

ROOSEVELT TO HEAR RAIL WAGE DISPUTE

Possibility Of Appeal To President Held By Eastman As Holding Up Settlement

WASHINGTON, Mar. 31.—(AP)—President Roosevelt is likely to have the railroad wage controversy back on his hands when he returns from his Easter vacation. Joseph B. Eastman, federal co-ordinator of transportation, announced yesterday that while the differences between the carriers and the union workers were not irreconcilable, he was unable to settle the dispute "as long as there is possibility of appeal to higher authority."

He added that while he would not abandon his role as mediator and would listen to any suggestions either side might make, "it is probable that a settlement of the controversy will have to await the return of the President." He indicated it might be necessary for the President to appoint a commission to examine the labor controversy and advise the country of the merits of the case.

"The fact should be emphasized," he said, "that there is no present prospect of a strike and that if further effort at settlement fails, the controversy must proceed in accordance with the orderly procedure provided by the railway labor act."

Eastman reviewed the entire proceedings, recalling that the unions in 1933 had assented to a reduction of 10 percent in the basic wage and that through various agreements this had been continued, but was due to end June 30.

"The labor representatives appear unwilling to entertain any proposal which would continue the 10 percent deduction until the end of the year," Eastman said. "On the other hand, the railroad representatives appear unwilling to entertain any proposal which would not so continue it, unless earnings and traffic reach a condition which in their opinion..."

U.S. OWNERSHIP OF UTILITY IS URGED BY NORRIS

Idea Again Advocated As Bribery Charges Come Under Survey

WASHINGTON, Mar. 31.—(AP)—A new proposal for government ownership of power plants came from Senator Norris of Nebraska yesterday at the same time the trade commission was receiving fresh testimony that public officials had been bribed by a power company.

The Nebraska independent Republican said public ownership appeared to be the only ray of hope for combating "the universality of activities of the power trust that exists in nearly every locality in the United States."

"Regulations will not cure the evil," he said. "We have tried that long enough to know that the power trust represents the real danger to the people."

DEATH OR LIFE? To be carefully minded in death but to be spiritually minded in life and peace.—Romans 8:6.

What has become of the old fashioned girl who used to wear walking shoes when she went automobile riding with her boy friend?

The only one who is a sure winner on a horse race is the state of Florida. It collects its tax from the tracks no matter which horse wins, and this year it is going to be plenty.

Now that the veterans have succeeded in putting to rest the forces of the Administration with regard to pension benefits, we expect to see the movement renewed for the immediate payment of the soldiers' bonus.

Among others visiting in Florida at the present time whose names make news is Secretary of War Dorn who is down here looking over the prospects of a cross state canal. He says that one will be dug sooner or later.

Lindbergh doesn't seem to be such a bad sort in spite of the fact that he made good. When he learned that his old flying instructor was broke and sick, he promptly sent him a check. There are men who would have been too busy to do that.

We ought to have a constitutional amendment in this country providing that no Congress could appropriate any money without at the same time levying the tax by which the money is to be raised. Then there would be more opposition to government spending.

And then there was that fellow who wrote the RFC asking for a $57 loan so that he might make the last payment on his automobile. He had evidently been reading about a railroad which had needed some money so that its bondholders could be satisfied.

Commencing on Friday of last week strawberry prices on the local yard showed a gradual improvement and early yesterday afternoon were bringing growers up to 12 1/2 cents a pint, says the Plant City Courier. Gerard Swepe says that the proposed 5 percent unemployment insurance tax is too high. He favors a 2 percent tax, which he says is all that business can stand at this time. Perhaps it is better to levy a 2 percent tax and collect it than to levy a 5 percent tax and have it evaded, or ruin business trying to collect it.

From the New York Times: Democratic newspapers and friends of the President: The Senate probably will stand in the way of a third time to the larger country. The larger country will stand in the way of the smaller country. The smaller country will stand in the way of the larger country.

The Resurrection

The Resurrection is always a difficult thing to discuss, because for most people it requires "proof." And this implies a barrier of disbelief; it suggests an opposition that defies any proof that may attempt to penetrate it. And when the whole matter has been thrashed out, no one is convinced. Yet there is abundant proof of the Resurrection in all nature.

The earliest sermons of the Apostles were almost entirely concerned with Christ's resurrection, and as we read the Acts it would seem that there was no other Christian Doctrine but that of the Resurrection. This was the substance of the preaching of the Apostles, the EYEWITNESSES! As St. Paul put it, "If Christ be not risen then is our preaching vain."

If Christ be not risen then the Apostles were trying to put over on the world the greatest hoax ever known. Could they so quickly have deluded the first century by converting thousands at a time (when conversion meant peril) by any such attempt at deception? And if they did, what was their motive? There could have been no material gain, for they paid the price of martyrdom. Nor could it have been a practical joke; if it was, then the joke was on them, for they paid with their blood, and succeeding generations have benefited tremendously by the hope it has given; the comfort it has afforded; and above all, the high moral tone it has COMPELLED in human life.

Could St. Stephen have knelt while being stoned to death and prayed "Lay not this sin to their charge," if he thought he was being fooled? Could St. Paul have sanctioned these stonings and then later spend his whole life making amends by suffering the persecutions as well as the slanders of his old comrades, not to mention the patient fight to break down the prejudice of the first Apostles, if he had the slightest doubt of the reality of the risen Lord?

The early saints, St. Francis of Assisi, St. Augustine and others whose lives were changed by the spirit of Christ; modern heroes and heroines, Nightingale, Livingstone who braved dangers in the cause of Christ; the unsung heroes and heroines who patiently nurse the sick; those who give their lives in research, consecrating their lives in the service of Christ; all these based on the mistaken idea of a resurrection which is a falsehood? Really? We regard these people as heroes. We admire them. We tender them honors. Even the doubter and the unbeliever must admit the courage of such sacrificial life; living sacrifices to the glory of God. Can such sacrifice and such admiration of it be inspired by deceit? Is it possible for a falsehood to create such a living proof of the Resurrection of an historical Jesus Christ? If it is, then it must be a falsehood with such substantial elements of truth that even the most incredulous would have to accept it as true; because those who shout loudly for "proof" of the Resurrection have no proof to offer that Jesus did not rise again! And certainly none whatsoever that can compare to this great witness of nineteen hundred years of historical proof in the Resurrection. If they can so EASILY accept the idea that the Resurrection is untrue, a hoax—a fake—without any proof to substantiate this idea, how much more are they compelled to accept this indisputable fact of a Risen Jesus whose spirit has really made the world a better place to live in now and hereafter?

And so let us not keep demanding proof, but rather pray "Christ our King, here is a heart to indwell, a will through a life to live amongst men; come claim them now for thine own. Christ be incarnate again in my life, in this poor shameful thing, my life. Amen."—By the Reverend Martin Bram.

The President Goes Fishing

While President Roosevelt is casting about in Florida waters in quest of the elusive barracuda, we have no doubt that he is breathing a tremendous sigh of relief at having left behind him the enormous cares of state. But however much of a comfort that may be to him, we venture the opinion that it is far surpassed by the absence from his party of any member of Congress or professional "brain trust."

Imagine the difficulties of trying to land a tarpon under the highly learned direction and theoretical experimentation of a "brain trust!" Imagine the lines and poles and gaffs and methods and manners which a "brain trust" could suggest using! Imagine the economical tomes, psychological treatises, and anthropological dicta with which a "brain trust" would direct its landing!

President Roosevelt showed his good sense in leaving behind these professional members of his "Little Cabinet," but perhaps he showed even better sense in closing the personnel of the expedition to congressmen. Thus he is saved not only the boredom of senatorial outbursts of oratory upon every conceivable occasion but also the necessity of submitting to a Congressional investigation in the event some ambitious barracuda should take his line and run away with it.

And speaking of these ill behaved barracudas, we believe that while the President is on the subject he should devise a code of fair competition for all the fish which inhabit the Florida waters. There should be a separate code for kingfish, particularly the Louisiana variety, and there should be a code for sailfish, of the American clipper type. And another for amberjack, just to distinguish it from the other kind of jack. And one for sawfish, and one for suckers, and one for sharks, particularly of the large grunting variety.

It has been our experience in fishing in Florida waters that there is no industry which needs a code of fair competition quite so badly as the fish industry. We remember that the first barracuda we ever hooked had been completely bitten in two by a sawfish shark by the time we got him to the boat. Now that strikes us as being unorthodox competition of the very first water. With such a man as the President trailing the Gulf Stream the competition for his bait will be even fiercer.

We don't suppose it would do much good to limit hours of fishing for the fish, as the difficulty of enforcement would be almost insurmountable. But their code should be such as to have the same purpose as limiting the hours of fishing. For instance, that not even the smallest barracuda shall be taken during the hours of sunset to sunrise. Or that no barracuda shall be taken during the hours of sunrise to sunset.

A DEFEAT FOR THE COUNTRY

With the overriding of his veto of the independent offices bill, President Roosevelt has sustained the first sensational and unqualified defeat of his Administration. It will, no doubt, be hailed as a major blow to his prestige. The Republicans in the Senate, who voted unanimously for this result, and the Republicans in the House, who voted for it, 97 to 2, perhaps feel that they have rendered a brilliant service to their party. If so, it is impossible for us to agree with them. For this one issue upon which a defeat has been administered is an issue in which President Roosevelt stood exactly where President Coolidge and Hoover had stood before him. It was an issue in which he was insisting upon fundamental principles of sound finance and sound public administration, principles which the Republican party is dedicated to uphold, and in the support of which it can alone hope to regain the confidence of the country.

ROOSEVELT TO HEAR RAIL WAGE DISPUTE

(Continued From Page One) would justify restoration. The arguments in support of the railroad position may be briefly summarized as follows: "The conditions which led to the 10 percent reduction still exist for traffic is still considerably below the 1931 basis which was itself abnormal and led to the proposal for a deduction. "While traffic is improving, a large amount of deferred maintenance has accumulated and the railroads face serious dangers ahead in the competition from other forms of traffic. "It is essential to the welfare of the industry, including the welfare of its employees, that it should have a breathing space, as business revives, in which the properties can be restored to good condition and, if possible, some improvement in net earnings be shown. "Increased maintenance expenditures will add to employment and diversion of revenue to increased wages will greatly limit what can be done in this direction. The burden thus imposed upon the industry at this time will also make it harder to adjust the industry to the new competitive conditions. From both of these consequences the employees will suffer along with the industry.

Clewiston Farmer Expects Big Sum For His Rhubarb

(Continued From Page One) get to market in December and January when rhubarb is a highly priced luxury and sells for about any price you want to name. Last winter it was never quoted at less than 17 cents for hot-house stuff, and it was up to 80 cents a pound. People have always said you couldn't grow rhubarb successfully on a commercial scale in Florida. They were right, too, under the purely methods formerly known. The trouble was the roots would rot. But our experiment shows you can grow rhubarb from the seed in a hundred days. That solves the problem. It grows best on muck land and we have that over around Clewiston with the government work giving us a diagonal control. High, sandy soil is not so good."

Exploitation of Child Labor Still Exists In Jersey

(Continued From Page One) (untypical raw material) and ship this product to the dyers and printers. Several types of labor are essential to the process—winders, quillers, harpers and others. The average "family loom" has seven or eight looms, and the work is done alone. But they must get the work done or they will starve the following week. None of them has any reserve capital. So, according to Mr. Kehoe, they bring in their children, uncles, cousins, nephews, and put them to work. On one upper floor of an old factory he found seventy looms operating, set up side by side, without partitions or identification.
