Israeli planes strike Lebanon

BEIRUT, Lebanon — Israeli warplanes pounded Palestinian and Moslem guerrilla positions in southern Lebanon and the eastern Bekaa valley today in apparent retaliation for a car bomb attack that killed seven Israeli soldiers, police said.

Four Israeli jets made four bombing runs at low altitude beginning at 10 a.m., firing rockets and dropping bombs on targets in Iqlim Toffah, Ain Delb and the Palestinian refugee camp of Miyeh Miyeh east of Sidon, 24 miles south of Beirut.

At the same time, another squadron of four jetfighters blasted Moslem fundamentalist positions in the village of Mashnara, a Hezbollah stronghold 26 miles southeast of Beirut.

There were no immediate reports on casualties, but police said a number of people were killed or wounded in both raids.

Suicide bomber dies in subway

NEW YORK — Detectives tried today to determine why a young man detonated a bomb strapped to his chest in a Harlem subway station, setting off a fiery explosion that killed him instantly, police said.

Two Transit Authority police officers who were standing nearby were slightly injured by the blast about 1:25 p.m. Thursday, police said.

A second device also was found strapped to the unidentified man, whose body lay near the turnstiles in the busy subway station at 125th Street and Lexington Avenue as the police department's bomb squad defused the explosive.

"It blew a hole in his side," said Sgt. Robert Valentino, a transit police spokesman.

The two transit officers — Alfred Hull and Gary Iodice — were on the platform when they heard a noise and saw a flash as the explosion tore the man's chest open and set his clothing ablaze, police said.

L.A. completes dream season

OAKLAND — Whoever said good pitching will stop good hitting anytime must have known what they were talking about.

Dodger ace Orel Hershiser set Oakland down after early-inning control problems and Mike Davis and Mickey Hatcher blasted two-run homers as Los Angeles beat the Athletics 5-2 Thursday night to lay claim to the 1988 World Series title. Los Angeles won the series four games to one.

Dodger pitching stymied the much-heralded Oakland lineup, which finished with a team batting average of .177 and scored just 11 runs in five games.

The one-two punch of Jose Canseco and Mark McGwire were not a factor. The two combined for a 2-for-36 performance in the series. Canseco's only hit was a grand slam in Game 1 and McGwire's only hit was a two-out ninth-inning game-winning homer in Game 3.

City wins annex war

Case filed by county dismissed by Fifth District Court of Appeal

By SANDRA BOUCHAHINE
Herald staff writer

SANFORD — The city of Sanford said yesterday it has won a major victory because the state Fifth District Court of Appeal in Daytona Beach dismissed a case filed by Seminole County in an annexation battle which started last June. A three-judge panel handed down the decision in the appellate court.

The Marler, Conway, Cooper, Seigler annexation, was approved by the city on May 11, 1987. Owned by the those families, the 11-acre piece of property is located south of State Road 46 between Airport Boulevard and Bever Road, and north of Jewett Lane.

Seminole County officials filed a case on June 9, 1987 in the 18th Judicial Circuit Court challenging the city's decision to annex, stating the property is not contiguous with current city limit. The county has contended that the annexation creates an enclave.

Assistant Seminole County Attorney Lonnie Groot said Thursday that the ruling by the three judge court has no significant bearing on the Seigler annexation because the court dismissed the case due to a procedural problem.

Groot said the county and city argued back and forth in the circuit court. Seven challenges concerning this annexation were made by the county, but this is the only one that was lost by them, Groot said.

"The district court did not say the annexation

Plane surfaces

When George Baker ditched his airplane in the lake near Masters Cove Apartments in Sanford two days ago, he knew he would have to eventually come back and get it. Baker showed up at the lake Wednesday afternoon and, with a team of divers from New Smyrna Beach, worked throughout the day Thursday to raise the plane. The divers, shown above just after the plane surfaced, are employed by Baker. The men used air bags under each wing and the engine section of the plane to float it to the surface of the water where it was then towed to shore by a connecting cable. At right, Baker watches the operation from the shore. The airplane, a T-28C, was used primarily by the military in the late 40s and early 50s. Baker is optimistic about the plane's chances of being fully restored and says he hopes to have the aircraft in the air again soon. Baker owns American Aero Service in New Smyrna Beach, a company that specializes in rebuilding and restoring vintage aircraft, more specifically, those aircraft most often used during World War II.

Wekiva tributaries protected

By J. MARK BARFIELD
Herald staff writer

SANFORD — The state took one more step Thursday in the direction of protecting the Wekiva River and its tributaries from pollution.

The Florida Environmental Regulation Commission unanimously voted to designate several Wekiva River tributaries and a portion of the St. Johns River as "Outstanding Florida Waters" (OFWs), a measure that might serve to limit development on the tributaries because of the more stringent pollution control requirements.

The action follows the directive of Gov. Bob Martinez, who in January following a tour of the Wekiva, told the Florida Department of Environmental Regulation to determine if any tributaries should be designated as OFWs to further protect the system.

Local environmentalists, notably the Friends of the Wekiva, have fought for several years for additional controls on the river system.

Joining the Wekiva River and Rock Springs Run, as well as the Rock Springs State Reserve, Wekiva Springs State Park, Lower Wekiva River State Reserve and the Wekiva River Aquatic Preserve — already OFWs — are six new areas.

They include:

SHA won't hear Smith's appeal

By BRAD CHURCH
Herald city editor

SANFORD — Elliott Smith, fired as executive director of the Sanford Housing Authority last month, was denied an appeal for a grievance hearing Thursday night when the board voted 3-1 not to overturn its previous refusal to postpone the original hearing.

It was a hearing in which the authority's attorney criticized the commissioners for their comments about the Smith case.

The authority also accepted a bid to put air conditioning in 94 units at Redding Gardens, thereby using a federal grant it was in danger of losing.

James Sweeting III, the authority's attorney, said concern had been expressed by some commissioners that the board could be held liable for not granting Smith "due process" if it did not agree to his request for a postponement.

On the date set for the original hearing, neither Smith nor his attorney appeared. Instead, they ALTAMONTE SPRINGS — LeaseAmerica Corp. secretary Colleen Fahey took Thursday off to relax after spending almost four hours Wednesday locked in her office, with a gunman in the hallway holding police at bay. And police pieced together a history of the gunman who committed suicide.

About an hour after Fahey was freed from her office the gunman who was negotiating with Altamonte Springs police, shot himself in the head at about 5:15 p.m. He died within the hour.

Kevin Enright, 18, of Altamonte Springs, just after noon Wednesday was chased by police from the Ramada Inn on Douglas Avenue where police said he raped a woman. Enright holed up in Fahey's workplace and held police at bay for five hours before killing himself.

Don't neglect city elections

Election Day 1988 is November 3. Seminole County voters in numbers substantially more than the primary elections will troop to the various precincts and cast their ballots for candidates for offices ranging from city hall to the White House.

However, many registered voters will be out of the county on election day and many will vote by absentee ballot. These are secured from the office of the Supervisor of Elections and candidate preferences for the various offices from the court house to the White House can be duly marked and the votes counted on election day.

The difference between the ballot within the voting booth and the absentee ballot is small but far from insignificant. Elections will be held on Nov. 8 for city council or commission members in five municipalities of Seminole County. Qualified electors within these cities who must cast absentee ballots will disenfranchise themselves if they secure only a ballot from the county office. An absentee ballot for the various city elections must be secured from the city clerk.

Election news is dominated by the national campaigns and certainly they are very important. The occupant of the Oval Office and the lawmakers in the congress affect nearly every area of our life. So too do the holders of the constitutional offices in the county.

However, decisions made by the city commissions affect each resident to a far greater extent, both financially and socially. Roads, sewers, garbage, public safety, zoning and the myriad of other facets of city administration have a impact on our daily lives. The national balance of trade deficit may be a cause for concern, but delayed garbage collection is a real problem. Detente is important but detours are more important in our day-to-day life.

Only the most conscientious voters seek absentee ballots and, if a qualified city elector, the city election should not be elected through failure to secure the additional ballot. Every vote is important and in the case of some absentee voters, it is important to vote twice.

Poetic justice

There is something satisfying in the news that more than $95 million in assets forfeited by drug traffickers and organized-crime figures will be spent on building more federal prison space to house them.

The new program is an effort to ease the overcrowded federal prison system. The U.S. Marshal's Service, which is responsible for the money, property and goods forfeited by criminals when they are convicted, holds assets valued at more than $700 million.

The forfeitures are being conducted under a little-noticed provision of Congress' 1988 appropriations bill for the Justice Department, which permits transfer of assets to the Bureau of Prisons for construction. Florida's own Sen. Lawton Childs, chairman of the appropriations committee, displayed clear thinking when he proposed that portion of the appropriations bill.

The $95 million being spent on prison construction and refurbishing could be just the first installment - so long as criminals forfeit their assets, the prison fund should flourish. More arrests, more forfeitures, more money for prisons. That's poetic justice at work.

Reagan throws in towel on Nicaragua

WASHINGTON - President Reagan has given up on delivering a death blow to the Sandinista government in Nicaragua.

With time running out for him, Reagan has served notice that he will not make another bid for arms aid to the Nicaraguan rebels, known as the Contras.

At the same time, he vows he will call a special session of Congress if the Sandinista government in Managua plays hard ball and takes advantage of the current lull to attack the Contras.

Reagan is bowing to the inevitable. Try as he might, he could not overthrow the government of Marxist Daniel Ortega with the resources at hand, and he was not prepared to up the ante himself or to escalate U.S. personal involvement. Furthermore, he had no backing in the country for such a move while memories of Vietnam linger on.

The president came into office bound and determined to rid the Caribbean of the leftist thorn in his side and to prevent another Cuba.

The crusade, pushed relentlessly by the conservatives in his party, was first portrayed as an attempt to stop Nicaragua from exporting arms and revolution to other Central American countries, mainly El Salvador.

It gradually expanded to its real purpose: to end Sandinista rule.

Obsessed, Reagan tried everything in the book, insisting that the region could not tolerate two Castros. The Soviets continued to arm the Nicaraguan government. And the administration gave the go-ahead to the CIA to train and equip an army of rebels.

In the eyes of critics it became a proxy war run by a CIA-controlled mercenary army, American regular Army and reserve units were sent to Honduras on maneuvers that were open ended.

Reagan announced "I am a Contra" at a White House briefing, and he likened the rebels to the "moral equivalent of founding fathers," a description that did not stick since many of the men had served with dictator Anastasio Somoza. Congress blew hot and cold on the subject while the president pulled out all the stops, warning that the "feet people" would be coming in by hordes unless the Sandinistas were beaten. He also raised the specter of the Nicaraguan left invading Harlingen, Texas.

He likened the rebels to the moral equivalent of founding fathers.

The saga of his struggle to topple the Sandinistas had its disturbing moments, including the revelation that the CIA had put out an assassination manual for the Contras; the CIA mining of the Nicaraguan harbors in violation of international law, a move that led the administration to take the United States out of the Court of International Justice.

Millions of dollars were spent on the effort and casualties were heavy on both sides.

Then along came the Iran-Contra scandal with revelations that Reagan had secretly sold arms to Iran in exchange for help in winning release of the American hostages in Lebanon, and a zealous deputy national security officer, Lt. Col. Oliver North, had siphoned off the profits to bail out and arm the Contras.

The president said he did not know about the diversion of the funds to the Contras. But the affair rocked the White House and cast a deep shadow over the administration. The president went underground for a long time and the question was who is running the White House.

Dukakis' insoluble problem

WASHINGTON-Through much of the last century it was considered unseemly for candidates, particularly presidential candidates, to campaign. They were supposed to respond, almost reluctantly, to a call to public service. Through much of this year Americans must have envied Americans who lived in the 19th century.

Furthermore, through much of this year the managers of both candidates must have felt as a supporter of the Whig nominee, William Henry Harrison, felt in 1836: "(Let him) say not one single word about his principles or his creed, let him say nothing-promise nothing. Let no committee, no convention, no town meeting ever extract from him a single word about what he thinks now and will do hereafter. Let use of pen and ink be wholly forbidden as if he were a mad poet in Bedlam."

But in Los Angeles, at last, we saw why the long campaign is not too long. Practice may not make perfect, but it does make for adequacy. Both candidates came on stage better prepared to talk, clearly and concisely, which means better suited for governance.

Politics is mostly talk and this is especially so in the presidency, the power of which is the power to persuade. Both Bush and Dukakis are more plausible Presidents today than they were four months ago.

But they did not do equally well in the debate. Bush won.

Dukakis is losing in popular vote projections and by a landslide in extrapolations of the electoral-vote outcome. So he needed some gambit that would make the debate a galvanizing event, one that would energize his core supporters and cause undecided voters to break disproportionately in his direction. His dilemma was that any such gambit might be viewed as evidence of desperation. And the lack of one would be viewed as misguided complacency.

Dukakis showed a decided lack of force when he did not maul Bush for his refusal to have more debates. But by then Dukakis had demonstrated that he is going to continue relying on the political oxymoron that got him this far--managerial populism.

The night he accepted the nomination he said something that indicated--or, advertised--his insoluble problem and fatal weakness. In his acceptance speech he said, as if saying so would make it so, that this election would be about competence, not ideology. By saying that, he as much as pointed to his glass chin and said "hit me here." He has been belted around the ring ever since.

In Los Angeles he was simply pathetic in his weak attempt to wriggle off the hook as he has impaled himself on by his lifetime in the liberal politics of Massachusetts. "Labels don't mean a thing," he said, plaintively--as though it is impossible to characterize accurately a long career with traditional political categories--such as "liberal" and "conservative." ("Meaningless" is what he called labels in Atlanta in August. That notified the Bush campaign to get out its labeling machine.) "Let's stop labeling one another," he pleaded in Los Angeles. Here is the story of politics in the late '80s: Bush covets the label "conservative." Dukakis is losing because he is liberal and the country isn't.

Tempted by the Lorelei of liberal righteousness, Dukakis twice made an issue of Supreme Court nominee Robert Bork. The second time he did something sleazy. He dragged Bork--against whose integrity no one has ever said a believable syllable of criticism--into his answer to a question on "sleaze." This smear did not please a single voter Dukakis did not already have and it reminded some tepid Bush supporters of why they are on Bush's side.

They need constant reminding because, regarding what should be his strong suit--national security--Bush is hardly as strong as a horseshoer. In Los Angeles, with an almost lovely disregard of logic, he cited Gorbachev's displeasure about the grain embargo as a reason for condemning (these are Bush's words--really) "that liberal Democrat grain embargo." In his remarks on Nicaragua, he blamed Congress for killing Reagan's policy but did not even try to revive it.

As has been the case throughout this campaign, Bush's reticence regarding support for the contra signals his tepidness toward the Reagan Doctrine, the policy of supporting resistance groups within the Soviet empire.

Dukakis issued yet another of his toothless "challenges" to Gorbachev to be a good fellow, but Bush seems sure that Gorbachev is such a fellow. So let's get back to what Bush calls their "fundamental differences," which concern...agricultural subsidies. Or perhaps clean air? Or...

Politics is mostly talk and this is especially so in the presidency.

VA cops need checking out

WASHINGTON - As many as six out of 10 cops protecting the hallways of Veterans Administration hospitals probably should not have been hired. In addition to officers who simply aren't qualified for the job, an alarming number of VA cops have been on the wrong side of the law - including one accused murderer and an assortment of rapists, thieves and thugs.

These rogues won VA Security Service badges because bumbling bureaucrats failed to check arrest records and talk with past employers of would-be cops.

The haphazard hiring practices has made it harder for honest men and women in the VA Security Services to keep the peace at the 172 VA hospitals nationwide. Many of these medical centers are located in tough urban neighborhoods where an officer's life may depend on the ability of his colleagues.

Investigators with the VA inspector general exposed cops with dubious histories as part of a review of VA Security Services at nine hospitals. Their probe began after last year's fiasco at the Cincinnati Veterans Medical Center. Some police officers there accused their chief, Daniel Wilson, of beating up blacks and panhandlers who stepped out of line at the hospital.

Authorities never filed brutality charges against Wilson, but he is currently under a criminal investigation for allegedly lying to the VA about his background when he applied for the chief's position, according to a source close to the investigation. Wilson resigned from the VA earlier this year.

Our associates Stewart Harris and Scott Steek have been investigating the VA Security Service for months and obtained a draft copy of the inspector general's report.

The inspector general conducted background checks on 225 officers hired in the past year. Of those, 134 either didn't meet the necessary requirements for the job, had been fired from other law enforcement agencies or were convicted of criminal acts. There are about 1,700 full-time VA cops.

One of the new hires was arrested for murder. Local authorities allowed the man to plead guilty to a lesser charge in exchange for giving evidence against his accomplice. The man never told the VA about his conviction and the VA never checked.

A total of 27 VA cops have been convicted on charges ranging from rape to armed robbery, assault and embezzlement, according to the inspector general. VA cops with arrest records can pose a sticky problem if they must take the witness stand against someone they arrest at a VA hospital. A good defense attorney can easily poke holes in the credibility of a cop who has been convicted of a crime.

The VA sometimes ignores more than criminal records. The inspector general found that the VA sometimes doesn't even check with previous employers. One applicant told the VA he had nine years of experience on a city police force. The inspector general suspected something because the cop accounted for nine unemployed months by stating simply "out of town" on his application. A call to the police force by the inspector general turned up the truth - that the officer had been suspended several times for insubordination, unauthorized absences and abuse of sick leave. He was also under investigation by the city police department's internal affairs office and was under the care of a department psychiatrist.

Why didn't the police department tell that to the VA? The VA never asked.

Testimony ends in Bakker lawsuit

COLUMBIA, S.C. — A lone protester stood vigil outside the U.S. Bankruptcy Court, protesting Jim Bakker who is testifying in a $52 million lawsuit that accuses him of misappropriating PTL monies.

The bankruptcy court has been a media circus all week with reporters and photographers trekking daily to the courthouse where the PTL founder concluded his defense testimony Thursday.

Bakker, his wife Tammy Faye and former aide David Taggart are being sued by PTL on charges they accepted huge salaries and bonuses and used PTL funds for personal enrichment.

PTL lawyer Prud Leggett, cross-examining Bakker Thursday, questioned him about receipts Bakker submitted documenting expenditures that were billed to PTL, some for more than $1,000 for things like flowers.

Censured priest won't change views

SAN FRANCISCO — A controversial priest ordered silenced for one year by the Vatican for unorthodox teachings will comply with the censure but has no plans to change his views or fire a self-proclaimed witch he hired.

"I believe that power, rather than theology, is the real issue in this case," the Rev. Matthew Fox, a Dominican priest, told a news conference Thursday in response to the Vatican order.

"The very act of silencing theologians instead of engaging them in dialogue is a sign of institutional violence," he said.

He also accused the Vatican of "spiritual sloth" and "creeping fascism" in letters written during a running dispute with Cardinal Joseph Ratzinger, prefect of the Sacred Congregation for the Doctrine of the Faith in Rome.

Fox, a feminist, environmentalist and advocate of the "human potential" movement, said he had no intention of firing a woman called Starhawk, a self-proclaimed witch and "goddess movement" leader, from the faculty of his Institute in Culture and Creative Spirituality. The institute is located on the campus of Holy Names College in Oakland.

Anti-drug bill set for final vote today

WASHINGTON — A massive anti-drug bill, set for a final vote today with Congress eager to adjourn, would create a Cabinet-level oversight official, a federal death penalty for major dealers and stiff fines for even casual users.

House speaker Jim Wright did not rule out the possibility of a vote early today on technical corrections to the 1988 tax reform bill, but the anti-drug bill clearly was the last major legislative hurdle of the 100th Congress.

As negotiators struggled to reach their accord on the sensitive election-year measure, Congress gave final approval Thursday to a $1.3 billion homeless aid package and a bill that provides cost-of-living increases for veterans.

The negotiated version of the drug legislation, expected to win overwhelming approval in both chambers, also retained the support of President Reagan by including most of the provisions he termed necessary to fight the escalating narcotics problem.

Few leftovers in food company bids

Nabisco, Kraft, Pillsbury all subject to takeover attempts

United Press International

ATLANTA — Analysts say the proposed $17 billion takeover of RJR Nabisco Inc. by its top executives amounts to "a gift" at $75 a share and that there's "no predicting" what will happen in the rapidly consolidating industry of edibles that has seen a flurry of hostile takeover attempts this week.

With backing from one of the nation's largest financial institutions, RJR Nabisco Inc. managers said Thursday they are pondering buying out the company, makers of Oreo cookies and Camel cigarettes, in what would be the largest corporate acquisition in U.S. history.

Also Thursday, Kraft Inc., makers of processed cheeses and other foods, announced it would not melt under pressure to enter negotiations with tobacco industry giant Philip Morris Cos., which has cast its corporate eye on taking command at Kraft.

Earlier in the week, Pillsbury's board of directors rejected an unsolicited bid for the doughboy dynasty by Britain's Grand Metropolitan, a restaurant and liquor conglomerate.

Nabisco managers have summoned Shearson Lehman Hutton Inc. to help in the dollar dealing department of their proposal, which was initiated by F. Ross Johnson, Nabisco's chief executive and Edward A. Horrigan Jr., chief executive officer of its tobacco division and other managers.

"Shearson can confirm that it has been working with the management group on a possible management-led buyout," said Michael O'Neal, a spokesman for Shearson Lehman Hutton.

Shearson Lehman would provide "the equity and the mezzanine financing," O'Neal said.

"It would arrange the senior bank financing and act as the financial adviser to the management group in a possible financial transaction," he said.

Financial analyst Clinton Mayer of Bear Stearns & Co. in New York called the $75-a-share offer "a gift because it is a substantial premium over previous market value."

"This stock should be worth a minimum of $85," Mayer said. "The current market value is $76, so that's only a dollar above the bid price."

Mayer said if the leveraged buyout of RJR Nabisco goes through "it obviously means there will be one fewer company to attract a possible suitor. With fewer major players, it's possible that the whole process of these acquisitions may peak — but there is no predicting what will happen."

RJR Nabisco's stock soared by $19.50 to $75.375 after the announcement in hectic trading on the New York Stock Exchange, where it was the most active issue.

RJR Nabisco also reported Thursday record third quarter net income per common share of $1.55, up 25 percent from $1.24 per share in 1987. The company's net income was $355 million, up 11 percent from $320 million in the third quarter of 1987.

"Any proposal, if made, would be reviewed by a special committee composed of outside directors, which has been established by the board," the statement said.

Charles E. Hugel, chairman of RJR Nabisco's board and head of the special committee, said no determination has been made regarding the acceptability of any such proposal.

Marcos indictment expected today

United Press International

WASHINGTON — With the prospect of foreign policy restraints fading, the Justice Department apparently was clear to proceed today with an indictment against former Philippines President Ferdinand Marcos on embezzlement charges.

President Reagan, responding to a news report that he had decided to let the prosecution of Marcos go forward, expressed doubt to journalists that the case would involve foreign policy concerns warranting his involvement. That stance was seen as a way for him to avoid directly condemning the former U.S. ally.

At the same time, however, Reagan's spokesman indicated final legal decisions had not been made late Thursday, leaving open the possibility of eleventh-hour plea bargaining despite several reports that the indictment would come today.

Spokesman Marlin Fitzwater said the decision to indict was "not that clear cut," indicating various charges might be under consideration or talks still might be under way with Marcos, whose lawyer in Washington did not respond to telephone calls.

"There are a lot of legal options, possibilities about how to proceed or not to proceed in this case," Fitzwater explained Thursday. "There may not be any need for direct presidential involvement. There may not be any foreign policy implications."

Marcos also facing legal problems in Philippines

United Press International

MANILA, Philippines — As U.S. prosecutors prepared Friday to move against Ferdinand Marcos, the wheels of justice ground slowly toward the Philippines more than 2½ years after the former president was driven from power.

Authorities estimate they are still at least six months away from filing criminal charges against Marcos, whom they accuse of having systematically looted the national treasury of $5 billion to $15 billion during his 20 years in office.

"There is no exact figure" on the amount stolen by Marcos, said Assistant Solicitor General Ramon Desuardo in a telephone interview.

"These are pure estimates ... based on the length of time Mr. Marcos has been secretly stashing money from the Philippines."

Desuardo said it was believed Marcos may have looted as much as $1 billion a year — dating from very early in his 20-year administration — taking it from the government, private individuals and corporations and from official U.S. aid.

In addition, Marcos owned or controlled a vast network of companies in the Philippines.

Agreed Reagan in a brief exchange with reporters: "I would think it would have to be a matter of foreign policy to bring it to my desk, not just some legal technicality. Things come to me when it involves foreign policy."

Aides had said Reagan would get the final word on whether to pursue sensitive cases involving current or former foreign officials — with one eye on possible damage to U.S. policy interests. Presidential review was emphasized after the highly publicized case of Panama's Gen. Manuel Noriega, indicted on narcotics and racketeering charges by two federal grand juries in February.

Federal law enforcement sources confirmed Thursday that legal action against Marcos was imminent.

Lithuania chief removed from power

MOSCOW — Lithuania's Communist Party leader, ousted on the eve of a conference called to set up a non-communist party organization in the Baltic republic, apparently was opposed to the reform, a Western diplomat said.

The Tass news agency said Ringaudas-Bronislovas Songaila, 58, was retired "on a pension" by a full meeting, or plenum, of Lithuania's Communist Party leadership Thursday. He was replaced by Algirdas Brazauskas, 56, the party's No. 2 leader and described as an advocate of change, it said.

The retirement of Songaila came on the eve of the formation of a National Front organization in Lithuania similar to the groups set up in the neighboring Estonia and Latvian republics to further nationalist goals, and a Western diplomat said he "obviously was not in line" with the new thinking about the groups.

Solidarity: East Germany blocking port

WARSAW, Poland — A Solidarity official charged East Germany is violating the 1945 Potsdam agreement by hindering access to the Polish port of Szczecin, and demanded that the issue be discussed at scheduled talks between his outlawed union and the government.

Marian Jurczyk, a Solidarity leader in the Baltic port of Szczecin, said Thursday the Polish government has tried to keep the East German action under wraps.

Jurczyk said East Germany declared a 12 mile territorial limit on its Baltic Sea coast three years ago. The territorial claim, he said, blocks access through the Pomeranian Bay to Szczecin and smaller ports in Poland's northwestern province.

Britain may repeal of 17th-century law

LONDON — Alarmed by a bloody Irish Republican Army offensive last summer, the government asked Parliament to repeal a 17th-century law allowing criminals the right to remain silent without prejudice to their cases.

The proposal, submitted Thursday by Northern Ireland Secretary Tom King for debate at a date to be announced, was branded as "a second propaganda coup for the IRA in as many days" by Roy Hattersley, deputy leader of the opposition Labor Party.

It was announced 24 hours after the government banned television and radio interviews with extremists of outlawed organizations on both sides of the Catholic-Protestant divide in the British-ruled province, including the Irish Republican Army.

Home Secretary Douglas Hurd said the latest measure, planned initially for Northern Ireland, also would be applied in England and Wales, probably early next year.

OPEC tries to tackle decline in oil prices

United Press International

MADRID, Spain — OPEC Secretary-General Subroto of Indonesia, reacting to the failure of key OPEC committees to solve the cartel's production quota problems, says he might have to call an emergency summit in a bid to halt plummeting oil prices.

Key officials of the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries meeting in Madrid had said earlier Thursday the chances were good the cartel could slow production and halt the price decline, but in an hourlong meeting failed to reach agreement on quotas.

Subroto told the eight members of the price and long-term strategy committees: "We must deal with the fundamental problems facing OPEC, and there may be a need to call an extraordinary meeting."

The next plenary conference of OPEC is scheduled for Nov. 21 in Vienna but rumors abounded that an emergency meeting might be called for next week.

The eight oil ministers began their joint meeting late Thursday under heavy security at the Algerian Embassy in downtown Madrid. The meeting lasted an hour.

The late arrivals of OPEC President Rilwanu Lukman of Nigeria and Iraqi Oil Minister Issam Abdul Raheem Al-Chalabi caused an eight-hour delay in the start of the talks.

Oil industry experts said the lack of agreement on quotas could send prices plummeting in months to come and prompt a price war.

Although neither committee has the power to set policy for the producers' organization, they can make recommendations to the full cartel.

Analysts said the key issues of Iraq's return to the OPEC fold and the United Arab Emirates' demand for a higher production quota might force Subroto to consider an emergency meeting of all 13 members.

Iraq was present at the Madrid talks, but the UAE is not a member of either of the two committees at the meeting.

The UAE has demanded a production increase from 938,000 barrels a day to 1.5 million, but OPEC is trying to limit production to stabilize prices.

40,000 protest in Yugoslavia

United Press International

BELGRADE, Yugoslavia — An estimated 40,000 Serbs demonstrated in the predominantly Albanian province of Kosovo in support of a Serbian leader given a no-confidence vote by the Communist Party a day earlier, reports from the region said.

Protesters in Kosovo Polje, near the Kosovo capital of Pristina, Thursday shouted their disapproval of Wednesday's vote by the party's Central Committee against Dusan Ckrebic, a close ally of Serbian party leader Slobodan Milosevic.

Ckrebic offered his resignation from the ruling Yugoslav party Presidium but it has not been accepted. The no-confidence vote does not require a resignation because it is not binding, but it does signal the leadership's displeasure.

The vote was viewed as a blow to Milosevic and his campaign for Serbia to exert more control over Kosovo and Vojvodina, two autonomous provinces in Serbian territory. Minority Serbs and Montenegrins in Kosovo have been protesting persecution by the ethnic Albanian majority.

About 40,000 people gathered near a school and, later, at a railroad station to express their support of Ckrebic in a non-violent demonstration that lasted about six hours. There were no reports of arrests.

"We shall not give up Ckrebic!" the demonstrators shouted at one point.

Marko Orlandic, a member of the Yugoslav Communist Party Presidium, urged the demonstrators to exercise a "little more patience," to return to work and school and to let the Central Committee solve the problems in Kosovo, which is in southern Serbia along the Albanian border.

At the same time, more than 10,000 Serbian secondary school and university students continued to boycott classes begun early this month in protest of persecution by ethnic Albanians.

The students originally planned to end their boycott once the Central Committee resolves the persecution issue, a move that was expected by Wednesday.

Cops smash gambling ring before Series

United Press International

NEW YORK — Police smashed a $19 million-a-year mob-linked sports betting ring and closed gambling dens in Manhattan, Brooklyn and Staten Island minutes before the start of the fifth and final game of the World Series Thursday.

New York City detectives, New Jersey state police and investigators from the Essex County, N.J., prosecutor's office moved in on the betting parlors about 8 p.m. at the height of one of the year's biggest weeks for sports betting, officials said.

Among five suspects arrested was Fred Cucolo, 36, of West Orange, N.J., identified by authorities as a member of the Philadelphia-based Scarfo crime family.

"The betting is very heavy for the World Series," said Deputy Inspector Frank Biehler, who coordinated the raids. "This is one of the biggest weeks of the year for them."

Biehler said the investigation had not quite been completed but authorities swooped down on the gambling parlors because of the likelihood the Los Angeles Dodgers would wrap up the series. The Dodgers defeated the Oakland Athletics 5-2 later in the night to win the series 4-1.

Cucolo was arrested at a

Staten Island betting parlor that grossed $15 million a year, Biehler said.

The inspector said Cucolo, a member of the crime family headed by Nicodemo "Little and confidential information was received and all three places were hit."

Scarfo is currently on trial in Philadelphia with 16 others on federal racketeering charges, including murder, loansharking and illegal gambling. He was convicted last year of extortion and sentenced to 14 years in prison.

World Series fever grips Nicaragua

United Press International

MANAGUA, Nicaragua — Marxist politics, a collapsing economy and America-bashing were all but forgotten this week in baseball-crazy Nicaragua, where the World Series was aired live for the first time in years.

"You have to understand, baseball is a fever here," said sports columnist Edgard Tijerino, explaining why the World Series has nudged aside news about the Contra rebels and Hurricane Joan on the front pages of Nicaraguan newspapers this week.

For the first time in years, the state-owned Sandinista Television System aired the World Series live and virtually all Nicaraguans with access to a television set were glued to the tube for the showdown between the Los Angeles Dodgers and the Oakland Athletics.

Most fans in Managua were rooting for the Dodgers.

The Nicaraguan passion for baseball probably can be traced to the 1920s and '30s, when U.S. influence first became dominant. It thrived under decades of pro-U.S. dictatorship by the hated Somoza family dynasty.

In Manhattan, police raided a posh apartment that grossed about $3 million a year and police there arrested Saul Schacht, 59, of Secaucus, N.J., Biehler said.

Biehler said Schacht seemed surprised when police burst into the room.

"I guess they're always surprised — they think they're deep underground," he said.

In Brooklyn, authorities raided an address where two satellite dishes had been set up to pirate the Off-Track Betting Corp.'s broadcast of horse races so bettors could watch, Biehler said.

At the Brooklyn parlor police arrested Robert Castronova, 50, Marguerite Melillo, 49, and Angelo Oliveri, 30, all of Brooklyn.

All five suspects were charged with possession of gambling records and promoting gambling, Biehler said.

Date set for presidential elections

United Press International

SAN SALVADOR, El Salvador — The Central Election Council has announced that presidential elections will be held March 19 if the legislature approves the date.

"In accordance with El Salvador's electoral law and constitution, the presidential elections will take place in March of 1989," Council member Juan Jose Bonilla announced late Thursday following a Legislative Assembly session.

If the legislature approves the date next week, as expected, the election campaign would begin in early November.

Likely to participate in the elections are three parties aligned with the Christian Democratic Party, known by its Spanish initials PDC, two parties associated with the ultra-right wing faction ARENA, and four others aligned with the Democratic Convergence party.

The National Conciliation Party (PCN) was seriously weakened in March 20 legislative elections when ARENA won a majority of seats in the Legislative Assembly.

ARENA now controls 30 of the 60 seats, the PDC holds 23 and the National Conciliation Party (PCN) seven.

The PCN has been further weakened by the illness of President Jose Napoleon Duarte, who is suffering from incurable stomach cancer and has been given only a few months to live.

El Salvador is engulfed in a nine-year-old civil war with leftist guerrillas from the Farabundo Marti National Liberation Front — a conflict that has left 70,000 people dead and inflicted billions of dollars worth of property damage.

Hewitt leads Deltona over Seabreeze JV, 23-0

By MARK BLYTHE
Herald sports writer

DAYTONA BEACH — Les Hewitt and the Deltona High School Wolves methodically decimated the Seabreeze Sanderabs, 23-0, in a junior varsity matchup before 301 fans Thursday night at Municipal Stadium.

Deltona improved to 4-1 this season and will get its first taste of varsity football action against Callahan West Nassau High School next Friday at Spee Martin Stadium in DeLand. Seabreeze fell to 5-2 overall this season.

Hewitt rushed for 142 yards on just 12 carries and scored two touchdowns to lead the Wolves' offensive dominance. Deltona moved the football as will and carried up with 14 points in the third period to put the game out of reach.

"We were expecting them (Seabreeze) to bring down a couple of their varsity players to play against us tonight," Deltona coach Bob Wallace said. "We expect to play well against junior varsity teams, we practice longer and are not really a junior varsity club. I consider us a young varsity team that had some scheduling problems, we're ready to begin our varsity schedule."

The Wolves scored on the opening kickoff and showed their dominance throughout. Deltona, after fumbling the kickoff, opened its first possession on its own four yard line. Three running plays, one by Hewitt and two by Robert Reese, moved the ball out to the 15-yard line and picked up a first down for the Wolves. After Reese moved the ball out to the 17 Hewitt raced 71 yards to the Sanderabs 12 yard line.

Reese then pounded the ball to the 10-yard line before Hewitt ran for no gain and quarterback Tony Neimesh fired an incomplete pass to stall the drive. Jon Slusser then came on and drilled a 27-yard field goal to give the Wolves a lead they would not relinquish at 3-0 with 5:37 remaining in the first quarter.

Deltona managed to get right back when middle linebacker Keith Fedigan made a crunching hit on Seabreeze running back LeVon Wilson and caused him to cough up the football. The Wolves, though, failed to cash in on the opportunity when a bad snap broke up a 28-yard field goal attempt.

On the bad snap, though, Neimesh, the holder, took the ball around the end to the four yard line where Seabreeze took over on downs. The Sanderabs tried to run the ball out of the hole but lost a yard on a Steve Lee run and Wilson was stopped for no gain. Quarterback Ronnie Jones, who left the game with a neck injury, then fired an incomplete pass and Seabreeze was forced to punt. The punt was only 30 yards and Reese returned the ball to the Sanderab 21-yard line.

Hewitt took the first play around the end for three yards before exploding up the middle and scoring the games first touchdown. The extra point was missed and Deltona led 9-0 with 8:42 remaining in the first half.

Neither team could move the ball for the rest of the half with Deltona managing one more scoring attempt when Slusser attempted a 37-yard field goal that fell just shy of its mark.

The Wolves established complete control of the game early in the second half when it stopped Seabreeze on three plays and forced a punt, taking over at the Sanderab 42-yard line. Reese took two runs up the middle to move the ball to the 31 before a late hit was called and moved the ball down to the 16 yard line.

Hewitt then jaunted up the middle for 14 yards before Lee made a TD saving tackle. Hewitt, though, was not to be denied as he took the next play off tackle and scored his second touchdown of the night. Slusser added the point after and upped the lead to 16-0 with 6:23 to play in the third period.

The Deltona defense came through again and stopped Seabreeze on three downs and managed to strike again offensively thanks to a long pass play. The Wolves took over at their own 27-yard line with Hewitt running the first two plays up the middle and moving the ball out to the 41-yard line. Neimesh then found wide receiver Chad Tyson on a 55-yard pass completion that moved the ball down to the four-yard line. Reese then powered his way in for the final score of the night to up the lead to 23-0 with 2:09 remaining in the third quarter.

The Sanderabs attempted to air it out for the final quarter but their futile as Derrin Taylor came up with an interception and Fedigan and Adam Moore came up with key sacks to end any Seabreeze threat.

The Sanderabs best attempt to score came with just under a minute to play but a fumble, recovered by Deltona's Damon Johnson ended their only chance.

"When we play a true junior varsity team this should be the outcome," Wallace said. "Our ground game was very tough and though we had some lapses on defense I thought we played an excellent football game."

McDowell: Knights must win at Valdosta

By DAVID CONCORAN
Herald correspondent

ORLANDO — The University of Central Florida Knights in the words of head coach Gene McDowell "face a must win situation," when the travel to Valdosta, Ga. on Saturday to face the Valdosta State College Blazers.

The Knights, 6-1 and 10th ranked in the NCAA Division II poll, can't afford a "slip up" against the Blazers, 4-2 and a member of the Gulf South Conference, who defeated West Georgia last week, 17-14.

UCF last week defeated Southern Connecticut State, 24-16, in its homecoming, and the players are ready for the stretch drive and a possible second straight Division II playoff bid.

"If you would have asked me before the season started that we (UCF) would have a 6-1 record after our first seven games this season, I would have told you you're crazy with our schedule, I'm pleased as punch with it," said McDowell.

"But this is our last regular season game with a Div. II team (Valdosta State), and with three straight Division IAA teams (Liberty, Georgia Southern, and Eastern Kentucky) to close out, we have to win Saturday."

The Blazers are led by Mike Caven, 40 in his third year as the head coach of the, and he has a record of 19-8.

The Blazers' standout player is sophomore running back Edward Jackson, who is eighth in the nation (Div. II) in kickoff returns with an average of 26.2 yards per return.

The Knights are led by sophomore quarterback Shane Willis, (157-266-1,886-9 TDs-9 ints.) who is second in total offense (Div. II) with an average of 277.5 yards per game.

Willis and his fine receiver corps "The Bomb Squad", led by Sean Beckton (48-656-137 ave.-4 TDs), Arnell Spencer (23-326-14-2-4TDs), and Shantel Roundtree (16-193-12-1-2TDs), can't wait to do their thing against the Blazers.

And don't forget "Hurricane" Gilbert Barnes, who will try to extend his 100 yard rushing game streak to three after 129 and 177 yard efforts against New Haven and Southern Conn. State.

UCF's Shane Willis looks for a receiver during last week's action vs. Southern Connecticut State. Willis and the Knights play at Valdosta State Saturday.

Key night on tap in District 5A-4

By DEAN SMITH
Herald correspondent

The biggest night in District 5A-4 football this year is set for tonight when Lake Brantley hosts DeLand and Lyman plays Spruce Creek at Daytona Beach.

The Patriots of Lake Brantley High School will attempt to move to 5-2 overall and 4-0 in District 5A-4 when they play host to the Bulldogs of DeLand High School tonight at 8 at Tom Storey Field.

Coach Fred Almon of Lake Brantley figures it will be a tough game. "They are a very good team. They got off to a tough start but have been coming on strong. They have put most of their best people on defense, which will make it tough on us. They like to control the ball like we do, they stay very basic and don't do a lot of fancy stuff."

After getting off to an 0-3 start in which they lost two in overtime and one on a field goal at the final gun, the Bulldogs have rebounded to win two straight, but coach David Hiss of DeLand does not think much of his team's chances.

"They (Patriots) are very good, probably the best team we will play all year. We are going to get our butts beat. We are going to church this afternoon and pray, because we don't stand a chance with these people."

DeLand is led offensively by senior tailback Calvin Sutton, a strong 190 pounder, senior halfback Willie Postell, 190 pound, junior fullback Robert Baldwin, and at quarterback, either senior Kevin Hiss or junior Darren Darby.

Defensively the Bulldogs are led by senior linebacker Stacy Howard, senior defensive back Marlon Harris, and Darby, who also plays defensive back.

The Patriots are coming off a big 28-16 win over county rival Lake Howell in which the Dantzer brothers, Eroy and Mike, rushed for 135 and 47 yards, respectively. Eroy scored two touchdowns, one a 64 yard run, and Mike added one. Junior quarterback Clint Johnson rushed for 47 yards and a touchdown, while the other running back, junior Chris Koepke added 24 rushing yards.

This game is pivotal for Brantley as it has two more district opponents in Spruce Creek and Lyman coming up as the Patriots make a run at postseason play and a shot at the state playoffs.

Coach Almon plans no changes for the game. "We just will try to do what we have been doing, and try to cut down on our turnovers. We have been fortunate to overcome the fumbles so far, but if we don't stop them, it is going to catch up with us and cost us a game."

LYMAN VS. CREEK

With the freshmen and junior varsity teams having already posted wins this week, Lyman High School football coach Bill Scott hopes the varsity can do the same.

Of course, if the Greyhounds do beat Spruce Creek tonight at Daytona Beach Municipal Stadium, it will vault them back into the middle of the 5A-District 4 race.

Going into tonight's game, Lyman is in third place in the district with a 1-1 mark (3-2 overall) behind Lake Brantley and Spruce Creek (both 3-0 in the district). The Greyhounds also have a game left against Lake Brantley's Patriots, on the final night of the season.

"That's exactly the way it happened in 1982, the last time we won the district championship," explained Scott, whose team has lost its last two games (to Lake Mary and Oviedo).

"We had one loss and we had to go beat a tough Apeska team. We did and it came down to Lake Brantley in the last game of the season. We were fortunate enough to come out on top."

Despite the records and standings, Lyman is considered a favorite of sorts in tonight's game.

"I think the team's mental attitude is better this week than it was last week."

"They'll be ready to play."

"Last week, we were kind of flat after losing our first game of the season to Lake Mary. We had played Oviedo in the jamboree (beating the Lions 13-7). We didn't give much thought to them being as good as they are."

Still, Lyman almost pulled out the win, but a last-second field goal muzzled the Greyhounds 23-20.

"I think we performed fairly well offensively most of the time."

"Offensively, I think we have enough to get the job done. But we have to stop Spruce Creek first."

Lady 'Noles rally past Deltona

By CHUCK BURGESS
Herald Correspondent

SANFORD — The Seminole High Lady Netters continued their winning ways Thursday night by pulling together after a grueling 17-15 first game loss to thump the visiting Deltona Lady Wolves in the second two games 15-5, 15-5 and improve their record to 15-3.

"We came out just like I thought we would," Lady Nole head coach Beth Corso said. "Last week was our hardest week of the season and right now we're a little tired, but we've been playing very well this week."

The Lady Wolves took advantage of the Lady Seminole's early overconfidence as the serving of Joy Clover and Tanya Gwinn killed the Lady Wolves to a comfortable 9-1 lead.

The first game wasn't the type of volleyball that the Seminole has been accustomed to playing in recent days, according to Corso. "We just weren't in sync the first game," Corso said. "Everyone was off at the same time. We really did it to ourselves in the first game."

Trailing by a bundle, junior setter-hitter Cricket Snow broke out of her serving slump by serving five straight points, one of which was aided by an intelligent dink by senior spiker Chentita Gilchrist.

The Lady Wolves increased their lead to 12-8 with the serving of Jennifer Dakoski. However, after a Seminole sidout, both teams tuned in their stations to the Liz Long show as Long completely dominated the play both on offense and defense.

In a six-point span, Long connected on three kills, each set by different players, and then turned the tables on defense with three powerful blocks, two of which dropped for points which gave the Lady Noles their first lead of the night, 15-14.

Instead of wilting in the face of defeat, the Lady Wolves turned to the serving of Gwinn who would ice the game with three nice serves, the last service point being put down by Dakoski's game-ending kill.

The second and third games were all Seminole as the Lady 'Noles unleashed their secret weapon, senior setter Bobbie Osborne's jump serve. After winning the second game handily with Long once again doing most of the damage as she served nine points, put down three kills and added a dink, Osborne unveiled a powerful jump serve that was hit back defensively, but the athletic Adrian Hillsman blasted the return to the hardwood with a brutal kill.

"The one thing we need to work on is putting the ball in the hitters hands," Corso said. "We've got to feed more balls to Chentita and Liz. Tonight we fed Adrian a lot and she responded well with 10 kills, but we need to not just set up one person all the time and spread the hitting around to our three big hitters and our second hitters."

Osborne and junior Heather Brown were the assist queens on the evening as both contributed assists to Long, Gilchrist, and Hillsman. "Heather is a little healthier and had some good sets tonight," Corso said. "Right now we're concentrating on the hitter-setter relationship. Our setters need to be polished up a little, but they're ready and hungry for it."

The Lady Seminole will see action next Monday at home against the conference-leading Lady Patriots of Lake Brantley.

In the junior varsity match, it was the Lady Wolves surviving two tight games to pull the match out 20-18, 15-13. The first game was an all out who wants it the most war with both teams battling back and forth until Kerri Blauvett took things into her own hands to provide the win.

Despite the excellent play of the Lady Seminole's Jennifer Benje, the Lady Wolves came back from a 13-9 deficit in the second game to win 15-13 on the serving of Blauvett once again.

Brantley

8-0 lead. After a Mull spike got Brantley a sideout, Kimi Kurz came on to serve two points for a 10-0 lead.

Lake Mary got within 10-2 when Rabaja served three more points, one an ace, to make it 13-2. Bush later would serve the SAC clinching point for the Lady Patriots.

"Dana (Bush) and Barb (Billmyer) are two players who have really come on for us," Halbig said. "And Gretchen (Mull) has been a very key player. Everyone is really starting to come together and gain confidence with every match."

In junior varsity action on Thursday, Lake Mary claimed a 15-7, 15-10 victory to improve to 11-2 for the season. The serving of Debbie Hutchings and Heather Golden led the way in game one while Dena Morasch and Renee Samville came up with some good front row play with Joanna Abbott doing a nice job setting.

LAKE MARY BOYS CLINCH

The Lake Mary boys volleyball team clinched the SAC title Thursday night with a 15-1, 15-10 victory over Lake Brantley. It is the inaugural season of boys volleyball in the SAC.

The Rams, 13-0 overall, are 11-0 in the league and will try to end the season with an unbeaten record when they host Lake Howell Monday night. The match will begin at 8 p.m. instead of the usual 5 p.m. start.

Lake Brantley's Gretchen Mull goes up for a spike. Mull helped the Lady Patriots win the Seminole Athletic Conference title Thursday night with a 15-7, 15-3 victory over Lake Mary. The Lady Patriots ran their record to 18-2 overall and 11-0 in the conference. Lake Brantley closes out the regular season Monday at Seminole.

Oviedo routs Lake Howell

By TONY DeSORMIER
Herald sports writer

OVIEDO — Very simply, it was a case of the "Haves" versus the "Have Nots."

The Oviedo Lady Lions, coming off a tough loss to Lake Brantley on Tuesday, wiped out the Lake Howell Lady Silver Hawks 15-8, 15-1 in Seminole Athletic Conference volleyball action.

With the win, Oviedo improved to 9-2 in the conference, 16-2 overall while Lake Howell dropped to 3-8, 6-12.

In preliminary action, the Silver Hawk boys team won in a marathon, 14-16, 15-8, 15-11 while the Lady Lion junior varsity squad won its match 15-9, 15-9.

"It (Tuesday night's loss to Lake Brantley) was a tough loss, a very tough loss," agreed Oviedo coach Anita Carlson. "The girls were enthusiastic tonight. They really got into it. That was good to see."

In both games, Oviedo jumped out early on the strong service of Shannon Wilcoxson and stayed there. After taking a 4-0 lead in the first game, the Lady Lions settled into cruise control as they went on to win 15-8.

Predictably, much of Oviedo's offense centered around 6-1 senior Suzanne Hughes. In the opening game, Hughes had a handful of kills for points or side-outs, most of them coming on sets from Anna Hollis.

Lake Howell managed a late rally, closing the gap from 12-5 to 12-8, all of the points coming on errors made by Oviedo, two on spike attempts and two on serve-receives.

But Hughes and Hollis combined twice to get the serve back for the Lady Lions. After giving the ball back on service error following the first Hughes kill, Oviedo took advantage of the second spike as Betsy Hughes served out the set.

The second game was as different from the first as night is from day. This time, Wilcoxson served 11 points as Lake Howell tried just about everything, including a timeout and three substitutions, to break the run.

Unfortunately for the Lady Silver Hawks, they found themselves stuck in a self-destructive cycle. In Wilcoxson's service run at the start of the second game.

Hatcher sparks LA offense

United Press International

OAKLAND, Calif. — They will laugh no longer at Los Angeles Dodgers utilityman Mickey Hatcher, a 10-year veteran known more for his pranks than his skills.

"I keep asking myself how in the world I ever got in the lineup," Hatcher said Thursday night after his home run and two runs scored helped the Dodgers eliminate the Oakland Athletics 5-2 in Game 5 of the World Series.

"I just wanted to stay in there."

Hatcher, a .282 career hitter who had never appeared in the post-season, became a regular when Kirk Gibson injured himself early in the National League playoffs. The 33-year-old had three RBI and four runs scored in the Championship Series, then followed it with a World Series performance that would make anyone proud — 7 for 10 for a .368 average with two homers and 5 RBI.

"All I wanted to do was go out and do my best," said Hatcher. He signed in April 1987 as much for leadership in the clubhouse as for his bat. "What makes me really happy is that we came out and didn't let what people said about us bother us. We believed in ourselves."

"Right now, I'm dead. I can't believe it's over. I never thought this would happen to me, to even play in the World Series."

Hatcher, who had a hit in all five games, homered in the first to make it 2-0 and singled in the fourth before Mike Davis homered.

"It seemed like every time a team got in the World Series, I wasn't involved," said Hatcher, released by Minnesota before the Twins went on to capture the World Series. "This just proves that I'm not a jinx. I feel a lot better about myself now."

Hatcher almost joined the injured Dodgers on the bench after his first-inning home run. To prove that not only the Athletics could bash forearms, he slammed his into assistant trainer Charlie Strasser.

"I'm going to let (Jose) Canseco and (Mark) McGwire do that from now on," he said, laughing. "I almost broke my arm."

Hatcher's one-year contract expired at the game's end. He hopes he is not again looking for work.

"I just tried to do the best I could to make the decision hard on them," he said of the Dodger management.

The way Manager Tom Lasorda sounded, Hatcher has few worries.

"Mickey Hatcher?" Lasorda said. "I thought his name was Jimmie Foxx. What a job he's done. We wanted Mickey Hatcher to go out and give us a spark."

Hershiser earns MVP award

United Press International

OAKLAND, Calif. — The Oakland Athletics should not feel bad. They did what the National League team did over the entire month of September.

The A's scored a run off Orel Hershiser.

Two runs, in fact, in two games. Not enough to prevent the Los Angeles right hander from winning two World Series games, including a 5-2 decision Thursday night to wrap things up for the Dodgers in five games. Hershiser's 2-0 Series record and 1.00 ERA earned him Most Valuable Player honors.

For most players, the thrill of a lifetime. For Hershiser, just another jewel in a gem-filled year.

"You've never seen a pitcher in such a groove," said Kirk Gibson. "As long as we all live, we'll never see another pitcher accomplish what Orel Hershiser accomplished this year. It'll go down in history."

wins, three complete games, two shutouts, one save, and a 1.05 ERA.

"We were going to try and be very aggressive against him once we got someone on base," said Oakland manager Tony La Russa. "With Hershiser, we never got anybody on."

Not much of an exaggeration against a man who gave up only seven hits — all singles — in two games while striking out 17.

"He's had a dream season," said catcher Mike Scioscia. "I don't think any pitcher could have a better season than Orel Hershiser had this season."

He could stand to get a little excited, though.

"I haven't seen Orel bat an eyelash at the record, at the playoffs, at the World Series," said Scioscia.

"It's hard to pitch in the big leagues," insisted Hershiser. "I feel like I'm climbing a mountain every time I go out there."

Today he rests on top of the mountain.

"I feel bad about that."

While Eckersley was in awe of Hershiser's play in the Series, he also had some unkind words for the Dodgers star.

"His style, the way he plays to the crowd, really pisses me off," Eckersley said. "But you have to give him credit, he's the best in the business."

Third baseman Carney Lansford, who hovered near 400 in early June, struggled to find the words to explain the A's anemic hitting. Lansford carried just a .167 batting average for the Series while the team as a whole hit .177.

"It's frustrating. It's hard to find the words right now," Lansford said. "But it's also amazing for me to see where this franchise has gone in just 3 1/2 years. I never would have believed we could have ever made it this far."

Lansford, like many of the A's, felt the Series swung the Dodgers way for two distinct reasons — Los Angeles pitching handcuffed Oakland's potent attack and the Dodgers aggressive offensive style overwhelmed the A's defense.

"We just couldn't get that one big hit the entire Series," Lansford said. "If we could have come up with that hit just once, there might have been a different outcome."

The one man who seemingly came up nearly every inning of the Series with a chance to get such a big hit was slugger Jose Canseco. During the regular season, he became the first player in history to hit 40 homers and steal 40 bases in one season. He finished the year rated among the top players in 10 of the American League's 12 offensive categories.

However, in the Series, Canseco's bat fell silent after a grand slam in the opener. He went 0 for 17 paces after the blow.

Series

Every outing that I've had has been a pressure outing," said Hershiser. "Every time I went out there, I thought I didn't want people to say he's cooled off at the most crucial time of the season — the streak's over, and he can't pitch under pressure."

So, in front of a worldwide World Series audience, he throws a three-hitter and a four-hitter at the mighty A's. His postseason totals in five starts and one relief appearance: three seven of his last 11 starts, including two in the postseason. He walked four and struck out nine, including Tony Phillips to end the game and capture Most Valuable Player honors for the Series.

"I was pitching erratic to-night," Hershiser said. "In the early part of the game, I threw a lot of changeups. Then I got stronger in the middle innings and went back to the hard stuff. I sang hymns to myself to relax."

After the last out, catcher Rick Dempsey shot his glove in the air. Hershiser paused a moment before moving toward his on-rushing teammates. Dempsey hoisted Hershiser as the team surrounded the mound. The mob moved down the runway leading to a jubilation clubhouse.

"We got the big lead and that kind of threw me out of synch," Hershiser said. "I struggled but I gave up only two runs."

Mike Davis of Los Angeles added a two-run homer and Dempsey launched an RBI double, putting an autumn chill on an Oakland Coliseum crowd of 49,317. Storm Davis took the loss in his second Series encounter with Hershiser.

Hershiser faced a trying eighth inning when Phillips walked, moved to second on a groundout and scored on a single by Stan Javier. Dave Henderson walked, bringing up Canseco as the tying run. However, Hershiser jammed him on a pop to first.

With Dave Parker at the plate, Hershiser threw a wild pitch. But he escaped the inning by striking out the powerful designated hitter.

"I don't think they choked," LaRussa said of his club. "I just think the Dodgers did more."

Los Angeles has won five

Disappointed A's

For Dennis Eckersley and his Oakland teammates, losing the World Series made the Athletics enormous accomplishments this season seem distant.

"I'm proud of this club and what I've done this season," Eckersley said after the A's 5-2 loss to the Los Angeles Dodgers Thursday night. "But right now I'm having trouble remembering the year I had. There just is this feeling of not having achieved what we set out to do."

Eckersley saved a major-league high 45 games during the regular season. He gave up a dramatic two-run homer to Kirk Gibson in the ninth inning of Game 1 and the Dodgers went on to take the series in five games.

"When you lose the first game and then have to face (Orel) Hershiser twice, you know you are in trouble," Eckersley said.

Don't forget about fall garden care

Have you planted a fall vegetable garden this year? If you have, about half your work is finished. But you still must give the garden adequate care if you want the best in fall and winter vegetables.

There are several operations needed in caring for your fall garden: namely, thinning, cultivation, mulching, irrigation, and insect and disease control.

Thin plants while they are small and when the soil is moist, so they can be pulled out easily without injuring the remaining plants. Turnips, rutabagas, and other root crops should be thinned before their taproot becomes fleshy. Onions from seed and radishes may be left in the ground until those thinned are large enough to eat.

Pull surplus turnip plants when they are four to five inches tall and use for greens. Plants thinned from the beet row may also be used for greens. Carrots should be thinned first when they are two to three inches tall, so as to stand about 1 inch apart. They may be left until large enough to be eaten, when alternate plants may be pulled and used, leaving more room for those that are left.

Cultivation generally increases the yield of vegetable crops because of weed control. The soil becomes hardened or crusty and cultivation may be needed to loosen the soil and allow water to enter more rapidly.

A single cultivation will kill practically all weeds less than 1 inch tall, but it is difficult to kill them when they are four or five inches tall. Shallow cultivation is best, for it is less injurious to crop roots than is deep cultivation. Weed growth can also be prevented by the use of mulches. Mulches also tend to conserve soil moisture, prevent erosion, do away with root damage by deep cultivation or hoeing, and keep vegetables clean. Straw, pine straw, old hay, grass, leaves, paper, sawdust, and landscape fabric are the most common materials for this purpose. Mulches are most beneficial when applied as soon as the plants are large enough (six to eight inches high) that they will not be covered by the materials.

A short period of dry weather may reduce the yield and lower the quality of your vegetables, and a big drought may result in the total failure of many gardens. Vegetable crops grow best when they receive about 1/2 to 1 inch of water each week as rain or irrigation. Whether it will be profitable to irrigate depends on how easy it is to get water to the garden.

Spraying or dusting with a suitable insecticide or fungicide to control garden pests as soon as you discover them is advisable.

For information on which insecticides and fungicides are recommended, call 323-2500, Ext. 181 and ask for Extension Circular 104 — "Vegetable Garden Guide" or drop by the Agricultural Center across from Flea World off 17-92.

Large-size activewear is taking off

True or false: Women who wear a size 16 or larger aren't interested in skiing, working out or playing tennis.

If you're a large-size woman, you know the correct answer (false). But if you're a manufacturer or retailer of women's clothing, the fact that women don't lose interest in sports when they gain weight will probably come as a surprise — or so claim executives at a handful of companies that have recently begun to cater to the zany athlete.

"Stereotypes about the full-figured woman's level of activity have led manufacurers of activewear to ignore the (large-size activewear) market," says Leslie Colburn, the large-size president of Beautiful Skier Inc., a 2-year-old manufacturer of skiwear in sizes 16 to 30 based in New Boston, N.H. Adds Hara Marano, editorial director of Fashion Plus magazine: "Science is beginning to tell us that fitness is not thinness — it is something anyone can have."

While the selection of athletic apparel now available for large-size women is still comparatively minuscule, it has grown rapidly within the last two years. Most of the action is taking place in bodywear, perhaps reflecting the start-up of large-size-only health club chains around the country. And, after years of research, JHI Inc. — maker of Jogbras — has just unveiled a sports brassiere for women up to size 44DD.

Still, executives at such companies note that their growth is hampered by retailers, some of whom regard the merchandise as being of too limited appeal. Others point to the failure of a widely hyped line of fashion bodywear by exercise guru Richard Simmons four years ago as evidence of the market's inherent weakness.

It's best to test water for lead

Lead is in the air we breathe, the water we drink and the food we eat. High doses — the kind a child can get from eating paint chips — can cause lead poisoning, even death. But even much lower doses from everyday sources can be hazardous, especially to children. Lead accumulates in the body, so continued exposure to small quantities can eventually cause serious health problems.

Since the 1970s, exposure to lead has been cut significantly, largely because it has been virtually eliminated from gasoline. Yet much new research has shown that low levels of lead in the body — once thought to be relatively harmless — may be toxic. Two sources of lead now gaining attention are drinking water and housewares, especially certain glazed ceramic dishes.

Lead in drinking water occurs when water picks up traces of lead as it travels through lead pipes or lead-soldered joints in copper pipe. Excessive lead release is more likely with soft, hot or slightly acidic water.

Every household is different; depending on your plumbing, your water may have a lot more lead than your neighbor's, or a lot less. The best way to find out how much is to have your water tested by a laboratory that specializes in water analysis. Prices start at about $20. Consumer Reports staffers have found that lab results for identical samples are often disturbingly uneven, so submitting a sample to two labs might be the wisest course.

If the results are worrisome, try to pin down the source of the lead. Your local water department is required to tell you if the water meets federal standards when it leaves the treatment plant. It should also tell you if any pipes in the distribution system are lead.

If the problem is in your house, a sure but expensive solution is to replace the supply pipes or add filtration devices. Short of that, flush the pipes when water has been sitting in them for several hours; let the water run for about three minutes. And don't use hot tap water to make coffee or infant formula. Lead dissolves more readily in hot water.

Although lead leaching from ceramic ware affects far fewer people than does lead in drinking water, it can be more dangerous. Doses are high enough in some cases to cause clinical lead poisoning.

Most ceramic plates, cups, bowls and pitchers sold in the United States today are coated with a glaze that contains lead. If the glaze is not fired properly, dangerous levels of lead and other heavy metals can leach into food.

Small loudspeakers: subject to the same laws of physics as large speakers

Small loudspeakers confront the same laws of physics large speakers do. To reproduce a full, thundering bass, a speaker must move air, and small speakers have difficulty moving the volume of air that large speakers can.

Still, over the past several years, technical refinements in the design of small "bookshelf" speakers and the even smaller "miniature" speakers have bonded those little boxes to the point where they can please even a serious listener.

Recently, Consumer Reports' electronics engineers tested three popular types of small speaker: bookshelf, miniature and self-powered (which are used with portable compact disc players and walkabout tape players).

By themselves, just about all the speakers tested sounded quite good. But if you listened to even the very best of them side by side with a good pair of larger speakers, the small models would appear to lack a fullness of sound that comes from reproducing low bass notes with power and authority.

Consequently, small speakers, especially the miniature ones, are often used as something other than as the main speakers for the stereo system. They can work nicely as auxiliary speakers or for "surround sound" if your receiver is so equipped. Some models are designed to be used outside on the deck or patio.

Finding differences among loudspeakers is simple enough. All you have to do is listen to them. But saying which set of speakers does the better job is something else again. Just as with different makes of piano, design differences among speakers result in different strengths and weaknesses.

In addition, the acoustic properties of the room and the range of sounds present in the music affect how those speaker qualities express themselves. Finally, people just have different tastes. A speaker system that sounds nice and clear to one listener may sound bright and shrill to another.

For all those reasons, you ought to audition speakers for yourself. Still, the results of Consumer Reports' tests can help you narrow the field. Then tests for accuracy are a good indication of a speaker's overall quality.

In the category of bookshelf speakers, almost all of the nearly two dozen speakers tested would reproduce music quite satisfactorily, sufficient for many listeners as a stereo system's main speakers. They gave balanced and accurate sound from lows to highs.

Topscoring were the Allison C16, which list for $160 a pair. Almost as accurate and much less expensive were the Boston Acoustics Series II AG6.

BLESS THIS HOUSE

There is a family somewhere who will live in this house.
God surely wants to bless this house. But God generally seems to accomplish His aims through the lives of people.

So, when that family somewhere finally moves in—God can begin right away to bless this house. As their faith is expressed here... as their hopes and fears are spoken in prayer...

And that's precisely the way God wants to Bless Your House.

Waste products can become a problem

DEAR DR. GOTT: I'm a C6 quadriplegic with an ileal conduit loop and a colostomy. My waste products are collected in a bag. I'm tired of urine all over myself and my clothes. Nothing I've tried prevents leaks. Is there some kind of surgery with a tube connection to avoid bags?

DEAR READER: You raise an extremely technical question. Control over the elimination of waste products depends on complex nerve pathways that activate and coordinate urinary and bowel sphincters. Sphincters are rings of muscle at the bladder opening and the anus.

Injury to the spinal cord at C6, the level of the sixth cervical vertebra in the neck, often causes paralysis of the muscles of the lower body. Therefore, such injury can result in urinary and fecal incontinence.

Because this is such an unpleasant consequence, quadriplegics may need surgery to allow waste material to be caught and stored in plastic bags designed for this purpose.

You have three options: Find a urologist who is knowledgeable about reconstructive urinary surgery, ask for a referral to a medical center that specializes in helping quadriplegics with similar problems, or seek advice from a stoma specialist — a professional who is specially trained in working with ileal conduits and colostomies. You may find that the United Ostomy Association (2001 W. Beverly Blvd., Los Angeles, CA 90057) will be able to answer many of your questions.

DEAR DR. GOTT: My eyes are red and irritated all the time. I'm a college student, and I've noticed that when I'm in class with fluorescent lights, my eyes start to burn. Could it be the lights, or could I be allergic to something which builds up to critical levels in the enclosed room?

DEAR READER: Either explanation is possible. Fluorescent lights can be irritating to people with sensitive eyes; the reasons for this are not known.

Also, patients can be allergic to substances in their surroundings: burning and inflamed eyes can result.

WIN AT BRIDGE

By James Jacoby

Forget about the danger of the opening lead being ruffed — when is seven no-trump a safer contract than seven of a suit? Here's one possible answer: when you are able to get a count on the hand to help you play your long suit to best advantage. If your long suit is your trump suit, you don't usually have the luxury of postponing the play of trumps for too many rounds. (You don't want a defender to win a trick with a small trump.)

A-K in either minor, he ought to be raised to seven.

Declarer won the opening spade lead and in quick order cashed the diamond ace, the K-Q of hearts, and A-K-Q of clubs. He then finished up with the other two high hearts and the remaining high spade. West had followed to two spades and to only three rounds of hearts, and he was known to have six clubs when East showed out on the first lead of that suit. That left him with only two diamonds, so it was easy to play a second diamond to dummy's king, dropping the queen and making the contract. And what would have happened in seven diamonds? Probably declarer would have played the preemptive spade bidder for diamond shortness and gone set.

What the day will bring...

By Bernice Bede Osol
YOUR BIRTHDAY
October 22, 1988

One of the most important moves you're likely to make in the year ahead will be of a social nature. The new alignment will be with people who can help you in both your personal and business life.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Even if you're doing familiar tasks today, be mindful of safety procedures. If you get careless, your thumb might get in the way of your hammer. Know where to look for romance and you'll find it. The Astro-Graph Matchmaker instantly reveals which signs are romantically perfect for you. Mail $2 to Matchmaker, c/o this newspaper, P.O. Box 91428, Cleveland, OH 44101-3428.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Both discipline and prudence will be required today to subdue your extravagant inclinations. Be sure whatever you buy is something you really need.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Don't lean too heavily on those in your charge today, even if you feel it's for their own good. Stern tactics will invite a rebellious response.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) If you do things in a hasty fashion today, there is a likelihood you will repeat past mistakes. Don't create problems that can be avoided.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) In any arrangements you have with friends today where money is involved, be sure accounting procedures are accurate. You could be held responsible for miscalculations.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Objectives that are important to you today will not be achieved without effort. What you hope to attain will have to be earned the hard way.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Don't let grudges gain the upper hand today. If you do something out of spite or vindictiveness, you could be the one who ends up getting the short end of the stick.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Think positive today, but avoid unrealistic expectations. Your hopes could be dashed if they are predicated upon erroneous projections.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) In arrangements where there are partners or associates involved, don't take it upon yourself today to act without their full consent or permission.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) You could be an unreasonable person to work for today. You might ask others to do things that you would never think of doing yourself.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Look gift horses in the mouth today, especially in your business affairs. Elitior motives are likely if someone offers you something for nothing.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Avoid a companion today who has a faculty for creating problems at the least provocation. This person could draw you into something rather nasty.
