Garbage issue goes to court

SANFORD — Seminole County residents who are being charged for garbage collection through their property taxes may be part of a class action suit against the county commissioners. Seminole Circuit Court Judge Seymour Benson ruled Tuesday that a civil suit filed by Ernest and Jessie R. Whitaker against the county, the commissioners and tax collector could be amended as a class action. However, because of the Constitutional issues involved, Judge Benson denied the plaintiffs' motion for summary judgment saying the matter should go to trial. A June trial date may be set.

Parents file suit against FPC

SANFORD — An Altamonte Springs couple whose 7-year-old son was electrocuted after he climbed on an electric transformer last month have sued Florida Power Corporation claiming the power station fence did not meet state code.

The power station is surrounded by a 7-foot fence except for a 6-foot gate section not topped by barbed wire. An attorney representing plaintiffs, Lori and Thomas Carter, contends the entire fence should have been seven feet high or topped with three rows of barbed wire. The Carters' son, Michael, climbed the gate and was electrocuted by about 7,200 volts when he apparently touched an insulated coil. The Carters contend the power company should have been aware of the danger because neighbors had reported children climbing the fence in the past.

Rash of robberies

Crime spree may have ended with more arrests

By NICK PFEIFAUF
Herald Staff Writer

SANFORD — Police say the recent rash of armed robberies targeting Sanford businesses may be over with arrests Tuesday of three more persons.

Police are still searching for one more individual in connection with the robberies.

Last Wednesday, Sanford police arrested Travis Jerome Williams, 17, of 1703 W. 15th Street and Joshua Titus Morris, 15, of 1603 Roundtree. While there have been as many as a half dozen similar armed robberies in Sanford during the past few weeks, the teens were only charged in connection with robberies at Sobiks Sub Shop on Airport Boulevard, and Pants USA on S. Orlando Drive.

At the time, police investigators said they had suspicions that the other robberies may have been committed by other persons, although in almost all cases, dark colored ski masks were used, and a small caliber handgun was indicated.

Tuesday, police arrested three more persons. Mario L. Sutton, 21, 812 Lincoln Avenue, Tyrone L. McQueen, 21, 210 Yale Avenue, and Anglish E. Morgan, 22, of 810 Lincoln Avenue, were taken into custody.

Police Cmdr. Dennis Whitmire said all three of the men arrested yesterday are believed to be

Cincinnati Bell will relocate from Maitland to Heathrow

By SANDRA ELLIOTT
Herald Staff Writer

SANFORD — Seminole County Commissioners put out a $550,000 "Welcome Mat" Tuesday to help convince Cincinnati Bell Information Systems Inc. to move from Maitland Center to Heathrow International Business Center.

The economic-incentive money is to be used for permit and impact fees on the $32.5 million office building and associated data processing center. The proposed buildings will be owned by Pizzuti Development Inc. and leased to Cincinnati Bell for 15 years with the option to extend the lease to 35 years.

Cincinnati Bell has about 650 employees in two buildings in Maitland Center located in Orange County. The Heathrow complex would consist of a 125,000-square-foot office facility and a 60,000-square-foot state of the art computer data center.

The county staff estimates the annual property taxes on the complex would generate $607,000, representing a one-year recovery of the incentive funds.

Steven J. Suter, Cincinnati Bell corporate facilities director, said about 200 new jobs may be created within five years.

Codes, police calls at Florida Hotel

By NICK PFEIFAUF
Herald Staff Writer

SANFORD — Police and code officials updated Sanford commissioners on problems associated with the Florida Hotel this week in the wake of separate pleas by neighbors and the chamber's tourism committee to do something about the boarding house.

During the commission work session Monday afternoon, City Manager Bill Simmons gave the commissioners a report on progress being made in having the old hotel at 500 S. Oak Ave. refurbished and improved to correct a number of code violations which have been discussed for several months at various commission meetings.

"I met with the owners about a week and a half ago," Simmons said, "and we'll be meeting again this week. I know some progress has been made as the owners said two tenants who were said to be troublesome, had been asked to move out."

Simmons said the Sanford Police Department has been instructed to have police units in the area of the hotel periodically.

Neighbors of the boarding house have complained recently about criminal activity around a building

Clues sought in double murder

PORT CHARLOTTE — Investigators are searching for clues in a three-day-old double murder near a popular fishing spot in rural Charlotte County.

A fisherman Monday discovered the body of a woman in her mid-20s on a dirt path less than two miles from the Charlotte County Rangers training facility.

The second body, a man, also in his mid-20s, was discovered about six hours later as Charlotte County sheriff's deputies worked the crime scene, according to sheriff's spokesman Chuck Ellis.

"The body was about 15 yards away, in an area obscured from their view during the initial search," Ellis said.

Both victims were fully clothed. Officials have identified the man, but are not releasing his name until his family has been notified. The woman has not been identified, Ellis said.

Autopsies were scheduled for today.

The deaths marked the second double homicide in two weeks in Charlotte County. Last year, the county recorded only five slayings.

"Four murders in two weeks is a big deal here," Ellis said.

Foster care case re-opened

MIAMI — Lawyers for the state have told a federal judge that he has no jurisdiction over foster care in Florida and should dismiss a class-action lawsuit filed on behalf of children in the state's foster care system.

U.S. District Judge James W. Kehoe said he would rule as soon as possible on the state's request, but could not do so immediately.

A lawsuit filed in October 1980 by Miami attorney Karen Giviera has been dormant since January 1988. At that time Giviera agreed to suspend the legal action for three years to give Gov. Lawton Chiles and the Department of Health and Rehabilitative Services time to make improvements in the foster care system.

But Giviera doesn't think the state has lived up to those 1982 commitments to improve its foster care services.

Two weeks ago, she returned to court with a motion to reactivate the suit and to stop the state from gaining custody of any more children, and Kehoe set a trial date for Feb. 27.

The issue of how foster care children are treated is "a matter for the state and the state's Legislature," Jason Vail, an assistant attorney general representing HRS, told Kehoe during Tuesday's hearing.

Giviera, in turn, argued that the average length of stay for Florida children in foster care has gotten longer since 1982 — not shorter.

"This is not about federalism, it's about children," she said.

Suit filed in low-income housing cases

LEESBURG — A judge has granted class-action status in a federal lawsuit charging the city and a hospital with discrimination in condemnation of housing in black neighborhoods for hospital expansion.

Trial is expected this fall in the suit by the Lake County chapter of the NAACP and 12 individuals accusing this central Florida city and Leesburg Regional Medical Center of conspiring to destroy the low-income Pine Street neighborhood.

U.S. District Judge Harvey Schlesinger ruled that residents in three other parts of Leesburg where housing had been torn down also would be eligible for damages — if any are awarded.

The ruling covers black Leesburg residents who have "suffered injury" because of discrimination in enforcement of building and zoning codes and the administration of federal housing assistance funds.

Last November, Schlesinger rejected a request from the defendants to dismiss the lawsuit and turned down the city's request to dismiss the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People as a plaintiff.

The city denies any wrongdoing.

Field trip to California canceled

TALLAHASSEE — State education officials have canceled a California trip to check out charter schools after House Speaker Peter Wallace turned down a travel request for a lawmaker.

Charter schools can be set up at businesses, museums, universities or other places. Enrollment is voluntary. Public dollars that normally would be spent on a traditional school setting would follow students to charter schools.

"It was evaluated by the Speaker's office and we concluded that this was not an appropriate travel expense," Wallace spokeswoman Jill Chamberlin said.

At least three members of new Education Commissioner Frank Brogan's staff and up to a half dozen legislators had planned to make the California trip at a time state agencies are being asked to cut 25 percent from their budgets.

'Well-dressed' Cubans make landfall

By JAMES MARTIN
Associated Press Writer

MANABOTA BEACH — They waded ashore with freshly shaved faces, trimmed hair and not even a hint of sunburn.

As soon as the Cuban refugees made landfall on this Gulf Coast beach, they unloaded their luggage from rubber rafts and some changed out of their wet clothes into casual sweaters and jeans.

"They didn't look like any boat people I'd ever seen," said Muriel DeLuca, a retiree who watched the early morning spectacle.

"They were clean-cut."

About 60 "well-dressed" Cuban refugees reached Florida on Tuesday, two-thirds of them wading in and the rest picked up just offshore. Their appearance and unusual landing spot 170 miles north of the Keys raised suspicions they were transported by smugglers.

"Is this the U.S.?" a refugee who came out of the water asked beachcomber Gary Grathmann.

When Grathmann said yes, the man responded: "Thank God."

The joyous man then handed Grathmann a handful of coins — from the Cayman Islands.

While immigration officials and police tried to sort out the Cubans' stories, the refugees told reporters they had made the voyage from Cuba south to the Cayman Islands in September, and on Friday headed out on a 700-mile voyage around Cuba to Florida's western coast.

In the Cayman Islands, officials said Tuesday that three boatloads of refugees had left there last week. They blamed smugglers.

An immigration spokesman in Washington late Tuesday told The Miami Herald that some of the Cubans said they paid smugglers to bring them out of Grand Cayman Island on two powerboats.

Coast Guard Petty Officer Mark Machowiak in Miami said the trip was under investigation as a possible smuggling mission, but "policy doesn't allow me to discuss ongoing law enforcement."

The Coast Guard later stopped and took into custody the crew of a 40-foot fishing boat flying the Cayman flag. Officials said they would try to determine if the crew had anything to do with the Cubans' voyage.

The refugees said they made the crossing in a 40-foot fishing boat, which was confiscated, and another one, which disappeared. Sarasota County Sheriff's Lt. Bill Stokely said there was no sign of a second boat near shore.

Others made it to shore in rafts and small rowboats.

Forty-three refugees, including six women, were taken to a community center where they were fed and questioned before being sent to the U.S. Immigration and Naturalization Service's Krome Detention Center outside Miami.

They will be allowed to apply for entry to the United States, said INS spokesman George Waldroup.

Board makes ruling on train derailment

By The Associated Press

ST. PETERSBURG — A circus train derailment near Lakeland last year that killed a clown and elephant trainer was caused by a wheel that collapsed from stress and heat, a federal investigation has found.

A three member-panel of the National Transportation Safety Board approved recommendations Tuesday in Washington that would effectively phase out use of the wheel in the future.

The board made several other findings in the crash Jan. 13, 1984, of the Ringling Bros. and Barnum & Bailey Circus train that killed the two staffers and injured 18 others:

— One of the fatalities could have been avoided if large appliances and equipment in the rail cars had been better secured. Conley Conkling, the clown, was crushed under a file cabinet.

— The accident may have been avoided if passenger cars had been equipped with an emergency intercom. An investigation showed passengers knew there was a problem before the train derailed.

The accident occurred as the 53-car train was passing through Lakeland en route to Orlando after a show in St. Petersburg. A wheel on one of the passenger cars broke apart, causing the derailment of 13 passenger cars and three freight cars.

The wheel fracture originated at the base of a serial number character in the wheel rim. The practice of stamping numbers into the wheel rim was banned in 1978 after authorities determined that such wheels were more prone to heat stress and fractures. The wheel also was damaged by heat resulting from braking, the board said.

Investigators estimate that at least 1,000 pairs of the rim-stamped wheels still are in use — most of them on private rail passenger cars, museum and cog railway cars, and dinner and excursion trains. The rim-stamped wheels aren't used on the Amtrak rail system.

A metallurgist for Standard Steel, the failed wheel's manufacturer, told National Transportation Safety Board investigators that the Ringling Bros. wheel was the worst case of heat damage he had seen in a wheel.

The board recommended that the Federal Railroad Administration phase out the rim-stamped wheels by prohibiting their replacement.

Rodney Huey, a corporate spokesman for Ringling Bros., said circus officials had not had a chance to look at the recommendations yet.

Group: Budget cuts mean trouble for beaches

By The Associated Press

TALLAHASSEE — Budget cuts in Washington could jeopardize millions of dollars in federal money for beach restoration throughout Florida, a beach preservation group warns.

The federal government generally pays for half of a public beach restoration project but can pay up to 65 percent.

But President Clinton's proposed 1988 federal budget eliminates money for beach renourishment projects by shifting the financial responsibility for future projects to state and local governments.

That could cost Florida counties $20 million a year, said Stan Tait, president of the Florida Shore & Beach Preservation Association in Tallahassee.

Palm Beach County alone, for example, stands to lose $11.9 million in federal dollars for beach restoration projects planned in the next three years, said Bob Clinger, the county's erosion control coordinator.

In his proposed $1.6 trillion fiscal 1988 budget, the president wants to shave $144 billion in federal spending over the next five years to reduce the deficit and to provide tax breaks for families with children.

"The way they balance the budget is to give (responsibility) to local government," County Commissioner Karen Marcus said. "It doesn't balance anything."

In the renourishment project scheduled to begin in March at Jupiter's Carlin Park, for instance, the federal government is scheduled to pay $2.2 million, or 54 percent.

Another 34.5 percent will come from the state Department of Environmental Protection, and the remaining 11.5 percent will come from county bed-tax money.

U.S. Rep. Mark Foley, R-West Palm Beach, said he might support lowering the federal contribution to local beach projects but would not cut all federal money.

"Our beaches in Florida are used by people throughout the nation," Foley said. "I would not zero out the program."

Assisting low income families State funds target home energy concerns

By MICK SPERAN
Herald Staff Writer

SANFORD - The Community Development Department is ready to begin another Weatherization-LIHEAP contract program. LIHEAP is a Low Income Home Energy Assistance Program.

The proposal, approved by the City Commission Monday night, will provide state funding for the city in the amount of $28,400. The agreement would be between the city and the Florida Department of Community Affairs. It would be in operation until Sept. 30 of this year.

Upon approval by the commission, Community Development Director Charles Rowe has projected a total of 14 houses will be weatherized through LIHEAP funding through September.

According to a listing of work, the first priority will be to "Make repairs to building envelope to stop major sources of infiltration as determined by the blower door test. Examples:

replace broken window panes, repair holes in ceilings, walls and floors, and repair doors. Concentrate on interior envelope sealing first."

Other priorities include work on duct systems, attic insulation and ventilation, weatherstripping, cracks, hot water line leaks, showerheads, water heaters, cooling and heating systems, solar screens, and additional ventilation and flooring.

In making his presentation before the commissioners Monday, Rowe said this would be the second year the LIHEAP program would be handled through Seminole County, by the City of Sanford. In response to a question regarding the first year of operation, Rowe said possibly 50 families had been helped to date.

Nobody Ever Said It Would Be Easy.

Proceed with caution

We must look at both sides of a problem. We commend persons who appeared before the Sanford City Commission Monday night to urge stronger action against drug sellers. As was indicated by several, these druggies are ruining the city's image, damaging neighborhoods, and destroying family values.

We must agree completely that a crackdown is needed, and the sooner, the better.

But wait a minute, let's look at the other side of the coin. Why does anyone doubt that the Sanford Police Department wouldn't like to make dozens of arrests and take these sellers out of the neighborhoods and off the streets? Police officers are not only upholders of the law, but many of them are residents of the city as well. As such, they are just as concerned as the average citizen in any area.

They have children who could easily be affected. They have houses where values could plummet if gangs started hanging around the corners. They are human beings, and capable of having feelings and showing concerns about the same things the rest of us do.

Even though they are law officers, they are still required to obey laws themselves. Of major concern here is the laws which our courts are preventing them from enforcing. Sanford had a loitering ordinance, but the court turned it down on some technicality.

Now, arrests can only be made if business owners display an anti-loitering or trespassing sign. Only then can arrests be made for trespassing after warning.

Unfortunately, Sanford has a few businesses which refuse to have such signs, and groups of people standing outside, doing whatever they are doing, are common. Police can't do anything, even though residents of the area may be fully aware drug activities are going on.

Even enacting a teen curfew in the area is difficult. As Police Chief Ralph Russell explained, there are so many court-demanded requirements, it is practically impossible to enforce a curfew without a great expense of resources and money.

We agree. Something must be done to get rid of our drug activities. We disagree, however, that our police are not doing what they can. They are doing what they are allowed to do, and frequent arrests for possession of drugs, some with intent to distribute, are becoming more and more common.

Let's work together to combat drugs, but if we start to point the finger of blame at each other, only the drug sellers will end up being the winners.

We're seeing return of frontier justice

William Andrew Masters was out walking late one evening near his home in the suburban community of Pacoima, Calif. He noticed two young "taggers" scrawling graffiti on pillars and walls beneath a freeway overpass.

Masters thought he would be a "good citizen" by writing down the license plate number of their car and turning it over to police. The vandals noticed him and demanded that he give them the incriminating slip of paper. A confrontation ensued (Masters says he was threatened with screwdrivers). He whipped out a 9mm pistol he carried for protection and shot his assailants, killing one of them.

Los Angeles County prosecutors found themselves in a quandary. Should they try a man for murder who said he simply was trying to do his civic duty? Either fearing public outcry if Masters was forced to stand trial, or recognizing that he probably would be acquitted by a jury unempathetic to the vandals he shot, the prosecutors decided that he, ahem, acted in self-defense.

What we very well may be witnessing in California and other crime-ridden states is the return of frontier justice. An increasing number of law-abiding citizens have become so frustrated, it seems, that crime so often goes unpunished (or underpunished), that they are taking matters into their own hands.

Two years ago, a distraught California mom, Ellie Nealer, shot and killed the man who was accused of sexually assaulting her 8-year-old son. Nealer says the man - who had previously received a slap on the wrist for molesting another little boy - smirked at her in court. She blew him away.

Of course, the most famous act of vigilantism occurred in 1984 on the New York subway. Four young toughs accosted the slightly built, meek-looking Bernard Goetz. Rather than hand over his wallet, Goetz pumped his assailants full of lead.

After each one of these incidents, law enforcement authorities mouthed the usual plat-tudes: Vigilantes are no better than criminals themselves. Taking the law into one's own hands is the same as breaking the law.

What we very well may be witnessing in California and other crime-ridden states is the return of frontier justice.

But the cops, the prosecutors and the courts have only themselves to blame for the Masters and Nealer and Goetz. Vigilantism is an inevitable consequence when those charged with upholding the law fail to protect the public from those who prey upon them.

Indeed, Justice Department statistics bear out that the critical link between crime and punishment has been broken. Of every 100 FELONY complaints by private citizens, only 30 result in arrests. Of 30 arrests, only 20 result in prosecutions. Of 20 prosecutions, only 15 result in convictions. Of 15 convictions, only five result in prison sentences of one year or more. And of those five sentences, not even one term is fully completed.

The law enforcement community can lament frontier justice all it wants. The authorities can take punitive action against citizen avengers like Masters and Nealer and Goetz to dissuade others from taking the law into their own hands. But it is almost certain that we will see more and more acts of vigilantism until the critical link between crime and swift and sure punishment is restored.

SARAH OVERSTREET

When young hero makes a mistake

When I arrived at work one morning recently an elderly woman was waiting for me. She handed me a neatly typed letter addressed to "Anne Voigt, Justice Department, Washington, D.C."

"They said you wrote the editorial about Mychael Ramsey and I wanted to show you the letter I'm sending in his behalf," she told me. "I've never heard of such an awful thing! I think everyone who feels the same way ought to write a letter for him."

Mychael Ramsey was only 15 years old in December 1983, when he and his friends in Kansas City, Mo., were driving to a grocery store and spotted a house on fire. The boys stopped the car. Mychael tried to get in the front door of the house but was driven back by smoke.

Going around the house, Mychael heard someone rapping on a window. He broke the window with his hand and helped an 83-year-old woman and her 67-year-old brother to safety. He then went back into the house and led out the woman's mentally impaired daughter. He was taken to a hospital and treated several hours for smoke inhalation.

For his bravery, Mychael was chosen as a recipient of a 1983 Young American Medal for Bravery. He was scheduled to go to Washington and have lunch with President Clinton, but the Justice Department announced last month that it is reconsidering giving Mychael his medal. In the year since Mychael saved three people from burning to death, he was arrested on a misdemeanor charge of possessing marijuana.

Possessing marijuana is not a heroic act, but risking a death by fire to save three strangers certainly is. Those fire victims didn't care whether Mychael was president of his church youth group or fresh from a Bloods and Crips rumble, as long as he was willing to dash inside the scorching room and lead them to safety. He was. At 15 years old with a whole life ahead of him, he risked it all to save people who most probably don't have that many more years to live.

I assume the folks at the Justice Department who are thinking of revoking Mychael's medal have had no elderly or disabled family members burned to death in fires. Yet I have hope that surely common sense will overtake some of them. Perhaps on a slow day at the office they'll flip on C-SPAN. As their gazes fall over our president and legislators, they can't help but be reminded that even people we count among our highest heroes are not without flaw.

Maybe they'll realize that if we can forgive national leaders all their warts and blemishes of character, so too we can give a young boy another chance.

If they don't, they will send a message to American youth such as Mychael that it doesn't matter how brave you are when it counts most; screw up once and it negates everything that came before. Don't take a risk for anyone else, because you can never do anything wonderful enough that one slip-up won't ruin it.

Mychael says he doesn't care if he gets the award or not, although he is pretty excited about meeting the president and the chance that he might also meet Jesse Jackson.

Mychael will pay whatever price the local justice system assesses for possessing marijuana. That has nothing to do with what he did for three doomed people in December 1983. If you feel the same way, write the Justice Department, care of Anne Voigt, who is acting as the department's spokeswoman on Mychael's case. Her address is Justice Department, 10th Street and Constitution Avenue, Washington, DC 20530.

Possessing marijuana is not a heroic act, but risking a death by fire to save three strangers certainly is.

ELLEN GOODMAN

A safe choice is under attack

BOSTON - In the scheme of things, Dr. Henry Foster is lucky. It's his nomination that's in jeopardy, not his life.

Dr. Foster doesn't need a security guard - yet - to go about his daily practice. No one is picketing his house or targeting his family. It's only his chance to become surgeon general that's under attack. The weapons this time are the fax and the phone, the press release and the media. The assault is political.

A few years ago, Dr. Foster was one of George Bush's thousand points of light. A few days ago, he became Bill Clinton's cautious pick for the bully pulpit from which Joycelyn Elders was so unceremoniously evicted.

Now it appears that this ob-gyn, a man who delivered 10,000 babies, a former dean of a medical school and the force behind a teen-age pregnancy prevention program, also performed abortions in his 30-year practice. This safe choice has become another target in the abortion war zone.

Suddenly, Sen. Bob Dole doesn't "like what I hear, what I read." Sen. Orrin Hatch says there are "some very troubling things concerning his nomination." Sen. Trent Lott thinks "it is in serious trouble." Now the pro-life movement, on the basis of a dubious transcript claims he performed 700 abortions. The president has added an "if" to his support for the Tennesseean: "if the facts are as I understand them to be."

Dr. Foster is losing his footing, his hold on this job. He is sliding down the verbal slippery slope that is greased so regularly by extremists in the pro-life movement.

On their slope, doctors who perform abortions are labeled "abortion doctors" as if they were a species beyond the medical pale. "Abortion docs" are further marginalized as "abortionists" with the M.D. excised altogether. Finally, they are branded as "murderers."

Through this subtle process a doctor is turned into a demon. At the very bottom of the slope are found the bodies of two doctors in Pensacola, Fla., and two clinic workers in Brookline, Mass. Now, other doctors go to work wearing bulletproof vests and go to sleep with rifles by their beds. Many are simply scared off.

No one has yet called the dignified 61-year-old Foster a "murderer." At least not in public. Nor has his name been added to the hit list of the "Deadly Dozen" doctors distributed just last month - complete with names and addresses - by The American Coalition of Life Activists.

But the push to disqualify this man from public service because he performed abortions is another way to make doctors outcasts. It's part of the effort to make abortion a pariah medical service - illegitimate if not illegal. It's part of the plan by opponents to win by intimidation. To target what they see as the "weak link" in abortion rights - the 3,000 or so doctors who perform most of the 1.5 million abortions a year.

If Dr. Foster is banned from public office because he performed a legal medical procedure, then what about the others? The doctors, the nurses, the counselors, the clinic workers, indeed, the women who have had abortions? They would all, as pro-choice leader Kate Michelman said, be branded with the same scarlet "A."

I am uncomfortable with those who defend Dr. Foster on the grounds that he only performed a few abortions or that he did them for good reasons - for the health of the mother, for rape or incest. If his appointment hinges on the right number of abortions or the right kind of abortions, it is still a litmus test on the right to perform abortions.

As head of the public health service, the surgeon general is in the business of prevention. Public health workers are the medical people who go to the source of the problem.

In this case the source of the problem at the front of national consciousness is unwed teen-age pregnancy. This is where Dr. Foster has spent his energy, in a program called appropriately, "I Have a Future." It's the campaign he's been assigned to wage by the president.

Doctors of Foster's generation are old enough to remember when women died from illegal abortions. They are old enough to have seen the need for this choice and old enough to have seen the sorrow of facing such a choice. It's not a cliché, but a lifetime of experience, that prompts such a man to say of abortion: "My wish is that it be safe, legal and rare."

This is what most Americans wish. How then did Foster become such a tempting target?

We live in an era when doctors are being threatened and killed. Their names are on Wanted Posters. Their clinics are on terrorists' maps. Yet politicians still believe they can appease the people in this increasingly radical movement.

Now Henry Foster, a "safe choice," a man who made his mark working to reduce teen-age pregnancies, is under attack. And now too we will find out which politicians have the courage to defend one doctor from the folks who make up the hit lists.

A few years ago, Dr. Foster was one of George Bush's thousand points of light.

Hotel

In despair.

"The owners say police visits are having a calming-down effect," Simmons continued. "Now the owners are moving toward structural improvements, and they have agreed to put lights in the parking lot, as well as close off another lot which may decrease some of the loitering near the hotel."

Simmons said the owners have contacted police about looking into criminal records to check on certain individuals.

Simmons asked Police Chief Ralph Russell to report on incidents connected with the hotel.

"In the past 11 days," the chief said, "we have had calls regarding noise, loitering, a suspicious person, a warrant arrest, and another suspicious person call. All but the noise call involved persons inside the hotel."

Simmons said there were some matters which still remain to be resolved, "but we're working on them," he said.

Commissioner Lon Howell asked Simmons if he felt his discussions with the owners were really sincere. "I believe they are," Simmons responded. "They have attended the meetings, and we seem to have gotten their attention on the problems which have been brought up."

No mention was made during the meeting about a letter sent to Mayor Betty Smith and the commissioners by Peggy Gamble, chairwoman of the Greater Sanford Chamber of Commerce Tourism Committee.

Gamble had written that while the tourism committee commends the efforts of the city to restore, enhance and preserve the character of Sanford, "...the negative impact of the present operation of the Florida Hotel threatens to disrupt the positive advances that have been made."

"Visitors to our area are having very negative experiences because of the hotel's management and operation," she wrote. "These experiences are overshadowing any positives we may try to emphasize."

She concluded her letter by suggesting, "Please use whatever tools you may have at your disposal to correct this negative in Historic Sanford. The economic future of the area may depend on your efforts."

The Florida Hotel, as it is presently known, originally built in 1910 as a home for George Fernald, owner of a Sanford hardware company.

The building was donated to the city by Mrs. Fernald for use as a hospital. It was subsequently named the Fernald-Laughton Memorial Hospital, and served as the city's only hospital from 1919 until 1968.

the things that make this country great."

With that thesis firmly in mind, she said, she had no problem writing the essay. She said the freedom of the press and of religion are the freedoms that make America better than all other countries.

Zelenak is a junior.

Despite her superior writing skills, she doesn't have journalistic ambitions, though she hasn't made any firm commitments.

"I don't really know what I want to do," she said, "but I don't want to close any doors."

She does, however, know that she wants to attend college.

In that, she has the chance to get some help from the Optimists. Her essay has been entered in the national competition.

"The top prize there is a $5,000 scholarship," she said.

She isn't making any predictions about her chances of winning the national essay contest, but in the North Florida District she now represents, her essay was chosen as the best from 792 entries.

In addition to a commemorative clock, which was presented to the contest winner, Zelenak will receive an all-expenses-paid week in Valley Forge, Pa. in July for a leadership conference.

While there, she will hear a number of speakers talking on leadership topics and will also engage in debate with other winners from across the country.

"I'm looking forward to it," she said.

Zelenak is a member of the National Honor Society and plays golf when she is not writing award-winning essays.

Subregional success

Young Seminoles thrash Barracudas

By DEAN SMITH Herald Sports Writer

SANFORD — Prior to the season, few people probably gave the very young Seminole High School girls' basketball team a chance at getting back to the regional playoffs this year.

But that's exactly where the Fighting Seminoles will be Thursday night as the Tribe put together a terrific team effort to bury New Smyrna Beach 79-42 in the Class 5A subregional contest at Bill Fleming Memorial Gymnasium Tuesday night.

Senior guard Tennahia Eason again led all scorers with 29 points, but sophomores Haneefah Miller and Dana Merrick combined for 27 more points while the four freshmen on the squad combined for 12 points and 24 rebounds.

"You would expect someone to have an off game," said Seminole coach John McNamara. "But everyone played well. I was concerned about their big girl (6-foot-3, 200-pound Cary Collinson), but we kept the ball moving and forced her to cover someone, which gave us easy baskets."

"We did not stop the job (to Collinson) well enough, because we were nagging too far off the passer, but overall I felt we played an excellent game."

After a slow start, the Tribe took an 18-0 lead after the first quarter, then outscored the Barracudas 26-2, holding the visitors scoreless for over seven minutes, in the second period to take an insurmountable 44-11 lead.

Mathias rescues L. Howell

By TONY GOODMAN Herald Sports Editor

WINTER PARK — This time, it was Jill Mathias who saved the Lake Howell Silver Hawks from basketball extinction, making all six of her free throws — including four in the final 40 seconds — to guide Lake Howell to a 43-40 win over Jacksonville-Terry Parker in a Class 6A girls' basketball subregional game.

"We were fine as long as Jill was at the free throw line," said Lake Howell coach Dennis Cooney after being told his team had kept the game close by missing 17 of 38 free throw attempts. "It was one of those nights. Neither team shot well."

The victory boosts Lake Howell (28-8) into the Region I tournament this Thursday at a site to be announced this afternoon. According to the brackets released by the Florida High School Activities Association, the Silver Hawks will play Fort Walton Beach (which eliminated Middleburg, 63-40, Tuesday).

In the other half of the Region I draw, Nicoville (a 45-35 winner over St. Augustine) will tangle with Jacksonville-Sandalwood (which beat Oviedo 59-43).

The Silver Hawks' largest lead was nine points, 31-22, after an Angela Goff putback with 5:37 remaining in the third quarter. Jacksonville-Parker answered with a 14-3 rally, tying the score at 36-36 on Dana Wilson's bucket with 3:25 remaining in the game.

Stacy Gomez quickly reclaimed the lead for Lake Howell, converting a free throw 25 seconds later, then finding Kelly Kohn for a short jumper that gave the Silver Hawks a lead.

Oviedo can't get over four 'hurdles'

From Staff Reports

JACKSONVILLE — On any given night, a basketball team might battle back from a slow start, withstand a cold finish, surmount the disadvantage of playing on the road, or overcome a 3-to-1 disparity in free throw shooting.

Unfortunately for the Oviedo Lions, they were the victims of all four scenarios Tuesday night as they dropped a 59-43 decision to the host Jacksonville-Sandalwood Saints in Class 6A girls' basketball subregional play.

Sandalwood, which outscored Oviedo 17-6 in the first quarter and 18-7 in the final period, was 18-for-37 on free throws while Oviedo went 8-for-12 from the charity stripe.

Raider roundball Basketball: SCC men hold off Santa

From Staff Reports

GAINESVILLE — Michael Sheppard continued his assault on the record book and the Seminole Community College Raiders continued their late season drive toward the men's basketball state tournament with an 86-82 win over the Santa Fe Community College Saints Tuesday night.

The win improves the Raiders to 15-14 overall and 6-7 in the Mid-Florida Conference heading into Saturday night's regular season finale against nationally-ranked Daytona Beach Community College.

Now fourth in the M-FC standings, the Raiders are trying to secure a first-round home game in next week's M-FC tournament. The M-FC tourney champion joins the conference regular season champion (which doesn't play in the conference tournament) in the state championship tournament.

What's Cooking? Make dinner a happy, family affair

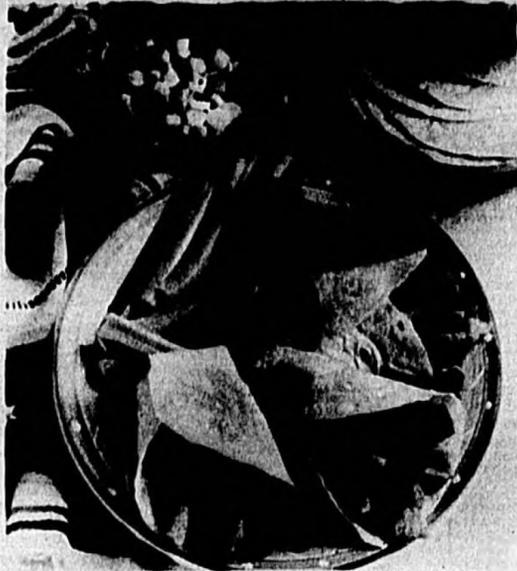

In today's fast-paced world, families are caught up in a frenzy of activity without much time for sit-down meals. Why not increase your youngsters' involvement in family mealtimes by introducing them to the homestyle fun and responsibilities of the kitchen? Showell Farms Inc., producers of Cookin' Good chicken, has developed and kitchen-tested the following recipes. Also, a rep of Cookin' Good will be in Orlando Feb. 27 through March 1 to demonstrate these recipes and share other tips.

CHICKEN FAJITAS

2 tsp. ground cumin
1 tsp. ground coriander
1 tsp. salt
4 flour tortillas (about 7 inches in diameter)
4 fresh or frozen (thawed) boneless, skinless chicken portions (halves), about 1 lb.
1 Tbsp. canola oil, divided
2 green onions, sliced
1 large green or yellow pepper, thinly sliced
1 large tomato, cored and diced
¼ cup fat free, cholesterol free sour cream alternative or plain lowfat yogurt

Preheat oven to 350°F. In a small cup, combine cumin, coriander and salt; set aside. Stack the flour tortillas, and wrap them in a piece of aluminum foil. Place the tortillas in the oven, and bake them 8 to 10 minutes or until warmed. Meanwhile, sprinkle both sides of the chicken breasts with the spice mixture. In a 10-inch skillet over medium-high heat in hot oil, cook the chicken breasts for 8 to 10 minutes or until no longer pink, turning once. Remove the chicken breasts to a cutting board. Cut each chicken breast crosswise into thin slices.

If you like, add green onions and pepper to drippings in skillet. Cook over medium heat 2 minutes, or until tender-crisp, stirring frequently. Season vegetables into a bowl. Or, leave the green onions and pepper uncooked, and place them in individual small bowls. To assemble fajitas, let everyone take a tortilla. Arrange chicken slices on top of each tortilla. Spoon some green onions and pepper on top of the chicken. Sprinkle each fajita with some tomatoes. Garnish with sour cream. Fold bottom of each tortilla up. Then fold each side of tortilla over to cover filling. Makes 4 servings.

Take your taste buds south-of-the border with this easy-to-prepare Mexican favorite, Chicken Fajitas.

ITALIANO CHICKEN WINGETTES

1 large egg
1 Tbsp. water
¼ cup plain bread crumbs
3 Tbsp. grated Parmesan cheese
2 Tbsp. dehydrated parsley flakes
1 tsp. dried basil, crumbled
½ tsp. garlic powder
¼ tsp. salt
12 fresh or frozen (thawed) chicken wingettes, about 2 lbs.
1 ½ Tbsp. butter or margarine, melted
1 ½ cups prepared spaghetti sauce

Preheat oven to 400°F. In a pie plate, beat egg with water, in a plastic food storage bag, combine bread crumbs, Parmesan cheese, parsley flakes, basil, garlic powder and salt. Dip wingettes into egg mixture then into bread crumb mixture to coat well. Arrange on rack in large roasting pan. Drizzle with melted butter. Bake wingettes 40 to 45 minutes or until golden brown and no longer pink. To serve, heat spaghetti sauce and serve with the wingettes as a dipping sauce. Makes 4 servings.

12 fresh or frozen (thawed) chicken tenders, about 1 lb.
¼ pineapple, peeled, cored and cut lengthwise into 4 pieces and crosswise into 1-inch chunks
If using bamboo skewers, soak 12 of them in water to prevent burning.
Cut the green pepper lengthwise in half. Cut each pepper half lengthwise into 8 strips, then each strip crosswise into 4 pieces to make 48 pieces in all. Set the pepper pieces aside.

Meanwhile, in small saucepan combine garlic, pineapple, juice, ketchup, cider vinegar, brown sugar, oil, soy sauce and ginger. Over high heat, heat to boiling. Reduce heat to medium. In a small cup, combine water and cornstarch until cornstarch completely dissolves. Stir cornstarch mixture into saucepan. Cook, stirring, until mixture boils and thickens. Remove saucepan from heat.

Serve imaginative desserts at special February celebrations

February has always been a month of special celebrations. Valentine's Day, George Washington and Abraham Lincoln's birthdays to name a few. Let's enjoy the month with its opportunities to celebrate with imaginative desserts.

Here's a quick dessert that is delicious served warm from the oven. Would be perfect to serve on George Washington's birthday.

CHERRY BREAD PUDDING

1 can prepared cherry pie filling
4 slices bread, cubed
¼ cup butter or margarine
1 Tbsp. lemon juice
1 cup milk
3 eggs
½ cup sugar

MICROWAVE MAGIC
MIDGE MYCOFF

½ tsp. almond extract
Cinnamon
Spread pie filling evenly in shallow 1 ½-quart glass casserole. Top with bread cubes. Microwave on 100 percent buter in 4-cup glass measure 48-60 seconds or until melted. Drizzle evenly over bread; sprinkle with lemon juice. Combine milk, eggs, sugar and almond extract in 4-cup measure; beat well. Pour slowly over bread. Press cubes into milk to coat evenly. Sprinkle with cinnamon.

Microwave on 80 percent power 17-19 minutes or until bread mixture is just about set in center. Serve warm or cold. Serves 6-8.

STRAWBERRY CRUNCH ICE CREAM PIE

3 Tbsp. butter
1 ½ cups chocolate creme-filled cookie crumbs (15 cookies)
6 chocolate creme-filled cookies

This easy dessert is good to have on hand in the freezer. Vary the ice cream flavor to suit your taste or the season.

2 Tbsp. Grand Marnier or favorite liqueur
1 quart strawberry ice cream
¼ cup whipping cream
2 Tbsp. powdered sugar
1 Tbsp. Grand Marnier

Microwave (100 percent) butter in 8- or 9-inch glass pie plate ¼-1 minute or until melted. Mix in chocolate creme-filled cookie crumbs. Press mixture evenly into bottom and up sides of dish. Microwave (100 percent), uncovered, 1 ½-2 minutes or until heated through. Cool. Crumble the 6 cookies into small dish. Add 2 tablespoons Grand Marnier. Let stand until crust is cooled.

Microwave (100 percent) ice cream in carton about 18 seconds to soften for ease in spooning into crust. Spoon about half of ice cream evenly into crust. Sprinkle with crumb mixture. Top with remaining ice cream. Cover with foil and freeze until firm. Beat whipping cream until slightly thickened. Beat in powdered sugar until thickened. Beat in tablespoon of Grand Marnier. Spoon onto ice cream and spread evenly. Freeze until firm. Cover and store in freezer until served. 6-8 servings.

It's OK for clergy to 'hoist a few'

DEAR ABBY: I've been reading your column for years and never thought I'd write, but when I read the letter from J.V.P. of Canada, concerning the men of the cloth who had "hoisted a few," I had to write.

The Sunday that particular column ran, my pastor had presented his sermon "Turn to the Lord." The Gospel lesson was John 2:1-11, the wedding in Cana where the wine ran low and Jesus turned the water into wine — no less than 120 gallons of it! (Reference to this miracle was made in your column by Stu of Coos Bay, Ore.)

Abby, I could hardly wait to call my pastor. It was ironic that the two messages were aired on the same day. My pastor and his wife really had a super chuckle when they read it. I, too, am of the opinion that "men of the cloth" are human, just as Jesus was also a man, and that all things, in moderation, were created for good.

I am of the Lutheran faith, and for the record, my pastor is not a teetotaler — he is loved and admired by all. You may use my name.

KATIE S. STEEN, PASCAGOULA, MISS.
DEAR KATIE STEEN: You will never know how much your letter meant to me. I've had some rather ugly letters taking me to task for approving of men of the cloth "hoisting a few" in public.

DEAR ABBY: My husband, "Carl," and I have lived on the West Coast for six years. We are very happy in jobs that pay well; we live in a great neighborhood and have wonderful friends.

ADVICE

We recently had our first child, and suddenly Carl wants to move back to the East Coast so our child can grow up around her grandparents! (His parents and mine, too.)

Carl wants to move to a town about a four-hour drive from them. He says our parents won't be alive forever, and we owe it to them. (I suspect his folks may be putting some pressure on him.)

Abby, both sets of grandparents live in the same town. They are retired and can afford to visit us at least twice a year. Also, we can afford to fly back there once a year.

I say, Why disrupt our lives to move to a new place where we may or may not be happy, accept jobs with lower pay, and start all over again? What do you say?

TROUBLE IN SAN DIEGO
"NO PASSES" May 17-18, 85
JERRY BOYS 7:30 (P)
IN THE ARMY NOW 8:15 (P)

DEAR TROUBLE: Since your parents and his are in good health and financially able to visit you several times a year, in addition to your visiting them, there is no reason to disrupt your present lifestyle to move east.

Perhaps your husband is not as happily settled on the West Coast as you are. Or his parents could be putting more than "a little pressure" on him to move east. Whatever is motivating him, this is an issue only you and he can decide.
