"There are two known dead they saw for sure through a window," a fire dispatcher said. "There are at least eight missing."

Reports from the scene also indicated one man was killed when he jumped or fell from a third floor window of the rooming house, which had 30 to 40 residents.

COLUMBIA RETURNS TO SPACE

CAPE CANAVERAL — NASA began building the space shuttle Columbia in 1975 — 14 years ago. Six years after construction began, on April 12, 1981, the spaceplane took off on the first flight of the shuttle era.

August 8: Columbia is successfully launched on a secret military mission.

Columbia in orbit, all systems A-OK

By WILLIAM HARWOOD
UPI science writer

CAPE CANAVERAL — The rebuilt shuttle Columbia, carrying five astronauts and a top-secret spy satellite, thundered safely into orbit this morning for a clandestine mission marking the original shuttle's first flight since the Challenger disaster.

With commander Brewster Shaw, 44, and co-pilot Richard "Dick" Richards, 42, at the controls, Columbia's mighty hydrogen-fueled main engines thundered to life at 8:37 a.m. EDT — 42 minutes late because of fog and haze over Cape Canaveral.

The shuttle's two solid-fuel boosters ignited with a ground-shaking roar 6.6 seconds later and NASA's oldest space shuttle, virtually rebuilt since the Challenger disaster, vaulted away from launch pad 39B.

Because of the military nature of the fifth flight, the shuttle's mission is being kept secret.

CASSELBERRY — Guests trickled slowly into the room yesterday as the wedding song was played.

The bride and groom met one another, smiling broadly, he in a walker, she in a wheelchair. She briefly discarded the bulky metal thing so that a few photographs could be taken with her bridegroom. He patted her affectionately on the left shoulder.

Lena and Ralph Hammond renewed their wedding vows and as Ralph moved closer to kiss his wife, the spark of their original wedding day seven decades ago in Massachusetts was rekindled for them and the 50-or-so guests present.

Ralph, 95, Lena, 93, residents of the Better Living Center in Casselberry, commemorated a milestone of 70 years together in marriage.

Holiday Inn: Lease renegotiation crucial to hotel's survival

By LAURA L. SULLIVAN
Herald staff writer

SANFORD — The marina hotel has presented a plan to the city commission to get the hotel caught up in lease payments to the city.

Jeff Blackstone, manager of the marina Holiday Inn, said renegotiating the hotel's 55-year lease with the city is essential to the hotel's survival and to keeping a major hotel on the city marina island.

No decision was reached during the commission workshop. The city commission and city attorney told Blackstone its acceptance of his plan would depend on the status of the hotel's first mortgage.

Great Southern Federal, a savings and loan corporation in Savannah, Ga., began foreclosure proceedings against the hotel in June. Since then, the Federal Depositors Insurance Corporation (FDIC) has taken over Great Southern, Blackstone said.

Holiday Inn, owned by Semmole Isle Properties, renegotiated its lease in December after falling $87,000 behind in lease payments. Blackstone returned to the commission for relief in June, when the commission demanded an audit of hotel finances before taking action.

Blackstone yesterday presented results of an audit completed July 20, showing Holiday Inn with a $1.2 million deficit.

GOP says it has not endorsed, approved local club

By J. MARK BARFIELD

SANFORD — A senior legal advisor to the Republican National Committee (RNC) said Monday that any Republican Men's Club formed in Florida, including the one organized recently in Seminole County, requires state party approval.

Michael Hess, deputy chief counsel for the RNC in Washington, said the National Federation of Republican Men's Clubs, like all party organizations, is required to be included in the local and state party structure. Hess said the National Federation is "neither endorsed or owned" by the RNC.

State and local party officials said they had not been contacted by leaders of the Greater Seminole Federated Republican Men's Club, chartered last month by the National Federation.

Hess further said the National Federation has not received RNC approval to organize or use the Republican elephant logo. Hess said he has seen samples of stationery used by the organization's clubs using the logo. Use of the logo without RNC approval could constitute a common law fraud, Hess said.

SHA member apologizes for comment

By LAURA L. SULLIVAN
Herald staff writer

SANFORD — Sanford Housing Authority Commissioner J. Wain Cummings apologized last night for his comment about an Hispanic-owned management firm vetoed by the board last week.

The apology came during a meeting at which the commission selected FURR Inc., of Coral Gables, a professional management firm, to run the city's six public housing developments.

Last week, Cummings referred to Robert Perez, owner of R&P Management, as a "wetback" during preliminary selection of professional management teams. Wetback is a pejorative term originally used to describe Mexicans who had snuck across the Rio Grande River into the United States.

TALLAHASSEE — Florida legislators will try to reduce the appearance of influence peddling next year when they consider a ban on honoraria and other new limits on gifts to public officials, it was reported Monday.

Accepting gifts and honoraria is a common practice for state leaders, including Gov. Bob Martinez, who has access to state airplanes but often accepts free rides in Lear jets, helicopters and other aircraft owned by special interests. The Orlando Sentinel reported.

Commissioner of Education Betty Castor flew to Israel last October to tour an international computer company whose clients include Florida's public schools and community colleges. The company paid for the $1,995 plane ticket.

Union: Pilots still support strike

United Press International

MIAMI — Striking pilots in Miami, Atlanta, Newark, N.J., and elsewhere have expressed their support for continuing a five-month-old walkout at Eastern Airlines, a spokesman for the pilots union said Monday.

"All indications are that there appears to be overwhelming support for continuing the strike," said Ron Cole, spokesman for the pilots union.

Leaders of the Air Line Pilots Association at Eastern voted unanimously Saturday to continue the strike, but the leadership is seeking to gauge the depth of support for that action within the rank and file.

"One of their concerns of course is tying up the number of jobs there would be to go back to," Cole said.

Eastern has begun to hire replacement pilots since the strike began. The company also says it will have fewer jobs for pilots in a revitalized Eastern.

The union also is considering staging a one-day, industry-wide suspension of service by all ALPA pilots, said ALPA spokesman Jeffrey Evans in New York.

"It's one of the options being considered," said Evans, calling it "a definite maybe."

"The feedback we're getting is that the entire association is very strongly behind us," Evans said. "We have a common goal and Eastern pilots are fighting for what is perceived by all of us as the future of the profession against the tactics and style of (Eastern President) Frank Lorenzo."

A one-day work stoppage by ALPA, which represents 41,000 pilots at 47 airlines, would be an effort to pressure Congress and President Bush to step in and mediate the conflict between Eastern's striking employees and its management, he said.

"If that action were forthcoming, the suspension of service would be unnecessary and called off," Evans said.

ALPA President Henry Duffy and other union officers are meeting this week with Eastern pilots and with leaders of other pilot groups to discuss possible strategies.

No decision had been made on distributing a ballot among union members to determine the level of support for such a move, he said.

Kidnap suspects hold guards at bay

OCALA — A Marion County jail prisoner accused of kidnapping a high school honor student last year overpowered a guard and released two other prisoners in a two-hour standoff before surrendering early Monday.

"A crisis negotiator talked them into giving up, which they did by lying down on the floor," said sheriff's spokeswoman Jennifer Fanslaw.

The disturbance in the jail's maximum security area began about 10:45 p.m. Sunday, Fanslaw said, as the guard was taking Anthony Cokley into the day room for his one hour of daily private recreation.

Cokley pulled a crude knife, fashioned from pen and a piece of wood, and held it to the guard's throat. A scuffle broke out and the prisoner could not be subdued even after a second guard arrived, Fanslaw said.

Cedar Key fisherman missing

CEDAR KEY — The Coast Guard searched Monday for a Cedar Key city councilman who failed to return from a crab fishing trip.

Lou Johnson, 40, left Cedar Key Friday in his 24-foot fishing boat Mary Beth, said Coast Guard Petty Officer Steve Sapp. Johnson planned to set crab traps in the Gulf of Mexico about 50 miles from the island and was due to return Sunday.

Coast Guard planes and a helicopter searched 2,500 square miles in the Gulf Monday but found no sign of Johnson or the boat. The search was scheduled to resume at daybreak Tuesday.

Johnson is a city councilman for the island off the northwest Florida coast.

Brush fire smoke closes highway

NEW SMYRNA BEACH — Thick smoke from a brush fire Monday in Volusia County forced the Florida Highway Patrol and Department of Transportation to close down a portion of Interstate 95.

Both north and southbound traffic was rerouted onto alternate roads between Port Orange and New Smyrna Beach beginning about 2:35 p.m. South lanes were reopened about an hour later, and the FHP expected northbound lanes to be open by 5 p.m. A spokeswoman said the Patrol had no estimate of how far traffic was backed up.

Officials with the county fire department and civil defense could say immediately how large the fire was, what started the flames or whether any homes were threatened.

Crack bust to net over 50 suspects

YULEE — Authorities in the northeast corner of Florida are still rounding up suspects following a weekend crack bust that ended a two-month investigation.

Officials in Nassau County arrested 30 people over the weekend and are continuing to round up another 20 following the arrests in the Yulee area. Most of those arrested are charged with possession and sale of crack.

Officials said Monday the sweep marked the largest number of crack arrests ever made in Nassau County. Undercover officers bought the cocaine derivative from street dealers during the operation.

Despite publicity surrounding the operation, officials said they expect no trouble finding the other suspects.

Mental health system overhauled

TALAHASSEE — State prison officials say they have started a massive overhaul of the Correction Department's mental health system, focusing on disturbed inmates rather than the prison population as a whole.

Authorities said Monday the plan is being developed in response to the problems identified by psychologists as part of the 17-year-old lawsuit pending against the Corrections Department. The lawsuit outlines a series of problems with the prison mental health system.

The new plan designates 13 prisons as "regional mental health centers," with each providing outpatient help to about 200 inmates. Another 400 prison beds are designated for prisoners who need more intensive help but are not in bad enough shape to be sent to the Chattahoochee mental health center.

Water restrictions may go into effect

PALATKA — Officials say mandatory water-use controls are likely to be imposed Wednesday when the St. Johns Water Management District board meets in Palatka.

Officials said Monday the controls could include limits on lawn-watering and car-washing, and other controls could be put in place for golf courses or other water uses. Penalties for violators could range up to $500 dollars and a 60-day jail term.

Voluntary water controls in the district have been in place since mid-June for the northeast Florida area. Officials had hoped the water levels in test wells would begin to come back up, but that has not been the case.

Airline workers charged with mail theft of credit cards

United Press International

MIAMI — Sixteen people, including five Continental Airlines employees, were charged Monday with stealing more than 400 new credit cards from air mail shipments and using them to obtain merchandise and cash.

The indictments stem from a six-month investigation into thefts of trays and packages of mail from Continental planes arriving at Miami International Airport.

Mail trays containing credit cards were stolen on at least three occasions since September, said Dexter Lehtinen, U.S. attorney for south Florida.

The cards were being shipped to the applicants, and had no signatures when they were stolen. After each theft, the cards were signed and used at clothing stores, auto parts stores, restaurants, camera and electronics stores and department stores. They were also used to obtain thousands of dollars in cash advances, Lehtinen said.

The investigation by the U.S. attorney's office, the Postal Service and the Secret Service focused on several Continental employees who had access to air cargo, including U.S. Mail shipments.

Five current and former Continental employees were among the 16 defendants. They were charged variously with conspiracy, theft and fraudulent use of credit cards.

The other defendants were charged with conspiracy, possession of 15 or more unauthorized credit cards and possession of counterfeit $20- and $5-bills.

Each count of conspiracy carries a maximum sentence of five years in prison and a $250,000 fine. Each count of fraudulent use of credit cards to obtain over $1,000 in merchandise carries a maximum sentence of 10 years imprisonment and a $250,000 fine.

Immigration chief resigns to teach

United Press International

MIAMI — Florida immigration chief Perry Rivkind, a bureaucratic rebel who has run the volatile Miami office for six years, announced his resignation Monday.

Rivkind, 58, said he is leaving Aug. 21 to teach criminal justice at Patrick Henry Community College in Martinsville, Va.

"I think one reaches a time, after 30 years in government, when you have a natural inclination to leave," Rivkind said. "One wants to be free sometimes and government is somewhat of a benign dictatorship. I am one who likes to speak out on social issues and government sometimes says don't speak out on this issue or that issue. School is somewhat of a forum for that."

Rivkind has recommended deputy director Richard Smith to replace him as district director of the U.S. Immigration and Naturalization Service.

A former vice cop and road patrolman, Rivkind faced the concerns of south Florida's Haitian, Nicaraguan and Cuban communities and confronted seemingly contradictory national policies on deportation.

In open defiance of the government, he refused to deport Nicaraguans. At the same time, he upheld the government's policies and deported Haitians.

"I think people recognize that I act fairly, that I just have to carry out the laws of Congress," he said.

But he remains bitter about lingering accusations that national policy regarding Haitians is steeped in prejudice toward blacks.

"That is simply not true," he said. "I think it's dangerous and irresponsible to make statements about discrimination in a community as volatile as this."

Rivkind took over the office in 1983 with a mandate from INS Commissioner Alan Nelson to change the public's perception that INS decisions were guided by bigotry, incompetence and corruption.

"You want to pick good people and people who are outspoken, who will take risks, who will recommend policy."

Family searches for woman missing since wreck

United Press International

ORLANDO — Tim Meehan spends most of his spare time tracking hundreds of reported sightings of his missing sister and thinking of new ways to alert people to look for her.

The marks on his map representing sightings range over eastern Montana into South Dakota, back through Montana into Idaho and over to Washington.

More than 500 people have called claiming to have seen Patty Meehan. But her whereabouts have not been known definitely since the night of April 20, when she crashed head-on into another vehicle near remote Circle, Mont.

The driver of the other car said Patty crawled from the wreckage, took a quick look around, climbed over a fence and wandered off into a field.

The family believes the 37-year-old woman is still in the Northwest, possibly disoriented and confused.

For Tim Meehan, an Orlando cable television technician, the latest ray of hope is a stack of videotapes he put together with Patty's picture and description and a telephone number to call if she is seen.

Tim is mailing the tapes to cable television stations around Seattle because more than 160 people in the area have recently responded to the 3,000 posters his family has tacked up in post offices and truck stops from Washington to Pennsylvania.

The day before she disappeared, Patty called from her home in Bozeman, Mont., to tell her parents she was feeling stressful and wanted to go home to Pittsburgh. Tim said Patty was very close to their parents and called often.

Patty's mother, Dolly Meehan, had a birthday last week and the family hoped the

Opus to help save dolphins

UPI report

KEY WEST — Opus the Penguin, late of Bloom County, is headed for the tropical Pacific to help conservationists do battle with tuna fishermen whose wide, sweeping nets trap and kill dolphins.

The cartoon character's creator, Berke Breathed, painted Opus on the side of the 300-foot steel trawler Sea Shepherd last week, emblazoning his penguin tummy with the slogan "environmental extremist."

Paul Watson, captain of the 600-ton vessel and its international crew of 28 volunteers, said Monday afternoon he hopes to sail from Key West "within 48 hours" to search for tuna boats in the eastern tropical Pacific between Costa Rica and Hawaii.

Watson said the trip, which had been tentatively scheduled to begin Monday, had been delayed because of chipped fuel injectors in the vessel's engine that were sent to a Miami shop for repair.

Watson said Breathed and his wife are expected to join the "Sea Shepherd" in Costa Rica in about a week, after it crosses the Panama Canal.

Bush phones praise to volunteers

United Press International

FORT LAUDERDALE — President Bush telephoned his praise to participants in a town hall meeting to combat illegal drugs Monday and urged them to continue their volunteer campaign.

Speaking briefly by phone from the White House, the president vowed to step up anti-drug funding at the federal level and said he had requested about $1 billion more this year for the effort.

He did not elaborate on that funding, but stressed that community volunteers — the "thousand points of light" from his campaign speeches — are the key to solving the drug problem.

Bush, quoted from a recent study by the National Institutes of Health, which said overall drug use had dropped, but the number of Americans who use cocaine frequently had increased.

"We're talking addiction," he said.

Bush phoned his comments to the town meeting sponsored by Rep. E. Clay Shaw, R-Fla., at the Mount Olive Baptist Church in Fort Lauderdale. The neighborhood has been plagued by drug-related crime.

"At Washington, at the very highest level they're watching what we are doing," Shaw told the group.

The Rev. Mack King Carter, pastor of Mount Olive, told the president, "We are solicitors for all the help you can give."

The meeting grew from federal drug czar William Bennett's plea to Congress to solicit suggestions from the public on ways to combat illegal drugs.

With help from the Urban League and the NAACP, Shaw and Carter organized a multi-congregational church service Sunday, followed by an anti-drug march through the community.

Monday's meeting was aimed at soliciting new ideas from the community.

Military elite compose shuttle crew

Air Force Colonel Brewster H. Shaw, Jr.: Columbia commander

Astronaut Brewster H. Shaw Jr., 44, the youthful-looking commander of the shuttle Columbia, joined the Air Force in 1969. He served as a fighter pilot in the Vietnam War before becoming a test pilot and later a test pilot instructor at Edwards Air Force Base in California.

He earned more than 20 academic and flying awards during a military career that led him to the rank of major at the time of his first spaceflight as co-pilot on the shuttle Columbia November 1983.

He later served as commander of the shuttle Atlantis for its second flight, which took off Nov. 26, 1985. It was the 23rd flight in the shuttle program and a highly successful mission to study space station construction techniques.

During NASA's post-Challenger accident recovery, Shaw served as a staff member of the presidential commission that investigated the Challenger disaster and head of the NASA team responsible for implementing safety modifications to the remaining three space shuttles.

Shaw grew up in the small town of Cass City, Mich., where his mother taught school and his father, a contractor, flew airplanes as a hobby.

Married to the former Kathleen Ann Mueller of Madison, Wis., Shaw has three children — Brewster Hopkins III, born Aug. 6, 1970; Jessica Hollis, born Feb. 3, 1975; and Brandon Robert, born Aug. 15, 1976.

Navy Cmdr. Richard 'Dick' N. Richards: Columbia co-pilot

A hot-shot naval aviator with more than 400 aircraft carrier landings to his credit, Richard "Dick" Richards made his first shuttle launch today.

Richards was born Aug. 24, 1946, in Key West, but considers St. Louis to be his hometown.

He received a bachelor's degree in chemical engineering from the University of Missouri in 1969 and a master's degree in aeronautical systems from the University of West Florida in 1970.

Between 1970 and 1973, he was assigned to the Tactical Electronic Warfare Squadron 33 at Norfolk, Va., flying A-4 Skyhawk and F-4 Phantom jet fighters. He later was assigned to Fighter Squadron 103 and deployed aboard the aircraft carriers America and Saratoga.

Richards was selected for test pilot training and went on to graduate from the U.S. Naval Test Pilot School at Patuxent River, Md., in 1976. After test pilot training, he completed a tour in the Naval Air Test Center's Carrier Systems Branch.

Over the next 3 1/2 years, Richards served as a project test pilot for development of automatic aircraft carrier landing systems using F-4 and A-7 jets. He also made the first carrier take off and landings with an F-4A jet fighter in 1979.

Richards, married to the former Lois Hollabaugh of Amarillo, Texas, was selected as an astronaut in 1980 and completed a one-year training program in 1981. He was named to the crew of Columbia in February 1986.

Navy Commander David C. Leestma: Columbia astronaut

Astronaut David C. Leestma, one of only two space veterans aboard the shuttle Columbia, pioneered a technique used for refueling satellites in orbit during a daring spacewalk from the shuttle Challenger in October 1984.

During his first space mission, Leestma, now 40, and astronaut Kathryn Sullivan donned spacesuits on the fifth day of the eight-day mission, which began Oct. 5, 1984, and left the safety of Challenger's cabin to practice manipulating rocket fuel in the weightlessness of space.

Leestma was known as the "whiz" by his crewmates for his academic expertise. He is an accomplished engineer who has logged more than 1,500 hours flying high-performance jet fighters.

Born May 6, 1949, in Muskegon, Mich., Leestma graduated first in his class from the Naval Academy in 1971 and received a master of science degree in aeronautical engineering from the U.S. Naval Postgraduate School in 1972.

He received his Naval flight officer wings the following year and completed three overseas deployments aboard aircraft carriers. He has logged more than 3,000 hours of flight time, including nearly 1,500 hours in the F-14A and nearly 300 carrier landings.

Married to the former Patti K. Opp of Dallas, Leestma has five children: Benjamin David, born May 3, 1980; Katie JoAnn, born October 14, 1981; Emily Marie, born June 9, 1983; Peter Opp, born Sept. 18, 1986; and Mary Elizabeth, born April 24, 1988.

Amy Lt. Colonel James C. Adamson: Columbia astronaut

James Adamson, a championship sharpshooter, jet and helicopter pilot, marathon man, Princeton University graduate and a former West Point professor, is a jack-of-all trades astronaut who brings a variety of skills to the crew of the shuttle Columbia.

An avid outdoorsman who lists hunting, fishing, snow skiing and long-distance running as hobbies, Adamson, 43, began working at the Johnson Space Center in Houston in 1980, serving as aerodynamics officer in mission control during the first four shuttle missions and later as guidance and navigation officer.

Adamson was born March 3, 1946, in Warsaw, New York, but he considers Monarch, Mont., his hometown.

He graduated from West Point in 1969, earning an engineering degree, and later completed a master's degree in aerospace engineering at Princeton University in 1977.

Adamson served with missile batteries in West Germany and as battery commander of a Hawk Missile Brigade at Fort Bliss, Texas. After pilot training, he served as scout pilot, team lead and air mission commander with the Air Cavalry in Vietnam.

After completing his master's degree, Adamson became assistant professor of aerodynamics at West Point, teaching courses in fluid mechanics, aerodynamics, aircraft performance and stability and control. He also completed a textbook on aircraft performance.

Adamson has flown research aircraft at Edwards Air Force Base, Calif., and the Patuxent Naval Air Station. He has logged more than 3,000 hours of flight time in more than 30 types of helicopters, jets and prop planes.

Married to the former Susan

Broman of Warsaw, N.Y., Adamson has one child, Erik David, born March 21, 1974.

Air Force Major Mark N. Brown: Columbia astronaut

Air Force Maj. Mark N. Brown is a former NASA engineer who worked his way up the ranks to become an astronaut.

Born Nov. 18, 1951, in Valparaiso, Ind., Brown graduated from Purdue University in 1973, earning a degree in aeronautical engineering. He later received a master's degree in aeronautical engineering from the Air Force Institute of Technology in 1980.

Married to the former Lynne A. Anderson of River Grove, Ill., Brown received his pilot wings at Laughlin Air Force Base, Texas, in 1974. He then was assigned to the 87th Fighter Interceptor Squadron at K.I. Sawyer Air Force Base in Michigan, where he flew T-33 and F-108 jet aircraft.

Brown began working at NASA's Johnson Space Center in Houston in 1980, participating in development of emergency procedures and serving as a flight activities officer for six space shuttle missions.

He was selected as a NASA astronaut in May 1984 and in December 1985 he was named to the crew of a military shuttle mission. After the Challenger disaster, Brown's flight was canceled.

During NASA's recovery from the Challenger accident, Brown served as an astronaut member of the solid-fuel booster redesign team. He was named to Columbia's crew in February 1988.

An avid outdoorsman who lists fishing, hiking, jogging and chess as his hobbies, Brown is the father of two children: Kristin Elizabeth, born Oct. 21, 1981, and Karin Alison, born May 18, 1988.

Last manned lighthouse ready for automation

United Press International

TAMPA — The last remaining manned lighthouse in Florida and one of only seven left in the United States will be converted to automation by the end of the year, Coast Guard officials said.

On a good night, the beam atop the 85-foot Egmont Light can be seen blinking on and off every 15 seconds from 20 miles or more at sea.

"I would say that three-quarters of the ships coming into Tampa Bay use that light when they make their arrival," said Capt. John Timmel of the Tampa Bay Pilots Association, which helps guide commercial vessels to berths at the Port of Sec. Port Manatee and the Port of St. Petersburg.

"It may not be their primary source of navigation," Timmel told The Tampa Tribune, "but they use it for confirmation."

By the end of the year, U.S. Coast Guard officials say, automation will take over at Egmont Key and at four lighthouses in Maine and one in New York, leaving only the historic Boston Light, which is also due for automation in 1990.

The Egmont Light, located on a site where a lighthouse has stood since 1848, is the last remaining manned lighthouse in Florida.

The Coast Guard now is negotiating with the state Department of Natural Resources and the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service to transfer control of Egmont Key to the state for expected development into a state park. The wildlife service now manages the island as a sanctuary for animals, including nesting loggerhead turtles.

Chief Mark Allen, who supervises the Coast Guard workers now on Egmont, said they will be reassigned sometime later this year.

Coast Guard employees once turned the light on and off manually, but the group now is poised for the final changeover to make the lighthouse completely mechanized.

Most of their time these days is spent in manual labor repairing a dock, installing a water system, maintaining a helicopter pad and general maintenance work such as mowing grass, painting and fixing faucets. They also discourage vandals who may arrive by boat.

"Excitement? I wouldn't call it that," said David Burton, 29, a reserve Coast Guard member who only recently came to Egmont. "I would call it a place to gather your thoughts."

The Guard oversees nearly 500 lighthouses in the United States.

Who audits IRS?

As many irate and frustrated taxpayers have long suspected, there is trouble in the way the Internal Revenue Service conducts its business. Now there is mounting evidence of ethical misconduct within the top levels of the IRS, a highly disturbing trend that may be affecting the returns and reputations of honest taxpayers.

Testimony before a House panel has produced a sordid tale of corruption: the acceptance of gratuities in exchange for favors, groundless tax probes designed to help friends and intimidate enemies, reprisals against whistle-blowers, irregular use of government travel funds, nepotism and an elaborate system to cover up wrongdoing.

With such abuses coming to light, taxpayers should be rightly concerned about the dangers of malicious tax audits and other acts of retribution by an agency that clearly lacks adequate oversight by the White House and Congress. The problems uncovered by the House Government Operations subcommittee are especially troubling because the IRS is the most pervasive agency of government, one that directly touches the lives of nearly every American.

Consider the case of Ronald Saranow. As the former head of the IRS criminal investigations division in Los Angeles, Mr. Saranow had a key role in deciding the liabilities of errant taxpayers.

Investigators for the House subcommittee said Mr. Saranow was repeatedly entertained by owners of a blue-jeans manufacturing firm called "Guess?" Inc., which opposed the competing Jordache Enterprises in a lawsuit. While the suit was in progress, the "Guess?" owners went to their friend, Mr. Saranow, with what they claimed was evidence of tax and customs fraud by Jordache. With this tainted allegation, the IRS raided the Jordache offices and seized 3 million documents — which, incidentally, are no longer available because, says the IRS, they were destroyed in error.

There is more to the story than that, but no more is needed to conclude that IRS offices need to adhere to higher ethical and professional standards than are now practiced. Once Mr. Saranow became involved socially with the "Guess?" owners, he should have been required to disqualify himself from the Jordache complaint.

Unfortunately, the Saranow case is not an isolated one.

"The cases we have examined strongly indicate that there has been a significant erosion of ethical standards among many at the highest levels of the service," concludes chief investigator Leonard Bernard.

A number of reforms are needed. They include making internal investigators more independent, severing the ties they now have with senior officials, and starting a hot line for anonymous whistle-blowers. Needless to say, a more stringent code of ethics for the IRS is also in order.

An agency with such a profound impact on every American family must be held to the most rigid standards of conduct.

Women's Hall of Fame does it

A paraphrase of Elizabeth Barrett Browning's famed tribute to love mnemonically intrudes: "How do I thank thee, let me count the ways." To defer to another creative spirit, Billy Crystal, gentle readers, you were mah-velous! Thanks to your outpouring of contributions and some fiduciary good will from foundations and the corporate world, the Women's Hall of Fame at Seneca Falls, N.Y., is staying in business.

Faith is what it's all about — faith in the readers of this column. When I called the hall of fame's executive director, Sally Parr, in early June, its chances for survival looked as bleak as a Popeye's in August. She wasn't optimistic about a financial turnaround, because news stories in a couple of the nation's largest newspapers had not generated any significant contributions. The hall of fame needed $100,000 just to stave off creditors.

But, I explained to Parr, my syndicate readership is a little different. My readers wear political antennae that flicker constantly in response to social issues. They may not always agree with me, but we carry on an audacious scribe-reader love affair. With a telephonic "we have nothing to lose" shrug, Parr OK'd the column.

Besides, all the national news stories were bound to have a cumulative effect. They did.

Gannett Foundation, one of the nation's most caring and socially conscious foundations, came through with a $100,000 grant. "They told us, 'We're happy to do it. Now, go out and do well,'" said Parr.

Philip Morris donated $10,000. The National Park Service arranged a $10,000 cooperative grant. Various small businesses and individuals sent in $65,000. Then you, gentle readers, enlisted in the eleemosynary army.

Let me share Parr's jubilant letter with you: "Thanks very much! You were right," she wrote, "a lot of people read your column." "We itten an amazing response from people who read about us in the Daily News (my home paper in Philadelphia) — or syndication. And they are still coming in. "We more than made our goal."

"We more than made our goal."

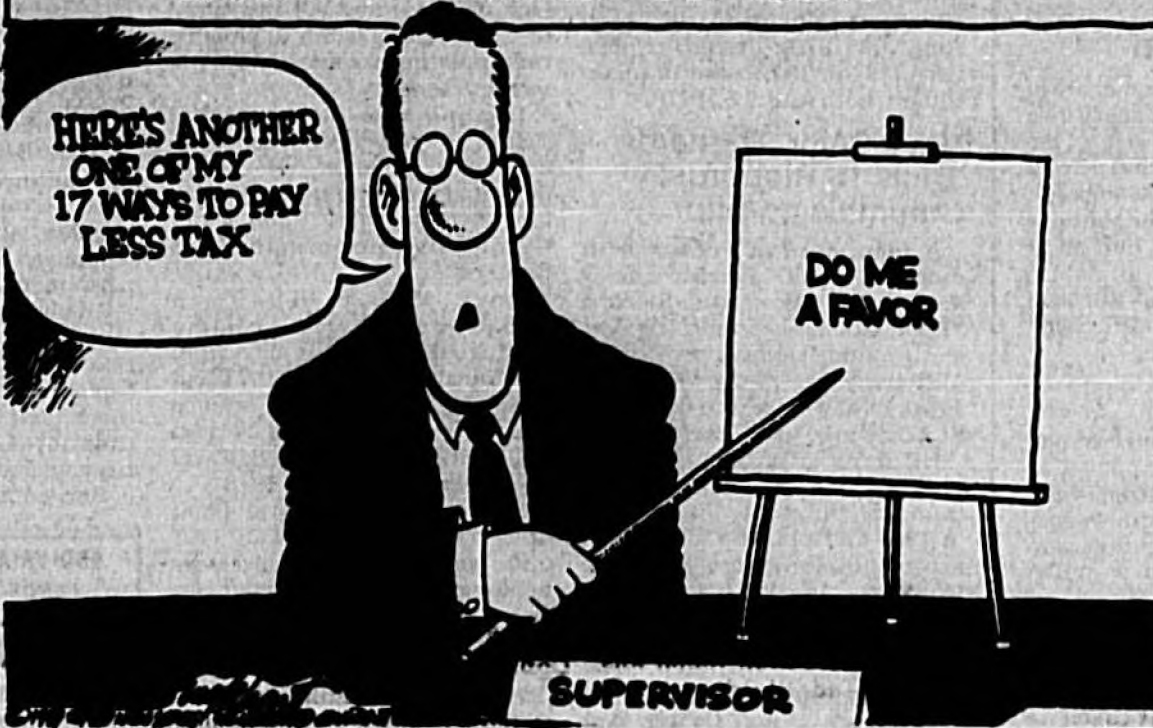

thanks to close to 1,000 people, many of whom wrote because they read about us in your column."

I called Parr to make sure the response was sufficient to guarantee that the hall of fame would stay in business. That's when she confirmed the good news. "The contributions bought us some time," she said. "At least, we can keep operating. But I want to thank your readers, many of whom sent us clippings with their contributions. Many wrote that they had taken up collections at their offices."

As of two weeks ago, $175,000 had been raised. I think America can do better, don't you? If you had intended to send a contribution, but hadn't gotten around to it, it's not too late: Women's Hall of Fame, P.O. Box 333, Seneca Falls, N.Y. 13148.

The location is appropriate. The first conference on women's rights was convened there in 1848. Seneca Falls is to women's rights what Philadelphia is to American democracy. If you happen to be in the beautiful Finger Lakes area of upstate New York on Aug. 26, try to drop by for the day-long conference that will celebrate the 89th anniversary of the Women's Suffrage Amendment. "Women in Politics" will be the conference theme. A host of celebrities, including Betty Friedan, will be speaking.

Helms' art restrictions wrong

WASHINGTON — Sen. Pat Moynihan (D-N.Y.) sent a two-sentence note attached to his statement opposing the legislation that would forbid the National Endowment for the Arts (NEA) from supporting art that is "obscene or indecent" or is hostile to almost any individual or group for almost any reason. Moynihan's note said: "The '20s are coming on fast? I knew we would regret the end of Cold War."

Perhaps that is it. Dentente has relieved us from seriousness. We have returned to "normalcy" and do not remember how to act sensibly.

The legislation moved by Sen. Jesse Helms is a foolish reaction to two photographic exhibits supported by institutions receiving NEA funds, exhibits that include photos of sadomasochistic practices and a crucifix in a jar of urine. The amendment is a recipe for timidity, paralysis and, of course, litigation. But many of the arguments — or the hysteria and arrogance serving as arguments — against the amendment are intellectually incoherent, indeed anti-intellectual.

Opponents of the amendment say government is obligated to support art and equally obligated not to think about what art is, or is good for. They argue that government cannot express an interest in the kind of art that is supported.

The argument for subsidizing the arts must be communication, not severely individualistic. It must be that it serves some social good, not just that it gives pleasure to individuals (artists, certainly, and perhaps viewers). Were that the argument, there would be as strong an argument — stronger on strictly democratic grounds — for subsidizing bowling or poker.

Artists who say art has a public purpose say that purpose can include discomforting the comfortable. Shocking the bourgeoisie is fun and, arguably, good for one and all, but it is cheeky of artists to say the bourgeoisie is obligated to subsidize the shocking. America's bourgeoisie has a remarkable record of generously subsidizing the ridiculing, despising and subversion of itself. If you doubt that, examine a public university's liberal-arts curriculum.

Another problem for the NEA is art that echews all purpose, art that is not shocking but baffling to the common viewer. What of the post-minimalist artist who exhibited a pig in a cage? The artist who draped a curtain across a Colorado valley? The "environmental artist" whose "kinetic sculpture" was a bucket of fireworks atop the Brooklyn Bridge? The police called that a bomb.

A milestone in the liberation of art from the law was the 1928 court ruling that Brancusi's "Bird in Space" — a graceful shaft symbolizing flight, but not resembling a bird — was sculpture and therefore not subject to import duties. Customs agents would not be defining art.

But artists welcomed government into their world in the form of NEA subsidies. Subsidies require reasoning about public purposes. Yet some artists deny that art has any such purpose.

Abstract art and its degenerate progeny were once celebrated as "democratic" because they were purged of "academicism" and immediately became "accessible" to "understanding" by everyone. But this was a false egalitarianism of nihilism, art equally understood by everyone because it had no meaning. Having no content, it was immune to the charge of elitism. But the people don't like it, preferring art depicting the human condition and passions about it.

The artist Robert Rauschenberg, wanting no restrictions on his entitlements and no critical standards to inhibit his fun, says: "It is extremely important that art be unjustifiable." But government expenditures must be justified. Some years ago someone asked the NEA to support this work of art: He would dribble ink from Haley, Idaho, to Cody, Wyoming, birthplaces of Ezra Pound and Jackson Pollock respectively. The NEA refused. It must have had a reason.

If art has no improving power or purpose, it has no claim on the interest of government. So advocates of government-support for the arts must say that art serves society. There is a long American tradition of support on the grounds that the arts elevate the public mind by bringing it into contact with beauty, and even ameliorate social pathologies. But if the power of art is profound, it need not be benign. And the policy of public subsidies must distinguish between art that serves an elevating purpose and that that does not.

The Helms amendment should be quietly killed. However, alarmists relishing the fun of faking great fear about the impending end of civilization say the ruckus over the amendment will have a "chilling effect" on the NEA. If that means that NEA may think more often about the public interest in the visual arts, then: good.

"Artists welcomed government into their world in the form of NEA subsidies."

Soviets don't like Raisa's high-living

MOSCOW — In the contest for the most unpopular person in the Soviet Union, there is only one contender — Raisa Maximovna Gorbachev, the first lady of Guecci.

She is about as beloved as a bread line. "We call her the queen," one young Muscovite mother told us. "She is more concerned about haircuts than us."

Populist leader Boris Yeltsin couldn't resist taking a crack at Raisa during an interview with us. We asked him about his home life. He said his wife stays home, where "she is prime minister, finance minister and every other minister." And, Yeltsin smiled, "She never travels abroad or within the country with me or gives sweets to children." It was a deliberate, though unnamed swipe at Raisa, who usually accompanies her husband on official visits. She made headlines by simply showing up at the Reykjavik arms summit, when Nancy Reagan stayed home, and by sweetly distributing chocolates to children there while the cameras whirred.

But Raisa didn't earn a bad rap at home simply because she refuses to stay home. Her stylish excesses in a country of shortages have made her just a little more appreciated than Imelda Marcos at a soup kitchen.

The turnabout from initial public pride to public disdain happened quickly. Raisa inherited first ladyship from a succession of no-shows. Victoria Brezhnev surfaced briefly to greet the Nixons at a 1972 summit and then disappeared. Few people knew Yuri Andropov had a wife until she showed up at his funeral.

Raisa made her debut by accompanying her husband Mikhail Gorbachev to London in 1984. Fleet Street was captivated. The London press said that instead of looking like a "Siberian dam builder," Raisa was "the Bo Derek of the steppes." She and Mikhail were called "the Guecci comrades."

A Soviet artist proudly said at the time, "You Westerners must have thought all our women were barrel-shaped babushkas like Brezhnev's wife."

Raisa gave form to one of socialism's oldest maxims — equality of the sexes — that has never found its way into the Soviet government hierarchy. And she has brains. She is a graduate of Moscow University with a doctorate in philosophy and three books to her name. She can hold her own in a conversation with Pierre Cardin or a Smithsonian curator.

But by early 1987, Soviets were figuring out that Raisa didn't shop at the local K-Mart. KGB enemies of Gorbachev who wanted to bring the premier down a peg or two produced a clandestine video of Raisa's shopping habits and her expensive wardrobe.

There was the hidden-camera proof of her excesses — Raisa "Don't-leave-home-without-it" Gorbachev using an American credit card to buy a $1,780 pair of diamond earrings at Cartier in London after she admired an identical pair on Margaret Thatcher. And she skipped a trip to the grave of Karl Marx in London so she could see the Crown Jewels in the Tower of London.

Today, Raisa is more criticized than when the sniping began, even though our Soviet sources say she has adopted a lower profile. A joke encapsulating Muscovite disdain for her goes like this: A smug Raisa turns to her husband in bed and says, "Misha, how does it feel to sleep with the wife of the general secretary of the Soviet Union?"

For his part, the lucky husband is too busy trying to shore up perestroika in a time of consumer shortages and a soaring budget to worry about cleaning up his wife's tarnished public image.

"The turnabout from public pride to disdain happened quickly."

Columbia

post-Challenger mission — Columbia's first flight since Jan. 12, 1986 — radio traffic between the astronauts and ground control in Houston was blacked out and the only public information came from NASA spokesman Brian Welch in mission control.

"Completely clean and smooth ascent," Welch said. "No problems whatsoever to report with the vehicle. Columbia (is) very clean."

Forty-one minutes after liftoff, Welch reported, "The orbiter Columbia has successfully achieved orbit. All well aboard the Columbia and the crew is doing well."

NASA officials were jubilant about Columbia's bery launch, saying the long Challenger recovery process was finally complete with a fleet of three operational space shuttles available for duty.

"It was just straight up all the way," said J.R. Thompson, NASA's deputy director. "This was a great flight."

Joining Air Force Col. Shaw and Navy Cmdr. Richards for the year's third shuttle flight were Navy Cmdr. David Louma, 40, Army Lt. Col. James Adamson, 43, and Air Force Maj. Mark Brown, 37. Shaw and Louma are shuttle veterans but their crewmates are space rookies.

Columbia's payload is classified top secret by the Air Force but it has been widely reported to be an advanced 10-ton imaging reconnaissance satellite designed to spy on the Soviet Union.

Such reconnaissance satellites typically are launched into orbits that are steeply inclined to the equator, requiring the shuttle to take off on a sharply northeastern trajectory, and that is precisely what Columbia did, visibly arcing away on a flight path that paralleled the East Coast.

Because of the stealthy nature of the Defense Department mission — the 30th flight in the shuttle program and the eighth for Columbia — the astronauts will conduct their clandestine mission under a cloak of secrecy.

But if the mission follows past practice, the spy satellite presumably will be released from Columbia's 60-foot-long cargo bay about seven hours after liftoff.

A smaller, "secondary" payload, believed to involve research for the "Star Wars" missile defense program, also is mounted in the payload bay, according to sources, but its precise nature could not be confirmed.

The duration of the mission, the third of 1989, also is classified, but sources have said it will last slightly more than five days and that if all goes well, Columbia will land around 7 a.m. PDT Sunday at Edwards Air Force Base, Calif., northeast of Los Angeles.

Columbia's pyrotechnic launch appeared normal and two minutes after blastoff, its two solid-fuel boosters, redesigned in the wake of the Challenger disaster, were jettisoned and the shuttle continued on toward orbit.

the city commission will be referred to the city administrator."

The city attorney "will determine if a subject is not germane."

Also, all questions and remarks will be addressed to Mayor Hank Hardy and all responses will be given by him. Hardy will permit comments to individual commissioners for their comments only if the commissioners desire.

A three-minute limit for comments will be permitted.

In the past several months, Hardy has been the target of two civil lawsuits by citizens who were removed from the city chamber for what he called "disorderly" conduct when they questioned or criticized the city commission or attorney.

"I think it makes it a little clearer for everybody," Hardy said. "I think it was a good change."

The revision also states that "the chair may call to order any person granted permission to speak during the public participation period who is disorderly by failing to be germane..." and may order the person be seated if he or she has been declared out of order, if the individual refuses, they may be removed from the chambers.

Deputy Mayor Gene Farach is credited with suggesting that "should any member disagree or disapprove of the actions of the chair, that commissioner may call a point of order and the commission may rule on the point of order."

Farach last night said it was his intention to give the commission the "opportunity to override the decision of the chair."

"The commission as a whole would have the option by vote of overriding the chair," Farach said last night.

City Administrator Michael Abels said he approved of the change.

"I think it's a constructive move," he said.

City Clerk Don Terry said yesterday the revision was an attempt to "clarify the guidelines" for anyone wishing to speak.

When Citizen Carolyn Emiling stepped to the podium, the commission abided by the new rules of order. Prior to public participation as is required, Emiling had stated that she wished to "criticize the commission."

Emiling also asked what Taylor's role was, to which Hardy replied it was "chief advisor to the commission." It was the same question for which another citizen, Nadine Tolos, had been removed from the commission last month.

Emiling criticized Taylor for being selective as to which commissioners he advised.

She said that had he advised Carol Odom she was in possible violation of the charter, she would not have been removed from office as she was in February.

Odom was ousted by a 3 to 1 vote she had allegedly violated the charter.

"She had just been clobbered. He should have approached her and advised her of this (she was in possible violation of the charter)."

Taylor was unavailable for comment this morning.

what seemed like the most photographed ceremony since Charles and Diana. The guests included older residents and staff members of the assisted nursing care facility, members of the Seminole Chapter 2 Order of the Eastern Star, Sanford, of which Lena was a member, and family members. Pastor Tom Tkachuk of Congregational Church, Sanford, recited the vows.

First request of the still-fetid Lena before the rite was performed was to turn off the ceiling fans.

Several members of the Eastern Star made presentations to the couple and handed them mementoes, a card and a framed "certificate of achievement."

"In this age of minor commitment where marriages come and go like casting off garments, 70 years of marriage of loving in holy wedlock is something really to be celebrated," said Phyllis Freund, Eastern Star secretary and friend.

June McFadden, also of the Eastern Star read the words written on a wedding card. "We love you," she told the couple.

Activities Director Lori A. Hendricks took the group down memory lane.

A resident of the center had compiled a list of the movies that were popular in the Hammonds time.

Real popular was "Four Horsemen of the Apocalypse" starring Rudolph Valentino and Clara Bow brought in the "flapper girl look."

"Are you sure you want to take this big step?" Tkachuk asked, getting close and talking loud enough for them to hear him.

"Are we going to say the vows?" Lena asked anxiously.

"I'll tell you when to say 'I do,'" the youthful Tkachuk replied, smiling.

"There are no other ties more tender, no other more sacred than those you are about to renew," the pastor said.

He asked both if they would continue to live in matrimony together.

As they looked at one another, love still beaming in their eyes, the "I do's" were sincere. Cameras clicked and sighs rang throughout the room.

"I commit that they are husband and wife," Tkachuk said. "You may now kiss your wife," he told Ralph.

Tkachuk admitted it was the first time that he had performed renewal vows for a 70th wedding anniversary.

"They were very active in our church. They were real pillars," he said.

Family members are still members of the church.

After the ceremony, a party was held in their honor. They sat at a reception table surrounded by family and Hendricks presented a white wedding cake.

When asked how she felt Lena replied: "Wonderful, just wonderful, wonderful."

"That's three wonderfuls," said her son, Robert Hammond,

65, of New Smyrna, who was sitting to her right. Another son, James Russell of Casselberry was sitting next to his father.

Ralph said he had "never seen anything like it."

Also present was their granddaughter, Robin Robertson, 33, of DeBary and her three children, Gabe Minacis, 13, and twin Ursula and Yvonne Robertson, 10.

Robin said as a child she grew up only a few blocks away from her grandparents in Longwood. The couple moved to Florida in the late 1930s from Worcester, Mass. and lived in Longwood where they ran Sanlando Springs during the war. She said the couple used to see cattle herds going through the rural town.

She recalls that Lena had a china elephant collection and her grandfather had a nursery.

"My grandparents are the strongest people I ever met," she said.

James (Russell) said, "We're really proud of them. We think it's pretty great that they lived as long as they have."

He said his dad had fought in World War I and broke his collar bone in the Mexican Expedition.

He remembers that his mother always selected what Ralph was to wear and "laid out his clothes."

When asked how they got along, James laughed.

"Pretty good," he said as he watched the couple at the table enjoying their cake.

Hess said RNC officials have not taken a formal position on whether the National Federation was in violation of RNC rules. "We're looking into it," Hess said.

"If they are unwilling to comply with the requirements, then they are certainly free to organize under the First Amendment, but they are not free to call themselves Republicans," Hess said.

Brad Lang, president of the Seminole Republican Men's Club, said he is unconcerned about Hess's remarks.

"It's a dead horse," Lang said. "We formed under the rules of the Republican Men's Clubs. It's a bunch of bull hype."

In mid July, the Greater Seminole Federated Republican Men's Club received its charter from National Federation president Jack Turner of Winter Haven, Fla. The club includes city commissioners from Sanford and Winter Springs, several former clerk of courts officials and other political activists.

Smith, who as a Cabinet member votes on state bond issues.

"Even if it doesn't influence his vote, it certainly gives the impression to the public that there is influence peddled," said Senate Ethics Committee Chairman Tom Brown, D-Port

Orange. "I think we need to do everything we can to build public confidence in elected officials."

Brown and House Ethics Chairman Norm Ostrau, D-Plantation, hope to strengthen existing gift disclosure laws by placing a dollar limit on gifts and requiring officials to report the value of gifts they accept. They would also ban honoraria, or speaking fees.

They said existing law contains several loopholes. For example, an official may accept a gift as long as it is not intended to directly affect an official action. But it is often difficult to prove that connection.

Officials must report gifts of $100 or more, but need not say what the gift was or what it cost. A $10,000 mink coat could be listed simply as "clothing."

Brown wants to limit gifts to $100 or less.

Martinez has accepted gifts including use of a helicopter belonging to a agriculture magnate Jos Hilliard to inspect the Florida Keys in January, 1988.

deficit of more than $1.4 million.

Annual lease payments for the hotel are $5,000 plus five percent of gross revenue. Blackstone has proposed breaking down the gross revenue percentage into 3 percent of gross room revenue, 1 percent of gross beverage revenue and 1 percent of revenue from other profit-producing services such as vending and rentals.

According to his proposal, Blackstone suggested paying off all 1988 arrearages in annual payments of $7,426.71 over the next seven years. He proposed stopping further arrearages immediately, and repaying 1989 debts to the city by April 1990. Holiday Inn would pay 50 percent of 1989 arrearages — or $15,708 — within 60 days of the city's acceptance of the new lease arrangement.

Blackstone said the hotel has been holding talks with a major Holiday Inn franchise interested in becoming an investor and owner of the marina franchise. The individual has the mortgage backing to get refinancing for the marina hotel.

Holiday Inn first entered the city lease in 1967.

Cummings said he meant the comment as a joke, and not as an offensive dig.

Perez said yesterday from his McAllen, Tex., office that his attorney was researching details of the incident before deciding what, if any, legal action to take. "I am an American citizen," Perez said. "I don't think there was any call for that remark."

Following last night's selection by a 3-to-2 vote, the commission will begin contract negotiations with FURR, Inc., Aug. 17.

Board chairperson Teri Buratti and Commissioners Cummings and Alberta Detreville voted to rank FURR first of three finalists interviewed last night. Commissioners Shirley Allen and Jim Valerino, who had earlier supported a failed motion to select the only minority-owned firm, voted against the Coral Gables group.

The motion to select Tallafaro, Inc. of Nashville, Tenn., was defeated by a 3-to-2 vote. Mark Management of Altamonte Springs was ranked third.

The commission narrowed the field of 15 proposals last week.

Iran: Trade assets for influence

United Press International

BEIRUT, Lebanon — Iran would "use its influence" to help win freedom for Western hostages in Lebanon if the United States released frozen Iranian assets, Iran's official Islamic Republic News Agency reported Tuesday.

The report came a day after a U.N. envoy met in Beirut with the spiritual leader of Hezbollah — the pro-Iranian group believed linked to the kidnapping of Americans and other Westerners — and said chances of ending the hostage crisis had improved.

The Iranian news agency said the Tehran Times newspaper quoted "a source said to be close to president-elect Akbar Hashemi Rafsanjani" as saying the United States should take the first step.

"Iran would step in to use its influence for the release of Western hostages in Lebanon only after assurances from the United States that frozen Iranian assets would be freed," the news agency, monitored in Washington, said in paraphrasing the newspaper report.

The United States froze billions of dollars of Iranian assets in response to the taking of hostages at the U.S. Embassy in Tehran in 1979.

"The U.S. proposal should be concrete and there should be convincing grounds that these proposals will be translated into action," the source reportedly said.

But the source said Iran could not guarantee the hostages would be freed.

"It's a well known fact that we do not have any direct or indirect hand in hostage taking," the source reportedly said. "Of course, we have spiritual influence in Lebanon which we can use in our efforts for the release of the hostages there."

Iran's news agency, in a separate report, quoted an Iranian foreign policy expert as saying "if Western hostages and Muslim and Iranian hostages are freed, it would be a great achievement for the world of Islam."

Mohammad Javad Larijani reportedly told the news agency if the hostages were freed, "it will make it clear that Iran has always been working for the benefit of humanity."

EPA tests for toxic materials

NIAGARA FALLS, N.Y. — Tests will determine whether toxins discovered in six homes near the chemically poisoned Love Canal were confined to a small area or contaminated an entire neighborhood, environmental officials said.

Michael Beale, a spokesman for the Environmental Protection Agency, said Monday federal officials were forming plans to relocate residents of the 11-acre Forest Glen section of Niagara Falls, five miles from Love Canal.

The spokesman said preliminary test results showed "some contamination" in dust samples taken last week from floors and furniture inside six of the 51 house trailers and two permanent homes in Forest Glen.

Beale said the exact type of toxins found in the homes had not been established because the testing of the samples has not been completed.

Nearly two weeks ago, the EPA informed 150 residents of Forest Glen that toxins — including asbestos, a possible human carcinogen — were found seeping through the ground, much like at Love Canal 11 years ago. The chemicals were dumped at the site by about a half-dozen companies between 1960 and 1972.

Dean heads north toward Canada

MIAMI — A chill-weakened Hurricane Dean raced toward eastern Canada today, threatening to batter tiny Sable Island and the Newfoundland coast with 85-mph winds and torrential rains.

The Canadian government issued hurricane warnings for Sable Island, in the north Atlantic about 140 miles south of the Nova Scotia mainland. High wind warnings were in effect for St. John's and the Avalon Peninsula in Newfoundland, and tropical storm warnings were issued for the coastal areas of southern and eastern Newfoundland.

Dean sideswiped Bermuda with 113-mph winds, torrential rains and pounding surf on Sunday, but began to lose strength as it moved over the cooler north Atlantic waters.

Phone strike in third day

Striking workers at three regional telephone companies left millions of customers in 15 states and the nation's capital on hold today as union and company negotiators haggled over wage and benefit issues.

The walkout by more than 150,000 employees entered its third day with no new talks scheduled between union officials and the Bell Atlantic and NYNEX telephone companies on the East Coast.

Pacific Telesis, which serves California and Nevada, resumed bargaining Monday with negotiators for its 42,500 striking union workers, officials said.

The strike by the Communication Workers of America and International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers began Sunday when contract talks broke down with three of the seven "Baby Bell" companies, which were formed following the court-ordered breakup of the American Telephone & Telegraph Co. in 1984.

Leaders' plan would disband Contras

TELA, Honduras — Five Central America presidents dealt a symbolic blow to American policy by agreeing on a plan to disband Nicaragua's U.S.-backed Contra rebels in four months, but questions remained whether the rebel force would disappear.

"The whole key is to convince the Contras" to voluntarily surrender their arms by Dec. 9 and end their 8-year-old war against the leftist Sandinista-led government, said John Biehl, an adviser to Costa Rica President Oscar Arias.

The presidents of Nicaragua, Honduras, Costa Rica, Guatemala and El Salvador concluded a three-day summit Monday by announcing they had signed a complex agreement calling on the Contras to disband.

The agreement launches a program by the United Nations and the Organization of American States to supervise and encourage the disarming in four months of about 10,000 Contras based in southern Honduras.

Kaifu slated to be new Japanese leader

TOKYO — Toshiki Kaifu, an unheralded politician plucked from obscurity by powerful but scandal-tainted party bosses, was elected today president of the ruling Liberal Democratic Party and is assured of becoming Japan's next prime minister.

Kaifu, 58, whose only major credential for the job was serving as education minister under two administrations, was chosen by an overwhelming vote of party members during an extraordinary LDP election that included two other lesser-backed candidates.

He will succeed Prime Minister Sousei Uno, whose brief two-month rule came to a crashing halt after the LDP's devastating July 23 election loss which saw the party lose power in the largely rubber-stamp upper house of parliament for the first time since its formation in 1955.

Iran uses mines to deter drug smuggling

ATHENS, Greece — Iran, which executes drug dealers and sends addicts to labor camps to be "cured," reportedly has planted landmines and strung barbed wire along parts of its border to deter drug smuggling.

Mokhtar Kalantari, a high-ranking Revolutionary Guards commander in charge of what the government calls its anti-drug campaign, told reporters in Tehran the new measures were needed to stop convoys of drug-smuggling vehicles from crossing vulnerable points of Iran's borders with Pakistan and Afghanistan. The obstacles along the southeastern borders were set up between guard stations along a recently built border highway, Kalantari said in a Tehran radio dispatch monitored in Athens Monday.

"Despite these outposts, it was necessary to lay minefields and barbed wire obstacles between them in some areas," Kalantari said.

Palmer heads New Zealand government

WELLINGTON, New Zealand — Deputy Prime Minister Geoffrey Palmer was elected Tuesday to replace resigning Prime Minister David Lange and immediately vowed to uphold Lange's controversial ban on nuclear warships.

The U.S.-educated Palmer, 47, was elected by the 56-member Labor Party Caucus on the first ballot, defeating Mike Moore, the minister of external relations and trade, and former minister for finance Roger Douglas.

Helen Clark, 39, the Minister for Health, also defeated Douglas in a second vote and was chosen to become New Zealand's first woman deputy prime minister.

Analysts confirm tape shows Higgins

United Press International

WASHINGTON — An FBI analysis of the 37-second videotape from Beirut has found that "numerous observable characteristics" indicate the dead man seen hanging from a gallows is Marine Lt. Col. William R. Higgins.

President Bush phoned Robin Higgins, wife of the American serviceman setted 17 months ago by pro-Iranian Muslim extremists in Beirut, to offer his support following release of the FBI analysis report Monday.

Based on forensic examinations from the videotape, the FBI said, "A judgment has been made within a reasonable degree of medical certainty that the person depicted in the videotape is dead."

"Although a positive identification could not be made, numerous observable characteristics were noted indicating the person depicted in the videotape is Colonel Higgins. This judgment was made by FBI forensic experts and pathologists."

Asked why experts could not positively identify the hanged man, an FBI spokesman said, "The only positive I.D. is if we have the body."

A Pentagon official who saw the report said it left little doubt the dead man was Higgins.

"It verifies or confirms that the figure in the film is Rich Higgins and that he is dead," said the official, who asked not to be identified.

Religion used by con men

United Press International

WASHINGTON — "Born again" con artists, using religion as a key part of their investment pitch, have bilked more than 15,000 Americans out of more than $450 million in the past five years, a new study said.

The study released Monday, "Preying on the Faithful: The False Prophets of the Investment World," was done by the North American Securities Administrators Association and the Council of Better Business Bureaus.

John Baldwin, president of the securities administrators association, said it "now appears that religiously oriented swindlers are one of today's hottest tickets for investment con artists."

The study found a "sharp increase in the ranks of the 'false prophets' of investment" in recent years.

It reported a "surge in state-level complaints from consumers about fraud and abuse by self-proclaimed 'born again' financial planners, con artists claiming to be endorsed by local and national church officials, and givers of 'divinely inspired' investment advice about precious metals, real estate and oil and gas well programs."

After checking into "major" scams — investor losses of more than $500,000 — the group concluded "more than 15,000 Americans have lost almost $500 million in the last five years ... to con artists who are posing as one of the faithful in order to gain their trust — and their life savings."

Baldwin said no single religious group appears to be particularly vulnerable to the swindlers exploiting faith to coerce investments in their scheme, saying Baptists, black churches, Greek Orthodox congregations and Hispanic Catholic parishes have all been victims.

But because of the growing prominence of the evangelical and fundamentalist communities, the easy availability of direct mail and telephone lists that identify people by their religious beliefs, those groups have become particular targets.

Baldwin and James McIlhenny of the Better Business Bureau pointed to the current investigations of Washington communications lawyer Thomas Root, whose plane crashed into the Atlantic ocean July 13 under mysterious circumstances, as "just the tip of the iceberg" of the growing number of schemes relying heavily on religious overtones to attract investors.

Root represented primarily fundamentalist Christian investors who placed an estimated $16 million in religious radio station license syndicates organized by Sonrise Management Inc. of Columbus, Ga.

The pitch for the more than 150 partnerships to seek radio station licenses touted by Sonrise — all unsuccessful — suggested investors would receive a 14-to-1 return.

Leland plane disappears

United Press International

NAIROBI, Kenya — Ethiopian authorities began searching Tuesday for a plane that vanished in heavy rain with U.S. Rep. Mickey Leland, D-Texas, and 13 others aboard. Witnesses reported last seeing the plane circling near a town.

Civil aviation authorities said the twin-engine plane disappeared Monday on its way to Ethiopia's Fugnido refugee camp. It was carrying Leland, four members of his party, four resident U.S. officials, three Ethiopian officials and a crew of two.

The search was concentrated around the far western town Dembidolo, about 80 miles away from the camp, where according to Ethiopian authorities the plane tried to land Monday, said Jim Haley, an Embassy spokesman in the Ethiopian capital Addis Ababa.

The plane failed to land there due to heavy rain, Haley said.

Officials said it may have tried to land at any of several rough airstrips around Dembidolo, which is about 280 miles west of Addis Ababa. The strips were built to take food deliveries during Ethiopia's 1984-85 famine, said Haley.

The State Department told Leland's office in Washington that the plane had been sighted circling and trying to land near Dembidolo, but that there was no word on whether the plane actually was able to land.

Catherine Jett, a representative in Leland's office said, "The State Department called this morning and they said the plane had been sighted on Monday about 75 miles from the refugee camp. It was circling and trying to land."

IN BRIEF

AMERICAN LEAGUE

Red Sox sign pitcher Harris

BOSTON — The Boston Red Sox, trying to shore up their ailing pitching staff, put Eric Hetzel on the 21-day disabled list Monday and acquired former Phillies righthander Greg Harris.

Harris, who was waived by Philadelphia last Tuesday, was to join the club in time for Monday night's game in Kansas City against the Royals, a team spokesman said.

The announcement came as doctors said Red Sox ace righthander Roger Clemens would be ready to pitch Friday against the Orioles in Baltimore. Clemens had missed one start with a sore shoulder and was pulled from Sunday's game against Cleveland after throwing just 11 pitches because of pain in his forearm.

On the field Monday night, Toronto trimmed Texas 2-1; Detroit split with Milwaukee as Detroit won the opening game 5-3 and Milwaukee taking the nightcap 5-2; New York belted Cleveland 9-0; Minnesota tipped Baltimore 4-2; Kansas City beat Boston 6-4 and Seattle ripped Oakland 5-1.

McNeil upset in opening round

MANHATTAN BEACH, Calif. — Rookie pro Tami Whittlinger, ranked No. 239 in the world, upset slumping Lori McNeil Monday night in the first round of the $300,000 Virginia Slims of Los Angeles tennis tournament.

Whittlinger, a native of Neenah, Wis. and a former star at Stanford University, surprised the 11th-seeded McNeil, 7-6 (9-7), 6-1.

"I'm so nervous and so excited; it's the first win and the best one," said the 20-year-old, who is competing in only her fifth pro tournament.

All other seeds in action Monday escaped upset, including No. 10 Patty Fendick — another ex-Stanford player — No. 13 Claudia Kohde-Kilsch of West Germany, No. 14 Terry Phelps and No. 16 Amy Frazier.

Top-seeded Martina Navratilova does not play until Wednesday. Defending champion Chris Evert and No. 1 ranked Steffi Graf chose not to participate in the 32-player event.

Krueger still unconscious

ANN ARBOR, Mich. — Driver Phil Krueger of Indianapolis remained unconscious Monday, one day after he was injured in a collision at the Michigan International Speedway, a spokesman for St. Joseph Mercy Hospital said.

Bill Brauker said Krueger was listed in serious condition in the hospital's intensive care unit.

"He is not conscious at this time, but he is moving his extremities," Brauker said.

"He had a CAT scan late this afternoon. It is still not clear on how serious his injuries are."

Brauker said Krueger's prognosis was "guarded."

Dr. David Crippen of the Horton Safety Team said Sunday that Krueger was unconscious when emergency personnel arrived at his car.

He said the driver had "unspecified chest and body cavity injuries." He said he did not believe the injuries were life threatening.

NATIONAL LEAGUE

Chicago takes lead in NL East

CHICAGO — The Chicago Cubs took the first leg of the race for first place Monday night against the Montreal Expos, but they weren't nearly as giddy as the season-high 39,002 fans who watched at Wrigley Field.

What did the 5-2 victory, behind Jerome Walton's three hits and starter Greg Maddux's seven-hitter, really mean?

"It means that we have a one-game lead with 50 to go," said Mark Grace, whose tie-breaking, two-run home run was the big blow.

"This only means that we can't get swept," said Zimmer. "Nothing is critical at this point. It would be critical only if I was sick or something."

In other action Monday night, St. Louis blanked Pittsburgh 4-0; Philadelphia topped New York 2-1; San Diego bested Houston 5-2; Cincinnati clubbed San Francisco 10-2 and Atlanta shut out Los Angeles 1-0.

Brown signs with SCC

By DEAN SMITH
 Herald correspondent

SANFORD — Basketball coach Bill Payne of Seminole Community College has announced the signing of another blue chip prospect, Herbert Brown III.

Brown, a 6-4, 180 lb. guard-forward, had signed with Arizona State University, but was released from the scholarship last week by new coach Bill Frieder when he failed to score at least 700 on his SAT test, making him ineligible for Division I play his freshman year.

Brown played prep ball at Ft. Myers-Riverdale High School, where he earned first-team Class 3A All-State honors while averaging 28.8 points and 18.0 rebounds per game his senior year. He was also named Southwest Florida Player of the Year and finished No. 4 in voting for Florida Player of the Year by the Florida Sports Writers Association.

"We found out about Herb from Terrell Barnes, who is also from Ft. Myers," said Payne. "We didn't know how good he really was until we heard who he was being recruited by. Then we wondered if it would be worth our while to recruit him. But this shows that perseverance pays off."

Brown chose Arizona State after visiting national champion Michigan and Kansas, and being heavily recruited by Georgetown and DePaul. After being dropped by ASU, he chose SCC over Miami-Dade South, Miami-Dade North and Indian River Community College.

"When Herb first found out he was not going to ASU, he called and said he wanted to come here," said Payne. "But I wanted him to visit first to be sure. Then the announcement came out that he had been released by ASU and I started worrying that someone else would get involved with him. But he decided this is where he wanted to come and we are glad to have him."

"I got to see him play a couple of times in all-star contests and he can really shoot the ball and jumps well. He is going to be a very good one for us. He gives us a pleasant problem at guard. If we get Benjamin (Auburn transfer Johnny) back and with Mike Gaskill and T.J. Scaletta returning, we're pretty well off at guard."

Let's try this again

Luis Guevera (No. 15) of Lake Howell High School and the District 14 Big League All Stars were rained out Monday in the first round of the Southern Regional tournament being played in Pembroke Pines. District 14 was to play Tennessee this morning at 10 a.m. and again tonight against either Texas or West Virginia.

Sunniland edges TRC; A-Team rips Rummel

By DEAN SMITH
 Herald correspondent

SANFORD — Dan Sacco singled in two runs in the bottom of the eighth inning as Sunniland Corporation came from behind to defeat the Tim Raines Connection 6-5 in Sanford Men's "B" Slowpitch Softball action at Chase Park Monday night.

In other games Monday, A-Team Construction remained undefeated in the second-half with a 20-1 thrashing of Ken Rummel Chevrolet and Royce Electronics won one the easy way, picking up a forfeit victory over Stromberg-Carlson.

Sunniland bounced back from its lone loss of the second half (suffered last Monday to A-Team) to move to 5-1 on the second half. Meanwhile, TRC fell to 3-3 and into a tie for third with Royce.

TRC got on the scoreboard in the top of the first when Sam Raines singled, moved to third on a single by Rodney Turner and scored on a Robert Stevens' sacrifice fly.

Sunniland came right back in the bottom of the first to tie the score when Ron Carroll singled and scored on a long triple to center field by Craig Split.

TRC regained the lead in the third when the trio of Raines, Turner and Stevens again combined for a run. Raines reached on a fielder's choice and came around to score on singles by Turner and Stevens.

Sunniland took its first lead with a pair of runs in its half of the third. Craig Split singled, went to third on a Chuck McMullen single and scored on an Albert Key sacrifice fly. McMullen, who had advanced to second on the throw to third after his hit, took third himself on a Tolle Frank single and scored on a Brad Wallace single.

Sunniland pushed its advantage to 4-2 in the fourth when Rick Cieslak and Carroll singled. Cieslak scored all the way from second when an attempted double play by TRC went awry.

TRC forced the game into extra innings with one run in each of the fifth and sixth innings. The run in the fifth scored when Billy Griffith tripled and came in on Raines' single. The tying run in the sixth scored when Lloyd Wall doubled, moved to third on an Ernest Shuler fly out and cross the plate after Greg Hardy hit a sacrifice fly.

In the top of the eighth, TRC took a 5-4 lead when Turner, Stevens and Shuler singled, Turner doing the scoring and Shuler getting the RBI. Thad Brooks then singled to load the bases with one out, but Key pitched out of further trouble with a pop up and a ground out.

Sunniland scored the tying and winning runs in the bottom of the eighth when Frank, Wallace and Chris Split all singled to load the bases with none out, setting the stage for Sacco's winning single to right.

Contributing to the 18-hit Sunniland attack were Wallace with three singles, one run scored and one RBI, Carroll and Frank each with three singles and one run scored, and Sacco with two singles and two RBI.

Craig Split added a double, single, one run scored and one RBI while Cieslak had two singles and one run scored. McMullen singled and scored one run as Chris Split and Shannon Split each hit a single.

For TRC, Turner had three singles and one run scored while Griffith contributed a triple, single and one run scored. Hardy had a double, single and one RBI with Raines chipping in two singles, two runs scored and one RBI.

Stevens added two singles and two RBI as Shuler had two singles and one RBI. Wall doubled and scored one run while Brooks and Burnett Washington each had one single.

Lawyer says hearing set for Rose

United Press International

COLUMBUS, Ohio — A lawyer for major-league baseball said Monday the commissioner plans an Aug. 17 hearing for Pete Rose on gambling allegations that could banish the Cincinnati Reds manager from the game.

John Elam, a Columbus lawyer, said in an Aug. 2 letter to U.S. District Court Judge John Holschuh that Commissioner A. Bartlett Giamatti will start the hearing on that date unless restrained by the court.

However, a spokesman in Giamatti's New York office said he had no knowledge of the Aug. 17 hearing.

Attorneys for Rose and major-league baseball met privately Monday with Holschuh for nearly an hour on what they termed "scheduling."

Rose's lawyers asked the federal court to preserve the status quo while baseball's all-time hit leader appeals an adverse jurisdictional ruling on his case. Under court order, Rose cannot be fired as Cincinnati manager for any reason related to his dispute with the commissioner's office.

Rose already has said he will appeal to the Sixth U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals Holschuh's ruling of last week keeping the manager's lawsuit against Giamatti in federal court.

The manager wanted the case returned to Hamilton County, where a judge earlier blocked Giamatti's hearing on Rose's alleged gambling.

Gibson may be out for season

United Press International

LOS ANGELES — Kirk Gibson, hobbled since last year's playoffs with an injured left hamstring, will undergo exploratory surgery next week and is expected to be sidelined the rest of the season.

Gibson, the 1988 National League Most Valuable Player in the Dodgers' championship season, is on the disabled list for the second time this season. He has appeared in just 7 1/2 games, batting .213 with nine homers and 28 RBI.

The surgery is scheduled for Aug. 15.

"If I were not a baseball player who relied on speed I would not be going through this," Gibson said Monday night after Los Angeles's 1-0 loss to Atlanta. "The pain is localized but there's no guarantee they will find something, or what will happen."

Duper fined by Dolphins for incident with two women

United Press International

MIAMI — The Miami Dolphins fined wide receiver Mark Duper for an incident in a Georgia hotel room involving two women, but no rape charges were filed, Coach Don Shula said Monday.

Gwinnett County authorities said they investigated rape allegations against Duper while the Dolphins were in Suwannee, Ga., Friday for workouts with the Atlanta Falcons.

Larry Walton, a spokesman for the Gwinnett County sheriff's office, said investigators "find no justification to substantiate the charge. We have no plans to levy any charges."

Walton said Duper, 30, and two women, ages 18 and 19, were drinking beer in the hotel room

Friday night, but investigators found that whatever else went on was "consensual."

Shula said Dolphin security officer Stu Weinstein took Duper home on a flight before the team came home. Duper, however, played in a scrimmage with the Falcons before he left.

"The incident up in Atlanta involving Mark Duper has been now thoroughly investigated by Stu Weinstein and our staff and there have been no charges against Mark," Shula said. "He has been fined because of violation of team rules."

"I spoke to him this morning about it. Called him and made a decision on disciplinary action in the fine category."

It was believed one of the rules violations was breaking a 9 p.m. curfew the day before a scrimmage. The amount of the fine was not disclosed.

Shula said he was particularly unhappy about the incident because of Duper's other recent problems. He was suspended for 30 days at the end of last season for violation of the NFL's drug policy.

"I'm obviously disappointed," Shula said of the incident Friday night. "I don't like to see it happen with anybody. But I'm disturbed that it did happen with Duper. He'll be judged from here on in, day to day, week to week," he said.

Also Monday, the Dolphins welcomed quarterback Scott Secules. The second-year pro from Virginia was acquired from Dallas for a draft choice. To make room for Secules, the Dolphins released quarterback Ed Rubbert.

Secules was active for 13 games with the Cowboys last year but did not play a down. He will back up Dan Marino.

Dean Hamel, the Washington Redskins' starting defensive tackle, Monday left camp and is rethinking his future in professional football.

Hamel, a fifth-year player who ascended into the starting lineup after the retirement of veteran Dave Butz in May, told Coach Joe Gibbs he had to "think things over."

Hamel met with Gibbs at the club's Dickinson College training site Monday, then returned to his home in Fairfax, Va.

Hamel started at right tackle in Saturday's 31-0 exhibition victory over the Buffalo Bills, but he had no tackles, assists or sacks, Gibbs said.

"He has decided to go home and kind of think things over," Gibbs said. "He's got a lot of things going on right now and he wants to take some time to think it through. I think that's a good idea."

Gibbs said he is not setting a deadline for Hamel to make his decision, adding Hamel is welcome back if he decides he wants to continue playing professional football.

This marks the second year in a row that a Redskins veteran defensive lineman has walked out of camp. Last year, top reserve Markus Koch left camp and returned to his home in Canada before returning 10 days later.

'Prime Time' will appear in court

RICHMOND, Va. — Deion Sanders, an unsigned first-round NFL draft pick currently playing baseball with the New York Yankees farm system, must appear in court Aug. 17 to face charges he assaulted two fans who had been heckling him in a minor-league game.

Sanders, a football cornerback and a baseball outfielder known by nicknames "Prime Time" and "Neon Deion," was freed on $5,000 bond after Sunday's incident, and got the case continued during a brief Monday court appearance.

Sanders went hitless in four trips to the plate Sunday when his Columbus Clippers team got pounded 16-4 by the Richmond Braves in a Triple-A game.

After being lifted for a pinch hitter in the ninth inning, Sanders quickly changed into street clothes in the clubhouse and then headed up to a concourse to catch the hecklers on their way out of the stadium, said George Taylor, security director at The Diamond.

Lakers sign Yugoslav center Divac

INGLEWOOD, Calif. — The Los Angeles Lakers Monday signed No. 1 draft choice Vlade Divac, a 7-foot-1 Yugoslavian import who hopes to replace retired center Kareem Abdul-Jabbar.

"I'm going to try," Divac, who signed a multi-year contract, said through an interpreter. "That is my ambition. How long it's going to take, we'll see."

Divac, who runs the court extremely well, has played in the top league in Yugoslavia for the past five seasons. The 21-year-old averaged nearly 20 points, 11 rebounds and 60 percent shooting.

"It was a very attractive gamble for us (in the 26th spot in the first round)," said Lakers general manager Jerry West. "We feel his abilities are immense. We're very hopeful he can come to this country and be Americanized."

Divac and his new wife, Snezana, will begin an intensive English class on Wednesday. The two will study the language for 2 1/2 hours each day until training camp opens in seven weeks.

A-Team moved to 6-0 with its victory over Ken Rummel. They scored one run in the first, four in the second, six in the third and nine in the fourth to offset the lone run in the fourth by Rummel.

Stachler, in his motion, said Giamatti's attorneys were pressuring him and the other Rose lawyers with "unreasonable demands" for evidence on the merits of the Rose lawsuit.

He asked Holschuh to stop such proceedings until the jurisdiction battle on the case is resolved.

Holschuh gave no indication when he would rule on the motion.

Louis Hoynes, an attorney for the commissioner, denied the two sides were negotiating any compromise with Holschuh. He also denied Giamatti is planning "at this time" any disciplinary action against Rose for his admission to a reporter that he wagered on football games in apparent violation of the law.

"An announcement by Giamatti that Pete Rose is banned from baseball for any length of time for betting on baseball games will forever brand Pete Rose as dishonest in the public's eyes, particularly in the eyes of the youth of America, whether or not Giamatti's decision is ultimately reversed," wrote Stachler.

Peggy Hancock stands by her rolls and rolls of discount carpeting. Mactavish Discount Carpet may not have the best location, but it does have the best prices in town.

Mactavish Discount Carpet

So you think floor covering prices are too high? So do we!

Our store is loaded with the best values I have seen in years. Vinyl remnants to full rolls from Mannington, Armstrong and Congolium. Quality carpets, rolls, room size rugs, remnants, et cetera. One price of $5.95 per square yard (maximum) for any piece in stock. This price will be good through June 9. Should you not want an entire piece, a cutting charge of $1 per square yard will apply ($10 minimum). This is strictly a get acquainted offer to meet new customers. Bring your measurements and be ready to deal. The $5.95 per square yard price is the maximum, most items are less. If you don't like the price, tell us—no reasonable offer will be refused.

MacTavish Discount Carpet, 207 Magnolia Avenue, Sanford, 322-4694.

Shingles infections are likely to regress

DEAR DR. GOTT: My friend was hospitalized for shingles. Is there anything to be done for her?

DEAR READER: Shingles is a skin infection caused by the Herpes zoster virus. More specifically, it is an infection of the nerves that supply the skin. Because these nerves fan out in segmental strips up and down the body, shingles often appear as a well-defined collection of painful blisters on a particular area of the body, almost exclusively on one side. The zoster virus resembles the varicella (chicken pox) virus; indeed, the two may be the same virus, referred to by different names.

In its early stages, shingles appears as a random collection of pimples, associated with a burning or stinging sensation. In a few days, however, the characteristic pattern appears: a band of crusting blisters on the trunk. Sometimes, this band can form on the face and involve one eye. Because the varicella/zoster infection can cause severe eye irritation affecting sight, local treatment with anti-viral eyedrops may be necessary.

By and large, mild shingles does not require treatment. After several days of discomfort, the infection regresses and the patient's skin returns to normal. However, about 10 percent of shingles patients develop a dreaded consequence of the infection: post-herpetic neuralgia. This is a poorly understood complication resulting in permanent electric-shock pain in the nerve distribution, long after the blisters have healed.

The risk of neuralgia can be lessened if, early in the disease, patients are given cortisone or acyclovir, an anti-viral drug. I routinely prescribe one of these medicines to zoster patients because no one can predict which cases will develop neuralgia, for which there is no treatment.

Ordinarily, Herpes zoster patients do not require hospitalization. Exceptions include eye involvement and a rare type, called disseminated zoster, in which patients with poor immune function develop widespread, severe infection.

Herpes zoster is no longer the dreaded affliction it once was; the use of modern drugs can speed recovery, reduce inflammation and prevent complications.

WIN AT BRIDGE

By James Jacoby
 When you were on your way to four spades, West's jump to two no-trump showed length in both minor suits. North made a good decision to raise you to four spades after you had bid three. His spade queen and diamond ace were good working cards. If his heart queen was helpful, game should be there. So how should you play? Certainly you win dummy's ace of diamonds. Although experienced players tend to run several rounds of spades in these circumstances, hoping that a defender will err by discarding a heart, the bidding has made it easy for the defenders to make the right decisions. East will surely know to save his heart length, so it is better to determine a course of play that will limit your losers in hearts. So you play ace of spades and a spade to the queen in dummy. West follows to both spades. If his unusual-no-trump bid was honest, he will be left with no more than one heart. If West's singleton heart is the king, playing the ace of hearts will not be able to avoid the loss of three heart tricks. But if West holds the J, 10 or 9, the winning play is to lead the queen of hearts from dummy. East will cover, the ace will capture the lone honor from West, and subsequent heart plays will set up a heart trick for declarer to let him make four spades. Note that this play goes against normal percentages, but the defenders' bidding has made the right play clear.

HOROSCOPE

By Bernice Bode Ocol
YOUR BIRTHDAY
Aug. 8, 1989
 Financial opportunities could come your way in the year ahead through least expected sources. There's a possibility you might become closely involved with several people who are, at this point in time, less than friends.
LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Something mutually satisfactory can be worked out today regarding an old obligation you have with a friend. Lay the matter on the table and discuss it openly and frankly. Leo, treat yourself to a birthday gift. Send for your Astro-Graph predictions for the year ahead by mailing $1 to Astro-Graph, c/o this newspaper, P.O. Box 91428, Cleveland, OH 44101-3428. Be sure to state your zodiac sign.
VRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) You'll have the support of your peers today, even though the methods you may use could be a trifle confusing. In order to be more effective, try to clarify your aims.
LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Guard against trying to talk yourself out of doing something today just because it looks difficult at first glance. Don't let the negative override positive thinking.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) A touchy social dilemma can be resolved today if you are willing to take a firmer line. Face up to what needs correcting instead of trying to pretend it doesn't exist.
SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Don't waste time today involving yourself with associates whose objectives are not in harmony with yours. If you can't reach a compromise, proceed on your own.
CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) You can't be too explicit with your directions or intentions today. Being clear and concise will avoid foul-ups and potential misunderstandings.
AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) The gentle methods you're hoping to apply in business today might not work. In order to produce desirable results you may have to be pragmatic and possibly a bit hardnose.
PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Something constructive can be done today to mend a relationship with a valuable ally that has been a bit chilly lately. However, it will be up to you to take the initiative.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) A helpful associate has all the facts, figures and information you need to get going on an important project. This person will be willing to share knowledge with you.
TAURUS (April 20-May 20) By placing less emphasis on your material goals and concentrating more on your esthetic and social interests, you'll come out better in the long run today.
GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Although it might not make you too popular with certain family members, you may have to choose today between doing what is the most practical as opposed to what is the convenient.
CANCER (June 21-July 22) Your first thoughts might not be your best ones today, so allow yourself ample time to size up critical issues. Your judgment improves after you analyze things a bit.
