New dialing system begins today

ORLANDO — Telephone customers across Florida will have to change the way they dial some long-distance calls beginning Oct. 4.

The new dialing procedure requires the area code to be included in every long-distance call, even those to points within the caller's own area code, according to a news statement by United Telephone of Florida Friday.

The 13 telephone companies in Florida have been preparing for the change for more than a year by taking out advertisements, bill inserts and even messages on bill envelopes.

The dialing change is being implemented to make more telephone numbers available for new residential and business customers, United Telephone said. Florida's population spurt and the popularity of new technologies such as facsimile machines, pagers and cellular telephones have resulted in a rapid decline in the pool of available telephone numbers.

The dialing change makes six million more telephone number combinations available for use within Florida, the Orlando-based telephone company said.

Clinton, Gore tour area

While Gov. Bill Clinton and Sen. Al Gore will not be stopping in Seminole County on their bus tour of the area, they will be making stops in neighboring Volusia and Orange counties on Monday.

Clinton and Gore and their wives Hillary and Tipper will make an 8 a.m. stop at the Bethune-Cookman College gymnasium in Daytona Beach. At 10 a.m., they will make a stop at the Daytona Beach Band Shell on Atlantic Avenue.

They will then travel on State Road 92 to Interstate 4 to Loch Haven Park, at the corner of Mills and Princeton streets in Orlando.

They will join senior citizens for a picnic in the park. Following the picnic, there will be a public rally in the park.

They will wrap up their Florida tour with stops that evening in Ocala and Gainesville.

Venus orbiter ends mission

MOUNTAIN VIEW, Calif. — The Pioneer Venus orbiter ran out of thruster propellant Saturday after circling Venus for 14 years, and is expected to plunge toward the planet this week, a NASA spokesman said.

The National Aeronautics and Space Administration learned of the orbiter's imminent demise when its thruster failed to fire, said Peter Waller, spokesman for NASA Ames Research Center in Mountain View.

"It's up and out of danger right now, but we've been firing thrusters to keep raising it and this time there wasn't any propellant," Waller said.

He said Pioneer would plummet through Venus' atmosphere and lose communication sometime this week. The spacecraft was expected to burn up in Venus' atmosphere.

The Pioneer Venus orbiter was the first U.S. spacecraft to circle Venus. It was expected to last only one Venusian year — 243 days.

Investigation ends in Sanford stabbing

SANFORD — An arrest in North Carolina ends the search for a man sought by Sanford police in connection with one of Sanford's two unsolved murders.

Although the Sanford Police Department had identified Meric Coffield as a suspect in the murder of Li Teh Yu soon after his 1988 stabbing death, Coffield was never apprehended despite an extensive search. Coffield was listed as one of Florida's most wanted fugitives by the Florida Department of Law Enforcement.

But Coffield has been found in Willow Springs, N.C. where he is now awaiting extradition to Seminole County from Wake County.

"It is rewarding to see that the investigation has now been brought to a successful conclusion," Sanford Police Chief Steve Harriett said Saturday, following Coffield's Friday arrest.

According to Harriett, Yu was stabbed 27 times. See Stabbing, Page 5A

SANFORD — Local arrests of juveniles have decreased in 1991, bucking the statewide upward trend.

A total of 1,498 children were arrested in Seminole County for crimes ranging from murder to shoplifting in 1991, 203 fewer than were arrested in 1990, a 13.6 percent decrease. The number of juveniles arrested for violent crimes decreased by about 11.3 percent during the two-year period, from 138 to 124.

The numbers were reported by the Florida Department of Law Enforcement. See Juvenile, Page 5A

LAKE MARY — The City of Lake Mary wants a temporary return of courtesy school busing. City officials met with Seminole County School District staff members Thursday to discuss the need.

Courtesy busing of students to Lake Mary Elementary School was suspended at the beginning of this school year. "At that time," said City Manager John Litton, "we believed the boulevard construction would be finished by this November."

"Now," he added, "the work is at a standstill and we don't know how long it will be before the boulevard is finished and completely opened to traffic."

Lake becomes toast of town

Preface

Just about everybody knows Washington had its "Watergate."

But only a few old timers know Sanford had its "Lakegate."

Just about everybody knows "Watergate" caused the president of the United States to resign his office.

But only a few old timers know "Lakegate" caused the mayor of Sanford to resign his office.

Just about everybody knows Richard Nixon was "brought down" by the Washington Post.

But only a few old timers know that Forrest Lake was "brought down" by the Sanford Herald.

There was, however, one major difference.

Nixon was pardoned by his successor, President Gerald Ford, and never served a day in prison for his misdeeds.

Lake, on the other hand, was charged for his misdeeds, tried, found guilty and sentenced to 14 years in Raiford, better known today as the Florida State Prison at Starke.

This "Way Back When" story will not attempt to side with or against Forrest Lake. It is presented as a factual period in Sanford's early history.

Lake was acclaimed by some as Sanford's greatest benefactor. But there are others who say he was an

Chapter One

In 1890, Sanford was a busy and growing inland river port, a railroad center and an agricultural mecca for farmers, especially those of German ancestry who migrated to this area from Europe and from New Jersey. Numerous businesses had been established by well-to-do friends of the city's founder, General Henry S. Sanford. He came here and enticed a number of his wealthy friends to come and establish stores and plant citrus groves.

They were assisted by two shiploads of Swedes who General Sanford brought to this part of Florida to work as clerks in the stores, maids in the homes of the

Teens plead no contest in Sanzo trial

SANFORD — A day after talk of a mistrial, prosecutors let two teen-agers accused of killing national Warlocks motorcycle club president Wayne Sanzo plead no contest to reduced murder charges.

Tiffany Sanzo, 16, the Warlocks leader's daughter, pleaded no contest Thursday to second-degree murder, conspiracy to commit first-degree murder, armed burglary and grand theft of a firearm.

John Valois, 19, pleaded no contest to conspiracy to commit second-degree murder and guilty to charges of burglary and grand theft of a firearm.

Wayne Sanzo, 32, was shot four times a year ago at his Altamonte Springs home, which was ransacked to make the crime look like a burglary, officials said.

Still scheduled for trial next month on a first-degree murder charge is Freddie Mathis, 15, Tiffany Sanzo's boyfriend, accused of actually shooting Sanzo.

Prosecutors said Wayne Sanzo had caught his daughter skipping school and disapproved of Mathis, who is black.

Circuit Judge Alan Dickey scheduled sentencing Dec. 7 for Sanzo and Valois. She faces up to 23 years in prison and he faces up to five years. They could have faced mandatory life in prison if convicted of first-degree murder.

Attorneys had talked of a possible mistrial Wednesday when proceedings stalled after lawyers found they weren't given tape recordings of police interviews they said could have helped their cases.

But prosecutors said the plea deals were prompted by a ruling by Dickey that defense attorneys could question Wayne Sanzo's wife, April Sanzo, about financial troubles and an alleged love affair.

They were attempting to show she could have had a motive for the slaying. The widow isn't charged in the death.

Guardman under suicide watch

MIAMI — A National Guard hurricane relief worker charged in the stabbing deaths of three young people was held on a suicide watch in the Dade County Jail as friends of the victims called for the death penalty.

Steven Scott Coleman, 24, was classified as a suicide risk by the jail's psychiatric staff, Metro-Dade police said Friday.

"He's suicidal," jail spokeswoman Janette Hall said. "He's been stripped down, and he's being kept in an isolation cell until further notice."

Coleman, a stock clerk at a Tampa Burdines store on leave to help the Hurricane Andrew relief effort, allegedly killed the three after a night of bar-hopping while he was off-duty but in uniform.

Jewish group, Nazi sympathizers clash

BOCA RATON — Elvis Hitler performed at Florida Atlantic University, provoking a shouting match between a Jewish group and a handful of Nazi sympathizers.

The "post-punk, thrash-metal" band played songs just after early Friday morning, such as "Disgraceland" and "I Love Your Guts" to a small crowd in the campus bar as about 40 protesters held a vigil outside.

"Then some skin-head types, idiots, showed up and they waved a Nazi flag and agitated and tried to cause trouble," said Lynn Laurenti, FAU's vice president for student affairs.

The eight counter-protesters, wearing shirts adorned with swastikas and the likeness of Adolf Hitler, left after the Jewish group turned their backs to them, Ms. Laurenti said.

"Our police force was very, very good. They kept it calm," she said. "So there was no bloodshed, thank God, no arrests, angry words passed and that was all."

Appeal filed in weight discrimination

PENSACOLA — David Nickson, fired as an Escambia County equipment operator for being too heavy, will try get his job back through appeals alleging he is a victim of weight discrimination.

The Escambia Civil Service Board voted 2-1 Thursday to uphold the dismissal of Nickson, 36, who weighs more than 400 pounds.

County officials contend he is unable to do his job because of his size. Board member Edward Jones said he had to agree after watching Nickson climb into a road grader.

"I was afraid he was going to have a heart attack or stroke getting in," Jones said.

Democrats may replace Kaplan

Starks remains in seclusion after shooting

By J. MARK SANFORD
Herald Staff Writer

SANFORD — State representative Bob Starks and his family will remain in hiding after Seminole County Circuit Judge Alan A. Dickey ruled Friday afternoon to allow his former political opponent and his wife's accused assailant to remain free on $100,000 bond.

An hour after the decision, the attorney for the accused Eric Adam "Rich" Kaplan issued a statement that because of the ruling which prevented Kaplan from coming in contact with Starks, Kaplan would withdraw from the race. No other statements would be made, the attorney's secretary said.

Kaplan faces a charge of attempted murder for the early morning Sept. 27 shooting of Starks' wife Judy. Seminole County sheriff's investigators say Kaplan fired the shot, intending to kill Starks, his political opponent for the state legislature.

Starks said he and his wife Judy would remain in hiding, but would eventually return home.

"We wanted him behind bars," said Starks Friday. "We're still bewildered by all this. It's like a bad dream."

Starks said Friday evening he didn't know what to think of the withdrawal announcement.

"I haven't thought much about the campaign during the past few days," Starks said.

"I don't know if any county in Florida has experienced something like this."

-Bill Gilmartin, chairman of the county Democratic Executive Committee

Whether Starks is now re-elected to a second two-year term remained uncertain Friday evening. Genname Wilson, deputy director of the Florida Democratic Party, said party attorneys are reviewing state law to determine if a Democratic candidate can be named to replace Kaplan less than a month before the Nov. 3 general election.

Seminole County elections supervisor Sandra Goad said absentee ballots bearing Kaplan's name were mailed overseas about two weeks ago. Goad said she will wait until she confers with the state Division of Elections Monday before authorizing the Nov. 3 ballots printed with or without Kaplan's name. The ballots will be typeset this weekend with Kaplan's name, she said.

Since Wednesday night, Starks, his wife Judy and an 18-year-old campaign worker Alan Thompson have been living in an undisclosed location. When they venture out, they are escorted by Florida Department of Law Enforcement agents.

State prosecutors had asked Dickey Friday to increase Kaplan's bond from $100,000, which his father posted 10 hours after Kaplan was jailed, to $500,000. But Kaplan's father testified Friday that Kaplan did not have access to a trust account worth nearly $600,000, said assistant state attorney Tom Hastings. Prosecutors believed Kaplan could post a higher bond, in part, because of the trust account.

Hastings said Dickey did rule: Kaplan was to stay 1,000 feet away from Starks and his family, relinquish all weapons and not change his residence unless notifying prosecutors.

Starks' wife Judy Starks was wounded during the early morning hours Sept. 27 by a bullet Seminole County sheriff's investigators say Kaplan fired, intending to kill his political opponent Starks.

Investigators said a neighbor, who Starks said routinely works during the early morning hours, saw someone drive away after leaving the Starks yard and followed him to the apartment complex where Kaplan lived. The tag number of the car was registered to Kaplan's father and the vehicle was assigned to Kaplan, investigators said.

Investigators said a search of Kaplan's apartment revealed a handgun and a scrap of paper bearing Starks' address. In the car, they reported finding a blanket with a bullet hole.

In other developments, Bill Gilmartin, chairman of the Seminole County Democratic Executive Committee, said he has asked state party chairman Simon Ferro for state party assistance in handling the political situation he faces.

"I don't know if any county in Florida has experienced something like this," said Gilmartin.

Gilmartin said he has fielded calls from major newspapers and television news programs from throughout the country and at least one call from a Canadian newspaper.

Accountability standards set for approval by Chiles, Cabinet

By JACQUE HALLIFAX
Associated Press Writer

TALLAHASSEE — Accountability, a school reform law that transfers power from the state to the local level, is gaining momentum and will soon be approved by members of a cabinet.

"This baby is going to go," former lawmaker Phil Lewis told Gov. Lawton Chiles and the Cabinet during a workshop last week.

Chiles and the Cabinet don't seem inclined to get in the way. In June they approved preliminary standards developed by the Florida Commission on Education Reform and Accountability Commission.

Public input was received over the summer.

both in the mall and at hearings around the state. The standards have been revised with minor changes, and the governor and Cabinet are poised to approve them at this week's meeting.

At the workshop, the governor had nothing but praise for the work the accountability group has done. "I think it is a tremendous accomplishment," he said. "It's very, very exciting."

Accountability, approved by state lawmakers in 1991, is being phased in gradually. It began with the repeal last year of many programs mandated by the Legislature over the years.

Advisory councils have been created at each school to come up with individual improvement plans this fall and next spring. The plans will be implemented next fall.

Tornadoes kill 4; 15 rescued from sinking freighter in two-day storm

By PAT LINDNER
Associated Press Writer

LARGO — Tornadoes left damage that looked like "a bomb blast" as they hopped across the Tampa Bay area for hours Saturday, killing four people at mobile home parks, authorities said.

A two-day storm with winds gusting to 90 mph also was blamed for sinking a freighter. All 15 crew members were rescued after the 255-foot Holstein went down with 2,000 tons of flour late Friday in the Gulf of Mexico. The tornadoes killed three people in a mobile home park in Pinellas Park, according to city police spokesman Lee Lerchen. One woman died in her mobile home in nearby Largo, the Pinellas County Sheriff's Office said.

Lerchen said more fatalities were likely as police surveyed more than 100 homes damaged or destroyed by the storm that raged from mid-morning to early afternoon.

The National Weather Service said other tornadoes were spotted in Ocala and Daytona Beach as the front moved northeast across the state.

"It looks like a bomb blast: buildings down, roofs gone, windows out of cars," said Lerchen.

Spark plug stew causes explosion

By Associated Press

LAKE WORTH — Claude Fleury has learned a tough lesson about the culinary aspects of car repair: Never, ever cook spark plugs.

Fleury was repairing a car and threw some spark plugs and oil into a pot to cook off the carbon when the stew exploded and singed his kitchen, police and neighbors said.

"I've heard of some strange causes of fires," said Lt. Mark Lewis, "but I've never heard of someone cooking auto parts on a gas stove."

Fleury had left the spark plugs cooking on his stove at about 10:30 a.m. Friday when he went out to get lunch, leaving his children, ages 1, 4, and 11, at home to watch the spark plug stew. Neighbor Lois Shepard had just returned from work and was napping when she heard an explosion, looked out her window and saw a flash.

"I heard this big boom," said Shepard, who ran into the house and found the children alone.

Claim filed over car used in escape

By J. MARK SMOCK
Herald Staff Writer

SANFORD — A woman whose car was stolen April 14 by an escapee from the John E. Polk Correctional Facility has filed a claim with the county and sheriff's office seeking $5,000 for damage sustained to her car in the chase that ensued.

An attorney for Sandra Lee Ganser of Sanford filed the claim with the county Sept. 25, according to county records. County Attorney Bob McMillan said Wednesday he has not seen the claim and had no comment. McMillan said the claim would be forwarded to the county's insurance claim investigator for a recommendation.

Sheriff Don Estinger said the claim would be turned over to sheriff's office attorneys. Estinger had no additional comment.

Ganser declined to comment Wednesday, but did say she had "gotten rid" of the car. An employee at Certified Auto Body Repair in Sanford said the car had been bought by body shop owner Jeff Allen.

Ganser's attorney, Andrew C. Moler of Orlando, did not return calls. In a certified letter to the county, Moler stated the claim was based on the "failure of the sheriff's department to take adequate steps to prevent the escape in question."

Moler wrote the $5,000 represented the amount of damage to the car. He also wrote a subsequent claim may be made once the extent of Ganser's injuries were known, including "permanent psychological injury as a result of the stress and psychological trauma resulting from this incident."

Ganser's reported to Lake Mary police her 1988 Oldsmobile was stolen by federal prisoner Robert Baron, 30, of Casselberry, about 11 hours after he fled the jail courtroom where he was waiting to be arraigned on local charges for a convenience store robbery. According to accounts of the incident, Baron knocked over three guards and fled into the woods north of the jail at 10:30 a.m.

Subsequent to the escape, county jailer Maj. David Brereton changed procedures and required jail inmates to be shackled when in open court.

Deputies and U.S. Marshalls combed the woods but failed to locate Baron. Baron apparently emerged from his hideout near Lake Mary Boulevard shortly after 9 p.m., long after the posted lookouts of shotgun-armed deputies and police had left.

According to reports, Ganser was talking on the telephone at the 7-Eleven at the corner of Lake Mary Boulevard and Country Club Road when a man she believed was Baron approached her and asked if the nearby Olds was her car. When she replied it was, Ganser reported the man demanded her car keys and money, saying he was the jail escapee.

Ganser reported she told the man she didn't have any money but gave him her purse. After removing the keys, the man returned the purse and fled in her car. Ganser then called "911" on the telephone as Lake Mary police Sgt. Steve Gregory approached, still suspicious Bar: "may have been hiding in the woods. Ganser and a store clerk pointed to it and Gregory gave chase.

Baron first drove north on Country Club Road, then turned around and sped west on Lake Mary Boulevard. As the chase continued, the Oldsmobile struck several barricades and narrowly missed two state troopers directing traffic through road construction areas. The chase continued to Interstate 4, then west to the rest stop near State Road 434, where Baron jumped out and fled to SR 434 into the arms of sheriff's Sgt. Mark Smock.

Stadium fire still under investigation

By VICKI BUCHHEIMER
Herald Staff Writer

LAKE MARY — Seminole County sheriff's department officials are still unsure who started the fire that destroyed a third of the home side stands at Lake Mary High School's Don T. Reynolds Stadium.

"We have some strong leads, but no suspects," said George Proechel, public information officer for the sheriff's office.

On Sept. 16, a fire was set in a storage shed below the concrete grandstands at the school.

The shed contained equipment used by the school's track team. Fire investigators determined that the blaze had been deliberately set.

Though there was extensive damage, most of it caused by the extreme heat of the flames, no one was injured in the fire.

District officials had to bring in temporary bleachers to accommodate fans at football games later that week and the following week, but the repairs have been completed and the seats will be ready for next week's game against Oviedo High School.

The Rams played at Lake Howell High School Friday evening.

Proechel said that some Lake Mary High School students and members of the community have come forward with information that has been useful in the investigation, but still no suspects have been identified.

"We are still looking for information if anyone has anything to offer," Proechel said.

He said that information should be directed to Investigator Corbett at 330-8800.

"In the meantime, we're still checking out leads," Proechel said.

Bush vetoes cable television bill

By TERENCE MUNTZ
AP White House Correspondent

FORT LAUDERDALE — President Bush vetoed a bill Saturday to regulate cable television prices, declaring that Congress had "fallen prey to special interests" and setting up another pre-election fight.

Arguing that the bill would result in higher cable fees rather than lower prices, Bush said, "this bill illustrates good intentions gone wrong."

Cast as a choice between consumers or fee-hungry cable operators, the bill sailed through Congress with huge veto-proof margins. Since then, the White House has been twisting arms of Republican senators who voted for the bill.

It was Bush's 36th veto in nearly four years. The president has won every veto showdown so far, and White House strategists fear that a defeat now would be viewed as a sign of weakness with the election a month away.

Schools future

George Bush and Bill Clinton both have pledged to bring about substantial improvements in American schools. But the president seeks far more ambitious reforms than Clinton does.

On the issue of education, fundamental philosophical and policy differences divide the two candidates. Those differences come into sharp relief on the question of school choice.

As a demonstration program, Bush would empower selected middle-class and low-income parents to choose which schools their children attend. This would be achieved through $1,000 vouchers that could be used at either public or private schools.

A central aim of the program is to help ensure that the quality of schooling is not limited by a family's economic status.

School choice always has been available for parents who could afford it. But most families of modest means simply cannot afford to send their kids to the school of their choice. This social inequity must be changed.

There can be no mistake about the growing popularity of parental choice, even though most of the education establishment is determined to block it. A recent Gallup Poll showed that 70 percent of Americans favor school choice. And the strongest support comes from blacks (86 percent) and Hispanics (84 percent).

That should be no surprise. Minority families understand best the tragic consequences of their children being stuck in inferior schools.

Clinton pays lip service to the notion of choice, but he would confine it strictly to public schools. He opposes allowing parents to earmark any of their tax dollars for private schools.

Why is the Democratic standard-bearer, who bills himself as the agent of change, so timid on this issue? One reason may be that he is beholden to the education establishment.

That establishment is personified by the National Education Association, the world's largest teachers' union. A profusion of NEA dollars and volunteers is at Clinton's disposal as long as he defends the union's interests. Above all, that means blocking any plan that would allow parents to choose private schools.

The NEA fears parental choice because it would promote competition. Stripped of their de facto monopoly, the worst public schools either would improve or face the prospect of going out of business.

Not surprisingly, the California Teachers Association, an NEA affiliate, is waging a desperate campaign to defeat a proposed school choice initiative that will not be on the ballot until 1994. CTA President Del Weber describes the initiative, which would provide students a $2,500 state voucher to attend the schools of their choice, as an "evil" first step toward "destroying public education."

That's nonsense. Parental choice simply would give all students — not just the privileged few — a fighting chance to get the best possible education.

President Bush believes all parents should be empowered to choose their children's schools, public or private. He understands that when parents have this financial leverage, public schools will respond to them as consumers rather than as a captive audience.

Clinton, on the other hand, is content to stick with a system that inflicts the greatest harm on low-income families who cannot afford any other choice.

For voters in November, the contrast couldn't be clearer.

All of us should focus on children

All Americans need to focus upon our greatest natural resource, our children. We need to abandon the divisions existing and focus upon providing the best educational system in the world. This will facilitate our ability to compete internationally.

Youngsters in high school cannot help but be concerned about their economic future. They sense that substantive changes are taking place in our country. Many, many questions remain unanswered. What will the American job market be like in 20 or more years? What preparation is necessary to fill the jobs that will be available? Where will the jobs be available here or overseas?

Researchers for the Economic Policy Institute affirm that declining income has overtaken the white collar work force. Substantive changes in the American job market are in process. Many jobs have left the country as business takes advantage of lower salary payments to workers in other countries. Jobs have also been eliminated as companies pare their workforce. For example, General Motors, one of our industrial giants, has not hired a single production worker since 1988, as the company turns to automation.

Evidence of changes in employment trends are well documented. During the 1980's the traditionally high manufacturing jobs declined. A significant percent of growth was attributed to lower paying industries.

OPINION

LURLENE SWEETING

Although America still has the highest per capita income as measured by relative purchasing power in 1989 the median family income was only $1,528 greater than it was in 1979.

Both blue collar and white collar workers have suffered from decreasing jobs and compensation. Between 1987-91, the hourly wage of college educated workers fell 3.1 percent. Entry level wages for college graduates have fallen 9.8 percent.

Given the current labor market how are students going to plan effectively for their future? It has been predicted that growth will take place principally in the service and technological areas. How much preparation will be required? How many young people will really need to attend college?

Young Americans expect the adults of this country to aid them as they prepare for their future roles in society. The work ethic is a part of our American heritage, however, people can't work if there are no jobs.

The creation of jobs is an essential facet that must be addressed. An American's self concept has been inextricably entwined in his/her employment status. Therefore, lack of work or underemployment is detrimental to one's self-concept.

We have reached a position in our development as a country where more planning is necessary to identify the jobs of the future; the preparation necessary to fill specific jobs; and the number of young people entering the labor market.

The negative criticism of American public schools should cease. We should roll up our sleeves, lend whatever expertise we can, and make them the very best schools in the world.

Adults have the responsibility for developing a curriculum that will prepare students to be economically competitive on a worldwide basis. Students have the challenge of taking full advantage of the curriculum — mathematics, English and a foreign language should be requirements for grades 9th — 12th grades. The dawn of the computer age permits many, many innovative ways of assisting youth in their quest for knowledge and should be fully utilized.

Reel thing better than reality

BOSTON — Let me put it this way. Woody Allen doesn't have to worry that somebody will make the movie about the disastrous end of his relationship with Mia Farrow. He's made it himself.

Real life and reel art, fact and fiction, docu and drama. The Story and The Movie are so intertwined by now that anybody watching "Husbands and Wives" feels like an eavesdropper or like the guest of an exhibitionist invited to watch his home videos of the disintegration of his marriage. It's enough to make the popcorn stick to the roof of your mouth.

There are Mia and Woody, the depressed duo, in their apartment, going through the marital motions. There is Mia asking, "Do you ever hide things from me?" Cringe. There is Woody's 20-year-old student offering "approbation" and a fresh start. Squirr.

Knowing What We Know, about how life was rolling along as the cameras were rolling, about Woody's burgeoning romance with Mia's daughter, it's almost unbearable to hear Woody Allen say things like "I see myself sleep-walking into a mess." You want to yell back, "Wake up!"

As for Mia Farrow, whose character is labeled "passive-aggressive" in the movie? The relationship between director and actress is more like "sado-masochistic." There ought to be a law: Never let your ex-lover have the final edit.

The only notable gap between these concurrent stories on and off the screen is in their unhappy endings. In the movie's unhappy ending, Woody Allen doesn't bed the 20-year-old student. He is restrained by ambivalence, angst, self-consciousness — the whole Woody repertoire.

In life's unhappy ending, he does bed the daughter of the mother of his children, the child of his lover for 12 years, 21-year-old Soon-Yi. We have Woody Allen without guilt, without shame, without sense. Woody, we hardly know you.

This is what has made the whole story of Woody, Mia, Soon-Yi and the kids so riveting even in a country that's grown immune to celebrity excess. The real Woody Allen is out of character with the Woody Allen he created and we accepted.

It's not just the intrinsic melodrama of the events which, even without the lurid charges of child abuse, is so disturbing. In an era of new families, stepfamilies, merged families, wed and unwed families, there's one solid taboo: You don't have sex with a mother and a daughter. Not even an "adopted daughter" — a distinction which is, by the way, deeply offensive.

In an era newly sensitive as well to power relationships, to sexual disequilibrium between parent and child, teacher and student, therapist and patient, a 57-year-old father-figure ought to see the quicksand of involvement with a 21-year-old. A post midlife crisis adult is supposed to protect the young.

Instead, Woody Allen threw a cluster bomb into the extended Farrow-Allen family. As Mia Farrow wrote to her friend, "I can think of no crueler way to lose a child or a lover."

But more to this point, when Woody — the walking, talking, writing, filmmaking anti-hero of the psychotherapeutic act — talked about his affair, he suddenly sounded like a psychological airhead. Couldn't Soon-Yi's love affair have something to do with her resentment at mom, he was asked, Would it be tough on his young children to see their big sister become their sort-of stepmom? Wasn't there a moral dilemma in dating a daughter?

The man gave himself lines he would have edited out of a movie. "I didn't find any moral dilemmas whatsoever." "When you're having a nice time, you don't look for those motivations." And finally: "The heart wants what it wants."

Hearing Woody Allen utter such banalities is a little bit like discovering an insightful friend quoting from Khalil Gibran's "The Prophet." It's fine when you're 19, but when you're 57?

Woody Allen fans, people who have committed one or more of his hip, funny lines to memory, people who liked his New York neurotic style, found themselves contemplating a new disillusionment. Try this for graffiti: WOODY ALLEN IS SHALLOW!

Christian Coalition sights on Montana

WASHINGTON — When 12-year-old Errol Rice came home from school one day last spring, his mother handed him a letter from his congressman. Though she assumed it was a congratulatory note for a class project, the letter from Rep. Ron Marlenee, R-Mont., turned out to be "more pornographic than anything my child has ever been exposed to."

Marlenee churned out over 10,000 copies of the letter to his constituents at taxpayer expense. It contained descriptions of sexually explicit projects that he says are being funded by the National Endowment for the Arts.

But Marlenee makes no apologies to the families that were offended by his X-rated mailing. "If the letter fell into the hands of some families that were upset, that was exactly the point," a Marlenee spokesman told us. "These families should be upset. But with the message, not the messenger."

Marlenee's current fight to stay in Congress has taught Rice and others an extra-curricular civics class lesson in the ways of Pat Robertson's insurgent Christian Coalition. Robertson has deployed his forces to defeat Marlenee's November opponent, Rep. Pat Williams, D-Mont. Marlenee's letter added fuel to fire.

In the Coalition's "Conference and Strategy Briefing" for this election, the Montana race is described as "the mother of all 1992 House battles." But there are grounds for concluding that this will be the mother of all dirty campaigns because the Coalition has cherry-picked the NEA issue, unmercifully smearing Williams as "Porno Pat" and challenging his personal religious values.

"I happen to be Roman Catholic," Williams told our associate Ed Henry. "I am a practicing Christian, which means I'm also tolerant of the views and beliefs of my neighbors. It is highly offensive to me to be accused of being un-Christian by people who do not practice the first principle, which is tolerance."

Williams' role in the NEA's funding of controversial art has been conveniently twisted. His "sin" was to engineer a bi-partisan compromise in 1980 that renewed the NEA's statute. Sen. Orrin Hatch, R-Utah, managed Williams' reauthorization bill in the Senate, which passed overwhelmingly in the House by a 342-58 vote. Conservative Reps. Newt Gingrich, R-Ga., and Bill Dannehey, R-Calif., even signed on to Williams' measure.

Nevertheless, the Coalition flooded Williams' district with negative radio ads that were filled with distortions and misinformation in the final week of the 1990 campaign. In one ad, the Coalition warned that Williams "wants to raise our taxes to pay for pornography." Williams survived those attacks, but the Coalition is flexing its muscle even harder this time because redistricting has left Montana with just one House seat.

This is proof that the rhetoric dispensed in Houston last August about "religious wars" was not an idle threat. With a $13 million war chest, and more than a million voters on a computer tape with phone numbers, the Coalition's political designs clearly extend beyond Montana.

Last January, at a Coalition conference in Montana titled "God's Building an Army," Coalition director Ralph Reed laid out a battle plan to fight "pro-abortion and liberal forces" across the country. Reed outlined the five underpinnings in his speech to the conference. Reed drew heavily from ancient Chinese philosopher Sun Tzu's "The Art of War."

His 'sin' was to engineer a bi-partisan compromise in 1980.

Arts, but those who did enjoyed themselves on Saturday. "I think that there is so much beautiful art here," said Deena King of Longwood who had purchased a pencil drawing of a young woman from one of the artists. "I had to buy something."

Most of the artists sat under their tents or in their vehicles parked behind the tents and watched hopefully as the few visitors walked by, huddled under umbrellas or wrapped in rain gear.

Jason Hunt of Orlando sat squeezed under his tent beneath his bright acrylic paintings of marine mammals and read a book.

"I had hoped it would be better than this," he said, "but I guess you couldn't expect too many people to come out in this weather."

Joanne Lucas, chairman of the festival, said she wasn't happy with the weather, but she was hoping that the sun would make an appearance on Sunday.

"Considering the weather," Lucas said, "We could have done a lot worse."

Some of the food vendors who had set up shop at the festival, began taking down their facilities after the lunch crowd was gone.

"We're just feeding each other now," one vendor said.

Lucas said few of the artists had complained about the weather though some had begun packing up after 3 o'clock, two hours before the scheduled closing time.

"They've been very patient,"

Lucas said. "I sure hope they come back tomorrow."

Hunt said that he would be back. Bettye Reagan of Lake Mary said that she'd be back as well.

"Of course," said Reagan. "I wouldn't miss this."

Area high school students competed for cash prizes in the youth art contest.

Steve Greer, an 11th grader from Lake Howell High School in Winter Park, won $250 for his first place drawing. Second place and $100 went to Lake Mary High School 11th grader Eli Alcas, Nick Pallando, an 11th grader from Lake Howell won $100 for his third place finish. And Oviedo High School senior Regan Dees took fourth place and also won $100.

Lucas said she was pleased to have been able to offer cash prizes to the students this year.

"It's very important to recognize their work as well," she said.

The festival continues today from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. at the festival grounds on the south side of Lake Mary Boulevard just west of I-4.

and the sky showed no signs of clearing.

A few Civil War reenactors huddled around the hot dog vendor, nibbling on franka and sipping sodas. Occasional visitors, dressed in more modern jeans, shorts and t-shirts, raced from their cars to the museum or to the Agricultural Center's auditorium.

Artists who had set up their wares under a few tents in the field in front of the museum, lowered the flaps of the tents and went home. Some never bothered to unload their crafts.

"It's too bad," said Joella Kent of Sanford who was touring the museum, looking at relics of Sanford's past. "I was looking forward to seeing some of the artists' works. But I am learning some things about Seminole County that I never knew before."

Cecil Tucker, co-chairman of the event, said that the artists would probably return as soon as the rain lets up.

In the Agricultural Center's auditorium, historical papers and presentations were being given to small, but attentive groups.

The crowds, however, have not been disappointing to Tucker, considering the steady rain.

"Well, considering the weather, this isn't too bad," Tucker said.

George Scott, co-director of the event with Tucker, said he was pleased with the number of people who had stopped by despite the rain and the lack of artists.

"There are 100 people right now in the museum listening to presenters and looking around," he said.

The organizers of the Pioneer Days had predicted that more than 25,000 people would take part in the two-day event.

Rain or shine, Tucker and Scott said, the festival will go on today from 9 a.m. until 5 p.m.

of the children. "There is also an increase in vehicular traffic because of the construction," he said, "and with the boulevard down to two lanes at places, there are back-ups just about every morning and afternoon."

"We have already looked into some of this problem," Hagerty said. "We have to take it in context with when construction may eventually be completed."

He continued, "The particular hazards caused by the nearby railroad track crossing and the lack of sidewalks are not reasons, but the construction issue is something that we will be investigating further."

Hagerty said, "The construction situation could be considered an overall danger. If we reinstate the busing, it would definitely be on a temporary basis."

"They told us they would look into this as a possibility until at least the construction is completed," Morris said, "and possibly review it again at that time."

Hagerty said the matter has not presently been scheduled for the next Seminole County School Board meeting, on Oct. 13. "We still have to review this thoroughly before we decide what action we will take," he said.

is presently zoned SR-1A, single-family residential.

Richard Hardwick, of St. Petersburg, has been seeking to have it rezoned to GC-2, general commercial, with the intention of building a strip mall.

Hardwick however, has indicated he would not purchase the property unless the rezoning was approved.

Residents living in the area surrounding the nine acres between 15th and 18th Streets, have appeared at several City Commission meetings to voice their objection to the rezoning.

The rezoning request has been tabled several times, mostly at the request of Hardwick, who has been attempting to meet with the residents and discuss his proposed project.

"There is also a possibility that the city may want to buy the land and use it as a park," Kramer said. "We would be required to sell it to the city at fair market value, so that is one point we expect to bring up for discussion at Monday's meeting."

Another subject which could draw considerable discussion is whether or not the school board offices, at 1211 S. Mellonville Avenue, will remain at that location in Sanford. The facility houses approximately 200 persons, and a move has been suggested several times during the past year.

The meeting, designated as a joint workshop, is open to the general public. It will begin at 4 p.m., Monday, in the commission chambers of the Sanford City Hall, 300 N. Park Avenue.

points south of Sanford, the town became known as the "Gate City."

The city was incorporated in 1877. In 1890, a bright, young and highly personable civil engineer arrived in Sanford with his wife. His name was Forrest Lake. His wife's name was Maudie. He was a native of Laurens, S.C. She was a native of Charleston. Her maiden name was Anno.

The reason Lake came to Sanford was to assist the railroad and agricultural interests resolve a growing problem. Sanford was rapidly expanding and becoming the celery producing capital of the world. What Lake did in this situation helped make Sanford the producer of three-fifths of this world's supply of celery.

Shipping celery to the nation's wholesale produce markets could not be handled by riverboats such as the "City of Jacksonville," the "Oacola," the "Fannie Dugan" and the "City of Sanford," to name a few. Celery was a highly perishable product and could not be shipped by water.

This gave rise to the need for railroads to move the harvested, washed, crated and pre-cooled celery to the northern markets by refrigerated freight cars. Since the advent of mechanically refrigerated freight cars had not yet arrived, celery laden cars had to be "iced down" for the product to reach northern markets crisp and fresh.

build an electrical generating plant to provide the power needed to operate a huge manufacturing facility to provide ice for the box cars carrying celery. It shouldn't surprise anyone to learn that the two plants were built right next to one another at Randa Siding where the railroads "made up" the trains that left here nightly for those northern markets. The cars carrying celery were "iced down" at each end.

The two facilities Lake designed and constructed so successfully met the need that Lake became the toast of the town. In fact, in 1898, the people of Sanford honored him by electing him mayor. The city was being governed by a seven-member city council. Although Lake was mayor he was not a member of the council and did not have a vote.

A short time later Lake was called on by Cuban authorities to go to Havana and build that country's first electrical generating plant and an ice manufacturing facility. Word of Lake's success in Sanford had been noised abroad and fell on Cuban ears.

The well-liked couple went to the island nation. There Lake did design what we understand were the first electrical and ice plants in Cuba.

(Chapter Two tomorrow will explain what happened to the Lakes in Cuba and later when they returned to Sanford.)

Department of Law Enforcement last week.

Local law enforcement officials are pleased with the results and are hopeful it represents a continuing trend, although they say arrests can vary yearly and may not reflect long-range trends. Officials attribute at least some of the decrease to efforts to place police and deputies in schools to impress values of right and wrong on impressionable minds.

"We've realized that juveniles are a segment of the community that needs a lot of attention," said Sanford Police Chief Steven Harriett. "Their values are in the process of being shaped, so hopefully, we can have some influence."

"I would have to say that our SRO (school resource officer) program and our community policing accounts for some of it," said George Proche, spokesman for the Seminole County Sheriff's Office. "We have officers assigned to neighborhoods where the kids can come in contact with them and they serve as a role model."

Statewide, a total of 94,988 juveniles were arrested in 1991.

up 6.8 percent from a year earlier, according to the report. Juvenile arrests for violent crimes climbed 6.9 percent over 1990 and arrests for nonviolent crimes climbed 13.7 percent.

"Our focus in law enforcement must remain on juveniles and violence," FDLE Commissioner Tim Moore said in a press release issued by his office. "Over the last decade, Florida has experienced major increases in the number of violent crimes reported."

Last year, more juveniles were arrested and charged with larceny — shoplifting and petty theft — than any other crime: 28,358, up 13.5 percent from 1990.

Sanford followed that trend, although Seminole County as a whole, did not. Although countywide juvenile theft arrests decreased from 654 in 1990 to 643 in 1991 — less than a 2 percent decrease — Sanford juvenile theft arrests increased from 72 to 104, a 44.4 percent increase.

Statewide burglary came next, with 12,469 arrests, up 14.8 percent. In Seminole County, juvenile burglary arrests decreased from 223 to 170, a 23.8 percent decrease. Aggravated assault arrests ranked third, up 4.1 percent to 5,669. In Seminole County, aggravated assaults increased by 2.8 percent, from 71 to 73.

Declines were reported in murder arrests, down 8.7 percent to 188; drug arrests, down 6.6 percent to 4,847; prostitution/commercialized sex, down 11.9 percent to 111. In Seminole County, murder arrests increased 66.7 percent from 3 to 5; drug arrests, up 9.3 percent to 82; prostitution down 50 percent to 1. Arson cases saw the largest increase, climbing 41.4 percent to 280 arrests. Seminole County had one arson arrest in 1991 and none in 1990. Arrests for forcible sex offenses climbed 10.8 percent to 782; robbery arrests climbed 12.4 percent to 3,228; car theft arrests climbed 12.3 percent to 6,280.

In Seminole County, forcible sex arrests increased 33.3 percent from 6 to 8; robbery arrests were down 34.5 percent to 38; auto thefts were down 45.8 percent to 38.

during a robbery at Mister C's Southern Fried Chicken, 2100 S. French Ave., Sanford, Yu, the owner, was then robbed of less than $200 in cash, Harriett said.

According to Harriett, the suspected murder weapon was found in a garbage dumpster a few blocks away from the restaurant.

"There were latent fingerprints on the knife," Harriett explained, "so we were able to identify the murderer."

The Sanford Police Department investigation also revealed that Cofield had purchased crack cocaine with some of the money taken from the restaurant "a few moments after the murder," Harriett said.

Harriett said that Cofield, an itinerant farm worker, was able to escape from Sanford before police could make an arrest.

He was placed on Florida's Eight Most Wanted List, after which his picture was plastered in every law enforcement department in the state. But officials were not able to find him.

Harriett said that Cofield was also arrested under an assumed name in Greenville, S.C. on retail theft charges, but was released before his fingerprints were sent to the FBI for cross referencing.

"By the time they realized who he was, he had been released," Harriett said.

Harriett said that a person in Central Florida, who wishes to remain anonymous, saw Cofield's photo on the wall in an area law enforcement office.

That person told officials that he had worked with Cofield on a farm in North Carolina, Harriett said.

Harriett said Cofield is also a suspect in a beating death in Boston, though he doesn't believe there is enough evidence in that case to arrest him on those charges.

Harriett was not sure when Cofield would be returned to Seminole County to face charges in Sanford.

According to Lt. Mike Rotundo, public information officer for the department, the murder of Cornelia "Peanut" Ammons on July 2, 1988 is the only murder that remains unsolved in Sanford. Ammons body was found on Jerry Avenue south of 5th Street in Sanford the day after the murder.

The citizens have previously voiced their concern about the traffic problems caused by the construction, during previous City Commission meetings, and have urged the city to take some type of action until the construction is completed.

Items scheduled for discussion include surplus land and facilities, improvement to the school facilities serving Sanford residents, and the school board administrative facility location.

Simmons has recommended the participants also discuss the Head Start Program.

The School Board's Director of Facilities, Diane Kramer said much of the discussion will center on property. "We need to discuss the land across from Sanford Middle School," she said, "to see what the city may want to do with it."

Rezoning of the property has been scheduled for several Sanford City Commission meetings during the past months. The land, owned by the school board, wealthy, clear ground and plant citrus groves. In exchange, General Sanford gave each of the Swedes five acres of land to homestead.

As Sanford's population grew so did the number of stores, shops and various other businesses including a number of hotels. The latter were needed to accommodate those who came by riverboats that plied the St. Johns between Jacksonville and Sanford or came by Henry Plant's railroad.

General Sanford a native of Connecticut and member of a rather wealthy family, was well educated. President Abraham Lincoln during the Civil War appointed him to be the United States minister to Belgium. The general's title was not military. He had been appointed a major general in the Minnesota Militia, an honorary title comparable to the governors of Kentucky naming favorite sons as "Kentucky colonels."

After the war, General Sanford came to Florida. He liked this area so much he purchased 15,435 acres of land. He paid just 30 cents an acre. He hired a couple of engineers to lay out the town just west of Fort Mellon, a U.S. Army post used by federal troops during the wars with the Seminole Indians. Also, near what is now the Upeala area, the general planted his experimental groves and the Swedes he brought to America worked those groves.

LAKE MARY — Photographs hang on the walls and milk-naked line the shelves in the bright two bedroom apartment that Helen Figueroa shares with her mother Ignacia Pabon in the Canterbury subdivision of the Crossings in Lake Mary.

Though the apartment is only a temporary place to stay, it has the look of home.

Natcha and Helen arrived in Seminole County from Homestead two weeks ago with the assistance of parishioners at St. Peter's Episcopal Church in Lake Mary. Their South Florida apartment was severely damaged by Hurricane Andrew and the ladies, who are 88 and 89 years old, were told they needed to get out so that repairs could be made.

Because their rent is paid by a government subsidy, they were told they had to move to an apartment in the Liberty City section of Miami.

"It was horrible," Figueroa said. "I could not take my mother there."

With the help of Shari Norman, St. Peter's was able to bring the ladies here instead.

"They love us so much," Pabon said. "They have all been so good."

Norman said the mother and daughter have quickly made their way into the hearts of members of the congregation.

"They are like everyone's grandmother," Norman said. "We want to help them as much as we can."

Both ladies have numerous medical problems, but a strong faith in God keeps them going. They believe they were spared in the hurricane and continue to survive despite their illnesses because God has a plan for them.

"God is showing people who don't believe in him that he is all up there and that he does miracles," Figueroa said.

Pabon said her grandfather lived to 129 years old. She knows she is 88, but if God still has a plan for her she still has many years left.

"I don't know," she said.

Figueroa said that when they left Homestead, they had no plans to stay here, but now that they are here and feel so much a part of the St. Peter's family, they are not so sure they want to go back.

Helen Figueroa and her mother Ignacia Pabon enjoy all the comforts of home thanks to St. Peter's Episcopal Church.

"I most definitely want to stay here," Figueroa said. "It is so much nicer here than in Homestead."

Figueroa described Homestead as a violent area where young people show no respect for the elderly.

Her mother is unsure if she wants to stay here. She said that she would like to return to her native Puerto Rico where her ancestors are buried.

"But I know that I am not going," she said quietly.

When the women left Homestead, they had been told that it would take three to four months for the repairs to their home to be made. They are now being told that it will take as long as a year.

"We will extend the lease as long as we have to," Jorge Pasquale, Figueroa and Pabon's landlord, said. "We'll take care of them."

Figueroa said that promise takes a load off her mind.

"I am so glad I don't have to worry about that," she said.

The two ladies have settled easily into life in Seminole County.

Pabon walks around the small community around their home and greets everyone. Members of the church call daily to see how she is doing and offer assistance to them.

"They take such good care of us," Figueroa said.

Congress passes bill for social programs, defense

Associated Press

WASHINGTON — Congress on Saturday sent President Bush a $245 billion spending bill for social programs and a defense bill that slashes money for the Strategic Defense Initiative as lawmakers pushed toward adjournment.

Negotiators also made some progress on narrowing the differences in House and Senate versions of the year's major tax bill. They agreed to drop two major tax-increase provisions in an effort to avoid a veto by President Bush.

But a source close to the negotiations said that congressional leaders still have no indication from Bush on just what kind of tax bill he would sign.

SUMMARY AND NOTICE OF AVAILABILITY

COUNTY OF SEMINOLE PLANNING OFFICE, COMMUNITY DEVELOPMENT SECTION SEMINOLE AND VOLUSIA COUNTY HOME INVESTMENT PARTNERSHIP PROGRAM CONSORTIUM CONSOLIDATED COMPREHENSIVE HOUSING AFFORDABILITY STRATEGY (CHAS)

Pursuant to Title I of the National Affordable Housing Act, the County of Seminole, Florida, is publishing this summary of the Consolidated 1989-1992 Comprehensive Housing Affordability Strategy (CHAS) and the summary of the FY 1992 Annual Plan for the Seminole and Volusia County HOME Investment Partnership Program Consortium. A Consolidated CHAS is required because Seminole and Volusia Counties have entered into a binding interlocal cooperation agreement creating the HOME Consortium and designating Volusia County as the lead agency.

The Consolidated CHAS contains a description of the affordable housing needs of very low income, low income, and moderate income families, homeless families, and individuals and others with special needs who require supportive services, and the characteristics of the housing market and the existing stock for each participating jurisdiction separately and in a consolidated manner. It also contains a Five Year Strategy for affordable housing development and a One Year Action Plan for each jurisdiction for applying available resources to the needs identified.

The following priorities have been identified in the One Year Action Plan for Seminole County: Seminole County shall continue to rely on the private sector as the primary provider of affordable housing. The public sector and public/private partnerships resources will target those identified as most in need; very low income households, principally renters.

The second annual plan under Seminole County's 1989-1992 Comprehensive Housing Affordability Strategy will continue existing neighborhood revitalization, housing rehabilitation and tenant assistance programs and begin new housing initiatives including: removing unnecessary and costly regulations, partnerships with financial institutions and for-profit and nonprofit housing developers, coordinated policies and programs with Volusia County, participating cities and public agencies within Seminole County. The major thrust of the second year plan will be to continue to develop effective working relationships with as many actors as possible in the housing delivery process. This will provide the basis for effective allocation and use of resources. Except where otherwise stated, Seminole County will be the funding or the implementing agency.

Seminole County will preserve its existing housing stock and revitalize low income neighborhoods by utilizing programs to rehabilitate substandard units to standard condition by establishing an Affordable Housing Trust Fund and applying for other funding sources to 1) subsidize public/private housing development partnerships and nonprofit housing development cooperation projects; 2) provide first-time homebuyer assistance to low income households; 3) provide assistance to developers of low and very low income rental units; 4) provide affordable housing financial assistance through participation with Housing Finance Authorities and the Central Florida Community Reinvestment Corporation; and 5) provide mortgage assistance to low and moderate income households.

Seminole County will provide incentives for the private production of affordable housing for very low, low and moderate income households by amending the Land Development Code to provide more flexibility in certain residential zoning districts; include affordable housing in High Intensity Planned (HIP) districts; and provide excess County-owned land for affordable housing development.

Seminole County will provide incentives for private production of special housing types for elderly, mentally and physically disabled and migrant farmworkers by: revising the Land Development Code to provide sufficient sites for community residential homes, foster care facilities, group homes, Adult Care Living Facilities and transitional housing facilities; and providing direct assistance to special populations with available local, State and Federal housing programs.

Seminole County will establish an Affordable Housing Trust Fund through a documentary stamp Surplus and/or Federal and State grant programs. The Trust Fund would be used to subsidize public/private housing development partnerships or support nonprofit housing development corporations or their projects by purchasing land, developing infrastructure, paying impact fees, providing development or mortgage financing, and other actions to lower the cost of housing.

Seminole County will provide Emergency Shelter Grants Program and other appropriate funding sources (McKinney Act programs) to assist homeless individuals and families by: funding operation and rehabilitation of emergency shelter and transitional housing facilities; providing direct emergency food, clothing, transportation and financial assistance to at-risk persons to prevent homelessness; and providing essential services to assist homeless persons with the transition to permanent housing.

Seminole County will coordinate housing assistance activities with local municipalities and the Sanford and Seminole County Public Housing Authorities to increase the availability of rental assistance for very low income persons (Section 8 and HOME rental assistance).

The Volusia/Seminole County Consolidated CHAS and the FY 1992 Annual Plan is available for examination prior to its submission to the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development on or about November 30, 1992 at the following locations:

Seminole County Public Library System (all locations); City Halls (all participating jurisdictions); and the Seminole County Services Building, Room 3301, 1101 East First Street, Sanford, Florida.

All interested citizens, agencies or organizations are invited to submit comments on the contents of the Consolidated CHAS and the FY 1992 Annual Plan to the Community Development Section Office located at the Seminole County Planning Office, 1101 East First Street, Sanford, Florida, 32771. Written comments should be directed to Huey Davis, Housing Specialist, and must be received no later than Monday, November 2, 1992. You may also phone (407) 321-1130, extension 7384.

Bush may have known more about arms

WASHINGTON — Two top-secret Israeli reports show that President Bush, at a 1988 briefing in Jerusalem, was given more information about the arms-for-hostages scheme with Iran than he has admitted.

The documents — one written in February 1987, the other a month later — provide a detailed account of the briefing given to then-Vice President Bush by Israeli counter-terrorism adviser Amiram Nir, said two sources who have studied the documents.

They spoke Friday only on condition they not be identified, and declined to reveal further details.

Bush had initially sought to play down the importance of the July 29, 1988, meeting with Nir, telling investigators it dealt generally with issues of counter-terrorism.

Perot comments on campaign

WASHINGTON — Ross Perot says his presidential campaign won't succeed if "Americans are too soft" to accept tightened economic policies to cut the federal deficit.

"There will be pain everywhere. It's like World War II. We had shared sacrifice," the Texas billionaire said of his plan for tax increases and deep cuts in government spending to reduce the deficit.

"We'll all have to do it together. I can't do it for you," Perot said in an interview with Barbara Walters broadcast Friday night on ABC's "20/20."

Americans, he said, would accept increases in Medicare premiums and higher taxes on gasoline as well as Social Security and health benefits because "we're talking about fair share sacrifice."

Weekend session for Congress

WASHINGTON — Members of Congress, eager to finish their legislative business and rush home to campaign, still must tackle a major defense bill and a controversial measure that would allow abortions at military hospitals overseas.

Both houses were returning today for weekend sessions that are rare during the rest of the year but normal in the waning days before final adjournment. Leaders hope the 102nd Congress will quit Monday.

In addition to defense, the Senate will tackle the issue of lifting the administration's moratorium on fetal tissue transplantation research.

The House considers legislation to give presidents more power to stop projects or programs they oppose. Supporters and opponents of the measure agreed it would be the first step toward the line-item veto sought by President Bush.

Iraqi assets being seized

UNITED NATIONS — The Security Council is seizing Iraqi assets to compensate victims of Baghdad's invasion of Kuwait and pay for U.N. weapons inspections and humanitarian aid to Kurds and Shiites.

A resolution passed Friday seizes revenues from Iraqi oil sales held abroad, most in the United States. It is the first time the United Nations has moved to seize a nation's money.

Iraqi Foreign Minister Mohammed Al-Sahaf, who characterized the resolution as illegal and unjustified, had met earlier Friday with Security Council members from Third World countries in an attempt to head off the seizure.

But 14 of the 15 council members supported the resolution. China abstained, as it has in several council measures against Iraq.

Machinists prepare to strike

WASHINGTON — The 8,300 machinists who repair and maintain aircraft for USAir are preparing to strike the nation's sixth-largest airline after rejecting the company's call for wage and benefit cuts.

The airline said it had plans to keep flying when and if a strike is called.

John Peterpaul, vice president of the International Association of Machinists and Aerospace Workers, said Friday that a strike date would be set within 72 hours.

The union had recommended that rank-and-file members reject the USAir cost-reduction package, and Peterpaul said they did so "by a nearly unanimous vote." The final tally won't be announced until after a few small locals cast their votes today, he said.

Sarajevo airlift resumes today

SARAJEVO, Bosnia-Herzegovina — Three U.S. Air Force planes carrying food and medicine flew to the Bosnian capital Saturday, resuming an international airlift that was suspended because a relief plane was shot down.

Meanwhile, Sarajevo radio reported air raids by Serb warplanes on several Bosnian towns into the night Friday.

Such air raids have prompted Western allies to urge the United Nations to set up a "no-fly" zone — banning combat planes from the skies over Bosnia. President Bush said Friday he backed the proposal, and that the United States was ready to enforce it with military action if necessary.

Air attacks were to have been banned after an August peace conference in London.

Turkey mourns dead sailors

ANKARA, Turkey — Turkey is mourning five sailors killed in an accident during military exercises with the United States, and officials are trying to determine why the American aircraft carrier Saratoga fired the fatal missiles.

The Washington Post and The New York Times reported today that human error, perhaps on the part of a maintenance crew, may have led to Thursday's accident, which killed the ship's commanding officer, Capt. Kudret Gungor, and four sailors. Eleven others were injured, four seriously.

The Anatolia news agency quoted Vice Admiral Philip Durr, speaking to reporters at a briefing Friday aboard the Saratoga, as saying that the ship's Sparrow air-defense system had previously fired prematurely, but never caused a fatal accident.

Durr said that during a battle, the RIM-7M missile that blasted the Musvet (pronounced Moo-Ah-Veh-Net) during a NATO exercise Thursday night would be locked onto a radar-identified target and would fire automatically.

But in exercises, the weapon system could be fired manually, Anatolia quoted him as saying.

Appointment shocks observers

BRASILIA, Brazil — One of acting President Itamar Franco's first appointments — of a relative unknown as finance minister — shocked observers and sent the stock market plunging and gold and dollar prices up.

The finance minister oversees the economy, Brazil's principal problem. Inflation is 25 percent a month, millions of people earn no more than $12 a week and millions of others are unemployed.

Franco became the interim leader of Latin America's largest country on Friday, after Fernando Collor de Mello was impeached on Tuesday.

Florida's tremendous growth has created a shortage of telephone numbers. By dialing the area code on every long distance call, numbers are freed up for new businesses and residential customers.

So remember, when you dial long distance, be sure to use the area code. And if you have a 407 long distance number on any programmed services, like Speed Dialing, Call Forwarding, or even a FAX machine, now's the time to reprogram them.

Too much laughing gas a hazard

BOSTON — Women dental assistants who were exposed to high levels of laughing gas had trouble getting pregnant, scientists reported.

The government scientists speculated that laughing gas, or nitrous oxide, somehow interferes with the body's levels of reproductive hormones.

"The study found that occupational exposure to nitrous oxide may reduce the fertility of dental personnel who work with it," said Dr. Andrew S. Rowland of the National Institute of Environmental Health Sciences in Research Triangle Park, N.C.

However, the researchers found that only those assistants with high on-the-job exposure had trouble conceiving. And they said they have no reason to think that laughing gas is harmful to ordinary dental patients.

Breast Cancer Awareness Month

Lake Mary Woman's Club sponsors mammogram mobile unit

LAKE MARY — In keeping with Breast Cancer Awareness Month, which is this month, the Lake Mary Woman's Club will help the Women's Center for Radiology Mobil Unit van at Lake Mary City Hall parking lot on Thursday, Oct. 8, from 9 a.m. through 5 p.m.

"This was done last year and was very successful," according to Pauline Bundschu of the Woman's Club. "As we did last year, we shall have four or five women from our club to help handle paper work or greet persons, or whatever the Mobil Unit wishes us to do."

Pauline J. Bundschu is in charge of public affairs and publicity for the club.

Appointments for the mammograms must be made by calling Gladys Northrup at 888-0785 or 1-800-888-0785. The cost is $65 to be paid at the time service is rendered.

Five years ago, a woman's chances of developing breast cancer were one in 11. Today they are one in nine, according to Richard F. Jones III, M.D., president of the American College of Obstetricians and Gynecologists in Washington, D.C.

This alarming trend has prompted many women to learn the facts about breast cancer and to follow screening recommendations for early detection of the disease. Many other women, however, do not know or tune out this bad news and never take steps to protect the health of their breasts.

Ask yourself these questions: Do you know the normal shape and feel of your breasts? Would you be able to tell if a lump or other change occurred in one of your breasts? Do you visit your doctors each year for a breast examination?

Ideally, all women would answer "yes" to these three questions. But unfortunately, many women do not recognize the importance of regular breast exams or fail to take a long-term interest in the health of their breasts.

Since the most successful treatment for breast cancer may be given when lumps are found in the earliest stage, it is crucial to get to know your breasts and to check them each month for lumps and other changes.

The best time to do breast self-examination (BSE) is a few days after the last day of the menstrual period when your breasts are not tender or swollen. After menopause you should choose a particular day to do the exam to establish a regular monthly routine.

Here is one way to do breast self-examination:

● In good light, stand or sit in front of a mirror, arms at your sides.

● Look for dimpling or puckering of the breast skin, retraction (or pulling in) of the nipples, and changes in breast size or shape. Look for the same signs with your hands pressed on your hips and then with your arms raised.

● Lie flat on your back. Place a folded towel or a pillow under your left shoulder and place your left hand under your head.

● With your right hand, keeping the fingers flat and together, gently feel your breast without exerting too much pressure. Use small, circular motions with your fingers.

● Picture your breast as the face of a clock. Begin your small circles at 12 o'clock at the very top of the breast. Repeat the circular motion as 1 o'clock, 2 o'clock, and so on. When your hand returns to 12 o'clock, move it closer to the nipple and repeat the process. Do this in smaller and smaller circles until you have examined all the breast tissue.

● Examine the nipple area in the same way and check for any discharge.

● Be sure to examine the area below the armpit, which also contains tissue.

● Lower your right arm to your side and reverse the procedure. Place the folded towel or pillow under your right shoulder, right hand under your head, and use your left hand to feel your right breast.

Once you learn how to do BSE, the procedure should be easy and quick. Get in the habit of doing a self-exam every month. It could help you spot a problem before it becomes a real health danger.

Experts say dietary guidelines too lax

By Associated Press

NEW YORK — Even if you follow the government's recommendations — and you probably don't — you're not eating an ideal diet, says a group of experts polled by Consumers Union.

An ideal diet would have less fat, less red meat and more fruits and vegetables than the government now recommends. And Americans, for the most part, already don't even meet the latter guidelines.

When the experts queried look into account how people live to suggest "reasonable" goals, they came up with a diet similar to the one recommended by government agencies and other health groups: 30 percent or less of calories from fat; five to nine servings a day of fruits and vegetables; two to three servings a day of meat, poultry, fish, beans, eggs or nuts.

But for an ideal diet, most of the experts said a person should get no more than 25 percent of calories from fat. But nearly half the experts would limit fat even more — to 20 percent or less of calories.

The average American gets 36 percent to 39 percent of calories from fat.

The experts also would recommend at least seven servings of produce a day. Americans now eat an average of 2½ to three servings.

Baptist dental, medical unit to visit Sanford area

SANFORD — The Dental/Medical Mobile Unit of the Florida Baptist Convention will be in the Sanford area during the week of Oct. 20, to offer free dental care to public school children who otherwise might not obtain such care.

Members of Baptist Churches of the Seminole Baptist Association located in Seminole and Volusia counties will be sponsoring this service and members of these churches will be assisting in the services offered to the students of elementary schools in the Sanford and Pierson areas.

The schools where the Mobile Dental Unit will be, include the Midway and Goldsboro elementary schools in Sanford on Wednesday and Thursday Oct. 21, 22.

The following dentists and their dental assistants have offered their services to do the dental work in the unit during the days it will be here. Dr. R. G. Runge, Dr. Willie Sherman, Dr. Bill Knapke, Dr. Ron Tillitsky, Dr. Joseph Calderone, Dr. E. W. Zwicker, Dr. Hermina Ramos/Rodriguez and Dr. Diane Raggard Wright, of Brandon.

Because the convention was unable to enlist enough dentists to do dental work every day during the time the Dental Mobile Unit will be in the area, they will offer health screenings on Tuesday, Oct. 20, at Midway Elementary School and Thursday, Oct. 22, at Goldsboro Elementary School, both in Sanford.

SOUND ADVICE

NICK SPINA

CERTIFIED HEARING INSTRUMENT SPECIALIST

The speed at which sound travels is affected by temperature. When it is cold, sound travels faster than when it is hot.

Many special devices are now available to make day-to-day living easier for the hearing impaired person. There are several models of hearing aids that are the best available. They have a light and telephone that pick out the caller's message. If you have a special problem, there may be a device available to make life simpler for you.

Question - How do I know how loud my hearing aid should be?

Answer - There is no simple way to tell a new user how far up to turn his instrument. The goal is to make typical conversation comfortably heard. This will, of course, require occasional adjustment when there are changes in sound quality. On most hearing aids, this level will be found somewhere between 1/3 and 2/3 volume control rotation.

Study: No simple reason for black premature birth rate

By DANIEL G. HANEY
AP Science Writer

BOSTON — Black mothers are more likely than whites to give birth to dangerously underweight babies because of a wide array of pregnancy problems, not any single health factor, a study concludes.

The work underscores the complexity and difficulty of addressing the relatively high mortality rate among black newborns.

Even though the death rates for all babies are going down, blacks continue to die at twice the rate of whites during the first year of life. This is due largely to the number of premature black babies, especially those under 1,500 grams (about 3 pounds).

The study found that four common pregnancy problems accounted for 90 percent of the extra risk of very low birth weight among the babies of black mothers. The researchers said this means that no single treatment or strategy is likely to erase the racial disparity.

"This study raises more questions than answers," commented Dr. Howard Spivak, chief of pediatrics at New England Medical Center in Boston.

The study was conducted by Dr. Allison Kempe and others from Harvard Medical School. It was published in Thursday's New England Journal of Medicine.

The study was based on a review of 1,299 infants born over a six-year period in Boston, St. Louis and rural east-central Mississippi. Blacks in these areas were two to three times more likely than whites to be born under 1,500 grams.

Infection or rupture of the amniotic membranes accounted for 38 percent of the extra low weight births among blacks. Premature labor for no apparent reason accounted for 21 percent, high blood pressure 12 percent and hemorrhaging 10 percent.

Black women were three times as likely as whites to experience these difficulties during pregnancy.

In an editorial, Drs. Ezra C. Davidson Jr. and Teichiro Fukushima of King-Drew Medical Center in Los Angeles noted that the same conditions responsible for low weight babies among blacks also caused underweight infants among whites.

"This finding deserves greater emphasis, since it suggests that effective prevention or treatment of any of these conditions in black women would be likely to improve outcomes overall," they wrote.

The Harvard researchers said their work highlights the need for high-quality care during delivery, as well as good health among black women during and before pregnancy.

Why American voters are ticket-splitters

By DONALD H. BRYNEN
Associated Press Writer

WICHITA, Kan. — Duane Sanders raises sheep and grows wheat and soybeans. He's a lifelong Republican who thinks Vice President Dan Quayle was right about Murphy Brown. So, why is President Bush blaming Sanders for much of what ails America?

Not directly, of course. Sanders is a ticket-splitter. He supported Ronald Reagan twice and voted for Bush in 1988. In each of those elections, he also voted for Democratic Congressman Dan Glickman.

"We tend to forget about party and go for the man," is Sanders' unapologetic explanation.

But that kind of voting drives the president — and plenty of other elected officials — bonkers. The view from inside Washington's Beltway blames partisan division for an encyclopedia of governmental failures, whether it's A for acid rain, B for budgets, or C for crime.

Give one party control of both the White House and Congress, goes that argument, and the nation would enter an era of political cooperation that would attack the budget deficit and promote decisive action to improve health care, education ... you name it.

There is a markedly Republican tilt to this rhetoric. To the cynical ear it comes across as another partisan appeal to voters to break their habit of electing Democratic Congresses.

Republicans have occupied the White House for 28 of the last 40 years. But no Republican member of the House knows what it's like to be in the majority, to wield a gavel, to chair so much as a subcommittee.

Consider this statistical portrait of America's schizophrenic voting habits:

When Bush was elected president in 1988, he carried 40 states. But in 148 congressional districts — more than a third of the total — voters backed Bush and sent a Democrat to the House.

Doomed by that pattern was whatever faint hope Bush had of starting his presidency with a Republican Congress sympathetic to his views.

"Why do Americans so consistently divide their votes between the two parties? Do they do it deliberately, out of some belief that divided government works in their interest? Or is this voting pattern a phenomenon of a nation where political parties have little relevance?"

"People go into the polls and they're not thinking about Democrat or Republican," said Don Kellerman, director of the Times Mirror Center for the People and the Press, which has conducted continuing surveys of public attitudes toward government.

"People think George Bush, they think Dan Glickman," he said. "Politics has become so personalized."

In a survey last spring, Times Mirror asked people about partisan control of government. They found 26 percent said they thought it was better if the president's party also controlled Congress, while 23 percent favored split control. Forty percent said it didn't matter.

"As long as you've got a pretty even mix, you've got checks and balances," said Sanders, the Wichita ticket-splitter.

Even a veteran politician like John White, a Texan who was Democratic Party chairman when Jimmy Carter was president, is wary of giving too much power to either the White House or Congress.

"I'm not sure we ought to make it easy for these fellows to run their policies through," said White. "They ought to have to be pounded on the anvil of truth and public support."

Professor Charles Jones of the University of Wisconsin believe the problem isn't divided government, but "the combination of two periods that come as close to unified government that we've had."

He cites Lyndon Johnson's Great Society programs enacted by the Democrats and the first two years of Reagan's presidency when Republicans controlled the Senate and forged an ideological majority in the House.

"Johnson escalated the expenditure side and then Reagan starved the revenue side and there you get the explanation for the difficulties we're in currently," Jones said.

America's two major parties traditionally vie for the support of the political middle, resulting in a broad ideological overlap. That big tent approach can cause strong-willed ideologues like former Alabama Gov. George Wallace to complain that "there's not a dime's worth of difference" between the two parties.

It also leaves many voters without strong identification with one party or the other. Ask people why they are Democrats or Republicans and the answer is likely to be vague.

"When I was 21 years of age and it was time to vote, you had to be one or the other," said Sanders.

"Growing up I always thought Kansas was very Republican," said Robin Van Huss, who owns a furniture store in downtown Wichita. "They're a little more business oriented."

The Fourth Congressional

District of Kansas is a good place to talk about divided government. Located in south-central Kansas, its population center is Wichita, a city of 300,000 that is a hub of the nation's aircraft industry.

People in Wichita voice the anger and frustration so common in America today, the feeling that government does little other than collect taxes.

So they vote for a Republican here and a Democrat there, depending on how the candidates strike them. Party loyalty is not much of a factor.

"I guess the last Democrat I voted for president was Lyndon Johnson in 1964," said Richard Honeyman, a lawyer with an office in downtown Wichita. Most years he's also voted for Glickman. It's not an ideological thing.

"Dan's a friend," Honeyman said.

Like so many of his House colleagues, Glickman has learned to pay attention to the home folks — in other words, to get re-elected.

Talk to members of the Pachyderm Club, where Republicans gather for lunch and political talk. Glickman receives grudging compliments for his attentiveness to constituent needs.

"I've got a Republican friend who votes 100 percent Republican except for Glickman because he's good for the VA," said Darlene Cornfield, a Republican state legislator. "You send him a letter, he responds."

Sanders said farmers look over candidates "searching for a friend of agriculture." Glickman impressed him, even if he was "a city kid and an attorney by profession."

Though he's benefited from split-ticket voting for years, Glickman believes divided government is a problem.

"There's too much partisanship, too much bickering, too much finger-pointing, not enough working together," he said.

His sense is that "the feeling the Congress and the president ought to be on the same team is resonating a little better this time."

Diarrhea deaths can be reduced

By LEE SCHOEN, AP Science Writer

LOS ANGELES — Diarrhea kills hundreds of American babies each year and puts 230,000 in hospitals because doctors don't recommend a simple, inexpensive treatment that has saved millions in Third World countries, experts say.

Most of the deaths and hospitalizations could be prevented if parents were taught to give their sick children a specially formulated sugar-and-salt solution, pediatricians said Friday during a seminar at the University of California-Los Angeles School of Medicine.

"People in the United States need to realize that although diarrhea may be a very simple disease, a child can become dehydrated very quickly and can die within hours," said Dr. Mathuram Santosham, professor of international health and pediatrics at Johns Hopkins University in Baltimore.

Many parents wrongly believe clear liquids such as soda pop, fruit juice, sports drinks or liquid gelatin should be given to children suffering diarrhea, Santosham said. Those liquids contain too much sugar and too little sodium, potassium and chloride salts and can aggravate diarrhea, he said.

Over-the-counter anti-diarrhea medicines shouldn't be given to children because they can worsen the problem by trapping diarrhea-causing organisms in the gut, said Dr. Marvin Ament, UCLA's chief of pediatric gastroenterology.

The special sugar-and-salt oral rehydration fluids are available in many drug and grocery stores for $3 to $5 per liter, a little more than a quart. Common brands are Pedialyte, Ricelyte and Oralyte.

They can be purchased without a prescription, although a prescription is needed to obtain reimbursement in the 18 states where Medicaid pays the cost.

"If treated properly with oral rehydration fluids, there should be no deaths due to diarrhea in this country," Santosham said.

Dehydration from diarrhea is a major killer of children in the Third World, once claiming 4.6 million lives annually, Santosham said. But in recent years, oral rehydration therapy has saved 1 million lives each year, according to the United Nations Children's Fund.

Viruses, bacteria and parasites cause diarrhea in about 16.5 million American children each year. Some 220,000 are hospitalized and 325 to 425 die per year — almost 10 percent of preventable U.S. infant deaths, according to a 1991 study by the national Centers for Disease Control.

Santosham said a child suffering a first bout of severe diarrhea should visit a doctor or hospital, but later visits can be avoided if doctors teach parents how to use oral rehydration liquids.

Mattel swaps math-averse Barbie dolls

By The Associated Press

EL SEGUNDO, Calif. — The makers of "Teen Talk" Barbie, stung by criticism that the talking dolls utter sexist remarks, offered to let offended customers trade their toy in for a mute model.

But the proposal didn't silence the American Association of University Women, which this week demanded that Mattel Toys recall the talking Barbies.

The association says the new dolls promote sexism and could discourage girls from success in math, since one of the phrases they are programmed to say is: "Math class is tough!"

Association president Sharon Schuster said girls who want a talking doll are unlikely to be satisfied with a tongue-tied Barbie.

Mattel refused to recall the dolls, which retail for about $25.

Each talking doll produces four phrases, randomly selected from 270 to make each unique. It works, to the point where Mattel itself has no idea how to identify the one in every 67½ Barbies with the math aversion, said Mattel spokeswoman Donna Gibbs.

She noted the dolls also say things like "Let's start a business" and "I'm going to be a veterinarian."

Another spokeswoman, Lisa McKendall, said Mattel will allow customers to exchange "Teen Talk" Barbies for non-speaking dolls of comparable value.

IN BRIEF

Thorne wins in slop

SANFORD — Tolle Frank drove in three runs and Thorne and Son Land Clearing withstood a late charge by Sanford Officiating Service to win 9-7 in Men's Over-35 action at Pinchurat Park.

Checkers remained undefeated as McRoberts Auto Center failed to field a team.

Checkers is now 4-0, followed by Thorne (3-1), Sanford Officiating (2-2) and McRoberts (0-4).

Pacing the Thorne offense were Tom Gracey (three singles, two runs, RBI), Frank (two singles, three RBI), Bill Gracey (two singles, two runs, RBI), Danny Lee (two singles, two RBI), Don Causeaux (two singles, RBI), Mike West (two singles, run), Dan Gracey (double, run, RBI), Joel Lipscomb (double, run) and Carl Thorne and Lloyd Wall (one run each).

Doing the damage for S.O.S. were Sonny Eubanks (three singles, two runs, RBI), Nick Brady (three singles, run, two RBI), Jim Adams (two singles, two runs), Ken Dryden (two singles, run, RBI), Tom Raines (two singles, RBI), Jack Eltonhead (single, run), Robert Grover and Dan Cannon (one single and one RBI each), Jim Nulte (single) and Robert Jones (run).

Orangewood blanks St. John's

MAITLAND — Goalie Ben Maynard made six saves to post his fourth shutout of the season Friday evening, leading the Orangewood Christian School Rams to a 2-0 win over Orange Park-St. John's Country Day School in a Class 1A boys' soccer clash.

The win improves Orangewood Christian, ranked eighth in last week's Florida Athletic Coaches Association state poll, to 6-2-1 while fifth-ranked St. John's falls to 4-2-2.

Rex Dix and Marshall Dickerson provided the offense for the Rams Friday. Dix scoring on an assist from Scott Armstrong at 4:57 of the first half and Dickerson converting on a pass from Jakob Hadrick with a minute left in the game.

Orangewood outshot St. John's 19-6, forcing the St. John's goalkeeper to make eight saves. The Rams also had a 3-1 edge on corner kicks.

The Rams will play again at 4 p.m. Tuesday against Daytona Beach-Warner Christian.

Mayfair women open season

SANFORD — The Mayfair Women's Golf Association opened its 1992-93 season with a four-ball, best ball tournament this past Wednesday, Sept. 30.

Coming out on top was the quartet of Margaret Betts, Gloria Prosser, Marilyn Brown and Rita Findell.

After the tournament, a luncheon was held. The event also marked the start of the duties of the MWGA's new officers. They are Irene Harris (president), Betts (vice president), Stella Brooks (treasurer), Dottie Sullivan (recording secretary), Verne Smith (corresponding secretary) and Alice Potter (reporter).

'Canes survive again

MIAMI — For the second straight year, Miami pulled off a miracle victory over Florida State when the Seminoles missed a field goal in the closing seconds.

The second-ranked Hurricanes escaped with a 19-16 victory over the No. 3 Seminoles on Saturday when Dan Mowrey missed a 39-yard field goal attempt on the final play of the game.

It was eerily reminiscent of last year's game, which Miami won 17-16 when Florida State's Gerry Thomas missed a 34-yard field goal with 25 seconds remaining.

Miami (4-0) took a 17-16 lead on Gino Torretta's 33-yard touchdown pass to Lamar Thomas with 8:50 left and added a safety with 2:59 remaining.

Florida State (4-1) drove from its own 19 to the Miami 23 in the closing minutes and went for the tie, a tactic Seminoles coach Bobby Bowden has disdained in the past. But Mowrey's kick sailed wide right — just as Thomas' did last year — and the Hurricanes mobbed each other on the field.

It was Miami's seventh win in its last eight games against Florida State.

Clayton activated

MIAMI — Mark Clayton, a vital link in the Dolphins' aerial attack when it plays today in Buffalo, was taken off the injured reserves list Saturday and is scheduled to play.

Clayton, who tied with teammate Mark Duper in 70 catches last season, was activated in time for the crucial game, said Dolphins' spokesman Scott Stone.

Miami and Buffalo each enter the game undefeated. However, the Bills have won 10 of the last 11 games.

District race wide open

LM wins on Kuc's catch

By TONY BOGDANSKI
Herald Sports Editor

WINTER PARK — This time, it was Pete Kuc's turn.

In a season that's already seen a decade's worth of last-minute, game-winning plays, Kuc and teammate Jason Rasmussen authored the latest one, hooking up on a 67-yard touchdown pass play to lift the Lake Mary Rams to a 18-12 come-from-behind win over Lake Howell Friday night.

The win, combined with Lake Brantley's 37-7 win over Spruce Creek and Mainland's 17-14 victory over Lyman, puts Lake Mary (3-1 overall, 1-1 in 5A-District 4) and Lake Howell (1-3 overall, 1-1 in the district) in a six-way tie for second in the district race with Lake Brantley, Lyman, Oviedo and DeLand.

"We knew we this was a must-win situation for us," said Lake Mary coach Doug Peters. "If we lose tonight, we're playing for a berth in the Rotary Bowl."

Peters' fears were nearly realized as Lake Howell took a 12-7 lead on Chet King's 42-yard field goal with 3:26 left in the game.

Lake Mary got the ball back with plenty of time. But when the Rams were called for an illegal motion

Bucs' big quarter dooms 'Hounds

By DEAN SMITH
Herald Sports Writer

LONGWOOD — Sometimes one quarter is enough.

Fifty night at Lyman Stadium, the home-standing Greyhounds controlled the first three quarters of the game. The only problem is, a football game lasts four quarters.

The visiting Mainland Buccaneers took advantage of two Lyman fumbles and rallied for 17 fourth quarter points to defeat the Greyhounds 17-14 in a brutal 5A-District 4 football game.

"Let's just say we let one get away," said an obviously disappointed Larry Baker, head coach at Lyman. "The coach lost this one. It was poor play calling by the coach. I stress coach, not coaches. I'll take the blame for this one."

The win improved Mainland's record to 3-1 overall and 2-0 in the district race. The Greyhounds fell to 2-2 overall and 1-1 in the district. Next week the Buccaneers host DeLand while Lyman travels to Lake Howell in a battle to remain alive in the district title hunt.

Both teams were very opportunistic in this hard-hitting battle that featured 178 yards in penalties.

The Greyhounds were able to take a 14-0 lead despite only generating 71 yards of total offense, including just five yards rushing.

A blocked punt by Lyman's Mike Lyons, who had a big game on the defensive side of the ball, set up the Greyhounds on the Minland 10-yard line. On the first play after the block, quarterback Todd Cleveland swept around left end for the score. Bobby Washington's extra point made the score 7-0 with 8:50 left before intermission.

Oviedo dominates non-district battle

By RYAN ANDERSON

OVIDO — It was just like practice for Coach Jack Blanton and the Oviedo High School Lions Friday night: a light rain and a soaked football field.

Having grown accustomed to slogging around in the mud, the Lions took advantage of it in a 26-0 victory over the University Cougars in a non-conference non-district football game at John Courier Field.

"We were practicing in the rain all week, so I guess we were used to it," Blanton said. "I thought we did a good job staying in the game despite the weather. We just had more offense than they did."

The Lions jumped ahead on the fourth play of the game on a 60-yard touchdown run by Paul Bass. Joe Schuyler added the extra point, putting the Cougars down seven points with less than two minutes expired in the first quarter.

The Lions scored again on their first possession of the second quarter as Bass scored on a 65-yard pass play from Leon Lowman. Schuyler's extra point attempt was wide.

"I think the turning point of the game was the touchdown pass to Paul," Blanton said. "It gave us a little bit of breathing room and made everyone feel a little bit

Teamwork and strategy key locals' tourney win

By TONY BOGDANSKI
Herald Sports Editor

SANFORD — For the uninitiated, competitive fishing would depend more on luck than ability. And how complicated could team fishing tournaments be?

That shows what you don't know. Last month, Brenda Catrett and Frankie Dodson employed the most precise of teamwork and strategy to take first place in the Guys and Dolls U.S.A. Couples bass fishing championship on Winter Haven's Chain O'Lakes.

For catching 21.24 pounds of bass, Catrett and Dodson won a fully-outfitted 1992 Ranger bass boat, complete with a Johnson 150 outboard motor, a Johnson trolling motor and trailer, valued at $22,000.

That's over a $1,000 a pound. Nice catch.

According to Dodson, a cook at Sanford's Cattle Ranch Steak House, the victory was the result of DAYTONA BEACH — In this football contest devoid of suspense but not of comedy, the Lake Brantley cheerleaders provided halftime entertainment by playing stickball, highlighting a game that was as messy as the rainy weather.

Lake Brantley sloshed, slopped and slammed its way to 37-7 romping over the winless Spruce Creek Hawks Friday night at Daytona Beach Municipal Stadium, picking up a much needed 5A-District 4 victory in improving to 3-1 and 2-1 in the district.

"I was kind of concerned," said Lake Brantley head coach Fred Almon, whose team was coming off of a heart breaking double overtime loss to Lake Howell. "Spruce Creek has some good players. But, like I've said all along, our kids have a lot of heart."

Special to the Herald

SANFORD — Henry Johnson and Len Blalock rolled their way to the top of the Best American Sanford honor roll last week.

Johnson, competing with Maddell's Ladies, put together a 600 series to lead the women while McKean's 684, which came in San Bank league play, was the best three-game total among the men.

Maddell's Gentlemen backed up Johnson among Maddell's Ladies, rolling a 594.

Among the San Bank women Linda Stanford rolled a 591 while Dottie Blalock put together a 576.

The Sanford Finest were led by Marge O'Connell, who registered a 568, and the 550 effort of Myron Gotes.

Pam Wright scored a 476 to lead the Tuesday Swingers, four pins ahead of Charles Anderson, who notched a 472.

The top three series in the Best 90 City League were separated by 23 pins. Bernard Dudley leading the pack with a 653 while Ben Vangelier came in at 650 and Mark Whitley rolled a 630.

Only five pins marked the difference between the top three series of the Wednesday Ladies Handicap league. Clara James put together a three-game total of 495 to edge out the 493 posted by Barbara Landress and Esale Neary's 490.

Alex Serrano paced the Unprofessionals with his 642. Pete Campbell constructed a 627 while Bob Lake Jr. rolled in with a 610.

Dates and bag limits set for duck and coot season

During its Sept. 18 meeting at the Orlando International Airport Holiday Inn, the Florida Game and Fresh Water Fish Commission approved Florida's regular duck and coot hunting season dates. The dates, which differ from tentative information released to the public earlier, are: Phase One, Nov. 25-29; and Phase Two, Dec. 19-Jan. 12.

Duck hunting bag limits are the same as last year's — three ducks per day, including no more than one hen mallard, two wood ducks, two redheads, one black duck, one pintail, one Florida duck and one fulvous whistling duck. The daily bag limit for mergansers is five, including no more than one hooded merganser. The daily bag limit for coots is 15. There is no open season in Florida for canvasback ducks, harlequin ducks, brant or geese.

Also, based on information provided by staff wildlife biologists who indicated the bear population on the Ocala Wildlife Management area is incapable of supporting continued harvest, the Commission decided to discontinue bear hunting on that wildlife management area. The rest of Baker and Columbia counties and the Apalachicola Wildlife Management Area, however, have bear populations capable of supporting the current level of hunting pressure and will not be affected by the Commission's decision.

In other action, the Commission:

- Added 15,589 acres to the Northwest Florida Water Management District Type II Wildlife Management Area.
- Established lake restoration priorities for 1982-83.
- Recognized retired regional director J.O. Brown of Lakeland for 40 years of service. Wildlife Officer Thompson R. Sheares for 30 years of service and reemerge Vince Meagher for 23 years of volunteer service to the Commission.

SHUPE'S SCOOP

Surplus stores are great places to buy hunting clothes because many items are slightly used and can be purchased at greatly discounted prices.

FISHING FORECAST

Cooler weather has improved bass fishing slightly, but high water has made bass hard to find in the river. Fish slugs for the best action.

Sebastian Inlet still has plenty of snook, redfish, flounder, ladyfish, jack crevalle and trout.

High winds have kicked up the ocean, but the waters are calm west of the bridge. Live shrimp and finger mullet have been producing the best catches.

Captain Jack at Fort Casswell reports that very high seas have kept boats in port. Make sure to consult the marine forecast before planning a trip in the near future. Flounder and mangrove snapper are still biting finger mullet inside the Port. Guide Troy Peres reports great action with redfish and trout on the flats of the Banana and Indian Rivers. He is also seeing literally hundreds of redfish a day on the south end of Mosquito Lagoon.

Pease Inlet has been dangerously rough due to tropical depressions and high winds. It would be safer to plan a trip back in the river and fish for sheepshead around the many abandoned mariners and bridge pilings and fenders. Fiddler crabs and live shrimp make good baits for sheepshead.

fumble for the Rams to kill the drive.

Lake Mary, deciding to live or die by the pass offensively (the Rams gained just 19 yards rushing on 24 carries) at halftime, cut the lead to 9-7 when Kuc grabbed a 6-yard touchdown pass from Rasmussen 4:28 into the third quarter.

Rasmussen finished with 238 yards on 17-for-28 passing despite the steady rain. Kuc caught seven passes for 114 yards while Warner caught two for 50 yards as well as the two-point conversion.

Lake Howell quarterback Maurice Smith, who was intercepted twice by the Rams, led the Silver Hawk ground attack with 54 yards on nine carries. He had a 68-yard rush that set up Patkus' touchdown.

Both teams will play district and Seminole Athletic Conference opponents next Friday night. Lake Mary hosting Oriedo while Lake Howell will be celebrating its homecoming with a game against Lyman.

penalty on a third-and-six play with 2:06 remaining. It looked like Lake Mary had fallen into a hole too deep to climb out of.

As it turned out, the penalty gave the Rams the key to the success of the game-winning play.

"When we were called for the penalty, we saw that (Lake Howell defensive end) Trevor Howell was lined up on the right side and was taking an outside route (to the quarterback)," explained Peters. "So we ran a play where Jason rolled out away from Pryce."

That gave the Lake Mary receivers enough time to clear the zone, bringing the Lake Howell defensive backs with them, allowing Kuc to cut underneath and, after catching Rasmussen's pass near midfield, broke free thanks to a tremendous block by Mike Werner and went the distance untouched for the score.

Rasmussen then passed to Werner for the two-point conversion.

"Give Jason and Pete credit," said Peters. "They called the play in the huddle. That's the benefit of having a quarterback and his No. 1 receiver coming back for a second season."

Lake Howell coach Mike Biceglia was only to aware of the advantage that gave the Rams.

"We had some opportunities to score in the first half that we didn't take advantage of," said Biceglia, shaking his head. "Turnovers killed us. We're real young on offense and it showed. But we'll be back next week. These kids aren't quitters."

The Silver Hawks took a 9-0 lead on their first two possessions as Jackson Patkus scored on a 1-yard run and King kicked a 31 field goal. They had a chance to put the game away, driving to the Lake Mary 9-yard line on their third possession. But Paul Clayton recovered a touchdowns while passing for another in a gutsy performance after jamming his neck in the first quarter. Jeff Butler also ran for 99 yards with two touchdowns.

"Show needs the confidence," said Lake Brantley head coach Fred Almon. "That's why we kept him in there. Remember, this was only his fourth game as quarterback."

Show scampered 76 yards for the first strike in the opening quarter, and broke a 7-7 tie with a 28 yard second quarter score. With 0:26 remaining in the first half, in one of the game's amusing moments, his attempted touchdown pass to Chris Gray in double coverage was deflected and caught by teammate Keith Clarke in the end zone.

The game also featured four first quarter turnovers, a second quarter Patriot quick-punt that trapped Spruce Creek with too many men on the field, seven Patriot fumbles with six recov-

Spruce Creek could muster only 19 yards on the ground against a swarming Patriot defense that forced two flet half turnovers and added the final two points when Daryl Bush sacked quarterback Tracy Holmes in the end zone.

John Thomas, the No. 4 rusher in Volusia County, was silenced with only nine yards on 12 carries. But the Patriots did surrender 133 yards and one touchdown in the air.

"We stopped the run well tonight, but we've got to work on the pass," said Lake Brantley head coach Fred Almon. "Our district is well balanced. Mainland's got the best team on paper, and we play them in two weeks. I know Mainland likes to air it out. They can really put some points up."

Lyman

On the next series Lyman mounted its only drive of the night, taking the ball 80 yards on nine plays for the touchdown. Two big pass plays, one for 33 yards to Dewayne Bell and the other for 17 yards to Shawn Ready, set up Cleveland's four-yard run around the right. Washington tackled on the extra point, making the score 14-0 with 0:54 left before half.

Neither team was able to get much going in the third quarter, but a fumble by the Greyhounds gave the Bucs the ball at the Lyman 23 with less than a minute to play in the third quarter.

Three plays later Antwan Wyatt blasted in from the five to get Mainland on the board with 11:27 left in the game. Jetae Johnson's extra point made the score 14-7.

Lyman was unable to move the ball on its next possession, but, after the punt, a Dewayne Bell interception appeared to give the Greyhounds a break.

But Lyman fumbled the ball right back to the Buccaneers on the 31 yard line. Eight plays later Wyatt again pushed the ball in from the three with 5:23 remaining. Johnson's extra point attempt hit the left upright squarely, but the ball fell through for the point and a 14-14 tie.

After the kickoff, three plays netted Lyman a minus-11 yards. Mike Krupa's punt got the ball out to the 50, but a personal foul call against the advanced planning and practice.

"We found a spot before hand," said Dodson. "I made sure we could find it by using landmarks and lining them up with other landmarks. On both days, we were able to find the spot almost immediately."

"On the first day, we caught five fish fairly early. But rather than spend the rest of the day trying to improve on them and risk being spotted there by another boat, we decided to spend the rest of the day going around the rest of the lakes."

Dodson and Catrett came in with 12.7 pounds the first day, good for 13th. On the second day, they returned to their spot and hooked five bass totaling 8.4 pounds. The fifth fish, the one Dodson said clinched the championship for them, came an hour before the deadline.

"We had five in the boat, but we were going to make one last attempt to improve on their weight before we headed in," said Dodson. "I made a long cast and was slowly reeling it in when I saw Brenda's line jump. She saw it too and when the time was right, she set the hook."

"While she was setting the hook, I brought in my line as quickly and as quietly as I could, put my pole down and got the net ready. As soon as Brenda got the fish near the boat, I slid the net under it. When I saw the fish, I knew we had the tournament won."

Dodson said that the worst he and Catrett finished in the five tournaments was 22nd. In the other four, they finished in the money.

According to Catrett, 34, an air conditioning technician for the Seminole County School Board, she and Dodson fish against each other in the monthly tournaments at the Osteen Bridge Fish Camp.

"We fish together five times and year and against each other the rest of the year," said Catrett, who moved to DeBary three years ago from Pennsylvania.

As far as "custody" of the prize, Catrett explained that she is giving Dodson for her old boat and cash in exchange for the new boat, a decision that thrilled the sponsors of the tournament.

"All the boats that have ever been won in the tournament in the past have been sold almost right away," said Catrett, who has been fishing competitively for six years. "Frankie and I made a deal. We're going to fish out of this one together at the tournament next year. This will be the first championship boat to return to the tournament."

Dodson said that Catrett made it perfectly clear she expects to return to the championship tournament next year.

"She laid down the law," said Dodson with a laugh. "She said I will fish in all five of the preliminary tournaments with her next year, no exceptions."

MIAMI — A $13 million amphitheater for acts ranging from the circus to the ballet will be built here and run by a partnership that includes Blackbutter Entertainment chairman Wayne Huisenga.

The facility, slated to open by Christmas 1983, will be built on 14 acres in Tammami Park. It will have 7,400 seats under a huge canopy and space for 12,000 more on a lawn in the rear. Dade County Youth Fair authorities announced Tuesday.

Fair administrators have been searching for a theater builder since 1980, when county commissioners approved a park development plan.

The partnership operating the facility includes Huisenga, who also owns the Florida Marlins, and Broadway producer Zev Sulfman.

Promoters agreed to hold at least 30 ballet, opera, symphony and Broadway shows a year, fair authorities said.

Grace president J.P. Bulduc said the specialty chemicals company recognizes substance abuse as "a possible threat to all of us" and said the policy is another example of the company's commitment to its employees.

MIAMI — Florida has a black-owned bank once again.

Peoples National Bank was founded as a black-owned bank but was taken over by the defunct Southeast Bank when it reorganized as Peoples National Bank.

A group of South Florida businessmen led by Garth Reeves Sr., publisher of The Miami Times, a black community newspaper, closed Tuesday on its $1.7 million purchase of bank stock from the Federal Deposit Insurance Corp., which took over Southeast.

Other major investors are Hollywood Ford owner William Armstrong, Peoples president Thaddeus Wilcox and contractor Wayman Adkins.

Six banks loaned the investors 25 percent of the purchase price to acquire Peoples Bank, which has $22 million in deposits.

'Street of Dreams' showcases homes

ORLANDO — When Maroon Development Inc. (MDI) introduces its luxurious Pine Valley residence in this fall's "Street of Dreams" showcase at Gary Player's country club community of Alafia, visitors touring the home might be surprised to discover it's not the million-dollar mansion of some celebrity on television's "Lives of the Rich and Famous."

Although the palatial Pine Valley will be adorned with a wealth of sumptuous trappings and enjoy a prestigious address along the 12th fairway of this upscale community's golf course, it will carry a rather modest $790,000 price tag.

The 5,462-square-foot, two-story residence with four bedrooms, four full baths and three half baths will be one of eight homes in Central Florida's inaugural "Street of Dreams," a six-week event that opens Oct. 24.

The nation's premier showcase of luxury homes displaying the latest in architectural design, interior decor, and landscaping, the "Street of Dreams" has been held in more than 35 U.S. cities since 1986, typically drawing more than 50,000 visitors according to its producer, Street of Dreams, Inc. of Seattle, Wash.

City can save millions in bonds

By BOB PEPERMAN
Herald Staff Writer

SANFORD — The city has managed to get state approval for $8.5 million that may eliminate many outstanding bonds. City Manager Bill Simmons said it will save the city millions in interest payments.

Various bonds purchased by the City of Sanford during the past years, still have 30 to 30 years of payments left. "I went to Tallahassee and talked with the State and DEB people," said Simmons, "and ended up getting approval from the State for $8.5 million, which will help us retire many of the bonds the City has purchased during the past years."

"The state has these loans available to municipalities for this purpose," he explained, "and when I went up there, I was planning on obtaining a much lesser amount, but when I asked for more, they looked and found Sanford was third on the waiting list."

He continued, "But when they looked at the list, they found the other two cities did not have the proper request papers filed out, so we ended up getting an additional amount."

Simmons added, "The loan from the state probably won't be consummated until possibly February of 1983, and in the meantime, we will have plenty of paperwork to do, in order to determine the way we will handle the money."

"The various bonds we have now, have a different interest rates," Simmons said. "They range from 6 1/2 to 7 percent. With the refinancing we hope to get from this state loan, we expect we can have interest rates from 3 to 3 1/2 percent, which, over the next several decades, could save the City possibly a total of $13 million in interest rates."

Simmons said it is similar to a homeowner obtaining money from one lending institution to refinance a home loan from another institution, in order to obtain a lower interest rate.

He added, "I believe we will be able to retire a number of bonds taken out in 1966, such as those for the utility treatment plant, reclaimed water discharge system, irrigation of the Mayfair golf course, and some other projects."

"We may also be able to retire bonds taken out in 1969 which were used for the development of Site 10, east of Sanford, where we are installing our wastewater discharge lines."

Simmons said the final details of the entire project still remain to be worked out. "But in the end," he said, "this will really save a great deal of money for the city, not only this year, but for many years in the future."

"I was very pleased with cooperation I received in getting this refinancing," Simmons said, especially from the Florida Department of Environmental Regulation."

Simmons plans to report on the state loan approval at the next regularly scheduled meeting of the Sanford City Commission, on Oct. 12.

Southland to close 3 distribution centers

By JAY JOHNSON
Associated Press Writer

DALLAS — Southland Corp., parent of 7-Eleven stores, announced Wednesday it will close three distribution and food centers, including one in Orlando, Fla., idling a total of 1,100 workers.

Southland said the closures, along with a sale of distribution and food center assets, are part of a move to leave the distribution business.

The company said it will sell two of its five distribution facilities and three of its six food centers to McLane Co. Inc.

The Dallas-based Southland said the Tyler distribution and food center, which employs 470 people, and the Orlando distribution center, with 390 workers, would close Nov. 30, when the sale is expected to be completed.

A third center in Champaign, Ill., which employs 285 people would stay in operation for up to five months longer, until a new facility by McLane is in operation there, said Marqueta McNatt, Southland spokeswoman.

She said the sales were outlined last month. Terms of the transaction were not announced. "We need a much larger distribution network to service our stores," she said.

When the deal is completed in November, McLane will provide wholesale distribution services to 6,000 7-Eleven stores across the country.

McLane will acquire Southland's food and distribution centers in Fredericksburg, Va.; its distribution center in San Bernardino, Calif.; and food

SPD names Cohen employee of month

By Bob Freeman
Herald Correspondent

SANFORD — Martha Cohen wears a combination of hats at the Sanford Police Department, not the least of which is that of employee of the month.

Martha, who has been employed with the City of Sanford since 1980, originally began her career as a clerical assistant and evolved to her current position, that of Police Department Communication Supervisor. Her job duties include being the first line supervisor overseeing the communications and records sections of the department.

Her job is a high stress one, in that lives frequently hang in the balance while she directs appropriate emergency assistance to the caller. Martha has performed her duties in such an exemplary fashion that a number of police supervisors have written letters of commendation regarding her performance.

Aside from her duties in communication, Martha also serves as the Police Chief's secretary when that position is vacant by reason of vacation or illness. The best thing about her, say her superiors, aside from her vast knowledge and expertise is her willing and helpful attitude and demeanor.

Club sponsors fishing trip for Sanford Boys and Girls

By KELLEY MITCHELL
Herald Staff Writer

SANFORD — In the wee hours of the morning, before the birds rose to break the silence of a new day, 11 young men from the West Sanford Boys and Girls Club were anxiously anticipating their excursion.

The youngsters, ranging in ages from 8 to 15, met members of the Oviedo Bass Club at Mullet Lake Park, in Geneva, for a day-long fishing trip. As the youths suited up in their life jackets, the fishing stories began.

"I'm going to catch the biggest," said one young man. "I'm going to catch the most," another voice resounded.

The excitement and anticipation of the days catch filled their heads as they headed out into the open waters of Mullet Lake.

"Some of these boys would not have the opportunity to do these types of things without clubs like the Oviedo Bass Club," according to Don Miller, director of Seminole county Boys and Girls Clubs in Midway, Sanford, and East Altamonte Springs. "This is the third time we've brought the boys out here to go on fishing trips with the club, last time it was the Midway club," Miller said. "They enjoy every minute of it."

Musicians wanted to play in Golden Rule Concert Band

By Bob Freeman
Herald Correspondent

SANFORD — If you've always had an urge to play the tuba, now's your chance.

Dick Ryther, a retired Navy musician and Sanford resident, is forming a band, and he just may be looking for you. Everything from meeting new people and enhancing your self-esteem, to helping your lungs, contributing to your community and possibly even improving your love life awaits you when you show up at rehearsal, Ryther said.

"We're not looking for virtuosos," Ryther said. "Just regular folks who enjoy performing with a band." Ryther adds that he welcomes musicians of any and all caliber.

Be you a retiree, high school, college student, and even if you haven't played in a while, you're welcome to volunteer to be a part of Ryther's The Golden Rule Concert Band. Brass and reed instruments are particularly needed, as well as flute and percussion devotees.

Ryther, whose musical roots go way back, retired to Sanford in 1987 after a 20-year stint in the Navy as a musician. Following graduation from the Navy School of music basic course, Ryther performed many types of band music, including concert, stage, Dixieland and small combo. He kept abreast of musical developments by taking refresher courses in Washington, D.C. and Norfolk, VA. Before and after his Naval career, he performed with traveling dance bands in the Midwestern U.S.

"Folks who have musical instruments and haven't played in a while should do some practicing at home and then come and join us for the Monday night rehearsal at First Presbyterian Church in Sanford, from 7:30 to 9:00 p.m.," Ryther said.

Ryther, who hadn't played himself in three years, was encouraged to start a local concert band by the choir director and organist at his church, Mrs. Nancy Long.

Now that he's back in the swing of things, Ryther projects great things for the volunteer band he's trying to form, saying it need not be limited to playing only locally, but could perform in other parts of the county, as well.

First of all, however, he needs volunteers, and said it's easy to either pick up playing an instrument or to start with a brand new one.

"Making music requires that you turn only two knobs," Ryther said, "the one on the door and the one on the television set."

Fashions usher in fall season

Fashions with a flair had a field day Sept. 25 at a festive fall fete at the First United Methodist Church. The fashion show, including a salad luncheon, drew about 140 patrons.

In addition to the luncheon, local businesses provided a variety of door prizes, ranging from flowers to a number of gift certificates.

Joining the local models were Teressa Ann Briggs, Altamonte Springs, and her sister, Mary Ann Briggs of Sanford, both professional models and daughters of Mari and Robert Briggs.

Providing the fashions were Lois' Place, Down the Way, Knight's Shoe Store and Forever Fashion. Lois Dyeus was the fashion commentator and emcee, assisted by Debbie Reek. Gennie Ryan was the fashion show chairman.

It was Libby Veltoline's birthday and the slim black fitted jumpsuit with a sheer white and black dot top that she modeled was a surprise birthday gift to her. Libby also modeled a flouncy, black short after-five frock.

Lori Hartsook was modeling in a two-piece, long-sleeved outfit featuring a slim black skirt and a strapless fitted top. A wide drop shoulder band of white was caught with a series of large bow bows in the front.

One of the outfits that the reserved Pamela Hale modeled

Other models showed a variety of pretty dressy frocks and fashionable casual clothing. They included: Margaret Fontaine, Edith Canfield, Cindy Gullies, Hazel Cash, Martha Stevens, Margie Thompson, Carole Pagram, Phyllis Kitzer and this writer.

Overall chairman was Sharon Butler, president of the church's United Methodist Women. All circles participated.

Fashionscape coming

Speaking of fashions, another fashion spectacular is coming your way on Oct. 8, from 11 a.m. to 1:30 p.m. in Magnolia Mall. This event, Fashionscape, is co-sponsored by the St. Lucia Festival and the Sanford Historic Downtown Waterfront Association.

Unique Boutique

The Women's Club of Sanford is gearing up for Unique Boutique, a fall bazaar featuring a variety of crafts, flea market items and baked goods. The boutique will be held on Saturday, Aug. 17, from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m., at the clubhouse, 309 S. Oak Ave. Also, a luncheon of hot dogs will be served, beginning at 11:30 a.m.

According to Mary Childers, chairman, clubwomen will provide the baked goods. Members are asked to bring their flea items to the clubhouse on Thursday, Oct. 15, from 9 a.m. to 1 p.m.

Lions rear over success

For years, the Sanford Lions Club has sponsored a spaghetti dinner and bingo to benefit the Lions' sight program.

And this year was no different. As usual, we wouldn't have missed the big night for the world. It is always a lot of fun seeing who shows up for the dinner followed by playing a few rounds of bingo.

Lions Club members were slaving as diligently as bees to keep things humming smoothly and to accommodate the 975 patrons attending.

Two couples who make the annual rounds together are Annette and Dr. Kenneth Wing and Loretta and Sally Fleming.

At the bingo tables, Bill McLaughlin was having a good time calling the games while Katherine Dougherty seemed to be having a good time helping her husband, Dr. Richard Dougherty.

A number of other Lion Ladies, as well as Lion Gentlemen, were on hand to help their spouses.

It doesn't seem like nearly 25 years ago that Ballet Guild of Sanford-Seminole was chartered. The fledgling dance company was definitely a shot in the cultural arm of the community.

Hundreds of dancers have gotten their start with the company, founded by Miriam Rye Doktor and Valerie Rye Weid. We understand that big things are being planned for the guild's silver anniversary in a few months.

Saturday, the 1992-93 dancers, parents, board members and former board members met to kick off the season with a buffet luncheon at Lake Monroe Inn. Included in the food, fun and festivity was the signing of the new contracts. From all Stan King, president of the 30 member club, which was formed two years ago, approached later the beginning of the year with the idea of helping out.

"After the group decided they wanted to become active in the community, a friend of mine mentioned Dan Miller's name," King said. "Dan welcomed our help and we agreed to take the guys fishing as often as we could."

The sponsors who help make the outing possible are Park Square Enterprises, Southern Landscaping, King & Sorg Electric and Crazy Wings.

"We encourage other businesses to donate what they can to help us to continue doing this for the kids," said King.

Besides the fishing trips, the club has also adopted a two-mile stretch of State Road 46 near Geneva in the county's Adopt-A-Road project. They clean up their stretch of highway after the fishing excursions with the Boys and Girls Clubs.

After a few hours in the summer sun the boats began to return to the dock for a well-earned picnic lunch. The hot, tired and disappointed youths trudged to the tables still talking about the best rides and takes of the ones that got away.

But there was one success story.

Willie Burke, of Sanford, brought home the catch of the day with his two small keepers. Even though they were too small to cook, he was still proud of his accomplishment.

When all was said and done, the bass club members presented certificates and trophies to Lorenzo Tillman, Reginald Jones, Marshall Holloway, Larnell Payson, Myron Jones, Steve Charles, Curtis Black, Corey Young, Demetrius Turner, Robert "J.R." Young and Willie Burke, for their participation in the day.

Club members who donated their time and boats include: Monty May, Rick Woodley, Dennis Crooke, Stan King, Loren Sherrod, Pat Holt, David Caffery, Mike Munary, Rodney Pacemyer and Kevin Carran.

Larwood DeLaw, coordinator of the Midway Boys and Girls Club, at Midway Elementary School, helped transport the youths to the park and enjoyed dubbing a fishing pole along with the club.

Kid's hair causes family feud

DEAR ABBY: Last week, my husband and I left for vacation. We left our son, "Cary" (age 8), with his great-grandmother, who has been taking care of him since he was born. She considers him "her" child, which has never bothered me until now.

Cary has always had hair that was longer than what some people might consider appropriate for a boy. The length of his hair has never bothered him, and he has never asked us to cut it short. But "Gramma" always thought it should be shorter so he wouldn't look like "a little girl."

Well, this time we didn't have time to get it cut before we left town. And when we got back, we were shocked to discover that Gramma had cut it for us! (This isn't the first time she's cut his hair behind our backs.) It finally came down to all of us being very upset with each other, and my husband and I deciding we would no longer entrust Gramma with the overnight care of our son.

I hate fighting with her over this, but I need to know if you think we were wrong. Are we justified in being upset — or do you think we are turning a piddling situation into a major mess?

She reads your column and respects your answers. Please help us out. We don't want a family fight on our hands.

ELLEN'S BROTHER

DEAR MOTHER: I think you are turning a piddling situation into a major mess. Cary's hair will grow. And since Gramma has done this before, you should not have made such a fuss about it.

DEAR ABBY: A few weeks ago, I loaned one of my favorite books to a friend.

When she returned it, the cover had been badly torn and taped together. She didn't even apologize.

Perhaps I was wrong to be so upset over this, but the next time she asks to borrow a book from me, what should I say?

A LOYAL FAN

DEAR FAN: Say, "After you returned the last book I let you read and I saw how badly it had been abused, I promised myself that I would not lend you another." Period.

to the City of Sanford," said Police Chief Steven D. Harriett.

"I enjoy helping people," Martha says. "Whether it be the victims of the crime, or somebody needing rescue or assistance, there is a lot of satisfaction in going home and knowing that maybe you have made a difference."

Police work is something she was always interested in, she says, but waited to pursue until her children were no longer small. With two cousins and an uncle, now deceased, all involved in police work, she was steeped in it as a child and knew it would be the career she would ultimately pursue. After working both in the insurance industry and for the Clerk of the Court, her chance finally came 12 years ago.

Martha has no problem remembering the most harrowing call of her career, because the call was "officer down." Two officers responded to a call thought to be a routing burglary alarm and walked into an armed robbery, she said. Sergeant Ron Nance was shot by one of the suspects, who have never been apprehended.

"You just respond," she says of the experience, "and the night just seems to move mechanically." Martha immediately made calls for assistance and happily Sergeant Nance recovered.

Some of the calls she has responded to over the years involve burglaries, drownings, and even fatal shootings, she says, such as the one where a juvenile accidentally shot a friend. Martha spent a traumatic period on the phone with the mother of the juvenile who did the shooting, she says, and the victim ultimately died from his wounds.

She has only the most flattering things to say about her co-workers and superiors, calling the Sanford Police Department a special place with special people. Born and raised in Sanford, she says that police work is such that 'once you get into it, she says, you either love it or hate it."

A particular highlight of her job, she says, is the daily calls she and other communications personnel make to elderly residents of Sanford who are without family.

"We call them every day and they are such a joy," she says. When they are unable to call, an officer is dispatched to check on the elderly residents.

"One lady in particular is just a lovely person and she is an artist. Frequently, she sends artwork to us via the mail, perhaps a likeness of an officer who came by to check on her or something she has seen," Martha says. "Sometimes, she sends them directly to the Chief, but we always pass them around and share them."

Martha supervises two records technicians in her job, and oversees 12 communications operators when fully staffed. While it sounds like a lot of responsibility, it is hardly even work to her.

"This is where I hope to be the rest of my working career," she says.

appearances, they're raring to go!

Love thy neighbor

Kay Bartholomew and Sylvia and Howard McNulty, now of Orlando, recently went to Jacksonville to attend the christening of their granddaughters, Kalle, 2½, and Shannon, 5 months.

The children are the daughters of Kay's son, Scott, and the McNultys' daughter, Laurie. Scott and Laurie grew up together in Lake Mary when the two families were next-door neighbors. But Laurie was just the girl next door to Scott until after they both were in college and things took a serious turn. And you know the rest.

High school report

LMHS runners are ready for the year

LAKE MARY — Despite the loss of its top senior runners who graduated, the Lake Mary boys cross country team has become a perennial power.

According to Coach Willie Calloway, the 1992 season was supposed to be a rebuilding year.

D.J. Lewis, who made the high school state honor roll, graduated this past June. Of the current 25 varsity and junior varsity runners only a handful are veterans.

"We weren't supposed to be a contender this year. By the second meet we had already established ourselves as a contender. My guys have matured early," said Calloway.

What the boys' coach means by "maturing" is that each team member improves at every meet. As long as they mature and do their best every time they race, Calloway is "satisfied with wherever they finish."

Right now, the team's goals are to do well at Regionals and, for the fourth consecutive year, qualify for State.

For the past three years, they have placed sixth twice and ninth in 1991.

The team's most formidable opponents in the county are Lyman and Lake Brantley.

Calloway hopes to overtake them at the Seminole Athletic Conference meet and also at the regional level. After that, it's on to state.

Contributing the most to their success is what Calloway calls a winning combination.

"My guys have worked hard. They love to work out and they hate to lose," he said.

He is also pleased with the number of quality runners and of the team's "family environment."

The nucleus of the team, the varsity runners, consists of seniors Johan Almgren, Steve Platt and Chris Taylor; Juniors Toby Ayers, Jeremy Baxier, Alex Bohon, Dave King and Jon Martin and sophomores Kami Burnette, Aren Cook and Rich Heinsman.

Teachers love it at Seminole High

SANFORD — The halls of Seminole High School harbor nearly eighteen hundred students a day and within each individual there is a desire for knowledge.

The challenge to quench this desire is up to the faculty.

The faculty, made up of new and experienced teachers, believes there is promise in every student, but each must meet the challenge half-way if anything is to be accomplished.

A couple of new faces to the SHS faculty are Bill Caughell and Bob Trains.

Besides both being teachers, they also serve as varsity coaches.

Trains, who was dean of students at Martin County High School in Stuart is teaching math and coaching boys' varsity basketball. He said he is happy to have the opportunity to teach and is also excited about coaching some of the great athletes at Seminole.

Coming from Lake Mary where he primarily taught physical science, Caughell said, "the transition has been great."

He is now teaching economics and is on the varsity football staff.

"I'm delighted to have the opportunity to coach the top-ranked defense in Central Florida and possibly make a run for the state title," he said.

Caughell is even more excited about moving to Seminole because he has the opportunity to be the head coach of the wrestling team. In the classroom, he said, things have also been very uplifting.

"The students are fantastic and I enjoy the faculty," he said.

"I have the five best classes and I wouldn't trade them with any teacher in Seminole County," Mr. (Whitey) Eckstien, a very experienced and knowledgeable teacher, said.

Eckstien believes that students of today are more concerned about current issues.

Oviedo High promotes art in community

By Vicki DeSormier
Herald Staff Writer

OVIDEO — Oviedo High School is trying to bring art to the community in an active way.

Classes for adults and young children are being offered by teachers and even students at the school.

"We are trying to make the community advocates for the arts by involving them in arts activities," said Pam Coffman, an art instructor at the high school. "If they see what goes on in the classroom and they are involved in creating their own artwork, they are more likely to be supporters of the arts."

A pair of evening classes in clay and papermaking as well as black and white photography are being taught two evenings a week for adults who are interested in expanding their artistic horizons.

The classes, which are designed as fundraisers for the school's art program, are sponsored by the Parent Teacher Student Association (PTSA).

Though they have not filled to capacity, Coffman said they have proved very popular with the community.

She said that those who want to sign up for either program can register at this week's classes.

The clay and handmade paper class meets on Tuesdays from 7 to 9 p.m. The photography class meets on Wednesdays from 7 to 9 p.m.

The cost of each class is $40, plus the cost of materials, which is about $25.

On Saturday morning, Oct. 24 from 9 a.m. to 1 p.m. Coffman and members of the art club will teach a mask-making class to children between the ages of five and 10 years old.

In addition to mask-making, there will be games and other art activities.

Pre-registration for the class is required. The cost is $10 each and participants are asked to bring their own bag lunch.

The money raised in that class will also be used to purchase equipment for the art department.

"I don't like candy sales," Coffman said. "I like the kids to be involved in art and get others doing it too."

Knew Your School: Midway Elementary School

SANFORD — Midway Elementary School has been at the heart of the Midway community for generations.

Now it hopes to be better able to serve the community as a Full-Service School with the help of a grant from the state and the support of the community.

Though the school is located in a neighborhood that is financially poor, they are rich in their support of the school and its programs, principal Maime Bingham said.

"They work with us when they can on helping to make the educational experience a good one for their children," Bingham said. "Many of our parents are very involved in their children's education."

The school is working with state and local officials to be sure that all of the families' other needs are taken care of so that there can be more of an emphasis placed on the education of the next generation.

As a full service school, a health clinic is being built on the school's campus. The clinic will be staffed by Seminole County Health Department personnel.

There will be periodic visits to the school by representatives from government assistance programs to be sure that residents of the community, whether or not they have children at the school.

"If we can take care of their needs at home and in the community it makes it easier to involve both the students and the parents in learning."

The school offers reading and math labs for the students who need remedial work in those subjects. On the other end of the spectrum there are programs for gifted students as well as accelerated students.

There are no suspensions at Midway. Students, instead, are placed in the Pride Room where they have an opportunity to continue with their academic responsibilities as well as having motivational speakers who talk to them about goal setting and decision making.

"We have a very special school," Bingham said.
