Charter topic of debate

Marilyn Crotty

EDITOR'S NOTE: This is the first in a five-part series dealing with the proposed Seminole County charter.

By J. MARK BARFIELD

Herald staff writer

The voters of Seminole County will have a rare opportunity on election day, Nov. 8.

That is because they will decide whether to adopt a charter. A charter is a document similar to a constitution that would shift authority from the state to the county and give local voters more power over the conduct of county government.

The preamble states the charter promoters' fundamental desires that county residents "have the full home rule benefits afforded by the Constitution" and that mental decisions affecting local interests should be made locally rather than by the state.

Fred Streetman, chairman of the Seminole County Commission, said. The potential for home rule government gives the citizens important powers they do not have.

Perhaps more than any other way, the power of Seminole County voters would be boosted by the provisions that would allow them to adopt their own ordinances in certain areas through what is called the Initiative, and to remove from office county commissioners they do not favor through what is termed Schmaus and John Blair, Seminole County fine arts director and past band director at Lyman High School, are the co-ordinators.

Schmaus said the festival started when he was band director at Lake Brantley. "The original reason for having it was to expose the quality of the music programs to the community without a football game

The rally broke up quickly after one of the organizers. Pentacostal minister Ed Martin of Ocala, told protesters he would be the last one arrested. He warned them not to cross a white line marking clinic property and sat down at the clinic's back door before police carted him off at 12:37 p.m. The crowd quickly disbursed.

Martin said the 15-year-old clinic was targeted "because this is the biggest killing center in Orlando. They murder about 40 babies every Saturday."

Kennedy also said her clinic is one of the busiest in Florida.

Before Martin was arrested, he said demonstrators were told there was to be no violence.

Secretary sues over Amendment 10

United Press International

PENSACOLA - A former secretary for a doctor said she was fired because she objected to her boss's order to register and vote for Amendment 10 in the Nov. 8 general election.

Linda K. Werhan, 29, of Cantonment filed suit Friday, seeking unspecified damages from Dr. Stricker Mays, an obstetrician-gynecologist, and his partners.

Werhan said her dismissal Oct. 7 came two days after she and her husband questioned Mays' instructions to vote for the proposed constitutional amendment to limit to $100,000 non-economic awards in civil

The suit, filed by Pensacola lawyer Barry Kelly, charged that on Oct. 4 the doctors distributed pro-Amendment 10 literature to employees. The next day the office manager told employees: "Dr. Mays says anyone who is not registered to vote needs to go down and register today. If they don't, they won't have a job here. And he is serious.

Mays said Werhan's dismissahad nothing to do with voting for Amendment 10, and that he was fired because she secretly turner on a speaker phone for othe employees while he was discussing the matter with the secretary's husband.

He also said patients and othe employees had complained about her work. Mays said he made a joking remark that his employee would be fired if they didn' register to vote.

Charter-

16-member Charter Advisory Committee that drafted the document and held hearings over the past two years, said the document would give voters more power without changing the existing structure of county government.

"If you look at our charter, it really doesn't change what we already have. That's one of the main reasons we wanted to put this in... to give the people something they don't have."

Nevertheless, some city officials oppose the charter because they see it as a vehicle that county commissioners would use to gain more power over them. Another concern is that elsewhere in the state. charter counties have taken over land use planning for the entire county.

The charter's most outspoken critic. Bob Webster, himself a member of the charter advisory. committee chaired by Crotty, contended the document is illegal because of certain technicalities.

However, a judge refused to block the election.

With the power of initiative, voters may petition to have Sentnole County Commissioners adopt a new ordinance or to amend or to repeal an existing ordinance.

The area's of county jurisdiction that would be affected by a voter's initiative are unclear because so few have been attempted under the 20-year-old county charter form of government in the state, according to Bill Neron, Seminole County Charter Advisory Committee consultant.

He said the charter could be used to change the way county commissioners are elected from the "at large" method into commissioners elected solely from their districts.

Harry Stewart, legal counsel to the charter advisory committee, said several court decisions have at least defined the areas voters cannot change with an initiative.

They include ordinances related to the administrative or judicial functions of county government, the county budget, levy and collection of taxes, debt payment, salaries, capital improvement projects and rezoning of an individual parcel of land.

In the proposed Seminole County charter, those areas are exempted.

Under the requirements of the proposed charter the petition must include the names of at least five percent of the voters qualified to vote in the previous general election. The petition must also include the names of people living in three of the five county districts.

The charter committee members responsible for the threedistrict minimum requirement wanted to assure that residents of only one district could not have an ordinance passed imposing their will on all county residents.

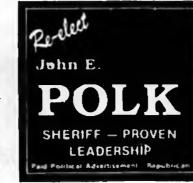

Seminole County voters also can amend or change the charter under guidelines in the proposed charter. The process is similar to a voter initiative except the petition must include the names of at least 7.5 percent of the voters registered in the previous general election.

Recalling a county commissioner under the state-defined proceedure included in the proposed charter is not as easy as the voter initiative process.

If voters decide to recall a commissioner for one of the reasons described by state law. such as malfeasance, neglect of duty, drunkenness or incompetence, they first must distribute a petition stating the reason for the recall and collect at least 1,000 signatures from qualified electors or 5 percent of all registered voters, whichever is greater.

After the names have been verified by the supervisor of elections, the commission has five days to respond in writing. The petitioners must then combine the charge and the response on another petition, this time to be signed by 15 percent of the qualified voters. Any signers may have their name withdrawn.

Work will force detours on French Ave.

By BRAD CHURCH

Herald city editor

SANFORD - Work on railroad crossings over French Avenue is scheduled to begin tomorrow morning requiring detours off one of Sanford's busiest thoroughlares

The CSX Transportation Company will be repairing crossings at 13th Street and between Sixth and Seventh

Steve Homan, spokesman for the Florida Department of Transportation said the CSX will use three crews and the DOT has authorized the company to work the crews overtime to get the work done as quickly as possible

One of the DOT's chief problems was maintaining access to businesses, as it is required to doduring road work. A temporary access to Scotty's and Pebble Junction, located at 700 and 702 S. #### Black officers claim harassment

NEW YORK - Racism is rampant in a Queens police precinct where more than a dozen black officers have filed harassment complaints against their white colleagues, the head of a black police officers' group said Saturday.

In the last three months, more than 12 black officers - "more so than any other time in one precinct" - in the predominantly white 113th precinct in Jamaica have filed racial harassment complaints, said Guardians Association President Roger Abel. whose group represents black officers.

"We've never had a situation like this before," said Abel, himself a police detective. "There have been complaints by officers against other officers but never so many in one ofen

Abel refused to identify the officers but said one case involved two black policewomen who claimed their calls for backup support were ignored by white colleagues in at least six instances

The allegations were first reported Saturday in New York's Newsday newspaper

Another case involved a group of black undercover officers who complained that a top ranking narcotics division official offended them by saying all they were "good for" is "to buy narcotics." Abel said.

Search on for 'horror film killer'

GREENFIELD, Mass. - A theater Saturday agreed to suspend the showing of a horror film and terrified residents were told to keep their children indoors for Halloween as police searched for a suspect in the mutilation stabbing of a coed.

The investigation focused on Mark Branch. 18, a resident of this small western Massachusetts town who allegedly has an appetite for horror films.

The effort was aided by "a half dozen to a dozen calls an hour" from residents, friends and even psychics interested in the stabbing death of Sharon Gregory, 18, also of Greenfield, said detective Capt. Joseph LaChance.

'Unfortunately we don't have anything solid." LaChance said. "We don't plan to do a formal ground search, but we still have several people following up any leads."

A local cinema agreed to a request to suspend the showing of the new horror film, "Halloween IV," until Tuesday, at the carlicat, officials said.

Surgery set for fourth mushroom victim

PORTLAND, Ore. - A "death cap" mushroom poisoning victim underwent a liver transplant Saturday, the fourth of five stricken people to receive the operation.

Lee Lewis, a spokeswoman for the Oregon Health Sciences University, said surgery began at 8:45 a.m. on Teresa Duncan. 43, of Portland.

Lewis said the liver came from an out-of-state donor, but she would not release any further details.

Duncan is one of five people who accidentally are death cap mushrooms Oct. 22. All five became ill the next day and suffered liver damage.

Preston Alexander of the Oregon Mycological Society said the toxin in the mushroom is fatal to 30 percent of the people who ingest it. A single mushroom can kill an adult.

Doctors in Oregon and California performed liver transplants earlier on three of the five people. The fifth person, John E. Duncan, 43, of Portland, Teresa Duncan's husband, was in serious condition at a Portland hospital, but may not need a new

Whales on route to warmer waters

BARROW. Alaska - Two California gray whales with a strong will to live were awimming weatward out of the arctic Saturday. and two Soviet icebreakers that helped free them from the ice were hugging the U.S. coast on their way out of the ice-infested waters north of Alaska...

'They can just boogie now,' federal Whale Biologist David Withrow said of the whales.

After spending three weeks trapped in the Beaufort Sca ice, 18 miles northeast of Barrow, the whales were swimming west through an ice-free channel in the Chukchi Sea on their long-delayed migration to warm winter waters.

Although heavy ice threatened to seal the arctic course west of Barrow in a solid winter grip, both the whales and Soviet techreakers had an open channel of water along the coast. according to National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration officials who ran the rescue operation.

Abortion pill decision stirs debate

United Press International

PARIS - The government's decision to order a pharmaceutical company to resume supplying an abortion pill over protests by anti-abortion groups stirred a heated debate on the French left and right Saturday.

Prime Minister Michel Rocard's Socialist Party praised Health Minister Claude Evin for ordering the company Roussel

Uclaf Friday to resume market ing of the experimental drug called RU-486, which officials say is 95 percent effective in inducing abortions in pregnant women.

The company began marketing the product this week, but halted distribution Wednesday in the face of boycott threafs by anti-abortion groups.

The decision is believed to mark the first time in French history a government has compelled a private company to market a product.

"This is in accord with the morals, needs and mentality of medical science." the Socialist statement said. "The majority of public opinion, and especially most women, expected it."

The Communist Party newspaper L'Humanite splashed IIs front page with a banner headline "Intolerance Swallows resume distribution of the pill to the Pill." but the left-leaning Le about 100 certified hospitals and Monde newspaper sounded a clinics.

"According to those who have experimented (with) it and authorized its release on the market. RU-486 is a long way from presenting the guarantees of efficacy, or even harmlessness that one would hope to be able to attribute to it." said the newspa-

Thousands take part in protests

United Press International

Thousands of chanting, hymn-singing Americans ranging from young children to the elderly united Saturday in a coordinated nationwide protest against abortion, blockading abortion clinics from coast to coast and prompting police to make hundreds of arrests.

But the first-ever "National Day of Rescue" profests were met in some cities by equal or larger numbers of counter-demonstrators, and local police forces were pushed to their limits when some planned protests dissolved and suddenly reappeared in neighboring cities.

Members of the militant Operation Rescue protest movement assembled before dawn in more than 30 cities from Sunnyvale. Calif. to Deer Park, N.Y., where demonstrators defied a New York federal judge's order to stay away from clinics under threat of $25,000 fines.

Protests also were reported in a number of other cities, including Des Moines; Phoenix; Irvington, N.J., Winston-Salem, N.C. and Brighton, N.Y.

Police arrested an estimated 100 people when 300 anti-abortion activists blocking a Providence, P.1. clinic clashed with equal numbers of abortion supporters in a confrontation that officials said dangerously taxed the city's police. "We were not even aware that this was happening this morning, this drew all of our men and women who normally patrol this city." Police Chief Col. Walter Clark said. "The balance of the city is in jeopardy. I have pretty well all of my officers on duty today out here

The Providence anti-abortion demonstrators had been expected to gather in Brookline, Mass. hometown of Democratic presidential nominee Michael Dukakis, where large numbers of abortion rights activists - and a huge police force - massed early Saturday for a counterdemonstration

As many as 2,000 placard-carrying supporters of women's constitutional right to abortion lined main streets in Boston and neighboring Brookline, winning noisy support from hornhonking motorists along the two mile line.

Lt. Gov. Evelyn Murphy joined demonstrators in Brookline and issued a proclamation declaring Saturday "Stand Up for Choice Day."

HARTFORD, Conn. - Groups that hoped to build a "food arsenal" with one can of food for every weapon in the U.S. nuclear stockpile fell short of their goal Saturday but said they were still pleased with the project.

A collection drive around the state brought in about 10,000 cans of food, falling short of the goal of 23,500, said Roz Spier, field director of the Connecticut Freeze Campaign

The 23,500 figure represented the number of nuclear weapons the United States has. Spier said. adding that she was not disappointed by the outcome of the drive.

WARSAW, Poland - Solidarity founder Lech Walesa said Saturday the communist government will not be able to implement economic reforms without the help of the banned Solidarity union.

Walesa, in a telephone interview from the northern seaport of Gdanak, was responding to Prime Minister Micczyslaw Rakowski's assertion Friday that the outlawed labor union is not needed in Poland's economic recovery.

Soviet shuttle narrowly escapes disaster

United Press International

MOSCOW - An access platform failed to retract from the unmanned Soviet shuttle Buran in the final seconds of its countdown Saturday, prompting computers to abort the ship's maiden blastoff just 51 seconds before liftoff, officials said.

The abort prevented possible destruction of the craft. Had the unmanned shuttle's mammoth Energia booster tried to take off with the service gantry still in place, the rocket would have 'caught on the platform," officials said.

A new launch date and time was not announced pending resolution of the problem, which was strikingly reminiscent of the kinds of problems that have cropped up in the American shuttle program from time to time, frontcally, the Soviet delay occurred one month to the day after the shuttle Discovery's successful launch on the first post-Challenger flight.

In any case, the delay was a frustrating disappointment for the Soviets, who had hoped to launch their new space shuttle on an automated two-orbit flight to usher in a new era of Russian space operations.

Due to the immediately detected malfunction much trouble was avoided, for if the rocket had started to lift off, it would have caught on the platform.

-Air Force Maj. Gen. V. Gudilin

p.m. EDT Friday - 6.23 a.m. Moscow time Saturday - but shortly after the announced launch time, Radio Moscow reported a four-hour delay for undisclosed reasons.

It was during the second attempt, apparently about 3:23 a.m. EDT, that the gantry problem developed, forcing space officials to delay the flight indefinitely.

James Oberg, a Soviet space expert in Houston, said problems were "not surprising" given the complexity of such launch systems and that "we continue to be pleasantly surprised by the degree of candor exhibited by the Soviet news managers

Air Force Maj. Gen. V. Gudilin told the official Tass news agency the problem with the gantry occurred as Energia's rocket engines were being Buran, which looks re- primed for ignition. Gudflin quickly forecast a new launch soon of the 100-ton Buran shuttle, the size of a DC-9 airplane. Only after the cause of the malfunction is found, preparation for the launch will be started anew." he said.

"It is too early to tell when this will be done, but the period of time needed for this will hardly be a long one." he said at the Batkonur launch complex, focus of the world's attention Satur-

Tension built at the Central Asian spaceport throughout the morning Saturday as the 196-foot-tall Energia stood potsed for flight. The first sign of trouble came when the first launch target was missed because of "problems in the preparation of the launch."

When the countdown was stopped for the day, Gudilin explained the last-minute dramain the kind of detail that is in keeping with the glasnost policy of openness, representing a level of scrutiny that undoubtedly puts strains on the launch team.

United Press International

WEST WINDSOR, N.J. -Martians are invading Grovers Mill again Sunday, and almost everyone agrees that visitors will have a far better chance of actually spotting one of the aliens this time around.

The last armada of invading Martians - though they panicked the nation - were visible only in the minds of the listeners of Orson Welles' legendary CBS radio broadcast.

'The War of the Worlds.' Grovers Mill, the tiny central New Jersey hamlet picked as the fictional landing site with a jab of a pencil at a roadmap by scriptwriter Howard Koch, is celebrating the 50th anniversary of the Oct. 30, 1938, broadcast with a four-day weekend festival.

The festival wraps up Sunday as thousands of schoolchildren portraying Martians and Earthlings battle it out, then make peace. The War of the World Commemorative Committee placed a monument at the "landing site" Saturday, in between a Martian parade and a panel discussion. 'Could It Happen Again?". featuring radio humorist Garrinon Keillor.

On Sunday night, nearby Princeton University's McCarter Theater will stage a reenactment of the Welles broadcast from the original script. And many National Public Radio stations will broadcast a modern version of "War of the Worlds," starring Jason Robards Jr., Sunday night.

"It is a kind of strange oc-curence," said Koch, now 86 and still writing in Woodstock, N.Y. 'I suppose people like to celebrate things on an anniversary. To me, it's just another day,

Prison officials expand schedule of meetings

By BRAD CHURCH Herald city editor

SANFORD — Federal prison officials have expanded their schedule of meetings that begins tomorrow to explain a proposal to build a low- and medium-security prison east of here.

The team of representatives of the Federal Bureau of Prisons Facilities section now is scheduled to meet with several groups, hold three public forums, including one in the Geneva area — where opposition to the proposal has developed and hold office hours in city half on two days this week.

The team will be in Seminole County to explain the Bureau's interest in building a prison on 275 acres of a 2.200-acre site near Lake Jesup that is owned by the city of Sanford and to get comments from local people on the proposal.

Sanford has offered to give the site to the Bureau and is expected to make that offer official when wording of a memorandum of understanding is agreed on by both the city commission and the bureau.

The first presentation of the Bureau's plans will be at a city commission work session at 4 p.m. Monday in the commission's meeting room on the first floor of City Hail. The Bureau representatives are expected to make a presentation and answer any questions commissioners may ask.

The public is welcome at the meeting although comment may be limited.

The first meeting intended to inform the general public about the proposal and hear public comment, will be at 7 p.m. Monday in the Geneva Community Center, in the part of the county where the proposed prison site is located.

Opposition to the plan has centered in the Geneva-Chuluota area, where many residents have said they do not want a federal prison in their neighborhood.

Other public forums will be held at 7 p.m. on both Tuesday and Wednesday at the Sanford

The Hureau of Prisons representatives will also maintain officer hours in Room 109 of the Sanford City Hall between 8:30 and 11 a.m. and 3 to 5 p.m. on Tuesday, and 2 to 4 p.m. on Wednesday. Anyone who is unable to attend one of the public forums, or has questions not answered at the forum, can talk to the Bureau representatives at those times.

Room 109 is just inside the door on the parking lot side of City Hall.

Some of the team members are also scheduled to make a presentation to the Senior Citizens Club at noon Tuesday at the Civic Center; awhile others appear before the Lions Club at the same time at Western Sizzlin on Highway 17-92.

Bill would split Indian reservation

United Press International

SACRAMENTO, Calif. — President Reagan must decide by Tuesday whether to sign a bill to split a timber-rich Northern California Indian reservation that has been plagued by 25 years of legal wrangling between two tribes.

Opponents of the measure say if Reagan signs the bill it will set off a new set of lawsuits, could cost the U.S. Treasury tens of millions of dollars for wrongful taking, and will further aggravate bitterness between the Hoopa and Yurok tribes, splitting some families of mixed blood.

Proponents, including Rep. Doug Bosco, D-Calif., and Sen. Alan Cranston. D-Calif., argue the reverse. They say it will actually halt endiess litigation, return control of the 93,000-acre Huopa Valley Indian Reservation to Indians and allow the Yuroks to establish their own tribal unit and become one of the richest Native American groups in the United States.

If Reagan does not sign the bill by Tuesday, it becomes a "pocket veto," in effect killing the measure.

Police prevent demonstration

PRAGUE. Czechoslovakta — Uniformed and plainciothes police prevented a demonstration Saturday in the heart of Prague one day after truncheon-wielding security forces crushed a dissident rally with tear gas and water cannon beyvades.

The Independent Peace Association had asked Czechosiovaks to gather on Wenceslas Square in the heart of the capital for two hours Saturday to hold "open and public discussion" on peace issues and the goal of "leading a free and dignified life" in their homeland, which has been under communications.

nist rule since 1948.

"All those who feel the need for an open and public discussion are invited to attend." the new activist group said in a statement. "We believe that these days in particular. It is necessitive to provide people with a genuine opportunity to express their views."

their views."

Shortly before the demonstration was scheduled to begin, police began demanding the identity cards of everyone on the square and asked them to leave.

Authorities then proceeded to randomly check the thousands of people on the broad sidewalks adjacent to the square. One Western diplomat said he was stopped nine times in a one-hour

A dissident known to Western journalists who showed up at the square said there were not enough people to conduct the gathering because most leading opposition figures had been detained by police Thursday on the eve of a dissident rally and were still in custody.

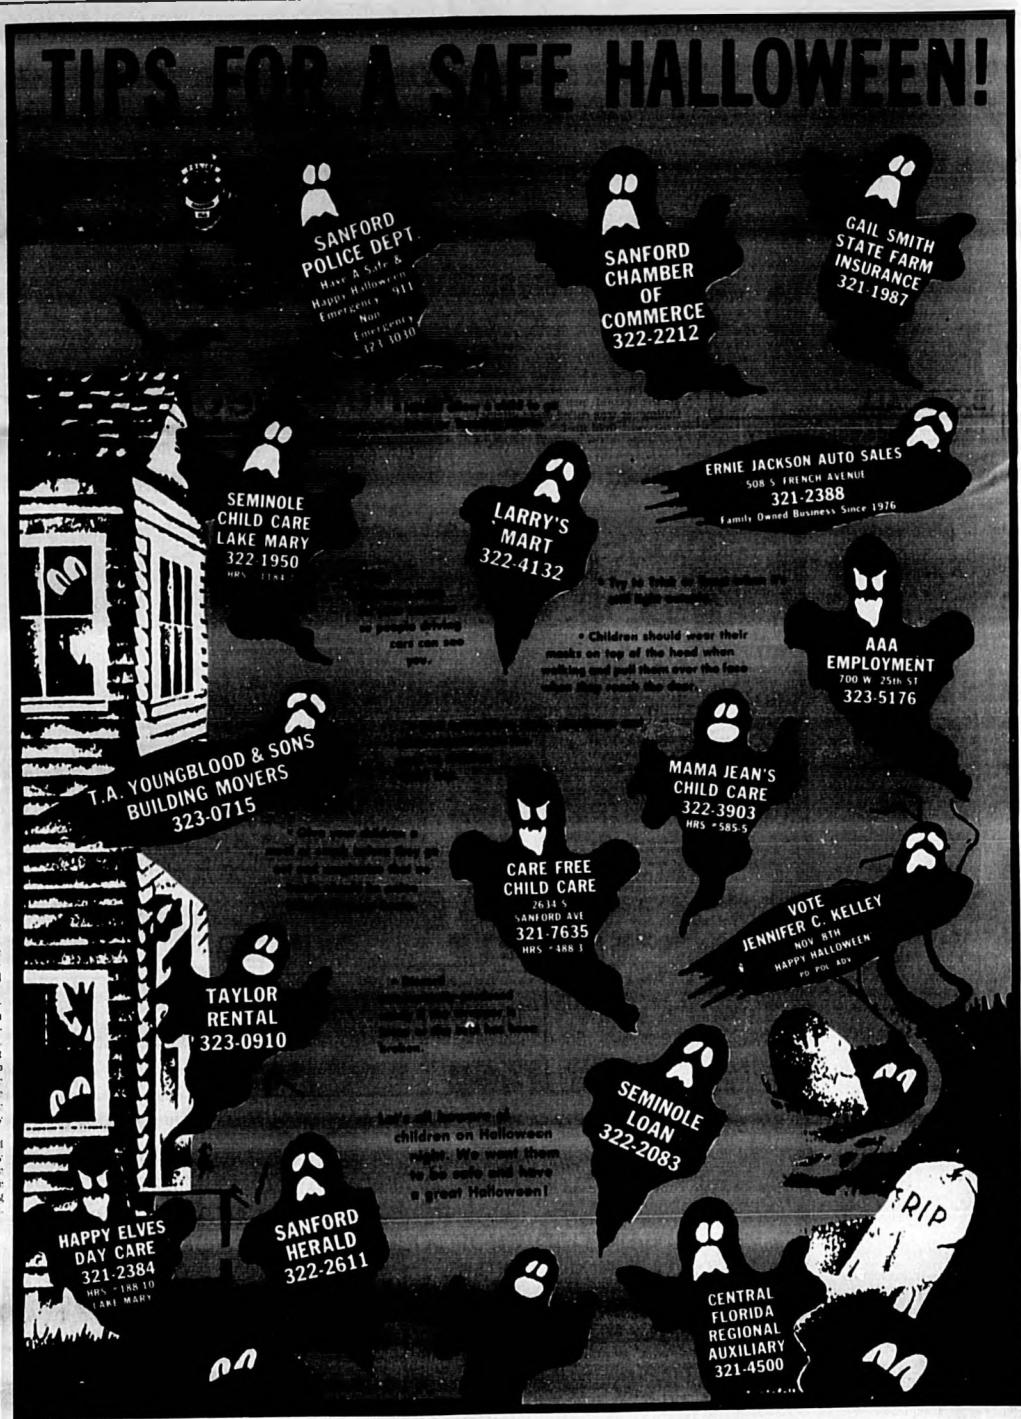

Other activist sources said Vaclav Benda, Jiri Ruml, Jiri Dienstbier, Martin Palous and Jaroslav Sabata — all well-known opposition figures — had not returned home and their wives feared they might have been charged with minor offenses to justify keeping them in custody.

The official media said another 87 people were detained during Friday's rally on the 70th anniversary of the founding of the Czech republic but one dissident called in for questioning said she heard police say 102 were detained. Most of those detained were released overnight.

In Washington, the State Department urged Czech authorities to immediately release the remaining dissidents. "The detentions show that Czechoslovakia has far to go to bridge the chasm between the current practices of the authorities and the democratic ideals upon which the country was founded."

On Saturday, husky, helmeted riot police guarded the subway entrances onto the square while others blocked the steps of the National Museum overlooking the tree-lined, mile-long square.

Georgia Southern outguns UCF, 31-17

Herald sports writer

ORLANDO - It's amazing what a single player

On Saturday night at the Florida Citrus Bowl. an announced crowd of 28.681, saw how an individual can have a profound imapet on a game as Georgia Southern defeated the University of Central Florida, 31-17.

Both UCF's Knights and Georgia Southern's Eagles had to play for a spell without their No. 1 quarterback. But when they did play, their presence was immediately felt.

For the Eagles, Raymond Gross, 10-18 for 87 yards, was the trigger man, leading Georga Southern to scores of three of its first four possessions.

But shortly after David Cool had bicked a 47-yard fleid goal with 7:57 left in the first half, Gross left the game when he was hit just after releasing a 16-yard pass to Ross Worsham.

Gross didn't return until the third quarter, but when he did he picked up where he left off and led the Eagles to a pair of fourth-quarter touchdowns to ice the victory.

"I knew that once he (Gross) got thed we'd be able to do a better job against him." said UCF coach Gene McDowell, who's team's playoffs chances grow dimmer with each passing garne. When he's fresh and rested up, he can be

It was UCF's bad luck that the time Gross spent on the bench recovering from his injury was just enough to get him ready for the second half.

On the other side of the line, the Knights went with freshman Rudy Jones at quarterback. sophomore starter Shane Willis being sidelined with a shoulder separation.

For almost two and a half quarters, Jones was solid yet unspectacular, completing 10 of 17 passes for 154 yards and a touchdown, a 41-yard inso to Sean Jefferson off a flea flicker in the the score. 7-7, at the 7:33 mark of the first quarter.

"I was impressed with Rudy," said McDowell. "Rudy has all the attributes to be a great quarterback. The only thing he's missing is that he doesn't hit the target all the time. Once he gets to that point, he will be a first-rate quarterback.

"I wasn't worried about starting him at quarterback," added McDowell. "If he had the hot hand he'd be tough."

But in the third quarter Jones went down and out with an injury to his right achilles tendon. While it did not appear serious on Saturday. McDowell said it would be a day or two before the severity of the injury would be known.

In came Willis, bad shoulder and all. And for almost eight minutes, he generated enough excitement to get the hometown crowd believing in an upset over the Eagles who are ranked sixth In the NCAA Division 1-AA national poll.

but all the Knights could muster with Willis at the controls was a 40-yard field goal by Blake Holton to cut the gap to 17-10 with 1:38 left in the third quarter.

Georgia Southern countered immediately, going 90 yards on nine plays in 2:29. Ernest Thompson scoring the second of his three touchdowns to make the score 24-10.

After Thompson scored again, with 2:59 left to play, UCF tried to rally quickly. But the Knights lost Willis to a twisted ankle, suffered when he completed a 41-yard pass to Arneli Spencer.

Ron Johnson became UCF's third quarterback of the night and quickly made his presence felt. connecting on a 17-yard scoring pass to Sean Beckton with 1:58 to play. The Knights forced the Eagles to punt on their next series and took over on their own 25. But Johnson was intercepted by Taz Dixon to kill UCF's last ditch attempt.

"It's obvious that we lost some good players to injuries tonight (Jones and Willis as well as running back Gil Barnes, slight concussion)." said McDowell. "But I can't say that cost us the

The defense, which had given up 112 points in its previous four games, turned in its best effort since a 3-0 win over Edgewater back in the second week of the season. Bernard Eaddy, Ron Cox, Kevin Nathan. Jerome Henderson and Julius Bennett led an assault that would bend at times but not break under the pressure of Oviedo's run and shoot offense.

Offensively, quarterback Kerry Wiggins consistently found his receivers open, especially Brandon Cash, and did a great job of putting the ball in their hands. Wiggins threw for 150 yards, and Cash caught six passes for 118 of those yards. But also contributing greatly was sophomore running back Henry Williams who carried 15 times for 65 yards and junior fullback Bennett who carried four times for 34 yards.

The big play on offense was Wiggins' 60-yard touchdown bomb to Cash in the second quarter. Mike Altizer's kick gave SHS a 7-0 lead. Oviedo would make it 7-6 at the half but Chuk Roll came up with a big field goal In the third period to give Seminole a four-point edge, 10-8.

It was up to the defense then as Oviedo mounted three serious threals my the second half. One ended when Seminole stopped the Lions on a fourth and one play and another ended when Nathan hit quarterback Matt Blanton and forced a fumble on another fourth down play.

Oviedo's final drive of the night came to an end as a result of Seminole's superb pass deense as Eaddy and David Willis both knocked down passes to eal the victory.
"We knew all week we had a hot at beating Oviedo," Wiggins said. "This one game definitely makes our season. Now we'll try to keep improving and hope to get into the three-way playoff."

Oviedo came right back. though with a touchdown drive of its own. Duncan took the kickoff and ran it 23 yards out to for one yard before Blanton hit Mike Moore over the middle for 11 and a first down. Preston Dames carried for two before blanton hit Duncan with a 10 yard first down pass.

Diaz then carried three times for 20, 11, and two yards, the last being for the touchdown. But the extra point try was wide left and Seminole led 7-6, which was the score at the half.

Wiggins tried to get Seminole on the board by throwing 14 yards to Cash and Henry Williams ran for 14 more, and then Wiggins found Leslie Thomas open for 11 more with three seconds left in the half. Seminole tried a 27 yard field ioal but it was also wide left. The second half was played with both teams moving the ball between the thirty yard lines but not getting anything on the board. A big play in the game occured for Oviedo with 1-42 left viedo with 1:42 left in the third quarter. The Lions had moved the ball from the Seminole 48 down to the 18, the big play being a 15 yard run on a reverse by Hector Diazon a hand off from his brother Frank. But on fourth and a foot F. Diaz was stopped for no gain and Seminole took over-

Seminole then moved the ball back down the field. The drive-was highlighted by Williams who ran for 23 yards on four carries and two passes from Wiggins, one to Cash for 13 yards and one to Chuk Roll for eight. With fourth down and one at the 20 Roll was brought in and he kicked a 27 yard field to give Seminole a 10-6 lead with 8:23 left in the game.

The Lions got the ball back with 3:30 left with one last chance for the win. Starting at the Seminole 42 Blanton hit consecutive passes to Moore for 15 and Warner for 13 to move the ball to the 14 But two running plays netted one yard. A third down pass was knocked down in the end zone by Bernard Eaddy and the fourth down pass was knocked down by David Willis and Seminole took over with 1:23 to play. ## Lady Pats end Howell's reign

Dy MARK BLYTHE Herald sports writer

LAKE MARY - Lake Brantley's girls ended a long dry spell with a strong team effort spearheaded by senior Heather Camino and sophomore Joyce Tullis and ended Lake Howell's reign with a 29-40 victory in the Seminole Athletic Conference Championship at Lake Mary Lake Mary took third place with 64 points, followed by Lyman with 108, DeLand with 136 and Seminole with 154. Oviedo did not bring a full squad to the meet.

Brantley's top two runners paved the way with Amy Ginette, Beth Schaefer and Chelsey Trotter coming up with brilliant performances to lead the Lady Patriots to their first title in six years. "All the credit goes to the girls." Lake Brantley coach Charite Harris said. "They ran extremely well as a team and went out did what they knew they had to do to win."

Brantley knew there were three things they had to do to win and accomplished all three.

"First we wanted Heather (Camino) and Joyce (Tullis) to go 1-2 and they did," Harris said. "Then we knew we had to have Amy Ginette in front of or in the midtle of Lake Howell's pack, or place in the top eight and she placed sixth, then we had to have our top five in the top 12 and Trotter, our fifth runner. placed 11th so everything fell into place and I couldn't be more pleased."

Camino won the race with a course record time of 12:22.0. Tullis followed a few steps behind at 12:34.6, Lake Mary's Meisha Abbasinejad continued to run well placing third with a 12:39.6 clocking Lake Howell freshman Monica Compton also ran well turning in a fourth place finish at 12:47.9 with teammate senior Jenny Bolt rounding out the top five with a 13:02.4 clocking. 'We've been confident all season long and now things are starting to come together for us," Camino said. "I think we run as a team and that's what helps us, we all try our best and we all want to win.

Brantley's win ended a streak of six title's by the Lake Howell Lady Silver Hawks, who may have also lost more than a championship in the race.

This was a very costly loss for Lake Howell coach Tom Hammontree said, "We lost Sheryl Palumbo for the season with a muscle tear, she's at the hospital right now and I'm not sure on her exact condition."

Palumbo, who usually runs right with Compton placed 13th overall at 13:38 and finished as Lake Howell's lifth runner in the race. Palumbo has been slowed all week by the muscle but felt she could race Friday.

"We knew she was hampered by her leg but she felt she could run." Hammontree said, "I guess the hill took its toll and her leg gave out, she did the best she could and I'm shocked that she went on to finish the race."

Michelle Cook was the third runner for Lake Howell placing eighth overall with a time of 13:19.2. Natalic Newberry was next at 13:33.6 good for 10th place with Palumbo rounding out the scorers for Lake Howell.

Behind Lake Mary's Abbasinejad came Becka Boothe who turned in an excellent performance and placed seventh overall with a 13:09.5 clocking. Helen Gutmann was next in 15th place at 13:41.8 with the top five at 14:23.0.

Lyman was led by Mary Ellen Lister who placed 12th at 13:37 followed by Lynn Mohler who took 22nd at 15:01 with Jessica Martinsen and Rence Fretwell coming in together in 24th and 25th place at 15:10 and 15:15 respectively with Wanda Whittemore rounding out the top five in 30th place at 15:30.

Seminole was led by Shelley Plumber who placed 23rd at 15:07. Lisa Wenrick was next in 34th place at 16:29 with Michelle. Pearson right behind her in 35th place at 16:31, Keeta Ward was 37th at 17:21 with Vicky Posely placing 38th at 17:22.

The next big meet for all area runners will be the district finals to be held at Lake Mary on Saturday, November 5th at Lake Mary High School The regional meet will be the following week at the University of Central Florida with the state meet to be held in St. Pete Osceola.

LAKE BUENA VISTA - Scott Hoch yelled across the parking lot to Marie Lohr long before husband Bob Lohr seized his first PGA Tour victory Saturday by beating Chip Beck in the setting sun on the fifth hole of sudden death at the Walt Disney World/Oldsmobile Golf Classic

"Hey Marie, you tell Bob with all those birdies he's made the last three days, there's no need to stop now," Hoch said, moments before Lohr teed off at the Magnolla course.

Sure enough. Lohr rolled in five birdies in the final round and two in the playoffs, but it was a six foot par put on the demanding par four 17th that secured the Orlando resident's win before a record-setting gallery in the CBS-TV cameras. What got Lohr to a tournament-record 25-under-par and a tie with Beck was his three foot birdie putt at number 18 moments after Beck's only bogey of the day.

"I was very relaxed over my second shot, and it was probably my best swing of the day," Lohr said, reffering to his radar like eight fron that traveled 158 yards on the final hole. "I couldn't picture standing over a putt to tie for the championship and feeling that relaxed."

"I felt like I had momentum going into the playoffs, but I still had to deal with my first tour playoff ever. When I made the 12-foot birdie putt on the first hole of sudden death (Number 16). I turned to my caddy and said, 'Let's prepare to go to the next tee.' I figured with as many putts as Chip had made ....

Beck countered with a 13-foot birdie putt and both parred 17 and 18, sending them back to number 16 again just ahead of the sinking sun. This time, Beck rolled in a 12-foot putt. Lohr responded with a 15-foot birdle

"I told myself I'd come this far under this much pressure all week," Lohr said, after winning ($126,000), nearly as much as he did during 1987. "I tried to keep my hands light on the putter and give it a good stroke. The worse thing that could happen is that I could miss the

WINTER PARK - No doubt wide out Horace Copeland and guarterback Dale Brewer shared leading roles in seventh-ranked Evans' 32-25 victory over fourth-ranked Winter Park Priday night, but running back Adolf Mizzell received plenty of high fives for his part in the Trojana' crucial District 5A-5

Billed as the showdown at Showalter Field, Evans and Winter Park amassed 33 fourth-period points between them, keeping the standingroom only crowd of 7.001 enraptured and ensuring the Sunshine Network an exciting tape-delay presentation Tuesday.

Copeland, without a catch for the first three quarters, earned a featured spot on the network's state game of the week by hauling in a pair of touchdown passes from Brewer and closed out the scoring with a two-point catch in the right corner of the end zone

Mizzell, elevated to starting status earlier this season when all-state candidate Alfred Simpson sustained a seasonending injury, consistently rushed the Tro, as to excellent field position. And he scored the first of three Evans' fourthquarter touchdowns on a gutty 18-yard run around right end that culminated with a dive into the end zone 41 seconds into the final period.

"Alfred Mizzell was great, fabulous," said Evens Coach Bill Gierke, shortly after his ream seized first place in the district standings with its fifth consecutive victory (and seventh overall). "He was really a key to this game. We asked him to run the draw, and that was the play that put us in field position time, after time."

Mizzell racked up 98 of his 162 yards rushing in the second half, picking up 12 yards on a draw play two snaps before Brewer's 55-yard scoring strike to Copeland crased a 19-18 deficit with 3:59 remaining.

Alter Winter Park's took a 25-24 lead with 1:40 left on the last of tailback Scott Wilson's four touchdowns. Mizzell ground out 38 yards on a pair of runs. His 20-yard burst took the Trojans to the Wildcats' 10. A play later. Brewer hit Copeland in the left corner of the end zone to secure the victory with 28 seconds showing.

"That was my coverage (on Curtis Denmark's 38-yard pass catch from Keith Woods on Winter Park's last accoring drive) so I felt I had to make it up," said Copeland, who also plays de-fensive back. "Coach had faith in me so I had to do my job. He said to be patient, that my time would come."

Said Gierke: "Winter Park did an excellent job of disguising their coverages on Horace. "They had a man behind him, in front of him and sometimes they'd have another guy in the APOPKA - Like every other high achool in the country. Apopka was looking forward to celebrating its homecoming. And on Friday night, the Blue Darters had all the ingredients for a beautiful evening.

Except that the Winter Haven Blue Devils trushed it.

With 3:55 left in the game, Elronn Smith scored on a 7-yard run to lift the Blue Devils to a 23-19 come-from-behind win over the Blue Darters in a non-district 5A confest at Roger Williams Field.

Apopka had taken a 19-16 lead with 8:06

for Lake Mary

to play when Mike Tully kicked a 33 yard field goal. But after the following kickoff, the Blue Devils moved 74 yards on eight plays for the winning score, 50 yards coming on the ground.

The Blue Darters mounted one last drive, advancing to midfield with about 145 to play, but Apopka relief quarterback Brent King was intercepted by Mobley Darvis to kill the drive.

Winter Haven improved to 5-3 while Apopka dropped to 4-3.

More important to Apopka coach Chip Gierke and the Blue Durters than the loss of the game was the loss of starting quarterback Joey Hunt late in the first half to an injury to his left shoulder. While he warmed up on the sidelines after being examined by the paramedics at the scene. Hunt did not return to action.

We don't know how badly he's injured." said Gierke of Hunt, 8 of 14 passing for 96 yards in the first half. "He took a hard hit on that shoulder and it wasn't worth the risk to have him get hit hard again.

"I think Brett looked good at the end. It's my job to play him and have him ready in case we need him. I don't want you to think we wanted to lose tonight, but we didn't want to risk Joey getting seriously hurt and we wanted Brett to get some experience.

Florida's pro shootout

Bucs host Dolphins Sunday

By DAVID CORCORAN Herald correspondent

TAMPA - When the Tampa Bay Buccaneers and the Miami Dolphins play on Sunday, there will be more then a football game at stake.

The entire state of Florida will be watching. When 67,466 fans saw the Bucs first play the Dolphins in Tampa Stadium on Augest 21, 1976 as a first year expansion team, more then just a game was played. A rivalry was bern.

No, it didn't matter that the young Bucs (0-14 that year) gave the veteran Dolphins all they could handle before losing. 28-21. To the people in the Tampa Bay area, they wanted more then just a victory over the Dolphins, they wanted blood. Literally.

So on the eye of the "Florida Pro Football Shootout", let's hear from some of the people who remember the games, past and present.

Phil Krueger, the assistant to Bucs President Hugh Culverhouse, was the first assistant coach hired by the Bucs in 1975 (by John McKay).

"I have fond memories of the 1976 game, because it was our (the Bucs) first home game ever. and it was a special moment for the people involved."

I even have the game ball from the opening kickoff that field Moore at 7:04 p.m., Aug. 21, 1976," said Krueger.

'And even through we (the Bucs) take the game with Mlami on a more business-like approach, the fans here in the Tampa Eay area still look at it as our Super Bowl." Rick Odioso, the Bucs Public Relations Director since 1984, said "there is always a lot of intrest from the media standpoint It's a lot like Florida-Florida State without the state wide blood fend that the Gator-Seminole fans have."

Odtoso also said "the game this year has special meaning because not only of the Marino-Testaverde buildup, but the Shula (father-Don, 30ns) Mike, David) connection, but also the return of Hugh Green the former Bucs All-Prolinebacker that played for the Bucs from 1981-85, who makes his first appearance back at Tampa Stadium since October 6. 1985.

Tom McEwen, the Sports Editor of the Tampa Tribune, is considered "Mr. Tampa Bay" by Buc fana.

The entire football world will be upon Tampa Stadium on Sunday, With the great QB (Marino-Testaverde) matchup. the Shulas, and everything else. this is not only great for the sports fans of Florida, but for the entire nation."

Citing Vinny Testaverde's slight back injury and a desire for "a spark." Tampa Bay Coach Ray Perkins said Thursday veteran Joe Ferguson will start at quarterback against the Mami-Dolphins.

Boomer to test 'Dogs'

United Press International

CLEVELAND - Boomer Estason of the Cincinnati Bengals is the top-rated quarterback in the AFC and the Cleveland Browns boast the league's stinglest pass defense.

The two statistics will collide Sunday as the Boomer and the Bengals, 7-1, visit the Dog Pound' as they take on intrastate and AFC Central rival Cleveland Browns, 5-3, at Cleveland Stadium.

Cincinnati's arsenal is overflowing. Estason has connected on 120 of 204 passes for 1.985 yards, an AFC-high 17 TDs and 10 interceptions. The five-year veteran has plenty of targets in wideouts Eddie Brown (29 catches for 708, 6 TDs) and Tim McGee (20-421-4) and tight end Rodney Holman (22-287-1).

The Browns, second to Chicago in overall defense, have permitted just 134.4 passing yards per game. Defensive end Charles Buchanan has 4 1/2 of Cleveland's 15 sacks in just two games, while cornerbacks Hanford Dixon and Frank Minnifield have teamed with rookie safety Brian Washington to provide strong pass defense. The Browns have permitted just two touchdown passes, both last week at Phoenix.

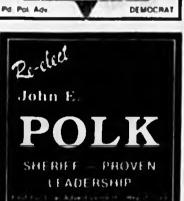

"Cincinnati knows how to stretch a defense, much the same way our offense can," said focused this year, but I don't. Minnifield. "But we have played play defense and I don't play pretty well. We can keep it up we're playing Having Bernie Kosar means a lot to all of us. We. know he can make the big play." Rosar (28 of 51 for 353 yards, three touchdowns, three interceptions) returned last week after missing six games. He is likely to look for running back Earnest Byner (28 receptions for 289 yards) and wideouts Reggle Langhorne (26-314, 3 touchdowns) and Brian Brennan (22-278-1). Byner may have to handle ground chores if a neck and shoulder injury sidelines Kevin Mack, the team leader with 351 yards.

"There's no question that having Bernie Kosar back will help us this second half of the season," says Browns Coach Marty Schottenheimer, "This game isn't crucial just because it's against the Bengals, You never take anybody lightly, and Cincinnati is proving they have talent and coaching.

The Bengals' 24-17 victory in Cincinnati Oct. 25 tied the alltime series at 18-18.

Prevention makes for a Happy Halloween

It would be nice to think of Halloween as a time for fun. It would be foolish not to consider it a risk to children's health and safety.

Margaret Green Wesley personifies history but has written it down.

Children can become so excited about a special time like Halloween that they lose sight of the potential dangers." said Manya Ungar,

National PTA president. But Halloween can be safe yet festive within proper guidelines. The following tips can make the holiday safer for the kids and less worrisome for their parents:

Sale costumes

1. All costume materials should be flameproof. Purchased costumes, beards and wigs should be labeled "flame resistant." Avoid billowing skirts and sleeves that could catch fire when near candle-lit jack-o-lanterns.

2. The length of costumes should allow easy movement, to avoid tripping.

3. Make sure that costumes are roomy enough to allow children to dress warmly. October evenings can be chilly.

4. Shoes should be comfortable-high heels may seem ideal to complete an outlit, but could result in tired feet or even a twisted ankle. 5. Make sure your child wears light colors.

Reflective tape should be a part of all costumes so that costumed creatures don't disappear completely into the darkness. Make sure reflective tape is on treat bags, as well.

6. Don't allow children to use candles, which can cause burns and ignite costumes. Have them carry a flashlight instead. Never let your child carry a candle-lighted pumpkin and never have one on your doorstep, a child could brush his/her costume against it.

7. Swords, knives and similar costume accessories should be made of soil flexible material. Avoid toy weapons that could be mistaken for the real thing. 8. For costumes made at home, apply a temporary flameproof solution (available at

9. For rayon or resin-treated cottons, use 7 ounces of regular laundry borax, 3 ounces of boric acid, and 2 quarts of water to make a temporary flameproof solution. For other fabrics, use 12 ounces of diamonium phosphate and 2 quarts of water for a temporary flameproof solution. Saturate the garment with the solution and allow to drip dry.

10. The best mask is paint and makeup. All face paints, glitters and glues should be

11. If a mask is part of the costume, be sure that eyeholes are large enough for children to see through, the mask stays firmly in position, and they can easily see when they turn their face to the side. Breathing should not be restricted.

12. Attach your child's name, address and phone number (including area code) on the inside of his or her sleeve.

Eating treats

1. Children should be told not to consume any treats until parents have inspected each item. To make this task easier, parents can serve an early dinner or provide snacks that kids can eat en route.

2. After the rounds, parents should carefully examine all treats gathered before consump-

3. Discard any loosely wrapped or suspicious looking items.

4. Cut treats into small pieces to detect any foreign objects, such as pins.

5. Unless you know the person a treat came from, throw away all homemade treats.

Mrs. Patricia 'Sissy' Burney

Ceremony unites Hardy, Burney

SANFORD — Patricia "Sissy" Hardy and James Larry Burney Jr. were married at 2 p.m. on Saturday, May 21, in Holy Cross Episcopal Church in Sanford, with the Rev. Frederick Mann officiating.

The bride is the daughter of Raymond Hardy of Lake Mary and Mr. and Mrs. Richard Reilly of Deltona.

The bridegroom is the son of James Larry Burney Sr. of Longwood and Mrs. Jay Bolton of Sanford.

Given in marriage by her father and mother, the bride chose for her vows a gown of elegant hand-pearled and sequined ivory satin, with a sweetheart opened neckline. The bodice was intricately designed with accents of regal satin piping starting at the waist, and the entire front center panel of the akirt was finished in scattered hand even pearls. The cathedral-length train was scalloped and accented with lace. Long sleeves were puffed at the shoulder. A crowning veil was tlered with netting going down carried a cascading bouquet consisting of four cymbidium orchids, a dozen sonya rosebuds. stephonis, baby's breath and fern and lvy.

Matron of honor was the bride's cousin, Barbara Evans. She wore a dark peach, long gown opened to the calf in the front with a high collar and short sleeves. Baby's breath accented her hair and she carried a presentation bouquet of six sonya roses, baby's breath, eucalyptus and fern.

Serving as bridesmaids were Carol Bowling of Jacksonville; Debbie Tisdel and Dawn Evans of Daytona Beach; and the bridegroom's sister, Christic Park of Melbourne. Their apricot dresses matched the matron of honor's.

Gary Hudgins of Sanford attended as best man.

Groomsmen were Lancy Burney of Fort Lauderdale, brother of the bridegroom; Ray Hardy of Lake Mary, brother of the bride; Dave Park of Melbourne; and Jay Morris of Altamonte Springs. All wore gray tuxedos with apricot bow lies and cummerbunds.

A reception followed the ceremony at the Lake Mary Community Improvement Association building in Lake Mary.

The newlywed couple took a diving trip to Cayman Brac on the Cayman Islanda and settled in Sanford.

The bridegroom is a biologist for Post, Buckley, Schuh and Jernigan. The bride is currently working at Dunbar's Restaurant in Sanford.

NEW ARRIVAL

SANFORD — Leonard Ray and Riane Thompson of Sanford, announce the birth of their son, Leonard Ryan, on Wednesday, Oct. 5, at Central Florida Regional Hospital, Sanford. He weighed in at 7 pounds, 8 ounces.

Maternal grandmother is Karen H. Richardson of Oviedo. Paternal grandmother is Joan Hopkins of Sanford.

Tips-

6. All fruit should be washed and cut open to make sure no foreign objects are inside.

7. Any suspicious treats or harmful objects should be reported to law enforcement authorities.

Dr. Theodore Cayle, vice president of scientific affairs for the Sugar Association, says eating Halloween candy and other treats does not have to lead to tooth decay.

Cayle says masqueraders can enjoy the candy, then brush and floss well. During the week following Halloween, rather than allowing the children to nibble constantly at the remaining goodies, parents can set a specific time for eating Halloween leftovers, such as after dinner, followed by a toothbrush workout.

En route

1. Before trick-or-treaters venture out, parents should review safety rules with their children.

2. Give your children some change for a pay phone in case they need to call home.

3. Have children go trick or treating early, but avoid the evening rush hour. It's harder for motorists to see clearly at twilight than at any other time of specific neighborhood boundaries within which children may trick or treat, and warn them not to cut through yards, emply lots or deserted areas. Advise children to go only to homes with outside lights on.

All that glittered was golden oldie

Crinolines and poodle skirts stole the fashion scene at Sanora Clubhouse last Saturday night when the Board of Directors of Ballet Guild of Sanford-Seminole honored sponsors and supporterrat the annual Sponsors Party, Cool, man.

Party. Cool. man.

Flashing neon lights, colors of hot pink, turquoise, white and black, a jukebox and a deejay spinning familiar platters took the revelers right back to the 50s, the theme of the party. Real livey. This motif was chosen in keeping with the guild's forth-coming rock n' roll ballet, "Doo Wah Didddy" scheduled for next March.

Board member Pat Beers greeted the guests as they entered through a jukebox-decorated door. Her husband. George, was one of the bartenders who wouldn't be caught dead without his little bow tie. Valerie Weld was all decked out in her crinolines and plaid skirt and her husband. George, wore a white jacket with a pink carnation boutonniere on his lapel.

According to board member
Donna Hoffman, about 200
merrymakers turned out. "It was a fun party," she said.

Kim Sullivan, another board member, added that the party "was really beautiful. We (the board) are excited about this year. There is a new feeling in the air."

Kim also commended community businesses for their support According to her, much of food, flowers, decorations and other items were generously

The guild is currently involved in a fund-raiser, a craft sale, which will be held Nov. 14-18, beginning at 4 p.m., at the home studio, 2580 S. Elm Ave.

Several United Methodist Women of the First United Methodist Church donned aprona instead of their usual Sunday-go-to-meetin' attire at the recent Market on Park Bazaar and Luncheon. According to Louise Harria, president of the UMW, it was a "huge success. I'm just really pleased."

A steady crowd shopped at the Country Store where Jean Musgrove, chairman, Lori Hartsock and Clayda Jones sold a variety of homemade goodies. Joyce Sawyer was in charge of the New-to-You Shoppe, which attracted a large number of bargain hunters. At the Craft Shep manned by Martha and Kit Bedell, shoppers couldn't resists Mabel Chapman's unique homemade baskets.

Overall bazaar chairman was Martha Crossier, with Margaret Fontaine as the kitchen chairman. Serving the tables, which were scattered throughout McKinley Hall and the adjoining courtyard, were Louise Harris, Mary Boone, Derry Harris, Mari Briggs and Betty Doyle. Carole Pegram was in charge of tickets.

ixora Garden Club extends an open invitation to a benefit luncheon on Nov. 11 at the Country Club at Heathrow. The social hour begins at 11 a.m. Guest speaker will be Tom MacCubbin, author and Orange County Urban Horticultrist.

Several interesting items will be on the auction block. Proceeds from the luncheon will go to the Beautification Committee of Sanford.

Admission is a $20 donation. Reservations must be made no later than Nov. 4 by calling Amelia, 323-0755; Darea, 322-8477; Joyce, 322-5600; or Linda, 322-5535.

Already the wheels are turning and hearts are pounding as plans get underway for the Annual American Heart Association (Seminole Chapter) Fashion Show and Luncheon. The event is scheduled for Feb. 10.

Chairmen again this year are Jean Clontz and Gail Stewart, who have done a super job in previous years. And wait until you hear who will be helping with the catering...none other than Liz Helfrich, cookbook author, lecturer, world traveler and award-winning celebrity cook (along with her husband, Dr. Norman Helfrich, Jr., of course) in a March of Dimes Gourmet Gala. More on all this later,

For the fourth straight year, several couples have been flying off to attend a favorite football game. And this year was no different.

Among those attending the recent Florida-Vanderbilt game in Nashville were: Jean and Frank Clontz, Becky and Rick Dunn, Lee and Jim Barks, Darla and David Lanter, Gail and Roger Stewart, Mary Ann and Mack Cleveland, and Richard Mamele and date.

Darla Lanier made all the arrangements, and from all reports, a good time was had by all.

SANFORD — Hasten B. and Marge Owens were honored on their 50th wedding anniversary at a reception hosted by their children at the Sanford Woman's Clubhouse, on the evening of Saturday, Oct. 15.

The three granddaughters, Amy Griffith of Fayetteville, Ga., and twins Lisa and Lara RiCharde of Sanford, were floating hostesses.

Guesta were served anniversary cake, a light buffet, citrus punch and coffee. Relatives from out of state and out of town assisted.

Team effort made Walk-a-Thon succeed

Balmy air and bright sunshine beckoned over 300 children and adults to stroll, walk and run (and even bike if under five) in the Walk-A-Thon sponsored by the Central Florida Chapter of the Juvenile Diabetes Foundation. But the most pleasing aspect of this fund-raiser is the $23,000 in pledges that has come in, with more expected!

The walk-a-thon took place Saturday morning, Oct. 22, in Sabal Point in Longwood. After registering, walkers began their 10-kilometer (6.2 ml.) walk at Sabal Point Elementary School. Volunteers set up drink stands around Sabal Palm Drive where walkers stopped long enough to get a refreshing beverage and have their card punched.

Support was shown by many members of diabetics' families. Families helped by walking, volunteering at rest stops and/or raising money

Linda Nordyke, a diabetic, of Sweetwater Oaks in Longwood single-handedly raised $1,155.00, most of it coming from her friends. Her parents. Karl and Bonnie Nordyke, daughter while she ran most of the way.

Another family joining in the cause were brothers Greg and Lenny Rodgers of Apopka. Travis Rodgers, Lenny's son, rode his bike with his dad and his uncle. The four-year-old nodded when asked if he was having fun. Greg's 22-month-old son, Nathan, has diabetes, and his wife worked on bringing inthe pledge money.

Stan Coplin, a resident of Sabai Point, volunteered to serve drinks and punch cards. Stan is the father of the co-chairman of two-year-old daughter has diabetes. Mark Sehnert, who also resides in Sabal Point, helped Stan man the station. They heard comments from the walkers about the beautiful day, the lovely walk and how happy they were to be out there for such a good cause.

The foundation's Central Florida Chapter started in April of this year. This was their first solo effort at a fund-i-.....

what a success! Proceeds will go to the Juvenile Diabetes Foundation in Washington, D.C., where doctors and researchers work with diabetics. A board of lay people will decide where the money will go from there.

Rob Coplin remarked, "There walked a few paces behind their " was really a great effort and a lot of support from the community." He hopes to make the Walk-A-Thon an annual fundrainer.

My first husband was somewhat overweight when we married. He quickly added extra pounds. After experiencing high blood pressure, kidney stones and a lieart problem, his physician told him to lose weight or prepare for surgery. The last time I saw him, he had gone up six suit sizes. I said goodbye.

I made my second husband model for me in his underwear before we were married. He was 6 feet, 2 inches, 175 pounds, handsome, and a doctor to boot. Immediately after our marriage he started to put on weight. By our 10th anniversary he had gained 90 pounds. (His breasts were larger than mine and he absolutely crushed me when we made love.) Meanwhile I stayed within five pounds of what I weighed when I married him. He was shocked when I left him. I realize that not everyone can

Edith wonand played another heart, picking up West's queen. After cashing dummy's fourth heart. she led a club back toward her queen. West followed with the eight, apparently signaling four cards in clubs. Edith was now disposed to believe that the diamond king was with West. and she further presumed that East had only a singleton, since he had shown up with three hearts and presumably had six spades. In addition, she trusted the helpful eight of clubs as being a true card. So she led the diamond queen from her hand. West followed low without pause. Declarer believed that West would have covered with K-10-x-x and would have shown some reaction with K-x-x-x. Trusting her judgment, she rose with dummy's ace, dropping the singleton king from East. A low diamond back to her nine gave West a trick, but the defenders could not defeat three no-trump. (C)1988, NEWSPAPER EN-

Woody Allen's serious side breaks through again

ANOTHER WOMAN (PG) It's easy to poke fun at Woody Allen's latest movie, since it's another of his Hergmanesque/Chekhovian affairs-a chamber drama made by a fellow who is best at making us laugh. How dare he forego his sense of humor? Indeed, his last somber effort, "September," was dreadful.

This time. Allen is getting similarly tepid notices, though

"Another Woman" is a much more assured film-maybe even a breakthrough for him. Never before (not even in the wonderful 'Annie Hall') has the writerdirector so fully entered the consciousness of a character other than one played by himself

Here, he takes as inside the mind of an overly controlled, middle-aged philosophy professor (Gena Rowlands)-a

whose philandering physician quietly disintegrating woman husband (lan Holm) is even more aloof and blocked than she is: Renting a flat in which to write a book, she discovers a curious acoustical problem: The neighboring apartment belongs to a shrink, and through the open grate she can hear one distraught patient's confessions, The overheard anguish catalyzes herown.

Shot by Sven Nykvist, the movie is austere and autumnal: New York has never looked so dark, so gray. At first, this bodes badly for the film. As the Rowlands character starts to fall apart, one worries that the movie will degenerate into Allen's dutiful homage to Bergman's "Face to Face" (where Liv Ulimann was the disintegrating intellectual). Even as the movie goes along, there are signs that Allen is still somewhat unsure of himself as a serious artist. A self-conscious narration spoken by Rowlands often just verbalizes what we can already see

Still, this small, uneven movie ultimately works. The key to its success is that Allen has chosen the right actress to embody his story of middle aged angst. Gena Rowlands has fallen apart in movies before-usually in grainy, grueling films directed by her husband. John Cassavetes. Alas. Cassavetes often gave Rowlands too much free rein, and she responded by acting up a neurotic storm. This time, she's more subdued. Control seems to have been as good.

Gena Rowlands and Gene Hackman star in Woody Allen's "Another Woman," the story of a middle-aged philosophy professor who faces a crisis when "the good life" she has been living comes unravelled.

them are still living, and their children and grandchildren are living," said Wesley, who herself attended school in Sanford, Il's easy to feel somewhat intimidated by Wesley at first meeting. The snow-haired woman, with smart eyes and dignified stature, is a storehouse of information. In her cozy West Wilbur Avenue home, located a stone's throw from Lake Crystal. she aurrounds herself by oil reproductions of Renoir and antique cherrywood furniture, meticulously kept, which was owned by ancestors. Ancient classics are neatly arranged on a bookshelf.

'Nothing to me is historic." Wesley said categorically. At first, her comment seems ironic. But it makes sense when one realizes that, at Wesley's age. most of her knowledge about the past is first hand.

in 1919, Wesley's parents, her four sisters and she boarded a train and left the grips of a bone-chilling Pennsylvania winter. Destination: Sanford. Fla. Wesley's father, a railroad man, was going to Florida to pursue a job as a locomotive engineer. One year later, the family settled in a new home in a five-acre orange grove on the north shore of Lake Mary. One of her neighbors was Axel Lundquist, whose family was among the Swedish immigrants brought to the area by General Henry Shelton Sanford.

Wesley begins her chapter on Lake Mary by lauding the town's name: "Lake Mary! Just the name held a beautiful, magical sound that fall of 1920, when Mother, Papa, and we five girls moved from Sanford, Florida, to a five-acre orange grove on the north shore of Lake Mary. For the first time in our lives we would be living close to water. We would have a beach for swimming, a row-boat, a pier for diving, plus golden oranges for the picking. We left like Alices in Wonderland."

She and a sister still attended Sanford Grammar School on Seventh Street, between Elmand Laurel avenues, while two sisters attended the primary school on the east side of Palmetto Avenue at Sixth Street.

The grammar school, utilized from 1902-1983, is the oldest schoolhouse in Seminole County, and is now a historic school museum, said to Jim-Elliott, consultant coordinator of social studies for Seminole County School District. It features several exhibit areas including a 1902 turn of the century classroom, annuals from Seminole County schools dating from 1902, an exhibit on native Americans and a pioneer room. It held all 12 grades until a high school was built on Palmetto Avenue.

Seminole High School on French Avenue at 18th Street was built after the population had grown a bit. The dedication of the school took place on Feb. 28, 1927, Just in time for Wesley. She said that after finishing the eighth grade, herswas the first class to enter the high school and the first to graduate from it in 1927. The site is now a book repository for the Florida Department of Education, she said. Wesley displayed keen writing skills early in her school days. In-May 1922, she received a medalfrom the N. DeVere Howard Chapter of Daughters of the American Revolution for her essay "The Manhood of Robert E. Lee," She still keeps a copy of the essay and a picture of herself posing proudly with the medalin a 20s graduation dress. Two years later, on June 3, 1924, she became the Lake Mary reporter for the Sanford Herald. When her career called her elsewhere, her mother, Mrs. W. G.

Ferguson, took her place at the

"I never thought much about it," she said of her editorship.

Shortly after graduation from high school, Wesley at 18 married Marcus Green and bore a daughter she named Barbara. Two years later she moved with him to his old stomping ground of Smyrna. Tenn. There, she pursued a literary career, as correspondent for the Nashville managing editor of The Rutherford Courter, a local weekly. Wesley also was employed as a civilian placement and employee. management relations officer for Sewart Air Force Base, Smyrna, and later worked in the library of The Methodist Publishing House in Nashville.

Wesley lived to see Lake Mary's economy boom and watch it bust in the Great Depression.

She said real estate swarmed into the area from everywhere.

"Everything burgeoned in the 1920s." she said, Lake Mary's Chamber of Commerce and even the nation's Girl Scouts came into being during that era-

The 20s were roaring along pretty well by this time (1922-1923)," says Wesley's book. The college crowd, with their coonskin coats, hip flasks and cars with rumble seats, were the ones really in the swing. We high-schoolers were more the observers, the listeners to the grapevine, the gossip passers.
"Just when the Florida boom began, no one can say. It may have begun with the readjustment and renewal of normal activities after World War L Like the proverbial March, it came in like a lamb. But gathering momentum as the 20s advanced, it began to have a lion's roar. First single houses. then whole subdivisions, were being built. New businesses were being born, and new commercial Besides going to school, swimming and fishing. Wesley engaged herself in numerous social activities-picnics, oyster hunts and band concerts. Watching periodic parades by the Ku-Klux Klan was also an event, although Wesley said they never received much positive reaction.

In Lake Mary, Axel Evald Sjoblom's general store was always a hub of activity. Sjoblom did everything there.

"If you needed to buy lumber. groceries, shoes, a cemetery lot, a postage stamp, or a piece of land, Sjoblom had it for sale," Wesley's book says. "If you wanted to ride the train. Sjoblom would stop it for you."

Another character of significant importance in those days was Frank Evans, a showman who replaced Charles Entzminger on the Seminole County Board of Commissioners in 1926. Wesley says in her book that it was through Evans' influence that many improvements came to the Lake Mary

By 1927, the boom bust struck the Lake Mary area, two years before it hit in other parts of the country.

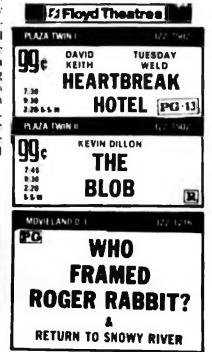

The first real shock wave hit in August 1927, when the Seminole County Bank closed," Wesley said. Everything came to Banner and society editor and a halt and many people moved away, including Wesley, who moved to Tennessee with her husband. Her family went back to Pennsylvania.

Her parents, she said, bought land in Lake Mary and returned there. She and her husband visited and in 1963, Wesley returned to the land of her childhood once again. Her husband of 48 years died in 1975. Wesley said she remained single for almost 10 years before marrying Dr. Raiford Douglas Wesley, who recently passed Besides authoring books. Wesley writes a monthly historical column for Lake Mary's Progress magazine.

On Wesley's 80th birthday in January, Park Place Park near Crystal Lake will be renamed Margaret Green Wesley Park and dedicated to her for her interest and involvement in the Lake Mary area.

Wesley's book are available at Lake Mary City Hall for $10. Proceeds go to the Lake Mary Historical Commission.

Analysis by TOM TIEDE NEA correspondent

My, oh my, did you hear what George Bush called Michael Dukakis? He said the Massachusetts governor is a card-carrying member of the American Civil Liberties Union. And did you hear what Dukakis called Bush? He suggested the vice president is little more than a reincarnation of the demagogic Joseph Mc-Carthy.

It's been that kind of presidential contest. Nasty and almost entirely negative. The Democrais have accused the Republican of being a wimp, and the Republicans have countered that the Democrat is a shrimp. Political observers believe that the campaign for the White House has been the meanest in at least a decade.

But in actuality that is not saying a lot. The decade is only a moment in America's 200 years of presidential electioneering. Scholars suggest that the campaigns have always lended to be down and dirty, and therefore the 1988 race is merely another routine chapter in the somewhat sordid chronical of these things.

One scholar is Professor William Michaelsen. He is a presidential historian at New York's Pace University, and author of the book "Creating the American Presidency, 1775-1789." He says presidential candidates have been calling each other names from the beginning, and never mind whether they have been accurate or not.

George Washington's opponents said he was the secret sire of Alexander Hamilton. John Adams was accused of being a British royalist at heart, and thus a trattor. Thomas Jefferson was also said to have fathered illegitimate children. mulattoes no less; and he was furthermore said to be an atheist who would close the churches.

Michaelsen points out that the dirt was not on a personal level in the early days. Presidential candidates did not stump for the office themselves until the 19th century; instead, they left the name calling to surrogates, called campaign advisers now, who would shoot at anything that moved.

Dolley Madison was accused of siding with the British, when she was not in bed with Thomas Jefferson, James Monroe, president during the "Era of Good Feelings," was said to have helped bring about the death of George Washingron, John Quincy Adam's people whispered that Andrew Jackson's wife was a bigamist,

And how about Andrew Johnson? His detractors giggled that he was "Andy the Sot." Historians says that he was only a moderate drinker, at wome. But he took a large brandy before one public appearance, he slurred some words during a speech, and he was never able to shake his reputation as a falling-down lush.

Michaelsen says that charges go on and on. The militaristic William Henry Harrison )"T(ppecanoe") was branded as a "sham hero." Herbert Hoover was charged with personally bringing about the wholesale suffering of the Great Depression. And opponents sometimes threw eggs to disrupe the campaign proceedings for Wendell Wilkie.

Then there was the 1884 contest between Grover Cleveland and James Blaine. Michaelsen says it may have been the dirtiest campaign of all. The Republicans found out that the Democrat, Cleveland, had once had a dalliance with a woman named Maria Halpin, and she said he was the father of her child, Cleveland didn't deny the affair. It was not certain if the child was his responsibility, but he didn't deny that either. And so the GOP played the story for all it was worth. Blaine's forces chanted the most popular ditty of the day, which was: "Ma, Ma, where's my Pa? Gone to the White House, ha, ha, ha!" Michaelsen says the ditty was publicized in newspapers back then. He thinks it would be even more devastating on today's television news programs. Michaelsen says the modern media is more aggressive than that which has gone before, and, as a result, it has become a catalyst for underhanded campaigning.

The mocking of Dan Quayle is an example. Michaelsen says the media started the attacks against the Republican vice presidential candidate, primarily to relieve the tedium of the GOP nominating convention. He says the truth is that the media has a vested interested in promoting such shame and scandal.

Of course, the Democrats must share the blame. And the Republicans, for their part, Michaelsen says the parties do not normally bother with dirt when the contests are onesided, but that hasn't been the case this year.

Superintendent Bob Hughes, seeking his third term, cites a school system which has grown by 8,000 students in eight years without resorting to splitsessions, and a five-year comprehensive building program as evidence of a district which is responding well to growth.

Doddington, a teacher at Altamonte Springs Elementary, says parents are not adequately informed of rezoning issues. nor he says, is there enough coordination with developers and city planners to schedule for continued growth.

Hughes argues that the board works closely with the East Central Florida Planning Council, the University of Florida Planning Department and the Seminole County Planning Department. "The key is to set a comprehensive plan," he said, "And we've done that, Bee Board, Page 6D

The reduction of class sizes in Seminole County schools is the primary issue of candidates vying for the school board District 2 slot.

Rhetoric clouds Amendment 10

What is Amendment 10? This is the prefacing question on many of the television ads now being broadcast by the two sides in the fight over this amendment. The content of the ads only confuses the matter.

The amendment would provide that a person entitled to recover damages for bodily injuries may not receive more than $100,000 for non-economic losses. Such losses are defined as including pain and suffering, inconvenience, mental anguish, loss of capacity to enjoy life, loss of consortium and other non-pecuniary losses.

A war chest of more than $10 million has been amassed by the combatants in a greed fight between two of the most affluent groups in the state - doctors and lawyers. The resulting messages from both sides contain outright untruths. Yes, there is a problem with liability awards and doctors point their fingers at greedy lawyers and over-generous juries. Lawyers point to the poor quality of medicine practiced by a few doctors in the state. An in-depth report developed and published in the Herald in June 1987 showed that approximately 6 percent of the doctors were responsible for 90 percent of malpractice awards of more than $1 million. On the other side, a few lawyers actively solicit malpractice and accident victims through advertisements.

The Florida Medical Association is extremely reluctant to discipline its members. even after they have been found responsible for multiple acts of malpractice.

An Academic Task Force was created by the legislature in the fall 1987 to investigate the causes of increased insurance premiums and to suggest methods of resolving the perceived crisis. Its report recommended against any cap on non-economic damages saying. "It will adversely affect a small group of some of the most seriously injured individuals in society." Any cost savings, the task force said, "would be at the expense of penalizing these severely injured victims who have already proven negligence in a court of

The legislature, during a special session in February 1988, enacted a statute directed solely at medical maipractice claims. It sets a cap of $250,000 in non-economic damages if both plaintiff and defendent agree to binding arbitration; and $350,000 if a defendent wants binding arbitration, but plaintiff ref-

If Amendment No. 10 passes, the principal beneficiaries will be the doctors and certain insurance companies. Since a high percentage of the state's physicians have formed their own insurance company, they can set their own premiums under state regulation.

The principal losers will be the severely injured victims of a few doctors who have forgotten that portion of the Hippocratic oath admonishing them to "do no harm."

The legislature's formula for handling capped awards seems just. But, it's too soon to know for sure. For physicians who know a suft against them is wrong, they should have faith in juries. This is the traditional method of American jurisprudence. The largest awards in recent years have been for economic damages arising out of horrendous instances of medical malpractice.

A weeding out of bad doctors by the medical profession will solve most of that problem.

Convinced that the small premium savings by physicians and other residents of the state does not justify penalizing severely injured victims of medical malpractice, the Herald recommends a no vote on amendment 10.

Reagan conservatives leaving White House

WASHINGTON - As sand fills the hour glass President Reagan's conservative advisers are drifting away

But not so far away. They will stay in Washington and vigorously pursue their yet unfulfilled agenda.

Reagan himself has no intention of being put out to pasture. He speaks often of going back out on the "mashed potato circuit" after Jan. 20 to plump for the conservative goals he failed to get past a reluctant Congress.

One of his key comrades in arms who tried to turn the country to the right, Gary L. Bauer, 42. is leaving his post as the chief White House domestic policy adviser. He served in the administration nearly the eight years of the president's tenure, mostly in the No. 2 job in the Department of Education where he guided policy in the direction of making family values a part of the curriculum.

"My goals were obviously the same as the president," he said in an interview.

Leaving at the end of the month, Bauer will become president of the Family Research Council, whose prime purpose will be lobbying on Capitol Hill, and "Focus on the Family," a California organization providing the financial promoting day care and education in family values, although abortion and school prayer will still be a concern.

Although Vice President George Bush apparently has not "sorted out" who should be penalized in his anti-abortion stand - the woman, the doctor or whoever - Bauer said he has never viewed her as anything but "a victim. the same as the un-born child."

The organization Bauer will join lobbied unsuccessfully against broadening anti-discrimination aspects of the Civil Rights Act in the last session when Congress overrode the president's veto.

But he feels that he won a major victory when on his advice the president issued an executive order directing all federal agencies to consider the "impact on the family" of its decisions.

He also believes that the conservative policies have led to a turn-around in the nation's schools with more emphasis on the values of "right and wrong" in addition to the basics, reading, writing and 'rithmetic.'

Bauer said Reagan's rightward turn also has been effective in naming a number of judges to the federal courts.

One of his last major efforts was his controversial report on strengthening the family in which Reagan basically endorsed his recommendation that federal funding for experimentation on fetal tissue be banned or severely limited. Reagan asked for a review by the Department of Health and Human Services. which has not yet made its judgment. Many doctors involved in medical research are opposed to the recommendation on grounds that fetal tissue provides many clues to progress on many diseases, including Alzheimer's

Bauer said that he hails from a family of Democrats in Newport, Ky. As a youth, he worked with Republicans in his town to clean up crime and learned to admire their philosophy.

Galanos, not monkey on back

BOSTON-When I read that Nancy Reagan was still on the borrowing circuit. I immediately started worrying about such things as dress shields and red wine.

How do you explain to Galanos if you spill ketchup on the $20,000 evening gown he lent you? What sort of an apology do you make to the Winstons if the back comes off one of the $800,000 diamond earrings and you can't find it anywhere in Buckingham Palace?

This train of thought revealed three things about me. (1) I am hopelessly bourgeots. (2) The only person I borrow clothes from is my sister. (3) I wasn't surprised.

I never thought the Reagans were cut from the old Republican cloth coat, Ronnie's $200,000 salary makes him a pauper in his set. If he had been such a creative cost-cutter-borrowing a few tanks, for example-we might not be in the deficit hole.

But within days of the news that the first lady had broken "her little promise" of 1982. I began to hear a curiously thempeutic line of "What we have here is a striking example of fashion compulsion," one New York magazine editor told a reporter. "That woman is a clothes junkie," exclaimed a more political friend. A third, upon hearing that Nancy had worn 80 outfits since 1982, costing between $1,500 and $20,000 each, sighed, "She's got a real psychological problem."

There it was Compulsion, Junkie Problem. Inhising the talk about Nancy was the sort of drugspeak that has become, well, habitforming. When anyone, not just Nancy. behaves outrageously we are likely to nod our heads and speak of this behavior as the symptom of an addiction.

Even our most barbed and personal criticisms have begun to sound more medicinal than moral We simultaneously translate human weaknesses into this new tongue

A bore at the party is a compulsive talker. A woman who lives at the mall a compulsive shopper. A friend found with her hand in the fudge admits sheepishly, "I'm addicted to chocolate." A wife talking of her husband's endless office hours says. He is a workaholic.

I am hooked on macadamia nuts. The kids are hooked on television. You are hooked on potato chips, "Thirtysomething," Sarandon or cherry-vanilla ice cream.

Even our gossip is exchanged in drugspeak. In any fern-infested restaurant, a casual eavesdropper can hear about a woman who is addicted to married men or a man who is addicted to 20-year olds. She is now suffering from relationship withdrawal. He keeps going

It reminds me of the Bloom County penguin standing before his support group confessing. "Hi, My Name is Opus and I am a Herringholic, I admit I am powerless over fish innards and that my life has become unmanageable." Give that bird a lish.

The way we use the language of addiction is sloppy to say the least. Addictions are real. Ask a smoker. Ask a drinker. Ask someone with tracks up his arm.

But having a fantasy life rich in chocolate doesn't qualify as a drug problem. You can indulge in a series of bad love affars without having a chemical dependency. And you can actually do something wrong without being certifiably sick.

Drugspeak is at once damning and forgiving. The subtext is the excuse as well as the admission that "I can't help myself." The way that notion has crept into our everyday conversation, infesting our criticism and self-criticism, undermines the sense that average people are in control of their own lives.

personal criticisms have

medicinal

than moral

This is especially fronte in the case of Nancy Reagan, whose whole pitch against drugs-real drugs, not love potions and clothes fixes-has been to encourage kids to make the right choice: no. It's more than peculiar to find her judged and diagnosed in a language she surely wouldn't approve of.

The first lady doesn't need to be sent to Borrowers Anonymous, I suspect that she rationalized her loans and their secreey. I'm also sure she was wrong.

She lied about it. She was caught. She's embarrassed. But it's a Galanos on her back. not a monkey

Campaign bothers some Democrats

WASHINGTON - Democratic sources outside the Michael Dukakis camp are exasperated with the course of his presidential campaign. They maintain that once again the Democratic Party has failed to reckon with the enemy They underestimated the potential appeal of the Republican message and underestimated Bush as a campaigner," said one Democratic consultant who has worked closely with the Dukakis campaign.

He noted that the problem wasn't new to the 1988 campaign, but also plagued the Democrats in the last three presidential contests. "We couldn't wait to run against Reagan in 1980. He beat us to death."

This Democratic insider and others also think the Dukakis camp was too slow to shift gears from the primaries to the general election. Dukakis virtually sewed up the nomination by late March, but spent the next three months preparing for the Democratic Convention instead of the battle with George Bush.

The lack of preparation for a light is best displayed in the campaign ads and harsh on Bush the clarity of the messages. As one Democratte adviser told our associate Jim Lynch, "I'm amazed by one thing, the discipline of George should have

Peace and prosperity. Dukakis is a liberal." The Dukakis message was, "An issue a day. Make Bush go away," the adviser said. 'Well, he didn't go away."

Bush. His message hasn't changed a bit:

Bush campaign commercials pack more punch into 30 seconds than do the Dukakis ads, one Democratic adviser claimed. A good example of that punch is the way Bush crystalized the fuzzy prison furlough issue. His ad simply pictured a revolving prison door. The Dukakis ads about the packaging of Bush are too confusing and too subtle, the adviser told us.

"If someone just happens to look up (at the TV), they shouldn't have to wonder whose campaign ad they're watching," he said. He thinks the Dukakis ads should have been more harsh on Bush. For instance, Dukakis could have handled the American Civil Liberties Union issue by playing on Bush's allegiance to the National Rifle Association. "The NRA has as many extreme positions as the ACLU," he said.

He envisioned a Dukakis ad showing a hunter in the woods with a sub-machine gun.

This same Democratic adviser maintained that Dukakis' strategy in the final week must be to stop the voters from making a premature decision — "there's a tendency for voters to want to side with the winner" - and to create a major event as a diversion. He suggests the Dukakis campaign "road block all the four networks for a half-hour in the last week."

He also asserted that the Democrats had allowed the election to focus on George Bush. This election has not been about Michael Dukakis. It has been about George Bush - is he or is he not qualified for president?"

Another divisive issue among the Democrats is the aversion in the Dukakis camp to using independent fund-raising tactics. Several small groups offered to raise millions for the campaign and launch independent advertising campaigns. The practice is used in Republican campaigns, but it did not appeal to the Dukakis crew, which has kept the entire campaign controlled by a tight inner circle. The adviser called that a crucial

A strong, free America

Veterans of varied political, ethnic and religious backgrounds are vitally interested in the issues of the Presidential campaign. They have served to defend America and preserve her interests around the world. They have seen the devastation, the heartache and sorrow which modern warfare has impinged into the lives of the innocent, the helpicas, the homeless. They have some thoughts on war and peace.

In modern war there are no real winners. Everybody loses, some more than others. Prevention of war and preserving peace is a prime priority. This means that the nation naust keep militarily strong enough to deter any would-be agressor. It means denuclearization should never be unilateral, but based on mutual respect, agreements, and verification.

Elimination of nuclear warbeads in Europe can drastically increase the danger from massive conventional weapons and armies. NATO allies, and the West, dare not negotiate themselves into a position of weakness. They need to maintain a balance of power, nuclear and conventional, great enough to resist any overt use of "conventional" forces by a disgruntled adversary.

Within the country crime and terrorism. disregard and disrespect for the law are foes which must be conquered. Two hundred years ago early Americans discovered that freedom was not enough. They need guidelines and safeguards to preserve it. From this the American Constitution and Bill of Rights

Today, campaign rhetoric is not enough! Whoever the election winners are, what is needed is a bi-partisian effort of the Executive Branch and Congress to increase respect for the adherance to our Constitutionally based laws. ## Halloween: a font of trivia

Halloween is a time for tricks and treats. It is also a time to lend assistance to the United Nations International Childrens Emergency Fund, UNICEF, to alleviate suffering of children in 119 developing nations. It was 1965 when UNICEF conceived the plan to have children trick or treat for UNICEF and ask people to give their spare change to this cause. Thus, children learn to care for others in the midst of having Halloween originated as a religious observance. It was the evening before all Hallows. All Saints Day. Since ancient times October 31 was observed as a secular day also.

Britian and Ireland had the Ceitic Festival of Sambian on this day. It was the eve of the new year in Celtie and Anglo-Saxon times. Huge bouffres were lighted on hilltops to irighten away evil spirits. The festival acquired a more somber aspects as ghosts, witches, hobgoblins, black cats and demons of all descriptions allegedly roamed about. It was a proper time for divining the future and gathering information concerning marriage, luck, health and death.

Irish immigrants to this country are chiefly credited with introducing Halloween customs. Observing Halloween became very popular in the late 1800's. At that time boys and young men participated in mischief that night. Vandalism and property damage sometimes resulted from their pranks. Consequently, this destructive way of observing Halloween changed.

Halloween evolved to the point that it was customary for small children to dress in costumes. Thustly stilred they would visit neighbors homes for tricks or treats.

The custom of permitting children to wanter unsupervised through the neighborhood tricking and treating has almost been abandoned. This was necessary because for several years request for "trick or treats" have yielded an assortment of items injurious to children. Razors, pine and pills have been cleverly concealed in the treats.

In recognition of this danger Central Florida

Regional Hospital has provided a community service by x-raying treats. Russell Hoogerwerf has indicated that the x-ray department will be open on Halloween from 6.9 p.m. for that purpose. The front door or the emergency entrance may be used.

A good rule for insuring a pleasant Halloween for all is for you to don your Halloween costume and accompany your children. Limit your visits to the homes of people you know.

Excitement abounds when youth groups plan their own Halloween parties. Transforming rooms in a school, church or recreation center into a haunted house provides supervised enjoyment for many children.

When adults carefully plan with children and participate in Halloween activities three things result; a safe and fun filled Halloween, quality time with your children, and teaching them concern for others by contributing to UNICEF. Contributions to UNICEF should be mailed to The United States Committee for UNICEF, 331 East 38th Street New York, New York 10016.

Israeli peace, security issues in election

By WILLIAM B. RIES United Press International

JERUSALEM - Right wing Likud voters say security is the most important issue in Tuesday's Israeli election. Supporters of the center-left Labor Party think peace is the top priority. The choice of words - security or peace - reveals how differently Israel's two main parties see the future of their troubled state and how they would end the 10-month-old Palestinian uprising In the occupied West Bank and Gaza Strip.

"We believe security is the condition for peace," said Benyamin Netanhayu, one of Likud's rising stars, "and they (Labor candidates) believe peace is the condition for security.

Evenly matched in opinion polls as Tuesday's election approaches. Labor and Likud hope to find a winning margin among undecided "floating voters," who analysts say range between 4 percent and 12 percent of the electorate.

To sway those undecided, Labor and Likud have been hammering at rallies and in television commercials that their party is the one that can achieve peace-security and end the Palestinian uprising while their opponent's policies will lead to

If neither party wins enough seats in this close election to form a majority coalition in the 120member parliament, another four years of "national unity" government with Likud and Labor sharing power is likely. The current coalition has led to a virtual paralysis in Israel's peace policy. Both parties are open to another coalition but with reservations. It is not clear what policy would be pursued. "Reality will dictate a solution.

which is not the preferred solution of the Labor Party, perhaps not the one of the Likud. But something must be done now," said Eliud Olmert, Likud treasurer and fourterm member of parltament.

"I think the Israeli political rhetoric after the elections will be more terms of political approaches," he said.

Pollster Hanoch Smith said the electorate appears to be leaning toward a tough defensive policy to ensure security rather than peace negotiations

The confusion of the electorate on how to handle the Palestinian problem is clearly revealed in polls. taken by Smith.

More than 70 percent of Israeli Jews believe a "hard fist" approach is necessary to deal with the territories, the polister said. At the same time, nearly two-thirds of the public thinks Israel should take the initiative and begin negotiations with the Arabs.

MARCH AIR FORCE BASE. Calif. - A new U.S. Customs Service facility modeled after America's air defense system nearly completes a web of radar along the nation's 2.000-mile border with Mexico to catch drug smugglers.

The Command, Control, ational since Sept. 25 in its new quarters at March Air Force Base, 65 miles east of Los Angeles, its state-of-the-art radar system has already netted and, officials say, totally surprised - one pilot who apparcasy $100,000 by flying in 1,200 pounds of cocaine from Mexico.

Working in a cavernous, darkened chamber similar to the military's North American Air Defense Command war room. Customs radar operators can monitor air traffic coming across the Mexican border from San Diego to Brownsville, Texas.

a low-lying point west of Calex-

That area is suspicious because it is often used by smugglers, Houlthan said. "And he sort of slipped across at a high speed while informing the FAA that he was on VFR (visual flight rules). VFR planes usually don't travel at high speeds."

C31 radar operators communicated with the FAA and the military, and found the plane's pilot was not talking to any tower, nor had he filed a flight plan.

Clean Earth: A sexy new issue for politicians

By LAURIE WATSON

United Press International

OTTAWA - Clean air has become a sexy new issue for politicians facing November elections on both sides of the U.S. Canada border, giving environmentalists some hope the two countries will act together to reduce air pollution.

In Canada, the three major political party leaders campaigning for the Nov. 21 election boast they can wrestle a bilateral acid rain treaty from Washington, something Conservative Prime Minister Brian Mulroney failed to do during four years in office.

Presidential candidates George Bush and Michael Dukakis have publicly committed themselves to supporting acid rain control legislation, a dramatic reversal of President Reagan's opposition to such controls in the last eight Environmentalists are taking campaign promises seriously and suggest 1989 may be a watershed year for getting clean air legislation in the United States and a U.S. Canada treaty to reduce acid rain-producing emissions.

1989 will be a key year for clean air," said Adele Hurley of the Canadian Coalition on Acid Rain, warning the environment will lose its current 'psychological momentum' unless the U.S. Congress approves legislation revising the 11-year-old Clear Air Act and setting tougher standards for auto exhaust emissions and toxic air pollutants.

Those reforms have been championed by Sen. George Mitchell of Maine, touted as the next Senate Democratic leader. replacing Robert Byrd who opposed the legislation on grounds it would require reductions in sulfur emissions from coal fired power plants in his home state. West Virginia.

Even if Mitchell is successful in getting the bill passed in the next session, it will predictably face roadblocks in the House.

Congressman John Dingell. chairman of the House Energy and Commerce Committee and a Michigan Democrat, is concerned over how emission controls will affect the automobile industry in his state.

Some environmentalists suggest It may take a catastrophe to motivate Congress, similar to a recent warehouse fire that sent clouds of smoke laden with polychlorinated biphenyls over St. Basile-le-Grand, Quebec, and forced 3,500 residents from their homes for more than three weeks

The fire forced the Canadian government to respond with stringent guidelines on PCB storage and a schedule for destruction of the toxic chemicals.

Mulroney and other party leaders have laid out broadbased environmental policies and promised to secure a treaty with the United States setting out targets and schedules for reducing acid rain-producing cinissions

IN BRIEF

Mothers' traits linked to tots' accidents

Researchers don't know why, but a mother's traits appear to be linked to the chances her 3-year-old child will have an accident.

Noting that accidents are the leading cause of childhood death and disability, doctors at McGill University in Montreal studied 918 children in an attempt to find common factors among accident-prone toddlers.

The researchers surveyed aspects of family and health of children born in 1983 in the Montreal community health district, then re-questioned parents periodically until the children were 4 years old.

The factors most strongly linked to the toddlers' accident rates were not factors such as the sex or health of the child, the researchers found, but facts about mothers were strongly linked.

"A child of a single, unemployed, smoking mother, who does not have a younger sibling, has a very high probability of sustaining an injury requiring treatment," the researchers said. A toddler with these four risk factors would have a 70 percent chance of sustaining injury by age 4, compared with a 20 percent chance for a toddler with no risk factors.

Low family income and low educational level of mothers was not linked to higher accident rate.

Almost 60 percent of the accidents were falls, and 72 percent occurred in the home.

Writing in the American Journal of Diseases of Children, the researchers said none of the factors associated with higher accident rates "has a readily understandable link to injuries. This suggests they may be serving as 'markers' rather than being causative factors," the doctors said.

Antarctic ice teeming with life

Looks can be deceiving and scientists say Antarctic ice is no exception.

Although the frigid ice that covers the polar sea at the height of Antarctic winter appears devoid of life, researchers recently announced they have discovered large populations of microscopic plants and animals dwelling inside pores of the ice.

During a recent expedition supported by the National Science Foundation, marine biologists studied life inside ice pores. which are finger- to arm-sized holes that riddle the 3- to 6-foot-thick ice sheet as if it were Swiss cheese.

The scientists found populations of krill - tiny, shrimp-like creatures that serve as an important source of food for whales. scals and penguins - at concentrations rarely measured in open. Antarctic waters.

The sea ice is a place where for a small expenditure of energy the krill can avoid predators and live in a rich pastureland (of algae, bacteria and other microscopic organlams)," said Cornelius Sullivan, a University of Southern California-Los Angeles scientist who helped lead the expedi-

'Executive doctors' aren't any bargain

At 6 o'clock Sunday morning. I admitted a middle-aged man with a heart attack to the hospital's Intensive Care Unit. This is a common occurrence: the man was the right age, he had had chest pain for three hours and his tests showed an unequivocal myocardial infarction (heart attack). In most respects, the case was straightforward.

What makes this man's sudden illness worth writing about is that he had undergone a so-called "executive check-up" two months before. Based on the report of the examination. I believe that his heart attack was entirely preventable.

The United States is somewhat peculiar in the world today because its citizens have an almost blind reliance on medical testing as a disease-preventative. in particular, many large corporations insist that their intddle-management and upper-echelon executives subject themselves to a quasi-religious ritual: the yearly examination.

I don't know who originally convinced the well-educated officers of companies that this ritual was necessary. And I don't care. It was a superb selling job and it's been going on for years. Maybe this is a good time to blow the whistle on such an utterly ineffectual and expensive form of medical overutilization

The corporate exam has become an industry unto itself. and I think that cost-conscious businessmen ought to consider pruning this money tree.

My patient had been examined by a group of doctors who do nothing but routine evaluations of white-collar executives. They're not family physicians who will take care of a sore throat or a Saturday afternoon pulled muscle. They're more like assembly-line inspectors who, in this case, operate out of suburban Connecticut, a stone's throw from New York City, the financial Hig Apple.

My patient had the usual rigmarole: questionnaire about inedical history, physical exam. blood count and chemical analysis, urinalysis, vision check, hearing evaluation, stool blood determination, sigmoidoscopy, electrocardiogram, breathing studies and a stress test.

During the stress test, the examiner discovered exerciseinduced ventricular tachycardia. a potentially ominous cardiac irregularity that can progress to heart standstill and death. This dangerous warning usually indicates that, during the stress of exercise, a patient's heart cannot obtain enough oxygen and it begins to short-circuit.

This condition almost always requires sophisticated evaluation and the use of medicine to suppress the tendency to irregularity. In the report, the doctor wrote: "this precipitated my stopping the test." He then went on to suggest that my patient eat more roughage and obtain more regular exercise. That was it. No follow-up, no referral to a specialist, no medicine. Now the man is lying in a hospital bed with the front wall of his heart blown out. How's that for preventative medicine?

I haven't yet been able to figure out how much the executive exam cost the patient's company, but it must have been plenty. About $600 is a ball-park figure. Makes you wonder if our captains of industry are getting their money's worth.

Arthritis sufferers can now spell relief

By CAROL J. RUMSEY Herald staff writer

SANFORD - Al Starke was one of 43 arthritis sufferers to attend a recent lecture at Central Florida Regional Hospital because he wanted to learn about the disease and his management of it.

Arthritis means inflammation of a joint and refers to more than 100 different diseases, according to physicians.

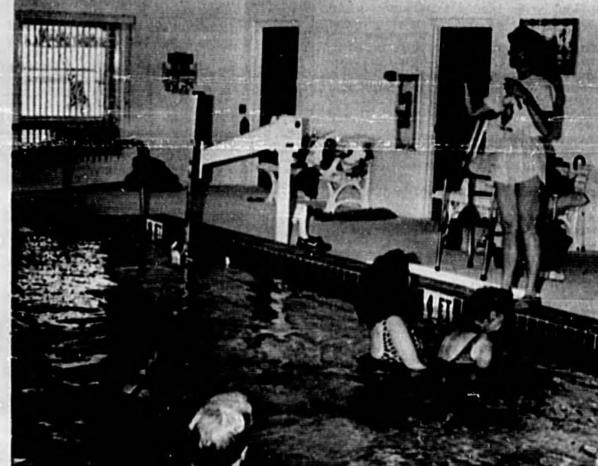

To Starke it means soreness in his knees, and caution with each movement he makes. At 72, the easy mobility he once enjoyed as a college football player is gone. But he is far from defeated: he dances, he walks, he swims and he enjoys life."If you give up you've lost it," he said.

Starke has always taken an active role in his own health care. Now through the coordination of the Arthritis Foundation. Visiting Nurse Association and CFR Hospital he attends a monthly arthritis educational program.

Marianne McCree, director of education for the Arthritis Foundation, has been trying to drum up interest in a Seminole. County program for years, but had difficulty getting the word out. She then decided to pool her efforts with the hospital and VNA, and the team approach seems to be working.

Last Monday's group asked specific questions regarding new medications and treatment options. According to Dr. Howard Buchoff, there is no cure for the disease that effects one in seven people, but there is help for their pain.

Oddly, the first step to receiving help seems to be the most difficult for patients. McCree says people normally wait seven years after the onset of pain before seeking medical advice. By that time there may have been further deterioration of cartiledge because of improper fects, usually nausea or stomach

For Starke the side effects were more serious, including vision problems.

Accidents will happen, or will they?

United Press International

BOSTON - Accidents, which claim tens of thousands of lives each year, appear to most people to be random, unpredictable events.

But many mishaps fit into a predictable pattern and could be prevented. We'd like to turn around this perception of fatalism, of bad luck and randomness in the way people think about accidents. It's inherent in the term, 'accident," said Dr. Bernard Guver. director of the New England Injury Prevention Research Center at the Harvard School of Public Health.

"When I think about other health promotion issues. like cardiovascular disease ... we have these ideas about what's preventable. You can stop smoking or exercise," Guyer said, "I think there's the same opportunity in injuries to promote ideas of prevention."

While heart disease and cancer remain the two leading causes of death in the United States. iccidents." making it the third leading cause of overall death and the leading cause of death among young Accidents in which deaths or disabling injuries occur cost the nation an estimated $133 billion in 1987 in lost wages, medical expenses, insurance costs, property damage and other expenses.

This is an absolutely staggeting problem. Guyer said. "In some ways the magnitude itself overwhelms us.

The leading culprit are accidents involving motor vehicles. which claim at least 45,000 lives each year. During a recent workshop at Harvard, Charles Hurley, vice president of the National Safety Council, contrasted how automobile and airplane crashes crashes accidents, generally. We especially in western states 95,000 people annually die in call them crashes. And we in where "it's almost patriotic to what are generally termed un- vestigate the hell out of them," speed," he said. Hurley said. The result is there are only about 100 deaths each year in the United States from airplane crashes, he said, and 40,000 employees at the Federal Aviation Administration working to maintain air travel safety. In contrast, at least 45,000 people die in motor vehiclerelated accidents each year in the country, and only 500 investigators are employed by the government to probe those incidents, he said.

Hurley said the accidental death problem will worsen as more states raise speed limits. "In the early 70s we found the vaccine for substantial numbers of spinal injuries, crash-induced eptlepsy, of front-lobe syndrome and all of the high-speed head injuries. And that, of course, was the speed limit." Hurley said.

But the 55 mph speed limit We don't call airplane has "become a symbolic issue."

hard won gains in drunken driving, in belt laws and air bags absolutely wiped out by high speed." Hurley said.

The latest figures show there has been a 22 percent increase in fatalities on interstate highways since states began raising speed limits, he said.

A major problem with reducing the death rate from accidents is the perception that they are not preventable.

But studies have shown that many types of accidents follow patterns that offer insights into preventing them. Guyer cited injuries that occur in sports. Studies have shown that the major cause of injury in baseball occurs from sliding into base. The solution, therefore, would be break-away bases.

Challenges of long-term health care

Growing senior population faces long-term health care crisis

By TAMARA HENRY United Press International

WASHINGTON — Richard Teske of the Health and Human Services Department raised his hands in despair.

"Two years ago, my mother turned 65. I went home. I looked over her insurance policies and what have you and I said. Well, what are you going to do about long-term care?"

"She said, 'Medicare will take care of it.' I said, 'No, Medicare doesn't cover long term care.' She said, 'Well maybe medigap,' I said, 'No, no that won't cover it either. You got to think of something else,' She said, 'I don't believe you.'

"I said, 'Ma, I'm the administration's chief spokesman on long-term care. I know what I'm taking about.' She said, 'I raised you. I don't believe you. I know what you know. Until it shows up in the AARP magazine. I'm not going to believe you.'

"Well if I couldn't convince my mother, I realize we have a big problem."

Long-term care has become a hot issue in Congress, within the health insurance industry and on the campaign trail.

It is a catchall phrase that generally covers the day-in, day-out needs of people suffering chronic illnesses and long-term disabilities.

The issue has spurred concern because health care services are expensive and over a long period of time can lead to bankruptcy.

Nursing homes, somewhat synonymous with long-term care, can cost as much as $30,000 a year, depending on the part of the country.

A nationwide survey, conducted in June by the Gallup Organization for the American Association of Retired Persons, found 61,7 percent of a sample of 1,500 registered voters expressed great concern about the costs of long-term care, including 77 percent of those 50 years to 64 years.

Statistics show lengthy care in a nursing home is not needed nearly as much as help at home with daily activities such as dressing bathing or walking.

The Health Insurance Association of America said 7.7 million Americans over age 65 will likely need some form of long-term care by the year 1990. At any given time, 22 percent of persons age 85 or older are in a nursing home.

At the same time, it is estimated two of five people age 65 or older risk entering a nursing home. More than half of those will need to stay 90 days or fewer, yet about 40 percent will need to stay on average 2 15

Only a small number ever stay over five

The Health Care Financing Administration said Americans spent $35,2 billion on nursing home care in 1985, 41.8 percent from welfare or the government's health insurance program for the poor, Medicaid: 1.7 percent from the government health insurance for the elderly and disabled. Medicare: 1 percent from private insurance; and, 4.1 percent from other sources.

Personal savings, amassed perhaps over a lifetime, totalled 51,4 percent.

With a problem of this magnitude various approaches have been proposed. The Reagan administration has concentrated mainly on acute catastrophic illnesses and succeeded in broadening Medicare coverage to limit out-of-pocket expenses and pay for extended hospital stays.

Health Secretary Otta Bowen, chief architect of the catastrophic illness health insurance law, offered only tax incentives to encourage people to save for their own long-term care needs.

Congress ignored his idea.

Sens. Edward Kennedy, D-Mass. George
Mitchelt. D-Maine, and Daniel Moynthan.
D-N.Y., David Durenberger, R-Minn., and several House members offered various long-term care plans that tinker with either

Medicare or Medicaid.

"All have different proposals ... but essentially they are all united in one respect and that in that it's the government's responsibility to pay whatever the cost is for long term care," Teske said of congressional plans.

"Either they raise the cap on Social Security or they do other creative financing mechanisms but basically it's the same principle that Social Security had in the 1930s, that the working population pays for the elderly." he said.

A survey released by the American Association of Retired Persons in mid-March showed 73 percent of the 2,001 adults over age 45 surveyed nationwide wanted an increase in federal spending for long-term A further breakdown showed 88 percent of the blacks. 79 percent of the resident of the Northeast. 78 percent of the women and 78 percent of the people earning $30,000 or less supported increased federal spending on long-term care.

Also a majority of those surveyed said they are willing to pay increased taxes for long-term care services.

The House in early June killed a bill offered by Rep. Claude Pepper, D-Fla., to establish a major new home health care program for the elderly.

The legislation would have provided monthly payments under Medicare for home health care services for the disabled and chronically ill of all ages — about 2.2 million people at a cost that opponents said would have been far more than the estimated $30 billion five-year price tag.

In a speech before health care professionals and policy makers. Durenberger warned defeat of Pepper's bill would merely "help shape and advance the debate, which will lead us to a comprehensive long-term care bill."

The National Association of State Units on Aging has called for a comprehensive federal legislative package of new benefits for community-based long-term care under Medicare.

The major features of the program include universal-participation of all Medicare enrollees with eligibility based on the ability to perform essential activities of daily living, such as bathing, dressing and eating.

Paul Kerschner, president of the National Foundation for Long-Term Health Care, is pleased by the defeat of the Pepper bill.

"I think frankly the best thing to happen was the Pepper bill failing, not because I was against the Pepper bill totally but I don't think we should do things piecemeal anymore." Kerschner said. "I think we should have a comprehensive home care and nursing home legislation. Not just one or the other.

"Whatever plan comes up it's going to have to be affordable. It's almost beyond Democrat and Republican at this point. A fully financed governmental plan is just not in the works." he said. "We're not going to have national health insurance ... whatever comes out it's going to have to be a public-private partnership."

But David Klein, senior vice president of Blue Cross. Blue Shield of the Rochester, N.Y., area, said his firm's plan offers direct admission to nursing homes and there are no deductible for adult day health care centers or for home care. Also, the plan pays 75 percent of the cost of custodial services rather than the flat, per-diem charge for skilled, intermediate and custodial services typical of most other similar policies.

'Heart substitutes' called promising

By CELIA HOOPER

CHICAGO — Surgeons say a new procedure of rebuilding defective hearts with other muscles from the body offers hope in the future for the hundreds of thousands of patients with heart failure who cannot get transplants.

At a conference Tuesday at Purdue University in West Lafayette, Ind., the first U.S. meeting ever devoted to "cardiac assistance with skeletal muscle," researchers said human tests of the surgery would be expanded in the next three years, primarily in patients in the final stages of heart failure who are poor candidates for heart transplants with no other house.

So far, just a handful of patients have received the surgery, in which skeletal muscles are used to aid diseased or weakened heart muscle. The muscles drawn through the chest, still linked to nerve and blood supplies, but dissected free of tendon connections.

Dr. Stephen F. Badylak, a biomedical researcher at Purdue who helped organize the conference, said there are now more than 2 million people in the United States with end-stage heart failure. About 40 percent of the 400,000 pattents diagnosed annually die within a year, and Badylak said human heart transplants are now their main hope.

In 1987, Badylak said, only 1,400 heart transplants were performed. "The bottom line is that there is a severe heart donor shortage. Other treatments are needed, and this is one that may be available down the road," he said of the new surgery.

Researchers now have most experience with a technique called cardiomyoplasty, in which the skeletal muscle is used to patch weak spots in the heart caused by disease, defects, or removal of a tumor or infection.

To date, 31 patients have had this type of surgery, including five U.S. patients, the most recent last week in Pittsburgh. One French patient has now survived almost four years after cardiomyplasty.

cardiomyplasty.
Badylak expects to see a the number of U.S. patients with skeletal muscle-patched hearts increase as much as tenfold in the next three years as U.S. trials are expanded.

In another type of skeletal assist surgery, the helping muscle is wrapped around a weak heart, squeezing it for a stronger contraction with each beat. The first U.S. attempt to use the technique in humans may be attempted in Pittsburgh later this year, Badylak said.

In the most radical and stillexperimental technique, skeletal muscle would be draped around a balloon or pouch implanted in a major artery, essentially creating a complete new heart ventricle, "I'd be surprised if this technique is tried (in humans) in less than four or five years," Badylak said.

John Mannion, assistant professor of surgery at Thomas Jefferson University in Philadelphia, said he believes the first patients to receive it may be infants with a missing right heart ventricle, a common birth defect.

Because muscles used in the new surgery come from a patient's own body, they are not rejected by the immune system.

Victor Baxter is 12, an outcast and a motherless child who has just escaped his boarding school tormentors when he meets the Captain.

The Captain has come to take Victor on an afternoon outing, which is actually a kind of benign abduction. The Captain explains to the youth that he has "won him fairly" at backgammon, "and you can't cheat at

Thus begins Graham Greene's 24th novel. an intriguing, charmingly well-told tale of the ambiguities of identity, love and truth with a capital "T." It is also a coming-of-age story in which Victor grapples to form a moral perspective on his experiences that enable him. In the end, to deal with the equally ambiguous world of social realities.

Graham tells his story in four parts; three are first person accounts by Victor, who soon after the kidnapping assumes a new identity as Victor first describes his abduction by the Captain, a marvelous, shadowy character. He is brought to Liza, who was once a lover of Victor's father, known throughout as "the Devil." Victor's father forced Liza to have an abortion and it might be said that Victor-Jim is a gift of love from the Captain to replace the unborn child.

Jim details these days in a Dickensian setting, that shadowy landscape between the legal and illegal where the poor try to survive with some vestige of dignity. He tries to understand the relationship between the Captain and Liza, and his feelings for them. Mostly, however, these are his feelings for the Captain, a man of many identities.

Part two is an interlude in which Jim has grown up and left Liza. One learns that the Captain has gone to Panama and that Liza has

The tale then plunges into familiar Greene territory - Third World nations, revolution. and the moral ambivalence of those who people such geography.

Jim travels to Panama, ostensibly to tell the Captain of Liza's death but more in quest of the Captain's true identity, and thus his own.

In Panama, social questions arise as it becomes apparent that the Captain is gunrunning and aiding the neighboring Nicaraguan Sandinista revolutionaries seeking to oust the Somoza regime.

Jim gets drawn into the intrigue, but more importantly, fails to find a way to tell the Captain that Liza is dead, a failure that precipitates a tragic finale in which the

Goldwater By Barry M. Goldwater with Jack Casserly (Doubleday 403 pp., 821.95)

Barry Goldwater, considered by many the godfather of conservative politics in America. has seen it all in his 40 or so years on the national stage and much of that is in his autobiography

Goldwater is, and has always been, crusty blunt and outspoken. So is his book, which, at least in part, can serve as a last will and

The autobiography of the 1964 Republican presidential candidate is a fine nilx of recollections, some of them told for the first time, unvarnished opinions and revelations of his personal life.

His deep-seated hatred of Lyndon Johnson. who beat him in 1964, comes across without letup, as does his puzzled contempt for Richard Nixon.

After multing the question for the last two years in retirement. Goldwater rates, among the last eight presidents, Dwight D. Etsenhower the best all-around president. Harry Truman tops in decision-making leadership and Ronald Reagan as the most inspira-

The former Artzona senator lavishes praise on Reagan in many areas but says the sale of arms to Iran was a great mistake and believes that Reagan knew of the diversion of the money to the Contras.

"He had to know." Goldwater says, "The White House explanation makes him out to be either a liar or incompetent."

Goldwater, who exhibits a strong affection for John F. Kennedy and rates him just behind Reagan in the inspirational category, nevertheless, was shocked by the young president's actions during the Bay of Pigs flasco.

He remembers Kennedy being concerned that the operation might fail and having second thoughts about U.S. participation.

"The president was not a profile in courage. as portrayed in his best-selling book. Goldwater said. "He did not have the old fashioned guts to go un."

The book is dotted with such opinions and a wide array of political vignettes.

But perhaps most important is his warning to the conservatives about the New Right and the evangelical preachers who have turned to politics. Both, he signals, could rip apart the conservative movement.

LOS ANGELES - Imagine

You buy a house and plan for the big moment when the new baby arrives, decorating a nursery and anticipating a lifetime of familial bliss.

But consider this.

After the buby arrives, you step into the nursery to check on the little bundle of joy but instead of one buby there are three. They all look alike and are in the same crib all wearing the came colored bunting from head

Which one is which? How did all of those extra babies get there?

Such is the plight of birds whose nests are horrowed by

Female cucukous are well known for this habit, sneaking into the nests of others and starting their families there.

But scientists say cuckoos not only prefer other nests but apparently are genetically able to produce eggs in the shape and color of those of the host.

A host warbler lays eggs only In pale blue? No problem for cuckoos who can lay them in blue, speckled, white or in whatever color the occasion demands.

Ovid eggs? The cuckoo can do it. Round ones? A specialty of the house.

Scientists now are studying this phenomenon, compiling a new catalogue of data on cuckoo egg-laying habits and speculations on why these birds, whose typical call notes are a low throaty chuckling sound, attempt to exploit the parental

Ornithologists Paul Harvey and Linda Partridge of Oxford University in England wrote in a recent issue of the journal Nature that female cuckoos possess a special Z chromosome where genes for egg mimiery are located and passed from mother to daughter.

The Z chromosome, which determines female sex in birds, is equivalent to the Y chromosome, which confers masculibity in mammals

Some host birds, such as the dunnock, can't teli a cuckoo's egg from one of its own, thus making dunnock nests frequent altes for cucukoo invasiona.

But experts from the University of Cambridge in England say cuckoos are especially discriminating about where they tay their eggs.

According to Hughes, a state-published report states current teacher ratio is 121/2 teachers to one administrator. "When I became superin-one," he said.

The superintendent also said the warehouse position was created to correct a problem and was looked into thoroughly. The problem referred to is an internal investigation which disclosed discrepancies in record keeping at the school's warehouse, inventory and records didn't match, and many items were purchased in abundance, according to the report."We computerized the inventory, and purchasing is now handled by the finance department. Hughes said. "It was a sore spot tendent, the ratio was 11½ to but we have taken steps to correct it."

> Doddington also cites low teacher morale and a high turnover rate at "some" of the county's schools. He will not state which schools. Hughes responds that he has received endorsements from both the teacher's union and the unions representing school bus drivers and clerical and blue collar workers, as evidence of their support and contentment with his job performance. Doddington says he was never interviewed by any union representatives.

His opponent is board member Nancy Warren. Ellis wants a cap set on class sizes; and he wants that cap firmly enforced.

Warren, seeking her third board term, says a class average size already exists. She says it is based on classroom space and available funding for teacher staffing. Nobody likes large classes but the solutions don't come so castly," she said.

According to Warren, kindergarten through third grade class sizes average under 25 students. and upper-level gnides average under 28. Warren acknowledges there are exceptions - overcrowded classes - but they are due to the county's 1,800 new students enrolled each year. A growing figure, which she says the county's tax base fails to cover. "We have more students per adult than any other county," she said. "So, fewer adults are paying for more students."

loes not accept this answer. He says class size has simply not been made a priority in the county, and he proposes a one-year penny-tax to aid with school construction and the hiring of additional teachers. He said state legislators must be made to realize the need for increased educational funding in Seminole County, and this would be achieved through an organized lobbying ellort of informed parents, teachers and ad-

Warren is supportive of a penny-tax but only for one-time expenditures like construction. "Counties get themselves into trouble when they try to fund ongoing expenses with emergency measures," she said, "What happens after that tax is gone, how will we continue to pay the salaries of those additional teachers?

She favors studying other options for the growth problems in Seminole calling the pennytax unrealistic in light of legislators past reluctance to give emergency money to educa-

She said the board must first provide enough classrooms for students before the issue of class size can be tackled. She also cited this year's addition of one teacher to every elementary school as evidence of board concern for the

District 3

Continued from Page 1D Pennington cites recent discrepancies in record keeping and the overstocking of supplies at the district's warehouse as reasons for improved fiscal management. He says he can provide that management because of his Air Force and business experience. He owns and manages two businesses dealing with interior design. But Williams says this is not the job of a board member. "We are not administrators," he said. 'Our job is to interpret budgets, and make sure the needs of our community are being met. And, we create policies which are to treat all in our area fairly.

Williams, who is seeking his second term, has seen the beginning of the five-year comprehensive building program, and says he would like to see, this project and others through to the end. "We have a solid team working together," he said. "Having a business background does not translate into effectiveness on the board attending board meetings and possessing a knowledge of the issues does." Their philosophies differ on drug education and school prayer as well. Pennington says drug abuse is an increasing problem and one that the board should deal with more directly. "Parents are not aware of the symptoms of drug usage," he said. "They need to know what to look for, and the board should be spending time educating them." Pennington says this could be achieved through a massive public relations effort utilizing media and PTA members. He says his four years experience as a board member for Straight Inc., a non-profit youth drug rehabilitation program, will provide the needed attention the issue deserves. Williams' approach is more cautious. He favors the program of drug education included in current curriculum for all Seminule County students. Williams also said numerous drug awareness programs are under way in the schools. "It's a slow process because we have to make sure we're hearing from parents and students and providing the right method of education to meet their needs." Pennington fears any discussion about the relevance of students reciting the pledge of allegiance saying. "Students should be taught to revere the flag and our country, and should be allowed a moment of silent prayer. Williams is not opposed to silent prayer, but has understood his opponent to be in favor of an organized prayer period. "We cannot infringe on students rights to worship as they please," he

According to representatives in the county office, the pledge of allegiance is recited daily in elementary and secondary schools.
