'HOV' Lanes To Seminole? May Save Gasoline

By SHARON CARRASCO
Herald Staff Writer

The Florida Department of Transportation (DOT) is attempting to encourage car-pooling which could lead to decreasing gasoline consumption for Seminole County.

What the DOT is proposing is the creation of high occupancy vehicle lanes along I-4 from U.S. 192 (SR 100) in Ocoee County to SR 434 in Seminole County.

The theory is, according to DOT spokesmen, such high occupancy lanes would be reserved during certain peak hours of travel for those private vehicles carrying two or more passengers. What DOT is hoping, that department's officials say, is that those private cars' passengers will be car owners themselves who will have left their automobiles at home. This, the officials reason, will save gasoline consumption otherwise needed by the vehicles that would have taken to roads by those who become part of the car pool.

The high occupancy vehicle lanes would be installed on the far left lanes of the highway in the east and west directions.

"Motorists using these special lanes will not be allowed to travel beyond the 55-mile-per-hour speed limit," said W. G. Gray, DOT spokesman.

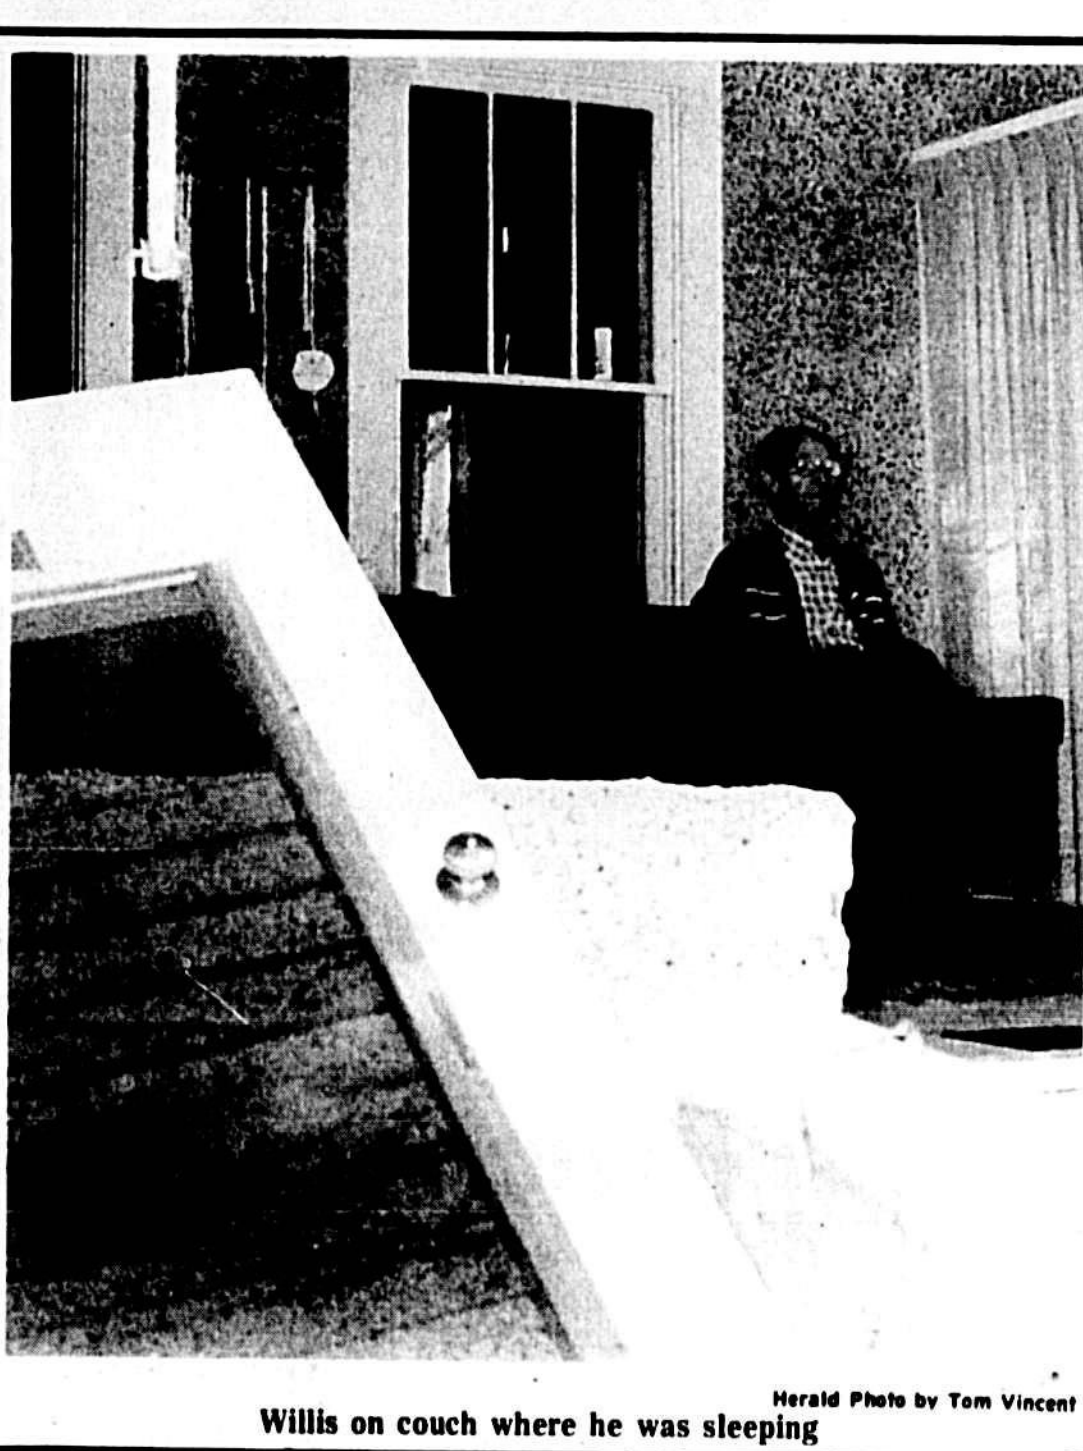

The incentive for using these lanes is they are less crowded," said Gray, who is the district project development and environment engineer.

Initial implementation of the high occupancy vehicle lanes can be accomplished at a minimum cost, Gray said.

This would require striping off the lanes for identification and the installation of signs to alert motorists, Gray said.

Woody Price, Seminole County planner, said today the plans for the high occupancy vehicle lanes is a "significant departure" from previous information from the DOT.

"There has been some discussion that the two new lanes on I-4 currently under construction in Orange County might be designated for this purpose, but now the DOT apparently is including those designated type

He's Rudely Awakened

Eighty-year-old Bill Willis' afternoon nap ended with a bang at 4:30 p.m. Thursday when a car driven by a Sanford juvenile spun out of control, crossed the curb and smashed through the front porch of Willis' home at 312 E. 25th St. The car stopped just five feet from the couch on which Willis was sleeping.

"I never saw what happened," said Willis, who was unharmed in the incident. "The door fell in and the car was right there."

Sanford police said the juvenile driving the car has been cited for careless driving. Neither he, nor the passenger in his car, were injured.

Police said the 1971 Mustang involved in the crash was headed westbound on 25th Street at a high rate of speed when the driver lost control. The car did a complete spin and struck the Willis house on the north side of the street.

One witness said the juvenile's car appeared to be racing with another when the accident occurred. Police said there was another car traveling at a high rate of speed next to the Mustang, but that car was not involved in the accident.

The passenger in the car of the juvenile denied the pair was racing at the time of the crash. He said the accident was caused by "the slick wet pavement."

Willis said he had returned from a shopping trip and had just fallen asleep on the porch before the accident awakened him. When the car struck the home, it knocked down a light pole, damaged the cement base in the porch and completely caved in the door and a portion of the adjacent wall.

Damage estimates were not immediately available. — GEOFFREY FOUNDS

Florida Gets Tough Over Drugs

TALLAHASSEE, Fla. (UPI) — Legislation mandating tough minimum prison sentences for drug smugglers sailed through the House today to the desk of Gov. Bob Graham who said he will sign it at noon.

"We're putting out a pretty strong word to drug smugglers that if you sell drugs in Florida, we're going to get to you," Rep. Bob Crawford, chairman of the House Criminal Justice Committee said.

It was the first bill to pass the 1979 session, which convened Tuesday. Its smooth sailing and quick passage set a record for law and order legislation.

In the entire passage, it picked up only two "no" votes. Graham, embarrassed and angered by a CBS news show in January calling Florida "the drug capital of the world," made the bill one of his top priorities. The "tough" law-makery is dramatic in its impact by making it the first bill to clear the Legislature and doing it the first week.

The 1184 vote followed a break from tradition since the House passed the measure the same day it was debated on the floor.

"Today, we have an opportunity to drop a bombshell in the middle of drug smuggling in Florida and in the United States," Crawford said.

Crawford, D-Winter Haven, said the bill requiring sentences of three to 25 years in prison and fines up to $500,000 for trafficking in large amounts of marijuana, cocaine and heroin will enable prosecutors to get to the higher-ups in smuggling rings.

The bill (SB3) passed with little debate.

Besides the minimum sentences, the bill (SB 3) sets fines ranging from $25,000 to $500,000, and tracks a proposal Gov. Bob Graham made last month to help clamp down on drug imports.

A key provision in the bill allows judges and prosecutors to reward cooperative smugglers by reducing their sentences if they turn state's evidence against those who bank roll drug rings.

Sen. Jack Gordon, D-Miami Beach, tried to stall the bill, saying it will only make drug smuggling more profitable.

"It's not going to be controlled. We're just wasting taxpayers' money and making profits for organized crime."

Joining Gordon on the losing side was Sen. Ken Myers, D-Miami.

Law enforcement officials say the illegal drug trade earns smugglers $5 billion a year. They estimate most of the marijuana imported into the United States comes through Florida because of its miles of coastline and proximity to South America.

In other legislative action Thursday: —The House Appropriations Committee passed and sent to the floor legislation (HB 1000) transferring the licensing and discipline functions of professional boards to a Department of Professional Regulation

The Crossings At Lake Mary

By DONNA ESTES
Herald Staff Writer

The Crossings, Florida Land Co.'s $300 million planned unit development (PUD), located southeast of I-4 and Lake Mary Boulevard, will open its clubhouse and recreational facilities on April 22, according to Ken Cristol, marketing manager for the subsidiary of Florida Gas Co.

The PUD, which laid dormant from 1974 when initial planning began, will last summer when Florida Residential Communities and Old-American Homes of Florida Inc. opened model home centers, is scheduled to complete construction of 5,101 housing units and other amenities at the 1,400-acre site by 1985, Cristol said. The project at the edge of Lake Mary, will be Seminole County's third largest PUD.

When construction is completed the development will have about 18,000 residents and be a self-contained community about the current size of Altamonte Springs. The community's central water and sewer systems have already been constructed.

Cristol said plans call for construction of 1,300 single-family homes on 480 acres, 2,400 townhouses, patio and cluster homes on 270 acres and 1,400 apartments and condominiums in addition to 73 acres of office-commercial; 44 acres of roadways; 66 acres of school sites and 253 acres of parks and open spaces.

The new Lake Mary High School, set for opening in December, 1980 with 2,100 students, is to be built within the Crossings. The Lake Mary school will be Seminole's sixth high school. The development was formerly known

Seminole's Third Largest PUD Opens Facilities

As Greenwood Lakes. Cristol said homes currently built in the PUD or under construction there are in the $50,000 and $60,000 price range.

The "Club at the Crossings" opening April 22, includes a main club building with a colored restaurant service, junior Olympic swimming pool, health club facilities and three tennis courts, Cristol said.

Contract signing is expected next week, Cristol said, with the Levitt Corp. to purchase for construction of 108 housing units a 33-acre semi-developed site within the Crossings. The Levitt property will be one quarter mile east of Lake Emma Road.

A Levitt Co. spokesman said construction on production homes for the Crossings site and four single-family home

UN(SCRAMBLING) THE MESS

Workmen along State Road 427 near Baker's Dairy clean up the egg cartons which fell from the back of Pinebreeze Company driver Walter Hugh's truck at 7:45 a.m. this morning. Seminole County Sheriff's deputies said they stopped Hugh and informed him he was losing his cargo. Hugh said he did not realize the eggs were falling from his truck.

Practical Way To Learn Math

Barbara Burnell's Alternative Education class at Goldsboro Elementary is learning math through a project involving 16 children with ages ranging from five months to four years.

The 14 students in Mrs. Burnell's class are providing day care services for the children for a period of one week. The students put math to work by measuring the children, mixing formulas for feeding, plus cooking breakfast for the older toddlers.

The students have been doing research on the care of children and they also took a field trip to a local nursery to see how day care is handled by the professionals.

NATION IN BRIEF

Senate Votes To Allow Prayer In Public Schools

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A surprise vote to overturn Supreme Court rulings banning prayer in public schools has caused a Senate postponement — and could threaten passage — of a bill to create a new department of education.

On a 47-37 vote Thursday, the Senate approved an amendment by Sen. Jesse Helms, R-N.C. to "restore the right of voluntary prayer in public schools."

The pending bill would split up the Health, Education and Welfare Department, the government's biggest bureaucracy, by creating a separate education department.

The amendment caught Sen. Abe Ribicoff, D-Conn., floor manager of the bill, by surprise. His quick motion to kill it talked on a tie vote of 50-50, and it then was approved on a roll call. Ribicoff moved immediately to reconsider the vote, and Senate Democratic Leader Robert Byrd of West Virginia called for a recess until Monday to give sponsors time to round up enough votes to reverse the outcome of the Helms amendment. The motion to recess was approved, 55-27.

Evans Death Delayed

ATMORE, Ala. (UPI) — John Louis Evans III ate his last supper and went to take his last shower, and when he came back to his cell on death row at Holman prison he figured he had six more hours to live.

But then, to his dismay, he learned that Supreme Court Justice William Rehnquist, in a puzzling order that surprised everyone in the case, had ordered his execution — set for 12:01 a.m. today — stayed until April 11.

"I don't believe it," said Evans late Thursday when told of his reprieve by the Rev. Kevin Dunigan, his death row confidante. "I'm going to mess with me again."

The 41 other men on death row at Holman raised a cheer, but Evans leaned against the wall of his cell and cried, Duggan said.

Degassing Operation Delayed

HARRISBURG, Pa. (UPI) — Engineers today delayed an attempt to reduce the small leak of radioactive gases from the Three Mile Island nuclear power plant.

Nuclear Regulatory Commission spokesman Carl Abraham said the system designed to pump gases from an auxiliary building into the radiation-proof dome around the crippled reactor was being tested when engineers encountered a valve that would not open.

There was no immediate estimate when the degassing system could be put into operation. NRC officials said it was aimed at making a significant reduction of all gases leaving the plant.

Plane Landing A 'Miracle'

DETROIT (UPI) — Investigators say it was a "miracle" a TWA jetliner and its 77 occupants survived an apparent 360-degree roll-over and super-sonic nose dive to make an emergency landing at Detroit Metropolitan Airport.

A top official of the Federal Aviation Administration flew from Washington to Detroit Thursday to inspect the damaged plane that plunged from an altitude of 9,000 feet to 12,000 feet within seconds.

Four of the 80 passengers aboard the Boeing 727 jet on a flight from New York to Minneapolis were slightly injured during the steep descent, which occurred over Flint, Mich., Wednesday night. None required hospitalization.

The cause of the emergency aboard Flight 841 was not immediately known, said FAA Administrator Langhorne Bond, who personally inspected the plane.

Journalist Inex Robb Dead

TUCSON (UPI) — Inez Robb, 78, one of the nation's leading women journalists for more than half a century, died late Wednesday afternoon at the Tucson Medical Center of Parkinson's disease.

From 1938 to 1963 she was a reporter for International News Service. She covered every political convention from 1932 to 1968, every presidential inauguration between 1938 to 1968, was aboard the first Clipper plane to fly the Atlantic and was one of the first women correspondents covering World War II.

Jobless Rate Holds Steady

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The nation's unemployment rate held steady at 6.7 percent of the workforce in March to remain at the lowest level in 4 1/2 years, the government reported today.

The number of Americans holding jobs by 185,000 last month to 96.8 million, the Labor Department said in its monthly analysis, as the jobless rate for teen-agers and blacks declined.

March's 6.7 percent unemployment level was identical with February and was the lowest since the 5.4 percent rate of August 1974.

Congressman Has Close Call

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Rep. Stewart B. McKinney, R-Conn., was shot at by two teen-agers trying to rob him outside his Capitol Hill home early today, but he escaped unharmed and McKinney was not harmed, police said.

Police said McKinney was entering his car at 1:30 a.m. when he was approached by two youths. When he resisted, one of the youths pulled out a handgun and fired, missing McKinney, police said. The youths fled and there were no arrests.

In Memory Of Mother Wilson

Drive To Beautify Good Samaritan Home

By JANE CASSELLBERRY Herald Staff Writer

A volunteer committee of three civic-minded individuals has launched a drive to raise $25,000 to beautify the grounds in front of the Good Samaritan Home in Sanford as a memorial to the late Mother Ruby Wilson, founder and director of the home. Their goal is to raise the money from area groups and individuals by mid-June.

The idea of the landscaping project was conceived prior to Mother Wilson's death in Jan. 31 automobile accident.

"We talked to her about our plans just four days before she was killed," said Mrs. Bill Gielow, president of the Woman's Club and one of the committee members, "and she was so excited and pleased that we wanted to do this for her."

"After her death, we decided to continue the project in her memory," Mrs. Gielow said. "So often you see the patients sitting outside the front entrance in the sunshine and there is nothing pretty for them to look at," she added.

The Lord blessed us to receive that $200,000 building free and I feel we send their contribution to Good Samaritan. We've been blessed with," commented Mrs. Mary Smith, president of the "Just Us" Club an auxiliary formed to help the home — and secretary and public relations for the board of Good Samaritan Home. She is also a member of the volunteer beautification committee.

The third member of the committee is Jack Weible, president of the Kiwanis Club of Sanford. "The front of the building is in need of landscaping and I feel it is time to do it in memory of Mother Wilson, who originated the home and kept it going for all these years," Weible said.

Kicking off the drive were donations totaling $730 — a gift of $500 from the Sanford Kiwanis Club, $130 from an anonymous donor, and $100 from the Woman's Club. The volunteer committee however, stressed this is not an organization project, but a community project.

Mrs. Fred Ganas is the group's consultant for the landscaping plans. The first phase of the plans to landscape the home will include irrigation, shrubbery, flowers and general landscaping for the front (east side) of the building, located at 1704 W. Ninth Street.

Anyone wishing to donate to the fund should contact one of the committee members or their contribution to Good Samaritan Beautification Fund, 202 Forrest Drive, Sanford, FL 32771.

Inflation Helped By Budget Deficit

Arthur F. Burns has given respectability to pleas for a balanced federal budget, noting that the nation's "inflationary psychology" is fed by deficit spending. But the former chairman of the Federal Reserve Board is wary of locking the requirement into the Constitution, suggesting instead that Congress adopt legislation to make deficit spending more difficult. The "experiences" under the measure, he told a House panel, should then be reviewed annually before action is taken to make budget deficits unconstitutional. And Burns is dead set against a constitutional convention to consider a balanced-budget amendment, citing the "risks and dangers" of wholesale attack on the Constitution. There is sympathy for Burns' views within the Congress, certainly. Rep. Peter Rodino, chairman of a House Judiciary subcommittee exploring the concept of a mandatory budget balance, said almost 70 proposals have been introduced in the House and Senate. The Senate, spurred, perhaps, by the legislation before it to increase the federal debt limit to a staggering $30 billion, approved an amendment to the debt-limit bill to require the president and congressional committees to submit balanced budgets in fiscal 1981. Even if the urgency of the debt-hike bill and the political instincts of House members coax House concurrence, however, the Senate bill is unlikely to satisfy the clamor for budget balance. A simple majority in both houses would allow continued deficit spending. Few will dispute the balanced-budget goal. President Carter pledged to achieve the ideal in his 1976 campaign. But in the first five months of the current fiscal year, the deficit already has mounted to more than $31 billion. Burns said such persistent deficit spending "is the way a serious inflation is typically started and later nourished." The first tentative steps in Congress to mandate a budget balance acknowledge the public mood. The legislative bid should be pursued to avoid both the rigidity of a constitutional amendment and the potential for chaos at a constitutional convention.

Free Facelifts?

Would hard-pressed American taxpayers object if they knew that some of their fellow citizens were receiving facelifts and other cosmetic surgery paid for by the federal government? You bet they would, and so would we. Even so generous a fellow as Joseph A. Califano Jr., secretary of Health, Education and Welfare, found this practice too much to stomach when he learned of it last year. A subsequent review by HEW's inspector general disclosed that the eight Public Health Service hospitals administered by HEW were conducting about 500 non-therapeutic cosmetic operations per year, mostly for repair of active duty military personnel. The surgery included facelifts, nose reduction, breast enlargement, and removal of excess skin from the neck and abdomen. The annual tab for these surgical facelifts was about $600,000, hardly a major item in HEW's $107 billion budget last year, but outrageous, nonetheless. Mr. Califano has ordered an end to public financing for this vanity surgery, an act that should make us all slightly less resentful the next time we ponder our tribute to the IRS. Meanwhile, HEW spokesman insists that not one other penny in all the department's vast budgetary domain goes for elective cosmetic surgery. We can hope that such is the case even as we wonder how this Public Health Service practice got started in the first place and why it went on for several years before anyone knew the truth. While we could not find answers to these questions, it is instructive to note the manner in which Secretary Califano ordered this abuse within a department he has headed for the last two years: He read about it in a newspaper.

BERRY'S WORLD

WASHINGTON — If war should break out in Europe, thousands of Americans soldiers will be needed because of inadequate medical and evacuation facilities. This is the sobering conclusion of a secret Defense Department report that has been withheld from the public. For a country that prides itself on its first-class medical care, the second-class provisions for its front-line troops are a disgrace. The situation is made worse by the fact that the brass has refused to acknowledge the problems. But the secret report lays out the facts in alarming detail. Shortages exist in everything from field hospitals to blood bank. The Army Medical Corps lacks the capability to evacuate seriously wounded GIs from the front — to rear-echelon hospitals where their chances of survival are better. And little planning has been done to make the best possible use of the limited medical facilities available. In the past, Army officials have acknowledged problems in the Medical Corps. But the inadequacies they have maintained, are largely limited to a lack of doctors. This shortage they have been able to blame on the all-volunteer Army and its inability to compete with the lucrative attractions of private practice. Inhale...exhale. Get a load of the beautiful weather. Ah! Breathing spring air like drinking absinthe, the nectar of the gods — or whatever it is that the gods are supposed to drink that's the ultimate. There's nothing about coldness — whether it's people, places or things that I like. But most of all, I hate cold weather. I believe that I could happily live in a climate where the temperature never dropped below 65 degrees. In cold weather, my motor freezes up and I just can't get turned on. Cold weather means cold symptoms invading my body and bones — and sniff, snort and hack. It's right nippy in the area at times, during the winter season, but not cold enough to freeze out infectious germs. Consequently Florida winters can be a lot of fun. I was born in the middle of May about the time spring burst into full bloom. It's only natural that I

WASHINGTON — President Carter's stunning success as chief architect of an Israeli-Egyptian peace treaty should significantly enhance his prospects for selling a new Strategic Arms Limitation Treaty to the Senate. Carter has gained more than the obvious political momentum which any president enjoys after a spectacular foreign policy triumph, although that in itself is not enough to assure it. He has also acquired, thanks to the well-publicized workings of Israel's ratification process, a perfectly splendid case study to hold up to the Senate when it finally begins debate on a SALT II treaty. All's well that ends well, of course, but just imagine what the reaction in this country — including the U.S. Senate — would have been if Israel's parliament, the Knesset, had refused to approve the peace treaty with Egypt. Shock...anger...dismay...disgust — take your pick. By any name, the reaction would unquestionably have been overwhelmingly negative. And would anyone have stopped to pinpoint the culprits with precision? Not a chance. The headlines would simply have said: "Israel Rejects Peace Treaty."

VIEWPOINT

Triumph Into A Tragedy

By DON GRAFF The plot in South Africa's opinion-manipulation scandal thickens — and thickens and thickens. It already has reached to the highest political levels of that country, shaking the once rock-like stability of the African-dominated government. Now it is nibbling at the fringes of U.S. politics. Congressional ethics committees have taken a preliminary look into the possibility that South African funds may have been used to influence several recent campaigns, without finding anything sufficiently conclusive to justify a full-scale inquiry. But the way this byzantine affair has been developing day by day, that situation could be subject to very sudden change. The key figure is Eschel M. Rhoades, cashed-in Information Ministry official who directed a secretly funded multimillion-dollar project to buy a better image for South Africa and its racial policies. Much of the money is reported to have gone into bribes to supposed "opinion makers" in the United States and Western Europe, and much is suspected of having gone into private South African "pockets." The Barnes (James H. South Africa) who in the government know how much of what was going on. On this subject, Rhoades, who is in custody in Europe, apparently knows where enough bodies are buried to start his own cemetery. His plea of amnesia is apparently a ruse to conceal details he has political leaders back at each others' throats and guarantees a continuing press, at home and abroad. It was the South African press that initially brought the scandal out of the cloister of Retortia and the full light of public scrutiny. In this regard, the stinger Linda Ronstadt, with whom he has been romantically linked. Brown, with a presidential aspirant's eye on the black vote, stopped off in New York this morning for a 18-hour visit en route to Africa. He was making the trip at his own expense. But there is a crucial difference. The efforts of the American press to inquire and publish may have been praiseworthy, but the real question is never in question. This has the backing of law rooted in the Constitution. The South African press is not in so advantageous a position. The weight of South African law affecting the press sits heavily to the government's advantage. While on occasion publication of scandal developments has been suppressed, the real wonder may be that the government has not employed its legal weapons more often. It continues, however, to threaten the press with dire consequences should the revelations continue. To celebrate the nation's bicentennial in 1976, with the help of friends he built a replica of Abraham Lincoln's log cabin birthplace next to his home on the Wekiva River. Also in 1976 he briefly owned and operated the Cactus Queen Nursery giving a percentage of earnings to Camp Challenge in Lake County. Born in Canton, Ky., McCawley moved to Central Saboteurs Bomb Nuclear Equipment TOULON, France (UPI) — A series of explosions touched off by a team of saboteurs wrecked or damaged nuclear reactors and other atomic equipment built for foreign countries including Iraq, police said today. The blasts caused damage estimated at millions of dollars in the nuclear department of the Mediterranean Naval and Industrial Co. plant at nearby Seyne-sur-Mer, police said. The blasts were the most spectacular single attack on atomic equipment in France since unknown attackers tried to sabotage a nuclear power plant in eastern France four years ago.

Rebels Capture Kampala

NAIROBI, Kenya (UPI) — Ugandan elite guerrillas today claimed they had captured virtually all of the capital city of Kampala except the downtown area in a 48-hour assault and said President Idi Amin and his remaining 10,000 Allied troops were in full retreat. A spokesman issued by Uganda's government-in-exile said the guerrillas and supporting Tanzanian troops were now engaged in a "mopping-up" operation against small pockets of loyalist troops in Kampala. Diplomats and other residents of the still "unconquered" downtown area reported today that it was calm and normal with the crackle of small arms fire audible in the distance.

Insuror's Liability Lessened In Suit

By SHARON CARRASCO Herald Staff Writer

The State Farm Insurance Co. recently lessened its liability in a $1.9 million damage judgment awarded for personal injury and co-defendant in the case may have to pay the balance. But an Orlando attorney is hopeful he can turn his client's luck around when he files a suit on the grounds of "bad faith" against the insurance company. A Seminole County circuit judge ruled Tuesday State Farm Insurance Co. will pay no more than $100,000 of a $1.9 million damage judgment. Lisa Tyus, 18, of Longwood, and her father, William Tyus, co-defendants, are held liable to make up the difference of the judgment which is about $1.8 million, said Thomas B. DeWolf, the Tyus' attorney. The suit was filed on behalf of Clinton Marshall, 71, of Magnolia Drive, Forest City, in connection with injuries he suffered in a three-car automobile accident in January, 1978.

Carter's Message: It's Going To Hurt

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Carter to the American people: Drive less and pay more per gallon — it will hurt you in the wallet, but eventually it will make the country energy-secure. Carter to Congress: Don't let your constituents bear all the pain — declare war on the petroleum lobby and slap the big oil companies with a wind-fall profits tax. 20 Years Later Elisabeth Elliot Remembers

By JANE CASSELLBERRY and MELLENDRA EDMISTON To look at Elisabeth Elliot today it is hard to imagine her living in primitive conditions with a tribe of naked savages in the jungles of Ecuador. She looks like what she is — a dignified and gracious author, lecturer and visiting professor at Gordon-Conwell Seminary.

Back in his "Eve of Destruction" days, rock singer Barry Maguire had been on a round of booze and drugs, but Saturday night it was a "born again" Barry who sang a song which he had written to lead more than 30,000 in a service of communion at Jesus '79.

Interpreter signs words of Barry Maguire for deaf.

Elisabeth Elliot autographs her book.

Following her talk in the open arena at Jesus '79, many young people stood up to express their willingness to go as missionaries, did she think most would follow through? "I like to steer away from that question," Elisabeth said. "Statistically even Jesus' ministry was a complete flop, but nothing done for Christ is lost."

Joanna: 'One Of Saints'

Joanna was among that small group of women honored as "one of the saints in Christ Jesus" in Paul's salutation to the Ephesians. She was one of the women who went to the tomb to embalm the body of Jesus and found that he had risen.

Without our faithful Joanna — humble, serene, believing women — there would be little hope for the downhearted overladen by innumerable problems. Without their kind faithfulness to — "reaching to the clouds," as the psalmist described it — the world would be a dreary place. The faithful one like Joanna carry a light that dispels the darkness wherever they go.

He Wakes Choking During The Night

DEAR DR. LAMB - Every so often I wake up during the night choking. I believe while I was asleep I had a seizure. This blocks my windpipe and I cannot get my air. My wife will slap my back but it seems to take forever before I can get the end of me. When I finally get air, it takes awhile before I'm breathing normally and I am afraid to go back to bed until I can...

Million-Dollar Collection What Good Is A Refrigerator Of Mold?

By PATRICK REID The Herald Service, ARCADIA, Calif. - A few refrigerators in a basement laboratory at northern California's Humboldt State University hold the results of countless years of research. Among the samples stored there are no new wonder drugs, synthetic fibers, radioactive isotopes or exotic forms of plant life. Instead, the refrigerator contains about 3,500 samples of the common orange bread mold Neurospora and the fungus Aspergillus, a third cousin of penicillin.

and other techniques can be inherited, and each gene controls a single metabolic step. That discovery won a Nobel Prize in physiology. Ogata says the center processes about 1,000 requests for samples each year. The center's resources are indexed in the "Neurospora Newsletter," an annual publication that also announces new research projects and provides other mold information. An annual $60,000 grant from the National Science Foundation supports the newsletter and allows the center to distribute Neurospora and Aspergillus free of charge. More than 6,000 research papers have been published by scientists working with Neurospora, says Ray Barratt, director of the center and dean of the HSI School of Science. Neurospora is a valuable tool for geneticists because mutants produced in it by X-rays, ultraviolet light

Weekend Partner Refuses To Take 'No' For Answer

DEAR ABBY: How does a 20-year-old man get rid of a 20-year-old woman who refuses to take no for an answer? I took Alice (made up name) to Aspen for a weekend of skiing because the girl I had planned to take got the flu and couldn't go. The hotel reservations were paid for in advance and I didn't feel like going alone.

'Bomarc Missile' is successfully launched

This Is Launch Day

Through the loud speaker the range safety officer's voice continues the count down:

"...3, 2, 1, lift-off!!"

A puff of smoke appears at the launch pad and the rocket disappears straight up — moving much quicker than the ones normally seen at Cape Canaveral.

This rocket is not being launched from the cape and this range safety officer is a woman. The rocket itself is only 23 inches long. A model made from balsa and plastic which is a 1-24th scale rendering of a Bomarc surface to air U.S.A.F. interceptor missile.

This is launch day for the Orange Rocketeers, a competition oriented model rocket club affiliated with the National Association of Rocketry. Meetings are held once a month on the third Tuesday at 7:30 p.m. at the Tymber Skan clubhouse in southwest Orlando.

Each Sunday following the meeting, a launch is held at the 33rd Street Industrial Park. Members from several central Florida counties meet for city competitions, state, regional, and once-a-year national competitions. Other club activities include dealer-sponsored demonstrations, discussion groups, movies, and sport launches.

The rockets are made from scratch or from kits and are powered by commercial, available solid-fuel engines. Some of the different contests include: parachute or streamer duration, egg-tossing vehicles, dinosaur models (over 5 feet in length), and altitude attempts. Camera-mounted models, telemetry, and multi-stage rockets are also tested.

With sophisticated engines, igniters, and recovery systems problems still plague the models as they often do with their full-size cousins. After numerous attempts to launch one particularly stubborn craft, 11 year old Walter Beer removed it from the launch pad and muttered, "I hate this rocket!!"

For more information contact Joy Fox in Orlando at 859-8768. Three classes of membership are available from age 12 through adult.

Poets

These poems are by elementary schoolers from Seminole County. They resulted from the Florida Poetry In The Schools program. These pupils are generally provided with a theme, but are not told what they should write.

Kitten, Kitten look at you staring, staring doing nothing, nothing at all starting all day long Why do you do that? tell me, tell me Why do you do nothing but sleep?

Spike the Cat Spike! why are you so lazy? Why don't you go out and chase a dog? Why don't you go out and fight another cat? Spike! Why are you black and white? Your eyes are like fire, your claws are like razor blades, your teeth are knives that rip. Why are you so lazy? James Nelson and James Parker

The Bear Bear, asleep, do not wake him! If you do you will see a glowing eye and his claws grow fast. He will chase you, if he sees you. Big as a dog, his fur is short and he is fat. In his big cave you will get lost. Here he comes, big and green.

'1941' A Wild One

HOLLYWOOD (NEA) — There's always one picture, filming in Hollywood, that everybody thinks is destined to be a great one. Currently, the one is "1941" and, after watching some of the shooting, this time maybe "everybody" is right.

It shapes up as a wild one — the words generally being used to describe it are "zany" and "silly" and "way out."

"The whole movie is a whimsy," says John Millus, using yet another word. Millus is one of the co-writers and the executive producer of the film.

"It's a silly movie," says Steven Spielberg, the director.

For Spielberg, after such distinctly non-silly films as "Jaws" and "Close Encounters of the Third Kind," it's pleasant to be involved with something silly, zany, way out and even whimsical.

"1941" is set in the year 1941 which, already, sets it apart from a lot of other movies. But it is set at the tail end of 1941 and, if you remember your history, that was when Pearl Harbor happened. And, shortly after Pearl Harbor happened and the war began, the West Coast got panicky.

The movie is mostly about that panic, about the air raids on the coast that people saw or thought they saw, about the submarine attacks on the shore line that people saw or imagined, about the panic and riots and mass nervousness that ensued.

That may not sound like the stuff of whimsy to you, but it does to Millus, Spielberg and company. Millus says the script is compiled from incidents he has read about or heard about or, perhaps, invented, and all of them have been compressed into one day.

"I am a World War II buff," Millus says. "Isn't everybody?"

Spellberg says that he, too, is something of World War II fan. But he has had little to do with the creation of this picture's script, having merely been hired on as a director. And that, to him, makes a very big difference.

"I probably won't see this picture again, once it's finished," he says. "I never did see 'Jaws' again, after I finished it. The difference is that movies I have written or had a hand in writing — like 'Sugarland Express' and 'Close Encounters' — I like to see again.

"But pictures I just direct, like 'Jaws' and this one, I just direct and that's all."

He is, however, enjoying working on this. It's a complete departure — his first outright comedy. He says he finds comedy hard work.

"I only know two comedians or comedy writers who are happy," Spielberg says. "And I can't think who they are."

Penny Marshall, who is making her movie debut in "1941," was standing next to us. Spielberg turned to her and asked if maybe Rob Reiner, her husband, might be one of those two happy comedians.

"Yeah," said Penny. "I guess he's happy."

A Typical English Crew

By Dick Kleiser
VENICE, Italy (NEA) — Everything was ready for the scene in St. Mark's Square. Even the famous flocks of pigeons seemed to be waiting for the director to call for action.

Moore poses with Brynner's cigar

The only thing missing was the crew. White Roger Moore, who once more plays James Bond in the new Bond film, "Moonraker," and director Lewis Gilbert and the crew was in an alcove off the square, having a breakfast break.

"It's so typical of an English crew," Moore said. "If they were shooting in India, in front of hundreds of starving people, they'd stop and have their scrambled eggs and tea. They might even have a piece of sacred cow."

Moore simply sat and relaxed. He may be the most easy-going actor around. There is always a semi-smile on his face, as though he were enjoying some private joke. He lit up a cigar, and talked about cigars.

"When Yui Brynner quit smoking cigars," he said, "he had 17,000 left. He gave me some from time to time, which was very decent of him."

He and his Italian-born wife, Luisa, have homes now in three European countries, France, Italy and Switzerland. Moore says he tried California living for a while, but gave it up. "I lived in California," he says, "in the days when I thought living meant Saturday night barbecues and Sunday brunches at Scandia (one of Los Angeles' leading restaurants) and cocktails at the Polo Lounge (the indresser and his family, but Cubby did."

Everybody on the set keeps mouthing one cliché over and over — "Venice is one big movie set!" — but it is true. This age-old city is so incredibly beautiful that it looks like it must have been dreamed up by some overactive set designer. But it is very real, although not so solid. You can see the foundations of the buildings, at the water level, crumbling.

"It is incredible," Lois Chiles says, "but still I sometimes wish I could just close my eyes and be transported back to the U.S. I miss my friends, my dog and my family (her friends and dog are in California, her family in Texas) and, believe it or not, I miss hamburgers."

"It's funny, but the American hamburger has become a symbol."

Broccoli says he has now been doing Bond films for 17 years. And it looks like they'll go on a while longer. The last one, "The Spy Who Loved Me," did better at the box office than any earlier one. And "Moonraker" is costing around $25 million, Broccoli says, so it too should be exciting.

What makes these films so expensive is the lavish scale. In this one, one main gimmick is that a Venetian gondola serves as James Bond's escape vehicle. It converts into a hovercraft.

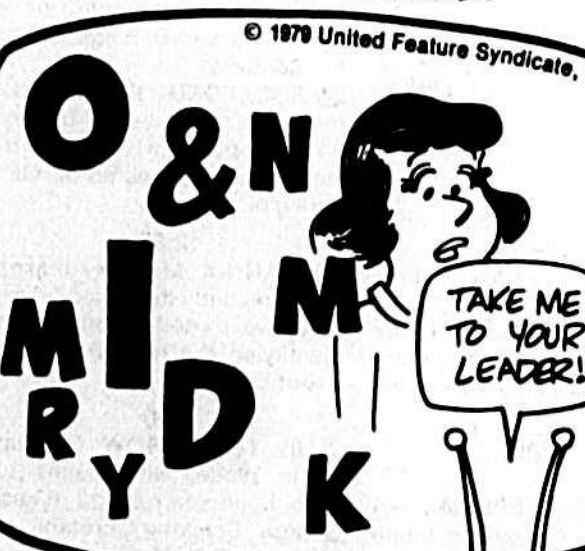

"I do that," Broccoli says, "we bought a dozen gondolas, and each cost 1,000 pounds, or around $2,000. We bought so many, we got a discount — 900 pounds each. But still it adds up."

Like most of those connected with the Bond films, she is very fond of the driving force behind all of the films, Cubby Broccoli. She says she hates pretense and believes that he is devoid of that trait.

"He spent last Sunday," she says, "with the hair-dresser and his family. I can't think of another big producer who would spend his day off with the hair-

Is Ken Related To Ron Howard?

By DICK KLEINER

DEAR DICK: Is KISS real dead? Richard Robbins, Fort Mill, S.D.

Real cool, maybe. Real gone, perhaps. But real dead? No. Not even slightly dead.

DEAR DICK: Is Engelbert Humperdinck, the singer, related to the German composer (1826-1891) of the same name who composed "Hansel and Gretel"? Maria Hesser, Ogden, Utah.

No. As a matter of fact, Engelbert Humperdinck is related to no Humperdincks, and not even to any Engelbert. He just gave himself that name. His real name is Dorsey. He's an F. O. Johnson and why he changed only a psychologist would know. Anyway, he has just announced that he will, henceforth, call himself just Engelbert. Goodbye to Humperdinck forever!

DEAR DICK: I would like to know more about the boy who plays the hunk on "See How." I think his name is Jimmy Hendrix. I think he's cute. D.B., Troy Ohio.

It's Jimmy Hendrix and the folks around "See How" says he is a hunk-playing genius. Roy Clark discovered him and he lives in Tulsa but that's about all they know about the boy.

DEAR DICK: There's a new show this season called "The White Shadow," with Ken Howard. Is he a big brother of Ron Howard of "Happy Days"? Kathy Tuller, Springfield, Ma.

Ask Dick Kleiner

No, they're not related in any way. Please settle it for us. I say that Jack Palance had a TV series in which he played a cop or a detective that aired a few years ago. My father says there was two such shows. Who's right? Kathy Lovett, Winston, N.C. Can. Father knows worst. You're right, Kathy. The show was called "Brook".

DEAR DICK: I have been watching "Superstars" recently. Is this a real train or a model? Is it really two stories high? Mark Rosenwald, Duncan, R.C., Can. You are about the only one who is watching it, it seems. It's both real and a model. They have built a real (non-moving) train at MGM, with two-story high cars, engine, swimming pool, sauna, disco, all those things. But the shots of the train moving are done with a miniature copy, considerably smaller.

DEAR DICK: Some weeks ago, on "The Waltons," a young, emotionally disturbed artist sang a song in French. The only other I've heard that song was in an old Charles Boyer-Tress Dumas movie many years ago. What is the name of the song, please? E.J.S., Bishop, Ga.

That is "Plaisir d'Amour" ("Pleasures of Love"), which the music people at "The Waltons" tell me is an old traditional French song. It is, however, contained in a Reader's Digest album ("Popular Music That Will Live Forever") and there it is credited to Florian-Martin.

DEAR DICK: My friend and I are having a fight about who murdered the beguiling of "Redfinger Galaxies." I say it's Wilfred Hyde-White but she says it's Burgess Meredith. Who is right? D.W., Sumner, Ariz.

Neither one. It's Patrick MacNee. DEAR DICK: Can you tell me—Is David Ackroyd, who played Dr. Rayburn in "Woman in White" the same one who played a doctor on "The Doctors" a few years ago. And is he also the same person who played Gregg Bernard in "Another World," who was murdered a short time ago. Interested Reader, Ernest P.

He's done a few soap operas, but you don't have them right. He was never on "The Doctors." He was on "Another World" but the character he played on that was Dr. David Gilchrist. He also played Kevin Kincaid for two years on "The Secret Storm." He's playing the professor now on "Jesse White," for as long as that unfortunately low-rated show manages to hang on.

Cheryl Thinks 'Angels' Gets Bum Rap

NEW YORK (UPI) — Cheryl Ladd believes "Charlie's Angels" gets a bum rap when television pundits call it a "jiggle" show and refer to its three women stars as sex objects.

Mrs. Ladd comes from Huron, S.D., where her parents still live together after 30 years of marriage, and she doesn't take kindly to all the sex talk.

"The character I play is not a sex symbol," the actress said in an interview, her finely defined chin high and her ordinarily calm blue eyes angry.

"In 22 episodes I've worn a bathing suit three times. We wear contemporary clothes—not tight pants for the sake of wearing tight pants. Go down the street to Hollywood High and you'll see more overexposure than on 'Charlie's Angels.' We're taking a lot of CHERYL LADD was 3 years old that I was going to be in show business," the former Cheryl Stoppelman said. At age 7 she began taking dancing lessons, in high school she played a character that would make any evangelist's blood run cold.

flack for something we aren't." She cited all the "jiggle" show that were supposed to be copies of "Charlie's Angels" and flapped, while the "Angels" maintained their high ratings.

"The show isn't a 'jiggle' show. It's about three women functioning in a man's world, trying to do something with integrity.

"We don't use our femininity and our personalities. And we are successful. When I was a kid there were three things girls could play at being—a secretary, a nurse and a movie star. I think our show is a terrific influence on young women. It shows characters who don't compete with men, who are feminine, who like each other, have self respect, work at jobs they enjoy with integrity."

Mrs. Ladd is married to the late Alan Ladd's actor-son, David, and they have a daughter, Jordan, 4. She calls herself "an eight-year overgrown success."

Gortner Turns Filmmaker

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Marjoe Gortner, the child evangelist-turned-actor, has produced "When You Comin' Back, Red Ryder" in which he plays a character that would make any evangelist's blood run cold.

Gortner portrays a despicable, drug-smuggling, foulmouthed sadist who terrorizes a handful of people in a small southwest cafe.

It's inconceivable that Gortner, a tall, powerfully muscled man with strong, lean features, could portray anyone as diametrically different from the golden haired, dimpled cherub of a preacher he was at age 7.

Gortner says he discovered early in life a verity of the professional in religion: economics is as important as scripture. He is applying this knowledge to his film career.

Not content with working as an actor for wages, Gortner wants to produce and direct movies as a Warren Beatty and Clint Eastwood. Gortner, however, isn't a conventional leading man. He may not be as physically appealing as Beatty and Eastwood, but he's bright, ambitious and willing to work 24 hours a day.

He saw "When You Comin' Back, Red Ryder" off-Broadway in 1973 and longed to star in a film version some day.

Linden Branching Out From Series

By VERNON SCOTT

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Hal Linden is branching out in all directions of show business, partly from insecurity and partly because he is an amazingly versatile performer.

The insecurity is consistent with every actor's terror of being "between jobs" or "at liberty," a professional hazard that has plagued entertainers since minstrelsy first traveled from manor house to manor house seeking crusts of bread and a straw pallet for the night.

From Charlie Chaplin to John Travolta there comes a time when the old unemployment insecurity gnaws away at the entrails. It goes with the territory.

That is one reason Linden works at everything in show business except sweeping up after the elephants.

It isn't enough that he stars in the hit television series "Barney Miller." He will also star April 11 in "The Hal Linden Special," an hour-long musical-variety show.

He currently can be seen in movie theaters costarring in a dramatic role in "When You Comin' Back, Red Ryder!"

Additionally, Hal is narrating "America's Junior Miss" TV pageant for the second year running. And, when he isn't in front of the camera, he's putting the finishing touches to his nightclub act.

Linden is not just another actor exploiting a successful TV series by insulating viewers as a singer and dancer. His show business career began as a singer and musician. He played saxophone and toured with

HAL LINDEN

Sammy Kaye's band. Put a straw hat on his head and a cane in his hand and Hal knows precisely what to do, thanks to many jobs he has done on Broadway.

Until he was discovered by television, Hal was a struggling leading man who appeared in 18 consecutive Broadway musical flops.

"I put in 20 years developing myself into a musical leading man and I got to the top in Broadway musicals," Linden said. "All my shows were personal successes in the reviews even though the shows were not."

"The insecurity of acting is what my special is all about. My guest stars are Linda Lavin (of 'Alice'), Cathryn Damon (of 'Boop') and Bonnie Franklin (of 'Three's Company')."

"Their careers were similar to mine back in New York. We were all in the chorus of musicals, on stand-by and understudies. We did TV commercials and worked in industrial shows."

"All the musical numbers in my show are based on true experiences. We sat down with a writer and a tape recorder and recalled the worries of getting jobs, losing jobs and trying to stay alive.

"The women always had a cop-out, 'I can always get married.' But not the guys. I was already married."

During those difficult years he learned to say yes whenever a producer asked him a question pertaining to his accomplishments. Hal continues to say yes when movie and TV brass asks questions.

"No matter what they asked, I said yes to everything," he said, grinning. "They'd want to know, 'Can you sing tenor?' Absolutely. 'Can you tap dance?' Positively. 'Can you laugh in Swedish?' You bet!"

"Once I told them I could do the job, I'd dash out and learn whatever was necessary."

"I did a lot of dubbing for movies with foreign accents. Two of the pictures I dubbed were '21' and 'I Am Curious Yellow.'"

"I was asked to do a cigarette commercial five years after I'd given them up. But I told the producer I smoked. Before the audition I walked around the block getting dizzy trying to learn to lobate again. But, when I walked in the door, I was told to forget it, they wanted a blond guy."

"A summer stock producer asked if I could play the drama. I wasn't about to say no. I assumed him I could. Then I quickly picked up the rudiments from a musician pal and did a credible job."

"The insecurity of show business are such you never can learn enough things con-ected with the craft. The whole premise is to 'keep working and expanding your interests — you can never tell when something will come in handy."

"There's still a tendency to categorize performers. I fight it by doing guest shots, dramatic parts in movies and musical things with Donny and Marie Osmond, Cher and Lola Falana. I even did an ice skating show with Dorothy Hamill."

Linden acknowledged that an actor finds more security in doing a TV series than in other facets of show business. Next season will be his sixth as the star of "Barney Miller."

Even so, he knows the show will not go on forever. Sooner or later Hal will find himself at liberty.

When the times come, and they ask him if he can juggle sticks of dynamite while riding a bucking bronc off a cliff during a tornado, Hal will answer in the affirmative.

County Officials Skeptical Of 'HOV'

By DONNA ESTES
 Herald Staff Writer

The latest proposal of the state Department of Transportation (DOT) designed to save gasoline consumption by encouraging car-pooling on I-4 has been met with skepticism by some Seminole County officials.

The DOT is proposing the creation of High Occupancy Vehicle (HOV) lanes on I-4 from U.S. 192 (SR 530) in Ocoola County to SR 434 in Longwood.

A DOT spokesman said the theory is the HOV lanes would be reserved during certain peak hours of the day for private vehicles and buses carrying two or more passengers. The spokesman said the passengers would be those who have left their private vehicles at home to car-pool, and thus saving gasoline. The HOV lanes would be designated to the far left of the highway in the east and west directions.

"I predict if the DOT does something like that on I-4 and traffic is backed up in two lanes and no one is in the HOV lane the numbers of the Highway Patrol officers enforcing the regulation would have to be doubled. The people wouldn't stand for it," said County Commissioner Dick Williams.

"I actually had an occasion to see something like that in Miami during the football season. I was there to see the Dolphins play. On one of the highways the left hand lane was separated by a solid line. Signs were posted saying cars couldn't drive in the line unless X number of people were in the car.

"I noticed a couple of things. The predominant thing was that no one paid any attention to the signs. The drivers were crossing the lanes back and forth. It led me to believe there may have been a lot of money spent on something that may be a good idea or working in some other part of the country, but won't work here," Williams said.

"I've heard the federal government has tried all kinds of things. I don't think it will work here," Williams said.

"The questions are: Is it worth the money? Is it cost effective? Is it the best utilization of federal money to put in HOV lanes on an interstate?" said County Commissioner Bill Kirchhoff.

"Maybe someone should look at the interstate coming out of Washington, D.C. to the south and see why the people don't use the HOV lanes there when they have the opportunity," he said.

"I haven't seen this before the Metropolitan Planning Organization (MPO). Before anything is instituted the MPO should get some input," Kirchhoff said. "People who have been in the Washington area where there are HOV lanes have noticed a distinct lack of vehicles using them. Perhaps the reason is they have to cross a bunch of other lanes to get to them, weaving in and out of traffic to get off the interstates," he said.

"It would be interesting to see how they have worked in other areas," said Commissioner Sandra Glenn. "What type travelers use this type of service, and if it would be feasible for Central Florida.

"It appears the decision will have to be based on the actual number of cars that could use such a lane. It might be something that could be tried at peak travel periods of say 7 a.m. to 9 a.m. and 3 p.m. to 5 p.m.," Mrs. Glenn said.

Williams, Kirchhoff and Mrs. Glenn are Seminole County representatives on the MPO. Members of that organization are gubernatorial appointees.

"HOV could be our only salvation with the present lane See HOV, Page 18A

Pilot Radios He's OK... Minutes Later He Crashes

By GEOFFREY POUNDS
 Herald Staff Writer

"It's been a hard fight, but the danger is over and you don't have to worry."

Those were the last words June Gaines heard from her 45-year-old husband, Moments later, the glider Walter D. Gaines of Lakeland was piloting plunged from radar screens and crashed in a pasture near Oviedo Friday. Gaines was killed instantly.

"He had just killed his wife and told her things were all right," said John Gaines of Oviedo, the pilot's brother. "He was about four miles from the airport when he talked to her," Gaines said.

The pilot was flying from Gilbert Field in Lakeland to the Seminole Flying Ranch in Oviedo, investigators said. A spokesman at the Seminole Airport tower in Oviedo said the craft vanished from radar screens at about 3:30 p.m.

Gaines said his brother's wife was trailing the glider in a vehicle on the ground and after receiving assurance from her husband that things were OK, she turned off the radio and proceeded to the Seminole Flying Ranch.

Gaines said his brother was only four miles from the airport when he radioed his wife. When the glider failed to arrive by 4 p.m. a search was launched,

Seminole Not Feeling Effects Of Truck Strike... Yet

By SHARON CARRABO
 Herald Staff Writer

Seminole County is not experiencing a shortage of auto parts, other areas of the state are.

The seven-day-old strike waged by the International Brotherhood of Teamsters against 71 truck lines.

Donna A. Fraser, United Auto Workers President, said the nationwide trucking dispute could hurt the auto industry slightly but it is not the parts shortage that is having a "devastating impact" on auto and depend on the truck lines."

Brown said. "As their supplies go down, we will be hurt eventually. Probably in about three weeks."

Enzo's Coppedge, manager of Ward American Auto Parts, 686 U.S. 17-48, Longwood, said her business hasn't been affected by the strike. She gets her auto parts from warehouses in Jacksonville.

"We haven't noticed it yet, but we might later on," she said.

Norman Wyne, manager of Foreign Car Parts on U.S. 17-48

Longwood, also said the strike has not affected his business.

"I get the majority of parts from UPS but I don't know how and when they will be affected," Wyne said.

Most of Wyne's auto supplies are purchased from Sanford, he said. He said auto parts purchased from Jacksonville are transported to his business by privately-owned trucks.

Company officials of major auto factories here said an industry-wide shutdown, which would take several days and millions of dollars to reverse, looms closer each day the strike continues.

"Time has just about run out," one company spokesman said.

Chrysler Corporation has said it would shut down all its U.S. plants Monday, idling its entire work force of 80,000 hourly employees. General Motors said its GM Truck and Coach plant in Pontiac, Mich., and a car plant in Arlington, Tex. to its list of closed facilities.

Since the strike began, U.S. auto makers have reported lost production of at least 30,000 cars and trucks. According to an industry publication, car output estimated for the week would fall 15 percent and truck output would drop 25 percent below normal.

On the brighter side, produce shippers in Seminole County report no adverse effects as a result of the nationwide strike.

Mike Justice of Eastern Rollers said shipments are not being impeded from the county but truck drivers are taking longer to return.

"I think we are finding the trucks up north are not getting back as fast," Justice said, "because there's nothing for them to haul back. Most of what they pick up is regulated freight."

A spokesman for Link Produce said his business hadn't been affected by the strike and has even increased slightly. His trucks, he said, also are not returning from the north as quickly.

To Burn High-Sulfur Oil FP&L Energy Crisis Hearing Underway

Florida Power & Light spokesmen today were attempting to convince state officials they need permission to burn high-sulfur content oil at their Sanford plant to avoid power shortages which could lead to blackouts or brownouts.

The FP&L officials' plea was being made at a hearing at the Sheraton Jet Port Inn, Orlando, convened by Environmental Regulation Secretary Jake Varn. FP&L wants permission to burn the high-sulfur content oil at six other Florida plants.

The utility company a couple months ago indicated it would begin experiencing problems by mid-April because supplies of low-sulfur content oil normally used to provide its customers with power will be in short supply.

Addressing the problem, FP&L and several other Florida utilities petitioned Gov. Bob Graham asking he declare an energy emergency in Florida. After several hearings in Tallahassee, the governor did so and requested President Carter waive a federal regulation prohibiting the burning of high-sulfur content oil, which the utility companies say they can get in ample supply.

Late Friday, President Carter notified Graham he is declaring a 30-day emergency for Florida to avert blackouts and brownouts.

At today's hearing in Orlando, scheduled to last until late afternoon, was a hearing officer representing the governor's office, about 12 spokesmen from FP&L and other utilities, but only a few citizen spectators.

Sam Tucker, manager of environmental affairs with FP&L's Miami office, told the hearing officer his company wants to burn high-sulfur content oil at seven of its plants located in Sanford, Cape Canaveral and Ft. Myers.

Tucker said the plants in those cities can easily burn high-sulfur content oil because they are equipped to burn various blends of oil with little problem.

Scott Burns, district manager for FP&L in Sanford, said it will be necessary for his company to be permitted to burn the dirtier oil at all seven plants to avoid power losses in this area.

"If we're permitted to burn high-sulfur content oil at only a few of the plants, those where the burning is prohibited will draw low-sulfur content oil from the others, and the problem will still exist," Burns pointed out.

Burning high-sulfur oil is normally prohibited by the federal Clean Air Act to cut down on air pollution.

Graham had requested a 90-day emergency, but is satisfied with the Carter decision, press secretary Steve Hull said.

"We think the White House decision was fair one. We're also confident that if emergency shortages still exist a month from now the President will react favorably to a request for an extension," Hull said.

Carter reserved for the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency the right to overrule any decision by Graham, but Hull said it is unlikely that would happen.

Graham told Carter he would suspend the standards only when absolutely necessary and predicted no serious increase in air pollution. He also promised to impose rigid energy conservation measures, including stepped up enforcement of the 55 mile an hour speed limit and reduction of heating and air conditioning usage in public buildings.

It's Not Easy To Sell A Good Friend

She has had to sell her husband Williams in ill health trouble in South Carolina and she hopes to join him as soon as she can. But she cannot take the bird in its cage on the bus. "William went up to find something near our daughter and granddaughter," Mrs. Tucker said.

But shortly after he arrived, she said, her daughter phoned and said Tucker had become ill and was afraid it was his heart.

The 64-year-old retired house painter has had three heart attacks in the past, his wife said.

"She said I better come up here as soon as I could," Mrs. Tucker said. "I don't have much, but I started to sell everything. I knew I couldn't take Mike so I even tried to sell him."

But after three days of wrestling with her decision, she changed her mind. She said she had several calls, with offers up to $50, but she turned all of them down.

"I thought at first that the $50 was not enough and then I realized I just didn't want Mike."
