U.S. jets help in fighting

MANILA, Philippines — U.S. fighter jets are helping to defeat a coup attempt against Philippine President Corason Aquino. Renegade troops stormed the presidential palace and seized U.S. military bases in the coup. There is no indication that Aquino was hurt in the coup attempt.

Officials say some 30 rebel officers and 300 renegade soldiers had surrendered, but another 500 rebels were still holding out at the army headquarters at Fort Benifacio, the air force headquarters at Villamor Air Base and the government television station.

Stone named county chairman

SANFORD — Rep. Frank Stone, R. Casselberry, was unanimously selected as the Seminole County Legislative Delegation chairman for the 1989-90 term. Sen. Richard "Dick" Langley, R. Clermont, was unanimously selected vice chairman.

Legislators also set two upcoming delegation meetings. They will be hosted at a breakfast meeting by the Greater Sanford Chamber of Commerce at Sanford City Hall at 9:30 a.m. Jan. 23. The next public meeting will be at 8:30 p.m. Feb. 15 at Winter Springs City Hall.

Lake Mary approves stop signs

LAKE MARY — Six city intersections will soon have three-way stop signs to relieve traffic congestion in the southeast section of Lake Mary, city commissioners decided last night.

They hope the stop signs, expected to be put up in about two weeks, will reduce speeds and discourage through-traffic from using the roadways. Multi-stop intersections will be at Washington Avenue and Fifth Street, Main Road and Morning Dove Circle, Lake Road and Pugh Street, Lakeview Avenue and Eighth Street, Wilson Avenue and Seventh Street and Wilson Avenue and Lakeview Avenue.

The recommendation was presented during a special meeting to review alternatives before imposing a ban on development in the southeast area of the city for eight months.

The commission will also update the transportation figures in the city's comprehensive plan and to make the definitions of roadways more consistent with those of the state Department of Transportation and the county.

Central Florida included in area that may get space junk shower

United Press International

Dying NASA satellite Solar Max hurtled toward disintegration tonight with military trackers warning of a potentially dangerous shower of debris over a wide area, including Central Florida.

Latest estimates by the North American Aerospace Defense Command put the re-entry time around 10:45 p.m. EST — "plus or minus six hours," a NORAD spokesman said from Colorado Springs, Colo.

The National Aeronautics and Space Administration said it appeared likely the 5,000-pound robotic solar observatory, which was reported at an altitude of 120 miles Thursday, would disintegrate over water somewhere between 28 degrees north and 28 degrees south of the equator.

But that swath of the planet also includes land — wide areas of Texas, Florida, Central America, South America and Africa — and military sky watchers planned to notify civil authorities if red-hot debris threatened populated areas.

"If it was coming in central Africa, for example, we would notify through channels and the State Department would take over," said Army Capt. Thomas Niemann, a spokesman for the U.S. Space Command.

But Niemann said ground trackers would not have any idea where the space junk would fall until a few hours before the final, fiery impact.

Solar Max, officially known as the Solar Maximum Mission satellite, was launched atop a Delta rocket on Valentine's Day 1980 and spent a successful decade studying the sun from high above Earth's obscuring atmosphere.

SANFORD — About 600 boats this weekend will sail Lake Monroe in the Red Lobster Cup, called the largest inland regatta in the world.

The seventeenth annual Red Lobster Cup, as part of the Florida Citrus Bowl, will begin this evening with sailing seminars. Races in nearly 50 classes of boats begin tomorrow at noon and continue through Sunday.

Between 800 and 1,000 sailors are expected to participate in the event. Some of the renown sailors competing are David Barnes, skipper of New Zealand's challenger in last year's controversial America's Cup race. Olympic gold medalist Robbie Haines and America's Cup veteran Russ Silvestri.

"The economic impact on Sanford will be tremendous," Greater Sanford Chamber of Commerce Executive Director Dave Farr said.

Rod Isler, navigator of Dennis Connor's Stars and Stripes in 1987 and 1988 America's Cup competition, will conduct sailing seminars at the Sanford Civic Center from 5:30 to 9 p.m. today.

Classes of boats competing in the regatta this weekend range from catamarans and sailboards to 27-foot cruisers and optimist dinghies.

Sailing World magazine recognizes the Red Lobster Cup as the largest inland regatta in the world.

The regatta is sponsored by Red Lobster and the Orlando Yacht Club.

Races tomorrow begin at noon, running through 5:30 p.m. The final two races will be Sunday at 9:30 a.m. Trophies will be presented at 3 p.m.

This year sailors will select the winner of a sportsmanship award honoring Tom Blackaller, a former America's Cup skipper who died of a heart attack in September. Christina Blackaller, the sailor's wife, will present the award Sunday.

Historic homes tour tomorrow

SANFORD — Eight downtown homes will be featured in the Sanford Historic Trust tour of homes tomorrow.

The tour will showcase interiors of homes in the downtown district, which is under consideration for listing on the National Register of Historic Places.

Light Up Sanford, a campaign to decorate downtown homes and businesses for the St. Lucia Festival, will kick off tomorrow during the tour. Mayor Bettye Smith will officially begin Light Up Sanford at 6 p.m. with the lighting of the city Christmas tree at city hall.

The selection of homes includes a variety of architectural and decor styles. The homes, built between 1887 and 1925, represent dominant styles of architecture in the downtown residential neighborhood, including Colonial Revival, Queen Anne and Mission styles.

Art deco, country, Victorian and eclectic decor are some of the interior design styles represented by the homes on the tour.

SHA head lashes out at critics

By LAURA L. SULLIVAN

SANFORD — In her first response to criticisms of Sanford Housing Authority staff made by the city commission two months ago, SHA interim executive director Linda Williams said in an emotional letter to the agency's board the criticisms were based on politics, not on objective evaluations.

The city commission voted Oct. 9 to endorse the SHA board's decision in March to adopt private management in a letter to the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development after the federal government rejected a contract negotiated between SHA and the Furr Company of Coral Gables. At that time, some of the city commissioners said they supported private management as a way to remedy poor staff productivity and conflicts with the board.

"I am convinced that the management team concept, from our local legislators' point of view, is theoretically political. However, I

Rash of semi truck thefts hits Sanford

By SUSAN LEBEN
Herald staff writer

SANFORD — Police are stopping suspicious semi-tractor trailer trucks in Sanford after several have been stolen and abandoned.

The last theft occurred Nov. 24. The semi-tractor trailer stolen from K&W Trucking, 1300 S. French Ave., was recovered that day on 22nd Street at Magnolia Avenue in Sanford. The attached trailer, full of watercrans, was recovered the following day in Oviedo. Police Chief Steven Harriett said.

At the same time an attempt was made to steal another semi-tractor trailer. A window was broken and the truck was moved, but not stolen. A radar detector was missing from the truck, Harriett said.

A semi-tractor trailer stolen from the same location Nov. 11 or 12 was found in Oviedo. Harriett said the truck was reported missing at about 7 a.m. Nov. 12. About 10 minutes later, Seminole County sheriff's deputies found the truck stuck and abandoned in Oviedo, Harriett said.

Also on Nov. 11, an unsuccessful attempt was made to

Twin-engine plane crash kills two

ORLANDO — Two people died late Thursday when their twin-engine plane crashed on take off at the Orlando Executive Airport, officials said Friday.

Terri Phillips, a spokeswoman for the Orlando Fire Department, said the victims, a man and a woman, have not been identified. She said the plane apparently flipped over as it fell from the sky, landing upside down about three-fourths of the way down the runway.

The Piper Aerostar was registered to a Miami company and was bound for Marathon in the Florida Keys, Phillips said.

Karen weakens, rains diminish

MIAMI — Tropical Storm Karen weakened Friday morning as it slowly wandered over the open waters of the Caribbean, still bringing some rain to Cuba but posing no severe threat, forecasters said.

Karen, which dumped as much as 14 inches of rain on Cuba, was expected to stall in the sea and decrease in strength over the next few days, said Miles Lawrence, a forecaster at the National Hurricane Center in Miami.

This morning, Karen was centered at latitude 16.1 north, longitude 83.0 west, or about 200 miles south of Havana and was moving south at about 8 mph, forecasters said. Highest sustained winds were about 45 mph, down from 55 mph reported Thursday.

Tammy Faye packs; nowhere to go

ORLANDO — Tammy Faye Bakker and followers of imprisoned evangelist Jim Bakker packed up their ministry Thursday to move out of a shopping center for points unknown, even to them.

"I guess you could say we're all packed up with nowhere to go," spokesman Donnie Beck said of the television ministry. "We're in the process of loading the truck now, but we still don't know where we're going."

"I wish I could tell you more, but that's just the way things have been for the last couple of years," he added.

Death not sought in starvation case

MILTON — The state will not ask for the death penalty if an evangelist is convicted of murder in the 1986 starvation death of a 4-year-old girl, a prosecutor said Thursday.

Mary Nicholson, 39, of Pace, was charged in April with first-degree murder and aggravated child abuse in the Feb. 8, 1986 death of Kimberly McZinc, who was living with her mother in Nicholson's trailer at the time of her death.

Assistant State Attorney Kim Skievaski said that if Nicholson is convicted there would not be enough evidence of aggravating circumstances to merit capital punishment.

During a trial last March, McZinc's mother pleaded guilty to third-degree murder just as the jury was beginning deliberations. Darlene Jackson, 33, claimed Nicholson convinced her Kimberly was possessed by demons.

Miami cop describes fatal shooting

MIAMI — A Hispanic policeman on trial for manslaughter in the shooting of a black motorcyclist that sparked three days of racial riots testified Thursday he fired because he believed the man was going to run him down.

Police Officer William Lozano, 31, testified in Circuit Court that he was talking with a resident of Miami's black Overtown neighborhood when Clement Light, 29, came racing down the street.

Lozano said that at first he did not spot the powerful Kawasaki Ninja 600 motorcycle, which was being chased by a police car the night of last Jan. 16.

Lozano, being questioned on the witness stand by defense attorney Roy Black, said that when he noticed the motorcycle, it was heading straight for him and he barely had time to react.

"He came straight at me and he was just coming right at me," Lozano said. "I was just able to turn my body and shoot. He came close to me and I thought I was going to die," he said, and realized that I was still in one piece."

Police seek killer of greyhounds

LIVE OAK — Police were still looking Friday for a man and woman thought to be responsible for the deaths of 100 starling greyhounds.

Animal cruelty charges were filed two months ago against Don Mitten and Debbie Johnson, the owner and caretaker of the dogs, Suwannee County officials said. Because the charges are misdemeanors, extradition is thought to be nearly impossible.

Mitten owned 106 greyhounds that were in Johnson's care at the Dowling Park Clinic in Suwannee County. But the dogs were left without food or water and were in poor health when found three months ago, officials said. All but six of the animals had to be destroyed.

Mitten may have fled to Indiana, officials said, but it is not known where Johnson has gone.

Man accused of assaulting girl

SANFORD — A South Carolina man is accused of fondling a 15-year-old Sanford girl in a car in Sanford in September. Police said Robert Lee Whalen, of Aiken, S.C., surrendered at the police station at 10:30 a.m. Wednesday. He is charged with committing a lewd and lascivious assault on a child.

Arrest made in tire theft

CASSELBERRY — A man who allegedly brought stolen tires to a Casseberry tire company to use if they fit his vehicle Wednesday was arrested for burglary to a vehicle and grand theft.

Casseberry police said the manager of Allied Discount Tires on State Road 436, recognized the tires as possibly being stolen. The manager told police he had received a call earlier Wednesday from a man who said similar tires had been stolen from his truck at 1630 Emerald Lake Cove, Casseberry, Tuesday night.

Police reportedly confirmed that the tires the suspect brought to the store were the stolen tires. They arrested James Malone Turner, 22, 1212 Via Del Mar, Winter Park, at the store at 11:16 a.m. Wednesday.

Teachers may be suspended; parents say they're confused

By VICKI BOGGS
 Herald staff writer

SANFORD — Parents whose children saw portions of a horror film at Goldsboro Elementary School said they are more confused and angry now than before the school gave the results of their investigation.

Yesterday afternoon, about a dozen parents and their attorney viewed the portions of "A Nightmare on Elm Street: Dream Warriors" that their children saw. The kindergarten and first-grade students saw portions of the movie during a rain-out physical education class Nov. 16.

Parents have protested, saying their children have had nightmares because of the movie. Parents say their trust in the school system in general and Goldsboro in particular has been broken. Several parents have pulled their children out of the school and refuse to allow them to attend Goldsboro.

Goldsboro principal Geraldine Wright told the parents yesterday she is recommending a five-day suspension without pay for the two teachers involved. A teacher's aide who was also involved will not be punished, Wright said. The suspension will not occur until Jan. 16, when the school board can discuss the matter.

Ann Nieswender, Seminole County School Board chairman, attended the viewing yesterday but sat apart from the parents, refusing to speak.

Parents who attended yesterday's showing were confused and angry, claiming the school was not showing them all their children had seen.

At yesterday's viewing, assistant principal Arthur McDaniel presented three tapes to the parents. Originally, school officials said the students had seen a video tape of cartoons and a documentary of the making of the movie "Batman" which had been taped over "A Nightmare on Elm Street: Dream Warriors." The officials had said that when the documentary had ended, a snippet of the horror film had been allowed to run before the videotape machine had been switched off.

Yesterday, McDaniel played about 15 of the 35 minute-long

Task force considers river restrictions

By J. MARK SANFORD
 Herald staff writer

SANFORD — Members of a state and local task force will consider imposing strict development regulations on the Econlockhatchee River. Restrictions officials say may be as stringent as those on the Wekiva River.

A draft of a University of Florida study won't be released until mid-December when it has been reviewed, but researchers gave the Econlockhatchee Basin Task Force members a glimpse of the regulations they are considering.

The task force was created earlier this year to study protection and preservation of the river basin through south Seminole County into Orange and Osceola Counties.

Among the recommendations suggested by scientists from the UF Center for Wetlands was the creation of "setback" buffers along the banks of the river. Development would be severely limited beyond those buffers toward the river's edge. Last year, the St. Johns River Water Management District established a controversial 550-foot setback of development from the Wekiva River.

Other recommendations include prevention of disturbing of vegetation near the river and altering the overland water flow to the river. One suggestion would require drainage ditches to be vegetated and planted, turning them into natural-appearing creeks.

Another suggestion being reviewed by task force staff with the St. Johns River Water Management District would prevent development that substantially drives away wildlife in the river area.

Cheryl Taubenesc, government affairs director for the Home Builder's Association of Mid-Florida, told task force members the HBA supports "reasonable" protection of the environment "compatible" with development interests.

But Taubenesc also told task force members landowners should be paid for their land and not be required to donate environmentally-sensitive portions of their property to state or local governments.

"Sensitive lands are a valuable resource, a valuable resource that must be paid for by the state and not private property owners without reasonable compensation."

Taubenesc said the HBA supports increased appropriations to the state Conservation and Recreation Lands purchase program.

The task force is comprised of governor's appointments, county commissioners from the three counties, environmentalists and businessmen.

Unrelieved tensions

While the free world celebrates East Germany's emergence from the dark ages of totalitarian rule, South Africa's President F.W. de Klerk has every reason to view fast-moving events in Eastern Europe with apprehension.

In East Germany, the pent-up frustration of 20 million East Germans suddenly spilled over and forced open the despised Berlin Wall. In South Africa, 28 million blacks still impatiently await the tearing down of the wall of apartheid that blights their lives.

Similarities abound between the governments of East Germany and South Africa. Both have denied their citizens basic human rights for decades.

It is true that Mr. de Klerk has gone further than any of his National Party predecessors by permitting anti-government demonstrations, releasing leading black political prisoners and meeting with black church leaders. He also seems to be judging white voters toward acceptance of the communist-backed African National Congress, whose military wing, Umkhonto We Sizwe (Spear of the Nation) was founded by Nelson Mandela. Pretoria has also announced that it would legalize the desegregation of beaches and other public facilities, although in many communities most of all such amenities are already open to all races.

But the basic cornerstones of apartheid, the system whereby South Africans are classified at birth according to race, are still firmly in place. The Population Registration Act, the Group Areas Act and other restrictive laws created to provide and control a cheap black work force for white commerce and industry, still burden the statute books.

The question therefore is whether Mr. de Klerk can dismantle the bricks of the apartheid wall before frustrated blacks, inspired by East Germany's example, rush to knock it over themselves.

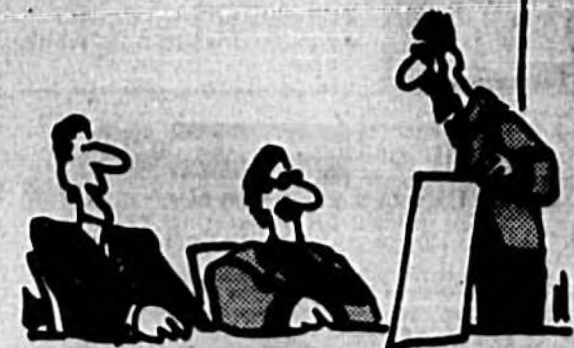

Even moderate black leaders complain of the shallowness of the white government's reform moves so far. The fact that Pretoria's propaganda machine presents them as profound changes in the social and political structure is an indication of how deep apartheid's roots have grown.

Like East Germans, dissident South Africans have found it next to impossible to communicate with their leaders. The banned ANC, for example, was for many years a non-violent organization promoting African nationalism. Its leader, Albert Lutulu, received the Nobel Peace Prize. But its peaceful message to Pretoria was consistently ignored and its pleas for dialogue pointedly thrust aside. In desperation, the ANC finally turned to violence to make its voice heard.

Although Mr. de Klerk recognizes the urgent need to implement power-sharing talks with black leaders, his attitude toward the ANC remains puzzlingly uncertain. Although he has released Walter Sisulu and other ANC members, the movement's internationally recognized leader, Nelson Mandela, remains a prisoner. The organization itself is still on the banned list. And Mr. de Klerk's police still pursue its members vigorously. Earlier this month, three white guerrillas were sentenced to jail terms ranging from 18 to 25 years after being convicted on charges of terrorism. No one was injured or killed as a result of their actions.

Anti-apartheid and human rights groups who criticized the harshness of the sentences say they indicated intolerance just when Pretoria should be creating a climate of reconciliation and peace. Precisely. It is up to Mr. de Klerk to initiate reform talks and to do so promptly before events overtake him. Like East Germans, South Africans cannot be denied basic human rights indefinitely.

Let nations escape the Cold War

The reason I hope Germany does become united is the same reason I want to live long enough to see Ireland unified, Korea unified, an Israeli-Palestinian acceptance of mutual sovereignty and the United States out of Nicaragua and El Salvador. The world has suffered too long from geo-political partitioning.

The imperialistic arrogance that two nuclear-powered antagonists can reorder the world in their own images is no longer militarily sane or economically logical. The lust for freedom among East Germans, Czechoslovaks and Poles is no different than the revolutionary fervor being proclaimed among Nicaraguans and Salvadorans. The "winds of change" that former British Prime Minister Harold Macmillan applied to Africa 25 years ago are now sweeping through Eastern Europe and Central America. Like King Canute standing before the ocean, the Soviets and Americans suffer from a similar delusional folly if they seriously think they can permanently contain change within their regional power blocs.

Yet comments by "experts" since the Berlin Wall tumbled like the fabled walls of Jericho indicate they suffer from historical amnesia and hypocrisy. Republicans, who seem oblivious to the Soviet economy's dire straits, have given the credit for glasnost to that scoundrel who formerly occupied the White House, instead of to the new breed of Soviet leadership that instituted the changes. George F. Kennan, the distinguished scholar and authority on Russia, is cautioning against "loose talk" about German reunification and insists that it is "unthinkable without widespread agreement among all these parties," i.e. the United States, the Soviet Union and other European powers. Kennan, father of the containment policy that has been in force for more than 40 years, seems to have forgotten that there was no similar "widespread agreement" when the free elections demonstrations erupted in Eastern Europe.

The only logical result is a reunified Germany.

President Carter's Cold War advocate, Zbigniew Brzezinski, is still reliving the fantasies of his past when he urges President Bush to lobby for a new arrangement with a "confederation of the two Germans."

Former Secretary of State Henry Kissinger has a more realistic outlook. In one of those rare moments when he has permitted historical realism to take precedence over his massive ego, he has conceded that "the reunification of Germany is now inevitable."

He's right. Once the Berlin Wall is destroyed, both as a barrier and a symbol, the only logical result is a reunified Germany. Germany was partitioned into two ideological camps only because a U.S.-USSR Cold War had begun to ferment. Had there been only one victor in World War II, there would have been only one Germany in defeat.

Given that East and West Germans still feel they have more in common with each other than they do with anyone else, it's probable that a reunified Germany will opt not to align itself with either bloc in the Cold War and instead become an independent nuclear-powered "fourth force" in world affairs. Germany reunified can only mean the Cold War mollified. And that means rethinking assumptions we've been operating under for more than 40 years.

College football is disgusting

WASHINGTON — Crisp autumn Saturday morning, second cup of coffee, sports pages full of football news.

Crime wave update from the University of Oklahoma: No more shootings or cocaine busts, but the criminal-justice system is booming some more Sooners, this time two convicted of rape. At Notre Dame, coach Lou Holtz is not having fun. His number-one ranked Irish are brawling with opponents (before kickoffs, on the field). University officials are delivering a forearm across the windshield to the idea that Holtz was in any way connected with illegal payments to players at Minnesota, his last coaching stop.

Colorado is challenging Notre Dame for dominance. More than two-dozen Colorado players were arrested in a recent three-year period, charges ranging from trespassing, assault and burglary through rape. Hmmm. No news this day from Florida. But in a 220 day period, the University of Florida fired its football coach (the one hired five years ago to replace a cheater) for cheating, and its basketball coach and three of his assistants, and lost two quarterbacks this autumn for gambling. It is hard to keep up that pace of scandal.

But the big story is the NFL's permanent suspension of Washington Redskins' defensive end Dexter Manley for a third drug offense. He is the second Redskin lost to drugs this month. Team officials suspected trouble when Dexter missed an appointment with his reading tutor.

Where did Manley learn that there really are no rules, that drug laws are not serious, that football players can do an end-run around reality? In school.

Before becoming a Redskin, Manley spend four years making a lot of tackles and money for Oklahoma State University. Restaurants and motel operators in Billwater thank him. He left school without a degree (like most NFL players) and still unable to read.

Now Manley has fumbled away millions of dollars. No more of the custom-tailored suits he has been sporting for years. "I'm not gonna say how I got them. It was my senior year in high school, so you put it together. I had 37 scholarship offers. So, that's how it works."

Does college football form character? Sure does, by teaching cynicism. Nearly one-third of NFL players responding to a survey say they received illegal payments in college — slipped under dormitory doors, passed in congratulatory handshakes, left in helmets.

Come for a stroll along the banks of the open sewer that runs through many campuses. Read "The Hundred Yard Lie" by Rick Telander, formerly lead college football writer for Sports Illustrated. Formerly, his book is his declaration of incurable disgust.

I know, robust reader — yes, you there, looking at your watch, counting the hours until kickoff — you are thinking: Lighten up. At least the players are being prepared for a profession — football — and meanwhile are generating pots of money for the math department.

False, twice. About one in 50 players makes it to the NFL, where the average career lasts about three years. And virtually all the money from college football bypasses the school's general funds and flows into the athletic department.

Telander propounds a paradox: Absence of money — amateurism: the pretense thereof — is the root of the evil of hypocrisy enveloping college football. But his solution — pay the players at least a pittance from the $500 million generate by Division I teams — would, like most reforms, make matters worse.

He is, of course, correct in saying that the players are exploited labor. (Disproportionately black labor. About 40 percent of Division I players are black. About 4 percent of students at those schools are black.) But while his proposal would help players, it would not bring hygiene to higher education.

The only solution is to sever universities from this mega-entertainment industry. If the NFL wants farm teams, let it do what baseball does: Pay for them, far from campuses.

Four reforms would help: coaches paid comparably with other faculty and given tenure; no freshman playing or practicing; no spring practice, and no fall practice before classes start; no special admissions or curricula for athletes. Some players currently take such courses as Billiards, Jogging, Advanced Slow-Pitch Softball (imagine the reading list for Elementary Slow-Pitch Softball), Trees and Shrubs and — my favorite — Recreational Leisure.

These reforms are utopian. "Student athletes" who attend real classes? Coaches as faculty members rather than entrepreneurs? Teams as appendages of universities rather than the other way around? Preposterous. There is too much money and passion on the other side.

College football, like most other smarmy features of American life, prospers by popular demand.

Nearly one-third of NFL players responding to a survey say they received illegal payments in college.

Attack campaigns are political norm

WASHINGTON — Voters in Virginia, New Jersey and New York City this year witnessed a flood of some of the most scathing negative ads ever seen in U.S. politics.

In the Virginia gubernatorial race and New York City mayoral contest, the Republican challengers began their efforts with slashing "attack" campaigns aimed directly at their Democratic opponents.

Immediately, the Democrats responded in kind. If there was one lesson they learned from Massachusetts Gov. Michael Dukakis' 1988 defeat, it was that a negative ad left unanswered will be accepted as true by many voters.

The responses of the two Democrats were slightly different, but together could provide a textbook lesson in how to counter a negative media campaign.

In Virginia, L. Douglas Wilder came out swinging directly at Republican J. Marshall Coleman's negative ads by making them a major campaign issue. In some cases Wilder ran ads using the start of an actual Coleman ad. After the Coleman ad was allowed to run for a few seconds, it was frozen while an announcer told viewers the ad was "a lie." The strategy worked so well that Coleman eventually was forced to disavow his own ad campaign — even while it continued to air.

In New Jersey, the Democrats decided to directly attack Republican Rudolph Giuliani's image-maker, Roger Ailes. Ailes — who also ran George Bush's 1988 presidential campaign — was portrayed as a sinister force pulling Giuliani's strings from behind the scenes. This ultimately blunted the message of Giuliani's negative ads.

In New Jersey, James Florio's campaign strategist, Bob Squire, chose a third method to counter an expected negative ad campaign. Squire knew that Ailes, on behalf of Courter, was planning a negative campaign that would attempt to link Florio with alleged corruption.

Squire decided to fight fire with fire. He mounted a pre-emptive negative ad campaign of his own claiming that Courter was anti-environment and a toxic-waste dumper. This put Courter on the defensive, and he never recovered.

Although slashing negative ads have become identified with GOP political operatives like Ailes, such campaigns were not limited to one party in 1989.

But 1989's campaign results have done little to settle the argument over the effectiveness of negative campaigns.

On the one hand, exit polls showed growing voter unhappiness over the flood of negative ads. Yet it is clear from the results that negative ad campaigns won some contests and made others much closer as Election Day approached.

Despite talk of growing voter backlash, there is an emerging consensus among political operatives that negative ads give a candidate the best return for his campaign dollar.

"Despite what editorialists say, voters are not that interested in issues," says Roger Ailes. "They don't remember your ads that state your candidate's position. But they do remember the ads that contrast your candidate's position with his opponent's."

Democratic pollster Peter Hart agrees: "There can't be any doubt about it. Negative ads work. They are the one kind of ad that moves the (polling) numbers. Things are getting out of hand. But until the voters themselves start to rebel, it's going to continue."

The Democrats decided to directly attack Republican Rudolph Giuliani's image-maker, Roger Ailes.

Georgetown history to be on display

SANFORD - An historical exhibit of artifacts and memorabilia depicting the founding of Georgetown, one of the city's oldest communities, will open Dec. 8 at the Margaret Reynolds Student Museum.

An opening ceremony for the exhibit, sponsored by the Georgetown Neighborhood Parents Association, will be Dec. 8 at 11 a.m. at the museum, 301 W. Seventh St. A reception will follow at First United Baptist Church, 700 Elm Ave.

Almerice Bentley, local historian who has documented Georgetown's history in a recently printed book, assembled the artifacts for the exhibit. The exhibit will also be open in conjunction with the St. Lucia Festival next weekend.

Georgetown was settled by freed black slaves who helped build the city of Sanford in the late 1800s. The community is located in east Sanford.

New SWAT team trained in Sanford

SANFORD - The Seminole County SWAT (Special Weapons and Tactics) team spent the past week training a new SWAT team for the city of Daytona Beach.

Seminole SWAT Commander Lt. Marty Lafrancesco said the new team was developed primarily to serve search warrants.

The Volusia County Sheriff's Department also has a SWAT team. In the beginning the Daytona Beach team, Lafrancesco said, will provide supplemental services, with their involvement in hostage or barricade situations coming later after the team gains experience.

tributary, Rice Creek.

It was the first criminal prosecution of a railroad for illegal dumping, a common practice because of the expense of equipping trains with toilet storage tanks.

Each car carries a maximum penalty of $5,000 and five years in prison. Prosecutors said they were not seeking a jail term but an agreement from Amtrak that it stop dumping in Florida.

Amtrak spokesmen earlier this week had threatened to shut down service to all 38 Florida stations, including the auto train and the passenger terminal in Sanford, if Amtrak was found guilty.

However, Amtrak spokeswoman Marci Larson said Thursday the passenger service will continue to operate its routes through Florida, and the rail line's lawyer, Ed Booth, said the dumping will continue.

But Larson said Amtrak will continue to ask passengers not to flush toilets while trains are traveling on bridges above Florida waterways.

State Attorney John Tanner responded that if the discharge continues, the state may bring additional criminal charges and seek imprisonment of Amtrak corporate officials. "The next move is up to Amtrak," he said.

Larson said Amtrak still had several legal options available to it, including an appeal of the verdict.

Sanctuary was set for Jan. 18, but another spokesman for the railroad said a lawsuit filed by Amtrak recently in U.S. District Court in Jacksonville seeking to protect the rail line from state penalties may settle the issue before then.

During closing arguments, which began after four days of testimony, Assistant State Attorney Dennis Bayer said the dumping practice, which Amtrak did not deny, "raises the question of how a state can enforce its environmental laws."

The state did not present any evidence during the trial that the have reason to believe there are other underlying causes for the previous board's unanimous decision to drop the executive form for contracted management as well as Sanford's position," Williams said.

Mayor Betty Smith, on behalf of the city commission, told HUD Housing Management Director James Walker in an Oct. 12 letter, "It was the opinion of the city commission that a management firm by contract would enable the housing authority to be more business-like in its operation."

Walker replied last month, "We wholeheartedly agree with the city commission that the housing authority should be managed in a business-like, efficient, and economical manner."

"Our letter to Williams, rejecting the contract, was not intended to denigrate the management firm concept. Our purpose was to point out that the proposed form of agreement did not address and conflicted with statutory and regulatory requirements of a public housing agency," Walker wrote.

Williams said no SHA commissioner and only one city commissioner has visited the housing authority grounds to understand the agency's daily business.

"I am ... dismayed that my staff is given so little consideration by concerned persons watching and objectively critiquing what we do without the humanity of making a semblance of professional contact with us," Williams said.

"The City of Sanford is just as bad. Only Commissioner Robert Thomas has expressed enough real concern for public housing in this fine city to telephone and discuss issues affecting us and come to our office and projects to get a first hand look at things. If any other city officials bothered to come this way - stop on public housing grounds - it was with police escort and certainly without our knowledge," she said.

City Commissioner Len Howell said Williams' claims about city commissioners staying away from housing authority grounds are untrue. He said he has attended a meeting, but has not visited the staff offices.

"I'm not so sure it's our position to meddle in their affairs, anyway," he said.

Howell did, however, support the city's endorsement of private management.

The role of the city commission in housing authority affairs has been questioned recently by city commissioners, SHA staff and the Seminole County branch of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People.

City Commissioner Bob Thomas, who opposed the city's endorsement of management proposals, said the vote was inconsistent with a city statement on SHA issued only one month before when employees who petitioned the city for intervention were told the city commission had no autonomy over the housing agency.

"There is much inconsistency there. It doesn't speak well for us," Thomas said. "Our responsibility begins and ends with appointing members to the housing authority board."

In August, the commission told NAACP representatives they could not remove an SHA commissioner for an ethnic comment he made during an authority meeting. The city's only responsibility to the authority is appointing members, commissioners, or staff at that time.

Howell said today he supported the move to contracted management for the housing authority as a means to end conflicts between staff and board members.

"Over the last few years, all that's been going on at the housing authority is petty bickering between staff and the board. If private management will stop that bickering and move the housing authority forward, then I'm all for it," Howell said.

Williams' letter was in response to the SHA board's 5-to-2 decision last week to deny cost-of-living and longevity pay increases for the authority's 17 full-time employees. She criticized the board for denying the increases, called for in the personnel policy set by the board, without public discussion of reasons for the denial.

The SHA commission will hold a special meeting Monday at 7 p.m. at the Reading Garden Community Center, 400 N. Locust Ave.

tributary, Rice Creek.

It was the first criminal prosecution of a railroad for illegal dumping, a common practice because of the expense of equipping trains with toilet storage tanks.

Each car carries a maximum penalty of $5,000 and five years in prison. Prosecutors said they were not seeking a jail term but an agreement from Amtrak that it stop dumping in Florida.

Amtrak spokesmen earlier this week had threatened to shut down service to all 38 Florida stations, including the auto train and the passenger terminal in Sanford, if Amtrak was found guilty.

However, Amtrak spokeswoman Marci Larson said Thursday the passenger service will continue to operate its routes through Florida, and the rail line's lawyer, Ed Booth, said the dumping will continue.

But Larson said Amtrak will continue to ask passengers not to flush toilets while trains are traveling on bridges above Florida waterways.

State Attorney John Tanner responded that if the discharge continues, the state may bring additional criminal charges and seek imprisonment of Amtrak corporate officials. "The next move is up to Amtrak," he said.

Larson said Amtrak still had several legal options available to it, including an appeal of the verdict.

Sanctuary was set for Jan. 18, but another spokesman for the railroad said a lawsuit filed by Amtrak recently in U.S. District Court in Jacksonville seeking to protect the rail line from state penalties may settle the issue before then.

During closing arguments, which began after four days of testimony, Assistant State Attorney Dennis Bayer said the dumping practice, which Amtrak did not deny, "raises the question of how a state can enforce its environmental laws."

The state did not present any evidence during the trial that the waters had polluted the water. But Bayer argued that if Amtrak is dumping it on railroad trestles, which testimony indicated, then "common sense would dictate the rest is going into state of Florida waters."

Booth argued that the state had failed for short of proving its case and directed jurors' attention to testimony earlier Thursday by Amtrak President W. Graham Clayton.

"Does he look like the kind of man ... who would come in here and say he would deliberately lead his company in violating the laws of this state? Certainly he isn't," Booth said.

Clayton, the only defense witness, testified that the state's anti-littering law "plainly should not get applied to Amtrak because we think we're authorized by federal law that controls us to be exempt from this law."

Clayton testified that Amtrak has taken some steps to accommodate Florida law.

was cut off at that point. McDaniel ejected the tape and inserted a second video, a homemade tape of "Freddy's Revenge" (another in the Nightmare on Elm Street series).

The tape was advanced to a scene where the villain is chasing a screaming teen and small child through a fiery building where the floor has begun to melt, making escape difficult. After one minute the tape was ejected.

McDaniel explained that the kindergarten class was over at that point.

When the tape was reinserted to show what the first graders had seen following "Batmania," the film was advanced to a scene in a mental hospital where several patients are discussing their experiences with Freddy Krueger. One young man slips from the room and is seduced by a young nurse who removes her uniform and begins to kiss the boy. As the machine was shut off, she has pulled the boy's tongue from his mouth with her teeth. "The teachers apparently showed that section in the fast forward mode," McDaniel said of the four and a half minute episode.

"That's not?" exclaimed parent Stephanie Smith. The mother of a first grade girl who has been withdrawn from Goldsboro and placed in a private school, Smith said she was not surprised at the content of the episodes, but rather she felt administrators had not shown them all the children had seen.

"My daughter was able to describe too many other scenes in too much detail to have made it up," Smith said.

Smith's husband, Rodney, was angered by the viewing. "I know my daughter saw more than that," he said. "She described to me scenes where Freddy (Krueger) pulled a little girl through a television set and scenes where people's veins were slashed open."

The parent's attorney, Mike Hayworth, said he is convinced there are more tapes or they saw more than the parents were shown. "I have talked to the children and they have talked to their parents. They are not so young they did not know what they were seeing."

McDaniel said he firmly believes the students saw no more than their investigation revealed, adding that some children had told the guidance counselor that they had seen the "Nightmare on Elm Street" films at home. McDaniel speculated they may have described some of the scenes to those who had not.

Hayworth said the parent's group will wait taking any action. "We're going to give the board the opportunity to act. That's what they're there for. We'll play within their parameters."

Lynne O'Grady, who has children both in kindergarten and first grade classes, said she just wants to know what happened. "There are so many different stories. I just want the real story."

Satellite

larger Skylab space station, which broke up and blasted across the sky July 11, 1979 - has succumbed to the increasing friction, or "drag," produced by the outer reaches of Earth's atmosphere.

Built at a cost of $80 million in 1978, Solar Max required repair work by spacewalking Challenger astronauts George "Pinky" Nelson and James "Ox" van Hoften in April 1984 - the first such operation conducted in orbit.

The NASA satellite could have been boosted to a higher, more stable orbit by a space shuttle. But tight budgets and an equally tight launch schedule after the Challenger accident in 1986 precluded a rescue mission.

Nonetheless, the Solar Max scientific harvest produced a bumper crop of data - including detailed observations of 12,500 solar flares.

"It's a thrill to see, say, ultraviolet or soft X-ray images of the sun, or pictures of the sun's corona that you just can't get from the ground, and see them every day, day in and day out," project scientist Joe Gurman said at NASA's Goddard Space Flight Center near Washington.

"I really don't know how to describe that thrill," Gurman said. "I suspect we'll have our work cut out for us to understand a lot of the lessons" of Solar Max.

Trucks

steal another semi-truck from the same location. Windows of the truck were broken, but nothing was stolen.

There have been no incidents this week, Harriett said. Police are keeping an eye on the trucks as their investigation continues.

All the thefts have been near the State Farmer's Market on French Avenue. "The Farmer's Market is a 24-hour operation," Harriett said. "People and trucks are coming and going all night. We're looking for anything suspicious."

The thief or thieves, he said, "obviously know something about K&W (Trucking) operations and something about 18-wheelers."

Worth Yates, owner of K&W Trucking, said he's baffled by the thefts. The thieves seem more interested in the trucks than their loads. All the trucks tampered with or stolen were loaded. The one found stuck in Oviedo Nov. 12 was loaded with chocolate. "We haven't lost any loads," he said.

Yates said he feels the perpetrator isn't a fully qualified truck driver, but is someone who has some knowledge of big trucks. However, since the two trucks actually stolen ended up with damaged clutches, Yates said, the thief isn't a qualified driver. "It's cost us quite a bit of money, because of the vandalism," he said.

Yates said he's been in Sanford 30 years and never had a problem like this before. He doesn't feel anyone has a grudge against his company, but because his trucks are parked in a more remote corner of the Farmer's Market, he said he believes the thief feels more secure striking there.

"We're taking precautions. We're looking over our shoulder," Yates said.

Gorbachev, Pope talk

VATICAN CITY — Pope John Paul II and Soviet leader Mikhail Gorbachev agreed at a historic meeting today to give "official status to our interstate relations" and discussed a possible visit by the pope to the Soviet Union, Gorbachev said.

Gorbachev met with the pontiff in a landmark encounter that symbolized the end of 72 years of hostility between the Soviet Union and the Roman Catholic Church. It was the first meeting between a Soviet leader and the pope.

The Soviet leader, in an impromptu sentence added at the end of his formal speech following the meeting said, "We also spoke of a visit in the future of the pope to the Soviet Union."

The Soviet leader did not elaborate on what appeared to have been an invitation to the pope to visit the Soviet Union and the Vatican had no immediate comment.

Philippine soldiers attempt coup

U.S. jets provide air cover for Aquino

United Press International

MANILA, Philippines — Renegade troops strafed the presidential palace Friday (Thursday U.S. time) and seized three garrisons in an attempt to oust President Corason Aquino but the armed forces chief claimed the rebels were defeated with help from U.S. fighter jets.

"This coup has failed as of now," armed forces chief Gen. Renato de Villa said. "It cannot succeed anymore. It's a matter of cleaning it up."

However, asked by Cable News Network if the coup was over, Aquino spokesman Adolfo Azcuna said, "Not yet but the situation has improved a lot."

Azcuna said he has "heard ... reports (of a new attack on the presidential palace) but there is a lot of disinformation."

De Villa said some 30 rebel officers and 300 rebellious enlisted men surrendered but he acknowledged another 500 rebels were still holding out at the army headquarters at Fort Bonifacio, the air force headquarters at Villamor Air Base and the government television station.

Aquino, facing the strongest challenge to her nearly four years as president, issued a statement in the evening saying the rebel holdouts were "desperate."

"We should anticipate the rebel forces will seek to bring down with them as many of us as they can," she said.

President Bush closely monitored the coup attempt from Manila, where he was to meet with Soviet leader Mikhail Gorbachev. Bush authorized U.S. fighter planes to help Aquino's forces as he flew to Malta and the Air Force provided air cover for government troops. However, the U.S. forces did not engage the rebels.

In Washington, Lt. Col. Rick Oborn, a Pentagon spokesman, confirmed "F-4s out of Clark Air Base are flying combat air patrol, which means they would fly up high and watch for any hostile airplanes that may be approaching Philippine aircraft."

Oborn also said there were no known engagements between the U.S. fighters and rebel aircraft.

Reporters said U.S. marines in full combat gear aboard four Sea Lion helicopters arrived Friday afternoon to secure the embassy.

David Beckwith, spokesman for Vice President Dan Quayle, could not confirm that the coup attempt had collapsed but did say "the situation is encouraging" for Aquino.

The Red Cross said at least 18 people, including six soldiers, were killed in the intense fighting at the government network and camps Aginaldo and Crame. More than 50 others, mostly bystanders, were wounded.

News reports said a rebel armored vehicle blasted the Channel 9 transmitter two hours after it resumed operations, shutting the private station down for a second time.

Aquino, 56, said U.S. fighter jets "would give air cover to our ground troops."

"This should complete the annihilation of the air assets of the rebel forces," she said. Asked about reports Aquino's decision request for U.S. help had been widely criticized, Azcuna said the assistance was "something we needed and a friendly nation gave."

The Philippines are of vital strategic importance to the United States in the Far East. The United States maintains two major bases in the Philippines — Subic Naval Base, and Clark Air Base, home of the 13th Air Force and the largest American air base outside the continental United States.

The coup attempt began hours before dawn and at daybreak three rebel T-28 trainer planes flown by troops said to be loyal to renegade army Col. Gregorio "Gringo" Honasan made bombing runs at the palace in the face of fierce anti-aircraft fire.

Honasan, 41, led the Aug. 28, 1987, rebellion that killed 53 people and nearly ousted Aquino, who has crushed six coup attempts. Honasan, who escaped last April from a prison ship, said in an interview with Manila newspapers last week that he would try another coup against Aquino, accusing her of corruption and incompetence.

Rebel troops backed by two armored vehicles pushed to within blocks of the Presidential Palace, but presidential guards and police counterattacked and drove them away before nightfall. Along a coastal road, police and soldiers also beat back rebel reinforcements driving to the capital.

Seven truckloads of soldiers from the northern regional headquarters at Camp Olivas in Pampanga province arrived in the capital in the evening to reinforce.

Salvador rebels have missiles

United Press International

MEXICO CITY — Rebel leaders threatened to begin using surface-to-air missiles against the Salvadoran air force unless the military stops using warplanes and helicopters to bomb, rocket and strafe rebel positions.

The leaders of the Farabundo Marti National Liberation Front, acknowledging for the first time they have acquired surface-to-air missiles, also accused the government of President Alfredo Cristiani and the United States Thursday of escalating the conflict in El Salvador.

Military experts have said the acquisition of surface-to-air missiles by the FMLN could radically alter the way the decade-long Salvadoran civil war is being fought. Until now, the Salvadoran government has controlled the skies and has relied heavily on helicopters and warplanes to battle the guerrillas.

The top five commanders of the FMLN confirmed the organization had acquired the surface-to-air missiles in a statement dated Nov. 29 that was distributed to reporters Thursday in Mexico City. The claim by the guerrilla organization could not be independently verified.

"We will not employ the surface-to-air missiles if the air force completely ceases bombarding, rocketing and machine-gunning across all the national territory," the statement said.

Salvadoran military officers have long suspected the FMLN has been trying to acquire an anti-aircraft weapon.

Davis rallies Denver to win

DENVER — Walter Davis scored 24 points to rally the Denver Nuggets from a 12-point third-quarter deficit to a 103-102 win over the Milwaukee Bucks Thursday night.

Bill Hammit scored 17 points and Pat Lever added 15 points and 11 rebounds for the Nuggets, 10-4, who stayed atop the Midwest Division.

Jay Humphries led the Bucks, 7-7, with 25 points.

Denver had a 103-98 lead going into the final minute, but consecutive buckets by Fred Roberts with 35 seconds left and Humphries with 4 seconds remaining brought Milwaukee to 103-102.

Michael Adams missed two free throws with two seconds left to open the door for a last second shot.

In other NBA action Houston stopped Charlotte 113-101; San Antonio topped Dallas 93-89; Seattle beat New York 127-122; and the Los Angeles Lakers downed Sacramento 109-93.

Raines to sign autographs

Local favorite baseball player Tim Raines will be signing autographs this Saturday, Dec. 2, to benefit the Pop Warner Lake Mary Youth Football Association.

Autographs will be signed for $3 each, with all proceeds going to the program (PWLMYFA).

The event will take place from 10 a.m. till noon at AAA Trophies and Baseball Cards, 340-A North County Road 427, one-half mile north of State Road 434.

Raines, who graduated from Seminole High School, has played with the Montreal Expos throughout his pro career. Raines also captured the National League batting title in 1987 and has been one of the league's top hitters for the past five years. For more information contact Donna Lamb at 339-0393.

Juice manager Brown

ORLANDO — Orlando Juice manager Gates Brown became the third manager to lose his job in the inaugural year of the Senior Professional Baseball Association, team officials said Thursday.

Brown, 47, was replaced Thursday by pitching coach Dyar Miller, 43, who played for the Baltimore Orioles, California Angels and New York Mets during his Major League Baseball career.

His firing follows the oustings of Winter Haven manager Bill Lee, who remains a player for the team, and Greg Nettles, who piloted the St. Lucie Legends.

"One day in baseball feels like a month, so I guess I've gone through a year (of frustration)," said J. Wynn Dillard, vice president and general manager of the Juice.

The Juice, 4 1/2 games out of first place in the Northern Division, have 50 games remaining, said team spokesman Ed McDonough. The team's average attendance of 490 is the lowest in the league.

Dillard said Brown had signed a one-year contract. He spent 13 years playing outfield for the Detroit Tigers.

Bruins surge past Sabres

In their 5-1 victory over the Buffalo Sabres Thursday, the streaking Boston Bruins proved that sometimes less is more.

Goaltender Clint Malarchuk stopped all 25 Boston shots in the first period to help the Sabres preserve a 1-0 lead. But Boston converted three of five shots in the middle period, going ahead to stay.

"Tonight we came out emptyhanded in the first period. You get in those situations and the confidence is there, so you don't get frustrated," said Bruins goalie Andy Moog, who kicked out 23 shots for his seventh consecutive victory.

"You just keep your game plan and know that the guys are going to come up big."

Elsewhere in the NHL, the New York Islanders blanked Chicago 2-0, Philadelphia dumped Pittsburgh 4-1, Montreal dusted Quebec 6-2, Hartford downed St. Louis 5-3, Calgary clipped Minnesota 5-2 and Edmonton edged Los Angeles 7-6.

Seminoles go on the road to Merritt Island

By TONY BOGGS
 Herald Sports Editor

At this point of the season, it all comes down to execution.

Tonight, when the 8-3 Fighting Seminoles of Seminole High School travel to Merritt Island to face the 9-2 Mustangs in the 4A-Section II championship game, the team that executes the best will advance to next Friday's semifinal game.

As always, Seminole coach Emory Blake has added a wrinkle to the Tribe's game plan, something they haven't done before. It's gotten Seminole this far but, as always, how well the 'Noles execute the new wrinkle and take advantage of the resulting matchups will determine if they play next week or not.

This evening's wrinkle has Seminole attacking Merritt Island's 4-4 defense with a double slot offense in an attempt to open up the congestion that comes with having eight players within a few yards of each other.

"We'll have a wingback and a single running back," said Blake. "We're going to stretch them out. We're going to put pressure on their defense. We'll still have our basic running plays but we'll run them from a different look."

What Blake is trying to do is force

In tonight's 4A-Section II playoff game, Seminole quarterback Kerry Wiggins (No. 2) will try to exploit Merritt Island's 4-4 defense with quick air strikes and a running game out of a double wing formation.

Lake Howell plays host to Washington

By MARK SLYTHE
 Herald sports writer

Lake Howell's Silver Hawks play host to one of the state's toughest football teams tonight in Pensacola-Washington in the 5A-Section 2 playoff at Lake Howell High School. Kickoff is set for 7:30.

The Silver Hawks, 10-1, are coming off an impressive 23-14 win over Lake City-Columbia, the state's top-ranked team going into the contest. The Wildcats, 9-2, advanced with a 31-26 win over Middleburg.

"They (Washington) have the fastest team we'll have faced," Lake Howell coach Mike Biaciegia said. "Our offense will be tested. They have real good pursuit on the football and always have eight or nine players in on a tackle."

Lake Howell will look to its passing game to loosen up the defense and allow tailback Marquette Smith some running room. Last week against Columbia, the passing game proved to be very effective to the Silver Hawk attack.

"We'll pass to start the game," Biaciegia said. "That gives the defense something else to worry about."

"Last week, they (Columbia) were lining nine men up on the line of GAINESVILLE — Before preparing for bowl opponents, Florida and Florida State have their own version of trench warfare to settle.

When Baseball Commissioner Fay Vincent referred to his "modest, little sporting event," last month, he was talking merely about the World Series — obviously not the Florida-Florida State annual ambush.

Saturday night's matchup can make or break a season for the 7-3 Gators, who are headed for the Freedom Bowl, and the sixth-ranked Seminoles, who have earned a Fiesta Bowl invitation.

"I believe Florida deserves a bowl bid," says Florida State Coach Bobby Bowden, who has guided the Seminoles to eight straight victories after an 0-2 start. "They are only 15 points from being undefeated. Emmitt Smith is a great possession tailback. He is a defense's dream — their defense, not the opponents. Their defense can spend a lot of time on the sideline the way he keeps punching out first downs."

Smith, averaging 144.6 yards per game this season, was limited to just 56 yards in last year's 52-17 loss at Tallahassee. After yielding 85 points in their first three games of 1989, the Seminoles have allowed just 80 points in the last seven.

"I'm tired of hearing about how great Florida's defense is supposed to be," says FSU nose guard Odell Haggins, referring to the nation's No. 2 unit behind Miami. "You look at the numbers, but who have they played? They can't match our personnel."

Florida State, averaging 36 points per game, presents a stiff challenge for a Gator defense led by outside linebacker Huey Richardson. While Florida's offense, under the erratic direction of freshman quarterback Donald Douglas, struggles to ease Smith's load, quarterback Peter Tom Willis keys FSU's imposing attack.

"I don't know what we're going to do to stop Willis," says Florida linebacker Jerry Odom. "He has a major-league arm and reads the

Rams bounce back to shut out Lions

From staff reports

OVIDO — Lake Mary rebounded from a tough loss to whip Oviedo 5-0 Thursday night in Seminole Athletic Conference girls' soccer action at Oviedo High School.

The Rams, who improved to 2-2 overall and 2-2 in the SAC, will return to action Saturday at Winter Park at 3:30 p.m. The Lions fell to 2-3 overall and 1-3 in the conference.

"I'm real happy with the way we rebounded," Lake Mary coach Bill Eisale said. "We had a tough game against Lyman last night. We came in tonight and played hard from the beginning, which was nice to see."

Crislie Snow opened the scoring eight minutes into the game. LaAnne Bazile served a pass to the middle with Snow ripping a shot past the Oviedo keeper. Dana Hoover scored next for the Rams at the 19-minute mark and assisted on the next three goals to lead the Lake Mary offense.

"Dana (Hoover) played very well," Eisale said. "She was involved with everything tonight. She was all over the field on the offensive end."

Bazile scored the final goal of the first half off a feed from Hoover to give the Rams a 3-0 lead at the intermission. Debbie Hutchings and Adrian Hemmerly added goals in the second half to put the game out of reach.

Lake Mary dominated the play as it outshot the Oviedo 12-4.

"The nice thing about this game was that we were able to play everyone around 25 minutes," Eisale said. "That experience really helps going down the stretch. It's nice to know you can have players come

Theus, Vincent help Magic beat 'Wolves, reach .500

United Press International

ORLANDO — Guards Reggie Theus and Sam Vincent ignited an 18-2 third-period run, and the Orlando Magic needed all the momentum that tandem generated to slip past the Minnesota Timberwolves, 103-96, Thursday night at Orlando Arena.

Just about the time a seventh consecutive sellout crowd of 15,077 was assured of the Magic running their record to an expansion record-tying 7-7, Minnesota unleashed Donald Royal in an attempt to prevent the hosts from winning their fifth game in six starts.

Royal, who registered just four points through three periods, scored 11 fourth-period points — the last coming on his three-point play to cut Orlando's lead to 97-94 with 42 seconds left.

Three points was as close as Minnesota came, thanks to Theus' six free throws in the last 30 seconds that ensured the Magic's victory. The Magic's 7-7 record equals that of the 1986-87 version of the Chicago Bulls.

Theus, in the throes of an offensive slump for the past two games, dished out a pair of his team-high eight assists, then hit three long-range jumpers that accounted for seven points and played a pivotal part in 14 unanswered points and a 16-point cushion.

Vincent, however, provided the overall field-goal shooting that most helped the hosts run their home-court record to 4-3. He connected on 10-of-12 from the floor, finishing with 22 points to go along with seven assists.

Theus, meanwhile, hit 13-of-16 free throws on his way to 24 points. Teammate Terry Catledge (25 points) matched Minnesota's Tyrone Corbin for game-high scoring honors.

The rest of the game Royal, Corbin and Jerome Richardson enabled Minnesota to rally enough to throw a scare into Magic mania.

Holiday display 'better than Disney'

By SHAR HENNING
Herald Staff Writer

WINTER SPRINGS — "It's the most wonderful time of the year..." comes the spirited voice of Andy Williams over the speakers. Standing in the midst of Sylvia Krummel's handcrafted Christmas Wonderland, you'd have to agree.

Instilling childhood wonder on the scale of "The Nutcracker," Krummel's humble half-acre lot in Winter Springs is transformed each year into an elaborate display of human, divine, mythical and other Christmas persons. About 30-40 figures are animated, and some 30 different scenes tell their own stories.

Last year, Krummel had 3,500 guests that signed in and many more than didn't, she said. Her guests had such comments as "better than Disney."

"Some people say, 'You should have it on TV. Why stick it in the back woods where no one can see it?'" she added.

So far this year, at least 300 have visited the display, which opened on Thanksgiving night, she said.

"They tell their friends and they come. And they tell their friends and here they come."

Krummel could claim "world-renowned" status since people from Mexico, France and Germany visiting their Florida relatives have dropped in to see her display.

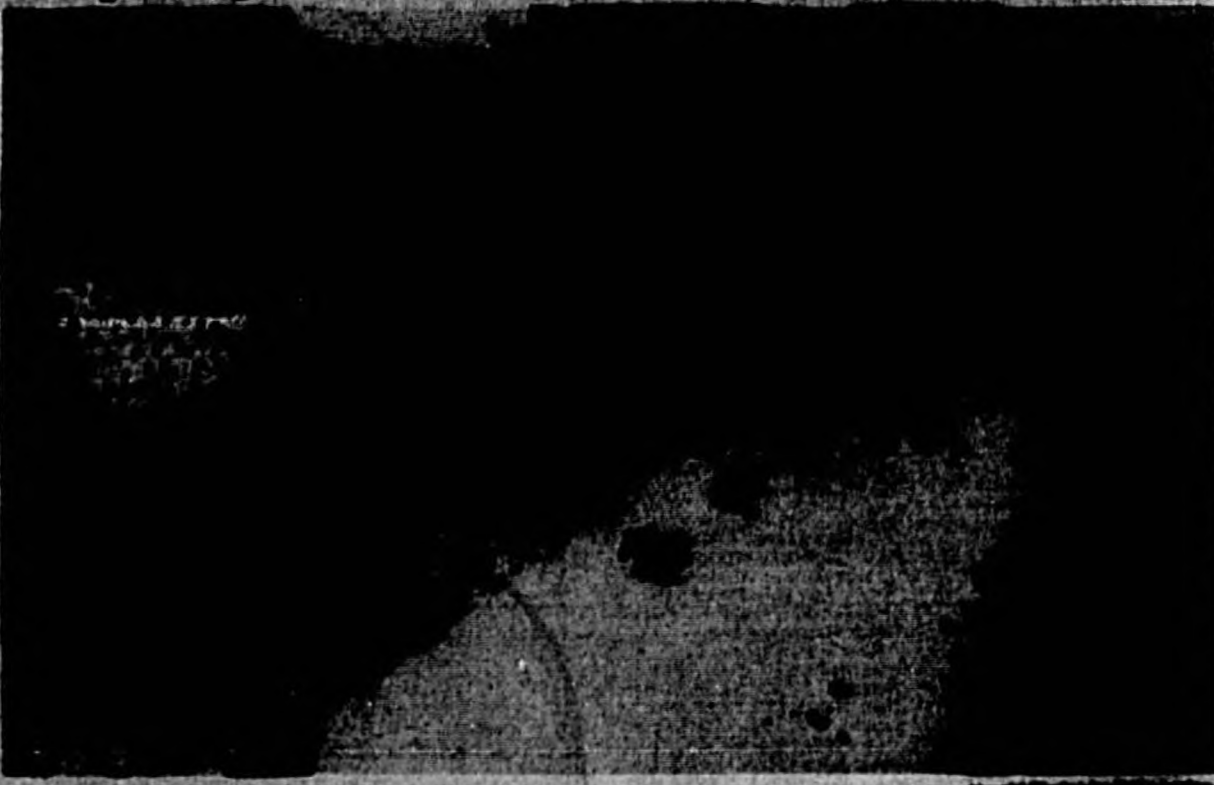

"It's just a wonderful warm feeling to being able to share it with them," she said.

Krummel attributes her motivation for the display to her deprived childhood in Macon, Ga.

"We were a very poor family. We went down to the pine thicket and cut a bough and put it in a bucket and set it on a table. I always said, 'If I'm able, I'm going to have one of the prettiest trees you've ever seen.'"

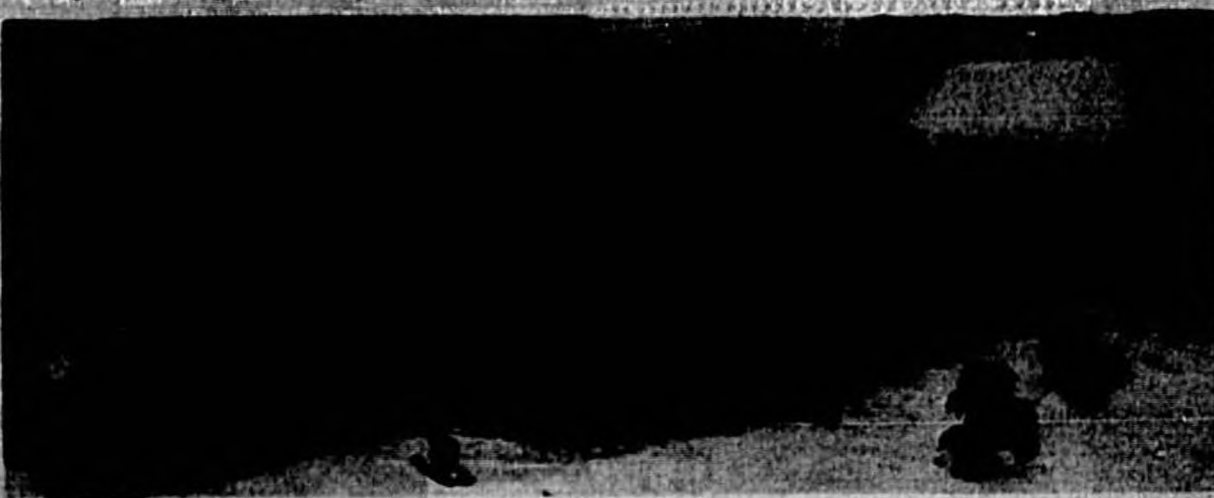

Now Krummel has several trees, including a tree made of poinsettias and a 6-ft. fir with crocheted red garland and a winter lake scene beneath.

Kleptomaniac doesn't see shoplifting's harm

DEAR ABBY: Is shoplifting hereditary? It must be. At least it is in my family. My father did it—he called it "five fingers and a grab." Both my brothers used to boast about how much they got away with.

My sister and I did a little shoplifting for many years, although we weren't poor and always had enough money to buy the things we shoplifted.

I was caught recently, but because I was over 60, they warned me not to do it again and let me go. It's like a disease. Even today, I'm wealthy, but there are times when I cannot control the urge to take small things without paying for them. I enjoy the feeling of getting away with it.

Why is that, Abby? And what's the harm?

LIGHT-FINGERED LILY

DEAR LILY: You could be a kleptomaniac, and the harm is that you may be charged with theft and ordered never to enter that store again.

Millions of dollars worth of merchandise mysteriously disappears from our stores daily. Regardless of whether the "taker" is a kleptomaniac or a common thief, the merchant is the loser.

I doubt that shoplifting is "hereditary"—but boasting about it to family members may make the act seem OK or no big deal. Pity. Stealing is never OK. It's a crime. However, those who cannot control the urge to steal (honest kleptomaniacs) can be helped through psychiatric or psychological counseling.

Springs for eight years, and has decorated her home and yard for the past seven. Her husband, a friend and one of her sons have helped her to construct the miniature and small-scale scenes. Krummel alone did most of the intricate details of each scene.

A two-story Santa house measures four feet wide and long. Santa has invited a friend over for the evening, and the two are having a cup of tea by the fireplace and Christmas tree. The homemade dining room table is covered with a homemade ruffled tablecloth, and a staircase can be seen leading upstairs.

In the elves' sleeping quarters, one will note curtains, bed curtains, a lit-up Christmas tree and stockings with teddy bears peeking out from the tops.

A marquee reads "Santa's Temple of Faith," posted in front of a tiny church complete with congregation, choir, preacher behind pulpit, and a boy and girl kneeling at the altar.

"My imagination runs kind of wild. It's kind of like having a steak appetite and a bologna pocketbook," Krummel said.

Inside her home, a snow-village of about 35 lighted homes features blinking streetlights, cobblestone streets, people carrying packages. Krummel even constructed a 13-foot mountain looming behind the village. "So don't ever let it be said that a woman can't make mountains and move mountains," she said.

Following is a list of a few of the other displays on Krummel's lot:

• The Bear Cave, featuring three animated bears and a wish of "Have a Beary Merry Christmas."

• Eight reindeer stalls, and one for Rudolph.

• A Christmas tree lot, with elves digging up evergreens to sell.

• An electric train that runs through a 5-foot bridge and beside a depot and cafe.

• Candyland Ski Slope, adorned with candy canes and featuring two Santas going downhill on skis.

• Santa's Workshop, where a 24-inch, animated Mr. Claus works in a checkered work shirt, holding a hammer.

• A lit-up gingerbread house, with candy all over it.

• A shopping mall with Santa at the entrance, sitting on a green velvet, stuffed chair and surrounded by toys.

• A large nativity scene, including camels, wise men, angels, shepherds, lamb, and the Holy Family.

• A manger scene made of Precious Moments figurines, with a cassette tape playing the Christmas story.

"I'm beginning to run out of space," Krummel lamented.

"The greatest thing is being able to open our home and being able to show the warmth and the happiness of the holidays," she said. "Home is where the heart is, and my heart is at home."

Up on the housetop sits a homemade sleigh outlined with 126 lights, including reindeer and a spotlighted Santa.

In her bathtub, you'll find an animated angel. Also in the bathroom are Christmas birdcages made of pinecones and containing imitation red cardinals.

Strands of garland, punctuated with ornaments, are strung over her bed as a canopy.

Eighteen giant stand-up candles serve as a fence around the outdoor display, each playing electronic Christmas songs. With all of the spotlights, floodlights, music and animated figures, she had to install a breaker that would handle the multiple plugs.

Where does Krummel get the money for her ever-expanding display? "Some women like to go out and buy new dresses. I don't go for that. I'm a country person; I go barefoot most of the day," she said.

As varied as her display is, there is room for additional surprises. One night of every Christmas season, a Winter Springs firetruck goes by with a waving Santa hanging onto the back. One year, a local Baptist church choir came over and sang Christmas carols using Krummel's piano and amplifiers.

Krummel makes it a point to donate time every Christmas to a worthy cause, she said. A few years ago, she and her sister bought, wrapped and delivered 3,000 gifts for the Russell Home for Atypical Children in Orlando. Krummel, dressed as Santa, had a merry time giving them out.

This year, she donated a day at First Baptist Church in Orlando, helping arrange greenery for the church's annual Living Christmas Tree program. As a result of her work, she has a sore back to contend with as she prepares to wrap gifts and bake Christmas goodies.

On Christmas Eve, those who come inside Krummel's home may partake of free coffee, fruitcake and cookies. Every day of the display, she gives out candy canes to kids.

One year, someone swiped a reindeer and sking Santa, but Krummel has had no real problems, she said. The Winter Springs Police Department lies across the street from her mobile home park.

"I love everybody," she said. "Even someone who slaps me in the face, I turn around and want to do something for them and make things work. I want to give love away and doing that makes me feel blessed."

The outside display is lighted 7-10 p.m. every night, during which time visitors are welcome to come inside her home and browse. The open house will continue through Christmas Eve, and the outdoor display will continue through the middle of January.

The display can be found at 1097 Cheyenne Trail, Winter Springs. From Sanford, one can take U.S. Highway 17-92 to State Road 419, take a left, go to S.R. 434, take a left, go around a slow curve, and enter the Seminole Pines Mobile Home Community.

There is no admission fee, but Krummel will have a donation box set out. Donations will go to help a needy family have a better Christmas, she said.

• A shopping mall with Santa at the entrance, sitting on a green velvet, stuffed chair and surrounded by toys.

• A large nativity scene, including camels, wise men, angels, shepherds, lamb, and the Holy Family.

• A manger scene made of Precious Moments figurines, with a cassette tape playing the Christmas story.

"I'm beginning to run out of space," Krummel lamented.

"The greatest thing is being able to open our home and being able to show the warmth and the happiness of the holidays," she said. "Home is where the heart is, and my heart is at home."

Up on the housetop sits a homemade sleigh outlined with 126 lights, including reindeer and a spotlighted Santa.

In her bathtub, you'll find an animated angel. Also in the bathroom are Christmas birdcages made of pinecones and containing imitation red cardinals.

...THE HOPE OF OUR COMMUNITY, OUR NATION!

The concert is over. The artist takes a bow. Or, perhaps the curtain falls down on a smash hit. And hands clap, smack, pat, or tap.

Hands do other things besides applaud. Some write on blackboards, others perform miracles of surgery—some sew, some plant. Hands drive trucks, make music or diaper a baby.

In God's House are praying hands. These hands translate compassion into action. They find homes for the homeless and food for the hungry. They teach, as well as preach, and bring hope to hearts long lonely. They, literally, become the hands of God.

Today, as never before, we need the assurance and comfort of God's love. Help your church or synagogue reach out. Offer your heart and your helping hands.

Pope: Human rights key to peace

Pontiff, Gorbachev meet today to discuss social, political issues of mutual concern

Global Peace Information

VATICAN CITY — Pope John Paul II said Monday there can be no just and lasting peace among nations "as long as fundamental human rights and sacred human persons themselves are held in contempt."

The pope was speaking to Fr. Maurizio, 65, the new Yugoslav ambassador to the Vatican, at a ceremony in which the ambassador presented his apostolic letter. The pope and the Vatican received full diplomatic relations with the new Yugoslavia on Monday. The pope said that the Vatican was the only communist state to maintain full relations with the Holy See.

The pope's remarks were considered of particular interest in view of his scheduled meeting with Soviet leader Mikhail Gorbachev today, during which the themes of human rights and peace are expected to figure prominently.

"I have frequently had the occasion to recall that there is no just and lasting peace among nations and social groups as long as fundamental human rights and sacred human persons themselves are held in contempt," John Paul said to the ambassador.

"This truth should become eminently clear to all in the light of the events of our own century," he said. "The unprecedented horrors of the last world war were ultimately born of contempt for the dignity of man.

"In response to this threat to human dignity and world peace, the international community during the post-war period has felt it necessary to define those fundamental human rights which no person or collectivity is entitled to violate," he said.

John Paul said he was "confident that these aspirations are shared by the government and people of Yugoslavia." But he noted that the situation of the Catholic Church in Yugoslavia still left something to be desired.

"I am pleased to note that the conditions of the local (Catholic) Church in Yugoslavia have seen some improvement in recent years," the pope said.

Kara Tull, president of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints called Page for her mission. She left for the Mission Training Center in Provo, Utah, on Nov. 13, where she will be taught how to speak Spanish. On Jan. 16, she leaves for California to begin her mission.

Page, 31, is a 1988 graduate of Seminole High School where she was active in sports. She played varsity softball, soccer, racquetball and was a track runner. An honor student, she was editor of the school newspaper, was selected as the first Sammy Seminole and received the coveted Scroll and Pen Award. She attended two years at Richa College in Idaho and one semester at Brigham Young University in Provo before returning to Sanford where she was called as Relief Society Secretary.

Prior to her mission call, Page was employed by Computer Assistants in Altamonte Springs.

Page is the daughter of Nancy and Steve who own Page's One Hour Photo Shop at 2808 S. Orlando Avenue in Sanford. She was born in Albany, Ga. As a child, she resided in Key West. Her family later moved to Inverness where they resided for six years. They moved to Sanford in 1983.

Sanford Ward Bishop Robert H. Newman said, "Jennifer is a wonderful person and I support her in her call to serve a mission in California. She has a willing spirit, and I know she will be a great success as a missionary."

This season, let's work together

By WILLIAM S. McLOUD
Guest columnist

It was about this same time of the year, many years ago, when the incident occurred.

The little girl had wandered off from her family, and had become lost in one of those vast Iowa cornfields which stretch for miles. The local community became frantic as they heard the news. The first day of searching included family and friends and local volunteers. Day two included an effort from surrounding townspeople. On the third day, someone suggested that they all join hands and search the fields in an organized manner. Hand in hand they walked, until they finally found the child — dead. Someone remarked, "Why didn't we join hands sooner?"

"Why didn't we join hands sooner?" So much can be done if we would only work together. It's during this time of the year, with the festive holiday season upon us, that we are reminded once again, for the need to work together — churches, synagogues, rescue missions, community agencies. It's that time of the year when we think of all the blessings that we've been given, and we begin to share ourselves.

Working together is what it's all about. We just need to learn it once again. Will you know it ever so well? Ever seen them fly?

They travel in perfect formation. They do it for a reason, because it's more effective and efficient. The perfect V-pattern breaks the winds and causes less resistance. They are able to fly faster and farther than they could on their own. Did you realize that the leader, the one in front, is ever changing? The lead is shared by all. Working together, it's what they do best!

During this time of the year, we are called to work together in giving, serving, helping, praying and caring. When we join hands, we find that our labor is not in vain, but that the child is not dead, but alive. The Rev. William S. McCloud is senior minister of the First United Methodist Church in Sanford.

'Odd' Mormons gain members, popularity

Since their church was founded in 1830, the Mormons have often been called odd, different or strange. You would also have to add extraordinarily successful.

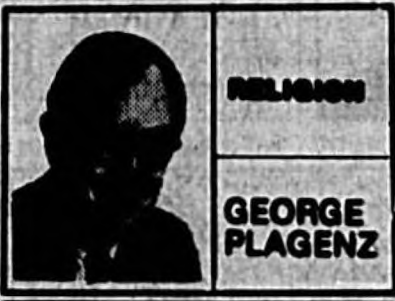

The latest yearbook of American churches lists the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints (their official name) as the sixth largest church body in the country. There are more Mormons than there are Presbyterians, Episcopalians or Missouri Synod Lutherans. They are the fastest-growing major church in the world today. The church headquarters in Salt Lake City directs more than 6,500 congregations with more than 3 million members worldwide.

There is more involved in becoming a Mormon than there is in switching your membership from the Baptists to the Methodists. You not only change where you go to church on Sunday, you change much of what you believe and how you live.

Mormons, for example, are encouraged to keep a year's supply of food on hand at all times. In the event of a weather emergency or natural disaster, this can be better than money in the bank. What good is money in the bank if you can't get out of the house or the food stores are closed?

Mormons believe that the Second Coming of Jesus will take place in Jackson County, Mo., near Independence. This is where the "new Zion" will be built.

Such was the revelation given to Joseph Smith, founder of the Mormons. As an 18-year-old farm boy in 1823, he was led by an angel to the Finger Lakes region of western New York state. He unearthed (and later translated) the Book of Mormon, which was written on gold plates and buried in the fabled Hill of Cumorah, near Palmyra, N.Y.

The Book of Mormon is the record of an ancient New World civilization. It begins with the command of God to a Hebrew prophet named Lehi in 600 B.C. to leave Jerusalem, which was about to be destroyed.

He was to take with him his family and a small group of righteous Israelites who later crossed the ocean and landed on the shores of what has now been identified as Central or South America.

According to the records these people kept, Christ appeared to them in the New World after his resurrection. In about A.D. 200, a prophet named Mormon gathered together the 800-year-old records of his people and transcribed them on gold plates. His son Moroni, who migrated with some others of the clan to New York state, took the plates with him. They were buried in Hill Cumorah in 421.

Today, however, the Mormons are finding their way increasingly into the mainstream.

Cutting nerves is last resort for diabetics

DEAR DR. GOTT: My husband was diagnosed as diabetic five years ago. He's been able to control this through diet. Now he's experiencing substantial pain in his hands, arms, legs and feet; yet his doctor doesn't want to perform surgery at this stage. A neurologist wants to cut all the nerves in his legs to alleviate the pain. To further complicate things, at 66 he's become impotent, and it's caused major problems in our marriage. What's your advice?

DEAR READER: One of the major complications of diabetes is neuropathy, the malfunction of various nerves in the body. This can lead to weakness, numbness and tingling of arms and legs. Neuropathy is believed due to poor blood supply to the nerves, resulting from the premature arteriosclerosis, a change that is common in diabetes. Impotence and constipation are additional consequences of this metabolic abnormality. Your husband should be under the care of a diabetes specialist who will be able to offer advice about how to cope with this problem. For example, certain medicines—such as Dilantin, anti-depressants and carbamazepine—may help to improve nerve function and alleviate symptoms of neuropathy.

DEAR DR. GOTT: My fiancé and I are excited about purchasing a wonderful piece of property—wonderful except for the fact that due east, across the wide Intercoastal Waterway, sits the St. Lucie Nuclear Power Plant. What are the effects caused by residing near a nuclear plant? Is there a higher rate of birth defects and is gardening safe? Your help would be appreciated.

DEAR READER: As far as I know, properly operated and maintained nuclear power plants represent no hazard to people living in close proximity to these installations. Specifically, gardening is safe, and there is no proven increase in birth defects. As most people know, potential danger does exist if the power plants experience problems with their reactors, leading to leakage of radioactive material into the environment.

The defense did a good job, but they could have been put to a difficult test. West led the queen of hearts, taken by the ace in dummy. South led dummy's jack of spades, finessing, and West won the king. West now led the heart three to East's king. East might have tried to cash another heart, but that would only be three tricks for the defense. So East led the diamond three. Declarer could do no better than rick with the king. West won the ace. Because West knew that East would not have led a low diamond at this particular point without an honor, he was safe in leading the jack of diamonds. That was four tricks, setting the contract. Lebanese president warns General Aoun

United Press International

BEIRUT, Lebanon — Newly chosen President Elias Hrawi said he would not start a war in Christian east Beirut, but warned the resistance. Gen. Michel Aoun to surrender his post "because the day of punishment is coming."

The presidential warning Thursday came as tensions mounted over the power struggle between Christian forces of Aoun and the Syrian-backed government of Hrawi, a Christian who has agreed to new power-sharing arrangements that accord Muslims greater influence in Lebanese politics.

France dispatched a warship to the area to help evacuate French nationals if necessary, drawing condemnation from pro-Syrian politicians, and Israeli officials warned Syria that it "does not have a free hand in Lebanon."

The military strongman, in an interview with the Saudi daily newspaper Ashraq of Amman, said he had no plans to leave his stronghold in the presidential palace in Beirut, 5 miles southeast of Beirut, despite demands by the new government that he vacate the palace.

"I would only leave if the people say that they do not want me," Aoun said.

Aoun, who commands most of Lebanon's troops, said Hrawi, elected only last week to implement an Arab-backed peace accord, have been unable to receive their power struggle. Aoun has rejected Hrawi's authority and ordered the Parliament that elected him dissolved. Hrawi has fled Amman.

Without mentioning the Christian general by name, Hrawi warned "all those who will resist the legitimate authority that they will be punished very soon."
