De Gaulle Plans To Expedite French Atomic Program

PARIS (UPI)—Premier Charles De Gaulle will press an "offensive" to make France the world's fourth producer of atomic weapons...

The foreign ministry declined comment on reports that De Gaulle, who said Friday that the French want a place in the Western world "without confining ourselves to it," is preparing to recognize Red China.

Sources close to the government said De Gaulle is anxious to enhance France's prestige by winning it a place in the exclusive circle of atomic powers...

The demand for nuclear information is expected to be a key feature of De Gaulle's talks with Secretary of State John Foster Dulles here next month.

Issues discussed by the cabinet in addition to the atomic question were believed to include: Plans for meetings between De Gaulle and other chiefs of government.

The situation in once-French Lebanon. The prospect of restoring diplomatic relations with Tunisia. East-West summit talks.

The perennial problem of the Algerian war.

Planning, discussions, and possible architectural services got underway Monday afternoon when County Commissioners brought up the question of a new court house and jail.

"We've received another letter from the supervisor of penal institutions asking when we plan to get a new jail under construction," Commission Chairman John Krider told the board.

This morning, the Board of County Commissioners approved the advertising of "the necessity to erect a new court house and jail" prior to entering into a contract with John Burton IV for preliminary planning.

The proposed court house and jail, costing approximately $1,500,000 is in tentative stages and the agreement with the architect is "preparing the machinery," said Commission Chairman Krider.

Commissioner Lawrence Swofford said this morning "We've got to keep up with the growth of the county."

"When we approve a contract," Chairman Krider pointed out, "it is with the understanding that we will add one mill to the budget and secure the services of a fiscal agent."

At first, a motion to employ an architect met the unanimous approval of the Board of Commissioners when presented by Commissioner Dodd and seconded by Commissioner Swofford.

However, the motion was rescinded when Attorney Mack N. Cleveland Jr. advised the commission that the statutes require public notice 30 days in advance of the contract.

U.S. Would Send Troops To Lebanon If Needed

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Secretary of State John Foster Dulles said today the United States might send troops into Lebanon if developments there should call for it.

United States was prepared to contribute to a United Nations force there but also might act on its own if certain contingencies, which he declined to explain, should arise.

At the same time, Dulles charged the Soviet Union with apparently trying to break off preparations for a carefully organized summit conference and force the West directly into a top-level meeting on the Kremlin's terms.

Dulles asserted that Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev apparently has adopted the brutal terrorist methods of the late Josef Stalin which he once denounced.

That was Dulles' reaction to the news that the Communists have executed former Premier Imre Nagy and others who led the 1956 Hungarian revolt.

Discussion Starts On County Budget

Where's the money coming from? That question was the most important one at a meeting of the Board of Seminole County Commissioners Monday afternoon to start discussions on the 1958-59 county budget.

Clark of the Board of C. P. Herndon, several weeks ago, requested that department and group petitions making up the county budget be submitted prior to June 1.

Only seven budget requests were read to county commissioners yesterday with four representatives of departments personally appearing before the board in behalf of their requests.

Sheriff J. I. Hobby's budget request is for $85,000, $5,000 less than the 1957-58 budget. However, the sheriff pointed out that the amount requested includes the employment of an additional deputy and the addition of another patrol car.

So far, Sheriff Hobby is the only county officer requesting less than his previous year's budget.

"Service cannot be measured on a dollar basis," said Dr. Terry Byrd, Seminole County Health Officer. Submitting a condensed report for 1957-58 pointing out the accomplishments of his department, Dr. Byrd asked for a budget increase of $20,000.

In addition to the budget request, Dr. Bird also asked that a Health Center estimated to cost $100,000 be constructed during the coming year. "The present plant is inadequate," he said, "and I urge your immediate consideration."

Fifty per cent of the construction costs of such a center, Dr. Bird pointed out is paid by the U. S. Government. He said the county's share would be less than $50,000 since the property on which the building is constructed is considered as part of the local share.

It is proposed that the Health Center be located on property owned by the county in the vicinity of the present court house.

The Board of Forestry requested $833.70. The Seminole County Zoning Commission received a letter from its chairman, Raymond M. Hall, and represented at the meeting by Zoning Director Robert A. Brown.

Jet Fighter, B-57 Collide Over Desert Killing Two Airmen

EDWARDS AIR FORCE BASE, Calif. (UPI)—A jet fighter and a B-57 collided Monday over the desert, sending the bomber crashing to earth.

Both airmen aboard the bomber were killed. The fighter, its right wing badly damaged, managed to return to Edwards Air Force Base, a pilot was not hurt.

Spokesmen for the Air Force said the two planes were on training flights. The jet fighter from George AFB and the bomber from the center, when they collided at 32,000 feet over the desert.

The jet bomber spun to earth 10 miles south of Tehachapi, Calif. The Air Force identified the dead as Lt. Col. Boyd L. Graubaug, 40, the pilot from Van West, Ohio, survived by his wife, Isabel, and three children; and Edward C. Gahl, 34, the copilot from Oklahoma City, Okla., survived by his wife, Glynna, and two children.

The air force said the two F-100s were on a standard cross-country training flight, flying at 32,000 feet, when they encountered the B-57 bomber which was on a familiarization flight.

Lovesick Airman Faces Possible Court-Martial

FORT WORTH, Tex. (UPI)—Donald Keeton, the lovesick Dallas airman who faked a "suicide flight," awaited transfer today to Keesler Air Force Base at Gulfport, Miss., where he faces a possible court-martial.

Keeton, an airman third class presently under armed guard at Carswell AFB Hospital here, is expected to be charged with being absent without leave, for leaving a suicide note pinned to his bunk and taking off for Dallas in a rented plane to see his girl Thursday.

The note, which threatened suicide because of the sad state of Keeton's love life, resulted in a three-day aerial search by civilian and military authorities for the youth.

While the search for the airman was at its height, the object of love, 17-year-old Doris Lynn Bowling, tearfully told newsmen, "I love him, but not enough to marry him."

Disclosure that the threatened suicide was a hoax and Keeton's arrest by Dallas police apparently doused the last flickering flame of a dying love.

Land Owners Are Told To Remove Road Obstructions

Owners of property west of Geneva to State Road 436 are being given 10 days to remove obstructions so that the old Cochran Trail can be used as a public road.

Jim Lee and Ben Ward of Uviedo appeared before the Board of County Commissioners this morning stating that the road has been used by the public since 1890.

According to the complainants, a gate, which has been kept locked and barred wire have been erected.

"We have already notified the owners that the barriers should be removed but we have received no answer," said Commissioner B. C. Dodd.

Attorney Mack N. Cleveland Jr. was authorized to notify the land owners that the barriers are to be removed.

5-Day-Old Boy Dies Sunday

Infant boy Anthony Quinn Rye, 5-day-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Wilson Rye died at 8:35 p. m. at the Seminole Memorial Hospital Sunday. He was born on June 11.

Survivors include the parents, Mr. and Mrs. Wilson Rye, 3515 Orlando Drive; and two brothers, Keith and Ralph.

Remains were sent to Erlin, Fla., for interment. Gramkow Funeral Home was in charge of local arrangements.

Officials Disagree On Renovation Plans

Advances planning and discussion began yesterday on the building of a new Seminole County Court House and Jail when sheets of renovations to the present building were presented for approval.

"The court house will have to be abandoned in two or three years," commented Commission Chairman John Krider.

Commissioner B. C. Dodd stated "We might as well start working on a new court house and jail."

Mrs. Mary Earle Walker, Seminole County Tax Assessor, looking over plans and sketches for renovating the basement of the court house to add approximately 800 square feet to her office space said "The proposed space just won't be practical."

Tax Collector John Galloway shared the view of Mrs. Walker when he said "The proposal is very inadequate and undesirable."

The two county department heads preferred the building of an addition to the present court house, at a cost of $22,000, in order to house three addressographs used jointly by the Tax Assessor and the Tax Collector.

Renovation of the court house to provide additional space in the basement would cost $15,000 or less, including complete air conditioning, and a stairwell to connect the two cooperating offices.

Floodwaters Force 2,300 Families To Leave Homes

TERRE HAUTE, Ind. (UPI)—Debris-laden floodwaters from the Wabash River spilled over levees into two states, forcing some 2,300 families to flee their homes.

The Red Cross said it was "one of the most widespread disasters ever to strike Indiana."

The major breakthrough occurred just south of west Terre Haute Monday, washing away 800 feet of levee wall and pouring over thousands of acres of rich farmland. Some 1,500 persons were forced to flee their homes.

Other breaks occurred at Genyville on the Knox-Sullivan County line, farther south at Oakport where hundreds of volunteers fought a night-long battle to reinforce the bulwarks, and at Hudsonville, Ill., where waters poured through with such velocity sandbag crews gave up any attempt to stop its flow.

At Marion, disaster relief headquarters of the Red Cross said reports from 10 counties indicated about 2,300 families have been forced to abandon their homes since the flood situation was created little more than a week ago.

Nine homes were total wrecks, and another 1,854 have been damaged by water, the Red Cross said.

Four Bombardiers In VAH-11 Get 'Bulls Eye' Awards

Four bombardiers from Heavy Attack Squadron Eleven (VAH-11) received "Bulls Eye" awards from Capt. J. R. Reedy, USN, Commander, Heavy Attack Wing ONE. The presentation was made during the VAH-11 Administrative Inspection held last week.

Lt. (jg) William Fouk, Lt. (jg) Dale Purdy, Lt. (jg) William Bayley and Gordon Morris, AQC, are the four bombardier/navigators that have joined the exclusive "Bulls Eye" club.

The "Bulls Eye" club consists of Heavy Attack Wing One bombardiers who have scored a direct hit on a target during a competitive exercise or at a Radar Bomb Site (RBS). Direct hits during practice or training flights are not considered, and the drop must be made from an altitude over 25,000 feet.

Target Ringworm was the site of the direct hits by the four VAH-11 bombardiers who just received their certificates and shoulder patches. A landing ship tank (LST), Target Ringworm is anchored inside of Cape Hatteras, North Carolina.

There is a total of eight members of the "Bulls Eye" Club currently on duty with Heavy Attack Wing One. Five members of this select group are members of VAH-11.

In a report to the board of commissioners, Brown pointed out that from Jan. 1 to May 31 this year the Zoning Commission office has issued 801 building permits. Since Mar. 15, there have been 218 electrical permits issued and 323 plumbing permits.

Tree Surgeon Runs Into Wasps

A tree surgeon got into trouble this morning when he fell from a tree at Lake Butler near Oviedo and ran into a wasps nest.

Frank Sparks fell between 20 or 30 feet from the tree when he ran into the hive of stinging insects which covered his face and neck.

He was taken to Florida Sanitarium for treatment where it is reported that to relieve the swelling it was necessary to pack him "in ice."

TODAY'S THOUGHT

What is the best way to prevent a war?
Have you ever seen a man with a gun in his hand?

What IBM Machines To Replace Judge, Juries For Verdict?

A letter, written to the editor of one of Florida's major newspapers, will undoubtedly cause quite a stir.

The writer suggested that an IBM machine be used that would "receive the arguments of counsel and the charge to the jury and return an unbiased verdict within hours or minutes."

He proposed that "representatives of the United States Supreme Court, the American Bar Association and the individual State Bar Associations confer with IBM regarding the production of a machine to decide matters of law."

Well — there's no way to think other than such a move would create absolute chaos.

Just imagine what such a step would do — all that might eliminate! For instance just the matter of juries alone. Citizens of the United States and its many states would have no say whatsoever in this one particular freedom that has been established over the period of our country's brilliant and unimpeachable outstanding history.

The apathy of American people today — in matters of law, order, political and economic — is at an all time low. With the introduction of machines to take the place of "thinking," imagine what apathy then would become.

We might as well go a step farther — if we're going to accept any such suggestion as a machine to settle our matters of law — and attack slot machine gamblers to IBM machines to settle matters of law for individuals, replacing our host of lawyers and attorneys from one end of the country to another.

Vending machines to take the place of clerks issuing marriage licenses, death certificates, hunting licenses, machines to settle probate matters after dropping as many quarters in the slot attached to IBM gadgets.

Why not pay taxes through this same method too, if we're going to consider even one angle of such a step?

In other words, our court houses and city halls would only be storage and display halls for the battery of machines to take care of daily matters that now take hundreds of thousands of people throughout the country.

There comes a time when people should start putting their feet down in loud protest over such suggestions.

We have machinery, galore, in this age of electronics and missiles — but things are going a little bit too far when we replace the freedom of the people with a machine designed to do over our thinking for us.

What would be the use of having political parties and candidates if events are coming to pass when a politician can punch a button and tell him in advance what the outcome of the ballot will be?

The letter stated "This may be the answer to a major problem."

Right! It will be the start of one, too, since that question can be answered two ways.

We have problems enough as it is — let's not dig up others.

Too Much Moon Talk For Safety

Lieutenant General S. E. Anderson, director of Air Force research and development, has been duly "knuckled" for publicly stating that the Air Force would attempt to hit the moon with a rocket in August. His premature announcement won him a double-barreled reprimand from the secretary of the Air Force and the head of the Advanced Research Projects Agency.

The reprimand was deserved, though General Anderson's motives may have been irrefragable. The United States had its Zingis severely burned a few months back when the Vanguard, after a barrage of wear-and-tear-to-launch-a-satellite publicity, topped on its launching pad before the eyes of the whole world. Soviet propaganda had a field day with that incident. The later successful Vanguard launchings did not gain back all the lost ground. We should know better now. Certainly an Air Force general should know better than to name dates when final dates have not yet been fixed. He should know enough not to say the Air Force rocket will hit the moon — only to have his superiors declare that orbiting or getting close to the moon is the goal of current efforts. Such contradictions show that information efforts are poorly coordinated.

Let there be no misunderstanding: We think the public is entitled to be told what the military is up to, in this field as in any other, within national security limits. But a lot of premature talk about just when a rocket is going to be shot to the moon, and what it will do when it gets there, might possibly set up the pins for another Vanguard fiasco.

WASHINGTON—California's primary voting appears to have struck the death knell for Senator William F. Knowland's presidential aspirations. Regardless of the outcome of November's voting for governor, Knowland has now demonstrated that there is no broad support for him in his home state.

What's more, the primary results, which gave Knowland's opponent the gubernatorial nomination, an impressive plurality of the total vote cast, clearly showed that Knowland has no appeal either to Democrats or independents in his own state.

The California primary is significant for other reasons. It is another in a series of jolts the Republican party has received indicating the growing unpopularity of its program — and, to some political observers in Washington, it may have some long-range effects on Vice President Richard M. Nixon's own presidential aspirations.

Knowland's personality and right-wing stand undoubtedly played a significant part in his poor relative showing in the California primary voting. However, also undoubtedly, the California voting showed a marked trend of the voters back to the Democratic fold. It is axiomatic in politics that a presidential nominee must be able to carry his own state in the elections.

The Democratic undertone in California, if it sprouts through November's elections, and into the next two years, could be a sobering consideration for GOP delegates when they convene in 1960 to pick a presidential successor to Dwight D. Eisenhower.

TRADE WITH RUSSIA—The Soviets have worked up a gimmick for obtaining a long-sought goal—procurement of U. S. and Allied heavy machinery and other hard goods and materials of strategic importance to them. The Russians have put a $100 million price tag on the things they hope to buy or barter from the democratic West — they have been it with a publicity fanfare at a time when economic recession is plaguing the West.

The Russian gambit is transparent, but it just might work. Some administration policy leaders look to this kind of trade as essential to helping the West's business and trade difficulties.

In the minds of some of these people this is the overriding consideration at this time, and they are willing to look away from the implications of aiding a potential enemy to build up its war economy.

The pressure of this kind of reasoning is even more compelling on some of our allies who never have felt as strongly as the United States on the matter of limiting sale of strategic machinery and materials to the Communist bloc.

Foreign News Commentary

By CHARLES A. HUGHES
U. S. Foreign News Institute

A significant development in the negotiation of cold war issues between the Western allies and Soviet Russia is about to be known. It appears to be noted that certain representatives from East and West will meet in Geneva, Switzerland, on July 1 to start technical talks on the possibility of an agreement to stop the testing of nuclear weapons.

These talks could lead to a new start toward a disarmament treaty after a lapse which started when Russia walked out of United Nations disarmament talks last year.

At the same time, the possibility that a summit conference of heads of government on a wide range of cold war issues will be held this year seems to be fading rapidly.

A month or two ago, it seemed to be almost certain that a summit conference would be held this fall.

Follow-up allied governments were putting strong pressure on the United States to agree to the conference, for which Russia had been calling since last December.

When former Premier Nikolai A. Bulganin and the first of a series of letters to various heads of government.

Bullies Called Convinced

But this pressure has not almost most stopped.

One big reason is that Secretary of State John Foster Dulles seems to have convinced other Allied leaders that it would be a serious mistake to agree to a summit conference until Russia has given assurance that it is ready to negotiate big issues in good faith.

Another has now arisen in the person of Gen. Charles de Gaulle as Premier of France in one of the big political upheavals of recent years.

It will be necessary for President Eisenhower and British Prime Minister Harold Macmillan to try to coordinate policy with De Gaulle before there can be any agreement to hold the summit meeting.

First in prospect at present is a series of talks which Dulles, Macmillan and Chancellor Konrad Adenauer will hold in the next few weeks with De Gaulle.

United Press International correspondents around the world look ahead at the news that will make headlines.

SUMMAN BUMBLES

Some changes may be made in the Kremlin this week. The Central Committee of the Communist Party will meet and it will be an opportunity for Nikita Khrushchev in his role as party secretary and premier to make a few changes — just to show he's still the boss. He knows as well as anyone else the reports that the Stalinists are gunning for him. He also knows he holds the committee in the palm of his hand.

ARMY FORCE

The U. S. Air Force is about to recognize in the Pacific its better defense against any Red Chinese attack. Work for an announcement of "flying tank force" to be established in Japan, Okinawa, Formosa and elsewhere. Each unit will be under a brigadier general.

MANAGERS

The ousting of Detroit Tiger manager Jack Tighe last week will be the only managerial shakeup this season. In the American League, the overhauling superintendent of Casey Stengel's New York Yankees has taken the heat off the other managers. No one can blame them for not beating the Yanks. In the National League, the managers facing the poorest are Walt Alton of the Los Angeles Dodgers and Mayo Smith of the Philadelphia Phillies. But Alton could not help the loss of ace pitcher Roy Campanella. And Smith's Phillies have been plagued by injuries that hardly can be blamed on him.

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Warner Bros. has announced that "Damn Yankees," their film version of the Broadway musical hit, would be called "What Lola Wants" in foreign showings. "Foreign audiences might not know that 'Damn Yankees' refers to the baseball team," a studio spokesman said.

Presumably the talks of the United States, British and French ambassadors in Moscow with Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko on the issue to be discussed at a summit meeting will continue.

But even if they make progress, the next step after the De Gaulle talks would be a meeting of Allied foreign ministers on detailed arrangements for a heads-of-government conference.

There is no sign that it will be feasible to hold the foreign ministers conference for many weeks. That conference depends on the progress made in the talks between Gromyko and the Allied envoys.

Soviet Premier Nikita S. Khrushchev made a new bid to speed up preparations for the summit conference last week end. Khrushchev sent voluminous letters — 18 pages long, with 26 pages of annexes — to Eisenhower, Macmillan and De Gaulle.

MR. AND MRS. JOE DAVID FISHER (Photo by Cox)

Miss A. Fender Becomes Bride Of Joe David Fisher June 10

The local Church of Christ was the scene Tuesday, June 10, of the marriage of Miss Ann Fender, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Aubrey Fender of Orange City, to Joe David Fisher, son of Mr. and Mrs. H. A. Fisher of Geneva.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a waltz length gown of embroidered tulle over tulle. Her veil was finger-tip length and was held in place with a cap which matched the embroidered pattern on the gown. She carried a bridal bouquet of a crescent of white mums.

Miss Fender chose as her matron-of-honor her sister, Mrs. D. Jones of Plant City, who wore a Windsor blue waltz length gown of peau de soie. The gown had a full scooped neckline and a fitted bodice which ended in a voluminous skirt.

Miss Joan Fender, the younger sister of the bride, acted as her sister's bridesmaid. She wore a gown identical to that of the matron-of-honor in style, but of a dusty rose color. Both of the bride's attendants carried old-fashioned nosegays of pink rosebuds.

The mother-of-the-bride chose to wear a blue lace dress with white accessories and the groom's mother wore a silk organza over tulle in a beautiful shade of turquoise. Both of the mothers wore a corsage of white mums.

Acting as best man for Joe Fisher was Bob Borsdorf, and Dr. Edwin Nelswander and Bing Flowers were chosen as ushers.

The Church was decorated with white gladiolus and mums on a back ground of fern. Burning tapers lent candlelight beauty to the decorations. In this setting Mrs. Rita Ann Tucker of Tennessee sang the ever popular bridal selection, "Because," prior to the double-ring ceremony officiated by the Rev. Robert Sellers.

After the service a reception was held at the Woman's Club which was artistically decorated with white flowers and candles.

The traditional wedding cake and punch was served from a table overlaid with a lace cloth. Assistants at the reception were Mrs. Marge Nitswander, Mrs. Bettye Mathews, Mrs. Milo Crawford, Mrs. Rita Ann Tucker, Mrs. Catherine Bruce, Mrs. Frances Padgett, and Miss Linda Sue Hart.

Mrs. Joe Fisher wore a white embroidered sheath dress as her going away outfit. She also wore a corsage of flowers from her bridal bouquet.

After a wedding trip, the couple will make their home in DeLand.

Miss Batterson Reveals Final Wedding Plans

Final plans have been announced for the June 23 wedding of Miss Susanne Batterson to Henry F. Richter Jr.

The bride-to-be is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph M. Fahay of Lake Mary and the groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Richter Sr. of Sanford.

Rev. Richard Lyons will officiate at the 9 a. m. ceremony at All Souls Catholic Church.

Miss Batterson has chosen as her maid-of-honor Miss Mary A. Standa of Kernville, Tex. Henry Richter's brother-in-law is to serve as the bestman.

Other members of the bridal party will be the flower girls, Carmen Vales and Billie Lynn Norden; and John Ludwig and John Adams, the ushers.

All friends are invited to attend the service.

Chemise Revives Jeweled Garters

NEW YORK (UPI)—The longer the chemise stays in style, the happier are one bustling garter manufacturer and one conservative jewelry store on Fifth Avenue.

The two, figuring that the abbreviated hemlines of the chemise focus new attention on legs, have combined to revive a fad from grandma's day. Gems for our gams.

Tiffany's, recalling that jeweled garters enjoyed a boom in the 1890's, decided they were just the thing for fall, 1938. The store reasoned that the short, slim skirts show more leg, especially when a woman's getting on a bus or out of a car, and that some decoration would help.

The store provides the jewels and Mrs. Hortense Hewitt, the manufacturer, makes the garter setting. Presumably, the well-to-do male will carry on from there for some of the garters cost as much as $12,000.

Garter Sex Attraction

"Let's face it," said Mrs. Hewitt, "a garter is a sex attraction. When a man knows a woman has one on, he won't rest until he sees it."

Mrs. Hewitt, an affable woman who got into the garter business during World War II, claims to turn out more garters than any other manufacturer—some 25,000 dozen pairs a year. Many of these are bought for brides, and come in traditional blue and white.

But come fall, her line will include budget-priced jeweled garters, with detachable clips or pins of rhinestones and other fake gems.

Tiffany said its files showed that in the 1890's, an average December sale would be 500 pairs of garters, costing anywhere from $2,000 to $5,000 a pair.

How's Fad Spread

The fad spread then, as Mrs. Hewitt hopes it will this fall, to less expensive numbers decorated with silver buckles, antique coins or enamelled flowers.

The jewelry firm said one of its best sellers in the other garter era was a band of ribbon inscribed "bona noi qui mal y pense" (evil unto him who evil thinks). These were the words of King Edward III to a titrating court through in the 14th century when Edward's dancing partner lost her garter.

Edward gallantly picked it up, put it on his own leg, and thus England's "Order of the Garter" was founded. The garter became a badge of chivalry, with knights in jousting tournaments wearing their ladies' garters on their sleeves.

H. Cason Surprised On 19th Birthday

Saturday night Henry Cason called for his girl, Miss Audrey Bolger at her home in Loch Arbor only to be surprised with a birthday party she had planned. Unknown to Henry, Audrey had invited friends, fried chicken, and arranged for an evening of dancing to celebrate his 19th birthday.

With the ever popular cry of "Surprise, Happy Birthday!" the party got off to a terrific start.

Henry received many gifts from the guests which included Miss Connie Brown, Miss Jean Southward, Miss Jackie Kern, Miss Lynda Yeackle, Miss Carol Grenier, Richard Phagan, Virgil Spivey, Johnny Yeackle, Teddy Walker, Hoey Davis, and Gary Baker.

40 Guests Call At Recent Reception For S. Batterson, June 25 Bride-Elect

Mrs. Paul Perold Sr. recently held a reception in honor of Miss Susanne Batterson, bride-elect of June 23.

During the two-hour reception from 8 until 10 p. m. approximately 40 guests had the bride-to-be good wishes for the future.

In the dining room a lovely lace tablecloth, white candles, and gladiolus carried out the traditional bridal color scheme. On the table dainty open-face sandwiches, nuts, and cakes were arrayed. The hostess's daughters, Mrs. Norman Wedekend of DeLand and Mrs. Carlos Raines served punch from a beautiful bowl.

The living room was decorated with yellow flower arrangements and the floral decorations in the reception hall followed a pink trend.

Miss Batterson was presented with a wedding gift from the Pe-dainty open-face sandwiches, nuts,

Barbara Patterson, W. Hosack Wed At Osteen Baptist Church

OSTEEN—Miss Barbara Jean Patterson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C. E. Patterson of Sanford and William V. Hosack, son of Mr. and Mrs. G. C. Hosack, Osteen, were united in marriage June 7 at 4 p. m. at the Osteen Baptist Church.

The Rev. Jose Cardona officiated at the service attended by members of the immediate families.

Mrs. Gerald Hosack served as matron of honor and Gerald Hosack was his son's best man.

The bride wore a gown of white chiffon and net over tulle embroidered with red roses. She wore matching accessories and a flower head band.

Following the service a dinner was served at the Hosack home for the bride and groom, their parents, Mrs. Betty Rowland, the bride's sister; and Miss Janette Hosack.

Mrs. Hosack was a junior at Seminole High School this past year where she was active in the D. C. T. She is now employed at the Sanford Auto Parts, Inc.

Mr. Hosack graduated from Seminole High with the class of '35 and is presently self-employed. The young couple is making their home in Sanford.

EVERY LITTLE BIT HELPS—When your trying for a record fifth win in the U. S. Open every little bit helps as Ben Hogan demonstrates on the 8rd and 4th green. The lady English helped on three which Hogan birdied, but failed on four when he went two over. (UPI Telephoto)

Red China Getting Into Boxing Game

TOKYO — (UPI) — Communist China has moved to revive a man's sport — but gently. The New China News Agency reported that a working National Boxing Championship tourney was held in Peiping "to review China's amateur boxing talent for future international matches."

But, the agency said, "as boxing is a comparatively new sporting event in China, championship of state is prohibited... protective measures."

The agency said that some boxing matches were held in the big cities "before China's liberation in 1949." It added quickly that "owing to the influence of commercialized boxing and foul play, boxing had been regarded as a brutal and dirty sport."

"Protective measures" prescribed by the Chinese officials included using 16-ounce gloves instead of the usual 12-ounce, three two-minute rounds instead of three three-minute rounds and empowering the referee "to call time out in case of bleeding."

Five-year Plan

The officials emphasized, however, that the "protective measures" were temporary and that international regulations will be observed once the boxing are "matured." In fact, the agency reported, some of the better trainers have started sparring sessions according to international rules.

The Chinese, as in almost everything, will move in the boxing game according to a five-year plan. The China Youth News, the agency said, "urged Chinese pugilists to aim for world levels in five years' time." They might, however, enter scores in some international matches "possibly in 1959."

Today's Sports Parade

By OSCAR FRELEY
United Press International
TULSA, Okla. (UPI) — Oscar Freley's fairway facts and figures in the wake of the U. S. Open golf championship.

Tommy Bolt's big secret, as he won America's greatest golf prize, was the breeze which helped many others to his top in sports — take a deep breath when you're in trouble and relax.

Bob Turley of the New York Yankees and Paty Berg, longtime star among the lady golfers, used the same system. It's one of the big factors in Turley's 1957 record this season and a factor convinced Freddie Perry that it's best to ease up in the clutch.

"You're walking too fast," the media advised Paty. "When you reach the ball you're out of breath. Slow down within 25 yards of the ball, size up your shot and you'll play better."

The results are in the record books.

San Asks When

Jimmy Mangrum, once the longest hitter in golf, plays only occasionally now but has the walls of his home lined with pictures of him in his hey-day. Recently, his son, six-year-old Jimmy, Jr., called him to the mat with the question:

"Pop, I thought you were a pro. Well, if so, when are you gonna start playing?"

Lloyd Mangrum is regarded by some as a curt character who always respects the odds in any proposition. He could have made a fortune by allowing a nationwide mail order house to handle his glass-shaft golfball products. But Lloyd's reply was: "I'm a pro, and I can't take the business out of the pro shop." ... tough guy, huh?

Spectators were dropping like flies in the near-100 degree heat as Bolt won at sun-baked Southern Hills. A Volkswagen station wagon was pressed into service to go out on the course and transport victims in the first aid tent or to an ambulance. They put a sign on it which said: "stroke-wagon"... but U. S. Golf Association officials didn't think it dignified and ordered the sign removed.

Oakman Beaten

There was much screaming at Southern Hills about the traps filled with "bath salts" built up as bad as these furovered traps at Oakmont. When Ted Ray played there in 1927, he couldn't find his ball in one furrow but finally remarked:

"Oh, yes, I see it — in row seven."

Player Of The Day

By United Press International
VIR WILSON

Thirty-six-year-old pitcher Jim Wilson of the Chicago White Sox, who now is with the seventh major league team, has been up and down the baseball ladder throughout his entire career.

But on Sunday, with a two-hit, 2-0 shutout over the Baltimore Orioles in the first game of a doubleheader, he came as close to the top as he has been since June 12, 1954. That was the day on which he hit his peak with a no-run, no-hit game for the Milwaukee Braves against the Philadelphia Phillies.

Both of the hits he allowed were singles, and both runners were stranded on the basepaths — on a pickoff play and a double play. He allowed no walks, so he faced the absolute minimum of 27 batters.

It was the sixth win of the year for this veteran who has seen almost everything. He broke in the majors with the Red Sox in 1941, suffered a fractured skull when hit by a Hank Greenberg line drive that same year, and has been battling since then for stardom. With a 15-8 record last year and six wins now, it seems he may have reached his goal.

Not were the greens at 1953 as they were at Oakmont in 1954 when Walter Hagen insisted:

"They're so fast, the ball starts rolling on my backwing."

After it was all over, there was more screaming by Herman Barron. He played two rounds — eight and one-half hours — behind slow-moving Cary Middlecoff and equalizer Gene Sarazen. Two days later, Herman still is insisting that both should be disqualified for slow play.

The "new" ommy Bolt, who doesn't throw clubs or blow his stack when things go wrong, says anyhow he never was over the work in his own family. When Tommy was 12, he and his 'tightly older brother, "J. B.," saved up $15 and bought a second-hand set.

"He missed a shot one afternoon and busted up the whole set," Tommy says. "Even as a pro, I was strictly an amateur."

Louisiana Cleaning 19 Ballplayers Are Reshuffled In Trades

NEW ORLEANS (UPI)—The Louisiana Fish and Fisheries Commission is engaged in "selective poisoning" to rid lakes and streams of "trash" fish and make room for more game fish for anglers.

The poison used is called rotenone, and when it is applied to a bayou near Monroe, La., more than 20 kinds of trash fish, were removed from the bayou.

The shad were buried in the city dump to be used as fertilizer in city park gardens next year.

Game fish in the lake were not harmed by the poisoning. Limit catches of bass, bream, and crappie have been reported at the Bayou since.

A state biologist explained that a body of water, like a piece of land, can produce only a given amount. If a lake is capable of producing 100 pounds of fish, these fish could be all game fish or 50 per cent game and 50 per cent trash fish.

Several lakes in Louisiana were found to be out of balance, and the poisoning program began to rid the lakes of the trash.

The poisoning is carefully controlled by the commission. Private ponds may be treated only after state biologists have checked the ponds. After the dead trash fish are removed, the pond is restocked with game state fish hatcheries.

LOU ANGELES (UP) — The Los Angeles Dodgers came up with a major deal only 20 minutes before the deadline on the West Coast when they sent pitcher Don Newcombe to the Cincinnati Redlegs for first baseman Steve Biko, pitcher Johnny Klippstein and cash.

Newcombe, a 27-game winner in 1958 hadn't won a single game this year for the Dodgers.

Reports that Newcombe was traded here have recurred frequently since the Dodgers picked up and moved to the West Coast.

As part of the deal, Cincinnati optioned pitcher Charlie Rabe to the Dodgers' Montreal club of the International League.

Pitcher Don Beaman was placed on Los Angeles' disabled list at the same time. He has a sore arm.

In other trades which included reshuffling of 19 players before the trading deadline, the Yankees acquired Duke Maas and veteran right-hander Virgil Trucks from the Kansas City Athletics for pitcher Bill Fischer.

Whatever Happened To AMOS STRUNK
By United Press International

Amos Strunk was an American League outfielder for 17 seasons, playing on five pennant winners in two cities. Amos came up with Connie Mack's 1908 Philadelphia Athletics and stayed until 1918.

The A's won four pennants during that span. In 1918, the Red Sox won with Strunk doing outfield duty. His best year at bat was .332 for the White Sox in 1921 and for his 17-year career he shows a mark of .285. Amos wound up his big league stay with 80 games for the A's in 1924.

Whatever happened to Amos Strunk? Now 66, he lives in Llanerch, Pa., a suburb of Philadelphia and is a successful insurance broker.

THE LONE DEPUTY

CHAPTER 24
WHEN PRICE BEGAN to walk, his gun riding easily in the holster, he crossed the river and led to the Rocking C, he came to a decision. Turning across the bridge, he rode toward Cole Weston's ranch that lay half a mile to the north of the line of the river that lifted from the rich meadowland along the river.

Price held his horse down to a walk, his gun riding easily in the holster, his right hand holding the reins, his left at his side. Cole Weston was the kind of man who admired and feared tough, cold courage above all other qualities, and that was what it took to ride into Rocking C alone as Price was doing now. If Price knew his man, he could count on this visit making Weston overly cautious. That, in the end, could well lead to his defeat.

Price followed the lane formed by parallel fences that enclosed the hay fields between the hills and the river. This was strictly a man's ranch, built for efficiency without the slightest hint that a woman lived here. The only break in the harsh landscape was a single cottonwood tree that shaded the hitch rail in front of the house, planted there, perhaps, when Weston had pioneered this ranch a generation ago.

When Price reined up under the cottonwood, he saw that two men were watching him from one of the corrals, both strangers. Three riders were coming down the ridge behind the building.

Now a moment after Price pulled his horse to a stop, Pete Nance came out of the building and moved toward him in slow, deliberate steps.

Price sat his saddle, thinking Weston would come out of the house, but he didn't. The two men who had been in front of the corral disappeared. Except for Nance, Price seemed to be completely ignored.

The gunman stopped twenty feet from Price in the back of the patch of shade, the sun to his back. An usual, he was wearing both gun and hat.

"What do you want, Nance?" Price asked.

"I'm here to see Weston," Price said.

Nance smiled briefly. With easy disdain, he lifted paper and tobacco from his shirt pocket and rolled a smoke, the hot slanting sunlight proving upon his back. He lit the cigarette and slipped it into his mouth, faked around in his pocket for a match, thumbed it to life and touched the flame to the cigarette. He dropped the charred match into the dust, and then, with the cigarette hanging from his lower lip, he said, "Mr. Weston don't want to see you. Not today."

Price understood the game. This was deliberate provocation that didn't seem to be provocation at all. If Price let his temper get away from him and made a foolish move, Nance would hit him and the law wouldn't touch him, if there was any law left to touch him.

So Price played it out, holding a tight rein to his temper. The part that surprised him was the fact that when you looked a man like Cole Weston, you always had someone of Pete Nance's caliber between you and your real enemy.

The silence ran on for a time, Price leaning forward and placing both hands on the saddle horn. He said, "I want to see Weston whether he wants to see me or not."

Again the silence ribboned out, Nance keeping his gaze fixed on Price's face. Finally he said, "I reckon you didn't hear, Nance. Weston don't want to see you today."

Price's right hand dropped to his side as it was within inches of the butt of his gun. He left still on the saddle horn. This, again, was a calculated gambit, for Price had no way of knowing how far Nance was prepared to go, or what his orders had been, or what he didn't think Weston wanted a showdown here.

"I heard you," Price said, "but maybe you didn't hear me. You want to see Weston, or do I get off my horse and go to the door?"

Nance's mouth, bent the cigarette from his lip and dropped it to the ground. He placed the toe of his right foot on it and rubbed it out. All the time his gaze was pinned on Price's face, the faintly smiling a cold expression lingering there.

"I'll call him," he said, and without turning toward the house, he reached his hand to his hip, his hand resting on his gun.

A moment later Weston stalked out of the house, jamming the screen shut, and strode across the yard. He was dusty, unshaven and cranky, his long hair falling across his face. He brushed it back, glaring at Price.

"I was just about to sit down to supper with my wife, Nance. Weston said, 'What do you want?'"

One glance told Price the call was worth while. Weston was worried, he couldn't hide it. His plans for the day had not gone to please him. Price's visit plainly added to that worry, so that talk called for satisfaction.

"Red Sanders was shot and killed today," Price said. "I thought you'd want to know."

Weston was fidgety, whether by the news or because Price had brought the information was something Price couldn't determine.

"Who done it?" Weston demanded.

"I don't know," Price answered. "I thought you might have a notion."

Weston shrugged, his glance shifting to Pete Nance and returning to Price. "For a deputy who's supposed to be able to read signs, you're blinder as a bat. I can tell you what happened. Red was up the Yellow Cat to look into the stealing he's been having. He quarreled with Evans and shot him, and then one of them drifted him. You'd better get back up the Yellow Cat and arrest the one that done it."

"I'm working on it," Price said. "I thought you could send a man after the body and take it home. And tell Mrs. Sanders, seeing as you were a friend of Red's."

"Sure, I'll take care of it," Weston turned toward the house. Price said, "One more thing, Weston. You'd better get back up the Yellow Cat and arrest the one that done it."

Once more Price had taken a calculated gamble. Here he was working for the Posters, Price said. "He left home, stealing their saddle horse. I want him and the horse."

The relief that flowed across Weston's face was painful. "Not much chance I'll see him," Weston said, "but if I'll send him in to you."

"Thanks, Cole," Price said, and touching up his horse, rode away. Prickles played along his spine until he reached the bridge. He didn't think he'd be shot in the back, but Weston was jumpy, so jumpy that anything could happen.

There was nothing more that Price could say. He was suffering the shock that sudden, terrible death brings to those who are left... The story continues Monday, morning ten o'clock to a Sunday.

Love Story

It seems this girl was so crazy about the service she got from her Phillips 66 Dealer that she'd buy only one gallon of Phillips 66 at a time... just so she'd have an excuse to come back often.

It was rather trying for this Phillips 66 Dealer, considering all the free services he provides for every customer on every visit. Brushing out inside the car, for example. Cleaning the windows all around. Checking the tires, battery, and radiator.

It turned out just about as you'd expect. Such an obliging fellow, she decided, would be a handy man around the house. So she hooked him.

Trouble is that Phillips 66 Dealers are so dedicated to their jobs that household chores get short shift. No moral here for wives. Obvious moral for motorists.

Death Rate From Snake Bites Low

By LOUIS CASSELLS
United Press International
WASHINGTON (UPI)—Man has hated and feared snakes since the time of Adam.

And this is the season when both people and snakes get out of their homes to explore the woods, fields and streams.

The U.S. Public Health Service does not know exactly how many people are bitten by snakes each year. It quotes one estimate of 3,000, and says this may be "far too low."

Public Health records do show the number of deaths from poisonous snake-bites. It averages about 14 per year in the United States.

There are two reasons why the death rate is so low:

—Most snakes—and hence most snake-bites—are non-poisonous.

—Prompt treatment of a poisonous snake bite is usually effective. The fatality rate for untreated poisonous snake bites is 10 to 25 per cent.

Dr. Henry M. Parrish of the University of Pittsburgh School of Public Health recently made a detailed analysis of snake bite deaths in all parts of the country. He found:

—August and September are the peak months for snake bites. June and July are close behind.

—Many Victims Children

—Three times as many men as women are bitten.

—Nearly 40 per cent of the victims are children under 15.

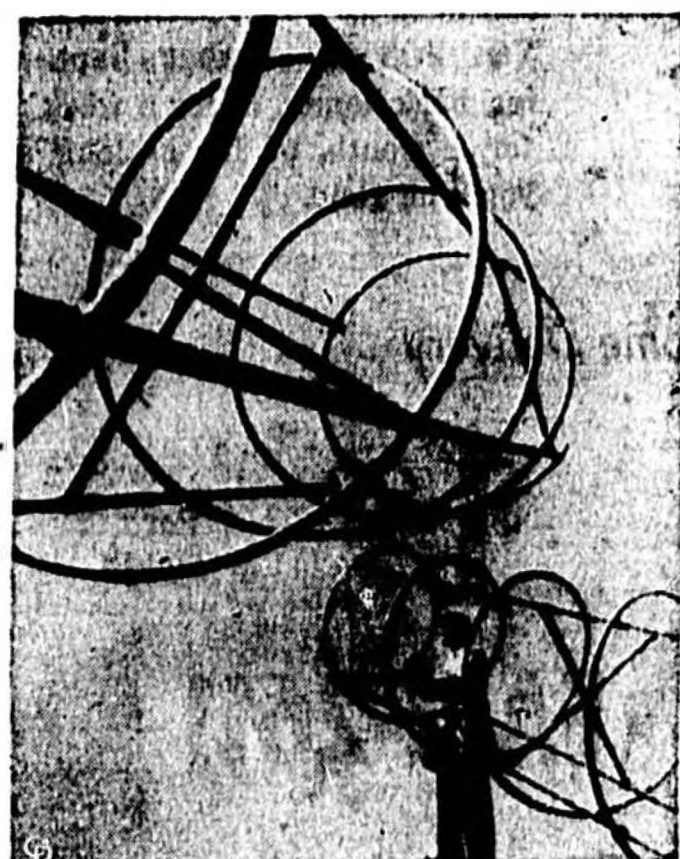

—More than half of the victims are bitten on the foot or lower leg. About 37 per cent are bitten on the hand or lower arm.

Reptile experts at the Washington Zoo said there are 133 known species of snakes in the United States, of which 20 are poisonous. Maine is the only state that is "relatively free" of poisonous snakes, and it has a few timber rattlers. Vermont and New Hampshire have the sparsest snake population after Maine.

The southeastern states, from North Carolina to Texas, have the most kinds of snakes (60) as well as the most snakes.

Without getting into scientific nomenclature, there are four general types of poisonous snakes in this country. They are:

—Rattlesnakes—Every state has one or more varieties. More than three-fourths of all snake-bite deaths are caused by rattlers. The South has the huge and deadly diamondback, which reaches a length of eight feet; the East has the timber rattler; the Great Plains have the prairie rattler;

ANTENNAS MIMED FOR ATLAS—Corkscrew radar antennae aim at outer space over Los Angeles as a scientist at the Ramo-Wooldridge Space Technology Laboratories adjusts them for testing. They were designed to pick up signals from the Air Force Atlas intercontinental ballistic missile in flight at Cape Canaveral, Fla. The signals will provide details on the electronic density of the ionosphere. (International Soundphoto) the Far West has at least 12 nasty specimens.

Copperheads Like Populations
Coral snakes—One species is found in the Southeast, another in Arizona and New Mexico. Water moccasins — sometimes called cottonmouth moccasins. Found in the Southeast from Virginia to Florida, and westward to southern Illinois and Texas. The so-called moccasins of the Northeast is a different, non-poisonous species.

Copperheads — Widely distributed east of the Rockies. Unlike other species which move out when man moves in, copperheads like to remain around habited areas to hunt rats and mice. They inflict more bites than any other poisonous variety but fortunately their venom is comparatively weak and they cause few fatalities.

Here are a few tips from Dr. Doris Cochran, curator of reptiles at the Smithsonian Institution, on how to avoid being bitten by a snake this summer:

"Most people get bitten because they don't look where they are going. Snakes hide under logs, in thick underbrush, and in rocky crevices. If you are climbing, examine a ledge before you thrust your hand into it. If you are walking through the woods, step up on a fallen tree and look before you step over it. Never step or reach into undergrowth without probing first to see if there is a snake there.

Good Protection
"Boots or leggings offer good protection, since snakes rarely strike high.

"Carry flashlight at night and be doubly careful. That's when snakes go prowling in search of food."

Remember, also, that a snake does not have to be coiled in order to strike. That's an old wives' tale.

If, in spite of everything, you are bitten by a poisonous snake, the American Red Cross recommends the following first aid steps:

—Stop all muscular activity at once.

—Apply a tourniquet above the bite. Make it tight enough so that blood barely oozes from the wound, but not so tight as to cut off the flow of deep interior vessels.

—Sterilize a knife blade with a match and make cross-cut incisions at each fang mark. Try to get one incision into the actual venom deposit, which probably will be below the fang marks (a

Suck the wound (never mind about cuts in your mouth) for an hour or more.

Get the victim to a doctor or hospital fast for an anti-venom injection.

Fellows Little

By ELYS C. WELSON
United Press International
WASHINGTON (UPI) — Not a tear will be shed nor much political oratory uttered in this campaign year for taxpayers other than the vast multitude of those usually described by voracious politicians as the little fellows.
There are more little fellows than big fellows and there are more small businesses than big businesses. So the politicians usually make it their business to shed their tax tears where the most voters are likely to be irrigated.
That probably is good short haul politics although it may not do full justice to the tax facts of life. There are, however, other tax points of view. One of the most startling stated since U. S. taxes have become really oppressive and in some areas actually confiscatory came from T. Coleman Andrews of Virginia, who used to be the head U. S. tax collector.
Andrews was President Eisenhower's first commissioner of Internal Revenue. The job in what Andrews had to say was this:
Every Body Overtaxed
"Whether you believe it or not, everybody is being overtaxed and the middle class is being taxed out of existence. Things are mighty serious. Larger business of the income tax, big business and 'substantial folks' are beginning to disappear. Time's a-wasting, and the economies of the way of life that we cherish rejoice as we are obligingly led closer to national suicide."
Where the middle class begins and where it ends is not exactly definable. The middle class, itself however, accurately can be defined as the basic human structure of any modern, free nation. If that basic structure is being taxed out of existence, then the phrase national suicide as Andrews used it is not too alarmist.
The June issue of the Freeman, published Education Inc., contributes some statistics which relate largely to the middle class and its taxes.
"Inflation has aggravated the tax situation," says the Freeman, "with the result that to have the same buying power after income tax an individual's $8,000 income earned in 1940 would now have to be nearly 2.3 times as great; but a $10,000 income would have to be 2.3 times and a $50,000 income would have to be 2.8 times as great."
Sounds Utopian
The Tax Foundation Inc. of New York examined the tax plight of the man who earns $8 a week, $4,480 a year, under this headline:
"A 2 3/4-hour work week!"
"This 2 3/4-hour work week sounds Utopian," the Tax Foundation observed, "but a lot of Americans do work now about 2 3/4 hours of their 40-hour work week to provide food, clothing, housing, etc. for themselves and their families."
"The rest of the work week—a little over 1 1/2 days or 12 1/2 hours—goes to pay the cost of government. Goes for taxes!"

Social Security Rep To Visit

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The social security system is in sound financial condition even though it will show out more than it takes in over the next five years, it has been reported.
Authorities figure the old-age and survivors insurance trust fund will drop from its current $25,000,000,000 to possibly 19 billion dollars by 1962.
They said the dip was due to increase benefit payments, partly induced by the current economic recession.
For all practical purposes, the authorities insisted however, the system "remains in balance."
This reassuring report was made to the President and to Congress by the system's board of trustees.
The board predicted the trust fund's dollar decline was only a "temporary" condition. It said the fund will show an upward trend after scheduled tax increases go into effect in 1957, and continue to rise up thereafter.
"The system is soundly financed for the foreseeable future," the report, concluded.

Chuckles In The News

By United Press International
CHICAGO (UPI)—A recession-conscious exhibitor tacked beautifully lettered signs on all of his paintings at the "Old Town Art Fair" here. The signs read: "You Art to Buy Now."
WEDDING TRIP
CARMEL, Calif. (UPI)—The wedding of socialite Armour Smith and Miss Bonnie Dickason went off like a charm, with one slight exception.
After the ceremony, the hundreds of guests drove off to a reception on the other side of town—leaving the bride and groom stranded. So they hitchhiked.
PERSONAL INTEREST
CHICAGO (UPI)—Red-faced officials of the National Detective Bureau have a top priority case on their hands. Burglars broke into the firm's office and escaped with an undetermined amount of cash.
NO PLACE LIKE HOME
COVENTRY, England (UPI)—Mr. and Mrs. Gardner Samuel Lunde, returning after their first night out since their baby was born two weeks ago, found they would be stay-at-homes from now on.
They found that bailiffs had carted off their furniture in mistake for someone else's.

Personal Income Predicted To Hit New Peak In '58

BOSTON (UPI)—Personal income will reach a new peak this year though earnings and dividends will decline slightly, a Boston economic research agency has predicted.
The "worst is over" in the recession, United Business Service said in an analysis of its findings. The service predicted that business activity "will more roughly sidestep this summer" than "definitely turn upward in the fall."
UBS said personal income in 1956 would reach a peak of $45 billion dollars compared with $43 billion dollars last year.
The service said that average corporation earnings would decline 20 per cent from the 1955 level, resulting in a 2 per cent decrease in payments to stockholders.
TAIPEI, Formosa (UPI)—A postman ran up to a passenger train the other day as it was pulling out of the station at Chiayi.
Through a window, he handed a special delivery letter to Miss Lin Pao-chu, addressed to her in care of Seat No. 48, Train No. 3001.
SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—Some 25 delegates to the electrical contractor's convention were forced to finish their dinner by candlelight at the Owl 'n' Turtle restaurant Wednesday night, when about half way through the meal, the lights went out.

Boy Frightened To Death By Dog

LORAIN, Ohio (UPI)—A doctor said that 4-year-old Gary Diao was literally frightened to death when a dog leaped on him at a graduation party for the boy's aunt.
Gary was attending a party for 18-year-old Ronald Kritis with his parents and had been playing with the dog, Ginger, in the Kritis basement. Suddenly the dog leaped at the boy and scratched his face.
Gary ran upstairs to his father, his heart pounding, and fell limp in his father's arms. The father, Faust Diao, 41, said the boy's lips were purple.
Gary was rushed to the hospital, where doctors opened his chest and massaged his heart. The boy responded for a brief period but died early today.
Dr. Peter J. Ferrato said the boy was "frightened to death by the dog."

THE CARD OF THANKS

Very often a Card of Thanks in the Sanford Herald meets a need which is difficult to fill in any other way. Not only is it a gracious expression of gratitude to those who have been generous but also a courteous acknowledgment of services and kindnesses of the many to whom a personal note of thanks cannot well be mailed.

Newspaper Cards of Thanks are accepted as socially correct. Emily Post, the noted authority on etiquette, feels they serve many good uses.

There is no prescribed form for a Card of Thanks. It can be as brief or as detailed as you desire. When the occasion comes you will find a sympathetically understanding member of our staff to assist you.

THE "IN MEMORIAM" NOTICE

It is the custom of many families in this country to commemorate a bereavement by an "In Memoriam" notice in newspaper classified columns. They find a real solace therein. Preservation of a selection of a suitable verse brings back to them tender, pleasant recollections. As Eliza Cook, the English poet has so beautifully expressed it:

"How cruelly sweet are the echoes
That start
What memory plays an old tune
On the heart?"

Most frequently an In Memoriam is inserted on the anniversary of death. However, other dates, which it is felt are appropriate or meaningful are also selected. The birthday of the departed, the wedding anniversary, Memorial Day, even Christmas are among other significant occasions chosen.

If you are hesitant to express your tender thoughts in poetic verse, these express in poetic beauty the emotions of the heart strings. Among them are verses appropriate to any circumstance.

THIS RATE:
Cards of Thanks and In Memoriam notices, due to the fact they may run to considerable length, are billed at $1.00 per column inch.
