

Cheshire: No Sunshine Law Violation

LaPeters Case: Check 'Fix' Claim, Judge Asked

By DENNIS FEOLA
Herald Staff Writer

A Seminole County official faces a possible one year in jail and a $1,000 fine on a contempt charge in connection with an alleged attempt to fix a traffic ticket.

Contempt: When direct, "indirect" Page 2A

State Attorney Douglas Cheshire declined to identify the official at a press conference this morning to release the result of an investigation into the possible violation of the Sunshine Law and other allegations made by fired police chief Wallace LaPeters. No Sunshine Law violation was found, he said.

However, Cheshire did identify the official as being from Seminole County. City Commissioner Eddie Keith and City Manager Warren E. Knowles have been named by LaPeters as being involved in an attempt to fix a carless driving ticket issued to Orlando City Commissioner Robert Keith, cousin of the Sanford official.

Those Sanford city officials involved in the matter have maintained all along that their inquiries dealt with whether the ticket was validly issued or if it should not have been issued at all. They also insisted there never was an attempt to have the ticket voided.

The state attorney said the investigation was broken down into two parts: The alleged attempt to fix the traffic ticket and possible Sunshine Law violation.

Cheshire also said the investigation revealed: "No evidence of any violation of the sunshine law." The Sunshine Law allegation was put forward by LaPeters in connection with the surprise 3-2 vote in favor of his firing at a budget workshop hearing three weeks ago.

It was alleged certain city officials and city commissioners violated the Sunshine Law by their actions prior to the special meeting at which LaPeters was fired.

Although that allegation was the prime target of the state's attorney's probe, other accusations arose about alleged misconduct by city officials regarding an attempt to fix a traffic ticket and attempts to get LaPeters to fire or promote certain police officers.

Cheshire's office last week confirmed the investigation's findings would show no evidence of the Sunshine Law being violated. That was reaffirmed at this morning's press conference.

The state attorney also said there was no violation of the Sunshine Law. See "TICKET FIX," Page 2A

'The Ticket' Chronology

Former Sanford Police Officer Lewis Coombs issued a written statement to the State Attorney's office last week of circumstances surrounding the issuance of a traffic ticket to Police Chief Wallace LaPeters. The ticket was issued by Coombs in late February to Orlando City Commissioner Robert Keith, cousin of Sanford City Commissioner Eddie Keith.

Coombs' statement about the ticket follows:

"Eddie Keith did not at any time ask me to void or fix the ticket, but upon leaving he did say, 'Butch, no reflection on you, but I guess you know that I have to get Pete Knowles to take care of this ticket for Bob's sake.' Coombs told the state attorney:

"Several days later, then Chief LaPeters summoned Coombs to his office, according to Coombs' account.

Coombs said LaPeters, "informed me that Pete Knowles was attempting to make him void the ticket. He also stated that he backed me 100 percent and that he had never voided another officer's ticket and was not going to start today."

LaPeters then called Knowles and told him, 'to tell his man to pay the ticket or go to court,' according to Coombs' account.

In his statement, Coombs said he and another auxiliary officer, Jimmy Link, were on "routine patrol" when they voided the Keith car pass, "which appeared to have two people in the driver seat area. It appeared as if the female was lying chest to chest across the driver's seat."

Coombs and Link followed the Keith vehicle to 18th Street, where the patrol car lights were turned on. The patrol car pulled along side the Keith vehicle and again observed the woman lying chest to chest across the driver, completely between the driver and the steering wheel."

according to Coombs' statement.

Coombs reported he turned on his spotlight to get the couple's attention. The Keith auto then pulled to the curb.

Keith told Coombs he was an Orlando city commissioner and was the cousin of Eddie Keith, Sanford City Commissioner.

The Orlando commissioner asked that his cousin be brought to the scene, according to Coombs' statement.

Both Robert Keith and Eddie Keith disputed Coombs' version of the incident.

K-Pupils Escape Longer Day

By LEONARD KRANSBORY

Kindergarten children in Seminole County will continue to leave school early while first graders will be leaving later. That's what the Seminole County School Board decided 3-2 Wednesday in settling the issue that has been brewing for several months.

Voting in favor of the motion was Pat Tolson, Allan Keith and Robert Feather. Voting against the move was Roland Williams and E.C. Harper.

Last year, both kindergarten and first graders left school at 1:10 p.m. and the buses returned to take the other students home at 2:45 p.m.

Now kindergarten children Reynolds: SIS, Crews Supervisor, Page 2A will leave at 1:30 p.m. while all other students will leave at 2:45 p.m.

The original issue arose about a month ago when Superintendent William Layer recommended discontinuing the shorter day for both kindergarten and first graders because he said the school system could save between $9,000 and $99,000 in transportation costs.

"Parents and teachers objecting to the proposal had said that children were not able to pay attention for that extra hour and added that education considerations should be placed above financial considerations.

The system "may reduce the cost by some but not significantly," according to Spedward Bernard, superintendent of transportation. He did not place any dollar figure on the possible savings saying:

"It would depend on the number of children who arrive for kindergarten when school starts Aug. 28. Williams said he was against extending the hours because it "was educationally unsound for the students."

Debbie Brown, a parent, said she understood Layer's considerations and also presented three alternatives for the board to consider.

Homes Burn, Vacationers Flee California Forest Fire

CAZADERO, Calif. (UPI) — A violent forest fire raged out of control in a resort area north of San Francisco today, burning homes and sending vacationers fleeing from the flames that roared across the tops of redwood and pine trees.

"It is bad right now," said state Division of Forestry spokesman Ed Korman from the fire control center at South Ross.

All telephone lines to the community of Cazadero were cut and officials prepared for a total evacuation of the area.

Several hundred persons left vacation homes in the surrounding area yesterday during the night, and at least a dozen structures were destroyed, including one large home.

Among those evacuated were 100 campers and 40 cottages at the Berkeley Music Camp. No injuries were reported. The Red Cross set up shelters at nearby Guerneville.

"It is burning very hot in front of the fog rolling in," said Korman.

The 4,000-acre blaze near Cazadero, about 60 miles north of San Francisco in the Russian River resort area, was one of dozens of fires in Northern California forests and brush land. A heat wave and temperatures soaring to 115 degrees and higher during the past few days and lightning strikes touched off many of the fires.

One in the Sierra near the town of Donnellville blew up to 1,200 feet Wednesday afternoon, but fire officials said this morning an army of 60 fire fighters was gaining control over it. A number of homes near the town were evacuated.

In the Sierra National Forest, officials said lightning touched off 60 fires in the past few days. Most of them were quickly brought under control.

A large 2,000-acre fire in Madoc National Forest was contained late Wednesday.

Jai Alai Enjoined From Firing Caterer In Contract Row

By DENNIS FEOLA
Herald Staff Writer

On Tuesday, Judge Thomas Waddell granted Southern Catering a temporary injunction enjoining the Jai-Alai from interfering with Southern Catering's operations and from firing the caterer. The trial date has been set.

Southern Catering of Maitland is suing for a declaratory judgment as well as an injunction to stop the Jai-Alai from interfering with its operations.

Southern Catering's position is that the Jai-Alai, majority shareholder who he calculated to damage Southern," according to court records.

Attorneys for the Jai-Alai claim counter-claims that Southern Catering failed to pay franchise fees from the Jai-Alai Club by the same date it converts held at the Jai-Alai.

Southern Catering's position is that the Jai-Alai, majority shareholder who he terminated in November 1977, made an oral agreement to the contract.

The parties agreed that the contract was not to be put on the club and it is possible that they may not be profitable at that time. Southern Catering contends.

Since Catering claims the club has been transferred to his wife, Elizabeth Calder, and that the club, Mrs. Calder

The Jai-Alai's attorneys also claim Southern failed to provide Southern with the necessary equipment, materials, and services as per the contractual agreement.

The contract, like part of court records, states the contract can be canceled only if an audit discloses the caterer grossly and intentionally misstated its profits and commissions; the caterer becomes involved or goes bankrupt; fails to pay in 30 days money owed the Jai-Alai or fails to provide insurance or pay taxes.

The agreement was signed June 25, 1977 and there are no provisions for expiration of the contract.

The agreement gives Southern Catering the exclusive right to sell food, beverages, and other items, including and only. The Jai-Alai receives 25 percent of the profits except from vending machines.

The Jai-Alai received 50 percent of the profits from the parking structure, according to the contract.

In its later disclaimer, Southern Catering, the Jai-Alai, requested an estimate of the value of the facilities indicating the Jai-Alai might take direct control of food sales and parking.

Africa: Time Running Out

Rhodesia promises to be another of those small, far-distant countries that suddenly become important in history—like Czechoslovakia, Poland and Ethiopia before World War II and Korea and Vietnam since.

The fate of the whole of southern Africa is now intimately involved in the survival of Rhodesia. The transition to black majority rule now taking place can succeed, and if Rhodesia can survive against the current onslaught by Marxist guerrillas and prove the viability of a historical nation, the Communist advance against southern Africa will be checked and perhaps halted.

If, on the other hand, Rhodesia falls and goes the way of Angola, Zambia and Mozambique, now under Communist domination, then Namibia, which is now gaining its independence, Botswana and South Africa may not be far behind.

Rhodesia's transition to majority rule began on March 3 with the signing of a charter providing interim, racialist government by Prime Minister Ian Smith and black leaders Bishop Abel Muzorewa, the Rev. Ndabaningi Sithole and Chief Jeremiah Chirau.

It provided also acceptance of a new constitution by referendum and Parliament on Oct. 20 of this year and a general election on Dec. 4 for a 10-seat Parliament consisting of 72 black seats and 28 white seats.

Although the parliamentary arrangement is overwhelmingly in favor of the black majority, there are built-in safeguards for the white minority that have been endorsed by Rhodesia's responsible black leadership.

Nevertheless, the number of seats assigned to whites is disproportionately large for the 1-24 white population ratio and has been subject to criticism. While admittedly flawed in this respect, the new Parliament, nevertheless, represents a compromise acceptable to Rhodesian leaders, white and black, who wish to maintain and retain the white-minority population and prevent the sort of collapse into anarchy that followed the flight of the Portuguese from Angola.

Peaceful transition to black-majority rule and the independence of Rhodesia itself are threatened by guerrillas supported by Cuba and the Soviet Union and based outside the country.

The Zimbabwe African People's Union led by Joshua Nkomo operates from Zambia and is allied in the Patriotic Front with Robert Mugabe's Mozambique-based Zimbabwe African National Union.

Nkomo and Mugabe have rejected any collaboration with the transitional racialist government in Salisbury and are waging unremitting war against the Rhodesian people.

Military operations are costing the government more than $1 billion a day.

An average of 30 persons is dying daily in the struggle now, mostly non-involved civilians—both black and white; 36 white missionaries have been butchered in the most hideous manner.

Incredibly, the policy of the Carter administration is to continue trade sanctions against Rhodesia and otherwise withhold support until the government embraces into its coalition the Nkomo-Mugabe terrorists.

As time runs out in Rhodesia, we would do well to remember that southern Africa commands the strategic sea lanes through which must pass the super-tankers carrying oil from the Middle East to Europe.

A Free World juggler may soon be exposed to the Communist knife, and largely because of well-intentioned but misguided U. S. policy.

One Born Every Minute

WASHINGTON — It may look like logging a dead horse, but at least one major conservative group is still trying to write some legislation and the Panama Canal treaties — and in a fashion bordering on outright deception.

Although the treaties were ratified months ago by the U.S. Senate and will not appear on any ballot in America this November, you'll never guess it from the "Dear Friend" appeal mailed out last month by the Council for Inter-American Security.

The fund-raising letter signed by council chairman Ronald Duchast, an aide to Sen. Orrin Hatch, R-Utah, flatly asserts that "you will be able to vote 'yes' or 'no' on the Panama Canal treaty on November 7, 1978."

The Duchast letter insists that "you have that vote. It is indeed on your ballot. Only a conspiracy of silence in the major news media, and in the highest levels of government, can prevent the American people from using their vote on November 7th to cancel the Panama Canal treaty."

It requires an extremely careful reading of the four-page letter to discern that the reader's "opportunity to have a direct vote" on the treaty will come not on a ballot referendum question, but rather in choosing members of the House of Representatives — who will vote next year on legislation implementing some aspects of the canal treaties.

On page four, Duchast finally gets around to saying that funds collected by the council will be used in an advertising campaign to "tell the American people: (1) 'Yes' or 'No' on five defense issues, including the Panama Canal treaty, and (2) here is how your congressman has voted on these five issues."

That is a pretty long stretch from the "direct vote" promised on page one of the fund-raising letter, to put it mildly. But then, a P.T. Barnum used to say, there's a sucker born every minute.

It's hard to beat the Illinois Senate race this year in the politics-makes-strange-bedfellows vegetable.

Democratic candidate Alex Seth, a Cook County lawyer and leader in the Council on Foreign Affairs in Chicago, is being heavily touted in his race against GOP Sen. Charles H. Percy by none other than M. Stanton Evans, a big conservative mouth.

Evans, former chairman of the American Conservative Union and contributing editor of the right-wing "Human Events" weekly, is leading the drums for Seth both in the magazine and in fund-raising letters to conservatives across the country.

Seth and Evans are old college chums from Yale, but there's more to it than that. One conservative leader Percy, one of the few relatively liberal Republicans left in the Senate, and Seth is hoping Evans can help him woo GOP voters in Illinois who share that disaffection with the incumbent.

Seth is apparently getting that machine Democratic in Chicago, but it's hard to see anyone running on the Democratic ticket, nor would his viewpoints or allies, and even more conservatives can be heard over to give him the edge over Percy.

Who Is Getting Stoned In Marble Halls?

WASHINGTON — The claim by President Carter's departed drug adviser, Dr. Peter Berman, that there are marijuana and cocaine users on the White House staff elicited indignant cries on Capitol Hill. Sen. Howard Baker, R-Tex., demanded an investigation. Speaker Tip O'Neill threatened any pot users in his office with instant dismissal.

They might well add a little further in the halls of Congress. An intimate study discloses that at least 10 House members and five senators are marijuana smokers, most of them on a regular basis.

The survey by investigators Ken Combs and Lois Romano does not identify any of the violators. On grounds that members of Congress should enjoy the same freedoms, we have conducted our own investigation to learn their identities.

We have picked up a few names, but we have gathered enough evidence to mention only one. He is the powerful and popular Rep. John B. Anderson, D-Calif., a lone congressman with length-hair, a hippy-style mustache, and a liberal voting record. He is a chain smoker who habitually dumps his cigarettes in an empty ash can during congressional proceedings.

"I assume you came to pay your last respects?"

WASHINGTON WORLD

The Publicity Ploy

By STEVE GERSTEL

WASHINGTON (UPI) — In the dog-eat-dog world of publicity bounds on Capitol Hill, any gimmick goes.

There are more Senate and House hearings every day than reporters and, as a result, the competition for media exposure is fierce. The master of manipulating the media most certainly must be Sen. William Proxmire, D-Wis.

He very frequently skips the periodic congressional recesses and stays in town to hold hearings. At the only show on Capitol Hill, Proxmire is virtually assured of exposure — even when the hearing is a dog.

But almost no one is willing to forfeit his or her vacations, frequent as they may be. One popular method, used by many committee and subcommittee chairmen over the years, is known as the "hood."

Most recently, this was used by Rep. Mario Biaggi, D-N.Y. (who — believe it or not — is head of the House Irish caucus) in drumming up publicity for a hearing featuring a drug-smuggling pilot.

Biaggi's announcement said the witness would be wearing a hood to protect his identity as he testified.

That kind of a come-on — hooded witness, drug smuggler and so forth — is almost irresistible, especially for television cameras.

True to the announcement, the witness came, face shrouded by a hood with holes for eyes. But, Biaggi did not protect the identity of the witness too well. His name was on the witness list after reporters and to the official recorder.

After smothering through a few questions, the hooded man asked, "Can I take this thing off?" He was given permission.

When the hearing was over, the witness freely told reporters it was the subcommittee's — not his — idea to have him hooded.

Although neither the name nor the Biaggi hearings led to any legislation they are a legitimate function as a means of finding out more about the racketeering and drug trafficking.

And a little bit of show biz doesn't hurt in promoting the product.

Combs and Romano have summarized their Capitol Hill findings in an article which will be published in the November issue of Playboy magazine. The manuscript will say:

"Of the 43 House members, 141 answered the poll, and 38 of them admitted to having smoked grass. In the Senate, only 17 of the 100 members answered the survey, and not one confessed to smoking dope. However, subsequent interviews identified one declared Senate pot smoker."

VIEWPOINT

All That Glitters Isn't $$$

By DON GRAFF

There's a symmetry to it that would be almost beautiful were not the situation itself so disturbing. To start with, the scenes of the action, London and Tokyo, are nicely located on opposite faces of the globe.

In London, focus of the world's gold trade, the dollar price has topped $200 an ounce, a psychologically significant level, and gone on to a series of consecutive record daily highs.

Simultaneously in Tokyo, the dollar has dropped through the psychologically significant $200 yen rate and continued down through a series of consecutive daily lows against the Japanese currency.

There's not only symmetry in these developments, there's a connection. The continuing depreciation of the dollar on the foreign exchange market is a primary factor in the inflationary pressure on the gold market. The boom in London and other trading centers is, in effect, a worldwide vote of no-confidence in U.S. efforts to bring its inflation and balance of payments problems under control.

The not so funny thing about the situation is that we brought most of the bad news on ourselves. Inflation of the current long-run variety, was made in Vietnam, a product of the dollar's payments deficit is continuing evidence of our disinclination to live within our international means, particularly in terms of energy consumption. And the present thriving free gold market is an embarrassing advertisement of our lack of economic discipline, to a great extent a U.S. creation.

Gold, as a standard of value and medium of exchange, has, of course, been around as long as civilization. Thirty French tuques acquired it, as they have for centuries; there is said to be more gold in the country's mattresses than the Bank of France has ever held in its vaults. In India, garubing women with beaded necklaces, remains a preferred form for family nest eggs.

But if gold still has a worldwide popular appeal, as the official of international exchange, what Franklin D. Roosevelt began by taking the United States off the gold standard while fixing the price at $35 an ounce, Richard Nixon continued by severing the tie completely and setting gold free to find its own price.

That was in 1971, and in 1973 Washington followed up by authorizing U.S. citizens to own and trade in gold. With that, the relatively small exchange in London, Zurich and other financial centers were in big business.

As recently as five years ago, however, an ounce could still be purchased for a bargain $17. That was also the year, 1973, of the OPEC oil embargo and the beginning of a global energy crisis. The decline of the dollar and the price of gold have been related consequences.

Gold, of course is used for more than stuffing mattresses and safe deposit boxes. It also goes into jewelry, not to mention teeth and the circuitry of some sophisticated gadgets of the electronic era. There are several dollars worth in a color television set — which, the way things are going, could eventually appreciate to one of an average family's most valuable possessions.

Clean Up Dump Or... Church Told

By DONNA ESTES
Herald Staff Writer

The First Baptist Church of Winter Springs and its pastor, Rev. Bobby Clark Jr., have been given 15 days by the city council to clean up the dump area on church property, adjacent to the church on Babson Road, or face a fine of $500 per day until it is cleaned up.

The council took the action after a petition signed by 194 Kanchanda residents was presented by Mrs. Elizabeth Gregg, 315 Babson Rd., requesting that the church be required to push trash, garbage and refuse at the site into the open pit next to the church.

Mrs. Gregg said the trash heap contains garbage, paper, tin cans, bottles and other objectionable matter and presents a health hazard, is dangerous to neighborhood children and that trucks dumping refuse at the site are noisy. The ill-kept dump is degrading property values in the area as well, she said.

She said that the trash should be pushed into the open pit and covered with clean fill. Mrs. Gregg said that she and her neighbors have no objections to clean construction fill being placed in the former clay pit.

The council instructed Mayor Troy Piland to notify the church in writing, ordering that the dumping site be cleaned up, maintained thereafter in a clean state and controls on dumping be established.

In other business, the council authorized Police Chief John Govevork and City Planner Dick Rozansky to explore with the city of Altamonte Springs the possibility of that city performing maintenance on all Winter Springs police cars and to determine what Altamonte will require to perform the maintenance.

Piland is to explore as well with Altamonte the feasibility of an inter-local agreement with Altamonte to perform maintenance on the city's heavy equipment.

The council agreed to ask city consulting engineers, Clark Dietz and Associates and appropriate governmental agencies, to inspect the lake located between Antelope and Wolverine and Deer Run and Ermine in Tuscoville to determine why a number of fish was killed recently in the lake.

The engineers were directed to study the plans for the lake contracted originally as a drainage retention area and to determine what the high and low water levels should be and to recommend maintenance measures for the future.

Rozansky said the lake is now one inch higher than the road and the spillway is clogged. Piland said the retention pond receives large amounts of water off the public streets in that area.

Councilman John Daniels said the engineers should call in any governmental agencies believed necessary. He said with the last two weeks a number of dead fish have been seen floating on the surface of the water.

The council also authorized Police Chief John Govevork and City Planner Dick Rozansky to explore with the city of Altamonte Springs the possibility of that city performing maintenance on all Winter Springs police cars and to determine what Altamonte will require to perform the maintenance.

THE WAY IT WAS AT N. EDMONSON AVE. BEFORE ROAD WAS WORKED ON

'Stuck' Motorists Prod Council To Fill In Road

The hazardous conditions of North Edgemon Avenue that caused the Winter Springs City Council to order the road which connects with SR 419 closed earlier this week may be solved at least temporarily by Friday, said Public Works Director Ray Bradshaw today.

Bradshaw said a subsidiary of the Winter Park Telephone Co., which has been installing lines in that area recently, has been dumping construction fill in the mud-hole in the area which has been estimated to be about four feet deep and a city crew is diverting water from the road through a swampy area.

Bradshaw said he will inspect the situation by Friday evening to determine whether the road, now barricaded, should be opened to traffic again, at least partially, for the weekend.

Two residents appeared before the council this week to complain that their vehicles got stuck in the mud hole. One man, whose daughter is a college student, said that on the way home from school one evening the got out of her car after it became stuck and sank into the mudhole to her waist.

Bill Jacobs, chairman of the zoning board, said it cost him $112 to have his car towed out of the mud hole and to have the car cleaned up. Jacobs warned if a small child wandered into the area and fell in the hole, he would drown.

Bradshaw said that "homemade" barricades, put up to block the street, were continually taken down by persons wishing to use the road and in some cases the barricades were used by truck motorists to get their vehicles out.

The council instructed Police Chief John Govevork to ask the county to lend the city lighter barricades on an emergency basis. Govevork said today county personnel at the scene had the barricades up within 30 minutes of being called.

The council approved a purchase order for $359.10 to purchase 12 barricades and six flashing lights. Bradshaw was authorized to spend up to $300 to provide necessary drainage and to use the city backhoe to push rubble and dirt into the mudhole.

The council also authorized Mayor Troy Piland to enter into an inter-local agreement with the county to have the road paved at a cost not to exceed $10,000. Piland said he will be appearing before the county commission on Tuesday seeking the inter-local agreement to have the work done as a participation project.

Piland said the county will provide labor, equipment and machinery and the city will pay for materials and provide engineering for the paving.

Piland said he has discussed the matter with the county's Public Works Director, Jack Schuder, and he has to find out when the work can be done.

Bradshaw said today natural drainage for the area around North Edgemon has been across the road. He said a drainage pipe under the road had been cleaned out and the water is now draining toward the swamp near SR 419.

The public works director said when the mudhole is completely filled with rubble, he will be "peeling" dirt from the edge of the road toward the center to crown the dirt road.

Since a "substantial" amount of traffic uses the road, Bradshaw said, he is making every effort to have North Edgemon reopened at least in part by the weekend.

County Seeking Fulltime Counsel

In next month's issue of the Florida Bar Journal will be an advertisement for the position of Seminole County Attorney. The job will be full-time.

A majority of commissioners holds firm to the idea of containing the county attorney's post as a full-time position as opposed to contracting with a law firm outside the courthouse. A majority also feels the salary for the job will have to be raised from $22,000.

"I think when you look at the cost before, when we contracted with an outside law firm, and the cost since it will tell you very precisely that in-house is the best method," said Commission Chairman Dick Williams.

Commissioners also are concerned with being able to keep a county attorney. In little more than a year they have hired two: Joe Mount and Harry Stewart. Mount left as full-time counsel last summer. Stewart, general attorney will leave September 1 to become Brevard County legal counsel.

Lopez Center Of Attention

MANHASSETT, N.Y. (UPI) — Frank Sinatra did not have Nancy Lopez in mind when he sang about "Nancy With The Laughing Face," but it fits her to a T.

Lopez was, as usual, all smiles Wednesday, prior to the start of the $100,000 Long Island Charity Classic which runs today through Sunday on the 6,438-yard, par-73 course of the North Hills Country Club.

While the other top women golfers, including defending champion Debbie Austin, went relatively unnoted, Lopez was again the No. 1 attraction. And she handled the onslaught in her usual gracious fashion.

"It's funny how people react to me," she said. "I saw one kid have a fit trying to get my autograph. He was so cute, jumping up and down, screaming, 'Oh, I don't have a pen, I don't have a pen.'"

By winning the European LPGA Championship Sunday she increased her 1978 earnings to $157,000, bettering Judy Rankin's record of $150,750. With eight victories — including a record five in a row — and 11 tournaments to play, she has one of the best breaking Mickey Wright's 1963 record of 13 victories in one season.

Lopez finished in a second-place tie with veteran Kathy Whitworth in last year's inaugural Charity Classic. It was only her second tournament as a pro, but she had already made her earlier and runner-up in the European Open a week earlier and runner-up in the afternoon as part of a three-week tour which includes Austin. Austin has having her problems this season.

"It's been very disappointing," said Austin. "I'm just not putting this year."

Polk 'Feels Good' As Feds Free Jail Funds

'I HEARD A CRASH'

The man in the white shirt is Sheriff John Polk of Seminole County. He is standing in a courtroom or office setting. The text describes a crash that occurred during a legal proceeding.

Pope Wishes Are Ignored

VATICAN CITY (UPI) — The last will and testament of Pope Paul VI calling for a simple funeral and burial in the bare earth was published today but instead, the College of Cardinals was ignoring the will to prepare what might be the largest service in the 2,000-year history of the Catholic Church.

Tuscowilla Residents: To Defect Or Not To Defect

"We live in Winter Springs. My children go to school in Orlando. My husband works in Orlando. My mailing address is Maitland. We are served by a privately owned water and sewer utility and by Winter Park Telephone Co. Why are we so split up? I don't know where we are. I've learned nothing tonight."

By MAX ERKLETTIAN
Herald Staff Writer

Seminole County Sheriff John Polk feels both hands of the federal Economic Development Administration (EDA) are together and said today the $500,000 grant that was in jeopardy will now be funded for the new county jail.

'There should be no delays on this now'

Polk said of his telephone discussion with EDA officials in Washington.

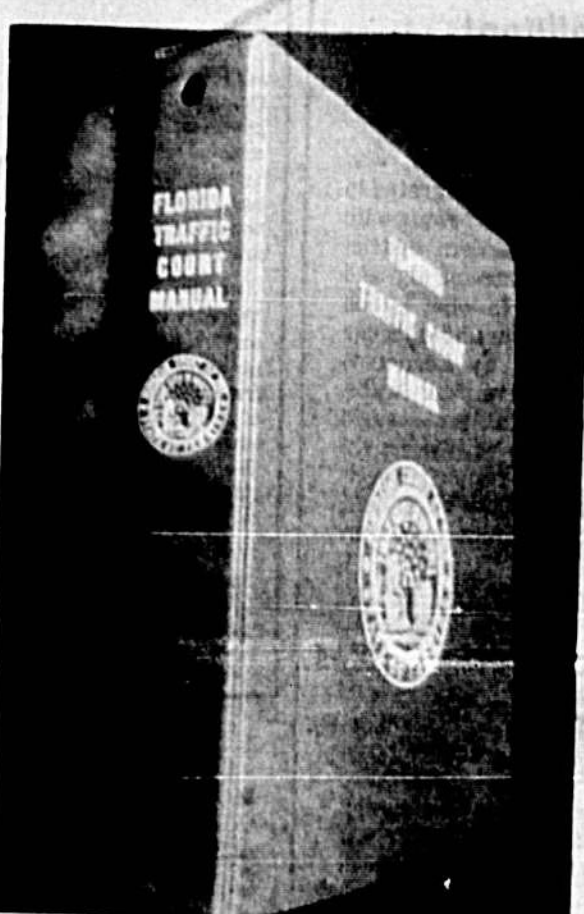

'All we had to do was get the left hand and right hand together'

Dispute Over Police: Answer: Abolish City

PORT RICHEY (UPI) — The city council, embroiled in a dispute over the recent abolition of the police department and firing of the city clerk and city attorney, has approved an ordinance that would abolish this west central Florida community of about 1,200.

...Cheshire Looking To Court Rules

By DENNIS FEOLA
Herald Staff Writer

Although contempt of court generally occurs in the courtroom itself and in the presence of a judge, there are times when it can occur out of the courtroom.

DOUGLAS CHESHIRE: obstruct the administration of justice or tend to bring the court into disrespect.
