Commission special session

LONGWOOD — The Longwood City Commission will meet in special session tonight at 8 p.m. to approve routine bills which had not been submitted in time for regular meeting March 15. Following the special meeting, which is expected to last five minutes, the commission will go into an executive session to begin work on new contract terms with the city's operating engineers union, AFL-CIO local 673.

An earlier attempt at reaching a contract agreement went down to defeat in early March. Angry taxpayers objected to a provision in the pact they thought would allow pay hikes and automatic pay step increases. Despite assurances from city officials that the proposed contract would not mean automatic increases, only that the union and city could develop a pay plan together, the resolution was defeated by a 3 to 2 vote.

The closed door session called for by Longwood Mayor Paul Lovestrund, will allow the group to discuss their views in private and hammer out details before unveiling a new plan.

Lotto marks another rollover

TALLAHASSEE — Here we go again! Nobody got all six numbers drawn for the latest Florida Lotto jackpot, causing a rollover that may spark a flareup of just-quenched Lotto fever. The new jackpot is estimated at $20 million.

This weekend's jackpot was figured at $9 million dollars — down from a rollover-enriched, fever-inducing $88 million grand prize the week before — but Lottery Secretary Marcia Mann said Sunday that not a single ticket was sold for the numbers drawn, 2-10-20-21-23-34.

There were 290 tickets sold with five of the six numbers, and they are worth $1,481 each. Additionally, 16,861 four-of-six winners worth $61 each were sold, as well as 308,388 three-of-six winners worth $4.50 each.

High winds delay launch again

CAPE CANAVERAL — High winds Sunday night grounded a Delta rocket loaded with a military navigation satellite and a NASA tether experiment.

The Air Force rescheduled the launch of the McDonnell Douglas rocket for Monday night.

It was the fourth launch delay in 1 1/2 weeks. The previous postponements were caused by high winds, trouble with ground support equipment and an engine review prompted by Thursday's failed launch of an Atlas rocket made by General Dynamics Corp.

Correction

SANFORD — The Seminole County Commission approved $7,500 from tourist development grant money for promotion of Air Show Orlando. The grant went to the Greater Seminole County Chamber of Commerce, sponsor of the event, rather than the Sanford chamber, as reported in the March 28 edition of the Sanford Herald.

Airport sets commercial, industrial study

By J. MARK BARFIELD
Herald Senior Staff Writer

SANFORD — The future of development around Central Florida Regional Airport will be crafted this summer by Seminole County planners.

The study hopes to draft a blueprint for industrial and commercial development primarily in the areas east and south of the airport. Those areas are now zoned for suburban estate homes and are largely used for agriculture, said Richard Johnson, county planner. The study will also seek to allow that development with minimal impact to homes south and west of the airport and in Midway.

A series of workshops will be held in April, May, June and July to acquaint residents with the project and its progress. Hearings will be held on the proposals beginning in August.

Johnson said the study goal is to create an expansion and development plan of accommodation, not elimination.

"We want to preserve those areas and not see them go," Johnson said.

Incentive pay loss addressed

By NICK PFEIFAU
Herald Staff Writer

SANFORD — City Commissioner Lon Howell believes the city should delve into problems with maintaining a two percent add-on pay incentive for city employees.

"This city gives a great deal of money to projects and organizations," Howell commented. "Certainly there are ways these can be cut in order to continue giving our employees what they should be getting."

Howell added, "Our employees are number one people, and they should be treated as such."

Last Monday, the city commission, by not bringing the continuation up for action, eliminated a two percent pay add-on for approximately 400 employee salaries. The incentive money, approved in December, was to have been re-examined and approved at the beginning of each fiscal quarter, based on the city revenue at the time, in order for it to continue.

The increases have been in effect for the first and second quarter of the fiscal year. The third quarter begins April 1.

SANFORD — Mayor Bettye Smith will continue to represent the city as part of the Orlando Urban Area Metropolitan Planning Organization. The appointment was approved at the last city commission meeting.

As Mayor, Smith has been serving on the MPO, but the organization is being restructured, and her reappointment was required.

David L. Grovdahl, director of the Transportation Division of MPO explained, "The MPO has been operating successfully, but every five years, the governor is required to reexamine each of the 25 MPO's in the state, to assure they are in compliance with population figures from the most recent census."

Grovdahl said the restructuring would not affect Seminole County. "The county will continue to have two representatives, and the mayors of Sanford and Altamonte Springs will continue to be on the MPO."

Representing Seminole County are commissioners Dick Van Der Weide, and Larry Furlong. Commissioner Pat Warren is also on the MPO, but as a representative for the Commuter Rail Authority.

"The only difference we will have this time is with Orange County," he said. "Orange County gained two more members, while Orlando lost"

Youth of Year

Seminole County student awarded SCC scholarship

SANFORD — The positive place for kids.

The Boys & Girls Clubs of Central Florida, Inc., celebrated Boys & Girls Club week with the dedication of a new building and a Steak & Burger Dinner and Sports Auction fundraiser, at the Omni in Orlando.

But most importantly, the members of the clubs were not only involved in the festivities, they were saluted for their achievements.

Each of the eight branches chose from their membership a Youth of the Year. The nominee was judged on academics; high responsibility level to family, church, community and club; obstacles overcome; the contents of an essay on what the club means to him or her; poise and public speaking.

The nominee for Seminole county, LaHoma Fayson, of Sanford, represented all three clubs, West Sanford, Midway and East Altamonte, in the competition.

Even though she was not named as the Youth of the Year for central Florida, she is a big winner in the long run thanks to the West Sanford Boys & Girls Club.

"I now have a foundation for the future thanks to the Boys & Girls Club," said Fayson. "The club has taught me to be a leader."

Fayson, a sophomore at Seminole County High School, will receive a $500 scholarship.

Sanford conducts transportation study

By NICK PFEIFAU
Herald Staff Writer

SANFORD — The City of Sanford is conducting a transportation study of North Seminole County. The project is being co-financed by Seminole County.

Director of Planning and Development for the city, Jay Marder, says he hopes to have the initial study completed in conjunction with the inaugural arrival of the Sunset Limited, the new coast-to-coast Amtrak Passenger Train.

The train is scheduled to arrive on its maiden run in Sanford at 11:05 a.m., this Friday, April 2. Local government officials plan to be on board the train or at the Amtrak to welcome the new transportation system to Sanford.

The study was approved by the City Commission early this year. It was originally proposed in connection with an effort to retain the AutoTrain facility in Sanford. Since Amtrak has announced it will not be moving the facility, an expansion of the study has not been suggested. According to the joint agreement, efforts are focusing on the regional transportation facilities. "The report should provide a preliminary answer to how to coordinate all major facilities with the project's main focus upon the I-4/State Road 48 area," it says.

Among matters to be studied are existing and proposed intersections of major arterials, potential bus stops, existing Amtrak/AutoTrain terminals, expansion plans at Central Florida Regional Airport, and the Port of Sanford.

This past week, the Seminole County Commission approved a request for financing the project. The county and the city would each pay $2,500 for the study.

The report says, "The final results of the study will produce a 35 to 50 page document reflecting travel and trip demands in the area, the implications of such demands, and recommendations to accommodate the demands in the future."

No one even said hello

Over 30 classic power boats arrived in Sanford Thursday afternoon. Most of the people were husband and wife teams, en route to the Mt. Dora antique boat show this past weekend.

After pulling their well maintained wooden hull boats from the water, 66 persons gathered at the Holiday Inn for a dinner. License plates on their cars and trailers indicated they came from California, Canada, Michigan, and many distant areas.

It is an annual event and several participants commented on how much they enjoy the stop in Sanford. Others had not been here in the past.

The arrival however, was not publically announced, and no one was at the Monroe Harbour Marina docking area to welcome the visitors.

This was not a Sanford classic boat show. But the arrival of 66 persons from out of state in an organized group should not have occurred without a handshake or greeting.

No Chamber of Commerce people were on hand to give a welcome. No Sanford leader presented a key to the city. Only a few dozen persons, who accidentally saw the boats' arrivals were in attendance. Most of them were out-of-towners themselves, coming from the Holiday Inn.

Many of the 66 people may have been in Sanford in the past, but nothing was done to give an indication that this is truly, "The Friendly City."

Someone erred. These classic boat owners were only with us overnight before heading to Mt. Dora. They were, nonetheless guests, and should have been officially welcomed.

On city pay cut

I read with disgust how the city commission ripped off the city's employees by taking away their supposedly two percent pay increase.

It is times like these that I wish we had Pete Knowles back as the city manager. The man knew how to keep the budget balanced and still give city employees decent pay raises on a somewhat normal basis. Pete never gave a raise and then took it back. The last real pay raise that the city workers got was when Pete was running the show. Now we all know that Pete's been gone for a very long time, to the detriment of Sanford's management.

I'm curious to know if the city commission is going to take away that whopping raise they gave the city manager not too long ago. After all, he had suffered without a raise for a whole 18 months, poor fellow.

I tell you folks, our city employees deserve much better than this.

Have any city residents noticed how over the past year our utility bills have gone sky high? Mine has more than doubled. What are our leaders doing with the city's money?

It is well past time for the citizens of Sanford to make an effort to get term limits placed on the next feasible ballot. I personally am going to consult with the appropriate attorney to see exactly what steps need to be taken to bring this idea into reality. Two terms for any elected city official is more than plenty.

I can assure you, folks, that the city employees are willing to make sacrifices if it's for the good of all, and shared by all, especially management. It just looks bad if management isn't willing to make a sacrifice too. In fact, they should be the first ones to step forward to do so.

Senator instructs the chief justice

Although a decidedly unsentimental federal district court judge in Texas, Ricardo Hinojosa, had stayed the execution of Leonel Herrera so that he could present evidence of his innocence, the Supreme Court refused to remand the case for a hearing on that evidence.

Judge Hinojosa had made his ruling out of "a sense of fairness and due process." But the best that Chief Justice William Rehnquist and five other members of the Supreme Court could do for the prisoner was to suggest he try for executive clemency.

Clemency for a murderer — especially someone convicted of killing two policemen — is very hard to come by in Texas. Talbot D'Alemberte, immediate past president of the American Bar Association, argued on behalf of Herrera before the Supreme Court. I assumed he was now going to petition Gov. Ann Richards for his client's last chance.

"No," he said, "she doesn't have direct authority to grant clemency. She has the power if a majority of the Board of Pardons and Paroles recommends clemency."

According to D'Alemberte, that board is quite uncommunicative. "When you send it something," says Herrera's lawyer, "you sometimes get the feeling that you are throwing your papers into a black hole. You may never get an answer, except 'We received your papers.' Indeed, you may not learn that clemency has been denied until your client has been executed. There are a number of boards like that in other states."

Not much was heard from members of Congress after a majority of the Supreme Court decided that Herrera had had enough due process — enough to last him a lifetime, as it may well turn out. But Sen. Howard Metzenbaum, D-Ohio, was appalled.

"The court held," he said, "that a state prisoner who claims he has new evidence of his innocence is not entitled to have that claim reviewed in a federal proceeding ... the doors to the courtroom are closed." All that is left is an appeal to "mercy ... just like the defeated gladiators in ancient Rome. This great nation should reject Chief Justice Rehnquist's conclusion that we should rely on the grace of elected officials to grant clemency in cases of this kind."

The senator went on to introduce a bill so that Congress can "prevent the execution of someone who can prove his innocence." On what authority does the senator dare to instruct the high court and its chief justice? "Congress," Metzenbaum reminds us, "has always had the power to determine which types of cases are appropriate for federal court review."

Now in the Judiciary Committee, the bill — S.221 — allows "a prisoner under sentence of death to obtain judicial review of newly discovered evidence showing he is probably innocent."

The application for this review in federal district court has to include "facts — supported by sworn affidavits or documentary evidence that could not have been discovered through the exercise of due diligence in time to be presented at trial. (These facts), if proven, would establish that the applicant is probably innocent."

One of Sen. Metzenbaum's more admirable characteristics is that he does not waste time in euphemism or gratuitous civility.

Clemency for a murderer, especially someone convicted of killing two policemen, is very hard to come by in Texas.

Ugly truths surface in El Salvador

There are white lies, there are reprehensible lies and there are grotesque, foul lies. U.S. policy in El Salvador was based on the latter from the late 1970s until the early 1990s. If there was ever any doubt, the United Nations Commission on the Truth last week put them to rest, discretely but damningly. In its report on human rights abuses during the long Salvadoran civil war, unfortunately, and not for the first time, much of the press commentary managed to glide over Washington's complicity while concentrating primarily on the report's findings about Salvadoran culpability.

"Rights Report Makes El Salvador Confront Its Past," asserted a fairly typical headline in The Washington Post. Accurate as far as it went. For those still clinging to the by-now willful delusion that the Salvadoran government, its military forces and their allied paramilitary death squads were not overwhelmingly responsible for the torture, murder and mayhem that racked El Salvador for 12 years, the commission's findings delivered the coup de grace.

Among the conclusions:
— Government forces, with the knowledge and direction of men who are now or were then at the top of the military chain of command, were responsible for the vast majority of the 75,000 killings during the war with leftist guerrillas. Of those 75,000, some 40,000 were civilians. And sifting through the 8,000 specific allegations of abuse it examined, the three-member commission (including one law professor from the United States) found that 85 percent were leveled against the armed forces or their lethal associates on the far right wing.

— Ranking military officers ordered and carried out the murder of six Jesuit priests, their housekeeper and her 15-year-old daughter at Central American University in San Salvador.

— The Guardsmen who raped and killed four American churchwomen were operating "under higher orders," and their commanding officer tried to cover up their crime.

— The U.S.-trained Atlacatl battalion systematically slaughtered everyone it could find in the village of El Mozote and the surrounding area in December 1981. More than 800 peasants were massacred in that one operation, denied and covered up for years.

— The late Roberto D'Aubuisson, founder of the ruling Arena Party, ordered and paid for the assassination of San Salvador Archbishop Oscar Arnulfo Romero, the Roman Catholic champion of human rights and outspoken critic of government repression.

The commission did not turn a blind eye to the sins of the left. It found that assassination of municipal leaders was adopted as a policy by top guerrilla officials. It blamed the guerrillas for the execution of two injured U.S.

servicemen whose helicopter was shot down by the rebels.

But its carefully oblique indictment of U.S. officials, for whom a blind eye was a matter of policy, was all the more searing for its circumspection. From the Carter administration through George Bush, the American line was that there was no conclusive evidence that the client regime in San Salvador was responsible for the heinous crimes laid at its doorstep. There were honorable exceptions in each administration, particularly in Carter's, but most policymakers and implementers preferred to play the good German, backing the party line repeatedly when facts flatly contradicted it. Six billion dollars were poured into the war against "communist aggression" in El Salvador, and justifying that investment mattered more than truth, honor, decency or conscience.

To which the response in some quarters is: So what? Isn't it time to put the past behind us? Thanks to exhaustion on all sides and a U.N.-brokered agreement, peace seems to have a fighting chance in El Salvador at last. Why rake over old partisan coals?

Because, Henry Ford's famous line to the contrary, history isn't bunk. Because U.S. officials were deliberately and deeply complicit in the Salvadoran government's depredations, and therefore must share in the guilt as surely as anyone who conspires to abet or cover up murder is legally a party to murder. Because, as the Post's headline so self-righteously said of the Salvadorans, the commission's report should make the "U.S. Confront Its Past."

And on the subject, while the Commission on the Truth contents itself with footnotes and oblique references, a 9-year-old book by former New York Times reporter Ray Bonner is direct and damning. Titled "Weakness and Deceit," its time-frame is narrower than the commission's, since it was published in 1984, but its facts are no less searing. Its target is American, rather than Salvadoran, perfidy. To reread it, as I did last week, is to be consumed anew by rage that a democratically elected government would repeatedly condone butchery such as that routinely practiced by our "allies" in El Salvador.

There are white lies, there are reprehensible lies and there are grotesque, foul lies.

Army finances costly biological research

WASHINGTON — In the tense days leading up to the Gulf War, Pentagon representatives came forth with a startling admission: The United States military was woefully unprepared to protect its own soldiers, let alone all allied soldiers, from the threat of biological warfare from the Iraqi army. This was the case even though the Pentagon knew Iraq probably had stockpiles of anthrax and botulism-inducing weapons — the two most common kinds of biological weapons.

The Pentagon was caught off guard on the biological weapons front despite pouring more than $500 million into its Biological Defense Research Program since 1984. Although biological weapons were banned by international treaty in 1972, Congress has continued to fund the BDRP to keep abreast of developments that might affect U.S. troops and to develop vaccines that protect U.S. troops against possible contamination.

A draft copy of a study conducted by the Center for Public Integrity suggests the Gulf War scenario was merely illustrative of a much larger problem. The CPI study argues that this obscure agency has fallen far short of its goals, all at the expense of U.S. taxpayers. It has become a haven for second-tier scientists whose research bears little recognition in the scientific community. But since the program is run by the U.S. Army, these scientists have been allowed to operate with thriving budgets and without scrutiny, insulated and unaccountable.

Where else but in the U.S. Army could you find a program where taxpayers have paid more than $12 million to have scientists try to find a cure for Rift Valley Fever? Though this is a deadly disease, it occurs mainly in Africa, and has never been known to be developed by any country in biological weaponry. And where else but the U.S. Army could a top scientist working for the BDRP allegedly be operating a liquor store on the side, while another allegedly moonlights by selling computer equipment, according to the CPI report?

Apparently, a good portion of the BDRP's in-house scientists have been asleep at the wheel for some time. Although international treaties and U.S. law require the program to remain open and unclassified, much of the research is easily hidden in other, classified programs. The studies that did see the light of day were less than awe-inspiring.

In FY 1989, in-house researchers had $49.6 million earmarked for 59 research projects. That money was dispersed between 16 top researchers who were allotted more than $1 million each. But while the funding was enough to equip the labs of several Nobel-prize winners, the results were of somewhat lesser quality.

U.S. taxpayers were supporting such projects as "Studies of Microbial Toxins and Venoms of Military Importance; Basic Mechanisms of Toxicity" and "Freshwater Cyanobacteria Blue-Green Algae Toxins: Isolation and Characterization." In the case of the Rift Valley Fever research, Dr. K.J. Linthicum, who led the research effort, found his results published in such esoteric medical journals as the Journal of the American Mosquito Control Association. That article recounts a study where Dr. Linthicum traveled to Kenya, where mosquito habitats were sequentially flooded in an effort "to determine the numbers of mosquito eggs hatching during each flooding." A related article, co-authored by Linthicum, was published several months earlier in the American Journal of Tropical Medicine and Hygiene.

The Pentagon was caught off guard on the biological weapons front.

Florida couple helps Haiti's poorest of poor

By PAT LEIBNER
Associated Press Writer

PALM HARBOR — In the slums on Haiti's northern coast, 3,000 people no longer go to bed hungry. Children spend their days in school, not on the streets. And there's medical attention for most basic needs.

It wasn't always this way. A Florida couple spent years building a volunteer network to combat starvation, disease and aquaria in this poverty-stricken Caribbean nation.

"We're not evangelists. We don't preach. We try to show them what love and concern is all about," said Don DeHart, who with his wife, Eva, founded For Haiti With Love in 1982.

"We never charge for anything we do," he said. "You can't buy God's love. It's a gift."

The non-denominational charity, based in Palm Harbor, works in Cap Haitien, the country's second-largest city, and surrounding mountain villages.

They build concrete block houses for the homeless and market stalls for villagers to sell goods, then recruit beneficiaries for the labor force.

Two years ago the group built a school with benches and long wooden desks. Today 123 Creole-speaking youngsters, ages 5 through 10, make up three classes.

Besides French, English, math and geography lessons, the children are given clothing, soap, a toothbrush and toothpaste, a vitamin pill and a hot meal.

"It's not our intent to be a certified school," said DeHart, 60. "We're trying to offer some basics so that if life ever changes for them the children will have something to build on."

He spends seven months a year in Haiti overseeing projects. His wife works statewide, rounding up medical professionals and others who spend a week at a time doing relief work at their own expense.

She also arranges for shipments of supplies, ranging from formula and vitamins donated by pharmaceutical companies to beans and clothing donated by local church groups.

Basic foodstuffs have become scarce because of a 18-month-old trade embargo imposed by the Organization of American States after the September 1991 army coup that ousted democratically elected President Jean-Bertrand Aristide.

Cruise ships stopped coming. Jobs were lost. Prices tripled for such staples as rice and beans, and there was no flour for bread.

To feed 3,000 a day, DeHart said it takes 2 tons of rice and 1 ton of beans a month, cooking oil and charcoal at a cost of about $6,000 monthly. Last year the group raised and spent $182,000.

"Mothers can't nurse their babies because they are too undernourished themselves," said Mrs. DeHart, 56. "People are consumed with parasites, scabies, worms."

Dr. Dean Fauber, pediatrician at North Pinellas Children's Medical Center, has made 10 trips. "The horror, the feel, the taste, the smell, the faces that you see," he said, "they're haunting."

Dr. Dennis Jungerberg, a Tampa surgeon, has been there twice operating on 30 to 40 people a trip, mostly for hernias and small tumors.

Dentist Mikel Hopkins of Dunedin made four trips in two years, saw 530 patients and pulled 1,136 teeth. He works down to dusk using a flashlight and painkillers but no high-tech instruments.

"The poverty is unimaginable, but the feeling of being able to help is tremendous," he said.

Over the past 25 years, DeHart has had successes and failures in Haiti. But he hasn't lost heart.

Airport

prohibit the expansion of the airport," said Johnson. "We're not interested in tearing down homes. We want to prevent future homes from being built."

The airport is seen by many businesses and government leaders as Seminole County's industrial hope for an economically-sound future. A county study found last year the county had only 286 acres of vacant land remaining for industrial development, not the 2,305 acres planners thought was available.

Much of the industrial land had already been rezoned for commercial or other uses that produce less jobs.

The large spaces of vacant land still available at the airport and rural areas east and south of it are seen as ripe with economic development opportunities. Some of those lands are located in areas where airport sounds could offend residents, so lend themselves for less-serene activities.

Johnson said the study will strive to protect existing homes close to the airport by transitioning land uses. Noisier activities would be permitted close to the airport but not close to homes.

In the zones close to the airport affected by sound, builders of new homes would be required to install double-paned windows and other expensive construction materials to dampen sound, said Johnson.

"Such requirements would act as a disincentive to housing construction," said Johnson.

For any homes existing in the airport's noise corridors, Johnson said information would be provided to residents to allow them to install quieting materials during renovations.

Steve Cooke, airport director, said future airport plans may include instrument landings from the eastern side of the airport, providing some relief for homes west of the airfield.

Loss

Commissioner A.A. McClanahan, still recuperating at home from a recent heart attack, said he felt bad about canceling the quarterly add-on. "This doesn't mean the employees aren't deserving," he said, "but it has to be approached from a budgetary level. We have to do what is good for all of Sanford and all of the people, and no matter what we do, it is going to have a price tag."

He added, "As far as I am concerned, the human factor and the needs of our work force will remain high on my personal agenda."

During Commission workshop discussion of the matter this past week, Commissioner

Whitley Eckstein commented that he felt bad about the discontinuation of the salary incentive. "But I would be completely opposed to drawing any money from our reserve funds in order to allow this to continue."

"We will just have to hope some of our revenues increase and that other methods of financing this will be found."

"I know we all hated to do this," said Commissioner Bob Thomas. "But with the economy being what it is, we had no other choices. We had to cut somewhere and I don't want us to be accused of allowing the city to go under because of the economy."

City Manager Bill Simmons has clarified a discussion during the commission workshop on money in the utility fund and solid waste fund. "The two funds actually contain well over a million dollars," he said. "Almost the entire amounts are earmarked for specific uses, and there is no surplus."

"When we discussed $19,000 in the utility fund and $7,000 in the solid waste fund," he said, "that is how much additional we would be needing in order to allow the city to continue the two percent pay addition for these next two quarters."

Simmons had predicted that the matter could be brought up for continuing discussion during the next City Commission meeting scheduled for April 12.

Youth

note High School, has been a resident of the Sanford Housing Authority since she was 11 years old.

"When we first moved into the projects, I used to run away all the time to get away from the projects," she said. "I used to think it was cool to get in trouble, then I joined the club."

Fayson has been a member of the club for three years. The first year was an adjustment period for her because she brought her troubles with her.

"I used to get in trouble all the time," she said. "The first day of school in fifth grade I was suspended."

"But when I found out I was suspended from school I was suspended from the club that all changed," according to Fayson. "The club was my escape from the projects."

Fayson has come a long way both academically and personally. She now holds a 3.5 grade point average in school and has gained a lot of self esteem.

"She has become more disciplined in school," according to Don Miller, branch director of the Seminole county clubs. "Her concentrated efforts on her grades and study skills she caused her grades to increase."

"During an open house when I first came to the center, LaHoma was asked to speak on the Boys and Girls Club pledge," according to Miller. "You could tell she was scared and very nervous."

"But now, because of an increase in her self esteem and the practice she has gotten from the club, her delivery has greatly improved."

Fayson's future plans for school received a boost from Seminole Community College. She was awarded a $1,000 scholarship through the club to continue her education after graduation.

"I want to go on to a junior college and then to a university," Fayson said. "I'd like to be a physical therapist or a probation officer, I think."

Fayson plays basketball for the girls team at Seminole High School, is a member of Calvary Apostolic Church, in Sanford, and plays softball.

At the club, she is a member of the Keyston Club, a teen community service group, works as a tutorial volunteer with the younger members, helps out at the front counter answering phones and taking care of the membership and supervises the members.

"LaHoma's overall attitude is very positive," according to Miller. "I consider her a good role model for the other kids."

which changes the total membership from 16 to 17.

Only the two cities in Seminole County are included in the MPO. Additional members of the MPO represent Osceola County, the Orlando/Orange County Expressway Authority, Central Florida Commuter Rail Authority, and the cities of Kissimmee, and Winter Park.

According to Florida Statutes, MPO's are "responsible for coordinating the planning of a safe, viable and balanced state transportation system serving all regions of the state."

They require the department "to develop comprehensive plans, in conjunction with local government entities, including but not limited to regional planning agencies for all Metropolitan Statistical Areas."

Fifth grades unite

Students of Lake Mary Elementary present 'United We Stand'

By SARABECCA ROSIER
Herald Columnist

The 5th graders at Lake Mary Elementary performed the play "United We Stand" for three different audiences at 10 a.m., 2 p.m. and again in the evening at 7 p.m. The first two audiences consisted mostly of different grades in Lake Mary Elementary and some parents. The evening show was mainly for parents, friends and relatives.

The play was divided into four parts. All of the 5th graders participated and there were no main characters. Fifth grade Patriotic Night took place in the school auditorium.

The program began with a skit, "Will the Real Abraham Lincoln Please Stand Up?" There were three Abraham Lincolns and a panelist group asked each of the three Abes questions. After all the questions were asked, the panelists voted for the Abe that they thought was the "real" Abraham Lincoln and gave their reason for selecting either Nos. 1, 2 or 3. Number 2 "Abc" was selected and the "real" Abe was asked to stand forward... Number 2 stood forward.

Next, a "Rap of the Presidents" was a real upbeat number done in the latest rap form and was a "rad" way to learn your history lessons. The "rappers" wore blue glitter top hats and "Blues Brothers" sunglasses. This was indeed a crowd pleaser judging from the applause.

There was then a group choral reading of "United We Stand."

And finally, the play, "United We Stand" took place at a convention presided over by "George Washington," played by David Anderson, when the 13 original colonies were forming states or choosing not to.

This was done in sing-song rhyme of state by state vs. confederate. The song, "What A State We're In" told about the story — "State by state, equally; state vs. size compromise; work it out, give and take; always wise."

All of the 5th grade classes joined together for the finale.

to compromise.... The answers right before your eyes, it's always wise to compromise. The bill of Rights will come one day, but please ratify this document."

In another song, "United We Stand" it told of freedom for one and all in our Constitution, this land will never fall. The 13 colonies in this delegation that eventually grew into the United States although Rhode Island held out for three years. The final song was "This is America." It was beautifully sung with lots of feeling and was also "signed." Sing out with pride "America, America, we love you."

The entire four-part sequence was put on by the four 5th grade classes, with teachers: Mrs. Jackson, Mrs. Thomas, Mrs. White and Mrs. Killingsworth. Each teacher was in charge of one segment of the program even though each segment had children from each of the four classes.

'The Rap of President' awed the audience.

Making children's wishes come true

The Country Club at Heathrow presented the 4th annual "Dancing with the Stars" to benefit The Children's Wish Foundation.

"The Children's Wish Foundation was founded in 1985 and is a not-for-profit charity to grant wishes to children with life-threatening illnesses who have not yet reached their 18th birthday," according to Meg Kuchar, chairman of the event.

"Since its beginning the foundation has granted over 800 wishes. An important extension of the wish granting program is the follow-on support activities provided to all 'Wish Kids' and their families. These support activities take place monthly and are designed to provide maximum social interface with other 'Wish families' and a parent-to-parent support group.

Other committee members are: Cara Yeawich, vice chairman; Patty Velt and Alan Skipper, club liaison; Rena Thompson, Sandy Thompson, Tittan Maxwell, Karen Boebinger, Michele Bowle, Joyce Ward, Laura Bennett, Jeannie Henderson, Susan Moses, Virginia McGrath, Normalyn McAndrews, Sherril Cipparone, Cindy Russo, Ann Russo, Deborah Shafer, Gerri McEwan, Rose Welsh, Manette Angelillo and Ron Cook.

The auctioneer for the live auction was Jim Boebinger. The silent auction included 33 miscellaneous items, from health and beauty to golf and tennis.

There were 25 live auction items including a pinball machine, trips to New York, the Bahamas, Australia, Hawaii, Thailand as well as trips closer to home such as New Smyrna Beach, Daytona Beach, Amelia Island Plantation, Grenclife Resort, Atlanta, Ga., and Cancun to name some of the dream getaways. The bids ranged from the $200 lows to the $5,700 high. There was also a golf cart, jet ski and BMW up for bids.

There was buffet food, hot or cold beef, pasta, finger foods both hot and cold, lots of fruit, cheese and veggies with dips. Desserts were cream puffs, pastries, chocolates, ice cream and Cherries Jubilee; also, coffee and tea along with the cash bar.

LaMotte and Cochran provided entertainment and music for dancing in the huge tent that was set up for this event. The turnout was great and all seemed to really enjoy the evening while raising funds for this very worthy cause.

A very special thanks to the corporate sponsors who so willingly helped prepare and orchestrate this benefit. They are: Arvida, Sunniland Corporation, Kendel Kennedy, Ethel and W. George Kennedy Family Foundation, The Newport Group, Inc., Florida Irrigation Supply, Inc., Ford Press, Ampuice and Brace Center, Sun Bank Trust and Investment Management Group, G. Roxy and E.C. Martin Charitable Trust.

Parents plan dance
A group of 8th grade parents held a planning meeting in the faculty lounge in Greenwood Lakes Middle School recently.

These plans are leading up to the annual dance. This year's theme is "Moonlight and Roses." It will be held in the gymnasium from 7 to 10 p.m. This is the first year it was voted on by the students to be held in the gymnasium. Prior dances were held in the cafeteria.

The mothers and fathers present at this first meeting were: Sandy Nicholas, Pam Cherry, David Hart, Sharon Richardson, Sarabecca Rosier, Bridget Lee, Sonia Lopez, Susan Panzino, Sue Kimpton, Michele Rouch, Carol Peterson, Marty Ford, Abby Scherer.

Committees were formed such as food with Sandy Nicholas as chairperson, class mementos with Sharon Richardson as chairperson; decorating with Marty Ford as chairperson. The chairperson of the event is Jill Measier and liaison is Abby Scherer, and Pam Cherry as co-chairperson.

Approximately 300-400 students show up for this event. A popular deejay is being contacted to play current hits and use light shows, special effects and dance contests for maximum student participation. The dress code is nice dresses or outfits for girls and boys may wear suits or slacks, dress shirt and tie.

In order to make this a memorable evening a lot of help is needed in several areas: chaperoning, providing food, prizes, decorating and so forth. If you can help in any of these areas, please call Jill Measier at 330-4850 or Abby Scherer at GLMS 321-7560 x 133.

The next general meeting for the dance is today at 7 p.m. Prize donations along with food and mementos will be gratefully accepted.

AARP meeting well attended
The last AARP meeting/luncheon was very well attended with approximately 91 guests in attendance.

At this particular meeting about five new enthusiastic seniors joined the less than one-year-old AARP Lake Mary Chapter.

The luncheon was sponsored by Southern Trust Bank in Lake Mary. Sheriff Don Eslinger of Seminole County was the main luncheon speaker. He shared many insights about crime activity in Seminole County. Sheriff Eslinger was followed by Greg Haeslip and a Trust Department representative, both from South Trust Bank, who spoke briefly on the services of South Trust Bank. Attorney Faith Stalnaker was the featured meeting speaker and she spoke on living trusts.

Due to the rapid growth of the Lake Mary AARP chapter, future meetings will be held at the Community Improvement Association (CIA) building located at 260 N. Country Club Road, Lake Mary. Meetings are the 3rd Tuesday of each month. The complimentary luncheon for members and prospective members is at noon and the meeting is at 1 p.m.

If you would like to participate in the dynamic Lake Mary AARP Chapter, please call DeLores Lash at 323-1142 or Dr. Norma Smith at 323-9578 for more information.

"Who Reads What" is a fascinating list

By GLENN ADAMS
Associated Press Writer

GARDINER, Maine — Lee Jacocca was electrified by "Agents of Influence." President Ford was propelled by Horatio Alger tales. Former Chicago Bears coach Mike Ditka gets all the inspiration he needs from the Bible.

Celebrities surveyed for this year's "Who Reads What?" list showed an inclination toward the uplifting.

Glenna Nowell, the librarian in this tidy riverside town who compiles the list each year, hopes it inspires ordinary people to read more by showing which books their heroes and heroines like to curl up with.

Each year since 1988, she has written to scores of entertainers, athletes, writers, business leaders and other VIPs, asking them to name their favorite titles and authors.

While many celebrities don't respond, some send introspective letters detailing why a book is meaningful to them.

Diver Greg Louganis, an Olympic gold medalist, wrote that reading "Jonathan Livington Seagull," the tale of life from a sea bird's point of view, was the challenge of a lifetime for him.

Louganis, who has a learning disability, said Richard Bach's book was the first he read from cover to cover.

"The challenge and accomplishment of reading an entire book for the first time makes it a memorable experience," he wrote.

Actor Jon Voight revealed a little of himself in his letter, which commended "Souls on Fire" by Elie Wiesel.

"I've always been interested in stories about saints. But, over the years, I've redefined my ideas about sanctity, and now I discover that I find myself with people I regard as 'saints' almost every day," wrote Voight. He said his parents were among his "saints."

Phyllis Diller told Nowell that "The Magic of Believing" by Claude Bristol "is responsible for my success." Erna Bonbeck said "Gift From the Sea" by Anne Morrow Lindbergh has "great insight into what women are all about." She said the book had a "profound impact" on her life.

President Ford said his inspiration has come from Horatio Alger since he was a young boy.

"I read every Horatio Alger book I could get my hands on," Ford said, adding that the success stories gave him a sense of organization and self-discipline he's carried through life.

Test Pilot Chuck Yeager said he loves anything written by his late friend Louis L'Amour, who "wrote in a simple, straightforward style about black hats and white hats, and that's a world I can identify with."

Other responses were less intimate.

Jacocca wrote that David Aaron's "Agents of Influence" puts modern nuclear brinkmanship into perspective.

Billy Joel, who called reading his passion and said he loves histories, named Mark Twain's short story "The Mysterious Stranger" as one of his favorites.

Hugh Hefner's top pick was "The Fountainhead" by Ayn Rand. He called it a "compelling tribute to man's quest for personal freedom."

Rams top 'Hounds at Relays

From Staff Reports

GAINESVILLE — In one of the Southeastern United States' top high school track and field meets, the Florida Relays at the University of Florida, Seminole County dominated an event, the girls' 4 x 800-meter relay.

Lake Mary claimed the gold in the race with Lyman taking the silver.

"That's the first win ever for Lake Mary girls at the Florida Relays," said Lake Mary coach Mike Gibson. "We've had plenty of seconds, but never a first. It was a very satisfying win. We've had teams run faster in the two-mile relay but didn't win the race."

Posting the win for Lake Mary were Shawn Barkley, Christina Olson 2:29, Chrissy Louv, and Heather Bonck, who put together a winning time of 9:59.81. The Lyman quartet of Rita Greenberg, Melissa Filppin, Loretta Keith, and Kianah Bresnick finished at 10:12.38.

Barkley picked up an individual silver medal, finishing second in the 400-meter run at 1:00.32. She also joined with Amy Bradley, Amanda Robertson, and Amy Downs in the 4 x 100-meter relay. While the quartet didn't place, they turned in their fastest time of the season (52.51 seconds).

Other outstanding performances turned in by Lake Mary athletes were Bradley in the high jump (4 feet, 8 inches) and long jump (16 feet, ¼ inch); Downs in the triple jump (32 feet, 5 inches); Olson in the 400-meter run (1:03.51, 10th overall); and Karen Morris in the shot put (31 feet).

The only other Seminole County athlete to claim a medal was Lyman's Sharon Rhodes, who earned a bronze in the discus for her personal-best throw of 117 feet, 8 inches.

According to Lake Howell boys' coach Buddy Garrison, the top performance for the Silver Hawks was turned in by David Hill, who cleared 13 feet to finish fourth in the pole vault.

For Oviedo, Wendy Peters went over 5 feet, 2 inches in the high jump, good for fifth place.

Sylvester Wynn Jr. hit a double and a single Saturday for the First Union A's in their 16-4 loss to the Expos. He also pitched an inning in relief.

Illinois' Lake County sweeps cold-hitting Raiders

From Staff Reports

SANFORD — It's very simple. If you don't score, you don't win.

Offensive woes continued to haunt the Seminole Community College baseball team as the visiting College of Lake County (IL) swept a doubleheader from the Raiders by identical 7-2 scores at Raider Field Saturday afternoon.

SCC was only outlitt 16-14, but Lake County made better use of its hits, blasting five home runs and two doubles against four Raider pitchers.

"All of a sudden, we've gone ice cold with the bats," said SCC assistant coach Lefty Renaud. "We're just not scoring at all."

The loss was the fourth straight for SCC, which saw its record fall to 15-13. The Raiders will travel to Orlando Tuesday for a Mid-Florida Conference contest against Valencia Community College, starting at 3 p.m.

The games were the first of the year for Lake County.

SCC wasted a golden opportunity in the opening game when, trailing 3-2, the Raiders loaded the bases with one out in the eighth inning. But the Raiders hit into a 5-2-3 double play to end the threat.

Lake County then came up with four runs in the top of the ninth inning to turn the game into a rout.

The visitors took control of the second game immediately, putting three runs on the board in the top of the first inning.

Curt Brusch ripped a pair of home runs and drove in three in the opening game for Lake County. Brian Geraghty, Mike Medel and Rick Young also homered for the winners, while Steve Karolewicz had doubles in each game.

For SCC, Oviedo's B.J. Calapa went five-for-eight, including three doubles, scored two runs and drove in another in the doubleheader. His three doubles gave the sophomore six for the week.

Also contributing to the Raiders' offense were Sanford's Rick Eckstein (three singles, one run), Randy Hagar (two singles), Oviedo's Eric Jordan and Kevin Twigg, Deltona's Pete Bezered and Randy Hagar (one single each) and Lyman's Jeff Bouley (run).

The Church of God used a walk and six singles in the top of the first inning to take a 4-0 lead, but the First Methodist defense held their opponents to only one base runner from the second through the sixth inning.

The Orioles built a 5-0 lead behind the strong pitching of Bruce Carter as they knocked off the defending American Division champion Royals.

Pacing the Orioles offense were Ivan Byrd (double, single), Albert Harris (two singles), James Ripley (triple), Jason Flannagan and Shawn Tillotson (one single each), Detrick Quinn (three runs) and Joseph Knight, Major Fisher, Carter and Bart Dixon (one run each).

The Blue Jays nearly blew a 6-0 lead as the A's scored four runs in the fifth inning and five runs in the sixth to take a 9-6 lead into the bottom of the seventh inning. But the Jays put the bats to work in the seventh to collect the victory.

Trellis Smith led off with a single, stole second and scored on a single by Aaron Knight. Knight then stole second and scored on a double by Brent Templeton, who, in turn, scored on a double by Dustin DeMarco to tie the score. Adrian Knight then singled in DeMarco with the winning run.

Nazarene got a run back in the fifth, then got a big two-run triple from Frank Turner during a six-run sixth inning to take a 10-7 lead. The defending Spring champions then collected eight singles and a walk to score seven runs in the top of the seventh inning to go on top 9-6. All Souls scored two runs in the bottom of the seventh and had the tying run thrown out at third base trying to go from first to third on a single to end the contest.

Don't trash plant materials

Use valuable organic matter as mulch in landscape

GARDENING
TRICIA THOMAS

Pine needles, leaves, grass clippings and plant trimmings are being raked, stuffed in plastic bags and unfortunately placed on the curbside to be collected and hauled away — a luxury we must pay for! These materials account for 20 to 50 percent of the waste dumped in landfills. Florida now has legislation that prohibits putting the yard trash into lined landfills. Luckily, homeowners can avoid all the labor and costs involved in having the materials hauled off and keep this valuable organic matter for use in the landscape. Simply recycle the materials on site as a mulch. Pine needles, leaves and grass clippings can be used alone as a mulch or in combination. Of the three, pine needles are the best mulching material. They are attractive, not easily removed from beds by wind or rain, and don't "mat down" excessively. Leaves can be used alone as a mulch. If you find that they are difficult to keep in place in windy locations, rake the leaves when they are wet after rain or irrigation. They may be washed from beds during heavy rain showers. Leaves perform best as a mulching material when they are shredded and/or composted. Grass clippings can also be used for mulch but are the least desirable mulching material. They are easily transported by the wind, decompose very rapidly, and pack down to form a mat which can exclude air and water from the root zone. They should be spread thinly over the ground, mixed with other mulching materials or better yet, left on the lawn during mowing. If you feel compelled to collect the clippings, then compost them with other yard waste. Plant trimmings such as twigs and small branches should be shredded with a mechanical chipper before they are used as mulch. Yard waste, available in our yards, is a very inexpensive source of mulch. However, some are reluctant to use it as mulch because it is not considered as attractive as the more expensive commercial materials. This problem can be overcome by adding a thin layer of a more uniform mulch over the yard waste. Mulch can be used around plants in beds or around individual trees and shrubs in a lawn. Research reports from the University of Florida reveal that grass growing around trees can reduce the potential plant growth by as much as 50 percent. Eliminating grass from this area greatly reduces the competition for water and nutrients and increases the growth rate and health of trees and shrubs. When mulching individual trees in lawns, create a circle of mulch about two feet in diameter for each inch of trunk diameter. Increase the size of the mulched area as the tree grows. Pull mulch one to two inches away from the stems and trunks of plants. The high moisture environment created by mulch increases the chances of stem and trunk rot which can result in plant death. In addition to being useful around plants, mulch can be used as a ground cover for walks, trails, driveways, playgrounds and natural areas. It can be used to cover low-growing, tender plants to protect them from frost injury. Mulch can also be composted and used as a soil amendment for flower and vegetable gardens. The amount of mulch to apply will depend on the texture and density of the mulch. Compost and many wood and bark mulches are composed of fine particles and shouldn't be applied any deeper than 2-3 inches (after settling). Excessive amounts of these fine textured mulches around shallow-rooted plants can suffocate their roots causing yellowing, and pine bark nuggets, which allow good air movement through them, can be maintained at a depth of 3 inches. Cypress mulch should be maintained at a depth of 2-3 inches since it appears to have a high water holding capacity which may reduce the amount of water reaching the plant root zone. Mulches composed solely of leaves or grass clippings should never exceed a 2-inch depth. These materials have flat surfaces and tend to mat together restricting water and air to plant roots. Since mulch will naturally decompose, you will need to replenish it periodically. The mulch isn't really disappearing; it is being converted to humus which is beneficial to plant growth. Seminole County master gardeners are very knowledgeable about recycling yard waste and composting. The master gardeners and I are available to answer your recycling and gardening questions Monday through Friday. Printed information is also available at the Ag. Center — free of charge! For more information about recycling yard waste call the Ag. Center at 323-2500, ext. 5550.

Let's talk art

Sanford has a lot to crow about including First Street Gallery, etc. And the gallery has a lot to crow about including a new exhibit, 75 black and white photographs making up Sanford Documentary. The exhibit features the works of 11 photographers under the direction of Crealde School of Art, Winter Park. At the recent opening reception, Mayor Bettye Smith (center) paused to chat with artist Warren Wolf (left) and Leo Bailey, executive director of Crealde. The gallery is open to the public free of charge and the current exhibit will be on display until April 27.

All crimes should be reported

DEAR ABBY: Like Don Richter of Leesburg, Ga., I can't believe I'm writing a Dear Abby letter. Also, like Don, I think you were off base when you said that with all the serious crimes the police must respond to, the thieves who stole the clothes off someone's clothesline would probably die of old age before they were apprehended. You missed the point, Abby. In my profession (social work), we try to teach people how not to become victims. Reporting a crime — any crime accomplishes two objectives: — Taking action keeps us from feeling victimized. — A show of law enforcement in the area may deter future crimes. Even though the thief may not be caught, as Don Richter put it: "Let's take a stand for accountability, and not let our lives be dictated by fear or intimidation."

KATHY KIRK-MALTERS DEAR KATHY: Thank you for pointing out the importance of reporting every crime — even the petty ones. Petty thieves who get away with minor crimes are encouraged to go on to more serious heists. Read on for a message from a like-minded sister:

DEAR ABBY: A while back, you had a letter in your column concerning a young woman who bought stock on a tip from a young man who "makes his living on Wall Street." The stock went down, and he offered to buy it from her so she wouldn't suffer the loss. She turned to you for advice, and you told her to take him up on his offer. Wrong! It is a violation of the rules of the National Association of Securities Dealers — the self regulatory agency of brokers and dealers — as well as the New York Stock Exchange, for any employee or a broker/dealer to take part in the profit or loss of a customer. The poor guy would be compounding his problems if he bought the stock, no matter investor, the only rules I can offer to avoid this kind of situation are: (1) Never take a tip from anyone; and (2) Don't deal with friends where money is concerned, unless you are prepared to lose both your money and your friends.

I know whereof I speak. After 22 years in the securities business, I have no friends left, and very little money.

Surgery is best for prolapsed uterus

DEAR DR. GOTT: I have a prolapse of the uterus. My doctor has advised that I can learn to live with it, which I have done for the past year. The prescribed exercises have not restored it to its original position and, at 69, I really suspect they will not work. What are the surgical procedures for my condition?

DEAR READER: When the tissues that hold the uterus in place become stretched and weakened (as they may with age, especially after multiple pregnancies), the uterus sags deep into the lower pelvis, often interfering with intercourse and control of urination, sometimes prolapsing (protruding) into the vaginal area.

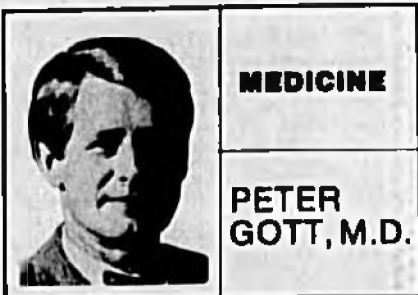

This situation, although harmless, is an annoyance. The use of a pessary may solve the problem without surgery. A plastic device, inserted into the vagina, will support the uterus in a more normal position. Surgical correction is permanent and, for many women, the preferred treatment. Ordinarily, a hysterectomy is performed. However, it is possible to opt for less involved surgery, during which the uterus is merely re-suspended in its proper position.

In order to decide which surgery (if any) is appropriate, you should be examined by a gynecologist. Such a specialist can help you explore your options, which range from doing nothing to having a hysterectomy. In my experience, exercises for a prolapsed uterus are not particularly useful.

DEAR DR. GOTT: My 68-year-old mother is scheduled for hip replacement. Both the femur and hip socket are to be replaced. The joint to be replaced has heavy arthritis buildup, possibly because this leg is one inch shorter than the other due to a femur break at the age of 30. How successful might the surgery be in eliminating pain and restoring mobility? Can the artificial joint be expected to remain useful for the remainder of her life?

DEAR READER: Modern hip replacement, when performed by an experienced and qualified orthopedic surgeon, is a Godsend for many patients with advanced arthritis, who suffer from pain and immobility. After surgery, your mother should be delighted with the result and enthusiastic about returning to normal.

WIN AT BRIDGE

By Phillip Alder

Computers have been used to score bridge events for some years. But other good software packages have been arriving with the regularity of 70-degree days in Nome. However, over the next three days let's look at what is arguably the best available.

Have you sometimes wished you had an assistant when it came to analyzing double-dummy problems (those in which you know the positions of all the cards)?

If you have a personal computer, help is now at hand in the form of Base III. Written by Fred Gitelman with some help from Sheri Winestock, it costs $199 plus postage and handling; call 800-387-5216.

The program is very quick when there are only a few cards left. For a full 52-card deal, it may take many hours.

Base III also contains a deal generator and will analyze suit combinations. These calculations take into account information known about the full deal.

There are some example deals, of which today's is one. North used Gerber twice and then took a shot at seven no-trump rather than settle for the safer seven spades. The extra 10 points can make a huge difference in a pair event.

South has two lines of play: cash the spade ace, hoping the queen is a singleton, or finesse immediately through West. As Base III will tell you, the odds on the former are 26 percent and on the latter 50 percent. So you should take a first-round finesse in spades.

You know the old rhyme "Eight ever, nine never." Gitelman has added, "10 once."

HOROSCOPE

By Bernice Bede Osol
YOUR BIRTHDAY
March 30, 1993

The year ahead could mark a time of new beginnings. You might become more daring and adventurous and explore situations you would never have dared to probe previously.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) When others make promises to you today, the intent might be sincere, but there is a possibility something could develop that could make it impossible for them to deliver on what they've guaranteed. Know where to look for romance and you'll find it. The Astro-Graph Matchmaker instantly reveals which signs are romantically perfect for you. Mail $2 plus a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope to Matchmaker, c/o this newspaper, P.O. Box 91428, Cleveland, OH 44101-3428.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) An important endeavor in which you're presently involved might not work out to your satisfaction today, especially if you leave part of it up to chance. Monitor and control every step of the project.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Don't become so involved with new acquaintances today that you fall to keep in touch with old friends. Be the kind of pal who is considerate to everyone.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Setting lofty objectives for yourself today is an admirable inclination, but don't fall into the trap of thinking they are achieved just because they have been defined.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) You might have an experience today that will illustrate your lack of knowledge about something you thought you understood. It's wise to take measures immediately in order to become better informed.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) If you enter into a joint venture today, be sure your counterpart's contributions equal what you have to offer. If the arrangement is out of balance, it could fizzle out.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) You're still in a rather lucky cycle, and you should get your fair share of breaks again today. However, if you get involved with negative individuals, nothing much is apt to come of new opportunities.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Be careful at this time that you don't commit yourself to something where you're banking more on hope than on reality. If you can't distinguish between the two, you might be disappointed.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) There's a chance today that you might attach yourself to a clique in which you might not feel accepted. Trying to win them over could be a lost cause.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) If you are making any major changes in your home or residence at this time, be absolutely certain they are alterations you can live with over the long haul.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) You might lack adequate faith in your own ideas and evaluations today and rely on advice from people who might not be as wise as you are.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Be very careful today in the management of your own resources and doubly careful if you are managing the resources of someone else. These might not be your strong areas at this time.
