear of God — but he has been replaced by a God who is all love. Offending him doesn't frighten us anymore.

Even in the secular realm, punishment for wrongdoing is often so slight that it is worth the risk of perpetrating the evil deed and getting caught.

Alexis Carrel, the scientistphilosopher, said: "There are only two constructive passions. One is love, the other is fear. Both engender action." We need both emotions in our lives.

Best-selling author Stephen King has a chilling short story titled "Quitters Inc."

Quitters inc. is a program for people who want to quit smoking. It is only after a person signs up that he learns the organization is run by the Mafta. But then it is too late to drop out.

He is told the first time he smokes after enrolling, the Mafia will anatch his wife and torture her by applying electric shock to the soles of her feet.

For the second offense the enrollee's retarded son will be kidnapped from his private school and both his arms will be broken.

The system, we find out, works better than any other to induce a man to kick the smoking habit. As a matter of fact. after the fifth offense, Quitters inc. guarantees that the enrollee will never smoke again because he'll "wake up dead the next morning" with a bullet in his

DeLores Lash

Marriage Longevity Formula: Love For Each Other; Love Of Children; Being Christians

By Busan Loden Herald Staff Writer

cautious woman, but has never doubted her own abilities. And over the years she has used her abilities to their fullest when it came to working for her family, her church and her community.

"If I don't know how to do something myself I know where to go to get it done and I will produce whatever I need to show," Mrs. Lash said.

Among the things she has helped produce are the city of Lake Mary, the city's police department and the Lake Mary Chamber of Commerce. And in the works is a community center for Lake Mary civic groups.

"I like to see changes made. They don't bug me. I've got broad shoulders. because we're all human. We're not perfect. I make mistakes and people are not satisfied with me. I have to look at myself first and I can roll with the punches," she said.

Mrs. Lash, who moved to Lake Mary from Orlando 15 years ago, along with her husband Jim and their four children, said she became co-chairman of the Lake Mary Incorporation Committee and worked in 1974 and '75. along with Sam Pratt, to make the community a chartered city, because she liked the challenge.

"We did a lot of research and the result was the incorporation of the city of Lake Mary. I was appointed to the first city council, then ran for the post and was elected for two more terms," she said. Mrs. Lash also served as the first police commissioner, hiring the first chief and officer.

She's delighted over the election of her friend. Bettye Smith, as Sanford's first woman mayor. As for running for a similar post herself, Mrs. Lash said, "I can't see that far down the road. I can't say I haven't thought about it."

An accomplishment she is most proud of, Mrs. Lash said, is setting the right-of-way along Lake Mary Boulevard at 104 feet instead of 90 feet. "I'm the rat that got the actback. A lot of people want to take credit for that a couple of men. It's an ego thing.

'Of course women have egos too, but I don't know why men sometimes don't want to give women credit for the things they do, the things they produce." But Mrs. Lash said over the years she has not seen a lot of discrimination against women. She said she worked for the 104-foot easement with an eye to the future. "We don't want Lake Mary Boulevard Lake Mary's DeLores Lash says she's to become another 436. If we have to widen the road we don't want the taxpayers to have to buy back a lot of expensive buildings.

As a youngster, Mrs. Lash, who grew up in Pennaylvania, dreamed of being an attorney, because, she said, she saw that as a way of helping people. She married young, 33 years ago, and never realized her ambition, but said her interest in the law and in helping others has carried over and has served her well in her public and private life.

But just because she didn't become an attorney doesn't mean that as she was helping and watching Lake Mary grow she wasn't involved in a career. Until two years ago she was office manager, head bookkeeper and title clerk for her family's automobile dealerships in Sanford and Orlando.

She is now pursuing a new interest and will, as a recently-licensed real estate broker, be taking an active part in Lake Mary's growth.

Mrs. Lash is also busy with the Lake Mary and Sanford women's clubs, and said a major reason she has for helping raise funds for a Lake Mary Community Center being developed on Country Club Road, is because the Lake Mary Women's Club and the chamber of commerce, and other civic groups need a permanent home. She is a past president and current vice president of the women's club and is chairman of the board and newsletter editor for the Ambition was instilled in Mrs. Lash by her father, Richard Bock, who "wanted a boy, but got me instead. So I was it," she said.

Her mother may have christened her after her favorite doll, with the unique name DeLores, but her father, she said, helped her to develop un-doll-like traits, such as a love of hunting and fishing.
"When I was a child I did everything a kid was supposed to do and more. I was taught by my father to be aggressive, not to be afraid to ask questions and to do things. I could go hunting and flahing with him, but when we came home it was my chore to clean the fish or game. I got both sides of it and he went to bed," she

As involved as Mrs. Lash is with her community she said she puts God and her family first and finding a good church and pursuing an education are the keys to personal and professional success, which she said she has advised her children to follow.

Her children, Diane, 30, Steven, 28; Barry, 25; and Angelina, 20, all live in the Lake Mary area and their love of water sports was a key reason the Lashes chose the shores of Lake Mary as their homesite.

Mrs. Lash said they moved from Orlando to Lake Mary because her husband was commuting to his Sanford dealership and had little time to spend with the family. "Disney was coming in, bringing even more traffic and Jim said, 'You know, I don't think we're going to see each other at all.""

After the move, Mrs. Lash saw more of her husband, but found she was cut off from the community life she had developed through involvement with her children's school activities in Or-

"I didn't know anyone in Lake Mary My kids were kind of lost, because wasn't involved in their schools. I felt I had to get involved in the community. It's depressing when you move into a new area and your phone never rings when it had been ringing all day long before," she said.

Mrs. Lash became the Welcome Wagon representative and began her involvement with Lake Mary, which led to her work toward establishing the city, she said. She also went back to work in her husband's business and said that meant they had more time together.

She bases the longevity of her marriage on "love for each other, our kids, and first we are Christians. We belong to the First Alliance Church of Orlando. You have to put the lord first. Put Christ and your family first. That's the most important thing.

Love of family also led to Mrs. Lash's love, of antiques, which fill her home and were mostly collected in her home state, Pennsylvania.

"Antiques make me think of the olden days," she said. "When families were more oriented toward being families, having people over to make ice cream instead of going out to restau-rants. They bring good memories and I'm attracted to things like the ones that might have been in my family. I especially love clocks and lights.

'I'm German and I also love to cook. I'm a Pennsylvania Dutch cook. I love

said her greatest challenge came about three years ago when her daughter Angelina was abducted and held hostage for about 12 hours by an Altamonte Springs man who stole a car from the Lashes' Sanford dealership.

Mrs. Lash said there was prayer up and down the cast coast for her daughter. "We were very fortunate. We got Angelina back unharmed and untouched. That rarely happens." Now the family is concerned because the man who was captured and imprisoned for the abduction will probably be free soon. "We're worried about that. We don't want to see him in this area." she said.

For relaxation Mrs. Lash dabbles in oil painting and plays the organ. That is if she isn't enjoying a more outdoors type activity such as water skiing and boating. Or when she visits Pennsylvania she heads for her snowmobile or picks up her ice skates.

Even as Lake Mary grows, Mrs. Lash said her family will stick with the city that is now their home. "Development and growth is inevitable. You can't stop it. All you can do is plan for the future. My husband is building a new twostory building. His business is close by. We will stay here."

Men, Learn How, Or The Japanese Will Show You How

Nearly three-fourths of the more than 90,000 women responding to a survey by Ann Landers said that, when it comes to sex, they'd just as

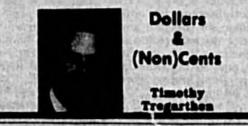

More precisely, they said they'd be content to be cuddled, and to let it go at that.

There are two possible explanations for this startling result. Either American men are great cuddlers, or we are not so great at the rest of it.
Judging by the sampling of responses, we are not great cuddlers.

This is the sort of serious problem that calls for the best in the American free enterprise system. Already a firm is preparing to present sex seminars all over the country in an attempt to get American males back on track. As it happens, the firm is Japanese. I talked to its marketing director. Okohiro Matusushi. to find out what his firm is up to. "As we see it," Mr. Matusushi explained, "this problem is simply a manifestation of a larger problem among Americans."

l asked what he meant. "You Americans are too 'results' oriented," he said. "You care only about the short run, the bottom line.

"You pay no attention to process," he con-tinued. "You pay no attention to whether your co-workers are satisfied and happy." I saked Mr. Matusushi what all this had to do with sex.

"That is another problem with you Americans," he replied patiently. "You never get the

"It appears that you make love as you do business. You are in too much of a hurry. You get so busy keeping score that you forget what the game is all about."

Ms. Landers' survey seemed to support Mr.

Matusushi's argument. I asked how his seminars would help.

'We will begin by trying to get you Americans to think about the long run. Right now, you don't. You don't save. You don't invest. Yours is an immediate consumption society - whether in terms of commerce or of sex.

"The result is that you do OK at first, but in the long run, you have nothing. You don't know how to make a relationship - or an economy - grow.

We will try to teach you. "After that, we will show you how to establish 'quality circles.'"

Quality what? "Quality circles." In our firms, co-workers meet regularly to discuss production processes. They try to find ways to do better.

"We hope we can get our clients to establish quality circles with their partners, to do something that it appears is never done in America."
I asked what that was.

"To discuss how you feel about your rela-tionship," he replied softly.

I told Mr. Matusushi that his concept seemed sound. I wondered, however, whether his enterprise would succeed financially

"I am certain it will," he said. "Just between you and me, these seminars are going to be heavily subsidized by my government." Sex seminars for American men subsidized by the Japanese government? I asked Mr. Matusushi "It is very simple. Sex is an exchange activity.

One that you Americans don't seem very good at. "As you know, whenever you Americans aren't very good at something, we Japanese..."

I interrupted Mr. Matusushi. Was it possible that the Japanese would drive American men out

"Let us say that my government is not anxious to win another trade war," he replied diplomat-

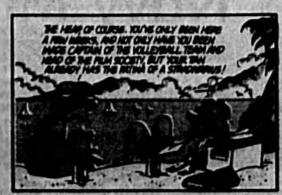

I signed up for 10 seminar sessions. This is one challenge we must meet head- on. Quota protection isn't likely to help.

City Commission Should Review All Manager Applications

The Sanford City Commission still has time to rectify what may be a big mistake.

The mistake, in our opinion, is the failure of the commission to assume the collective responsibility of reviewing all — not just a few — of the applications for city manager.

As we understand it, the city commission has appointed an ad hoc committee of five one named by each commissioner - to review the 97 (now we learn there may be 111) applications for Sanford's new city manager. The committee is to boil that list down to what it considers the best 10, then turn those applications over to the city commission. The commission will then interview those 10 candidates.

That's not the way to go. We have no problem with commissioners looking for input from leading citizens in the community. Just as we would have had no problem with a team of professional city managers from the managers' state organization reviewing the 97 applications. That team was to boll the list down to the best 10 candidates, then the citizens review committee would have told the commission which 5 of that 10 they considered best qualified for the Job.

When the managers' organization learned Its screening job was to be followed by further screening by a citizens committee, they said thanks, but no thanks, and declined to participate. We had no problem with that, either.

What we do have a problem with is that the city commission is, we feel, sidestepping its responsibility by not reviewing all of the applications as a body before asking a citizens committee for input. That's one of the chores the city commission is elected by the citizens to perform.

The citizens committee already has begun the huge task of sifting through the applications. There are 97 of them, most of which came in before the Jan. 11 deadline. Some of a pre-deadline or deadline postmark. The other 14 came in late, but the citizens review board will ask commissioners at a workshop session Monday if they should be discarded or considered.

The citizens committee will also be looking for additional direction.

What the city commission should do is to agree to review, as an officially convened commission, all of the applications. The key phrase here is "as an officially convened commission." We know each commissioner can look at all the applications individually. but that's not the answer. It should be done by the commission as a whole, so the applications can be analyzed and discussed jointly.

Commissioners should have done that before asking a citizens review committee to come into the picture. They (city commissioners) could have themselves boiled down the applications to 10, then asked a review committee to look at them and provide some input.

Since the citizens committee has already been named, it's too late for that. But, the commission can still review all the applications now, even as the citizens review committee performs its task.

City commissioners need to know that somewhere in that pile of applications discarded or rejected by the citizens review committee there isn't a prime candidate who might appeal to them as a whole.

Here's Some Trivialized Trivia For You

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The trivia craze naturally, bring it up anyway. The first time weeping the nation has now spread to there is a pause, or a luli in the conversation, sweeping the nation has now spread to computers.

, Suncom has come forth with a computerized "Party Quiz" game that even a party of one can play. This software flashes on the acreen such true-or-false questions as "a giraffe has four

My guess is that the question is false. We all know a giraffe has four legs, but whether each leg has a knee is problematic, at best.

Three sounds about right to me. I would say the average giraffe has two knees in its legs and one in its neck.

Information that is paitry, piddling, petty and picayune has been around a long time, of course. But I'll leave it to psychologists to analyze why your friends are suddenly fascinated by giraffe knees.

Knowledge of this sort is hard to work into a conversation. Some conversations have been known to run 20 minutes or longer without touching on a giraffe's anatomy.

My advice is to be arbitrary. If the data you have, or suspect, about a giraffe doesn't arise just say, "Did you people know a giraffe has no elbows?"

They may look at you askance, and possibly tap their temples, but I guarantee they'll respect

You don't have to buy a computer to qualify as a trivia expert, however. Below are some tidbits I picked out of a National Geographic news release. They lend themselves nicely to the multiple-choice format.

1. How much water do adult elephanta drink A. 5 gallons. H. 10 gallons. C. 25 gallons. D. 50 city lights, how many stars can you see?

6. What is the largest creature ever to live on Earth? A. Dinosaurs. B. Texas mosquitos. C. Blue

About Things Past

It's become a popular theme. The argument runs this way:

By voting 9 to 1 for Walter Mondale and the Democratic Party, and against Ronald Reagan and the Republicans, American blacks didn't just line up on the losing side - they painted themselves into a dark and deserted political corner. where the bright lights of power and influence never shine.

Of course, there's nothing new about the proposition that blacks ought to make both parties compete for their votes, or that it is a serious mistake to be permanently tied to one political party.

But there's a new twist to today's rhetoric about partisan politics and balanced voting.

Some of the suggestions come from suspect sources, and these sources urge blacks to abandon a long-held commitment to rewarding friends and punishing enemies.

The first salvo was fired by Clarence Pendleton, Reagan's appointee as chairman of the U.S. Commission on Civil Rights.

Shortly after the last election. Pendleton charged that black leaders had led blacks into a "political Jonestown." Pendleton claimed that blacks had made "tremendous progress in literacy, economics, employment and housing" under Reagan's stewardship, and that black leaders were holding black votes hostage to protect their own jobs and positions.

Next, the president himself waded in with a near-identical position: that black leaders oppose his policies only to protect their pocketbooks, and that black Americans were simply "misinformed" about the great good his administration had accomplished.

Reagan continued the propaganda by meeting with a group of black business executives and educators to discuss their agenda for black progress through self-help, instead of through the public purse — a theme frequently sounded by the Rev. Jesse Jackson, no Reagan supporter.

Running throughout these events is the suggestion that if black America could only be made to see the mythical "progress" Clarence Pendleton spoke of, or if the Reagan rising tide had actually lifted (instead of scuttling) black boats, the actual and political health of America's largest minority would improve.

His Coup, Her Dilemma

There are those who say the women's movement and the sexual revolution have their loopholes.

I didn't listen because I could see the barriers tumbling down: women becoming umpires and judges. women getting breaks through laws against discrimination and for equal pay. And — the sexist double standard was fading away.

Now, I'm beginning to see that blessings can indeed be mixed. The gap between what men and women earn has barely narrowed for years. Women have not moved into the executive suite or the boardroom in the numbers we had hoped. The reality is that 80 percent to 90 percent of women are still in the same kinds of jobs they've always

And the sexual revolution has turned out to be a boon to men and a confusion to women.

All this came home to me - with impact - after listening to Carol Caseell, prominent sex educator and researcher. Since the publication of her book, "Swept Away" (Simon and Schuster), she has been on the national lecture circuit and network TV shows.

Her frunk appraisal of the sexual revolution is that it freed men to have sex with "good girls" without having to get engaged or married to them. "Rumor has it," she said with a wry grin, "that five guys playing stud poker in a bar in Algodones, (N.M.), said, 'I've got a great idea. We should start a sexual revolu-

More seriously, she believes that a major force behind the sexual revolution was Playboy magazine, which in the '50s began encouraging men to be unmarried free spirits - swinging bachelors - enjoying the pleasures of stereos, luxury cars and numerous women. The sexual revolution, according to Ms. Cassell, had a counterpart she calls "the stlent revolution." That is the collapse of the breadwinner ethic. Men used to think they had to be the sole providers for their families. It was a mark of male maturity. "Now, there is no shame in a man's life," she said, "if his wife works."

in interviewing hundreds of middle-class high school and university males, she learned that when and if they married, most expected their wives to work except when their children were very "If you look over the last 30 years of American life," she said, "you see a lot" of media hype about the women's movement and the sexual revolution. I swear, I have never read about the real changes in what men expect of women and what men see as their roles in our lives today."

From her studies, she concludes that men today expect available sex, if single; a working wife, if married; a no-fault divorce, if love gets stale. "Two years after a divorce," she added, "a woman's income goes down 73 percent and a man's income goes up 42 percent."

She is certain we can never again get men to accept the "good girls don't" philosophy of the '50s. Plus — women are still a long way from being equal economic partners with working men. Add up the realities and we can see why "a lot of women today are feeling nervous about status on their jobs and in their personal relationships."

Carol Cassel makes it perfectly clear that any revolution, in the name of liberation, has its winners and losers - and some who may be

Breaking Laws No Solution

Those who want to radicalize American society long have sought to present civil disobedience as a viable option for citizens.

In the late 1960s, opponents of the war in Vietnam engaged in civil disobedience when they sought to prevent the movement of ammunition trains to the West Coast. Similar acts have taken place in more recent years, as in the case of the attempted blockade of trains carrying nuclear warheads to submarine bases. Misguided church groups also have vowed to offer "sanctuary" to people who illegally entered the United States from Central America.

Civil disobedience is a type of warfare against legality and the forms of order in our society, it's not something that a democratic society can tolerate. The targets of it are usually public bodies, but some-times private groups are targeted.

An example of this is the disturbing militant campaign in and around Pittaburgh, Pa., on the part of a small group of radicalized Lutheran churchmen and labor activists. The Network to Save the Mon-Ohio Valley and the Lutheran ministers of the Denominational Ministry Strategy have blamed major Pittsburgh area companies for the decline of steel-making in the once prosperous Monongahela and Ohio River valleys. The groups have targeted churches where corporate officials worship.

The lawlessness is spreading. The Associated Press reports that members of the Network have spread skunk oil in demonstrations. In late December, men wearing gas masks lobbed balloons filled with dye and "skunk water" into a Christmas dinner for children at a Presbyterian church in Pittsburgh. in this case, the Network denies knowledge of the perpetrators.

This type of baseball but civil disobedience meets with the approval of the extreme radical fringe of American society. It shocks law-abiding citizens. Hoodlums who assert that they are working in a higher cause are hoodlums nonetheless.

No one believes that this outbreak of violent civil disobedience will spread across the country. It's profoundly disturbing, nevertheless. People have to be very radicalised indeed if they engage in such violent behavior. One doesn't want to focus so much attention on the militants that they believe they have achieved their goal. Publicity always is a basic goal of civil disobedience types.

Navy Misspent Drug Firm Funds

WASHINGTON - Navy medical officers have been caught misusing research money from pharmaceutical companies. Funds intended for tests of a new drug to combat venereal disease wound up in a slush fund for unauthorised expenditures.

The misspent money turned up in an audit of the Naval Medical Command's National Capital Region. This includes the medical complex in Bethesda, Md., where congressmen and other VIPs receive treatment. The audit, which was seen by my associate Donald Goldberg, covered research funds used in fiscal years 1981 through 1983.

Here are some of the more geous misuses of the research money as reported in the audit:

— Approximately $4,300 was spent to cover travel costs and registration fees for Navy officers attending a medical conference. The travel was not approved by the Navy: those who made the trip weren't working on the project the money was supposed to fund — and the project had already been com-pleted.

- Another research project funded by the pharmaceutical companies was tapped without authorisation for such odds and ends as a 63-day junket to Cairo, a portable dictating machine, books and more than $6,000 in civilian

- On another project, a research nurse was hired and paid from the donated funds, though there was no provision in the project's budget for

The principal investigator working on two research projects "received and deposited $70,414 of pharmaceutical company funds with two Washington metropolitan area university hospitals where he was a staff member," He had not obtained the Navy's approval for this raid on the fund. None of the research work was done at the two hospitals.

The misspent $70,414 included $23,952 in travel costs "for attendance at annual physicians' conferences, medical courses, and in one instance, a $7-day trip to Cairo, Egypt." Of the 27 travelers who took advantage of the fund's unauthorised largesse, only four even worked on the project. In fact, the Navy had explicitly told the Navy had explicitly told the junketeers that they weren't en-titled to reimburaement for trans-portation, per diem or miscellaneous expenses.

Not surprisingly, the auditors concluded that the Naval Medical Command "does not have adequate internal controls to protect government resources." The sloppings

'Big Brother' And Seat Belts

Editor:

Lo and behold! Mr. Orwell's prediction of "Big Brotherism" has not failed after all! New York was among the first and now Mr. Gunter. Florida's Insurance Commissioner, is copying that state's encroachment upon the right of heretofore "free" Americans to choose what they will or will not do to protect their own safety.

I am referring, of course, to the news Item in the Evening Herald of January 24th announcing Mr. Gunter's pre-filed bill which contains a proposal which would make buckling up seat belts mandatory by law. Most of his "legislative package" is to be lauded, because its proposals are aimed at protecting potential victims from irresponsible actions of othera, notably drunk drivers.

In recent months the various news media, including this newspaper, have jumped on the "buckle up" bandwagon and have ignored the fact that in some instances wearing a seat belt has resulted in crash victims burning to death when precious seconds ticked by as they vainly tried to extricate themselves from the binding restraint of a seat belt. There also have been reports of victims drowning when their automobile plunged into a river and rescuers ran out of time while trying to drag victims to safety who were strapped into their submerged car by a seat belt.

But my greatest alarm about Mr. Gunter's proposal is caused by the fact that he is saying, in effect, "Big Brother knows best!" Thus with a stroke of the pen (or maybe he used a word processor) he has taken or proposes to take away from me my right to judge and decide for myself which risk I will choose to take, that of perhaps knocking my head against the steering wheel or windshield, or being cremated alive in my flaming vehicle if I crash on the highway. How far will "Big Brother" go in dictating to me and other Americans about matters where nobody's safety but my own is concerned? Certainly neither Mr. Gunter nor any of the other hysterical "buckle up" screamers have claimed or could claim that my actions in "buckling up" or refusing to do so is in any way endangering any other person on earth. To mandate by law what I own personal safety is to strip away my constitutionally guaranteed 'right of choice".

I hope that our state legislators will have the good sense to recognize the dangerous encroachment upon the rights of our people to choose their own course of action, rather than mandate by law an alleged "safety measure" which at best is debatable.

It is rather ironic. I think, that in the same issue of the Herald there appeared an article which repeated once again the fact that smoking kills over 300,000 Americans each year. and is the single most health destroying habit of the American peo-

Elect Farmers; Boot Politicians

Never in the history of Florida has agriculture been hit with a destructive blow as in the last two years. The farmer should be encouraged to start over again by giving him a big cut in taxes, and loans at a rock bottom Interest rate.

One editorial this weekend in another paper suggested that Central Florida should forget agriculture. especially Volusia County. That is the most stupid editorial I have ever read. You can't afford to substitute agriculture with anything.

Everyone realizes that the survival of mankind depends on agriculture. Any county, state, or nation that doesn't have successful farming to heading for financial disaster.

You either give the migrant farmworker a farm to work on, or you as taxpayers feed them. You had better forget about bringing more industry in and pray for successful farms for these people to work on.

What percent of the population of America can the taxpayer feed, and survive higher taxes every day? In Oct. 1984 there were 646,063 people in Florida on food stamps, representing 245,288 families. This was costing the taxpayer $31,673,484 per

There is a good chance that the cost of food stamps in Florida for the next few months will climb to $50 million a month. Any redblooded American is willing to help the needy, but while he helps feed the unfortunate, he resents being robbed by some stupid money hungry politiclan.

About 90% of our financial problems in America are caused by politicians squandering our tax dollars trying to make a name for themselves. You can solve this political problem by not electing $100-an-hour lawyers and elect more farmers. They will put your tax dollars to work wisely.

Give It Back!

By Richard A. Viguerie Editor, National Review

In Connecticut the governor wants to cut the sales tax by half a cent. In Rhode Island the governor has asked for an income tax cut, while the governor in Iowa wants to end the sales tax on building machinery and reduce unemployment taxes. In New York, Gov. Mario Cuomo, who is hailed as the last guardian of the New Deal tradition, has proposed cutting the top rate on state income taxes from 10 percent to 9 percent, ending income taxes on poor people, and raising the personal exemption.

The Gross National Product increased 6.8 percent last year, the most since 1951, and the Reagan economic boom (you know, the one the econimic advisers said was impossible?) has produced a budget surplus in state after state. Because more people have jobs. revenues are up and expenses on social programs are down. The question facing many state legislatures is this: Do we return this money to the people. or do we spend it on schemes to get more votes and more support from special interest groups?

Consider Virginia, where the surplus is rising above the $200 million mark. At a recent hearing of the money committees of the Virginia General Assembly — the House Appropriations Committee and the Senate Flanace Committee - one special interest group after another presented plans for spending the money. The state teachers' union, the Virginia Education Association, alone requested some $620 million over the period from 1986 to 1988. State employees, county governments, and others asked for their "fair share"; the Municipal League even asked for (you guessed it) a tax increase. Only one person, the representative of a taxpayers' group, spoke against the spending schemes.

One newspaper story on the Virginia surplus put it this way: "140 legislators face a ... surplus and no lack of ideas on how to spend it."

Why spend it at all? Why not, for once, give it back to the people who put in overtime driving a truck or typing letters or working on the assembly line to pay their taxes? They earned the money, and it belongs to them, not to politicians in Washington or Richmond or anywhere else.

President Calvin Coolidge, in his 1925 Inaugural Address, said, "The men and women of this country who toll are the ones who bear the cost of government. Every dollar that we carelessly waste means that their life will be so much the more meager ....

Why shouldn't hard-working people who pay taxes and obey the laws get a break once in a while? Because at many levels our government has lost touch with the people and has become what Thomas Jefferson feared — "a government of wolves over sheep." That's why one Michigan Democrat described his state's recent tax revolt as "our people looking for more take-home pay so they can buy more snowmobiles and motorboats." The people in government who spend our money have become contemptuous toward us, accusing us of greed whenever we ask that we be allowed to keep some of what we earn.

Like the colonists who dumped tes into Boston Harbor, Americans musi organize to defend themselves from the unlimited appetite of the bureaucratic establishment. We must force government at all levels to abandon the philosophy of tax-and-tax, spend-and-spend that brought us to the edge of the economic abyss, where we were saved only by the election of a president who understood economics better than the "experts."

must do or not do in regard to my Whatever Happened To Trash Pickup On Holidays? That's When It's Really Needed

On January 3 you ran a story about the problems my neighbors and l, as well as many other residents of Sanford, were experiencing with refuse collection during the holiday season. I would like to expand on that and take issue with some statements made by the city manager. When I first contacted City Hall on the afternoon of the 2nd and inquired as to why the refuse was still standing in front of my house, I was told that my next regular collection day was Friday, the 4th, and that no pick-up would be made until then. When I pointed out that the latest bill contained a statement indicating pick-up would be on Wednesday, the 2nd, I was told that this was incorrect and that I must have misunderstood the statement. If that is so, fully 90% of my neighbors also "misunderstood" indicating that, at the very least, the city failed to clearly communicate its intentions.

collection was increased by 15% effective 1 December. At the same time, residents were notified that service was being cut in half during the holidays. Shouldn't the charge for that month also be cut in half? That question drew laughter from City Hall along with the comment that they were, "picking up the same amount of garbage." This may or may not be true. It doesn't take a gentus level intelligence to understand that the average family's volume of refuse is likely to increase significantly during the Christman/New Year holidays. This garbage has to be stored somewhere at the home, (in which case a very real health risk exists), or disposed of. would venture to guess that many households were forced to find other means to dispose of their garbage. (both legally and illegally), while the city was not picking it up.

The city manager insists that the holiday schedule was adhered to and The cost to residents for refuse that the city was doing five days work

Monday before Christmas and the Monday before New Year's Day, "as were employees of many businesses." If city government is to be compared to business, it must be classified as a business dealing in a service. Many businesses of this type were open during the holidays because their services were required and/or they cared about their cuatomers. Need I say more?

About 18 years ago, one city refuse worker suggested that he and his counterparts work holidays, when the workload was heaviest, and take three weeks, annual vacation vice the usual two. This suggestion was adopted and for many years city abandoned?

One final note. The report that I threatened to deliver my trash to City Hall is accurate. The report that none was left is not. While I have no idea what happened to the three large

Greenmail: More Government Controls Not Needed

By Waldren Berry Associate Professor of Management

David F. Scott, Jr.

It is clear that corporate takeovers are big news.

Rarely a week passes that a major column does not appear on the topic. During the first week in January, for example, David Broder of the Washington Post Writers Group took a direct shot at T. Boone Pickens, Jr. of Mess Petroleum and the cash that he squeezed out of Phillips

A by-product of the hostile acquisition activity is the concept of "greenmail." We refrain from a definition of it here as most U.S. households are familiar with the term. Phil Donahue even known familiar with the term. Phil Donahue even knows what it means. Serious discussions have emerged in Congress that would effectively ban the practice. We are on the record, too, for having a distaste for greenmail. Also, much of the greenmail banter is carried on under the guise of protecting the small investor. We differ with many, though, in asserting both the cause of the problem and in its rectification. Federal controls are not needed in this situation — here is why.

The small investor is notably different today than 25 years ago. In the 1980's the individual/institutional invertor ratio was about 70%/30% as measured by the dollar volume of equity market transactions. Now the ratio is about 30%/70%. Institutions account for about three-fourths of the trading on the New York Stock Exchange. The individual investor has fied to the mutual funds in order to gain the benefit of their professional management. The small investor has little interest in competing with professional

Owing to the pressure to perform, institutional investors no longer look for, say, 30-year workout periods for their investments. Rather, they adjust their portfolios on the basis of quarterly earnings reports or more frequent information. In many cases the individual equity investor also is in the market for near-term returns, not as a long-term investor. In the few notorious merger cases cited by the bulk of the media, most individuals could have sold their stock in a timely fashion and made a good profit, many did, but, similar to several institutional holders, some were greedy made a good profit, many did, but, similar to several institutional holders, some were greedy and waited too long to sell.

Statistics simply do not justify the need for small investor protection suggested by many journalists and Congressmen. All investors, large and small, have the same opportunities to gain or lose. In the February 1984 Texaco takeover of Getty Oil, gains in equity value for Getty Oil and Texaco shareholders totaled 86 billion; the Bass brothers made about $400 million when Texaco paid a premium for their 9.9% stake. In the June 1984 Gulf-Chevron deal total gains by the shareholders were $0 billion. This makes Boone Pickens' "greenmail" of $55.4 million look like small potatoes. Mr. Pickens, however, is not the real culprit. He is just visible and active.

Executives of the targeted companies have made questionable, if not downright poor, decisions to resist being taken over. Prominent examples include (1) Disney in attempting to buy other companies at high prices. (2) Martin-Merietta is increasing debt by more than $1 billion, and (3) most recently, Phillips Petroleum.

The defensive maneuvers utilized by Phillips Petroleum in the recent control battle with Mr. Pickens will necessitate a severe financial restructuring of the firm. According to proxy material filed with the Securities and Exchange Commission, Phillips' long-term debt plus capital leases will increase to $7.4 billion from a September 1984 level of only $2.0 billion. Fixed financial charges for Phillips will rise to $754 million annually from $205 million: this will cause a downgrading in its bond rating which translates into higher interest costs on the firm's next increment of financing.

But the Agees, Steinbergs, and Pickens did not cause the poor decisional The major impetus was the intense desire of the respective CEO's to maintain their power and control at any cost. This brought about decisions that hurt institutional investors and individual investors alike. As a result, stockholder class action law suits were initiated against both Disney and Phillips man-

If buyout raiders are banned, then a method of removing mediocre management is eliminated. The unfriendly takeover is often attempted because mediocre managements have made decisions that resulted in common stock values equal to or less than book values. It is obviously cheaper to "buy" a company in this condition than it is to start and develop a new one. Today's corporate executives and directors who are calling for the government to regulate or eliminate takeovers are asking for "protection from the discipline of competition in the market for managers." If buyout raiders are banned, then a method of

We must agree with Sun Banks President Joel

Wells who recently stated that the best defense against a takeover was to run a profitable company. If managers truly strive to maximize the values of their company, there is little need to worry about raiders and hostile takeovers. Moreover, the small investor will get what he's looking for - an adequate return on investment.

There is the potential for considerable synergism in many of today's mergers. Managers can concentrate on narrower, related fields and form stronger, more economically logical compa-nies; these can be managed more knowledgeably. It allows them to operate more effectively in the current global economy so that they can compete with larger Japanese and other foreign firms.

The merger wave has been confined primarily to the mature industries, but there are strong indications that it will spread to the high technology and financial services companies to strengthen these industries as well. Any strengthening of businesses that occurs will obviously improve the health of the economy. This will be good for all of us, including the small

Graham, Legislators Talking Tough On Growth

By William Cotterell

TALLAHASSEE (UPI) - Gov. Bob Graham and the legislative leadership are talking tough about putting Florida's growth on a "pay as you grow" basis for the remainder of this century.

All through a two-day conference on "managing Florida's megagrowth" a couple of weeks ago. the emphasis was not only on planning - but paying for the plans. Another underlying theme of the seminar at Florida State University was the unusually blunt way some of the state's most powerful politicians talked about guiding growth.

Lest any developers get the notion they can ride out the current growth-management fad, or think the prospect of expanding tax bases will generate enough pressure from city and county commissioners that the Legislature will have to compromise on growth controls, House and Senate leaders rudely reminded them that the future legislative leadership is locked in on the conservation side of the issue.

The months before a legislative session is a little like baseball's spring training season everyone sounds optimistic and all things seem possible. After April 2, when the House and Senate start playing for keeps, the hardball politics of raising taxes and restricting use of lands must be confronted - and legislators are tugged between warring factions of developers and environmentalists.

Growth management has been limited in the past by lobbying efforts of developers, who want little or no restriction on their building plans, and local government officials, who want growth to produce property tax revenue. On the other side, environmentalists and some long-range state planners have been warning since the late 1960s that the post-war real estate boom has grown much faster than the state's ecological and economic systems can stand.

House Majority Leader Jon Mills, D-Gainesville, said at the growth conference some builders are becoming more amenable to growth-management edicts simply because their customers won't buy retirement homes in a ravaged environment.

People move to Florida to live on waterfront property," said Mills. "If that waterfront becomes a sewer, people don't buy sewerfront property."

Graham spoke extensively of "internalizing" the profits of growth. For too many years, he said. developers have pocketed the profits of housing developments, resorts and shopping centers while sticking the taxpaver with the added costs of roads, police, schools, medical care and other facilities demanded by population growth.

"We've been privatizing the profits," Graham said, "and socializing the costs of Florida's Mills and Senate President Harry Johnston. D-West Palm Beach, assured developers that growth management will not go away in a year or two. They said House Speaker James Harold Thompson, D-Quincy, and Senate presidentdesignate Ken Jenne, D-Hollywood, are committed to continuing legislative efforts to channel new construction into areas that can pay for it.

Jenne takes over the Senate in 1988, the same year Mills succeeds Thompson as House speaker.
"Our time has come," Johnston said. "We have the staying power because, behind me, my successor is Ken Jenne; behind James Harold Thompson is Jon Mills."

Graham's comprehensive state plan, currently being put to a series of public hearings across the state, has also been assigned to three separate

Senate committees for study. Johnston said he will require those committees to bring back recommendations for paying the cost of new roads, schools, hospitals, courts and jalls, and government services in the year 2000.

By then, Mills predicted, a Sunbelt migration equal to the entire population of Georgia - about 5.4 million new residents - will swell the state's population by about half. In the next 15 years, he said Florida will move from sixth to third behind California and Texas - in total popula-

"When people move to Florida, they bring their families, their dogs, their cars," he said. "They don't bring roads, they don't bring schools, they don't bring sewer systems or police services."

Graham's comprehensive state plan for getting ready for the next century has been criticized for not proposing funding sources of the roads. schools, medical services and personnel needs of a fast-growing state, Johnston suggested that the Legislature add a new chapter to the master plan. dealing solely with fund sources.

The lawmakers will consider expansion of local 'impact fees" on new construction, reduction of homestead exemption, levying a property tax on mobile homes and raising other real estate taxes.

Homeless Families 'Facilities ... In This Country Are Totally Inadequate'

By Leon Daniel

UPI National Reporter

WASHINGTON (UPI) - Ginger Feagann did some hard traveling from the security of her suburban home to nights of stark terror in a shelter for the homeless, where she feared for the life of her unborn child.

Other Americans have made the grim journey from homes of their own into the growing ranks of the nation's homeless, estimated by some experts to be as many as 2 million.

'I was afraid I would lose my boby," said Feagann, 27, who was terrifled by the threats and screams of other women in the shelter. "I was afraid someone might hit me in the stomach."

The facility is one of a number New York City operates to provide temporary shelter for homeless families. As of Jan. 1. the city was providing for 3,285 auch families - 11.800 people, including about 8,000 children. The number of families the city houses has doubled in three years.

At the shelter, families sleep on cots. The single-parent family, usually headed by a mother, is most common. Possessions are kept in plastic bags under cots.

Some were burned out of their apartments. Others were sent to the center because their spartments had no heat. Most simply cannot afford to stay elsewhere. The shelter is the home of

'Nobody could have predicted this." said Lou Eather Lackey, former teacher, mother of three and a graduate of Favelteville State University in North Carolina. She and her husband. Harvey, once a laboratory technician, are both unemployed and living with their children at the shelter.

"I wake up and say, 'Lord, make the wheels turn again and keep them turning the way they were once." she told McCormack.

The Lackeys, married for 13 years. came to New York after two years of bad luck in Philadelphia.

"I've never really been on welfare until New York." said Lackey, who lost a job he had held for nine years in the science laboratory at Philadelphia Community College.

"Enrollment dropped and they reduced the staff," he said.

His wife, who taught elementary school in Washington, D.C., North Carolina, and Philadelphia, stopped work to be a full-time mother when her first child was born. She is expecting their fourth child in July.

The Turman family was rendered homeless by a fire that destroyed their apartment and possessions. The lodge is the only shelter in Chicago that permits families to stay together in the same room.

"I thank God for it," Turman said. "At least we have a room to ourselves and it's clean."

Peg Anderson, assistant director at the lodge, said, "The problem is that there are no real shelters for families. We try to provide a family situation here. There are plenty of shelters for single males and females. It's easier for a single person to find shelter."

"When people think of homelessness, they only think of singles on the

Lilliputian-Sized Library May Close

By John M. Leighty INVERNESS, Calif. (UPI) -

The Lilliputian world of Jonathan Swift's "Gulliver's Travels" would have loved the wooden 270-square-foot library located on the edge of Tomales Bay. 40 miles north of San Francisco.

In fact, the tiny inhabitants of Swift's fictional land would probably be hoisting "save the library" signs for its fate.

That's because plans are being laid to move what is considered the smallest free-standing branch library in the United States into the oldest house in town, a historic structure known as "The Gables."

The little library, which has a tiny outhouse, a space heater and no running water, is so popular that 3,571 books circulate through the branch almost every month from crammed shelves that only hold about 3,600 selections.

And, it's only open a few hours three days of the week.

"People stand outside waiting for the doors to open," said part-time librarian Barbara yman. "We've had as many as 15 people in here at one time. but some of them were'

Myman said the library sorely needs more room and that the town's residents are generally behind the plan to move the branch to the 1994 "Gables" offered by historian James Mason, who died Jan. 13 of cancer. Mason, a retired news-paper editor, local history buff and longtime resident had said he wanted to donate the house for the library to use upon his

and the Inverness Association and Foundation must decide whether to accept Mason's offer of "The Gables" for the library. The offer stipulates that Mason's daughter, Barbara Jean Mc-Cician, be paid $500 a month for the rest of her life. At present, only $100 is paid to rent the rectangular-shaped library building, which has no room for tables or chairs except for a librarian's desk, squeezed near a single window looking out over picturesque Tomales Bay.

County Librarian Sharon Hammer called the possible move to Mason's house "a wonderful plan" that would provide a place for study or research.

"The existing library is dariing, but it's very, very inadequate," she said.

Inverness Association President Alan Johnstone said he believed the money to pay the stipend to Mason's daughter could be obtained from the San Francisco Foundation through the multimillion-dollar Buck Fund. He said the large four-bedroom "Gables" siready contains a West Marin museum built by Mason and would have room for offices, studios for writers or artists, and space for other library activities such as story-telling.

Myman said closing the tiny library of 15 years would be a nostalgic loss to the community and to many of the people — nome mysteriously under 5 feet tall — who travel long distances to visit the branch.

"ft's a tomoup between tradi-tion and the needs of the com-munity," she said. "What we won't at as often is the tourists.
