BRIEFS

Standards of living Have they improved since 1980?

Jobless rate dips in December

WASHINGTON — Unemployment dipped to 5.3 percent in December, the government said Friday, as the economy created 280,000 new jobs with the strongest gains in service industries.

In falling 0.1 percentage point to 5.3 percent, the national civilian unemployment rate matched a low-point for the year set in October and was the strongest rate in 14 years, according to the Labor Department's Bureau of Labor Statistics.

During 1988, employment increased by 2.3 million with adult women accounting for about two-thirds of the gain and adult men about one-third of the improvement.

Base closings approved

WASHINGTON — Defense Secretary Frank Carlucci approved Thursday the closure of 86 military bases across the country and the partial closing of five others and asked for $1 billion over two years to begin the shut-down.

His approval of a special commission's recommended list of bases to be closed now goes to Congress, where the proposal will automatically go into effect unless Congress blocks it within 45 legislative working days of March 1.

It is expected to receive congressional approval.

The proposal would become effective Jan. 1, 1990, with all base closures and realignments required to be completed by 1995.

Liberty clips UCF, 83-76

ORLANDO — After all but burying themselves in the first half, the University of Central Florida Knights almost dug their way out on Thursday night against the Liberty University Flames at the UCF gym.

But the first half ball-and-chain that UCF shackled itself to was too much as the Flames were able to stretch a 21-point halftime lead into an 83-76 win over the 1-9 Knights.

Rezoning plan submitted

New school attendance zones could affect 264 of 1989 freshman class

By CAROL J. RUMSEY
Herald staff writer

WINTER PARK — The burden of selecting new attendance zones for Seminole County high schools was switched last night from task force members studying the issue to Superintendent Robert Hughes.

After months of head-counting, members agreed 11-1 that only incoming freshmen should be affected by the rezoning.

Whether that actually happens is up to Hughes and school board members. A date for the board to consider the issue has not been set, but is likely to be in early February.

If approved, 264 students of the 1989 freshmen class will be moved to new schools. According to task force members, the idea solves the overcrowding at Oviedo and Lake Mary high schools, and does so with a minimum movement of students. They say its only hitch — transportation — may not be a problem after all. Bus rides are proposed for all students in need.

The '89 freshmen-only concept is a significant break from zoning guidelines set by the board — guidelines that gave current 10th- and 11th-grade students the option to stay at their present schools if, and only if, they could manage their own rides.

The idea to provide transportation for students surfaced at an earlier task force meeting, but was vetoed by the district's transportation department due to a shortage of buses. The question now isn't whether it can be done, but how steep the cost, according to Jack Heister, task force

Nuclear payload on shuttle no cause for alarm

United Press International

CAPE CANAVERAL — Two nuclear generators aboard an interplanetary probe scheduled for launch from the shuttle Atlantis in October would survive a Challenger-class disaster without releasing radiation, according to a draft environmental impact statement.

The statement also said the odds of a worst-case launch catastrophe or an inadvertent re-entry of the Galileo Jupiter probe into Earth's atmosphere that could result in a release of toxic plutonium were extremely remote: about one in 3,000 in the first case and one in 10 million in the second.

Housing plan draws criticism

By LAURA L. SULLIVAN
Herald staff writer

SANFORD — Planning and zoning commissioners last night heard arguments against rezoning Celery Avenue land for a low- and moderate-income housing development.

The commission will review site plans for the project at its Jan. 19 meeting, when the public hearing will continue.

Ameilka Geuka, managing partner of Oasis Development, requested rezoning for 72 acres between Celery and Brisson Avenues from agricultural use to planned unit development.

Geuka said the 500-unit development would include a range of housing to meet a varying scale of incomes. In the first phase of development, which Geuka hopes to get underway by August pending zoning approval, 150 family rental units will be built. Thirty percent of those apartments will be offered at below-market rents. Geuka said.

The second phase of development would include an apartment complex for senior citizens. For-sale townhouses and homes will be developed in the third phase. The project will include a multi-purpose center to be used for daycare and other services, Geuka said.

One of the planned features of the development that drew criticism from Celery Avenue residents last night is convenience shopping. One citizen said residents no longer shop at the two convenience stores located in that area because of crime.

Geuka argued that planning for all services was necessary in developing a neighborhood of this size.

Stanley Brumley, a Celery Avenue resident, argued that increased traffic on Celery would necessitate widening the roadway, which would shrink lawns and increase present troubles with drainage.

In other business, the commission

- Approved rezoning of property at 1720 W. First St. from multiple family residential to general commercial use. Owners Howard and Faye Butcher requested the zoning change for purpose of resale.

- Approved the conditional use of a 1317 W. 12th St. lot for a single-family home. John and Deborah Youngblood requested use of the land to relocate a structure from Orlando.

- Denied conditional use of a restricted commercial lot in Boyds Subdivision off Maple Avenue. Alan Johnson requested use of the land for the construction of a duplex. The commission advised Johnson that he may submit plans for a single-family dwelling on that lot.

- Approved the first 1989 amendment to the Future Land Use Plan of the city's comprehensive plan. The amendment incorporates into the plan lands annexed since the plan was written in 1987.

Gov. Martinez opposes tax hikes.

Governor promises no new taxes, but one official has other ideas

United Press International

TALLAHASSEE — House Speaker Tom Gustafson said Thursday while Gov. Bob Martinez was pledging no new taxes this year, Transportation Secretary Kaye Henderson was privately lobbying for a gasoline tax hike.

Gustafson said a group of road engineers who do business with the state told him recently that Henderson asked them to press the Legislature for the gas tax to help the Department of Transportation out of its budget crunch.

"If the governor is saying no new taxes, I hope he'll communicate that to the secretary so he'll stop asking for us to pass new taxes," Gustafson said.

"I don't mind considering revenue enhancements for transportation if they are needed, but can we get a straight answer from the administration? Do they want it or don't they? If they don't, the DOT secretary can stop talking about it. If they do want it, the governor needs to be talking about it."

Gustafson did not identify the engineers.

"Obviously, the speaker of the House is misinformed," Henderson said through a spokesman.

Barry Inman, a spokesman for the DOT, said Henderson has been discussing the need to boost road construction in Florida.

"Maybe some conclusions have been made in people's minds that to satisfy the need, you need more revenue. There's a fine line between talking about need and satisfying that need," Inman said.

Brian Ballard, a top aide to Martinez, said he discussed Gustafson's comments with the secretary Thursday afternoon, and Henderson denied the allegation.

"The secretary says it's absolutely false, and the governor is continuing to say there will be no gas tax increase in his budget, nor will he support one," Ballard said.

"Kaye Henderson, I don't think would do such a thing," Ballard added. "If he thought there was such a great need, he'd talk to the governor directly."

America's oldest Marine buried

TALLAHASSEE — The nation's oldest Marine Corps veteran, 103-year-old Harold Vanorsdale, was buried Wednesday, receiving full military honors including a 21-gun salute.

A small crowd of friends and adopted family members huddled together at the Vanorsdale's grave at Roselawn Cemetery. Marines in midnight blue coats, white hats and dark blue pants stood at attention. "He said he never wanted any of this — no flowers, no people, nothing," said Fleeta Bowling, a friend of Vanorsdale.

The retired draftsman and painter died New Year's Day at a Tallahassee convalescent home.

Vanorsdale earned his nickname "Sunshine" while serving in the Marine Corps from 1908 to 1912. Rev. R.C. Tindall, pastor of Morningside Baptist Church, said during the eulogy that Vanorsdale picked up the nickname because of his fine personality and inspiration to others.

Vanorsdale was born in Windsor, N.Y., and moved to Tallahassee 42 years ago.

The funeral service was complete with Marines firing a 21-gun salute, the playing of taps, a drummer, flowers and a group of people, precisely what he didn't want, Bowling said.

Vietnam vet may be alive, widow told

PENSACOLA — A judge who told the government to pay a Vietnam veteran's family $600,000 for misidentifying his remains said Thursday there seemed little choice but to tell them of a recent report the man was alive.

At an hourlong hearing, U.S. District Judge Winston Arnow took under advisement a motion to increase the award, but he said he was inclined to suggest that Anne Hart and her lawyers file a separate suit.

Lawyers for Mrs. Hart said the family should get more money because the government recently aggravated her emotional distress by calling her to tell her of a report that her husband had been seen alive in Southeast Asia.

As a result, Mrs. Hart has had to seek additional counseling and take psychotropic medication. Her attorneys seek an unspecified increase in damages or a reopening of the case.

But Arnow said they might have trouble showing the government acted outrageously by informing her of the latest development regarding her husband. He said the result of her bid to get more money may be that the government would be afraid to tell her anything.

Zsa Zsa Gabor and dogs put off airliner

PALM BEACH — Actress Zsa Zsa Gabor was escorted off a Delta Air Lines jet in by police in Atlanta Thursday night when she repeatedly refused an agent's request that she keep her two Shih Tzu dogs in their carry cases.

The 69-year-old actress, flying from Los Angeles to her home in Palm Beach, said the dogs, Genghis Khan and Macho Man, weren't disturbing anyone on the airliner.

But Delta corporate spokesman William Berry said "passengers complained."

"The Delta agent came aboard, Berry said. "He asked her six times to comply. Each time he was responded to with considerable vulgarity," he said. Gabor said the Delta agent "was screaming at me like I was some criminal."

The agent then called Atlanta police and several officers escorted her from the plane.

Singer Vic Damone's sister killed

NORTH MIAMI BEACH — A woman's ex-husband walked into the bingo hall where she worked, shot and killed her and then fatally shot himself, apparently jealous over her impending marriage, police said Thursday.

The woman, Sandra Boucher, 47, was identified by her son, Jim, 25, as a sister of singer Vic Damone.

About 30 people were inside Skylake Mall Bingo Hall about 11:45 a.m. Wednesday when Avrum Cohen, 42, asked his ex-wife to step outside. Police were told Cohen wanted Boucher, who was scheduled to marry another man at the end of January, to marry him again. Police said they talked for a few minutes before the shooting.

"I heard the lady scream something like 'Oh, no' and then I heard the shots," said Bennett Harris, a salesman at Burt's Jewelers, near the bingo hall.

Grand jury returns surprise indictment

TAMPA — A grand jury considering evidence against a 22-year-old man accused of raping and killing his three-year-old daughter not only indicted him in that case, but also returned a surprise indictment charging him with the murder of his wife.

City sewage department worker Rufus Ford Jr. was indicted Wednesday on two counts of sexual battery of his daughter Jennifer, who died Dec. 22 just three weeks shy of her third birthday. They also indicted him on first-degree murder charges for the Nov. 10, 1987, death of his wife, Sybil Ford, 23.

NEWS FROM THE REGION AND ACROSS THE STATE

Legislators grab growth power

United Press International

TALLAHASSEE — Legislative leaders formed a joint House-Senate committee on Growth Management Thursday and fears state government lacks the will to enforce a 1985 law that could prompt growth moratoriums.

The committee will oversee implementation of the 1985 Growth Management Act, which allows development only when enough roads, schools and other public facilities are in place or planned to support the new residents.

The act went into effect on Sunday.

With state and local governments short of cash, environmentalists are worried the "concurrency" requirement for support facilities will be scrapped or weakened under pressure by developers.

House Speaker Tom Gustafson said at a

'Read my lips: we will not retreat from the Growth Management Act.'

—Bob Crawford, Senate president

news conference the committee is intended "to see that the growth management law is implemented."

"Read my lips: we will not retreat from the Growth Management Act," said Senate President Bob Crawford. "This committee is being created to strengthen that law, not to weaken it."

The committee will consist of six senators and 12 House members under a unit rule, meaning representatives of each chamber will have to agree on a consensus position on matters before the panel.

Sen. Mary Grizzle, R-Bellair Bluffs, will head the Senate contingent and serve as the first chairwoman of the panel. The House members will be led by Rep. Lincoln Diaz-Balart, R-Miami, who will assume the chair next year.

Any action taken by the joint committee will be referred to standing committees of the House and Senate before they can be enacted into law.

Crawford and Gustafson said they would be willing to consider local tax increases to help cities and counties cope with growth.

Counties now may increase local sales taxes by 1 percent subject to referendum, but some want authority to increase the levy by extraordinary vote — a majority plus one — of the county commission.

Environmental protection vowed

TALLAHASSEE — Gov. Bob Martinez said Thursday he wants to limit oil and gas exploration, fine marine litterbugs and increase laws governing hazardous waste dumping in an effort to protect Florida's fragile coastline.

"We must protect Florida's beaches and coastal waterways from threatening damage," the governor said in announcing a comprehensive package aimed at increasing state environmental watchdog capabilities.

"I don't intend to stand by and watch our cherished coastal resources be spoiled for generations to come," the governor said, adding that to do less than he suggested would "severely endanger the natural resources that so bless Florida."

Martinez' package has four elements, including an executive order he signed Thursday that directs the departments of Environmental Regulation and Health and Rehabilitative Services to address the problem of hazardous medical wastes washing up on Florida's beaches.

Martinez says he wants rules now being considered by the departments adopted by April 1.

The order also directs the Clean Florida Commission to focus its attention on the problem of litter on beaches and coastal waterways and to explore an "adopt-a-beach" program similar to those found in other coastal states.

Martinez also directed the state Marine Fisheries Commission to bring recommendations to the Cabinet by March 16 on the growing problem of monofilament nets and fishing lines.

Animals often become entangled in the clear lines and are injured or killed.

The governor also proposed three bills for the Legislature that would bar oil and gas leasing in Florida waters off the Southwest Florida Coast and regulate marine mining, require DER to develop a system for commercial marine operators to account for litter and to allow the state to join other states in a coastal compact designed at protecting beaches and marine and coastal waters.

Martinez said a coalition of Democrats and Republicans have agreed to sponsor the three bills in the Legislature and he urged their quick passage.

Hypnotism evidence permitted by court

United Press International

TALLAHASSEE — The Florida Supreme Court upheld the use of hypnotically induced evidence in criminal trials, but rejected Thursday a controversial criminal defense known as diminished mental capacity.

Justices ruled unanimously that trial courts may not automatically bar testimony by defendants whose memory was aided by hypnotism or hypnagogically induced psychiatric evidence to support an insanity defense.

But in a 4-3 ruling, the court rejected the diminished capacity defense in cases where a defendant suffers mental retardation, organic brain damage or other mental deficiencies short of legal insanity.

"Persons with less serious mental deficiencies should be held accountable for their crimes like anybody else," Justice Stephen Grimes wrote for the majority.

The hypnotism ruling came in the case of death row inmate James Morgan, who in 1977 at age 16 murdered Gertrude Trbovich, an elderly Martin County woman.

Two doctors hypnotized Morgan and determined the illiterate, organically brain-damaged youth was an alcoholic and insane.

The trial judge refused to let the jury hear the evidence, relying on earlier rulings by the state high court that hypnotism was too unreliable.

But the justices said hypnotism is an evolving area of law and permitted its use to refresh the memories of defendants who testify on their own behalf.

The court also went beyond the precedent to permit its use to substantiate a medical opinion that a defendant was insane.

Morgan will receive a new trial, the second retrial ordered by the high court in his case.

In the diminished capacity defense decision, the court declined to overturn the conviction of Adam Blaine Chestnut, who received a life term for his part in the 1984 murder of Carl Brown in a secluded area of Alachua County.

Chestnut argued because he was mentally retarded and suffered brain damage from being kicked in the head by a bull, he was easily manipulated and led into the crime.

Justices rejected his arguments, saying testimony about mental problems short of insanity would only confuse juries or result in acquittals without provisions for psychiatric treatment mandated for the criminally insane.

In a dissenting opinion, Justice Ben Overton said Florida courts have allowed for leniency when a defendant was voluntarily intoxicated and that the majority opinion appeared unconstitutional "because no reasonable classification or distinction to justify different treatment exists."

Sentencing guidelines ruled unconstitutional

United Press International

TALLAHASSEE — The Supreme Court ruled Thursday that Florida's sentencing guidelines were unconstitutional during the first year they were applied, but that the problem has now been eliminated.

In a unanimous ruling, the court said the Legislature improperly delegated its authority to the Supreme Court, which at the lawmakers' direction adopted the guidelines proposed by a state commission in 1983.

The court said only the Legislature may determine the length of sentences in criminal trials.

"Even though the legislative and judicial branches were working together to accomplish a laudable objective, the fact remains that by enacting rules which placed limitations upon the length of sentencing, this court was performing a legislative function," the opinion by Justice Stephen Grimes said.

Jim York, top aide to Attorney General Bob Butterworth, said it is unlikely the ruling will provoke appeals by inmates sentenced under the 1983 guidelines.

He said many will be procedurally barred from raising the issue because they could have raised it earlier. In other cases, state law would require resentencing under current guidelines, which provide tougher sentences than in 1983.

"They are going to be faced with what I think might be called a Hobson's choice,"

York said. "If I were the guy, I'd rather keep my sentence under the 1983 guidelines."

The ruling came in the case of Alphonso Smith, who committed burglary and sexual battery before the 1983 guidelines took effect, but chose to be sentenced under them.

He drew a 25-year term after the judge found grounds to sentence outside the guidelines. On appeal, he received the same 25-year sentence, which he asked the high court to review.

The justices said he must be resentenced again, this time under amended guidelines adopted last year.

The guidelines were adopted to ensure statewide uniformity in sentencing.

POLICE BRIEFS

Woman charged as auto burglar

CASSELBERRY — A man, who said he was suspicious of a woman he saw entering cars outside his Casseberry home, followed her and notified police when she stopped at a Longwood restaurant. Longwood police and Seminole County sheriff's deputies confronted the woman and reported she had $500 worth of cassette tapes stolen from the victim's truck.

Police said Lisa Michelle Curry, 20, of 210 Eaton St., Maitland, also had several vehicle registrations, including one from the victim's pickup truck.

Curry, who shoved a sheriff's deputy and struggled, was charged with battery on a policeman and burglary at 9:28 a.m. Thursday, deputies reported. She was arrested at 500 U.S. Highway 17-92, Longwood. Bond is $1,000.

Two arrested for selling cocaine

MIDWAY — In separate cases, City County Investigative Bureau agents report Thursday night arrests of two men accused of selling an agent $20 worth of crack cocaine. One arrest was made in Midway and the other in rural Altamonte Springs.

In both cases, the suspects ran when other agents moved in to make the arrests after the sale. Both were captured.

First to be charged with possession of cocaine end sale and delivery of cocaine was Danny Hughes, 23, of Route 2, Sanford. He was captured at about 10:15 p.m. outside the Club 2 Spot, State Road 46, Midway.

Before the hour was out, Cary Leonard McGee, 20, of Orlando, was arrested on the same charges on North Street.

Man accused of slapping deputy

SANFORD — A Seminole County sheriff's deputy aiding others in trying to calm a man after the man reportedly fought with his sister in Sanford, charged the suspect with battery on a policeman after the man allegedly slapped the deputy.

Jessie Lawson, 35, who refused to give his address and who was first jailed as John Doe, was arrested at 3:29 p.m. Thursday on 22nd St., Sanford. Bond is $1,000.

Man accused of battering wife

WINTER PARK — A 31-year-old rural Winter Park man, accused of hitting his wife in the face with his fists, is charged with battery-spouse abuse.

Seminole County sheriff's deputies said they feared for the safety of the man's wife and arrested William Thomas Pearce, of 1518 Sugarwood Circle, even though the victim said she didn't want to press charges.

Pearce was arrested at home at 12:22 a.m. today. Bond is $500.

Bicyclist arrested

LONGWOOD — Longwood police report stopping a bicyclist on Lake Avenue and cautioning him not to ride his bike because the bike had no lights and the bicyclist appeared to be under the influence of alcohol. Police arrested him after they saw him ride again in traffic on State Road 434.

Police also report that Bruce L. Doyle, 28, of 152 Lake Ave., Longwood, had a small quantity of marijuana in his possession. He is charged with possession of less than 20 grams of marijuana and disorderly intoxication at 7:50 a.m. Thursday. Bond is $500.

Candles suspected in fatal fire

United Press International

ALTAMONTE SPRINGS — Two children sleeping upstairs in a townhouse apartment died in a fire possibly started by candles their parents used while celebrating their wedding anniversary, authorities have disclosed.

Charles and Linda Frazier awoke surrounded by flames in their two-story rental unit north of Orlando shortly before 11:30 p.m. Wednesday, officials with the Altamonte Springs Fire Department said.

They had been celebrating their anniversary and fell asleep downstairs, neighbors and firefighters said. Officials did not know how long the couple had been married.

The parents were so upset with the death of their children — LaChrista Hanson, 14, and Charles Hanson, 10 — they walked away before talking with authorities and their identities were uncertain for a time.

"Because we were so wrapped up in the fire and trying to extinguish it we didn't have time to get their names before they left the scene," said fire department Cmdr. Bill Baer.

Three firefighters were treated for minor injuries.

Officials said burning candles might have touched off the fire, which destroyed the family's apartment, but an investigation had not been completed.

The building housing six townhouse units is about 15 years old, Baer said. The Frazier apartment was an end unit. Fire also damaged the adjacent townhouse and a third sustained smoke and other damage.

Baer estimated damage to the building and the loss of property was worth between $150,000 and $200,000.

Stromberg-Carlson to move scores into Reflections center

By SANDRA BOUCHAHINE
Herald staff writer

LAKE MARY — The Stromberg-Carlson Corp. announced today it will move 150 engineers from its Rinehart Road headquarters to the largely vacant Reflections Center, 500 Lake Mary Boulevard, west of U.S. 17-92.

The company has plans to expand its plant on Rinehart Road but until that happens, the additional 29,000 square feet at Reflections is an immediate need, according to Steve Morgan, public relations manager.

The plant on Rinehart Road is 470,000 square feet.

The company will lease the first two floors of the building to be known as the Reflections Research and Engineering Center and has an option to lease the third floor if needed.

Tony Cobb, company president, said in a prepared statement, "Stromberg-Carlson is a growing company.

"The engineering recruitment program is going well and these additions, along with the expansion of our facility, will move us a step closer to achieving Stromberg-Carlson's potential."

Stromberg-Carlson is a designer and manufacturer of telecommunications equipment. It is a subsidiary of the British Plessey PLC.

Last November, Plessey officials rejected a hostile $4 million take-over offer by the British General Electric Co.(GEC) and the West German Siemens AG causing trading for Plessey stock to soar.

Plessey and GEC are the joint owners of the conglomerate, GEC Plessey Telecommunications Ltd. (GPT), the sole owner of Stromberg-Carlson. The British and West German conglomerates are still pursuing the take-over, according to Morgan, although it is not certain now what will happen.

"We have to take the posture that Stromberg-Carlson and GPT will continue to exist. We may have new corporate parents (if the take-over happens) but we have to continue on with what we are doing," Morgan said.

A massive recruitment program is underway at the company. Three groups are involved in the move, which started on Jan. 3 and is scheduled to be done by mid-February. Those involved are engineering systems, technology and services and the convergence group.

The company's convergence program is intended to combine the technology of the U.S. and the U.K., which has a broader research and development base.

"Our plans are to become big players in our market," Morgan said.

Late last year, Stromberg-Carlson announced plans to add 130-150 engineers to support current products and to develop switching products for the future.

Approval asked in Publix game settlement

United Press International

TAMPA — Publix Super Markets, in a tentative agreement filed in federal court, would pay at least $3.7 million, or about 25 cents on the dollar, to more than 18,000 people who have claimed winning cards in a 1987 promotion.

The agreement, which provides for total payment of $4.25 million, including legal fees, would settle a class action lawsuit brought against Publix in the wake of a 13-week promotion at the chain's 205 stores in Florida.

The promotion, which was tied to the popular Wheel of Fortune television game show, erupted in controversy after thousands of people claimed winnings of up to $1,000, on the basis of a show aired Saturday, July 25.

Publix rejected the claims, saying the game was valid for weekday shows only.

But the lawsuit filed in U.S. District Court by Clearwater attorney F. Wallace Pope said the cards did not clearly specify that restriction.

The Florida Attorney General's office agreed and joined in the suit as a friend of the court.

Lawyers for the plaintiffs and Publix filed the settlement agreement Wednesday and said the attorney general had reviewed it and had no objections.

The settlement must now be approved by U.S. District Judge William Terrell Hodges and attorneys said they hope to schedule a hearing within a few days.

If Hodges approves the agreement, Pope will mail notices to all claimants advising them of a final hearing. Following that hearing, Pope will begin to mail checks to the card holders.

The amount of each award will depend on the number of valid claims and final litigation costs, which must be paid out of the fund.

The agreement provides a maximum of $550,000 for Pope's legal fees. Pope said Publix paid its own legal fees.

Publix spokesman Bill Schroter said the company still denies any liability for the confusion over the promotion and agreed to the settlement to protect its reputation for customer service.

"Basically, we're glad to be getting it behind us," Schroter said. "It's the best thing for the customers and for us."

After the suit was filed, Publix sued MW Marketing Services Corp. of New York, the company that invented the promotion, and companies associated with Merv Griffin Enterprises, producer of Wheel of Fortune.

U.S. said aiding Contras in 1981

FORT LAUDERDALE — A former CIA official testified Thursday in support of six men charged with violating the U.S. Neutrality Act, saying the CIA oversaw military operations against Nicaragua as early as 1981.

"The CIA was involved in the organization, training and supply of armed forces in Nicaragua," David MacMichael, former assistant to the CIA's National Intelligence Council, testified in U.S. District Court.

Lawyers for the six defendants accused of aiding Contra rebels are seeking to have the charges dismissed, arguing that their clients could not have violated the Neutrality Act because the United States was not at peace with Nicaragua.

"We are going to show that the U.S. had a management supervisory role in Contra operations between 1981 and 1986. This is based on documents presented to the World Court and the Iran-Contra Committee," said John Mattes, a lawyer for defendant Jack Terrell.

Terrell and six others, including the brother of former Contra leader Adolfo

Calero, were charged in a June 28 indictment with recruiting and supplying mercenaries to fight alongside the Nicaraguan rebels.

All seven were charged with violating the Neutrality Act, which prohibits Americans from trying to overthrow foreign governments with which the United States is not at war.

U.S. Attorney Eric Dubelier objected to MacMichael's testimony Thursday on the grounds it would breach national security, but U.S. District Judge Norman Roettger Jr. ruled that MacMichael could testify, within limits.

MacMichael left the CIA in 1983. Roettger did not move on the defendant's motion to dismiss the charges, nor did he say when he would rule on the matter.

The defendants claim that the U.S. has to be "at peace" with a country for a violation of the Neutrality Act to occur.

Legal scholar Robert Turner testified that U.S. military action taken by the against Nicaragua during the middle 1980s shows definitively that the U.S. was "not at peace during that period."

Turner said the Neutrality Act was enacted in 1793 because "private individuals mounting military actions against neutral countries would harm U.S. policy."

Turner described U.S.-Nicaraguan relations as a "middle situation of not peace, but not formal war."

Dubelier questioned Turner whether the United States was at peace with Libya. "If we are not at peace with Libya, then would it be okay, according to the neutrality act, to launch a private mission against them?"

Turner compared the Libyan actions to Nicaragua, saying that activities in Nicaragua were not likely to destroy the any political relationships. "The United States had already destroyed friendly relations with Nicaragua."

In addition to Terrell and Adams, the seven-count indictment charged Mario Calero of New Orleans, conservative activist Thomas Posey of Alabama, Maco Stewart, a Texas oil baron, Jose Coutin and Alex Martinez.

Judge Hastings suffering from 2 blocked arteries

United Press International

MIAMI — U.S. District Judge Alcee Hastings is suffering from health problems that might delay the start of his impeachment trial in the Senate.

Hastings said Thursday his doctor has told him to avoid stress, but the controversial judge said it is too early to say whether he will seek a delay in the trial.

A Senate committee is scheduled to meet later this month to decide how to proceed with the trial.

Hastings, 52, said he recently learned he has two blocked arteries. A cardiac catheterization Hastings underwent Dec. 28 showed one artery is 75 percent blocked and another is 50 percent blocked. Further tests are scheduled, Hastings said.

The judge discussed his health Thursday on a live call-in television show, "America and the Courts." The judge said he also suffers from an ulcer.

The House of Representatives voted in August to return 17 articles of impeachment against Hastings, who became Florida's first black federal district judge in 1979.

Hastings is accused of conspiring with former Washington attorney William Borders to obtain a $150,000 bribe from two convicted racketeers and of lying about it in a subsequent trial.

Hastings was acquitted of the bribery conspiracy charges in a 1983 jury trial.

One hot summer does not Armageddon make

According to scientists gathered at the annual convention of the American Geophysical Union in San Francisco, it now appears that the droughts in California and the Midwest this past summer were not the harbinger of the global warming trend that could have devastating effects for all life on the planet. The experts have determined instead that more likely they were caused by an extreme but normal cyclical shift in ocean temperatures at the equator.

This challenges the predictions of impending catastrophe that meteorologists with the National Aeronautics and Space Administration presented to congress this spring. At that time, James Hansen at NASA's Institute for Space Studies said flatly, "The greenhouse effect is here." His declaration, in turn, conjured up visions of polar ice caps melting, coastal cities disappearing beneath the oceans and much of the world's productive farmlands turned into desert wastes.

Experts with the National Center for Atmospheric Research have concluded that there were two distinct droughts this year arising from separate causes. In essence, they were the result of a periodic warming of the ocean off the coast of Peru (known as El Nino), followed in February by an abrupt drop in water temperatures at the equator (dubbed La Nina by some). As devastating as the consequences certainly were, neither appears to have anything to do with the greenhouse effect.

If one summer does not Armageddon make, however, that doesn't exactly qualify as good news. Even though there's no reliable evidence to suggest that the oceans are actually rising or temperatures changing, the holes in the ozone are a reality and a doubling of the carbon dioxide load in the atmosphere is a fact. Those are the problems that scientists predict will produce a greenhouse effect if left uncorrected. This summer's weather, whatever the cause, gave a taste of what life in the greenhouse would be like. Because of the greenhouse flap it caused, as one climatologist at the American Geophysical Union conference observed, "Public awareness is at the right level, but for the wrong reasons."

INS almost lost the judge

It is perhaps a bad omen about the U.S. drug war that it took the Immigration and Naturalization Service three years to grant asylum to a Colombian judge fleeing the Medellin drug cartel. The judge said he had been kidnapped and threatened with murder because he prosecuted Colombian drug dealers. He asked for asylum, but had to go to court to avoid deportation. The appeal took three years and the judge won. Maybe the INS thought he was kidding. Maybe they didn't know that the Medellin drug cartel of Colombia has already killed more than 50 judges. Maybe the United States is still naive about the power of the Medellin cartel.

Attorneys general flex their muscles

HANAHEI, Hawaii — In the old days (as recently as the mid-1970s) the attorneys general of the 50 states had a reliable albeit hardly enduring method of making a favorable impression upon their constituents.

They would occasionally initiate successful prosecutions of a half-dozen sleazy used car dealers, health club operators or other marketplace miscreants, and then proclaim themselves the consumers' protector.

But that technique left a great deal to be desired because it relied upon random initiatives rather than sustained efforts to bring about systemic change.

When the National Association of Attorneys General recently had its winter meeting here on the island of Kauai, however, its members could rightfully boast that a decade of serious, concerted efforts on their part had led to a new era in law enforcement.

"The change probably started 10 years ago, when there were 17 new AGs elected in a single year, 1978," says Iowa AG Thomas J. Miller, a Democrat. "They were more aggressive and more modern -- and they discovered they were much more effective when they worked together."

In 1981, President Reagan entered the White House and brought with him what Miller describes as "his right-wing economic theory of laissez faire." Miller notes that "some industries got the idea that there were few if any limits on what they could do."

Indeed, the Reagan administration's reluctance to discomfit its friends in the business community produced a vacuum for the AGs to fill. They began to aggressively but methodically pursue that task in fields ranging from antitrust law to consumer protection.

A uniform set of guidelines, subsequently adopted by all but two states, was drafted to counteract deceptive airline advertisements that failed to fully disclose either the costs associated with discount fares or the rules governing frequent-flyer promotions.

They began to progressively but methodically pursue that task.

Receiving preliminary approval at the meeting here was a rigorous set of standards for the advertising of rental cars. These are designed to thwart the deceptive practice of offering the cars to consumers at absurdly low base rates, then packing extras into the contract that can double -- and sometimes even triple -- the cost.

The collision damage waiver alone can be more expensive than the auto rental fee. Fuel charges, airport access fees, drop-off charges and other supplemental items often are revealed only in what New York AG Robert Abrams, a Democrat, aptly characterizes as "mice-size type" at the bottom of the advertisement.

Those rental car guidelines are expected to be formally adopted when the NAAG meets next in Washington, D.C., in March. Like the earlier airline standards, the guidelines do not have the force of the law -- but they clearly identify the limits beyond which an industry should not go if it does not want to risk incurring the wrath of the states' principal law enforcement officers.

"It's an authority we will handle with care," says Oregon AG David Frohnmayer.

Although Reagan is about to step down as president, the AGs are not about to relinquish their new-found power. "There's growing recognition that our work is important," says Abrams. "We're addressing legitimate grievances."

Druggers distribute pot through the mail

WASHINGTON — More than 100,000 Americans are involved in the production of marijuana, and many of them deliver their illegal product to their customers the same way you send Christmas packages to cousin Nellie: They mail it or send it via commercial delivery systems.

According to a secret Drug Enforcement Administration report, which we have seen, "Various states have reported that many of their marijuana traffickers are distributing their products through the use of United Parcel Service, Greyhound bus parcel delivery and the U.S. Postal Service express mail service." The carriers do what they can to detect drug shipments, but in most cases are no match for the innovative drug dealers.

The most favored method for shipping pot in Idaho, Oregon, Alabama, Oklahoma and Arizona, according to the DEA, is the United Parcel Service. In Arizona, the secret report discloses, authorities "seized a 19 pound package (of marijuana) destined for Illinois." In Oklahoma, officials reported "that small amounts of marijuana are shipped through UPS from California."

Traffickers in Texas favor Greyhound, which is also a popular method of transport in Idaho and Oregon. The report details an interesting wrinkle on the use of the mails to ship marijuana: "A common technique is to purchase marijuana in Arizona and have it mailed to oneself at another location. If the package does not arrive within 24 hours, the sender assumes that the package may have been temporarily delayed because it was intercepted by law enforcement authorities. The package is subsequently not picked up."

The Postal Service is the method of preference for marijuana growers in Hawaii. The report estimates that "90 to 95 percent" of the pot grown in the island state "is shipped to the mainland via U.S. mail, while the rest is consumed on the island."

Law enforcement authorities say that marijuana has become the No. 1 cash crop in Hawaii, and the DEA report provides some figures: "Of the 90,000 residents on the island of Hawaii, 15,000 are (believed to be) involved in some way in marijuana growing and trafficking operations."

A large share of these growers, the report states, "come to Hawaii from California for the express purpose of growing marijuana. When they have made what they consider enough profits, they move back to the mainland and are replaced in the cycle by someone else."

Meanwhile, law enforcement authorities in New Mexico have compiled a profile of "courier cars" used to carry drugs throughout the Southwest. According to a confidential drug intelligence report, the typical drug vehicle's occupants are usually resident aliens from Colombia, and the cars are not registered to them. The vehicles are usually scented with air fresheners and other deodorants.

When caught, the drivers normally admit only to being paid to drive the cars. They claim to have no idea of what is in the vehicle. They are allegedly told by those who hired them to leave the car at the Los Angeles airport and wait to be contacted or to call a beeper number.

Study re-examines U.S. 'poverty line'

WASHINGTON — A new Census Bureau study has rekindled one of Washington's oldest debates: How many Americans are living in poverty?

The formula for determining the "poverty line" was developed years ago by Social Security Administration statistician Mollie Orshansky, on the assumption that the poor spend about a third of their income on food. Thus the poverty level was set at approximately three times the Agriculture Department's annual estimate of the cost of food needed to decently sustain a person.

Conservatives have long argued that the 3-1 ratio is incorrect because the poor actually spend less on food. They argue for a 2.5-1 ratio. This would lower the poverty level and the number of persons said to be living in poverty. Liberals have countered that, for a number of reasons, the 3-1 ratio is actually too low and that it should be closer to 4-to-1 or even 5-to-1.

They also contend that the Agriculture Department's annual food budget estimate is too low because it includes rural and farm families who are able to grow much of their own food -- an option unavailable to the urban poor. Thus the food cost estimate should be considerably higher and so should the poverty level.

In a 1981 study, the Bureau of Labor Statistics estimated that it would have taken an income of $15,323 for a family of four to maintain the minimum level of decent living in an average urban setting. The poverty level for a family of four that year stood at $9,287.

In recent years the debate has shifted and become even more bitter.

In determining whether a person is living above or below the poverty level, income is defined as total cash received by a family or individual before taxes. Included are all cash government benefits such as Social Security, veterans' benefits, unemployment insurance, workers' disability compensation and public assistance.

Liberals argue that the use of pretax income fails to take into account what individuals have left over after paying taxes. Although the poor do not pay much income tax, the working poor do pay a significantly high percentage of their income in Social Security taxes. If after-tax income was used, many more people would fall under the poverty line.

Conservatives, though, argue that taking into account only cash income severely underestimates support the poor receive from non-cash federal benefits such as Medicare, Medicaid, food stamps, school breakfast and lunch programs and housing subsidies. If the value of this aid was factored in, far fewer persons would be considered poor.

The Census Bureau decided to test these various arguments. They recalculated the 1986 income and poverty rates under 12 different definitions of income -- starting with cash income only, then adding or subtracting various factors.

Using the current cash-only definition the study found that the 1986 poverty rate for all persons stood at 13.6 percent (11 percent for whites, 31.1 percent for blacks, and 27.3 percent for Hispanics).

In a result that is sure to please liberals, when federal, state and Social Security taxes were deducted from cash income the number of Americans in poverty jumped to 21.2 percent (14.9 percent for whites, 40.4 percent for blacks, 33.9 percent for Hispanics).

But in a result that will please conservatives, if the income definition were amended to include the value of non-cash government benefits, the overall poverty rate in 1986 would have dropped to 11.6 percent (9.4 percent among whites, 25.8 percent among blacks, and 23.5 percent among Hispanics).

In the most comprehensive definition of income, one which includes all cash plus the value of all non-cash governmental benefits, plus the value of private health insurance plans, plus capital gains, plus the imputed return on equity of owner-occupied housing, less all taxes, the poverty rate fell even further to an overall 10.3 percent (8.4 percent among whites, 24 percent among blacks and 21.4 percent among Hispanics).

Two facts are vividly shown in the study, the critical nature of both Social Security and the current welfare system.

The results of this study will undoubtedly intensify the debate over who is poor. It will also have serious ramifications as George Bush and Congress debate making changes in the current Social Security and welfare systems.

If after tax income was used, many more people would fall under the poverty line.

Stocks open higher

United Press International

NEW YORK — Prices opened higher Friday in moderate trading of New York Stock Exchange issues as market participants took in stride a report on December employment figures and renewed a two-day-old rally.

The Dow Jones Industrial average which rose 12.66 Thursday, was up 8.75 to 2199.29 shortly after the market opened.

Advances led declines 493-207 among the 1,081 issues crossing the New York Stock Exchange tape. Early turnover amounted to about 15,150,000 shares.

Before the market opened, the Labor Department said the nation's civilian unemployment rate in December fell 0.1 percentage point to 5.3 percent of the work force from 5.4 percent in November.

Non-farm payrolls in December rose 279,000 to a seasonally adjusted 107.66 million after climbing a revised 404,000 to 107.38 million in November.

Dollar higher on jobs data

United Press International

The dollar was higher in active trading in New York Friday against key foreign currencies following the release of a government report on the nation's employment picture. Gold was mixed.

The Labor Department reported the nation's unemployment fell 0.1 percentage point to 5.3 percent in December as the economy created 280,000 new jobs.

Traders in New York said the job numbers were not unexpected but were certainly a strong number. Most economists expected the employment data to show a slight drop from the November rate.

In earlier trading in Tokyo, the dollar closed at 125.97 Japanese yen, up 0.64 yen from 125.33 Thursday.

In Europe, the dollar began the day in Frankfurt at 1.7975 West German marks, up from 1.796 marks Thursday.

The dollar opened in Zurich at 1.5335 Swiss francs, up from 1.527 francs. In Paris, the dollar opened at 6.1355 French francs, up from 6.108 francs the day before.

The dollar started the day in Brussels at 37.82 Belgian francs, up from 37.71 francs.

In London, the British pound began the day at $1.795 compared with $1.7965 on Thursday.

The Italian markets were closed for a holiday.

On the bullion markets, gold opened $1 an ounce higher in Zurich at $408.50 and gained $1.05 in London to $408.80.

The London morning gold fixing was $408.45 an ounce, up 70 cents from Thursday's close.

In earlier trading in Asia, gold closed at $403.25 on the Hong Kong Bullion Exchange, off 75 cents from Thursday's close.

Silver opened 2 cents higher in Zurich at $5.975 an ounce and opened 6 cents higher in London at $6.065 an ounce.

Western lumber production down

United Press International

PORTLAND, Ore. — Drought, woodworkers' strikes and a market that was down slightly after a record year combined to reduce western lumber production in 1988, timber industry officials said.

Production in a 12-state western region stretching from South Dakota to the Pacific Ocean fell 7 percent last year, dropping to 20.2 million board feet, according to preliminary figures from the Western Wood Products Association released Thursday.

Malcolm Epley, Jr., vice president for communications for the group, attributed the decline to a natural reduction after a record year in 1987, a series of woodworkers strikes in the summer and a drought that placed fire restrictions on logging operations.

the possible health and environmental consequences of launch or mission anomalies pose small risks," according to a copy of the draft environmental impact statement, or EIS, that was obtained by United Press International.

A notice of the availability of the statement for public review was to be entered Friday in the Federal Register. After a 45-day period of public comment, a final EIS will be issued.

The $1 billion Galileo probe, built to explore Jupiter and its major moons in unprecedented detail, is scheduled for launch Oct. 12 aboard Atlantis. But the probe's solid-fuel "inertial upper stage," or IUS, booster is not powerful enough to fire the spacecraft directly to the giant planet.

Instead, Galileo will be fired to Venus where it will use the cloudy planet's gravity to whip it back toward Earth. After two such "gravity-assisted" Earth flybys, Galileo will be moving fast enough to reach Jupiter.

The probe is powered by two "radioisotope thermoelectric generators" — RTGs — each containing about 24 pounds of plutonium 238 dioxide. Heat produced by the decay of the radioactive material is converted into electricity by devices called thermocouples.

The worst potential radiation release envisioned in the EIS would follow an inadvertent high-speed re-entry during an Earth flyby and subsequent impact on a hard surface. The odds of such an unplanned re-entry, coupled with impact on rock, were listed as one in 10 million.

Even in the worst-case scenario, the report said, "none of the calculated individual lifetime doses (in the impact area) are high enough that any immediate health problems due to radiation exposure would be expected although in the maximum case, some excess long-term cancers could be expected."

It was not clear exactly how many such "excess" cancers would be expected or how many potential fatalities might be involved in the years following such an accident, although the numbers were thought to be small.

The environmental impact statement also said the cleanup costs in the event of an accident near the launch pad in which plutonium was released could range from $33 million to as high as $16 billion, although the lower end of the scale was considered more realistic.

Steven Aftergood of the Committee to Bridge the Gap, a public interest group that wants to ban nuclear power sources in Earth orbit, said he supports NASA's plans to launch Galileo.

"I believe they've done a thorough and credible job," he said in a telephone interview from Los Angeles. "In general, I believe that NASA has done a good job of minimizing the risks involved in launching the Galileo spacecraft with its radioisotope thermoelectric generators, which is not to say that the risks are zero or even negligible."

The RTGs, built by General Electric, were designed to withstand tremendous forces, far beyond those that destroyed the shuttle Challenger in 1986.

Strahl. Commissioners proposed that the candidates, prior to the interview, meet with city staff to acquaint themselves with the system.

"A reason to not hire someone is they didn't show the initiative to find out what we are about. That could be a reason for elimination," Commissioner Tom Mahoney said.

"We need a person to manage and lead the city," Commissioner David Meador said.

The city received more than 40 applications for the $35,000-to-$45,000-a-year post vacated by Bob Norris who left to take a job in Neptune Beach.

In another matter, the city agreed to enter into an interlocal agreement with Seminole County and C.S.X. Transportation, Inc., Tampa, so a sidewalk can be installed across the railroad grade crossing at County Road 15 (Country Club Road).

On Aug. 20, 1986, the commission reported an unsafe condition existed at the C.S.X. Railroad and C.R. 15 because the sidewalk ended abruptly about 30 to 40 feet before the railroad tracks forcing school children and pedestrians to walk briefly along the busy roadway.

If the county approves the interlocal agreement next

Tuesday, a five-foot sidewalk will be constructed with $1,800 the city earmarked last February.

Commissioners approved taking $250 out of the insurance or improvement account, to cover the cost of a $1 million insurance policy through the Florida League of Cities while the sidewalk is under construction for two weeks.

"I want to see the sidewalk in. It's been a long haul. It's been very frustrating for me," Public Works Director Rod Stroupe said.

An interlocal agreement is required because C.S.X. owns the right-of-way at the railroad grade crossing which is adjacent to the county's right-of-way. C.S.X. requires the county to enter into an easement agreement before the sidewalk can be built.

Railroad construction crews will construct one portion of the sidewalk on the railroad right-of-way itself and the Lake Mary public work crew will extend the city's portion.

Lake Mary will assume all costs associated with the construction which will begin on March 1 if the county agrees.

"It's a small price to pay. Everybody benefits," Stroupe said.

Commissioners also awarded a $1,049,999 contract to Collage Design Build Inc., Winter Park, for the construction of the public safety/works complex on Rinehart Road. The price reflects a $50,000 reduction from the original bid offer, due to 10 proposed cost cuts approved by the commissioners.

"We figured a Chevrolet building will work as well as a Cadillac building," said Larry Dale, who serves on the public safety/works citizens committee.

Also, commissioners approved the second reading of an ordinance to establish a parks and recreation advisory board.

Seven members were appointed to serve on the board. They are: Arlene Rintelmann, Ken King and Mario DeLlacio, whose terms expire Dec. 31, 1989, and Ed Bedell, Jetta Woodall, Cindy Dale and Ed Suggs, until Dec. 31, 1990.

about $650 million pledged for road and bridge construction over the next two years and has shelved projects promised to local governments.

Henderson proposed a gasoline tax increase without consulting the governor last year, shortly after the services tax had been scrapped.

Martinez called Henderson on the carpet and the secretary promised to clear all future talk of tax hikes through the governor's office.

chairman. "We asked transportation to take a closer look at what we're proposing," Hessler said. "That's what they're in the process of doing right now...working up some figures."

Jane Hammonree, a task force member, said there is a good chance the cost will not prove prohibitive and may even be comparable to current costs.

The nearly 200 parents in attendance last night applauded both the board-provided transportation and the rezoning of incoming freshmen only. But that is not to say the meeting was untouched by controversy.

An ongoing issue throughout the high school rezoning process has been educational equity for Sanford's Seminole High School. Parents there say low enrollments have left them in the cold in terms of funding for educational programs, and they want to use the rezoning process as a forum for change.

Seminole task force representatives have asked that 48 students living in subdivisions currently zoned to Lake Mary High School be rezoned to Seminole. With a higher enrollment, Seminole would receive more dollars for school programs.

They also are asking for stricter procedures and enforcement of rules pertaining to students who illegally attend schools out of zone. The issue has proved so hot that task force members are passing it on to the superintendent even though they're split on what to do.

Last night's one dissenting vote came from Seminole parent representative Judy Williams.

Williams and a group of concerned parents and members of the community spent yesterday in Ocala receiving legal counsel on the dilemma. "We've been directed that educational inequity is a matter of rezoning and can be addressed through rezoning," Williams said. "And we will vote against any rezoning plan that does not address it."

This is the plan now before the superintendent:

●Lyman High School will pick up 175 students from Oviedo High. The students affected are living in areas north of 434 and south of 419 to the point where the roads intersect. Also the area south of 434 to the Winter Springs city limits, and west of Mockingbird Road. The third area affected includes the Camelot development north to Casabelly city limits and east including Spicewood and the area south to Center Drive, and north of Lake Drive to Bird Road.

●Lake Brantley High School will receive 62 students from Lake Mary High School, which includes the area south of 434, the Spring Oaks and River Run communities.

●Lake Howell High School adds 16 students to its enrollment from Oviedo High School. This includes the subdivisions of Sunrise, Amherst and Lafayette Forest. The south boundary is Red Bug Lake Road and west boundary is Tusawilla Road and north boundary 1-10 mile north of Red Bug Lake Road and east boundary to Mitchell Hammock Road.

●Lake Mary High School picks up 11 students from Seminole High School, which includes students living in the Lake Monroe Terrace and Higgins Terrace developments.

The following are considerations for rezoning, which did not receive unanimous approval by task force members, but were still passed on to Hughes.

●Lyman High School would receive 61 students from Lake Mary High. The north boundary is Longwood Hills Road on west boundary and 427 on east boundary and 434 on the south boundary.

●Seminole High School would receive 48 students from Lake Mary High School. This includes students living in the Evansdale, Cardinal Oaks, Cardinal Oaks II, Lake Bingham Woods, Cardinal Oaks Estates, Country Downs, Hampton Park and Lake Mary Woods subdivisions.

The next step in the rezoning process is the vote on a recommendation for middle school rezoning. The vote is scheduled for 7 p.m. next Thursday at Tusawilla Middle School, then their plan will be ready for the superintendent's review.

Parents arrested after boy's starvation

NUANGOLA, Pa. — Police filed homicide charges Thursday against the parents of a Luzerne County teenager who starved to death during an apparent religious fast that hospitalized the rest of his family.

Larry Cottam, 39, and his wife, Leona Cottam, 37, both of Nuangola, were charged with criminal homicide, and two counts each of recklessly endangering another person and endangering the welfare of a child, police said. The pair were arraigned in their hospital beds in Wilkes-Barre.

The charges stem from the starvation death of Eric Cottam, 14, and the near starvation of his sister, Laura Cottam, police said. Laura, 12, and her mother were in serious condition in Mercy Hospital suffering from malnutrition. The father was in fair condition.

State police found the boy's emaciated body and county coroner George Hudock ruled the death a homicide.

Convicted murderer executed

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. — George "Tiny" Mercer was executed by lethal injection early Friday for killing a Kansas City area waitress given to him as a "birthday present" by fellow motorcycle gang members in 1976.

The 44-year-old convict — the first inmate in Missouri to be executed since 1965 — was given the lethal combination of drugs at 12:03 a.m. (1:03 a.m. EST) and pronounced dead at 12:09 a.m.

Mercer, who had been a death row inmate at the Missouri State Penitentiary since Nov. 9, 1979, was sentenced to death for the rape and strangulation of Karen Keeton, 22, of Lake Lotawana in suburban Kansas City. She was a tavern waitress who was taken to Mercer's home in Belton by a motorcycle gang and turned over to him as a "birthday present."

Mercer made a "V" sign with two fingers to his wife, Chris, before the injection of Pavulon, sodium pentothal and potassium chloride was administered, said Dick Moore, director of the Missouri Department of Corrections. The inmate earlier had been given a light sedative upon request.

After the injection was given, Mercer's head immediately jerked then fell back, the spokesman said.

New rule requires anti-collision devices

NEW YORK — All planes in the United States that carry more than 30 passengers must be equipped by the end of 1991 with a device to warn of impending collisions, the government ordered Thursday.

The landmark Federal Aviation Administration rule requires airlines for the first time to install the devices, which automatically alert pilots to make specific maneuvers to avert a collision if ground controllers allow them to get too close. The New York Times said Friday.

The anti-collision system would protect an aircraft equipped with the device from an unequipped plane — if the second plane has a radar beacon, or transponder, that signals its position and altitude, the Times said.

A requirement that all planes operating around 27 of the busiest U.S. airports use transponders will be expanded this year, it said.

Since airplanes equipped with the new device will be unprotected from small planes that lack transponders, the airliners will remain vulnerable to collision with craft lacking the radar beacon and not traced by ground controllers.

DeConcini declines 'drug czar' offer

WASHINGTON — Sen. Dennis DeConcini, D-Ariz., said Thursday he declined an offer by President-elect George Bush to name him to a new Cabinet-level post as the nation's "anti-drug czar."

DeConcini, re-elected in November to a third term as senator, said he informed Bush of his decision in a 30-minute meeting at the White House Thursday, explaining that "my first obligation and responsibility" is to his state.

The senator played a key role in drafting legislation, enacted last year, that creates a Cabinet-level position to coordinate the drug-fighting efforts of several federal law enforcement agencies.

Before his election to the Senate, DeConcini served as administrator of the Arizona Drug Control District.

DeConcini said Bush told him that he was his first choice for the so-called national drug czar post and that Bush had no other person immediately in mind for the job.

David Prospero, a spokesman for the White House transition team, confirmed that Bush offered the job to DeConcini on Tuesday and that DeConcini declined on Thursday.

Bus driver arrested on drug charge

NEW YORK — A school bus driver bringing a young child home from nursery school was arrested by police who spotted him buying crack in a Brooklyn building, authorities said.

Robert Grillo, 33, of New York, was charged Thursday with possession of a controlled substance following the 5:40 p.m. incident, said Sgt. Ed Burns, a police spokesman.

Grillo was driving a bus carrying a 4-year-old child when he stopped, left the child on the bus and went to buy crack in a basement apartment, Burns said.

"He was observed buying a vial of crack through a basement peephole," the police spokesman said.

Grillo returned to the bus and drove away, but the officers stopped the vehicle, "saw a vial of crack on his seat and arrested him," Burns said.

The child, who was returning from a private nursery school, was returned to his home by police.

Burns said the suspect is employed as a mechanic by the Crescent Bus Corp. of Brooklyn, and also works there as a part-time driver.

Company officials could not be reached for comment.

Madonna files for divorce from Penn

LOS ANGELES — Singer Madonna, citing irreconcilable differences with actor Sean Penn, her husband since 1985, filed divorce papers in a Los Angeles court Thursday, a spokeswoman for the singer confirmed.

The couple had received wide publicity for their on-again-off-again marriage, which included a previous filing for divorce by the singer in December 1987 that culminated with a reconciliation less than two weeks later.

A spokeswoman for Madonna, 30, said no further details would be released on the singer's court filing Thursday.

A spokeswoman for Penn, 28, could not be reached for comment.

Penn married Madonna in a spectacular, highly publicized open-air ceremony Aug. 16, 1985, on a grassy bluff overlooking the Pacific Ocean in Malibu.

Man fined $50 for skating on Main Street

HOUSTON — The wheels of justice turned against a roller skater who became the first person convicted by a jury of skating on Houston streets.

Medical technician Ken Healer, 31, a member of a loose-knit club called the Urban Animals, was fined $50 Wednesday for roller skating on Main Street.

The club consists of adults who hold regular jobs but frequently spend their nights roller skating downtown. Urban Animals given tickets for skating in the street normally pay the city a $20 fine, but Healer was the first to request a jury trial on the misdemeanor violation.

Two charges against North dropped

United Press International

WASHINGTON — Independent prosecutor Lawrence Walsh, stymied by the administration from disclosing classified information in an Iran-Contra trial, moved Thursday to dismiss the two central charges of conspiracy and theft of government property against Oliver North.

The action was a tremendous setback for Walsh, who has spent two years and more than $12 million prosecuting the ex-White House aide and three other key figures for their roles in the worst scandal of the Reagan presidency.

Walsh's action prompted a heated denunciation from North's chief lawyer, Brendan Sullivan.

"It is disgraceful that these charges were brought against Lt. Col. Oliver North in the first place and outrageous that they survived for nine months after indictment," he said.

North, 46, selected by Walsh last year to be the first to face a jury, still is charged with 12 other counts of obstructing Congress, making false statements and shredding documents when the scandal broke in November 1986.

North is scheduled for trial Jan. 31, but Sullivan asserted that "classified information permeates the remaining charges as well."

Even if the trial goes forward, Walsh's decision all but assures that the proceedings will not include an embarrassing public review that might have revealed new details of the administration's arms-for-hostages deals with Iran and the secret diversion of profits to the Nicaraguan Contra rebels.

President Reagan, arriving at the White House from Christmas vacation in California, smiled broadly when asked about Walsh's decision and said he is pleased "because it does satisfy our concern about national security."

Walsh's court motion seeking dismissal of the central counts of conspiracy and theft of government property was filed just days after defense lawyers issued subpoenas seeking testimony from Reagan, Vice President George Bush, Secretary of State George Shultz and about two dozen other U.S. officials.

Reagan pleased charges dropped

United Press International

WASHINGTON — President Reagan said Thursday he is pleased the two key charges against Oliver North will be dropped, but lawyers for the ex-White House aide said the move was proof that the special prosecutor had tried to "vilify" an "innocent man."

Brendan Sullivan, North's chief lawyer, said in a scathing statement that independent prosecutor Lawrence Walsh was told long ago that North's defense would need classified information and that these charges were brought against Oliver North in the first place and outrageous that they survived for nine months after indictment."

Returning to the White House after a two-week holiday vacation in California, the president said he was pleased that Walsh moved to dismiss the two key counts "because it does satisfy our concern about national security."

Asked if he is willing to testify at trial, Reagan added, "We're waiting to see what the decision is going to be."

Last week, North issued subpoenas to Reagan, Vice President George Bush and a host of other officials; the Justice Department is expected to challenge the subpoena of Reagan and Bush.

Asked if he would now pardon North, Reagan said, "We're waiting for the judicial process to go forward."

The decision brought criticism from some experts who questioned why Walsh acted without exhausting all avenues of appeal and calls from conservatives for Reagan to pardon North.

Tuesday, presiding U.S. District Judge Gerhard Gesell made clear in an order that he could go no further in protecting classified information at trial, and Walsh went to the Justice Department Wednesday to inform Attorney General Dick Thornburgh of his decision to drop the two charges.

A Justice Department source said that during the meeting, Walsh did not appeal the administration's refusal to allow public disclosure of certain classified information and said he felt he had been treated properly by the U.S. intelligence community.

Debts drive mother to kill children, self

United Press International

MENDON, Ill. — A young mother dependent over mushrooming debts drowned her 8-year-old daughter, then lined up her other three children on the couch and shot them dead before killing herself, police said Thursday.

Shella Epker, 27, and her children, Casey Ann, 8, Shannon, 5, Mandy, 2, and Lance, 16 months, were found dead Wednesday by Epker's husband, Greg, 32, when he came home from work, Adams County Sheriff Robert Nall said.

Greg Epker was hospitalized for shock at St. Mary Hospital in nearby Quincy.

Jon McCoy, first chief deputy, said Shella Epker apparently killed herself and her children because she was upset over mounting bills.

"She was depressed over bills and money owed to people," McCoy said. "Being a young mother with four children — they just couldn't keep up with the bills."

Nall said Epker, employed at Century Sign Co., returned home from work about 5:15 p.m. Wednesday to find the bodies of his family. He mislaid when he tried to call sheriff's police for help and then called a neighbor who summoned police to the home.

Inside, police and a volunteer ambulance crew found the bodies of the woman and the three youngest children "all sitting in a row ... all lined up in a row" on the family's living room couch, Nall said. Each had had been shot once in the head with a .22 caliber revolver. The body of the 8-year-old was found in the bathtub.

"She started with the oldest one and worked down," Nall said.

Nall said some time between 3:30 p.m. and 5 p.m., the mother took Casey Ann into the bathroom and "used some type of towel or cloth and attempted to strangle her and then did drown her in the tub."

Video footage proves Libyan jets were armed

United Press International

WASHINGTON — The United States, saying it has proof two Libyan MIGs shot down by Navy jets were armed, released a dramatic tape Thursday of the dogfight where the American pilots could be heard trying to evade the Libyan "bogies" and one finally shouting, "Shoot him!"

At the same time, a Pentagon spokesman called Libya's ambassador to the United Nations "a liar" for describing the MIGs as unarmed reconnaissance planes.

In an unusual move, the Defense Department flew the crew from one of the two Navy F-14 Tomcats that knocked down the Libyan MIG-23s over the Mediterranean Sea to Washington Thursday to brief high-ranking U.S. officials on the incident.

The two Navy fliers, who were unidentified for security reasons, delivered two black-and-white videotapes taken from the F-14s of Wednesday's skirmish over international waters 70 miles from Libya's northeastern coast.

The Pentagon released the videotape from the lead F-14. At one point, a MIG is seen plummeting toward the ground trailing a heavy plume of black smoke. But the 7 1/2 minutes of audio on the tape was far more dramatic.

"I don't got a tone" from the missile to fire, the lead pilot says. "I got the second one the nose right now. ... Lock him up."

"Shoot him! Fox 2!" the other pilot shouts, the term for a heat-seeking Sidewinder missile.

"I can't" comes the reply. "I don't have a ... tone!"

The pilot then fired a Sidewinder, downing the second MIG.

"Good kill, good kill!"

"Head north, head north. ... Let's get out of here!"

"Two good hits. Two Floggers splashed!"

Bringing the fliers and videotape to Washington, and the speed with which the move was taken, was seen as a concerted effort by the United States to ease concerns the F-14s might have been acting in any way other than self-defense.

The United States maintains the shooting of the MIGs was not related to the heightened tension between Washington and Tripoli over U.S. charges Libya is preparing large-scale production of chemical weapons.

At a Pentagon news briefing, spokesman Dan Howard said he "walked through the events" with the Navy fliers and viewed the best videotape, the quality of which was "lousy." But toward the end of the briefing, Howard was handed a note by an aide, which he read:

"The Navy intelligence review of the videotape confirms that they (the MIGs) had two Aphid missiles and two Apex missiles on the aircraft that was closest to the lead (F-14) aircraft," Howard said.

Asked what that meant, Howard replied, "It tells me that the Libyan ambassador to the U.N. is a liar, that's the first thing it tells me. They said repeatedly they were unarmed reconnaissance aircraft."

"We have the pictures now to prove they were not unarmed aircraft. They were obviously armed aircraft with hostile intent."

Howard added, "Every indication is that both of these aircraft were armed; both had hostile intent."

The missiles could not be seen on the MIG on the released videotape, but an enhanced picture released by the Pentagon showed what appeared to be missiles hanging under the Libyan plane's wings.

Responding to shouted questions at the Los Angeles airport Thursday as he returned to Washington, President Reagan said, "It was obviously a hostile act. They did the right thing. Our pilots acted completely in self-defense."

"I got the other one," the lead pilot says, but he apparently has difficulty maneuvering into a position to fire.

"The ... I Shoot him!" the other pilot shouts at him in exasperation.

Carlucci approves base closings

United Press International

WASHINGTON — Defense Secretary Frank Carlucci approved Thursday the closure of 86 military bases across the country and the partial closing of five others and asked for $1 billion over two years to begin the shutdown.

His approval of a special commission's recommended list of bases to be closed now goes to Congress, where the proposal will automatically go into effect unless Congress blocks it within 45 legislative working days of March 1.

It is expected to receive congressional approval.

The proposal would become effective Jan. 1, 1990, with all base closures and realignments required to be completed by 1995.

The secretary's Commission on Base Realignment and Closure estimated its recommendations would save the government $693 million a year and result in the net loss of 9,000 civilian jobs.

"I have just signed letters to the Congress stating my approval in total of the base closure and realignment recommendations of the Commission on Base Realignment and Closure," Carlucci said at a news conference.

"I'm pleased with the report," he said, adding the commission "made the right choice."

"Base closures are long overdue," Carlucci said. "The department has wanted to close bases for many years, to help strengthen the national defense and save money."

The last obsolete or unnecessary military base to be closed in the United States was in 1978, Carlucci said. Members of Congress in the past would often protect bases in their home districts. That was one of the reasons the special commission was created.

While the commission recommended $300 million in seed money in each of the next two years to begin the process of closing down bases, Carlucci said he asked Congress for $500 million in 1990 and 1991 so the Pentagon can "move faster" to close the bases.

The special commission, specially created for this purpose by Carlucci and members of Congress, provided its recommended list to Carlucci on Dec. 29. Under the statute, the secretary had to approve or reject the list in total; he could not make acceptations or deletions.

In addition to the 86 installations nationwide suggested for closing and five for partial closing, the commission recommended personnel shifts at 54 other large and small bases that could help the economies of some towns.

WORLD BRIEFS

Afghan students riot kills three

MOSCOW — Afghan students clashed with Soviet police and residents in the streets of the south central city of Tashkent on New Year's Day, leaving at least three people dead and 19 injured, Soviet news reports revealed Thursday.

The students stoned buses and private cars and torched at least 21 vehicles in one of the first incidents of foreign students rioting ever reported in the Soviet Union.

The incident New Year's day in the capital of the Soviet republic of Uzbekistan started when the Afghan students whistled at and harassed a group of women at a market, the official Tass news agency reported. There also were angry words exchanged during some black-market deals between the foreign students and local residents.

Tass said that during the ensuing rioting, a 6-month-old baby was killed. Stroitel'naya Gazeta, an official daily newspaper, said two men, ages 34 and 33 and identified only by their last names, Sugadeev and Ibragimov, also were killed. The newspaper said they had died from severe head wounds.

Tass said 19 people were injured in the clashes and Stroitel'naya Gazeta said 16 of them had been hospitalized. A female kindergarten teacher and an Afghan student were in critical condition.

An unspecified number of police were among those hospitalized, Tass said.

Grenade attack kills policeman

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa — Unidentified attackers lobbed four grenades into a crowded police compound in a black township near Johannesburg, killing one police officer and wounding 28 others, authorities said Friday.

The spokesman said the grenades of "communist origin" were lobbed over a compound wall at police headquarters in Kaitleng township around 8:45 p.m. Thursday, exploding amidst a group of policemen.

One black police officer died while undergoing surgery Thursday night and 27 others were wounded by shrapnel, including three seriously. A lone white warrant officer was slightly injured.

The spokesman said the attack in Kaitleng, about 10 miles southeast of Johannesburg, was under investigation.

Rebel attack kills three in Philippines

MANILA, Philippines — Communist guerrillas blew up an armored personnel carrier and fought government forces in two separate incidents that left three people dead and 10 wounded, the military said Friday.

Military spokesman Maj. Percival Enverga said the carrier struck a land mine in Calauag town, Quezon province, 100 miles southeast of Manila, Thursday and guerrillas opened fire on the soldiers.

Enverga said one of the six soldiers aboard the vehicle was missing and four others were wounded. A civilian was killed and five others were wounded when they were hit in the crossfire.

Also Thursday, two militiamen on patrol were killed and another was wounded in a clash with rebels in the town of Rizal, also in Quezon.

Seoul denies exercise reduction

SEOUL, South Korea — The South Korean military Friday denied reports it plans to scale back annual U.S.-South Korean joint military exercises as a gesture of goodwill toward the communist North.

Ministry spokesman Lee Heung-shik said there was no substance to South Korean news reports that Team Spirit exercises, conducted annually for more than a decade, will be scaled down this year and possibly discontinued next year.

The South Korean Yonhap News Agency reported Thursday that the government planned to "symbolically reduce the scale of this year's drill" in a move designed to "reflect our firm will to improve relations with the North."

"Such reports are far from truth," Lee said. "Defense authorities have never studied the possibility of reducing the scale of the exercise or terminating it."

Other ministry officials described Team Spirit as a routine drill of a strictly defensive nature conducted by combined South Korean-U.S. forces.

Sikhs hanged for Gandhi assassination

United Press International

NEW DELHI, India — Indian authorities Friday hanged two Sikhs convicted of the 1984 assassination of Prime Minister Indira Gandhi and then braced for possible violence from Sikh radicals who vowed to avenge their deaths.

A general strike to protest the executions virtually shut down commerce and transportation in the Sikh holy city of Amritsar and throughout Sikh-dominated Punjab state, and police said

Sikh youths pelted a bus with rocks in the west Delhi neighborhood of Tilak Nagar.

Police increased patrols and set up road blocks across New Delhi, Punjab and neighboring Haryana state in a full security alert called to avert any possible backlash by Sikhs angered by the early morning executions of Kehar Singh, 56, and Satwant Singh, 25, inside a New Delhi prison.

"Although resentment is there, the situation is under control," said Inspector General

C. Pal Singh, head of security in the northern region where Sikh radicals frequently stage attacks as part of their struggle to create a theocratic nation called Khalistan in Punjab.

The three main hardline Sikh militant groups — the Bhindranwale Tiger Force, the Khalistan Liberation Force and the Babbar Khalsa — issued a joint statement in Amritsar vowing to retaliate for the executions.

"(The executed men's) sacrifices have boosted our struggle for Khalistan ... and they will remain as shining as a pole star," it said. "We will take revenge for their deaths and teach a lesson to the Hindu-dominated government."

Kehar Singh and Satwant Singh were executed simultaneously on double gallows inside the maximum-security Tihar jail shortly after dawn broke with gray drizzly rain, closing a protracted and emotional case that began with the Oct. 31, 1984 assassination of Gandhi.

Walesa blasts Solidarity dissidents

United Press International

GDANSK, Poland — Solidarity leader Lech Walesa lashed out Thursday for the first time at a splinter group within his outlawed union, describing it as harmful to the struggle for more democracy in Poland.

"It is a group which is using worse arguments than the security police," Walesa told reporters during his weekly news conference.

Recently 17 former Solidarity leaders, including Andrzej Gwiazda, who challenged Walesa's leadership in 1980, charged Walesa with failing to observe union rules and procedures.

They accused him of refusing to hold a meeting of the old National Commission, or KK, the policy-making body of Solidarity, which was born in 1980 and crushed by martial law in 1981.

In a statement adopted during a meeting Dec. 18, the group said it would organize such a meeting in February unless Walesa agrees to do it by Jan. 31. The commission had about 100 members but about 50 are believed to have emigrated.

Polish officials have welcomed the split, saying a new composition of forces has emerged in Poland with Walesa leading the "constructive opposition."

Gwiazda showed up uninvited at Walesa's news conference and handed him a statement demanding the meeting.

"What is taking place is harmful for Solidarity," Walesa said. Looking at Gwiazda, he added, "I ask you not to put a stumbling block in front of me and not to block the main course of struggle for the reforms."

Walesa said the dissidents are not strong enough to hinder his operations and added he would tolerate them "as long as they are not a danger for Poland and the union."

Walesa has been engaged in discussions with Polish authorities.

Mitchell: Tax reform did little for middle class

United Press International

WASHINGTON — Senate Democratic leader George Mitchell said Thursday that massive changes in federal income tax laws have done little to help middle class Americans and he still favors increasing taxes on the wealthy.

But Mitchell said he would not "push" the idea of increasing taxes on the rich because Congress would not approve such legislation.

The major tax revisions of the past two years helped the very rich and the very poor, Mitchell said. He said the changes provided little relief — and in some cases may have hurt — the overwhelming majority of Americans who comprise the middle class.

Mitchell said changes in the tax laws may be a growing political liability because, when combined with Social Security payroll taxes and excise taxes, left many Americans with the wrong impression that Democrats care only about the very poor.

"What's happened is that the tax bill provided an enormous benefit to the wealthiest persons in our society — the top 2 percent in income," Mitchell said. "It also benefitted those at the bottom end of the income scale by removing six million from the income tax rolls. The burden therefore fell increasingly upon the middle class.

"And all of these policy shifts have produced an attitude among the majority of Americans who are in the middle that the Democrats care about the very poor, the Republicans care about the very rich."

Police storm bus, arrest hijackers

United Press International

DUESSELDORF, West Germany — Police stormed a hijacked bus on a Duesseeldorf highway Friday, arrested the two hijackers and freed their two hostages unharmed to end a four-hour standoff, authorities said.

The bus, seized at midnight by two West German men described by police as "amateurs," was traveling toward the city airport when police stopped the vehicle at a road block and rushed aboard.

Witnesses said they heard muffled shots and explosions, but there were no reports of injuries.

A police spokesman said the driver and the other hostage was freed and the two hijackers, both aged about 25, were taken into custody around 4 a.m.

The incident began in Bonn, the capital, when the two men seized a city bus carrying three passengers and a driver. Putting a gun to the driver's head, they first ordered him to drive to the Bonn-Cologne airport but later demanded they be taken to the Duesseeldorf airport, about 30 miles further north, police said.

The hijackers, who communicated with police by radio, initially asked for $295,000 for the safe return of the hostages but later increased the demand to $590,000.

Filipino troops attack renegade cops in bid to free hostages

United Press International

ZAMBOANGA, Philippines — Government forces began an assault on a military camp Friday in a bid to free a general and a colonel held hostage for a second day by renegade Moslem policemen.

Heavy gunfire was heard in Zamboanga after armed forces chief Gen. Renato de Villa ordered troops to attack the Moslems, who had ignored his deadline about an hour earlier to release regional police commander Brig. Gen. Eduardo Batalla and his aide, Col. Romeo Abendan.

Initial Red Cross reports said at least three people were wounded.

Shooting began shortly after government negotiators reported the collapse of talks for the release of hostages. The Moslem policemen had threatened to kill Batalla and Abendan and blow up the camp in Zamboanga, 500 miles south of Manila.

Earlier, President Corazon Aquino told reporters in Manila she had instructed the military and government negotiators to "try to exhaust all peaceful efforts before we resort to force." Aquino said she was monitoring the standoff in Zamboanga.

Officials earlier expressed fears of a bloody showdown as the renegade policemen appeared to be gaining support from other Moslems in the area.

Government negotiators said the policemen were equipped with a walkie-talkie and were seeking assistance from Moslem separatists who have battled the government in the predominantly Christian country for 16 years.

The policemen had set a 4 p.m. (3 a.m. EST) deadline for their demands for helicopters to fly them and their hostages out of Zamboanga. De Villa set the same deadline for the Moslems to surrender.

Police Patrolman Rizal Alib and seven other policemen seized Batalla and Abendan when the Moslems were summoned to Batalla's office and told they were facing arrest on murder charges that stemmed from the 1984 assassination of popular Zamboanga Mayor Cesar Climaco.

Alib's brother-in-law was killed in the initial scuffle and a woman seriously wounded.

The official Philippine News Agency said Moslem supporters of Alib in the Zamboanga Constabulary had slipped into the camp to help the renegade policemen. At least 14 men, armed with assault rifles, were reported to be in Batalla's office.

Speaker Ramon Mitra of the House of Representatives and Moslem Senator Santanina Rasul, who head a team of civilian negotiators, said Friday morning there were indications that Batalla had been killed. Rasul is Alib's aunt.

But Batalla's spokesman, Maj. Miguel Bernante, said aides who brought food to the hostages Friday morning reported the two were alive and well.

More than 300 marines surrounded the constabulary headquarters and constables were deployed inside the camp.

Tower in fair condition after colon operation

United Press International

DALLAS — Former Texas Sen. John Tower, the Defense Secretary-designate, was in fair condition Friday following a three-hour operation to remove a polyp from his colon, a hospital spokeswoman said.

Tower entered the Baylor Medical Center Wednesday and underwent the surgery Thursday afternoon, said hospital spokeswoman Sylvia Bodell.

"The procedure went exceedingly well, without any complications, and currently Senator Tower is resting comfortably and is listed in fair condition," Bodell said. "He is expected to make a full recovery."

Dr. R.D. Dignan performed the surgery, which is known as a colon resection.

Bodell said Tower went to the medical center Dec. 27 to have a routine colonoscopy examination.

"During that time, he had a rectal polyp removed," she said. The polyp was biopsied and was shown to have some malignant cells.

The colonoscopy Dec. 27 also revealed the existence of another polyp, but it was not removed until Thursday, Bodell said. Preliminary biopsies indicated the second polyp was benign.

The hospital said it planned to hold a news conference Friday after the results of other lab tests were available.

Tower, a Texas Republican who did not seek re-election when his fourth full term expired in 1986, has spent much of the last decade in pursuit of the defense post.

Cloud study may shed light on greenhouse effect

United Press International

CHICAGO — The most precise study ever on how clouds affect the temperature of Earth suggested Thursday that predictions of global warming from the "greenhouse effect" may need to be re-checked, along with theories about the planet's ice Ages.

Researchers from three universities and NASA's Langley Research Center in Hampton, Va., reported in the journal Science the first precise, complete data on exactly how clouds affect temperatures worldwide. The information is crucial to models of weather patterns, climate, as well as how, whether, or when pollution may lead to global warming through the greenhouse effect.

Up to now, said project leader Veerabhadran Ramanathan, scientists have just been guessing about the temperature effects of clouds to make such estimates and theories. "It has been one of the least understood phenomena on Earth," he said.

But the new study, using sophisticated instruments aboard three satellites, made precise measurements around the clock, over the entire globe, for the month of April 1985. The entire project involved more than 100 scientists in the United States and Europe and took 14 years, from the time the project was first proposed to NASA in 1974.

IN BRIEF

BASKETBALL

Davis' 31 lead Nuggets

DENVER — Walter Davis, who scored 31 points in a rare appearance at guard, says he does not expect the Denver Nuggets to make the switch a permanent one.

"The coaches think I'm more effective at forward," said Davis, who helped fill in for an injured Lafayette Lever in Denver's 131-129 victory over Golden State Thursday night. "Fat just does everything for us. We need him in there, but more than that we need him healthy."

Alex English scored 37 points and Davis hit four 3-pointers to spark a fourth-quarter surge by the Nuggets.

"I think Davis was the guy who hurt us the most," Warriors Coach Don Nelson said. "Every time we had a chance to take control or get back in the game, he'd make a long shot, either a two or three-pointer."

FOOTBALL

FSU's Smith to turn pro

TALLAHASSEE — Junior tailback Sammie Smith told Florida State University officials Thursday he will forego his senior season and apply for the NFL draft.

Smith, the Most Valuable Player in the Seminoles' 13-7 Sugar Bowl victory over Auburn Monday night, is eligible to apply for the draft since his freshman class will graduate this spring. Smith received a medical hardship in 1985 — his first year at FSU — and then played three full seasons. He has one year of collegiate eligibility remaining.

"This has been one of the most difficult decisions of my life," Smith said from his parents' home in Zellwood. "I have given it a lot of thought and consideration and I believe that it is best for my family and myself to pursue a professional career at this time."

Smith and his wife Angie are the parents of a 1-year-old girl, Janay. Smith also said he would satisfy his mother's request that he attain a degree from Florida State.

BASEBALL

10 Pirates eligible for arbitration

PITTSBURGH — Pittsburgh Pirates General Manager Larry Doughty believes the team's 10 players eligible to file for salary arbitration will do so, but half will settle their contracts before the process is completed.

"I really expect all of them to file and that maybe half will go through the process," Doughty said Wednesday.

Players can file for arbitration from Thursday through Jan. 16. A player can sign a contract for 1989 any time before the arbitrator's hearing, at which he picks either the salary figure submitted by the club or the one sought by the player.

One of those players expected to file for arbitration is outfielder Andy Van Slyke, who is seeking a three-year contract. Van Slyke earned a base salary of $825,000 last year and wants at least $1.8 million through arbitration for next season.

HOCKEY

Mullen's 4 goals lead Flames

The last time Calgary faced Los Angeles, the Flames' Joe Mullen was on the ice for four Kings' goals. Thursday night, he paid them back with four goals of his own in an 8-3 victory.

"Games like this don't come very often, but it's good to have them," Mullen said. "The puck was rolling for me."

Mullen also assisted on two goals, including the winner, helping the Flames, first in the Smythe Division, to a nine-point lead over the second-place Kings.

"It was a wide-open shootout in the West tonight," Flames Coach Terry Crisp said. "We don't like to play this way, but LA got us into it. At least we won."

Los Angeles' Dave Taylor tied the score 6-6 at 10:55 of the third period with his 16th goal of the season. Gilmour scored the winner at 14:45, taking Mullen's pass from the corner and beating goaltender Glenn Healy with a 10-foot backhand.

Who will be Bears' QB?

United Press International

Any member of the San Francisco 49ers who says he could care less who starts at quarterback for the Chicago Bears in Sunday's NFC championship game should brush up on recent history.

San Francisco manhandled Mike Tomczak in 1987 in his only meeting against him, but has lost all three of its games against Jim McMahon. The 49ers will wait until at least Friday to discover whom they'll face; Chicago Coach Mike Ditka still refuses to say who will start.

"I think they'll both play," Ditka said Thursday from Suwanee, Ga. "We'll let you know. I know a lot of things, but I have my reasons and let's leave it at that."

When asked if the delay in announcing his decision was to confuse San Francisco, Ditka replied: "Take a bow."

The 49ers should be rooting for Tomczak. Last season, they intercepted the former Ohio State star four times en route to a 31-0 victory. McMahon, on the other hand, has helped Chicago beat San Francisco in 1983, 1985 and Oct. 24 of this season.

This year at Soldier Field — the site of Sunday's game — McMahon completed 10 of 22 passes for 132 yards with one interception in a 10-9 victory.

"They're both fighters," 49ers safety Ronnie Lott said. "They're both extremely competitive and good leaders. They're hard-nosed guys who enjoy winning. They're not concerned with how glamorous they are. That's a great attitude."

Tomczak missed time this season with a separated left (non-throwing) shoulder and was re-injured in Saturday's 20-12 playoff victory over Philadelphia. Ditka has expressed concern over what might happen if Tomczak got hit again.

Tomczak says his shoulder is "a lot better" than it was immediately after the Philadelphia game. "At this point of the season, you have to go out there and play with a little pain," he said.

"If I'm not healthy enough to play, I'll tell Coach Ditka and he'll start Jim McMahon. I don't know if that would happen on the other side of the ball, whether Jim would tell the coach if he was not healthy."

While the 49ers were preparing for two quarterbacks, the Buffalo Bills were devising ways to combat crowd noise in Riverfront Stadium during Sunday's AFC title clash against the Cincinnati Bengals.

"We can't use a lot of audibles and things," Buffalo center Kent Hull said. "We used a silent count the last time (in a 35-21 loss to the Bengals Nov. 27 at Riverfront) and that worked pretty good."

"Maybe we'll use some hand signals or something. We've used them before and most of the time it's been effective. But we haven't used them in a while."

Bills linebacker Darryl Talley admitted the Bengals will have an advantage at home, but says both teams will be inspired because of the game's importance.

"I think any time you're around your home fans, you have a tendency to play a little more spirited," he said. "But being this type of game, and this magnitude, guys are going to play all out anyway."

The Bengals are four-point favorites to advance to the Super Bowl. A large reason for Cincinnati's success has been the play of quarterback Boomer Esiason and — perhaps just as significant — his relationship with Coach Sam Wyche.

Raiders blitz Cougars

By MARK BLYTHE
 Herald sports writer

SANFORD — Seminole Community College placed five players in double figures and pummeled the Cougars of University of Wisconsin Center-Waukesha, 99-60, before 251 fans at the SCC Health Center.

SCC improved to 12-5 and will return to action tonight against Waukesha Tech. UWCV fell to 11-3 and will travel to Daytona Beach Community College for a game Saturday.

"We looked out of shape," Seminole coach Bill Payne said. "We were sluggish and slow and we didn't play well together."

Terry Acox, in his first game with the Raiders, scored a game-high 17 points. Richard Brown added 15 with Vince Emerson netting 13. Terrell Barnes and Mike Gaskill each netted 10 points with William "Wimpy" Woods contributing eight.

Seminole started the game strong and scored the opening eight points with Robert Thomas drilling a field goal followed by two inside moves with Woods completing the run with a short jumper.

The Cougars fought back with consecutive jumpers by Rick Mongan, who finished with a team-high 14 points, including a three-point field goal to cut the lead to 8-5 with 16:35 to play.

The teams then traded field goals with the Raiders picking up momentum by putting down slams. SCC put down three dunks in a row with the final one, a crowd pleasing spectacle, came of a Brown pass that Acox went sailing into the air to get and threw down with one hand that intimidated the Cougars for the remaining of the game.

SCC's Tom Logan drives in but encounters a roadblock in a Waukesha defender. The Raiders dispatched the visitors from Wisconsin, 99-60, Thursday night at Seminole Community College.

Waukesha managed to hang tough until midway through the first half and trailed just, 22-17, before the Raiders went on a 22-point run to put the game out of reach.

The streak opened with an Acox bucket and was quickly followed by a Gaskill steal and layup. Seminole's press then took its effect and forced the Cougars into a number of turnovers that were turned into quick points.

Ole Miss disposes of Gators

United Press International

OXFORD, Miss. — Gerald Glass scored 24 points Thursday night — seven in the opening minutes — to lead Mississippi to an 80-72 Southeastern Conference victory over the Florida Gators.

The Rebels, now 7-4 overall and 1-1 in the SEC, jumped to an early lead and held the Gators without a field goal in the first 4½ minutes enroute to a halftime margin of 44-30.

But Florida, 5-7 and 0-2, opened the second half with a 15-5 run on Ole Miss before Clifford Lett, who finished with 11 points, hit a pair of three-pointers to help cut the margin to 49-45 with 14:39 left.

Ole Miss held off the late charge wit a 10-2 spurt in the final minutes to ice the win.

The Gators were led by Livingston Chatman with 18 points, Dwayne Schintzius and Dwayne Davis each had 14 points before fouling out.

CABLE CONTROVERSY

TAMPA — Cable television, which brings college basketball into millions of homes virtually every winter evening, is at the center of a controversy which threatens to cancel a game Jan. 16.

A dispute over which cable station will televise the scheduled game between the University of South Florida and Stetson has jeopardized the event, according to officials from both schools. Stetson is the home team Jan. 16 and the Hatters have a contract with Sunshine Cable Network to televise five games, including the matchup against the Bulls.

South Florida's television contract with SportsChannel calls for coverage of 30 events.

Liberty douses overconfident Knights

83-76 setback drops UCF to 1-9 for season

By TONY DeSORMIER
 Herald sports writer

ORLANDO — After all but burying themselves in the first half, the University of Central Florida Knights almost dug their way out on Thursday night against the Liberty University Flames at the UCF gym.

But the first half ball-and-chain that UCF shackled itself to was too much as the Flames were able to stretch a 21-point halftime lead into an 83-76 win over the 1-9 Knights.

Liberty improved to 4-8 with the win. "I don't know how a team on a one-game winning streak can be overconfident, but we managed it," said Phil Carter, coach of the Knights. "At the start of the game, our players were not ready to play. They thought they had the win sewn up by showing up in their sneakers. The first 20 minutes showed that."

Without a doubt, the first half was a stark departure from the hard-working style that gave the Knights their first win of the season (over William and Mary last Monday). The Flames, left to shoot almost unbothered, bottomed out 18 of their 31 first half shots for a scorching 58 percent showing. What really hurt was that in the process, Liberty connected on five three-point goals.

"Any team is capable of scoring well when, essentially, they're not guarded," Carter said.

At the other end of the floor, the Flames were making things extremely difficult for the Knights, using a zone defense to force UCF to shoot from the outside (which it did with only middling success — 44.4 percent).

"We played with a lot of intensity and we rebounded well," said Liberty coach Jeff Meyer. "That allowed us to get into our transition game. And doing that allowed us to set our defense. We played mostly zone tonight. We're usually a man-to-man team, but we went to a zone tonight to shut down (Ken) Leeks inside."

It worked as Leeks was limited to just 12 points, six from the floor. In the first half, when Liberty was building up its 21-point advantage, Leeks scored one basket on just two shots.

When the second half started, Liberty did UCF a favor by coming out in its man-to-man defense. With their superior quickness — and urged on by Carter's halftime chewing out — the Knights quickly cut the lead to 13 with an 11-3 run. The Flames switched back to the zone, which slowed UCF's comeback, but Vernon Pinkney and Edsel Bester hit three point shots on consecutive trips down the floor with just under six minutes left to force the visitors back into the man-to-man scheme.

Slowly, things started to swing in UCF's favor. Pat Crocklin (who finished with 19 points) hit a bucket with 1:32 left to cut the lead to five points. Twice, Liberty's leading free throw shooter, Charles Richardson, went to the line and missed the front end of one-and-one opportunities. Leeks rebounding the ball for UCF.

But the Knights couldn't put that final run together as the Flames, led by Bailey Alston (who finished with a game-high 29 points), outscored UCF 10-8 over the final 90 seconds to hang on to the win.

Lady Knights top Columbia

By TONY DeSORMIER
Herald sports writer

ORLANDO — It took some doing, but the University of Central Florida women's basketball team posted its seventh win of the season on Thursday night with an uneven 86-78 win over the Columbia Lions.

After a slow start, the Lady Knights built a 15-point lead midway through the first half and cruised into halftime with an 11-point edge. In the second half, UCF went up by 16 and, with 9:20 left, 17.

But the Lions, who came into the contest with a 5-3 record, started a late rally that saw them get to within four points with 2:54 remaining, only to be seen the Lady Knights finish the game with an 8-4 run to close out the win.

"We had some things working for us too early in the game," said UCF coach Beverly Knight. "Then the girls kind of coasted. They thought they were going to have an easy win and they cooled off."

Part of that was Knight's own doing, unintentionally. With the Lady Knights working well early and building up a double-digit lead, Knight started working in her substitutes midway through the first half. The second group, held its own into halftime but when Columbia started getting adventurous in the second half and the starters went back in en masse, it took a while to get the kinks worked out.

"Any time you go in and out, it's tough," Knight said. "It's a matter of getting back into it and taking a couple minutes to get warmed up."

Leading the way for the Lady Knights were their two seniors, Stark Welch and Oviedo's Fayette Robinson. Welch led all scorers with 26 points on 12-for-17 shooting while Robinson contributed 14 points and 11 rebounds.

Kelly Lincoln contributed 12 points for the Lady Knights with Shannon King scoring 11 points and pulling down a game-high 12 rebounds.

Columbia's effort was paced by Charlene Schuessler's 15 points (including three three-point field goals), 13 from Charlene Williams and 12 from Karin Kolstad.

"I thought we played well in parts," said Columbia coach Nancy Kalafus. "We kept giving them a big lead and working it back down. We did the exact same thing for 40 minutes."

"To be able to stay with a team like Central Florida is a great feeling. Their break was excellent, their shooting was on. I knew they were a good team. I think we did a good job against them."

In the first half, the Lions were done in by bad shooting, making just 11-of-43 (26 percent) while UCF was shooting at a 53 percent clip (18-for-34). Things were a little more even in the second half, the Lions coming back on 46 percent shooting (17-for-37) while the Lady Knights cooled off to 47 percent (16-for-34).

Schuessler and Kolstad did most of the damage for Columbia in the second, scoring 11 and 9 points, respectively, in the final 20 minutes. But the hero turned out to be Welch, who scored 18 of

Planetarium lasers make stars a blast

By VICKI DeSORMIER
Herald correspondent

ORLANDO — Science fiction is full of flash and excitement. Science fact, all too often, is not. But Mike Murray, director of the John Young Planetarium at the Orlando Science Center, does not agree with that outlook.

"Science is not some boring, dry process. It can be full of surprises," Murray said.

He has incorporated his philosophy into the planetarium to make learning fun at the facility, of which one function is education.

And, at times, visitors just want to have fun and not learn anything.

With that in mind, the John Young staff has designed "Laser Magic," a show with cosmic special effects and spectacular laser images set to music. Tunes range from Huey Lewis to Tchaikovsky to Jonn Serrie, all appealing more to a family audience than the "Cosmic Concerts," which are aimed at "serious rock 'n' roll fans".

"Laser Magic" will be performed on Saturdays and Sundays at 3 p.m. beginning Saturday, January 7. "Cosmic Concerts" continue on Friday, Saturday and Sunday evenings, with U2 featured at 9 p.m. and 10 p.m., and Pink Floyd featured at 11 p.m. and midnight.

"We try to give our audiences some whiz-bang excitement in the shows," Murray said.

With a flick of a switch and the spin of a knob, Murray brings night over a glittering Orlando skyline. The stars move across the heavens of the planetarium. A few more clicks and colorful lights spin in bright circles around the sky. And then, just as suddenly, the stark reality of the white ceiling.

While the music for both the "Cosmic Concerts" and the "Laser Magic" shows are recorded and mixed in the Science Center's studio prior to the performances, effects are choreographed live so that each show has a different feel.

Preparing to show off the technological tricks of the John Young Planetarium in Orlando, director Mike Murray says, "Science is not something for eggheads. It can be understood by everybody."

Laser shows, quite common at rock concerts, are not often geared at the family crowd. That's why Murray feels he has something unique to offer Central Floridians.

"When a family comes to the Science Center on a Saturday or Sunday afternoon, we'd like to be able to introduce them to the planetarium with something fun like this," he said. "Most planetariums are based at colleges or universities where those in charge feel they have to put astronomers in charge."

A physicist by training, Murray has additional background that includes everything from music to writing. He refuses to be stereotyped.

"Science is not something for eggheads. It can be understood by everyone. It's our job to help interpret it for you, not to make it lofty or dull," he said.

The John Young Planetarium has 14,000 visitors a year who come to gaze at the stars projected on the ceiling and to learn about them. About half that number comes to lean back and experience something different. Area schools frequent the planetarium on field trips.

The laser shows are flashy. Dancing lights and images zip past your eyes. Unlike the educational productions, they are not meant to be interpreted, simply experienced.

"We can do a whole lot more than educate," Murray said with a smile. General public showings of "The Martian Adventure" are given at 2:30 p.m. on weekdays, at 2 p.m. and 4 p.m. on Saturdays and Sundays, and at 7:30 p.m. on Sundays.

On Friday nights at 8 p.m., the planetarium offers "Orlando by Night," during which the moment's constellations over Orlando are reproduced within the building and explained. If the night is clear, visitors may use planetarium telescopes to observe the skies firsthand and get answers to questions.

The John Young Planetarium is a part of the Orlando Science Center, 810 E. Rollins St., which is located in Loch Haven Park on Princeton Avenue near downtown Orlando.

Admission to the center is $4 for adults, $3 for children, students and seniors. Special family rate is $10 for the whole family, regardless of size. There is an additional $1 fee for admission into the planetarium.

For more information, call the Orlando Science Center during business hours at 896-7151.

Crooms Academy graduates reunite for more memories

Celebrating under the theme of "1981: Decades of Reminiscence—1988, Reminiscing Again," Crooms Academy Classes Reunion 1931 thru 1949, began their three-day reunion activities on Dec. 27, with the reunion worship service held at the Allen Chapel AME Church, Sanford, where the Rev. J.B. Woodard is pastor.

The 11 a.m. spiritual service began with the line of march led by Woodard and the Rev. Zedekiah Grady, who was guest speaker for the morning, is presiding elder of the Edisto District, Charleston, S.C., and a member of the Crooms Class of 1949.

The Allen Chapel AME Church No. 3 choir marched in to take their place, while organists Evelyn R. Clark and Earle E. Minott seated themselves at the consoles. Opening selection was "Lift Every Voice and Sing."

Mistress of ceremonies was Ethel Patterson Brown (class of 1946), an instructor in the Lee County School System.

District Two's city commissioner, Robert "Bob" Thomas.

Kimberly Brenson, a student at Florida A&M University, performed a special solo. The occasion was given by James W. Wilson, band director at James High School in Orlando and a member of the 1946 class of Crooms. The offertory was presided over by Wesley "Snow" Wright (class of 1946), Maggie McClendon Strickland (class of 1944), Alton Jenkins Craig (class of 1947) and Robert Fraizer (class of 1936).

The speaker of the morning was presented by his friend and schoolmate, Willie A. Ashley of the class of 1936, now retired assistant principal of Crooms High. Grady then brought the message of the morning titled "There is a Balm in Gilead," which was well received by the audience.

To pay respect to deceased classmates, Lillie Robinson Hall of the class of 1942 presided over the remembrance, with candles lighted by fellow classmates, M.L. Ward Jones (class of 1940), Alfreda Jenkins Wallace (class of 1948), Violet Dargan (class of 1949), Sarah Cherry (class of 1933), Violet Harris Crawford (class of 1935), Daisy Williams Curry (class of 1946), and Eartherlean Peterson Williams (class of 1946).

Katie Robinson Burke of the class of 1943 gave special recognitions to the remaining instructional staff of Crooms Academy. A plaque for years of service to "Dear Ole Crooms Academy" was presented by Earl E. Minott to the following teachers and principals: Nathalie Crooms Jenkins, Mary Gray Johnson and Mr. and Mrs. Edward L. Blacksheare. The chairman of the class reunion gave words of remarks and reminded the classes of the activities for the remaining days.

The class of 1931 was represented by its only surviving classmate, Susie Davis Thompson, who is a retired public health nurse in Jacksonville.

The only living principal of the Crooms Academy School, Edward L. Blacksheare, who served from 1965-1981 is still an administrator of the Seminole County School System.

The reunion's reacquaintance hour was held Dec. 28 at the Elks Home where classmates chatted and dined on the special foods and greeted friends and classmates they hadn't seen in years.

At 11 a.m., the classes of 1931-1949 boarded the Rivership Romance for a cruise down the St. Johns River.

On Wednesday evening the classes gathered at the homes of Eliza Courtney Pringle, Earl E. Minott and friends to spend the evening partying and dancing to the oldies and goodies of the era.

Then at the 8 p.m. hour the classes gathered for their last planned session of the evening—a banquet held at the Park Suite Hotel, Altamonte Springs. Toastmaster of the evening was introduced by Dr. Clyde Tracy Swain of the class of 1942. Toastmaster of the evening was Rufus C. Brooks (class of 1946) principal of Wymore Tech School in Eatontonville. The institution was given by Dr. Oswald Bronson (class of 1944), the president of Bethune Cookman College.

The evening progressed with Roy L. Jones (class of 1945) introducing the speaker of the evening, Rena Dixon Poole (class of 1949), who is currently equity coordinator at Lake-Sumter Community College, Leesburg. Reminiscing over the years and recalling the good old school days at Crooms Academy was M.L. Ward Jones (class of 1940). Introduction of the former teaching staff of Crooms Academy was given by Maggie McClendon Strickland.

Joyce Nathan, bride-elect, of Sanford was honored with a bridal lingerie and household shower, given by Elise C. Sanford of Glace and Radcliff Inc., consulting engineers in Orlando, where she is vice president.

The shower was attended by more than 25 friends and family members.

The bride-elect is the daughter of Thelma Wilson Nathan Mike of Sanford, and will become the bride of Sherman Artis of Beaumont, Texas. The wedding is set for Saturday, Jan. 7.

Parent-supervised teen drinking isn't alternative

DEAR ABBY: High school football season recently ended, and I would like your opinion of a practice that has been going on for a number of years in our small New Jersey community.

The parents of the members of the football team provide "victory parties" for the team and cheerleaders. Beer and other alcoholic beverages are served. The host parents collect all the car keys as the teenage guests arrive. The keys are returned only after the party-goers can prove that they are sober and capable of driving—otherwise, they must spend the night, or wait until they are sober.

The rationale: These kind of parent-supervised parties keep the drinking teen-agers off the streets and save lives. They say that if such parties were not provided in a "safe" environment, the kids would "party" somewhere else and possibly become a traffic fatality statistic.

In our state, the legal drinking age is 21.

What is your opinion, Abby?
CONCERNED NEW JERSEY PARENT

DEAR CONCERNED: Serving teen-agers beer or other kind of alcoholic beverages in one's home because "they would party somewhere else," is, in my view, both a feeble and unacceptable excuse. Furthermore, anyone who provides minors with alcohol is clearly in violation of the law and should be dealt with accordingly.

ADVICE

ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: Here are some suggestions for "Age Conscious," who doesn't know what to say when someone asks her how old she is:

1. "I am 21 and holding." (Given with a sweet smile.)
2. "Why do you need to know?"
3. "What make my age your business?"
4. "When you pay my rent for mortgage, I'll tell you my personal business!"

If all else fails and they still persist, this proves that they have the hide of a rhinoceros, so at this point give yourself permission to be as rude as they are, and just plain tell them to mind their own business.

The word will get around, and nobody will ever ask you a personal question again.

Rash on kid's arms common, harmless

DEAR DR. GOTT: My daughter is 6. Since she was 3, she's had some kind of skin problem on the back of her arms. The rash is dry and looks like little whiteheads. Is there some medication available for this?

DEAR READER: Folliculitis, plugging and inflammation of skin pores, is common on children's upper arms. I do not know the cause of this, but most youngsters outgrow it. The condition is not serious. It can be helped by gently washing the affected area twice a day with an abrasive soap such as Lava. The pumice in the soap will usually rub off the layer of dead skin over the pores, allowing them to drain normally. If this doesn't work, ask your daughter's pediatrician for suggestions or a referral to a dermatologist for further advice.

MADD donations requested in Horn's memory

SANFORD — The family of David Horn, 14, who was killed in an automobile accident Monday, is requesting that donations be made in Horn's honor to Mothers Against Drunk Driving.

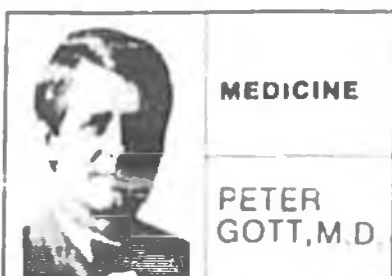

Flowers also will be accepted in the memory of Horn, who was a student at Seminole High School.

The tax deductible donations may be sent to MADD, P.O. Box 2921, Sanford, FL 32772-2921. Checks should include the memo that the amount is in memory of David Horn.

MADD will give Horn's family a list of individual contributors and send receipts to those who donate.

Prompted by the accident, Seminole High students will be setting up a division of Students Against Drunk Driving. Donations to the SHS SADD chapter may be made through MADD. More information is available from Seminole High School.

Horn's funeral will be Saturday, Jan. 7, at 11 a.m. at Grace United Methodist Church in Lake Mary. Visitation will be at Gramkow Funeral Home in Sanford on Friday, Jan. 6, until 8 p.m.

SOAPS UPDATE

ALL MY CHILDREN: Stuart phoned Cindy's sister Karen Parker, but the woman who answered slammed the phone down after insisting that she doesn't know anyone named Cindy. Jeremy filed Natalie that Marissa was listed as missing shortly after she arrived in Beirut. Jeremy decided not to tell David about Marissa until Jeremy can get to Washington to find out what happened. Angie told Cliff that she needs time to adjust to their budding relationship. Tad arranged for Barbara to audition as an anchorperson, but Barbara bungled it because she was on pills. Tom expressed his concern for Brooke when she told him that she and Adam want a child. As part of her scheme to break up Cecily and Sean, Billy offered to bail Sean out of trouble with the IRS. Adam "rescued" Diane from her blind date when the guy put the make on her.

ANOTHER WORLD: John rescued Sharlene from the fire at Mary's Place, but he hesitated to take action for a moment when the fire reminded him of the time he spent in Vietnam. Vince was devastated when he learned that his restaurant had burned to the ground. When the police told Vince they suspected someone deliberately set fire to the restaurant, Vince suggested that Courtney investigate Pilara. Vicky had nightmares about James leaving her after her doctor told her that her baby was conceived later than Vicky suspected. Thus, the baby could be James' and not James' and Jason and Egan are conspiring against Billy who checked out last night. Gene told Tom he needs big money to keep him that he organized the attempted takeover of Cars Publishing. Sharlene is upset that she can't afford to replace Rachel's expensive necklace which Josie lost the night of the Snowflake Ball. Viki contacted Mary, who is visiting Al J.

AS THE WORLD TURNS: Someone shot Tania while he was in his hotel room in the Dominican Republic. Rod was questioned in Tania's shooting, but Tania cleared Rod after he realized that James may have hired someone to kill him. Tania told to the Dominican police that someone from Mary's tried to kill him because he has shared things up with his search for information on Sierra. Ellie's former lover, who is married, convinced her to meet him in Chicago. Tania turned when Meg's divorce went through and she and Rod tripped happily off into the sunset together. Fernan asked Joe Riley to check out last night's party. Gene told Tom he doesn't trust Grant and doesn't want him getting wind of any more news about Eric's disappearance. Someone secretly laid Lisa Casey, who has been experiencing bouts of numbness in his hands, collapsed in the hospital cafeteria. Jarrod's daughter, Liz, was surprised to learn that Emma drops Clay.

THE GOLD AND THE BEAUTIFUL: Dunne got nervous when Bill vowed to get the person who published his nude photos. After hearing that Brooke accepted Ridge's marriage proposal, Caroline vowed that the wedding will never take place. When Kristen kidnapped Clara about who did a bad job of money she lent him, he told that he put a down payment on a house. When Ridge and Brooke went to visit Angela, they overheard

Todd arguing with a woman.

DAYS OF OUR LIVES: Kayla and Patch decided that it would be best if Benny continued living with his grandfather. Orion Patch and Kayla talked about having children of their own, but decided to wait a while. Roman and Diana learned that they'll have to postpone their wedding for a while after finding out that Roman is technically still married to Marlena because no one ever filed a death certificate after Marlena was supposedly killed in a plane crash. Shane retrieved Eve, who had run away from home. An insurance investigator told Shane that Eve's story about how Nick died is full of loopholes. Just as Adrienne decided to leave Justin, she overheard him admit that he really loves her, so she decided to stick it out despite Victor's interference in their relationship. Emilio comforted Jennifer, who learned that Frankie has a new girl in New York City.

GENERAL HOSPITAL: Bobbie and Tony performed surgery on a comatose Tony. Bobbie was relieved when Tony later regained consciousness and was able to speak. Lord Ashton suspected that something went on between Mollie and Ned who were stranded together for three days during a snowstorm. Alan overheard Ashton accuse Ned of having a crush on Monica. Alan denied Ashton's accusation when Alan questioned her about Ned's feelings for her. Kathy and Robert were forced to share the cottage due to the same snowstorm that stranded Monica and Ned. Robert went to his sister Kathy's boyfriend, Paul, arrived at the cabin to "rescue" her. Robert was stunned when Kathy and Paul later announced that they are engaged. Tom and Simone got into a fight over the fact that she never told Tom that she and Harrison are friends. Carlton wondered if Arielle really loves Ashton.

GUIDING LIGHT: The private plane Alex and Fletcher took from Venezuela to Springfield, crashed en route. Fletcher was able to rescue Alex from the wrecked plane, but their pilot died in the crash. Fletcher turned when an angry Alex destroyed the plane's radio in a fit of rage. Josh and Rusty rescued Dave from Sierra. Silvia's believe Sonni could carry out her threat to kill Rex. Later, Sonni admitted that she's really Silvia. Phillip confronted Meredith, forcing her to admit that he's the father of her baby. Rusty and Ed rescued Alan from Will, who had taken Alan to a different hospital. Sonni's mother, Rusty's cousin, promised Will because Alan told that he asked Will to take him to the second hospital. Both Rex and Chelsea noticed that Meredith was more than a little upset when she heard that Fletcher was missing.

LDVING: Trucker told Trisha that Amelia is his little sister, but refused to tell her any more about Amelia. Jeff talked with Amelia, who attends a girl's school, but realized she knows nothing about Trucker's past. In fact, Amelia thinks Trucker works on an oil rig in Arabia. Alex (Clay) forced Egypt to admit that Dan broke who Alex's stepbrother. Egypt told Clay that Todd didn't trap him, but Alex Trucker was stunned when Clay (Alex) gave him a lead of money, then told him to leave town. Jack may drop his custody fight for J.J.

ONE LIFE TO LIVE: After the explosion in the cave, Viki pretended to be Nikki, but a masked Michael Arthur and Lyander caught onto her. Viki managed to escape but nearly froze to death in the mountains before Roger rescued her. Michael acted pleased when Alicia told him that she's pregnant. Viki is more determined than ever to find her real daughter. When Michael informed Gabrielle that she's nothing more than his mistress, she decided to find the missing Eterna gold before Michael does. Jonathan took Audrey to his place for dinner so she could turn down Randy's offer of a date. Audrey was forced to spend the night at Jonathan's loft during a snowstorm. Audrey was almost disappointed when Jonathan didn't try to get romantic with her.

RYAN'S HOPE: Roger was stunned when his sister Faith Coleridge arrived home with a year old baby daughter. Grace Faith mixed telling anyone about Grace's father, a delighted Della agreed to remarriage. Roger, Frank was surprised when Jill returned from Australia with their daughter. Mary Jill agreed that Fran should get back into the political arena. Sherry offered to set up a business of his own in Hollywood. After Sherry told Bob that Della was marrying Roger, Bob sneaked out of the hospital.

SANTA BARBARA: Ted helped Diane who staggered into the hospital after Zack (who wore a ski mask) raped her. Zack pretending he was concerned for Diane agreed to give Edm a checkup after she and her baby daughter, Adriana, were brought from the cave to the hospital. Al Edm's insistence, Zack arranged for blood tests to be performed on Adriana. Zack fumed when a lab technician gave Cruz the test results which proved Adriana is Cruz's daughter. Zack later kidnapped Adriana from the hospital nursery. Jeffrey kept remembering how T.J. fell off the train when they were fighting. Scott was surprised when Heather hired Celeste as a receptionist. Later, Scott admitted to Heather that he and Celeste grew up together and they had once dated. Diane told Julia and Cruz that the rapist's hair smelled of an anti-septic soap.

THE YOUNG AND THE RESTLESS: Cruz's request Phillip ended and died. Ned and was surprised to learn that Anne really is trying to change her ways. Billy tried to dissuade George from selling Cassandra the bulk of his estate in one lump sum, but she never let her die. When George reminded Cassandra that she had wanted to tell him something important before he had his heart attack, but she said it was nothing. Billy performed on Adriana. Zack fumed when armed guards at the door to the house. Alex turned when Clint suggested they come up with an investment scam to bilk Ray of her money. Leanna listened while Mitchell told Victor that he's still trying to find out the real identity of the person who wrote "Ruthless." Billy and Rusty were shocked when it came to get to know Rex's daughter, Gina. Michael learned that his potential divorce client Mrs. Smith is really Cassandra. You have to be so careful what you say to children when they're at that impressionable age. Our neighbor has a little daughter. And, being something of a skeptic, he's been careful not to let her be exposed to religious teaching...

Officers to be ordained and installed

SANFORD — The First Presbyterian Church, 301 Oak Ave., Sanford, will ordain and install five church officers during the 11 a.m. worship service. Those being installed and ordained are Relta Adams, James Boylston, Ollie Hunter, Scott Milsom, and Doty Ramsay. Also being installed are Clyde Long and Cliff Miller. Elders whose term will end Sunday are Phyllis Conklin, Robert Hunter, David Lanier, William McLaughlin, and William Royster.

Parish meeting scheduled

SANFORD — The Holy Cross Episcopal Church, 410 Magnolia Ave., Sanford, will have its annual parish meeting January 15. The event begins at 9:30 a.m. with a choral eucharist, followed by lunch and the annual meeting.

At the meeting, the group will elect Vestry leadership, 1990 Diocesan convention delegates, and hear reports on the state of the parish.

The meeting is parish-wide.

Church Music Workshop set

DeLOND — Stetson University will sponsor a Church Music Workshop Jan. 16. The event will feature the musical talents of Jean Ashworth Bartie, founder of the Toronto Children's Chorus; Allen Pote, director of Music at First United Methodist Church in Pensacola; and Cyn'ha Dobrinski, handbell and organ instructor at Southwestern Baptist Theological Seminary.

Registration is $60 and the deadline is Jan. 9. For more information, call 734-4121.

Family Expo ready to begin

ORLANDO — A local radio station is sponsoring the Second Annual Christian Family Expo at the Orlando Centroplex March 3, 4, and 5. The event is constructed so that Christian families can see the things Christian business want to sell them and hear the things Christian performers want to perform for them.

For more information, call 882-1313.

Talk to be given at Holocaust center

MAITLAND — The Holocaust Memorial Resource and Education Center will present a lecture entitled "The Place of Righteous Gentiles in Jewish Tradition" by Dr. Harvey Rosenfeld. The talk will be Jan. 17 at 8 p.m. in the Jewish Community Center Auditorium, 851 Maitland Ave., Maitland.

For more information, call 628-0555.

Healed woman to give talk

ORLANDO — The Orlando Women Aglow will feature a talk by Jeanine Smith, a lady crippled and blinded by multiple sclerosis until healed by Jesus, on Jan. 14 at 9:30 a.m. at Morrison's Cafeteria in the Winter Park Mall.

For more information, call 345-7929, or 876-3078.

Baptist convention to come to town

SANFORD — The Progressive Missionary and Educational Baptist State Convention of Florida in Sanford the week of March 21-25 in Sanford. The convention will bring representatives from Baptist Churches from all over the state.

Judge bans religious books from fifth-grade library

United Press International

DENVER — A federal judge ruled Thursday that an elementary school teacher could not keep religious books in a classroom library and ordered him to hide his personal Bible in his desk during the school day.

However, U.S. District Judge Sherman Finesilver did rule that the religious books and the Bible could be kept in the school library.

Fifth-grade teacher Ken Roberts kept the religious books — "The Bible in Pictures" and "The Story of Jesus" — for students to use during a 15-minute quiet reading period each day. Roberts said the books were among a 250-book collection and he never suggested that students read any specific book.

The teacher also kept a Bible on his desk, which he said he sometimes read during the reading period.

Kathleen Madigan, principal at Berkeley Gardens Elementary school, ordered Roberts to remove the books because she felt they violated the separation of church and state, and that they were inappropriate because they did not fit in with the fifth grade curriculum. She also ordered Roberts to keep the Bible off his desk during school hours.

Roberts claimed his civil rights and those of his students were violated by the censorship.

Episcopal Church confirm first female bishop in 450-year history

United Press International

BOSTON — The Rev. Barbara Harris, the first woman elected bishop in the 450-year history of the Anglican Church, has been confirmed by a majority of the church's American dioceses. It was announced Tuesday.

The election must still be ratified by the church's bishops, some of whom have openly opposed the ordination of women and questioned Harris's experience, but officials said a majority of the prelates "is expected to respond positively."

The American bishops voted in 1976 to affirm the ordination of women to all orders of the church, including the episcopate, and leaders of the worldwide church in Canterbury, England, overwhelmingly agreed last August to consider the ordination of female bishops. The Anglican Church's U.S. dioceses are known collectively as the Episcopal Church.

Harris, 58, an associate pastor of the Church of the Advocate in North Philadelphia, has only been an Episcopal priest for eight years. She was elected Sept. 24 as suffragan bishop of the 98,000-member Diocese of Massachusetts at a special church convocation, narrowly defeating a male priest on the eighth ballot.

A suffragan bishop is an assisting bishop who may serve in the post for life, or be elected to head a diocese.

If confirmed by the bishops, Harris will assist Bishop David E. Johnson as spiritual leader of the nation's largest Episcopal diocese. She was scheduled to be consecrated Feb. 11 in Boston.

The Massachusetts diocese is comprised of 190 parishes in the eastern part of the state.

Harris, a longtime civil rights advocate and former public relations executive who has been active in the church most of her life, became a deacon in the church in 1979 and was ordained a priest in 1980.

In addition to her relatively brief service, critics also cited her lack of a college education.

Nevertheless, a church spokesman said 60 of the standing committees in each of the U.S. church's 118 dioceses had confirmed Harris's election by Tuesday and said a final tally was expected within two weeks.

"She is the first woman bishop in the Anglican Church communion worldwide in 450 some odd years," said Jim Solheim, director of communications for the Massachusetts diocese.

"This is big history," Solheim said.

Solheim declined to disclose the exact vote of the standing

COCU roars back to life

Plan may unite some Protestant churches

United Press International

It is almost three decades now since Presbyterian leader Eugene Carson Blake, as the guest of Episcopal Bishop James Pike, preached a foundation-shaking Dec. 4, 1960, sermon calling a church "truly catholic, truly evangelical, truly reformed."

In those heady days, the ecumenical vision of a unified Christian church ran strong and optimistic.

Blake's proposal prompted the formation of the Consultation on Church Union, an effort by nine mainline Protestant denominations to forge unity.

But what seemed a swift and sure course for the ecumenical ship soon found itself alternately pounded by the storms of theological difference or drift in the windless seas of indifference.

COCU found it no longer made headlines: skeptics pronounced it dead and many ecumenists put their energies elsewhere.

Nevertheless, officials from the nine denominations plodded forward, living on the edge of church life, patiently exploring various formulas, plans and covenants that would keep the vision alive.

In December, delegates to the plenary session of COCU tried again, approving by a unanimous vote a new formulation to be sent to the top legislative bodies of the Consultation's nine member bodies.

It is, admittedly, a scaled-back version of Blake's original vision.

Under the new plan, each of the nine churches is able to retain its own name, its own form of church government, worship and patterns of ministrial training and placement.

At the same time, however, each of the nine churches will — if they accept the plan — recognize each other's baptism, membership and ordained clergy. Congregations in a given community will celebrate Holy Communion together regularly and will plan joint mission and service.

The churches accepting the plan will add the phrase "Church of Christ Uniting" to their name.

But also underscoring the painstaking pace of progress, action on the new covenant formulation is not expected to be completed by the nine until the mid-1990s.

Legend of Holy Grail alive in England

GEORGE PLAGENZ

The stories which tell of King Arthur and his knights scouring the English countryside for the chalice from which Jesus and his disciples drank at the Last Supper were already current in the 11th century.

This suggests that the tradition of the Holy Grail being in England was fairly well established by that time. (Grail comes from a Greek word meaning cup or dish.)

John Justin Smith, a Chicago newspaperman who went to England in 1974, was able to trace the legend of the Holy Grail to Glastonbury in the southwestern part of Britain.

He had heard the story that Joseph of Arimathea — mentioned in the Gospels as a rich disciple of Jesus whose tomb provided the resting place for Jesus' body after the crucifixion — had made several business trips from Syria to England as a dealer in tin.

The tradition said that Joseph, an uncle of Jesus, had brought his nephew with him to England on one or more of his visits.

Many years after the death of directed to a large and gracious country house. The young woman who answered the door said her mother was ill and couldn't see anyone. Smith mentioned the cup.

"I'm afraid my mother has stopped showing the cup," the young woman replied. She said her mother had been harassed by curiosity seekers after the news had leaked out that she had it.

Smith promised to keep the location of her house a secret if he could see the cup. The woman excused herself. When she returned she said, "You may see the cup — but briefly."

From a cabinet in the large living room she produced a wooden box about a foot long and six inches wide and deep. She slid back a glass lid and lifted out a glass bowl. In the bowl was the cup.

"Would you like to hold it?" asked the young woman. She handed it over to Smith carefully and said softly, "We believe this is the cup of the Last Supper."

"The sight of it was shocking," said Smith. It was made of wood! The grain was coarse and the color ranged from black to dark brown. The cup had been broken in two and the pieces were held together by copper rings.

The cup had come into her family's possession, the young woman said, after the Reformation. King Henry VIII gave orders to destroy Glastonbury Abbey. The monks fled, taking the grail with them. Later it was turned over to a prominent English family.

After telling the story, the woman took the cup back.

Had Smith been holding the actual cup from which Jesus had drunk on the night on which he was betrayed? He was aware it could be a hoax. But the fact that the cup was made of wood increased the weight in favor of its authenticity, Smith felt. If someone were to make a fake Holy Grail, would he use wood?

He left the town and returned to London. Was he skeptic or believer? He wasn't sure.

How about you?

Catholic bishop reinstated by Soviets

United Press International

MOSCOW — A Roman Catholic bishop who was sent into internal exile nearly 30 years ago has been officially asked to resume his post administering church affairs in Lithuania, the Tass news agency said Monday.

Bishop Julijonas Steponavicius, 75, was banned by the Soviets from the office of bishop and apostolic administrator in 1960 for alleged violations of laws governing religious activity and sent to the small parish of Zagare, near the Latvian border.

Last October, in moves initiated by President Mikhail Gorbachev allowing more religious freedom, Steponavicius was allowed to visit Rome.

TWO LETTERS CAN SAVE YOUR CHILD'S LIFE

When confronted with drugs, the two most important letters in the alphabet for your children to know are "NO." Children learn the alphabet at an early age, but they are also exposed to drugs early in life. Statistics indicate that 17% of today's youth use alcohol or drugs on a daily basis. Teach your children to know their alphabet when it comes to drugs.

WIN AT BRIDGE

By James Jacoby

If you want to play good bridge, get in the habit of asking yourself what can go wrong when everything looks easy. That's what declarer did today, and his caution was rewarded. After the opening lead, it looked as if 13 tricks were there for the taking. Just draw trumps and run the diamonds. But South knew that he needed the jack of hearts to fall. And he also knew that sometimes a defender can hold four to the jack. Nothing could be done if West held length in hearts, but there was a remedy if East held heart length. So declarer ruffed a club at trick two and led a low spade. West won the ace and continued with the nine of spades. Declarer ruffed that in dummy, ruffed another club and now led A-K of hearts. When West discarded on the second trump, that left East with J-9, but declarer's precautions had already been taken. He simply played king and queen of diamonds, overtaking in dummy. The good diamonds now began their parade. Any time that East trumped in, declarer would overruff, pull the other trump and claim his contract. And if East waited until the end to ruff, the lead would be in dummy at trick 12 with East holding J-9 of hearts and declarer behind him with the Q-10. But this position could not have been achieved without declarer carefully ruffing a club from dummy at the second trick, and later ruffing another club before beginning to draw trumps. James Jacoby's books "Jacoby on Bridge" and "Jacoby on Card Games" (written with his father, the late Oswald Jacoby) are now available at bookstores. Both are published by Pharos Books.
