HOROSCOPE

By BERNICE BEDE OSOL

For Friday, February 18, 1977

ARIES (March 21-April 19) You're not too good at disguising your true feelings today. Try biting your tongue a few times.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Sensitive friends require the kid glove treatment today. Failure to recognize this could result in some strained relationships.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Looking for a short cut to the stars is a foolish approach for you today. Only honest effort helps you scale the lofty heights.

CANCER (June 21-July 21) Inability to stick to your original plans could cause some problems today. Last-minute changes tend to work against you.

LEO (July 22-Aug. 22) Someone you know rather well will seek your help. Do what you can, but don't be drawn into their complicated finances.

VIRGO (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) If you let your duties go until the last minute today, you'll be in a real bind. In your rush to catch up, you'll only fall farther behind.

YOUR BIRTHDAY Feb. 18, 1977 You will meet someone this coming year whose viewpoint is fresh and inspiring. This person could open new vistas for you.

Aspirin Cleared In Strokes Case

DEAR DR. LAMB - Does Aspirin (aspirin with Maalox) have anything to do with minor strokes - speech mis-gaps? After my first such attack, the doctor told me I was too old for a neurologist to accept. Then he gave me Aspirin without changing the subject. After reading the Aspirin label I assume it is to replace Tylenol for my arthritis.

My father's family died of major strokes. My mother had minor strokes, the year she died at nearly a hundred. So I may have years to go yet and wish to avoid crippling strokes and senility.

Too many doctors are too busy to bother with older people. Could you take time to help me avoid a crippling stroke? I do not recall reading about strokes in your column and would greatly appreciate any help you can give me. I am totally alone.

DEAR READER - I suspect that your doctor gave you Aspirin because the aspirin in it helps prevent blood clotting. Some small strokes are caused by small parts of blood clots breaking off of larger clots in arteries in the neck and seeding the brain. The aspirin helps to prevent the clots and may prevent strokes of larger size. The study is under way on the benefits and dangers of using aspirin for this purpose and to prevent heart attacks.

Tylenol does not have this effect and is not used for that purpose. So I suspect your doctor was doing more than just replacing Tylenol with Aspirin as a pain reliever. I am sending you The Health Letter number 84, Aspirin and Related Medicines so you can learn more about the effects of these common medicines beyond simple pain relief. There is a limit to how many of these you or anyone should take.

Her Heart Didn't Pound

By MARYLIN TIPTON Herald Staff Writer

There they were - the racing drivers who supposedly make hearts pound, eyes grow wide with wonder and normally sane women like giggling pre-adolescents.

According to all I'd been told that day by other people, the drivers should have affected me the same way.

The environment did pound my senses: odors of gasoline and oil clogged my nose; sounds of roaring engines left me deafened and made my skin crawl with their reverberations; the exhaust was so thick I could taste it, and the sight of all those greasy, grumpy people left me wanting to run right home and bathe.

In all fairness, since it was my first venture to the sacrificial altar of the great automobile, some of the afternoon was devoted to analyzing my own reactions to the "sport" of auto racing.

"The thrill when you sit in that front seat, the sensation of going 150 miles an hour or more, the pull of the g-forces as the car goes around a curve," one fan told me, "is the most exciting, stimulating thing I've ever felt."

The best things that you can do to avoid strokes are the same things we do to avoid heart attacks. Controlling blood pressure seems to be of great importance. You can do this by keeping your weight down. Stay on a diet moderately low in fat and cholesterol, don't smoke and get some regular exercise, such as walking each day. This may stretch your years of enjoyment and help you prevent that crippling stroke for many years.

opening the hand. We flattered him by remarking that he was far too good a player to pass with that nice aggregation of cards.

If you readers take a look at all the cards you will see what did happen. He bid a heart. North doubled. East passed with his honor and South arrived at four spades with no trouble at all.

Our hero cashed the ace and king of hearts and shifted to a club. South drew trumps and eventually led a diamond toward dummy. Our friend ducked, but South went right up with dummy's king and wrapped up game and rubber while if West had not opened the bidding there is a near certainty that South would have gone wrong in diamonds and lost his contract.

A Florida reader asks who wins the rubber. The side with the greater number of points or the side that has won two games.

The answer to this question is that the side that wins two games is given the rubber bonus but if this leaves their score below that of the other side, then the other side wins the rubber.

'Strong Commitment' DDC's 2nd-Year Target

By MARK WEINBERG Herald Staff Writer

"We're right on the brink of some new, interesting and startling things for downtown Sanford." Downtown Development Corporation (DDC) Treasurer Gib Edmonds told the group's annual meeting Thursday night.

The DDC, beginning its second full year of operation, will need more money to carry out its goal of revitalizing the downtown, Edmonds said.

Public attention has focused on DDC's fact-finding program, which is concerned with physically restoring the downtown in the Victorian image.

This, however, is only one phase of the DDC's four-point program, which also includes training downtown merchants to more effectively sell their goods and services, marketing Downtown Sanford to bring new investment and consumer interest and funding DDC Programs, said Chairman Sara Jacobson.

"What DDC is all about," she said, "is to change the image of downtown Sanford. Our tools are in the four-point program. The easiest of all these programs is the fact-finding... the most important to happen first."

Marketing is the most important, because "if we can't sell what we build, there's no point in building anything," Miss Jacobson said.

One of the DDC's most important accomplishments in 1976 was compiling a base-data survey of downtown, including ownership, assessed value, square-footage of property and businesses and other data, the DDC chairman said.

"We now have the data" to analyze the downtown's problems and potentials, she said. The data has helped in negotiations with consultants, saving a total of $25,000 in consultant services.

The survey revealed that half of the downtown's land is tax exempt, that only a quarter of the downtown's businesses are retail operations and that Downtown business accounts for a small percentage of the total Sanford business picture.

Miss Jacobson pointed out DDC's other accomplishments in the past year including:

The production of a master plan for downtown, prepared by Columbia, Md., consultant Cy Peanler;

The passage of state legislation making possible a downtown taxing district to raise funds for DDC;

"Excellent coverage" by newspapers, television and magazines;

The receipt of $16,500 in grants from the City of Sanford and the State of Florida;

The designation of downtown Sanford as a national historic site; and Establishing good political contacts at all levels. DDC has "good contacts with the city commission and has worked closely with City Engineer Mack LaZebny and City Manager W.E. Knowles, Miss Jacobson said.

But "the city feels like it's been burned by downtowners" in the past. A strong commitment by downtowners will be necessary before DDC asks the city to make improvements in downtown public areas, she said.

Seminole-CETA Hearing Pleas A Million $ To Spend

By ED PRICKETT Herald Staff Writer

Seminole County government has a fistful of dollars. One million of them, in fact.

This morning, representatives from 40 county agencies crowded into county commission chambers at the Sanford courthouse.

Each agency wanted a piece of the million-dollar pie. The only problem is requests outweigh the federal money by more than $300,000.

That means some paring will be required and some agencies will have to wait.

Lake Mary Making CETA Bid, Page 3A I fail to get their share of the Title 6 Comprehensive Employment and Training Act (CETA) funds.

Nevertheless, the county's advisory council on CETA will come up with a list of priorities which will be presented to the Seminole County Commission for action at next Tuesday's meeting.

Then, according to Bob Ellis, the requests must be forwarded to Atlanta for approval by federal officials by March 1.

Ellis, the director of administrative services and chairman of the manpower advisory council, pointed out additional requests for funds will be added to the present list before Tuesday.

"There's a lot to do and very little time to do it in," Ellis noted. With $1.3-million in requests sitting in the advisory council's lap, and more requests for dollars on the way, someone could walk away unapprehended.

"Yeah, obviously," Ellis said.

Census Statistics Tell A Poor Story

Everybody knows that Soviet propaganda delights in dwelling on the supposedly miserable state of the American worker. It was no surprise the other day, for example, when Moscow's Tass news agency replied to Carter administration criticism of Soviet repression by suggesting that in this country "millions of unemployed have to drag out a miserable existence without a piece of bread."

Such regression to the fantasies of Cold War rhetoric would be unremarkable, except for one unexpected fact: Moscow propagandists seeking to blacken the U. S. image have an important ally in this country's own Bureau of the Census. That agency has for years now been publishing statistics giving an exaggeratedly lugubrious picture of the economic welfare of Americans, a caricature many media even in this country have swallowed, hook, line and sinker.

Last Sept. 26, for example, newspapers relying on the Census reported that poverty in this country was a massive and increasing phenomenon. "Poor in U.S. Rose by 2.5 Million in 1975. Most in Recent Decades," was the way one typical front page headline put it. The story beneath the headline went on to tell that 26 million Americans — 12.3 percent of the nation's population — were living in poverty. Dismal statistic was piled on dismal statistic in these stories which, like the Census Bureau that started it all, could not help but make every comfortable or affluent American feel guilty for his good fortune.

What is really mystifying is that the Census Bureau was still publishing these data last year and the media were publicizing them even though every well-informed student of poverty in this country knew that the Census figures were worthless, that they exaggerated the amount of poverty in this country unconsciously.

That Fireside Chat

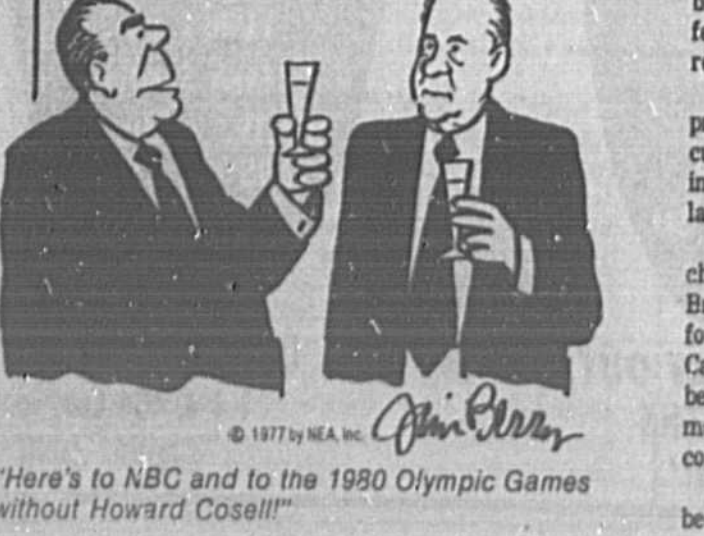

President Carter sat in a sweater in the White House library to deliver his first fireside chat on television to the American people. He was reviving the radio talk tradition of Franklin D. Roosevelt, and there was actually a fire going in the nearby fireplace. It was a media event of major importance, preempting time on three networks and reaching an audience of more than 100 million Americans.

The President had nothing new to announce, no new program to unveil. Most of the talk was a recitation in a new setting of the themes that became familiar in his campaign last year. But the chat was effective. It achieved its purpose. It built up the new President's ability to lead, stressing national unity and individual sacrifice to the common good.

We will have to wait until another time to discover exactly where President Carter is going to lead us on the energy question. He promised to have a program by April 29. Such a program is sorely needed, and it will undoubtedly involve higher energy prices, if it is to be effective.

Getting the Congress and the people to accept such an expensive program is going to be the challenge for Mr. Carter. The President was careful to promise cooperation with the Congress in his chat. His ability to go directly to the people via television is a powerful weapon. Congress knows it and respects it.

By MARK WEINBERG

"I decided to publish a magazine that deals with sex the way I learned about it growing up — on the streets, in bars, in the military service. Just the way people talk about it. Now it's cost me my freedom."
These are the words of the magazine publisher Larry Flynn, interviewed Wednesday night on Channel 8's "MacBeth-Lerner Report."
Flynn was convicted by a Cincinnati jury earlier this month of obscenity ($1,000 fine and six months in jail) and engaging in "organized crime" for working with others to distribute the magazine (100,000 fine and a whopping 7.50 years in jail).

ANGLE-WALTERS Limousine Ban Is Old But Newsy

WASHINGTON — President Carter, in his first "fireside chat" said he already has discovered that the power of the chief executive is not as broad as many believe. He may be led by the hand when he really limited his authority by not seeking to carry out his pledge to reduce drastically limousine service within the federal government.

"We have eliminated door-to-door limousine service for many top officials, including all members of the White House staff," Carter boasted.

The President has indeed made taxpayer-financed, home-to-office chauffeur service the semi-official symbol of bureaucratic waste and decadence. And he has stripped about 20 members of the White House senior staff, all men and women under his direct control, of that perk.

But there are approximately 800 other limousines and their drivers in the Washington area still performing an identical function for all manner of government officials — assistant secretaries, under secretaries, members of regulatory commissions, heads of obscure agencies, admirals, generals and a host of others.

The determination with which those people have held onto their limousine privileges is best illustrated by the fact that for many years home-to-office chauffeur service has been illegal — a prohibition which has induced few if any users to abandon the practice.

Buried in the United States Code is a section which specifically states that no money appropriated by Congress for the use of any department or agency shall be expended ... for the maintenance, operation and repair of any government-owned passenger motor vehicle or aircraft not used exclusively for official purposes.

Moreover, the law specifically states that "official purposes" shall not include the transportation of officers and employees between their domiciles and places of employment" except for the president, members of his cabinet, physicians on outpatient duty, officials on "field service" away from their regular stations and ambassadors and other diplomatic officials stationed abroad.

Sen. William Proxmire, D-Wisc., who has been waging a four-year-long campaign for enforcement of that statute, has encountered little success but a great variety of preposterous justifications for the use of limousines.

The term "field service," for instance, was included in the law to cover cases such as forest rangers who must drive long distances to and from their base stations. But the senator discovered one government official who obtained a legal opinion that the drive between his home in the Washington suburb of McLean, Va. and his downtown office constituted "field service."

Catholic Schools Want Integration

(Jack Anderson's column will return in the Sunday Herald.)
JOHANNESBURG — South Africa and the southern states of America have often been compared for their diabolic attempts to preserve racial segregation. Now an interesting contrast has arisen. In America's deep South the breakthrough to a more just society came when federal law was invoked to force the heretofore resistant whites to integrate their schools.

In South Africa there is beginning to be pressure to integrate schools but the circumstances are reversed: the white schools are initiating the move, and the state is waving the law to stop them.
The schools concerned are the so-called church schools, South Africa's equivalent of Britain's fee-paying public schools. Most were founded in colonial days by the Anglican, Catholic and Methodist churches, and quickly became prestige institutions in the eyes of the more affluent members of the English-speaking community.
With time the Anglican and Methodist schools became more or less autonomous and retained only tenuous links with their churches; the Catholic schools remained firmly under the control of their particular orders.

March issue of Hustler.
The first thing I found out was that such a procedure is not advisable immediately following lunch. Many of the pictures were revolting, to describe them as gently as possible.

The magazine concludes with a column reviewing items of mail-order erotica.
All the shouting about Hustler stems from its explicit treatment of sexuality. Yet no one is being forced to buy or read the magazine.
And the magazine's publisher faces years in jail for committing the "organized crime" of selling it in a country which prides itself on diversity and freedom of expression, the Cincinnati Hustler decision was a step in the wrong direction — whatever one thinks of the magazine's content.

RONALD REAGAN McGovern Ideas Used By Carter

On his way to the White House, Jimmy Carter forgot to tell us that he planned to McGovernize the national foreign policy and defense program.
At least that's the way things are beginning to look, judging from some of his second-level appointments in the Defense and State Departments and the National Security Council, as well as from his nomination of Paul Warnke to be disarmament chief and strategic arms negotiator.

Warnke, the subject of hot controversy on Capitol Hill, was George McGovern's top national security adviser during the 1972 presidential campaign. He subscribes to what might be called the Tooth Fairy theory of national security. It is based, in effect, on the wretched thought that if we disarm unilaterally and willingly, the Russians will promptly follow suit.

The history of the Soviet arms buildup (and foreign policy moves) in recent years offers plenty of proof that this won't happen, but Warnke has promoted the idea consistently at least since 1969.
McGovern's 1972 proposals, which Warnke defended, called for sharp curtailment of U.S. strategic weapons systems.

In 1974, Warnke came out in favor of a systematic three per cent per year reduction in the defense budget (in constant dollars). In the current (Fiscal Year 1978) Federal budget, that would have amounted to a reduction of nearly $30 billion from present levels, at a time when recent revelations have shown that the Soviets have been spending far more on defense than we had believed.

Warnke's wishful thinking about Soviet behavior was spelled out in some detail in an article in the quarterly, Foreign Policy, in its current (Fiscal Year 1978) Federal budget, that would have amounted to a reduction of nearly $30 billion from present levels, at a time when recent revelations have shown that the Soviets have been spending far more on defense than we had believed.

Later in the report, Lilly commented: "What started off as a widely supported effort to accomplish certain socially desirable objectives through regulation has now grown into a gigantic that the industry is having an increasingly difficult time accomplishing its socially beneficial objective, that of producing iron and steel."
While regulation has a long and necessary history, Lilly said "The scope of government intervention is growing by leaps and bounds."

The number of agencies affecting the industry remained static at 13 from 1960 to 1966, he said, but rose by 4 from 1966 to 1969. By 1970, 5 more had been added; and between 1970 and 1973, 7 additional.

Letters to the editor are welcomed for publication. All letters must be signed, with a mailing address and, if possible, a telephone number so the identity of the writer may be verified. The Evening Herald will respect the wishes of writers who do not want their names in print. The Evening Herald also reserves the right to edit letters to eliminate libel or to conform to space requirements.

Now the church schools want to go ahead with larger-scale integration. Last May the Catholic bishop's conference decided firmly to do so, with government permission if possible, without it if necessary. The Anglican and Methodist schools also began thinking along the same lines but more slowly. The government remained non-committal. Then, as the school year opened in January, several Catholic schools went ahead and enrolled some South African black pupils.

WORLD IN BRIEF

Soviet Dissident Asks Carter To Aid Prisoners

MOSCOW (AP) — Human rights activist Andrei Sakharov has replied to President Carter's promise to help secure the release of political prisoners by asking Carter to intervene immediately on behalf of three ailing dissidents.
Carter in a personal letter to Sakharov delivered Thursday said human rights is a "central concern" of his administration, and he would use his "good offices" to seek the release of prisoners of conscience.

Israeli Hit Sales Refusal

TEL AVIV, Israel (AP) — Israeli officials described President Carter's refusal to sell concussion bombs to Israel as one of several "irritants" by the new U.S. administration and a psychological hangover from the Vietnam War. Egyptian President Anwar Sadat hailed the ban as "great statesmanship" and a "very positive and creative step."

SEA Offers Talk 'Swap': Lower $ For July 1 Pact

By DARRYL RICE
Head Staff Writer
Seminole County Education (SEA) negotiators Thursday offered a last-minute "swap" to accept the current $9,800 base salary for the school board's agreement to have the new contract retroactive to last July 1.
This bid came just prior to the end of a marathon afternoon - and evening session, which earlier had seen the SEA come down from their $9,800 base salary demand to $9,360. SEA had presented a package of proposals totaling more than $100,000 in savings to the school board, Steve Rosenthal, its chief negotiator said.

flowing straight hair. They hung on the fence, eyes widened, little half smiles and moistened lips following any set of racing silks that came into view — no, correct that: they followed almost any CLEAN set of racing silks that came into view. There is that one way to distinguish the drivers from their crews.
Then there were the men. If their clothes were clean they were either members of the press or spectators. (Well — some of the spectators had clean clothes, anyhow.)
There was an interesting consistency to the men watching the race. They seemed almost without exception to be between 30 and 50, most of them muddily and unhappily aware of the fact they were growing older, that it was time their dreams were brought into focus; that life, if it was not going to pass them by, had better develop some interesting aspects — fast.

Petty In 500 Move

DAYTONA BEACH (AP) — The driver with the secret to Daytona International Speedway's 31-degree banks is Richard Petty.

He made that obvious Thursday with a runaway victory in one of a pair of 125-mile qualifying races for Sunday's 500-mile Daytona 500. It made him the favorite to win the nation's richest stock car race for the sixth time. No one else has won it more than once.

Petty shrugged off the favorite's role. "I only ran off from half the people," he said. "They'll all be racing me Sunday, especially Cale Yarborough and Darrell Waltrip."

Yarborough, in a Chevrolet, won the other qualifying race. Waltrip gave him a close battle until running out of gas with one lap to go and making an un-scheduled pit stop.

While Petty's speed of 178.56 miles per hour was the second fastest NASCAR race ever run, Yarborough was before a NASCAR flag flew the final four laps and trimmed his average to 171.629.

Yarborough set the all-time record of 182.956 in the 1970 before the regulations restricted carburetor intake openings on the superchargers such as the 2.5-mile Daytona International.

Bobby Allison, whose Matara finished behind Petty's Dodge, said, "Petty obviously was just handling superior to everybody else."

Among the 42 drivers in Sunday's race will be Janet Guthrie, the first woman to qualify for the Daytona 500. The combination of her 18th-place finish in the qualifying race and her 190.603 m.p.h. qualifying speed earned her the 40th spot in the field.

Despite the victories by Yarborough and Petty, Donnie Allison and A.J. Foyt will start their Chevrolets in the front row Sunday. They earned it with the fastest one-lap qualifying speed last Sunday. Allison did 188.048 and Foyt 187.704. Petty and Yarborough will be in the second row.

David Pearson, who came out of a grinding crash in the 500 stretch and beat Petty in the hour race, will start his Mercury in the third row, along with former winner Benny Parsons in a Chevrolet.

Bobby Allison and Buddy Baker, in a Ford, are next. Building up to the big event will be the Permatex 300-mile first round of District 6's regular season, Seminole completed Thursday night, with only one surprise, a Gainesville defeating Spruce Creek, 58-53.

Lake Branley crushed DeLand, 57-38, after a third quarter typical of Branley's superb shooting ability. The Bulldogs had trailed by only a few points during the first half, but the Pals broke it open in the third and racked up 18 points in the third.

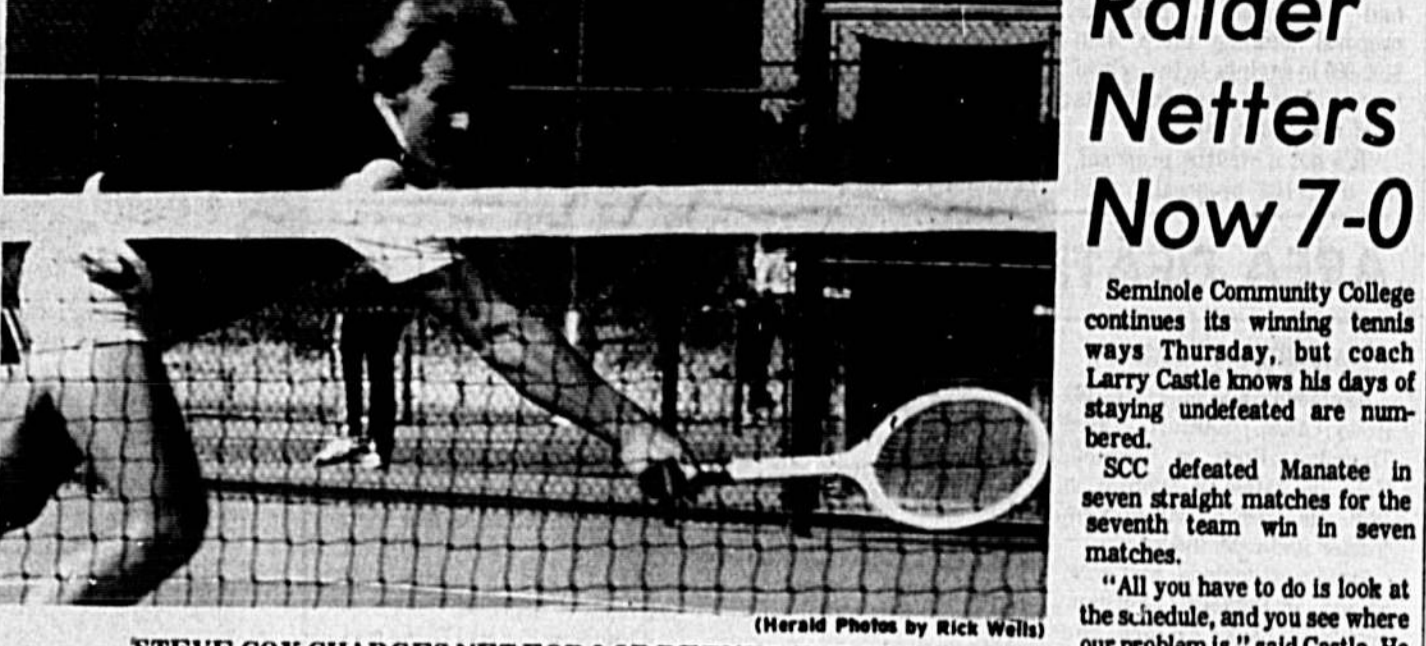

High scorers for the Branley team were Teresa Tinsley (10), Lon Floyd (10), and Gene Nickman (10). Meg Fahy led in free throws, sinking five out of ten. Mainland and Gainesville will open tonight's round at 8, with the Patriot-Sandbar game some sharp shooting by Carla Johnson and Lori Sullivan, who were unaffiliated by Seminole's zone-press.

Other games went much as expected, with Mainland demolishing Lyman, 67-32, and Gainesville defeating Spruce Creek, 58-53.

LA Next For PGA

LOS ANGELES (AP) — "We call him 'Mr. Massengale,'" said Jim "Mr. Massengale," who just missed a share of the lead in a late-afternoon fog.

"I'm tickled to death to be just one shot back of Mr. Massengale — we call him 'Mr. Massengale' when he's playing like he is right now," Watkins observed after an opening 66 that wasn't quite good enough Thursday in the first round of the $200,000 Glen Campbell-Los Angeles Open Golf Tournament.

Watkins, a record-setting, runaway winner of last week's Bob Hope Desert Golf Classic, still has his string going. He now has led the last six rounds of competition on the pro golf tour and is a total of 29 under par for those days played.

"When," someone asked, are you going to cool off? "Too soon," Rik said with a smile. "I'm not sure if it'll be, but it'll be too soon."

Massengale, who led all five rounds of the Hope and won by six strokes with a 23 under par total, followed up with a six-under-par 65 — including birdies on his first four holes — in the first round of this tournament, an event he'd originally planned to skip.

...THE HOPE OF OUR COMMUNITY, THE Church... OUR NATION! SOMETIMES... SO HARD

There is no denying that there's much sadness in the world. And if we let pessimism get the better of us... It's not the darkness itself that's so dark... It's the light of hope that's hidden by the frustrations of life.

Jesus Christ should never be thought of as a sad man... He was the light of the world... Come with us Sunday and face the Light.

'Roughage' Diet Okay For Ulcer

Dr. Lamb

DEAR DR. LAMB—Two years ago I passed out from lack of blood and was rushed to the hospital. An X-ray showed I had a hiatal hernia. I was lucky as they were able to give me blood and stop the bleeding.

Would it be all right in my case to continue on the roughage diet you suggested in one of your columns? I am concerned about it being rough and passing the place where the hernia is located. The doctor wants me to take Tylenol instead of aspirin. I have heard that Tylenol has some bad side effects and shouldn't be taken.

I have had constipation for a number of years and have such wonderful results since trying your roughage diet. I know it isn't rough after it gets into the intestines but I am worried about how rough it is on the hiatal hernia or to the ulcer patient. I will be very anxious to hear from you.

DEAR READER—If you use one of the bran breakfast foods and allow the cereal to stand in sufficient milk it will be quite soft by the time you start to eat it. In this condition it will not harm the hiatal hernia or an ulcer.

You may have had a small ulcer of the lower esophagus where the hiatal hernia is located. That sometimes occurs and may be associated with bleeding—sometimes massive as you must have experienced. Tylenol has some side effects as do all medicines, including aspirin. Since you are not taking any medicines, that tends to prevent blood clotting, as used in heart patients, it is probably good advice in your case to use it instead of aspirin. Aspirin can prolong a normal person's blood clotting time and in large amounts—sometimes not so

 Opening lead—K ♣

East signalled with the jack of hearts at trick one so West continued with the ace and another heart. East ruffed and South overruffed.

South cashed one of his high trumps, led a second trump to dummy, led the queen of clubs and dropped his jack under it. West gathered in the third defensive trick with the king and led a club back.

With three tricks down the drain, South paused to study the diamond situation. He could take a simple finesse against the queen but that finesse wasn't going to succeed. A review of the bidding found that West had been totally quiet like the dog that failed to bark in the night. With six hearts to the ace-king and the king of clubs, West would surely have opened the bidding if he held the queen of diamonds.

There was still a ray of hope. West could hold the diamond 10. So South won the club with dummy's 10 and led the jack of diamonds. East covered with the queen. It wasn't going to do him any good to duck. East took his ace, led a second diamond, finessed dummy's nine and was home.

SANFORD COULD BE FIRST IN STATE

Homesteading

Wonder Woman, where are you? That's the question some top-ranking county executives are asking as the popular television series comes to life starring a "stacked" female superstar as the incredible Wonder Woman.

Since few of the women working at the courthouse measured up in toto, one director told the EAR that a composite was the only remaining answer. Yea, Earlings, you guessed it. Courthouse employees were chosen to represent certain Wonder Woman attributes. Put them all together—and presto, Seminole County's very own Wonder Woman.

A little EARing around, and we learned who has been chosen to represent the composite that makes up Seminole's "Manly" conception of the woman who's got it all.

The EAR obtained that "highly classified" document. Some females knew about the "Composite Game," others didn't.

Here's names that made up the "Confidential!" Wonder Woman of law, Thursday: Penny Salerno, of purchasing; Deborah Rusiano, of county planning; Jennifer "Jeni" Hicks, of personnel; Sissie DePasquale, formerly of OMAE; and Linda Eland, of administrative services.

The composite game is all in fun. And EAR sources say the next composite executives are shooting for is Farrah Fawcett Majors, the curly movie star.

The EAR hears where Sheriff John Spolski suspects there's an angry thief out there...While he was attending classes one night last week at Seminole Community College someone made off with the high-gain two-way radio antenna that was mounted on Spolski's unmarked sheriff's car.

He chuckles that when the thief hooks the antenna up to a citizens band radio he can look for fireworks...seems the stolen antenna looks a lot like a CB antenna but electrically it won't match up...It could short out things and put a end of commission. The EAR is proud of Spolski's loyalty...although the college is inside the city of Sanford, Spolski reported the theft to the sheriff's department—not the city police.

On your next visit to the Central Florida Zoo Earlings, you may notice happier-than-usual smiles on the faces of zoo employees.

The smiles are not just because the people down there are working with beautiful animals, but because the Central Florida Zoological Society trustees have approved an across-the-board five per cent pay hike for zoo employees.

Employees have been toasting the breaddline for a long time, and for just one reason: they love animals and care about them too much to quit and find better-paying jobs.

Healthier looking animals and a cleaner zoo would be hard to find.

EARmuffs off to you, trustees. As president John Sobik says: "We can't really afford to give pay raises—but we can't afford not to."

Sanford Mayor Lee P. Moore isn't looking forward to public hearings on the city's plan for a landfill on the west side of town, EARlings.

Members of the 46-A Environmental Protection Association are fighting the city's plan, and the issue eventually will be discussed in public hearings.

Such hearings, says Hizenner the mayor, will be "like going through the agonies of the damned."

Politics may make strange bedfellows (the EAR heard that somewhere)—but not always table-fellows...as new Lake Mary Councilman Cliff Nelson found out...Featured as one of the "non-politicians" in the Evening Herald, Nelson tried to join a table of cronies at Jim Spencer's only to be turned away...only politicians allowed here, Nelson was informed...The EAR's not sure if Nelson cried in his beer; but he was reportedly disillusioned...Stay cool, Cliff, your new status will grow on them...

loans, pay property taxes and utility charges and maintain the home.

And Wilson said he "would like to see" Sanford's program include a provision that would allow the city to reclaim through condemnation any homes allowed to deteriorate by the homesteaders after they have taken title to the houses.

Baltimore runs the oldest urban homesteading program in the nation, said William Bronahan, the city's chief of city-owned property management.

The program began in late 1972, using abandoned properties the city acquired through foreclosures due to non-payment of property taxes. More than 300 homesteaders have taken advantage of the program.

Urban homesteading is not considered a low-income housing program. Baltimore's homesteaders have annual incomes ranging from $5,500 to over $10,000.

In Dallas, the minimum homesteader annual income is $4,800 a year, but Homesteading Coordinator Karey Morris said, "We

HISTORIC BLAZE

Seminole County firemen battle blaze that caused an estimated $45,000 damage to the historic Meriwether House on Colony Avenue east of Sanford Friday evening. Officials blamed the fire on a short-circuit in air-conditioning unit, causing flames to engulf front of house (left photo) and rear (right photo). Fireman Michael Weiss, 22, suffered an injured shoulder and was treated at Seminole Memorial Hospital. Three engines were used in the incident.
