BIBLE THOUGHT FOR TODAY

WHEREFORE the rather, brethren, give diligence to make your calling and election sure; for if ye do these things, ye shall never fall. Peter 1:10

WHO WANTS A CHAUFFEUR?

Who wants to hire a chauffeur, a faithful man and true, A man who knows his way about and is obedient, too? A chauffeur who has learned to sit all morning at the wheel, And never show the slightest sign of rage which he may feel.

Who wants to hire a chauffeur,

Who wants to hire a chauffeur, who'll be content to stop And sit for hours and hours and hours before some modiste's shop? A man of vast experience who's driven miles and miles, And hauled a flock of women folks in search of Palm Beach styles.

He learned his trade in Florida at Boynton by the sea, He's driven women into town and to the Grove for tea, He's driven them to Anthony's, the Beaux Arts and the shops, And learned to keep his temper sweet through forty-seven stops.

Who wants to hire a chauffeur? Then drop a line to me, For I'm a shopping chauffeur of the thirty-third degree, I spent three weeks in Florida where all the palm trees are, And where a husband's job is just to drive the rented car. —By Edgar A. Guest

Boy murderer of eleven years was sentenced to ten years the other day. His mother and father should have been sentenced with him.

Young Vanderbilt says he is losing fifteen thousand dollars a month on his Miami Daily. Wonder if he hopes to make that up by continuing to knock Florida and boost California?

Monday and Tuesday, while Florida was enjoying the warmth of an almost summer's sun, a blast of mid-winter intensity was sweeping through the North. It's hard to realize, isn't it; and yet, undoubtedly those tourists whom we warned not to return to their homes too soon, realize it.

Apparently Sanford won't have a recount of its population. What Sanford should have done was to get the figures right in the first place as it seems that only those were included who have lived in Sanford since 1895 or something like that.

The Whole Nation Grows

According to an article recently appearing in the Miami Tribune, B. C. Forbes, well known financial writer, has made the assertion that the United States has grown as much during the past ten years as the average nation does in fifty, and the next ten years will see even greater strides made in growth.

Mr. Forbes is not idly talking to his hat. He has facts and figures with which to back his statements. There are at the present time 112,686,000 persons living in the United States, an increase of 36,383,000 since 1900 and 14,758,000 since 1914. Such growth would be difficult to match by any country at any period of time.

Our national wealth has shown no less rapidity in increase. Ten years ago our per capita wealth was $1,902 and our bank deposits $18,000,000,000. Now there are in this country $2,847 for every man, woman and child and our bank deposits are $46,000,000,000.

The value of our manufacturers since 1900 have increased fourfold. Our factory product jumped from $24,000,000,000 in 1900 to $44,000,000,000 in 1921, or practically doubling in twenty years.

Even more can be said for our farms and farm property. The figures show that there was an increase in the value of this industry of $21,000,000,000 during the ten years immediately preceding 1910 and that during the next ten years the increase was from $41,000,000,000 to $78,000,000,000.

Such figures as these are quite convincing evidence that the United States as a whole is yearly establishing itself upon an even firmer foundation and that it is steadily coming into its indisputable leadership of the foremost nations of the world.

Solved Before The Age Of Ten

"If 16-year-old Mary persists in reading blacklisted literature, what would you do?"

"If you discovered her sneaking in the window at three o'clock in the morning, what would you do?"

"How do you legislate in regard to her riding alone with boys in motor cars after dark?"

"Do you meet all the boys that come to call on her?"

"Do you limit the hours of those calls?"

"If 17-year-old Johnnie prefers the hamburger joints on the corner to his own home, what would you advise?"

"If you find a flask in the pocket of his new suit, how would you solve the problem?"

These questions are repeated by Douglas Churchill, in one of his clever columns for the Vanderbilt tabloid papers, from a collection asked the mothers of Kansas City in a recent movement there for better children. And then Mr. Churchill, with the admission that by so doing he will "get in wrong with everybody" answers the questions in these two paragraphs:

"To all these questions I would reply that I would do nothing. I would regard the whole thing as too late. If they had grown up to that age and talking did no good, I should figure that I had started too late in life to reform them.

"You don't bring up children after they get to be 17. If you have not brought them up by that time so that a little sane, common sense talk will cure all ills, then you had better let them go their way. Most of the problems of the younger generation can be solved with a little work before the age of ten."

It is the wisdom in that last sentence that arrested the attention of The Herald. Mr. Churchill was writing to fill space when he advised parents to let 17-year-old children of wayward tendencies go their way, but there is deep truth in his assertion that most of the character lines are established in a child's nature before he is ten years old.

If during the first ten years of his life a child is under the influence of fair-dealing, gentle firmness, and worthy examples for good conduct; and if topping all this he is lured into loving his parents more than he loves himself—that is really possible, it is said—at ten years of age he is safe, so far as future disobedience of these loved ones' wishes are concerned.

The early training, the early environment, the early pleasures of his own home, these are the determining factors for problems, or the absence of problems, that parents may be called upon to solve when Mary is 16 and Johnnie is a year older.

THE DIFFERENCE between landscape and landscape is small, but there is great difference between the beholders.—Emerson.

MY FAVORITE STORIES

BY IRVIN S. COBB

An American journalist in poor health spent the summer of 1910 at a resort in Southern France. The proprietor was an English woman, and all the other guests were English, too. They were friendly and kind to the invalid—all excepting one very austere and haughty lady.

On his first day as a guest at the house he heard this lady say to the landlady: "I distinctly understood that you did not admit Americans as lodgers here, and I wish to know why you have broken the rule."

The other woman explained that the stranger had come with good references and that he seemed a quiet, well-mannered person who hadn't offered to scalp anybody and who knew how to eat with a knife and fork. Nevertheless the complaining matron was not at all pleased.

She took frequent opportunity of saying unkind things about the States and those who lived in the States. The sick American maintained a polite silence. Finally one day at the dinner table she addressed him with direct reference to a certain ghastly murder case which, even after the lapse of eleven years, will be remembered by most readers today.

"What do you Yankees think of your fellow-Yankee, Doctor Crippen?" she inquired.

"We think he's crazy," said the American.

"How singular!" said the lady, arching her eyebrows.

"Not at all," said the American. "He must have been crazy to kill an American woman in order to marry an English one."

A TRIFLE TIRESOME

MACON TELEGRAPH

Through the medium of a radio address, President Coolidge gave the management and visitors to the Women's World Fair at Chicago advice upon economy in the home and in business. He ventured to advise the women who have the fair in charge to establish a budget and to adhere to it.

It's a trifle boring eternally to hear these economy and business talks from the White House. One begins to suspect that the President thinks about little else than how business and economy may be served. Business is all right when legitimately conducted. We must have business, but business is being rather too well served by the Republican Administration with its protective tariff and its blind eye towards the trusts for the President to worry himself further.

As Brisbane Sees It

An Unhappy "Dry." Did "Fate" Get Him? Edsel Ford Predicts. Honor: the Automobile. By ARTHUR BRISBANE (Copyright 1925)

SENATOR FERRIS, a sincere "dry," as dry as the desert of Sahara or the inside of Jonah's Whale, says prohibition is a failure.

"Lawmakers lead in violating the law," he says, shocked to hear other Senators boasting and laughing about violating the Constitution that they have sworn to uphold.

SENATOR FERRIS thinks prohibition can still "succeed," if enforcement can be taken out of politics.

But that can't be done, and if it could be done, would it make any difference? If men, in secret, can change one dollar's worth of good corn into twenty-five dollar's worth of poisonous whisky, at no expense, can you stop bootlegging?

THERE WERE fewer than 500 distilleries in the country, before prohibition became the law. Since then 34,000 distilleries have been seized. And for every one seized two have been started. Prohibition was made law by men who violate it, and never had any intention of obeying the law or respecting the constitution. How can you expect the great professional, bootleg criminal class, created by prohibition, not to follow an example set in the highest places?

BEGIN AT the top. You find that we have had three Presidents under prohibition, and Calvin Coolidge is the first of them to drink only water—plus tea, butter-milk, ginger ale, and the other moral concoctions, of course.

Every servant of a great club in Washington knows that a President of the United States had in the club his locker, supplied with whiskey, and openly passed the beverage around among his friends, and transported it through the streets of the Capital in violation of the law and contempt of the Constitution.

CAN YOU expect those club servants to take the prohibition amendment seriously? Do you think they should be put in jail for doing what they have seen done by the President and a dozen Senators, with laughter, and joking as to the merits of bootleggers and the quality of their supplies? When law and the Constitution are despised by those in power, don't expect to find respect for law or Constitution lower down in the scale.

AND WHEN the men that make the laws decide that they may properly violate one law that does not suit them, you may be sure that a new and great body of criminals will arise to defy laws concerning property that they don't like. And that is exactly what has happened in America.

WHAT IS to be done? That is for the lawmakers to say. The people, as you know, have little to say in such cases. They did not even vote on prohibition when it was passed, by earnest, sincere men, with the emotion and power of war back of them.

OSCAR PALMQUIST went down with the Titanic. But he came back to the surface, swam for hours in the icy waters, and lived until March 23rd, last. Yesterday his body was found in a shallow pond in Connecticut. He had wandered into the pond, and drowned.

THAT WILL cause solemn musing. "If you're born to be drowned, you'll never be hanged, and vice versa," some will say, "swim as hard as you like, the water will get you."

The Turks and millions of other Orientals, deeply religious and superstitious will assure you that the day of your death was fixed millions of years before you were born. God knows exactly when you will die and how. Therefore the hour and manner MUST have been fixed from all eternity, otherwise God could not know. And to doubt that he knows all things ahead is impious.

COLD COMMON sense, however, says that Palmquist would not have been drowned, had he not wandered into the pond, and would have been drowned, when the Titanic sank, had he not been a strong swimmer. This world would be too dull if everything were fixed for us in advance. And if, as the Turks believe, all is settled in advance, and Allah and Mohammed, between them, know everything, each man's fate and destiny, the way to be not more than four-fifths of the amount received in postage, the postal authorities are planning this vast aerial transport scheme. Extensions include, besides the Birmingham-Louisville-Cleveland line, the connection of New York and Boston; Chicago and St. Louis; Los Angeles and Salt Lake City; Elko, Nev., and Pasco, Wash.; Minneapolis and St. Paul and New Orleans, via St.

Edsel Ford, writing in The Nation's Business, published by the United States Chamber of Commerce, foresees a production of aircraft for all the people on a scale comparable with the present automobile production.

Speaking for himself and his father, Henry Ford, Edsel Ford discusses "air sedans" and cheap flying cars within the people's reach. These predictions are encouraging. It is not the habit of the Fords to predict, unless they know, or to indulge in vague surmises.

If Henry Ford and Edsel Ford predict a sky full of airplanes, they will manage to provide those airplanes.

SECRETS OF LONG LIFE

CHAUNCEY DEPEW IN COLLIER'S

I've worked practically every day of my life, eight hours a day and more. When I was younger I ate heartily and slept when I could find time to sleep. Now, and for the last thirty years, I've made it a point to eat sparingly and to sleep at least seven and a half hours a day.

Drinking was never really the curse of America. Eating was and is.

I found that I ate too much when I was this side of sixty. One day I discovered that I felt unwell, very much below par. On the principle of settling a present problem to take care of the future, I revised my diet. Beefsteaks and roast butcher's meat figured too much in my diet, I concluded. Out they went, never to return. I'm not a vegetarian; wouldn't be one—that's going to extremes—but I don't need red meat—and don't eat it.

At about sixty-five I had another bad day. Instantly I analyzed the cause. My secretary, who had charge of my office Regiment, told me that cigars came and went with much rapidity—proved that I had the habit of smoking twenty-five cigars a day. Off went that habit. I've never smoked since.

And I'm not an anti-tobacco advocate. I merely believe that every human organism is capable

AIR MAIL PLANS

LOUISVILLE COURIER-JOURNAL

The virtual selection of Louisville for the proposed air mail route from Birmingham to Cleveland comes at a time when the postal authorities are planning a network of such lines extending North and South and East and West. This means that Louisville will not only be benefited by the single line, however important that may be, in the increased speed of postal service, but will form a part of this network with an almost continental sweep. It will mean, too, that Louisville will be a center in the development of postal and commercial aviation, which is now in its infancy.

Under a law passed by the last Congress providing that contractors may be employed for carrying the mail, it is today in operation four-fifths of the amount received in postage, the postal authorities are planning this vast aerial transport scheme. Extensions include, besides the Birmingham-Louisville-Cleveland line, the connection of New York and Boston; Chicago and St. Louis; Los Angeles and Salt Lake City; Elko, Nev., and Pasco, Wash.; Minneapolis and St. Paul and New Orleans, via St.

Louis and Memphis; Pittsburgh and New Orleans and Chicago and New Orleans.

With Cleveland already on the transcontinental line, connection of Louisville with Cleveland would mean an almost direct route to San Francisco, to New York, to Boston, to New Orleans. Of course, the new line will be entirely experimental. It is yet to be determined whether contractors, even though allowed to carry other freight and perhaps passengers, can engage in this business for the government at sufficient profit. It is hoped, however, that this is the most feasible means of aiding commercial aerial development, providing trained pilots and an ever-ready arm of defense in the event of war.

The feasibility of aerial mail service needs no further proof. The coast-to-coast line, even in the matter of expense, has vindicated the judgment of those who launched it. Extension, however, has been slow. Commercial aviation has remained at the virtual starting point. It is almost a new field with possibilities as wide as space itself.

ERY IS POUNDED FOR 17 HITS AND 11 RUNS IN GAME

Lakeland Highlanders Are Unable to Solve Delivery of Walsh and Lose Despite Five Free Passes to First

Pitcher Ery, of the Lakeland Highlanders yesterday afternoon, yielded 17 hits and Sanford won by a score of 11 to 1.

Lakeland started the scoring in second, getting one run, but after that never were in sight of the home plate.

Sanford began hitting Ery in the third, getting three hits and two runs and this was repeated in the fifth and seventh, making the score 6 to 1.

In the eighth, the Cartermen, not being satisfied with a five run lead, started another period of pounding Ery, which was worse than anything that had gone before. When it was all over, the score was 11 to 1 and the Celery-Feds had been credited with six more hits, making a total of 17.

Kinsey hit safely by third, and Frisbie followed with a hit to the same territory; Walsh hit between pitcher and third and was safe on fielder's choice and pitcher made bad throw to third, Kinsey and Frisbie scoring; Curley goes out to center; Deann hit safe over second, and Walzak hits safe by third; Thompson gets scratch hit through short, Walsh and Deann scoring; Bailey hits to left scoring; Walzak; Bailey is thrown out trying to stretch hit into double; Carter retired side, short to first.

Short work was made of the visitors in their half of the ninth. Spreitzer was out at first; Doyle walked, and Bryant hits into double play forcing Doyle at second and in out at first, Deann Walzak to Bailey.

 This time of the year, when the their studies—and their exercise is as a consequence more or less limited, and colds contracted in ill ventilated houses, in the school, their resultant whole train of ills are prevalent. Now, the dangerous season of the year, parents should safe guard their children's health with Laxative-Links. You won't have to beg the "kids" to take them, as they will do the beg-sell them. Send the boy out to either one of these drug stores for a pink package of these great pink is precious, and they don't like to don't have to now that the candy-ached and ached until I could hardly go. I felt weak and did not feel like doing anything. My work was a great burden to me. I just hated to do up the dishes, even. I was no-account and extremely nervous."

 "My mother had taken Cardui and she thought it would do me good, so she told me to take it. My husband got me a bottle and I began on it. I began to improve at once. It was such a help that I continued it until after the baby's birth.

"I took eight bottles and I can certainly say that it helped me.
 It is a fine tonic. It built me up and seemed to strengthen me. I grew less nervous and began to sleep better.

"I can certainly recommend Cardui to expectant mothers, for to me it was a wonderful help. In
