BRIEFS

Cops investigate football pool

SANFORD — The Sanford Police Department has been asked to look into the possibility that a football fantasy league, in which several city employees participated, involved criminal activity.

According to Cmdr. Dennis Whitmire of the Sanford Police, the state attorney's office has asked the police to "look into the possibility that some criminal offense has occurred" in relation to the league which involved the exchange of money in a game of chance.

Whitmire declined to say if the department believes any charges will be filed, saying only that an investigation is being conducted.

"We now have an investigation under way," he said. "There's nothing else I can say."

Arrest made in Habitat theft

SANFORD — Sanford Police have arrested Major Wheeler Sr., 40, of 1811 W. 13th Street in Sanford in relation to the theft of about $400 in construction supplies from a Habitat for Humanity project at 2006 W. 16th Street.

According to Cmdr. Dennis Whitmire of the Sanford Police Department, Wheeler allegedly took 37 sheets of plywood and 15 bundles of roofing shingles from the construction site. He then allegedly sold four sheets of plywood and the shingles to another man for $12.

The police are investigating the involvement of the other man and others in this case. Other charges are expected to be filed soon.

Wheeler was charged with grand theft and with dealing in stolen property in relation to the case.

Cattle drive

SANFORD — The history of Florida cattle drives will be the focal point Thursday night at the Seminole County Agriculture Center at Five Points. The program, presented by the Seminole County Historical Society will recount the recent cattle drive of over 1,000 head, celebrating Florida's sesquicentennial. Slides of the historic event will be shown, as well as several talks by prominent local cattle business people.

The meeting is scheduled to begin at 7 p.m. There is no charge for admission and the event is open to the general public.

For additional information, phone 321-2489.

Handy helicopter

WINTER SPRINGS — A Seminole County teenager has become the first suspect to be arrested as a result of the assistance of the sheriff's office Alert-2 helicopter.

David Perez, 17, was taken into custody early this morning in the Country Lane subdivision off Red Bug Road near Winter Springs. He has been charged with three counts of burglary and grand theft for reportedly breaking into vehicles.

Sheriff's spokesman Ed McDonough says the Alert-2 helicopter was called to help search for Perez and two other suspects. Perez was located in the yard of a nearby house through the use of the helicopter's FLIR system.

United Ways join

United Ways in Volusia and Flagler counties have joined together to form a new United Way of Volusia/Flagler Counties, Inc. The first joint meeting was held Monday with new officers sworn in.

The United Way of Volusia/Flagler Counties have a combined campaign that will total in excess of $3.450 million, and will support 58 separate agencies in the two county area.

Kids learn transportation comes in many forms

By MARY ROWELL
Herald Columnist

LAKE MARY — Barry Steindl decided he's going to live in a limo when he's grown. Katy Smith decided her favorite form of transportation is a camel.

It was all part of the fourth annual Transportation Day at Holy Cross Lutheran Church. Children in their Early Childhood Program spent Thursday morning looking at every kind of transportation from land to water to air. Due to their height, they weren't allowed to actually drive anything though.

The city of Lake Mary sent vehicles from their Fire and Rescue, Parks and Recreation, Public Works and the Police Department. The city of Longwood sent one of their police motorcycles. One boy was seriously disappointed when his mother told him he could not have a motorcycle for his next birthday and neither could his daddy.

Seminole County sent vehicles from Animal Control, Fire and Rescue, the Road Division, Traffic

Retail complex planned near Sanford mall

SANFORD — If everything is approved Thursday night at the Sanford Planning and Zoning Commission meeting, Sanford will see some large scale growth including another major retail complex near the mall.

Items up for consideration include the site plan for Hill Dermaceutical, to be located on the Orlando Sanford airport property. Another is the site plan for Sadisco of Florida auto auction facilities to be located at 3701 Sanford Avenue.

Macedonia Primitive Baptist Church at 1714 W. 13th Street is seeking to expand, and a large scale wholesale/storage facility is being considered at 205 Coastline Road.

Jett Aire files for bankruptcy protection

By VICKI DeSORMIER

SANFORD — Part of the triumvirate of companies that provides services for travelers at the Orlando-Sanford Airport has filed for protection from creditors in U.S. Bankruptcy Court in Orlando.

Jett Aire Executive Services, Inc. has filed for reorganization under Chapter 11 of the federal bankruptcy code.

The filing is not expected to affect service at the Sanford airport as the company is continuing to operate during the proceedings, airport officials said.

The petition for protection was filed after Spolski General Contractor filed a lien on Jett Aire's facility at the airport. The general contractor, which built a $2.5 mil-

State will appeal Spaziano retrial order

By The Associated Press

SANFORD — Prosecutors will file arguments soon with the Florida Supreme Court contending that death row inmate Joseph "Crazy Joe" Spaziano does not deserve a new murder trial.

The judge who granted Spaziano a retrial for a 1973 murder "erred as to several issues," said Assistant State Attorney Tom Hastings.

The Seminole County state attorney's office formally notified the high court Monday it will file written arguments within 90 days. Local prosecutors will be joined in the appeal by the office of Attorney General Bob Butterworth.

Butterworth said last week he wanted to avoid a retrial because, "It's very difficult to win a conviction 20 years later."

Spaziano, 50, was convicted in 1976 of the slaying of 18-year-old Laura Lynn Harberts, primarily on the testimony of Anthony DiLisio. The witness said the Outlaws motorcycle gang member had shown him two bodies.

DiLisio, 38 and a Pensacola auto mechanic, recanted his testimony last year, saying he wanted to please his abusive father and police officers by lying on the witness stand.

After a week's hearing, Circuit Judge O.H. Eaton Jr. ruled Jan. 22 that DiLisio was now telling the truth.

Hastings said the state may argue the judge allowed evidence beyond the scope of the hearing ordered by the state Supreme Court and did not permit the prosecution to introduce all of its witnesses.

Spaziano is also serving a life sentence, plus five years, for a 1975 rape conviction in Orlando.

Water, water everywhere, much of it in Lake Mary

By NICK PFEIFAU
Herald Staff Writer

LAKE MARY — A previously postponed special joint meeting on water problems in Lake Mary has been scheduled for this Thursday. The meeting is slated to begin at 5:30 p.m.

During its last meeting, the city commission delved into setting up a list of priorities to be undertaken by the city to alleviate some of the problems, but there are many others.

Tomorrow night's joint meeting would be between the Lake Mary City Commission and the Water Quality Management Committee. The purpose is to review the focus of the water committee and discuss the critical water quality and volume issues the committee was to identify, especially in the Crystal Lake Basin.

The meeting was called during January following the continued flooding of a number of areas in the city caused by the heavy rains of recent months. Citizens have also appeared before the city commission to express their anger over what they see as a delay in resolving the situation.

In a memorandum to members of the Water Quality Management Committee, City Manager John Litton wrote, "I believe we are all anxious for you to complete your work as quickly as possible so that the commission can begin to establish priorities and move forward with a goal of hopefully addressing each and every issue prior to the summer rainy season."

According to minutes of a committee meeting earlier this month, a number of recommendations are to be made for possible commission consideration. Among them is a recommendation that water quality tests be conducted, that Seminole County and the city undertake a joint drainage study aimed at the possibility of pumping water from Timucuan to Smith Canal.

Committee members also discussed raising the overflow/pop-off of the retention ponds, that Timucuan be asked to look into ways of containing run-off on their own property, and that the Timucuan golf course stop using reclaimed water during the water level problem, and in its place, use existing lake and pond water to irrigate.

The meeting is scheduled to begin at 5:30 p.m. in the commission chambers. The regular meeting will begin at 7 p.m., or as soon as possible after the joint meeting.

State slashes regulations

TALLAHASSEE — Want new carpet? Well, calling an interior designer for advice isn't like calling the doctor in a medical emergency, a new state study concludes.

In an ongoing effort to slash thousands of state rules that clog the economy and slow the bureaucracy, lawmakers should end licensing of some professions with limited potential for public harm, the study suggests.

Interior designers, auctioneers, talent scouts, time-share solicitors and landscape designers are among the professions that may not require a license from the state to do business in the future.

Temporary health-care service pools and yacht and ship captains would also be freed from the present regulatory oversight under the proposal.

The seven professions slated to be deregulated represent 6,500 of 1.1 million licenses statewide.

Safety signs put on Pensacola bridge

PENSACOLA — Warning signs, reflectors and arrows on the pavement are being added after recent wrong-way crashes killed two motorists and seriously injured two others on the Pensacola Bay Bridge.

The Florida Department of Transportation began work Monday on approaches to the 3-mile-long bridge that connects Pensacola on the north with Gulf Breeze on the south.

But it doesn't address the problem of alcohol, a factor in two wrong-way crashes eight days apart, the second on Jan. 12, killing both drivers. Another wrong-way crash in 1991 also killed two drivers, both drunk, on the bridge.

The project will cost $8,000.

Rosewood to be true to history

LAKE MARY — Producers say they will be true to history in filming the movie "Rosewood," depicting racist riots in the west Florida community of that name in 1923.

Six blacks and two whites were killed in the violence that came after a black man was accused of assaulting a white woman.

"It's a very important film, a film with a lot of historical and emotional relevance to it," said director John Singleton.

Singleton, producer Jon Peters and actors Jon Voight and Ving Rhames, who co-star in the film, held a news conference Monday night.

Filming began Monday in rural northeast Lake County between Orlando and Daytona Beach, where two towns have been built as sets representing the black town of Rosewood and the white mill town of Sumner.

In 1994, the state decided to award black Rosewood survivors and their descendants $2.1 million in compensation, attracting national interest in the story.

Grocer stops gunman

ORLANDO — Grocer Sam Turrill, 78, wasted no time when he saw a gunman threatening his daughter-cashier at the Fort Pitt Grocery & Coin Laundry.

Turrill walked in on the scene from a back room Monday night and told the robber to drop his gun. When the gunman didn't, Turrill shot him with his 1911 model pistol.

The gunman, identified as Gilbert Ayala, 31, later died at a hospital. Police don't expect to file any charges against the store owner.

Woman dies in beach wreck

ORMOND BEACH — A suspected drunken driver speeding down the sand killed one woman and severely injured another. Geraldine "Gerry" Rickert, 59, of Belleview, near Ocala, died Tuesday afternoon. She was the first fatality since 1988 on Volusia County beaches, where driving is allowed in 10 mph speed zones.

Alcohol isn't allowed on Volusia beaches, and authorities said Tuesday night they have charged Robert F. Wellditch, 41, of Conneautville in western Pennsylvania, with driving while intoxicated; other charges were being considered. He is believed to have been traveling at 30 mph.

Richard Rickert, who celebrated his 40th anniversary with Gerry last year, said his wife never knew what happened.

"By the time I realized what happened, she was gone," he said. "It threw her about 12 feet in the air. He never slowed down, never hit the brakes or nothing."

The dead woman's friend, Joann Snow, 65, of Steamberg, N.Y., was taken to Peninsula Medical Center in Ormond Beach with several broken bones that required surgery, officials said. She was in stable condition and an ankle operation was scheduled today, a hospital official said this morning.

The death "will definitely add fuel to the fire" among those who want to stop beach driving, said beach spokesman Joe Wooden. "This will create one more element of controversy over driving on the beach."

Recently, sea turtle advocates have sought a ban.

NEWS FROM THE REGION AND ACROSS THE STATE

Soldiers tear down tent cities at Guantanamo Bay refugee camp

By NICOLE WINFIELD
Associated Press Writer

GUANTANAMO BAY NAVAL BASE, Cuba — Time seems to have stood still for many of the Cuban refugees here. They say the day and month they fled their homes in inner tubes or on boats, but they don't give the year. It's as if it were still 1994, as if time stopped during the 18 months they have languished on this parched base on the southeastern tip of Cuba. For the last 127 who were to leave today on planes bound for Miami, life is only now beginning again.

"This time is lost," said Orlando Fondora-Betancourt, 24, as he prepared his three garbage bags full of belongings for his last night in a tent. "We'll try to recoup what we lost."

The departure of the last Cubans from the camps marks an end to the military operation that cost the United States more than $150 million and occupied the lives of 8,400 military personnel at its peak, the fall of 1994.

That was when 21,000 Haitians and 29,000 Cubans were living in tent cities strewn across the 40-square-mile camp. The villages sprouted up almost overnight on the only land available — golf courses, air strips and along the dusty cactus-lined roads surrounding the base.

Schools, churches and basketball courts were erected and phones were installed. To make room, many military families were moved of the island. Other personnel lived in conditions not much better than the refugees, on cots and plywood dorms.

As months passed, tensions among the refugees produced riots, lawsuits, violence and 80 suicide attempts, but the frustration also produced art, poetry, friendships and at least three marriages.

"I'm extremely happy for the people," said Col. John C. McKay, who has been running the joint task force responsible for the camps since November. "But I'm sad because I've made some very close friendships. They are wonderful people."

As he spoke he looked out onto the airstrip that was once a wave of peach colored tents. Now it's a field full of dusty dry spots, piled high with plywood, cinder blocks, canvas and other building materials.

So far the base has shipped 17 million pounds of equipment statewide or about 80 percent of the total, McKay said. It will be cleaned then distributed to other bases or stored.

Still more equipment was being stored here "in case it happens again," said Air Force Master Sgt. Alfarene Walker.

The huge task of building up the base became necessary after tens of thousands of Cubans and Haitians headed for Florida in the summer of 1994.

The Haitians were fleeing the military dictatorship that ousted democratically elected President Jean-Bertrand Aristide.

President Clinton, hoping to stave off a repeat of the 1980 Mariel boatlift, ordered both Cubans and Haitians be sent here until a decision was made on whether they would be allowed into the United States.

Lottery wants vending machines to boost sales

By ADAM YEOMANS
Associated Press Writer

TALLAHASSEE — The Florida Lottery hopes to start selling scratch-off tickets from vending machines by early 1997.

Players could buy $1 tickets from machines in airports, grocery stores, department stores and other retail locations in some parts of Florida. If lawmakers approve the plan.

Lottery officials believe "instant ticket vending machines" would boost ticket sales and generate more money for education. Lawmakers had barred the equipment when they passed legislation regulating the games that began in 1988.

"At this point in time we want to increase sales in instant tickets and this is the best way we can think of doing it," Lottery Secretary Marcia Mann said Tuesday. "Any increase helps education."

Vending machines could be available in some urban areas by January 1997, if the measure is approved during the upcoming regular session, she said.

POLICE BRIEFS

Additional charges

Bryan Lee Bennett, 33, with no local address, has been reportedly linked with a burglary on Jan. 27 in Sanford. Sheriff's deputies said Bennett was already incarcerated at the John E. Polk Correctional Facility on two unrelated cases, with charges of burglary, dealing in stolen property, and grand theft.

According to the latest arrest report, deputies searching Bennett's vehicle following his arrest, reportedly found a weed-eater, valued at $700, which had been reported missing during a recent Sanford area burglary. After the weed-eater was identified by the victim of the theft, the sheriff's department on Monday recommended additional charges of burglary and grand theft be placed against Bennett. Deputies also recommended, in addition to the two charges, that the State Attorney's office require restitution of $900 to the victim, for another item reportedly stolen during the burglary, said to be a chainsaw.

Workers fight

Ronald Edward Leger, 35, of 309 Elder Road, Sanford, was arrested by Sanford police Monday. According to the arrest report, Leger had reportedly been involved in a fight with a co-worker at their place of employment in the 400 block of Sanford Avenue. They said Leger had reportedly attacked the man with a knife, cutting him in the face.

Police arrested Leger on a charge of aggravated battery.

Burglary

Sanford police have filed one arrest report connected with a business burglary in the 700 block of Cornwall Drive in Sanford. According to the report, an estimated $6,800 in auto parts and other items had been stolen in the burglary. Terry Ralph Smith, 22, of 2406 Osceola Road was located at his residence by police and arrested on charges of burglary, grand theft, and possession of stolen property.

Police said Smith, along with two juveniles, had apparently taken the items and sold or traded many of them.

There was no immediate indication regarding the two juveniles.

More charges

Additional charges have been filed in connection with a burglary on Jan. 23, at Hamilton Elementary School. Sanford police had determined David T. Dobbs, 20, with no local address, and Charles Alford Williams, 22, of 611 Park Avenue, had been involved, along with twin brothers Steven Timothy Dunn, 34, and Jeffrey Mark Dunn, 34, of 618 Meltonville.

Monday, Jeffrey Dunn was formally charged with burglary, grand theft, and dealing in stolen property. Williams, Steven Dunn and Dobbs had reportedly been charged earlier.

Traffic stops

William Dale Johnston, 37, 3900 W. SR-46, was stopped by sheriff's deputies Monday on SR-46 near Rinehart Road. He was charged with driving with a suspended license.

Lloyd Elwin Kimball, 44, of 2878 Beardall Avenue, Sanford, was arrested by Longwood police Monday as the result of an accident on the exit ramp of Interstate-4. He was charged with driving under the influence, reckless driving, and driving with a suspended license.

Retail theft

Edward R. Palombo, 56, 4955 Shoreline Circle, Sanford, was arrested at the Seminole Towne Center Saturday. Police said he attempted to take a hat and shirt, with a combined value of $58.50 from a store without paying. He was charged with retail theft.

Sanford police reports

An estimated $1,931 was reported missing Friday, from a business in the 2500 block of Park Avenue in Sanford.

A TV, microwave and other items valued at $743 were reportedly stolen as the result of a burglary Friday, at the Sanford Elks Lodge, 1006 E. Second Street.

Cigarette cartons, with a combined value of $700 were reported stolen Sunday from a business in the 300 block of Sanford Avenue.

A residential burglary was reported Sunday in the 100 block of Mayfair Circle. While there was an estimate of $200 in damage, nothing was immediately determined to be missing.

A VCR, 50 CDs and other items with a combined value of $1,490 were reported stolen Friday from a residence in the 800 block of Bay Avenue.

Fishing equipment and two trolling motors valued at $800 were reported stolen Saturday from a shed in the 2400 block of Poinsettia Avenue in Sanford.

Young killers

Boys' cold-blooded crime exemplifies national dilemma

By SARAH HENNINGSEN
Associated Press Writer

CHICAGO — The children, barely as tall as the judge's bench, stand in court as convicted killers.

Because a 5-year-old wouldn't steal candy for them, they dangled him out a 14th-story window and dropped him to his death.

Now, the wrenching question facing a judge this week is whether these youngsters — now 12 and 13 — should be locked up in jail with other criminals or placed in a treatment center.

It's an issue other states face as well, as the face of crime grows younger and meaner, and courts are left to sort the fates of children who commit grown-up offenses.

"You ask cops, you ask the courts — people are seeing more and more of these kids," Jess McDonald, the head of Illinois' child welfare agency, said.

Crime statistics back him up. Between 1990 and 1994, the latest year figures were available, the FBI reported the arrests of children 14 and under for murder and non-negligent manslaughter increased from 283 to 379.

Under a new Illinois law, the Department of Children and Family Services may transfer youngsters ages 10 to 13 to the state's corrections department. But when it did so with these two boys, juvenile court Judge Carol Kelly balked, saying flatly she did not believe the welfare department's contention that none of its facilities were appropriate.

For a week, Kelly has heard testimony from bureaucrats and experts on what to do with the boys. That hearing continued this week.

At their trial last fall, the boys were sentenced to indefinite state custody. Kelly has said the boys will be confined for no more than 10 years.

The two boys were 11 and 12 when they dropped Eric Morse to his death on Oct. 13, 1994, at a public housing project. Prosecutors said the boys were angry because Eric had gotten them in trouble with their mothers and wouldn't steal candy for them.

By all accounts, the two boys did not lead storybook lives. They grew up poor, in a hard-luck pocket of South Side Chicago. Both are of limited intelligence and had numerous run-ins with police.

But experts are mixed on what should happen to them. If placed in the care of corrections, the boys likely would be sent to a locked institution with a highly structured environment, strict rules and an emphasis on vocational education. Psychiatric treatment would be extremely limited.

"They are warehoused," said Dan Macallair, director of a San Francisco-based prison reform group. He said juvenile corrections facilities are "violent, they're gang-ridden."

"If the goal is to make these kids less likely to do violent acts in the future, you don't put them in a juvenile prison," said Macallair, associate director of the Center on Juvenile and Criminal Justice. "All juvenile prisons do is punish and alienate."

A residential treatment facility also is likely to be locked. But it would offer more opportunity for boys, something a psychologist testified this week is crucial if they are to be rehabilitated. The boys would be sent to an out-of-state home, since Illinois does not have such locked facilities.

Sexy political novel triggers search for author

By DAVID BRISQON
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON — A sexy, hot-selling fictional account of the 1992 presidential campaign has Washington buffs trying to figure out who wrote it, including President Clinton.

Even the editor of "Primary Colors," Daniel Menaker of Random House, swears he doesn't know who authored the lavishly reviewed book, whose Clinton-like protagonist is dogged by questions of his Vietnam War draft status and allegations of adultery as he tries to win the White House.

The writer, Anonymous, is variously believed to be a White House insider, a journalist, an established novelist or possibly, because of its mischievous contents, a Republican mole in the Clinton campaign.

Random House, which paid what Menaker described as a "fairly steep" advance based on reading only half the manuscript in April, has the book in its sixth printing after only a few weeks in bookstores.

"Words cannot describe how much I wish I had written it," wrote Time magazine's Walter Shapiro, who conducted what was purported to be an on-line computer interview with Anonymous.

The writer, who described writing the book as "a lonely process," refused to answer any autobiographical questions and said, "I hope my identity is never revealed" so the book can be judged on its merits.

Random House dealt only with an agent, Kathy Robbins, and a lawyer.

About the only thing the reader is told about Anonymous is that he or she is married. The book is dedicated to "my spouse, living proof that flamboyance and discretion are not mutually exclusive."

"Primary Colors" is copyrighted by Machiavelliana Inc., a mysterious company set up to receive the royalties, which should be substantial.

Clinton, who hasn't read the book but says he may look at it on those long flights on the 1996 campaign, on Tuesday issued a smiling challenge for reporters to ferret out the author.

"You all find out everything in the wide world. The least you can do is tell all of us who wrote that book," Clinton said. "It's the only secret I've seen kept in Washington in three years."

A synopsis of the book is basically a summary of Clinton's 1992 primary campaign for the Democratic nomination, with names changed, relationships embellished and a few fictional intrigues added, including a sexual advance by first lady Susan Stanton on narrator Henry Burton, who is a thinly disguised version of key Clinton aide George Stephanopoulos.

The Clinton character is Gov. Jack Stanton of an unnamed, small Southern state.

He is portrayed as a man who was "incredibly undisciplined about time, and making decisions, and figuring out who should do what on staff" but who was always in control. His profanity-spewing wife describes him as "faithless, thoughtless, disorganized, undisciplined."

The book is full of other easily identifiable and richly drawn characters, including Richard Jemmons (Clinton campaign director James Carville), Orlando Ozio (former New York Gov. Mario Cuomo), Lawrence Harris (candidate Paul Tsongas) and Cashmere McLeod (Jennifer Flowers, who claimed she had a 12-year affair with then-Arkansas Gov. Clinton). McLeod has tapes.

"In spite of its sins, it is far and away the best thing I have read about the 1992 campaign," wrote author Michael Lewis in a New York Times review. He speculated that the author might be Stephanopoulos, who has denied it.

The Washington Post's column "The Source" insists the best candidate is magazine writer Lisa Grunwald, author of two successful novels.

One city election day

We believe the Sanford City Commission made a very wise decision Monday, regarding the proposed changes to the city charter. They generally agreed that two items be removed from the overall charter changes so that voters may make individual decisions.

The two separate items involve placing the police chief and fire chief positions under control of the city manager rather than the commission, and changing the city elections to March rather than December.

At this point, it is not the commission's responsibility to accept these changes, rather it is to determine if the suggestions are appropriate for a decision by the voters of the city.

After the commission formally approves placing the matters in three separate items on this December's ballot, various commissioners have indicated they would be able to address groups and make open comments on which way they would like to see the voters go.

Leaving the matter of the police and fire chief supervisor to later editorial comments, let's look at the matter of changing the elections.

During discussion in support of moving the city elections to March, Mayor Bettye Smith observed, "I would hope we could eventually see all of the cities in the county become involved in such a date. It could be a county-wide 'City Election' day and not coincide with county, state or national elections.

We believe this is an excellent suggestion. In this way there would be no difficulty in determining the proper polling places. They would not fall into conflict with other polls connected with the larger elections.

Furthermore, the Florida Legislature, during the 1995 session, passed a law regarding municipal elections. It suggests each city review its codes regarding elections on a periodic basis and make appropriate changes if found necessary. The proposal has been used as a general guide in the past, but the legislature has not made it official.

Mayor Smith's suggestion is a good one. If all city elections in the municipalities within Seminole County were held on one date, with one set time for filing, we believe it will be better for every city resident.

As it is now, with Sanford's election in December, Oviedo holding its in September in connection with the primaries, and others holding theirs in November along with the state and federal elections, it's become a confusing mess.

We suggest the various cities give this some serious consideration. Bring the matter up for discussion at a meeting of CALNO (Seminole County's Council of Local Governments).

We believe it would be excellent to have a county-wide "City Election Day," and get everyone involved at one time.

Did you happen to read the letter below the editorial in Sunday's (Jan. 28) Sanford Herald? It was written by a sixth grade boy asking us to please send him postcards and information about our area. It seems he had no answer from a letter to another paper in Florida. But ... "lots of the other kids in my room have gotten postcards." Can you imagine how disappointed he must be? Let's take time to send Ben loads of information about Sanford ... and lots of postcards! ## Nigeria's Abacha remains isolated

WASHINGTON -- Senior State Department officials privately fear that Nigeria is shaping up as the "South Africa of the '90s," as one U.S. official put it, because of a brewing debate over whether its military government should be slapped with economic sanctions.

A recent meeting between Nigeria's brutal dictator, Gen. Sani Abacha, and Rep. Bill Richardson, D-N.M., confirmed the Clinton administration's suspicions that the despot is oblivious to his record on human rights. In a rambling, 90-minute meeting in Lagos, Abacha blamed his image problem on the United States.

"Bill Clinton has done nothing but lead a campaign against me," Abacha told Richardson, according to senior State Department sources. Richardson was acting as an unofficial envoy for the administration, a role he has performed in hot spots from Haiti to Iraq.

Abacha is under fire for ordering the execution of playwright Ken Saro-Wiwa and eight other dissidents last November. The incident merely served to highlight the record of a man who retired Gen. Colin Powell says has "the worst CIA bio I've ever seen."

"Abacha is isolated, and he's not aware of how deep his problem with the international community is," one U.S. official told our associate, Ed Henry. "He's clustered with a few sycophantic aides who don't tell him any bad news."

Since the executions, Nigeria has been condemned by the United Nations, while the United States and several other Western nations have recalled their ambassadors. South African President Nelson Mandela has asked President Clinton to support an international boycott of Nigerian oil, half of which is sold to the United States. While Clinton has been noncommittal, two bills pending in Congress would impose an embargo -- an approach supported by prominent activists like the Rev. Jesse Jackson.

Opponents of sanctions fear that an embargo would decimate the Nigerian economy and spur ethnic warfare among the nation's 250 native tribes. Jackson himself has warned that Africa's most populous nation is a powderkeg that could explode into ethnic strife that would make the conflict in Rwanda -- where over hundreds of thousands of people have been killed -- "look like a birthday party."

Abacha, however, seems ignorant of the controversy. "I cannot understand why the relationship has deteriorated," Abacha told Richardson, according to a State Department source familiar with the discussion. "The U.S. has no understanding or appreciation for all the Nigerian efforts towards a democratic process. ... We military men are not animals."

The general told Richardson that Nigeria has been unfairly accused by the State Department of being a hub for drug trafficking. But then Abacha contradicted himself by complaining that he has not gotten enough credit for "sending Nigerians to the U.S. for prosecution on drug charges."

Abacha actually tried to defend Saro-Wiwa's execution on legal grounds. "If I had commuted the capital punishment I would have interfered in the legal process," Abacha said of the kangaroo court that convicted the playwright.

He railed at the fact that Clinton "keeps moving the goal posts."

The Clinton administration's suspicions were confirmed that the despot is oblivious to his record on human rights.

Lamar bashes the flat tax

I have never been enamored of former education secretary, former Tennessee governor and current presidential candidate Lamar Alexander, but I once had a modicum of respect for him.

Then he put on a plaid shirt and pretended to be a prole. My regard went from modicum to minimum. Now he is trashing the flat tax and my esteem has disintegrated into random molecules.

Magazine publisher and fellow GOP presidential candidate Steve Forbes is pushing the idea of a flat-rate income tax system, and Alexander, who has been prospecting for public offices since Richard Nixon was president, is running scared.

In Portsmouth, N.H., Alexander warned that Forbes' plan, which eliminates all deductions, including the popular mortgage write-off, would cause a real estate crash. Two hundred miles north of where he was speaking, the nation of Canada has no mortgage deduction and the home ownership rate is about the same as in the United States. But, as we all know, facts are stupid things, so let's go west to Iowa.

In Des Moines, Alexander blasted the flat tax as a "truly nutty idea" that is the rough equivalent of the "Great Pumpkin" as a serious answer to the nation's problems.

Lamar is not dense; he is confused. The Great Pumpkin is really the thing on his shoulders that he calls a head.

He refers to the flat tax as nutty, as he saying that Nobel Prize-winning economist Milton Friedman is nutty? He has been touting the notion since 1962. Is House Majority Leader Dick Armey nutty? He has a Ph.D. in economics and is a major advocate of flat taxes. Is he saying -- he better not be -- that the Cur-mudgeon is nutty? I've been pushing flat taxes for a decade.

Most such systems would permit generous personal allowances, then tax the remainder of earned income at the same flat rate. Forbes would give a family of four a $36,800 deduction and tax the rest of their income at 17 percent. Armey would grant a four-member family $33,300 and also tax the rest at 17 percent.

The system would be simple: You could file on a postcard. It would be fair: Everyone would be taxed at the same rate.

The flat-rate system would also: change us from a consuming society to a saving one; force tax lawyers and accountants to find honorable work; free the marketplace and allow money to flow where it will; eliminate loopholes and force the rich to pay their fair share; promote taxpayer honesty; increase incentives to work or produce more; simplify the budget process; make the cost of government much more visible to the public.

And get this: Congress could probably close up the shop and go home on the Fourth of July every year because they wouldn't be spending half their time inventing breaks for well-heeled pals.

Is there any wonder many politicians are opposed? A flat tax would reduce their power, take away their raison d'etre.

Of the many misstatements and falsehoods that are circulated in opposition to the flat tax, three stand out:

-- The lack of a mortgage deduction would destroy the real estate industry. See paragraph four, above, and ask yourself by what right does the government coerce us to buy real estate?

-- The lack of deductions would ruin charity. I personally feel this is a callous comment on the compassionate citizenry. I also wonder why I should be subsidizing Parson Pat Robertson's narrow-minded views or my snooty neighbor's opera society.

-- The middle class would pay more taxes. I don't believe this, but test it for yourself. Look at your tax returns for the past several years. Add up all wages, salaries, pensions. Subtract $26,200 (Forbes) or $22,700 (Armey) for wife and husband, $5,300 for each dependent. Multiply that amount by .17. That's the amount you would be paying under a flat-rate system.

I found I would be paying an average of $850 less per year. Even if it were slightly more, it would be a worthy investment.

Then he put on a plaid shirt and pretended to be a prole.

When principles land you in prison

Twenty-six-year-old Lori Berenson recently began her life sentence in a cold and overcrowded Peruvian prison. And back in the United States, newspaper readers are wondering how this bright, caring and relatively privileged young American could have strayed so far from her expected path.

When I first heard Lori Berenson's story, I immediately thought of my friend Carolyn.

Carolyn Cleary and I were roommates in college, and you must forgive a friend's bias when I say she is a remarkably kind and intelligent woman. While others hold protests and rail against totalitarian states as they sit in cafes, Carolyn has always expressed her social conscience through service -- at homeless shelters, tenant meetings, homes for troubled teenagers and Christmas gift drives. Berenson seems to share this trait.

While in the United States, her community work tended toward practical, hands-on tasks such as serving in soup kitchens and organizing blood drives. Daniel Radosh, a friend of hers since childhood, describes a modesty of temperament that reminds me of my college chum. "She was never one to stand on a soapbox," he said. "I never heard her say 'class struggle' or 'oppression.' When she talked about her experiences in South America, it was about people who were starving or families that had been separated."

What happened? We can't ever really know, because Berenson's military trial was so grossly unfair -- it was closed to the public, the judge's identity was concealed, and Berenson's lawyer was not allowed to cross-examine witnesses or present evidence in his client's defense.

I called Carolyn, assuming she would be distressed by Berenson's story. She was not. "She must have been incredibly naive," said Carolyn, explaining that the Tupac Amaru, along with the Shining Path, another Peruvian guerrilla group, were feared and hated by citizens across the country.

But, I asked, is it possible that someone could be a decent person and still somehow be involved with it?

Radosh rejects the idea that Berenson got swept up by anything. When he saw his friend screaming in Spanish at a press conference he found her "totally out of character." He later learned that she had been in solitary confinement for 30 days and had been instructed by military police to yell so that she could be heard without a microphone.

If Lori Berenson knowingly aided in the killing of innocent people, then she deserves her sentence. But something tells me there has been a terrible mistake. I confess that my sympathy may stem from the fact that she comes from my world, that she reminds me of people I know. I can't, in honesty, say how I'd feel if she did not.

But there is something else about Lori Berenson that compels me -- something beyond the soup kitchens, the needlework and the long, brown hair.

Berenson has insisted that she not receive special treatment because she is American. She has expressed no interest in being transferred to the relative comfort of an American prison. And she has told her parents that she absolutely does not want a "Save Lori" campaign.

She is willing to spend the rest of her life in a hellish prison in order to uphold her principles.

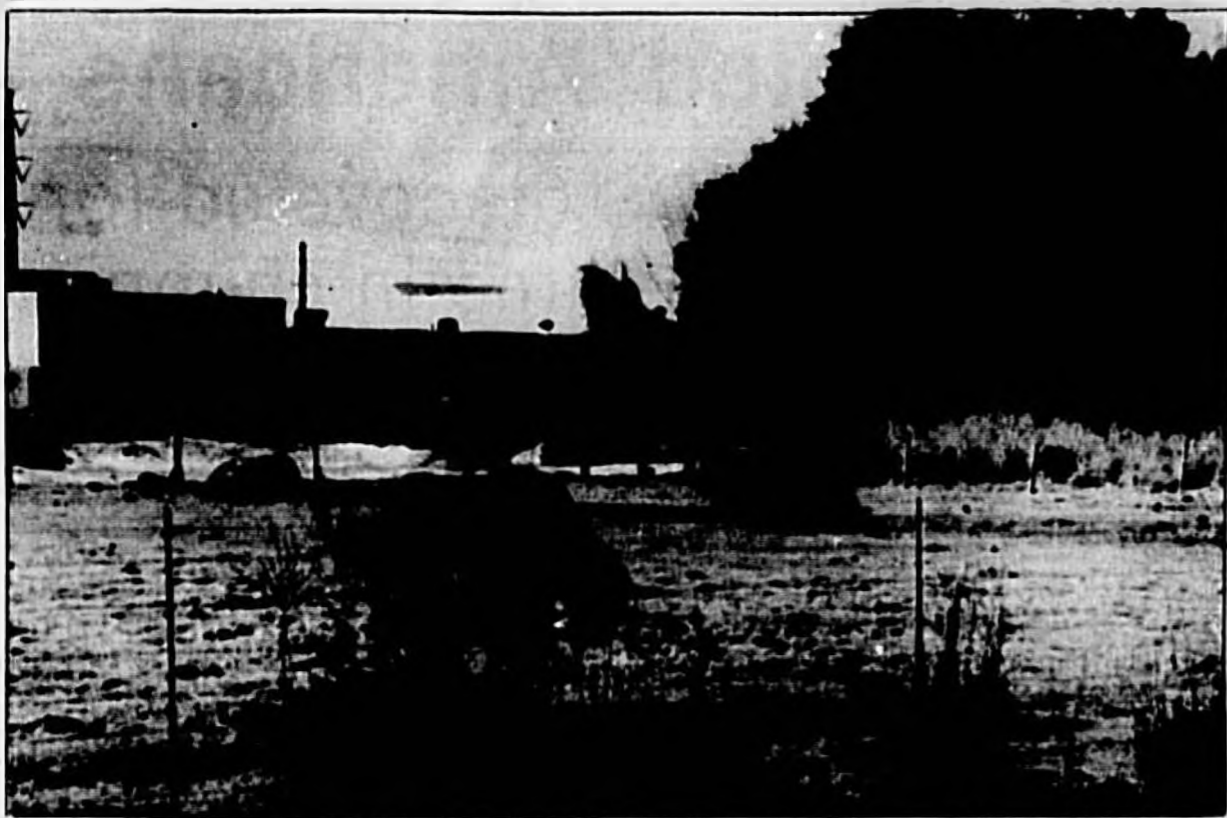

Who among us can say the same?

But, I asked, is it possible that someone could be a decent person and still somehow be involved with it?

The property consists of 18.18 acres of land, and is presently owned by Seminole Farms Trust IV, King Heile, of the King Heile Planning Group of Hudson, Florida, is involved in making initial arrangements for the area.

"We want this to have a real New Orleans style look," he said, "complete with landscaping and architecture."

Heile said he couldn't immediately explain exactly what would be built on the land. "Most of it will probably be retail," he said, "but we are also looking into some top-quality restaurants, some of which may even be what are known as 'theme-style' restaurants."

Heile also said he couldn't presently determine the cost of the facility or the number of buildings or retail areas which may be built.

"It's a complex process," he said. "First we have to get all of the approvals arranged for the land, then we'll need site plan approvals, and a number of others. Then we can have the actual plans drawn up and begin the process of getting even more approvals."

"What I can say," he added, "is that judging from what we have discussed, we plan to make this a real exciting place, and a good addition to the area near the mall and the plaza."

Although he lives on the western side of the state, Heile said he is a frequent visitor to Sanford. "You have a great city there," he said, "and I'm really impressed, not only with Sanford's past, but with the progress going on for the future."

and Engineering, and a helicopter from the Sheriff's Department. The children enjoyed looking at the helicopter, but the biggest thrill was when it lifted off and flew away, sirens blazing. Dozens of pairs of eyes watched and waved until the helicopter was out of sight.

The camel that all the children loved was Sir Gus from the Bahala Shrine Temple in Orlando. Most of the children got a chance to feed Sir Gus and the really brave ones got a kiss from him. Bahala also had a 1930 Model "A" Ford on display. Joey Migliaccio said it was neat.

WOFL-FOX 35 sent one of their production vans. Representatives set up a camera so the children could see themselves. This was a big hit, as was the FOX 35 Kids Club sunglasses and pencils they handed out. Representing radio, XL 108.7 FM brought their remote van and gave out bumper stickers.

Dave's Hauling and Land Clearing and Western Waste Industries provided the children with great examples of working vehicles. But there were also vehicles there for play. The limo Barry liked was from Mears Transportation. Seminole Power Sports brought a Sea Doo that all the children took turns sitting on. Cindy Donaldson, a Girl Scout volunteer, brought her boat.

The children learned about moving letters and packages from the U.S. Postal Service, U.P.S. and Federal Express. They learned about moving people from the Florida National Guard. And they learned about moving money from Wells Fargo.

Other businesses that helped make Transportation Day special were Lifefleet Atlantic Ambulance Service, AAA and Roto Rooter. Roto Rooter gave out key chains with miniature wrenches. These were popular with the adults as well as the children.

Blast kills 53, 1,400 wounded

By DEXTER GRUEZ
Associated Press Writer

COLOMBO, Sri Lanka — An explosive-packed truck crashed into Sri Lanka's central bank today and exploded, setting off a string of high-rise fires that killed at least 53 people and wounded as many as 1,400.

Officials blamed Tamil Tiger rebels, who have fought a 12-year war for independence that has cost nearly 40,000 lives. There was no immediate statement from the Tigers.

Dozens of bodies were strewn in the street and downtown buildings. Raging fires prevented rescuers from reaching the heart of the carnage.

People trapped on top of burning buildings waved for help. Helicopters hovered over rooftops and tried to get low enough to pick up survivors.

A second explosion was heard shortly after the first, but its cause was not immediately clear. Gunfire was heard right after the 11 a.m. blast, which occurred about one minute apart.

Army troops sealed off the city center, which has been a target in the past for rebel commandos and suicide bombers.

The director of the National Hospital's trauma unit, Dr. Hector Weerasinghe, told The Associated Press that at least 53 people have died. Hospital sources said another 1,060 people were admitted with injuries, 100 of them in critical condition.

Others were sent home after receiving first aid, meaning as many as 1,400 people may have been injured, the sources said.

The blasts came from the area near the Bank of Ceylon and the Central Bank of Sri Lanka, a few hundred yards from President Chandrika Kumaratunga's office, the naval headquarters and other government buildings.

Prasanna Wijewardhana, a Central Bank guard, said a blue and brown Indian-made truck drove into the security barricade outside the bank. Two men leaped out and opened fire. Some guards returned fire, but many of them fled, he said.

The attackers "were firing automatic weapons and had the advantage of surprise," Wijewardhana said.

The blast left a crater eight feet deep and the front of the Central Bank collapsed into the street.

Thick columns of black smoke rose over the city. Ambulance sirens screamed and people rushed from their offices into the street. At least a dozen tall buildings were damaged.

Flames engulfed at least a half-dozen buildings, blocking

Lake Mary agenda

By INCK SPENSAF
Herald Staff Writer

LAKE MARY — A double meeting has been called for this Thursday night by the Lake Mary City Commission. The first, to begin at 5:30 p.m., is a joint meeting with the Water Quality Management Committee on the continuing high water problems in the city.

The regular meeting is scheduled to begin at 7 p.m., or as soon after the first meeting as possible.

As of earlier this week, the following items were listed on the regular commission meeting agenda:

- Call to order, etc.
- Special presentation — Terry Salisbury, (Lake Mary Fire Department) for 10 year service award.
- Citizen participation
- Report of city manager (see below)
- Reports of mayor, commissioners, city attorney

- Ordinance 781 — 2nd reading — Amending Ordinance 320 relating to the proceeds of the public service tax.

- Public hearing — Street lighting assessments, Manderley Subdivision.

NOTE: If the special assessment is approved, the commission will adjourn and convene as the Equalizing Board to hear and consider any and all complaints. The Equalizing Board will then adjourn and the regular meeting will be reconvened.

- Resolution 535 — Street lighting assessment, Manderley Subdivision.

- Conditional use requests — For 42,922 square foot hotel, Holiday Inn Express, on Lot 3, North Pointe Replat.

- Request — Site plan approval to convert existing single family dwelling into office building, Crystal Lake Shores.

- Ordinance 782 — 1st reading — Amendment to the Primavera Planned Unit Development. James C. Long, applicant.

- Ordinance 780 — 1st reading — Adopting a retirement plan and trust for police officers.

- Adjournment.

As of earlier this week, the following items were listed on the agenda for the city manager's report:

- Request commission direction on appealing Seminole County Board of Adjustment decision on sign variance for Lake Mary Center.

- Request commission authorize purchase of equipment (backhoe and others) with a total purchase price not to exceed $42,750.

The Lake Mary City Hall is located at 100 N. Country Club Road.

Olestra warning presents marketing challenge for P&G

By JOHN BOLAN
Associated Press Writer

CINCINNATI — If Procter & Gamble Co. is to make a hit out of its latest fat, it must persuade consumers to stay hungry after they read about possible side effects.

That could pose quite a marketing challenge, analysts said.

The Food and Drug Administration approved olestra last week for use in salted snacks and crackers. But the FDA is requiring a label warning consumers that the fake fat may cause some undesirable side effects.

"This 'red flag' on the label is going to give them a reason not to use the product," Al Ries, a marketing consultant in Great Neck, N.Y., said Tuesday.

The label will read: "This product contains olestra. Olestra may cause abdominal cramping and loose stools. Olestra inhibits the absorption of some vitamins and other nutrients. Vitamins A, D, E and K have been added."

As if the marketing challenge weren't enough, it remains to be seen whether consumers will like olestra's taste, said Jack Trout, a marketing consultant in Greenwich, Conn.

"I think packaging is going to be one problem, but I think taste will be the big thing," Trout said.

Not a problem, said P&G. The Cincinnati-based company said its tests show consumers like the taste of Olestra, on which P&G has spent more than $200 million to develop.

Olestra is six to nine months from its debut in still-un-disclosed test markets. It will be sold as Olean (pronounced oh-LEEN) and used in P&G's Pringles chips and also tested by Frito-Lay Inc.

P&G doesn't expect the label to turn off the health-conscious, spokeswoman Sydney McHugh said.

"We know that consumers want the type of products that Olean can make available to them," McHugh said. "We know that in tests we've done, once they try it, consumers are enthusiastic about the way it tastes."

Olestra isn't the only additive that requires such a label. Products containing polydextrose, a texturizer in baked goods, candy, frozen desserts and other products, must carry the statement: "Sensitive individuals may experience a laxative effect from excessive consumption of this product."

Anna Cook, a shopper at a Cincinnati supermarket, said Tuesday she would avoid olestra because she tries to limit fat in her diet anyway by eating "vegetables and stuff which doesn't taste so good."

Fellow shopper David Blue was a bit more adventurous. "Of course, I'll try it," Blue said. "This will be wonderful, to eat French fries dripping with grease."

IN BRIEF

LOCALLY

Grant activated

ORLANDO — Horace Grant, sidelined since Jan. 12 with a stress fracture in his lower left leg, was activated by the Orlando Magic for Tuesday's game against the Boston Celtics.

To make room on the roster, the Magic placed reserve guard Darrell Armstrong on the injured list with a contusion to his right lower leg.

Magic survive threat

ORLANDO — Shaquille O'Neal had 30 points and 19 rebounds and Anfernee Hardaway and Dennis Scott made clutch baskets in the final minute as Orlando held off Boston 104-99 Tuesday night to remain unbeaten at home.

The Magic improved to 22-0 at Orlando Arena despite sloppy play, poor free-throw shooting and minor injuries like the sprained left ankle that kept Nick Anderson out most of the night.

The defending Eastern Conference champions also got a scare when O'Neal left the floor with 52 seconds left in the third quarter after appearing to reinjure the right thumb that sidelined him for the first six weeks of the season.

The All-Star center returned to make two of three shots in the last eight minutes and finish with seven assists and five blocks. Scott made a big 3-pointer with 50 seconds left and Hardaway scored 13 of his 27 points in the fourth quarter, including a 3-point play that gave Orlando a 102-97 lead with 18 seconds left.

AROUND THE STATE

Suns hotter than Heat

MIAMI — Charles Barkley scored a season-high 37 points and the Phoenix Suns remained unbeaten in Miami 114-99.

The Suns improved to 9-0 at Miami Arena. They were 16-0 in all games against the Heat before losing to Miami at Phoenix on Dec. 9.

Kevin Johnson added 25 points and Michael Finley 23 for the Suns.

Alonzo Mourning, who became the first Heat player to be named to an All-Star Game on Tuesday, was held to 13 points.

Bucs hire def. coordinator

TAMPA — Tampa Bay Buccaneers coach Tony Dungy continued to put together his staff Tuesday, hiring Monte Kiffin as the team's defensive coordinator.

Kiffin, 55, served in the same position last season with the New Orleans Saints.

ELSEWHERE

Magic looks good in return

INGLEWOOD, Calif. — When the final buzzer sounded, Magic Johnson was holding the ball and smiling that oh-so-familiar smile.

Amazingly, his numbers were just as familiar. In just 27 minutes, Johnson had 19 points, 10 assists and eight rebounds.

"I can't even begin to tell you how I feel," said Johnson, who made his return in Los Angeles' 128-118 victory over Golden State.

"It's one of the most exciting days of my life, ever. You never thought I'd be back here, especially after the last time I tried. I had so much fun. I really enjoyed myself."

NBA All-Star reserves

NEW YORK — Sacramento Kings guard Mitch Richmond, the 1995 NBA All-Star MVP, and Utah teammates Karl Malone and John Stockton were among 14 players selected as reserves for next month's game in San Antonio.

They will be joined as West reserves in the Feb. 11 game by San Antonio's David Robinson and Sean Elliott, Seattle's Gary Payton and Denver's Dikembe Mutombo. New York's Patrick Ewing was added to the East team with Cleveland's Terrell Brandon, Indiana's Reggie Miller, Miami's Alonzo Mourning, Milwaukee's Vin Baker, Charlotte's Glen Rice and Washington's Juwan Howard.

Cubs resign Sosa

CHICAGO — Sammy Sosa, the only player in Chicago Cubs history to hit more than 30 homers and steal more than 30 bases in a season, agreed on a $10.25 million two-year contract, avoiding arbitration.

Phillies sign Santiago

PHILADELPHIA — Benito Santiago, who hit .288 last season and was the top fielding NL catcher, signed with the Phillies, ending the catching career of sore-kneed Darren Daulton.

Lake Mary, Oviedo girls blank District 3 in soccer

By TONY BOGGERMAN
 Herald correspondent

LAKE MARY — In an effort to expose more student-athletes to the experience of state tournament competition, the Florida High School Activities Association now allows the district runners-up to advance in the playoffs.

The downside of that noble idea are games like the Lake Mary Rams' 10-0 blowout of the visiting Deltona Wolves in the Class 6A North I Regional Quarterfinals of the girls' soccer state tournament Tuesday night at Lake Mary High School's Don T. Reynolds Stadium.

Lake Mary, the 6A-District 4 champion and No. 3 ranked team in the state, improves to 19-6-3 and will host District 1 champion Lynn Haven-Moseley (ranked No. 10 in the state), which ousted Niceville 3-1 Tuesday night, in the North I Regional Semifinals Friday night.

Deltona, which finished second in the 6A-District 3 tournament last week, ends the year with an 8-14-3.

While winning a game by the mercy rule — the contest was stopped with 25 minutes left in the second half — is a distinction Lake Mary coach Bill Eisacle could do without, he believes the expanded playoff format will benefit all sports.

"It's great, having 64 schools involved in the state playoffs," said Eisacle. "It's the only way for the kids to get a feel of the game. When you're in the playoffs, you get to experience big-time games."

There wasn't much big time about Tuesday's romp except for the Ram's near-flawless play over the game's first 18:35, when they scored seven goals.

Alyssa Benitez gave Lake Mary a 1-0 lead when she converted a pass from Elizabeth Morris into a goal just 80 seconds into the match.

scored back-to-back goals two minutes apart, heading home a corner kick from Megan Martin and turning on a pass from Barbara Krueger, before Jackie Vanlooven made it 5-0 at 10:57.

Kelli Coogan scored the first two of her four goals at 15:23 and 18:35 on assists from Adrienne Elker and Marie Pierce.

Then things got ugly. Up 7-0, Lake Mary's game slid into auto-pilot. For the rest of the first half, the Rams were content to knock the ball around the Wolves, which didn't please Eisacle in the least.

"Once you get into the playoffs, you have to consider the possibility of injuries and ejections," said Eisacle, who has gone to extreme lengths to keep from embarrassing opponents. "In the playoffs, you have to work as hard as you can."

The Rams picked up the intensity in the second half. At 42:07, Coogan netted her third goal. It took another 11 minutes before Coogan scored her fourth goal.

Fittingly, sophomore Lorissa Bazile, who wears No. 10, scored the Rams' 10th goal at 54:55.

To Eisacle and the Rams, all Tuesday's win meant was a chance to play again Friday.

"You always hope to play your best game of the season last," Eisacle explained. "Hopefully, we haven't played our best game yet."

LIONS ALSO ADVANCE

DeLAND — The Oviedo Lions, runners-up to Lake Mary in last week's 6A-District 4 Tournament, eliminated District 3 champion DeLand 2-0 in the North II Regional Quarterfinals at Spec Martin Stadium Tuesday night.

The Lions (23-6-1) will travel to the Jacksonville area Friday night to take on District 2 champion Orange Park (ranked No. 7 in the state), which whaloped District 1 runner-up Pensacola 8-1 Tuesday night.

LONGWOOD — Lake Mary won its first ever Seminole Athletic Conference boys varsity basketball championship Tuesday with a 57-44 win over Oviedo. The win gives the Rams the No. 1 seed and a first-round bye in the Class 6A, District 4 tournament, while the Lions will face Lake Brantley.

"We played good defense and rebounded well, and that was the difference," said Lake Mary coach Willie Richardson. "This was a total team effort. There were three goals that we set for ourselves, and we have reached two of them. We wanted to be SAC champions and be the top seed in the district tournament, and this is just the beginning. Now, we want to win the district tournament."

Paul Beik scored 14 points to lead Lake Mary, while Matt Townsley added 12. Jason Junker had nine points for the Rams, while Wesley Jackson had eight. Christian Sanders had 15 points for Oviedo, while Darren Rogers had 11.

Sanders gave Oviedo a 6-0 lead to start the

Reversal of fortune for Chase winners

From Staff Reports

SANFORD — The "have-nots" became the "haves" Tuesday night in the Sanford Recreation Department Women's Chase Park Polar Bear Slowpitch Softball League.

Coming in with a combined record of 1-6, the Sharks and She Devils hit their ways to three victories to keep things interesting in the league.

The Sharks, which were 0-3 prior to the night's action, scored six runs in the first inning and went on to hand Club Paradise just its second loss of the season, 11-4, then came back in the second game to rally for four runs in the seventh inning and the winning run in the eighth inning to defeat the Red Hots 11-10.

But the biggest upset came in the nightcap as the She Devils, who were 1-3, scored four runs in the first inning and four runs in the seventh inning in a 12-5 victory over the previously undefeated Dream Catchers.

Club Paradise	620	010	1	-	4	12
Sharks	643	002	6	-	11	13
Red Hots	301	220	20	-	10	17

She Devils	401	200	4	-	11	11
Dream Catchers	163	000	1	-	3	11

Next week, the Red Hots (2-3) battle the She Devils (2-3) at 6:30 p.m., then Club Paradise (2-2) plays the doubleheader against the Dream Catchers (4-1) at 7:30 p.m. and the Sharks (2-3) at 8:30 p.m.

Doing the hitting were: Sharks: two hits — Laura Harlow (triple, double), Marie Covington, Tracey McCormick, Cathy Cola, Robin Bishop, Missy Van Esselstine; one hit — Tanya Geiger, Dawn Evans, Camille King.

Club Paradise: two hits — Michelle Carroll and Mary Willbanks (triple), Becky Simpson, Trish Ellingsworth; one hit — Shari Hledsoe, Jennifer Kibler, Mame DeJow, Michelle Widner.

Deep breathing worsens pleurisy pain

DEAR DR. GOTT: I have pleurisy. What is it? How long does it last? Is there a cure and is there anything I can take for the condition?

DEAR READER: Each lung is covered by a thin, tough membrane called the pleura. When parts of the pleura are inflamed or irritated, patients experience severe, sharp pain that is worsened by deep breathing. Common causes of pleurisy include pulmonary blood clots (emboli) and infection, such as pneumonia and tuberculosis.

You need a thorough examination, chest X-ray, blood tests, and sputum cultures to discover the cause of your pleurisy. Once the doctor arrives at a diagnosis, he will prescribe appropriate therapy, such as antibiotics.

Some forms of pleurisy last a few days and then disappear, as the body heals itself. Other forms require drug treatment.

Pleurisy should not be ignored. This pain, which can be relieved with analgesics, is an indication that something is wrong with one lung. Follow your family physician's advice.

To give you more information, I am sending you a free copy of my Health Report "Living With Chronic Lung Disease." Other readers who would like a copy should send $2 plus a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope to P.O. Box 2017, Murray Hill Station, New York, NY 10158. Be sure to mention the title.

DEAR DR. GOTT: Every time I eat fruit or drink fruit juice, I get an inflamed red tongue with blisters on the edges. Do I have to quit eating tomatoes, strawberries, peaches and the like? Am I lacking something in my system?

DEAR READER: Being a relatively delicate organ, the tongue is easily irritated and inflamed. The causes include astringent mouthwashes, tobacco products, ill-fitting dentures, spicy foods, and — sometimes — the acid in certain fruits and vegetables.

Your tongue may bother you because some foods aggravate a low-grade irritation associated with one or more of the factors I mentioned. Or, perhaps, you could have a chronic, underlying viral infection in your mouth.

See your dentist. He should be able to discover the cause of your problem.

DEAR DR. GOTT: The latest arthritis cure I have heard of is WD-40, the lubricant. People are rubbing it on their feet and into their joints. Can this product help?

DEAR READER: WD-40 does not help arthritis, for which drug therapy, such as ibuprofen, is more appropriate. WD-40, a hydrocarbon lubricant, is a splendid product for a variety of household repairs. However, it has no place in the treatment of stiff joints, unless you happen to be related to the Tin Woodman in the Wizard of Oz.

DEAR DR. GOTT: My fingernails are becoming ingrown. The problem started about three years ago and my family doctor, a dermatologist, a podiatrist and a surgeon suggest removal or have no answer at all. I'm 70 and in excellent health. I'm also a musician, and this condition is very painful.

DEAR READER: No one knows why fingernails — or, more commonly, toenails — grow inward, cutting into sensitive flesh, leading to pain and inflammation. However, in many cases, the disorder can be prevented by trimming the nails squarely, rather than shaping them around the sides.

If proper trimming fails to solve the problem, surgery is usually necessary to remove the parts of the nail (and the growing portion of the nail bed) that curl under or extend into flesh.

I suggest that you see a qualified surgeon or podiatrist and follow his advice.

WIN AT BRIDGE

Drive my car

By Phillip Alder

I have never understood why people in America buy powerful sports cars. With the low speed limits, you can never legally get anywhere near to these cars' maximum speed. Now, if you live in Germany, it's another matter. I was once a passenger in a Porsche that was cruising at 140 mph along the autobahn. We went into third gear at 70 and fourth at 100. In the United States, that car would rarely get out of second gear.

How does this apply to today's deal? Another of my obscure segues is coming up! You are in three no-trump. West leads the club five: six, jack, queen. How do you continue?

As always, start by counting your top tricks. Here, you have a paltry five: two hearts, one diamond and two clubs (given trick one). If the diamond finesse is working, you are in the garage, safe and sound. But if it is losing, you are skidding if the clubs are 3-2 or 6-2. (If clubs are 4-4, you are always all right.)

If you must lose the lead twice, once in spades and once in diamonds, West might establish and run his club suit. It is essential to drive out his potential entry card first. Lead a spade at trick two, preferably the jack.

If you win the trick, take the diamond finesse at trick three as at least nine tricks are ensured: one spade, two hearts, four diamonds and two clubs. So, let's suppose West grabs his spade ace and leads the club king. Duck, win the next club and take the diamond finesse. Once again, you are on a clear road to your contract.

HOROSCOPE

Thursday, Feb. 1, 1996

That exotic trip to a faraway destination may be possible in the year ahead. Begin making plans that include one or more of your favorite traveling companions.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) If you renege on your responsibilities today, don't expect others to pick up after you. What you don't do yourself won't get done. Know where to look for romance and you'll find it. The Astro-Graph Matchmaker instantly reveals which signs are romantically perfect for you. Mail $2.75 to Matchmaker, c/o this newspaper, P.O. Box 1758, Murray Hill Station, New York, NY 10156.

large group. Stick to a smaller circle.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) In an involvement with your associates today, you may take a minority position. Your views may be too far out of step, so take a hard look at your values.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Pay extra attention today if the topic under discussion will affect you. Listen carefully to the facts even if they are not what you want to hear.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) In order to gratify a material desire today, you might impulsively spend more for something than it is actually worth. This will not be good use of resources.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) You have an innate awareness of details others tend to overlook. Today, however, you might base your judgments and decisions on a faulty assessment.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Guard against the inclination to make mountains out of molehills. Do not complicate your life by acting illogically.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Associating with pompous or arrogant individuals could be more irritating than usual today. Obtain a guest list before accepting a social invitation.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Do not take your bow prematurely today for something you have yet to accomplish. If it doesn't pan out, and it might not, you may be embarrassed.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Follow through on your plans in an orderly manner today. If you jump ahead of yourself, you may leave out some small but essential steps.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Unless you know exactly what you're doing, do not attempt to manage another's complicated affairs today. You may give yourself a headache.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Your words will be superior to the suggestions of your peers today. However, your words will have no impact if you have a weak presentation.
