THE SEVEN SEAS: No strolls down tree-shaded streets on this campus.

Students Who 'Wash Out' Here Find Selves In Deep Trouble

NEW YORK (NEA)—The student who returns late to his dormitory at a newly established college may discover that his campus has sailed several hundred miles away.

The founders of the University of the Seven Seas, a floating, earth-girdling alma mater, admit that this problem may arise but they are not too worried about it. The campus float is due to sail from New York on Oct. 22, bearing the student body to the high seas for the first semester of classes.

According to the executive director, Dr. E. Ray Nichols Jr., the 400-foot Seven Seas is to be a "world laboratory." It will be run as a true university, not as a pleasure cruise ship.

Both undergraduate and graduate students may enroll in such varied courses as dance, business administration, oceanography. A side advantage, Dr. Nichols experts, will be that students will get acquainted with the people and systems of the countries which the University visits.

The ship's ports of call during its planned 110-day semester include Lisbon, Beirut, Port Said, Singapore, Yokohama, Honolulu and finally, San Diego.

The second cruise leaves from San Diego and will include South African and South American stops.

Dr. Nichols, a former naval commander, says the idea of a floating school isn't new. "During World War II, we used to blueprint such a venture to while away the time during cruises. In the 1920s there was an eight-months' school cruise, but it fizzled," he explained.

It remained for a group of Rotarians in Whittier, Calif., to endorse the idea and get the university out of port and onto the high seas. Sponsors hope to tie in eventually with a landbased university. And, 100 acres near San Diego has been donated for this purpose.

The University of the Seven Seas has been recognized by the State of California to grant credits and issue transcripts.

It is up to other colleges and universities to accept them and issue degrees.

What happens, Dr. Nichols was asked, when you have 500 collegians floating around the world in relatively confined quarters? "We had a short Caribbean cruise last year," Dr. Nichols says, "and it worked out splendidly."

"And, you must remember," he notes with the sly smile of a college dean, "we have a captive audience." A student who misbehaves may find himself being shipped home—probably at his parents' expense.

Or, with their limited visas, students who jump ship will be left to the local United States consulate's tender mercies, "although we will try to see that they catch up with us in the next port."

100 Attend Program

By Donna Estes

More than 100 persons and friends attended the closing exercises of the Vacation Bible School last Friday evening at the First Pentecostal Church in Longwood.

Theme of the school was "Christ's Way, My Way."

The program for the evening began with a Pledge to the flag by Carol Todd and the Pledge to the Bible led by Margie Kennedy. The choir sang several selections with solo parts sung by Sheila Young, Mary Massey, Melinda Barker, Pamela French, Terry and Bruce Carver, Robbie and Clara Barker and Patsy Ruth Grant.

At the conclusion of the program the parents viewed exhibits of the children's handiwork, met the teachers and were served refreshments.

Rev. Makin To Return

Rev. Thomas H. Makin, pastor of St. Andrews Presbyterian Church in Bear Lake, has returned from his vacation and will conduct this Sunday's 11 a. m. worship service.

Work has been completed on clearing the property site for St. Andrews and a good view of the terrain on Bear Lake Road is now possible.

The church recently conducted a Vacation Bible School with a record attendance. Mrs. C. C. Jones was director. Those assisting were Mrs. John Kirk, Mrs. L. C. Tinsley, Mrs. Willis Kelfer, Mrs. William McMahan, Mrs. L. Olsen, Mrs. Hal Gettings, Mrs. Arthur Patrick, Mrs. James C. White, Mrs. Jerry Riddel, Mrs. Henry Essick, Mrs. George Wehr, Mrs. E. C. Colbert and Mrs. Elizabeth Rose.

'Tomorrow - Minded' Homes Are Offered

No need to live in a "some day" world. That day is here now in homes of tomorrow to be seen at various locations around the Seminole County area.

Featured this week for the "tomorrow-minded" is the luxury home at Idyllwilde of Loch Arbor which features three bedrooms and two baths, a combination dining room and family room, an enclosed two-car garage, and complete all weather heating and cooling system.

This is another of the famous Shoemaker Construction Company homes that have made Idyllwilde homes the "homes of distinction."

Home sites, for building similar homes and others fit for a king, are available in Greenbriar of Loch Arbor, by Kingswood Builders. These large home sites are just right for the custom construction of the luxury type of homes that one thinks of in connection with the world of tomorrow. There are still two homes left for sale in the Tee 'N' Green Estates area, north of the Mayfair Country Club and a number under construction in the Lake Wayman Estates section of Longwood. Cavalcade of Homes features luxury suburban homes in the quiet countryside south of Lake Mary in Country Club Estates.

Here on this page you will find a handy guide map to show you the way to find all of these homes and home sites, so that you may visit them and see for yourself all the fine features which Seminole County builders have incorporated for you.

WARNING TO MOTORISTS: SCHOOLS OPEN TOMORROW, TUESDAY! Don't forget the 15 mph speed zones adjacent to the schools. So, you do the thinking for the school children who expect you to look out for them.

The Herald mechanical department has a safety sign posted which carries a terrific impact: "Protect your eyes—ask the man who has ONE!"

Rain soaked the Sanford area between 4:30 and 5 this morning. Ernie Lundberg, assistant county agent, reported his rain gauge at his home recorded 2 of an inch but Sanford Naval Air Station reported .35 of an inch. Florida Power and Light reported lightning knocked out power for 1 1/2 hours in the Floral Heights area.

Ten A-5A "Vigilante" attack planes will dash across the Sanford sky Tuesday afternoon, announcing the homecoming of Heavy Attack Squadron 7 after a seven-month cruise with the Second and Sixth Fleets in the Mediterranean.

Groundbreaking ceremonies for the $5.5 million, 100-acre Glis' Town are scheduled for 2 p. m. Tuesday at North Orlando.

State Sen. John Mathews, voted the most valuable senator by the State Legislature this year, will be the speaker at the Kiwanis Club meeting Wednesday noon at the Civic Center. The State Supreme Court is slated to hear Friday Mathews' petition as to whether he may run for governor in the 1964 election. The lower courts have upheld Mathews' petition, resulting from a new law concerning the governor's salary hike.

Mrs. Mildred C. Jones, of 1206 West 20th Street, has completed a three-year course with the Famous Artists Schools of Westport, Conn.

Alcoholics Anonymous is launching a series of meetings at 8 p. m. Mondays and Thursdays at the headquarters, 1201 West First Street.

City refuse collectors will be on a double schedule Tuesday, having been granted a holiday today along with all other city employees excepting police, firemen and emergency crews. Courthouse was closed, too, excepting the sheriff's department. As were banks, most business houses and the postoffice was on a limited schedule, with only special deliveries.

Cecil Tucker, county agent, Ernie Lundberg, assistant agent, and Myrtle Wilson, home demonstration agent, will attend a week-long extension workers statewide conference Sept. 16-20 at Gainesville. One of the speakers will be Capt. Eddie Rickenbacker, renowned air authority.

Although Sanford was pounded with a good rain early today other parts of the county missed. For instance, Forest City hasn't had a drop of rain in two weeks.

Sheriff's department reported this morning only minor traffic problems over the weekend (at this time a.m. today writing). The deputies said it was noticeable that most automobiles were keeping their speeds down to 30 miles per hour or less. Yet UPI reported elsewhere in the state and nation six deaths an hour in traffic were being recorded. Appears our local motorists are heeding repeated warnings "to take it easy."

By the by, that item last week which read "five cents for an extra half pint" should have been a little more explicit. The article dealt with milk to be provided with school lunches, starting with the opening of school Tuesday. Some of our wits around this newspaper asked: "Five cents for a half pint of what?"

29,500 Pupils Seen In Seminole By 1970

By Dorothy Austin
The 14,500 students now enrolled in Seminole County public schools for the 1965-66 session will have risen to 29,500 by 1970, former state senator Douglas Stenstrom told members of the Seminole County Education Association.

"Ten years ago there were 5,200 students in our schools and since that time we have had to add 300 classrooms and as many new teachers," Stenstrom pointed out.

"By 1970 when our school population will have doubled we will have to build 500 more classrooms and hire that many more teachers, so you can see that Seminole County is not going to stand still and there is much work and planning to be done, if this growth is going to be kept as orderly as possible."

Stenstrom is chairman of the long-range planning committee for the Seminole County Chamber of Commerce and is a member of the East Central Florida Regional Planning Council.

"They can call you 'teacher,' give you a classroom and give you students, but that doesn't make you a teacher. It's what's in your heart. Teaching is a serious responsibility and an important business," Stenstrom said.

Stenstrom noted that Seminole County is the only East Central Florida county that does not have some institution of higher learning.

"We've got just as good a chance as any other county to get this new science university and don't let anyone tell you any different," Stenstrom admonished.

"We are living in a time different from anything we ever saw before, and contrary to what you have heard, Seminole County will continue to grow. We have just as smart people here as anywhere else and just as good leadership."

"There will be close to 100,000 people in Seminole County by 1970," Stenstrom predicted.

"Only 45 of the 3,000 families in the nation grew faster than Seminole County in the past 10 years. We have maintained a steady increase of 12 per cent a year since 1956," he pointed out.

"This Central Florida area is the most important area in the nation, maybe in the world," Stenstrom emphasized. "It is important that we do quite a bit of planning—for roads, schools, buildings, recreation and every phase of activity that will take place here in the next seven years."

He Thought Daughter Was "Playing Joke"
CALEXICO, Calif. (UPI)—A trick shot artist who accidentally killed his teenage daughter during a shooting exhibition today was expected to be cleared of any wrongdoing.

"It was an accident," in investigating policeman Andy De Lira said today. "The witnesses will attest to that."

Marilyn Ploof, 15, was shot in the forehead Sunday at the Calexico gun range during part of a show she and her father had performed countless times without accident. She stood with two balloons attached by a band to her head.

Her father, Milo Ploof, 39, moved to a distance of 20 feet to fire 38-caliber guns, and burst the balloons simultaneously.

She had performed the stunt, as well as one already completed—in which Ploof split a piece of chalk she held between her teeth—so often she stood completely composed, with no discernible movement.

But Sunday something went wrong.

When Ploof fired, a bullet from the gun in his right hand struck his 13-year-old daughter in the top of the head.

The 5-foot-7 girl slumped to the ground without uttering a sound.

"I thought she was playing a joke," Ploof told policeman Andy De Lira.

But when Ploof reached her side, he saw blood spurting from the wound.

"You're going to be all right, baby," Ploof said, his voice still strong and firm. But Marilyn apparently never heard him. She was pronounced dead within minutes at Calexico Hospital.

Before the tragedy, Ploof had shot a piece of chalk from Marilyn's mouth. His next trick was to turn his back on his daughter and then with the aid of a mirror, shoot a cigarette from her mouth.

Ploof apparently did not understand fully what happened for hours. "He's been given sedation, but I don't think he comprehended it," police said.

Deaths Push Toward New Record

Wallace Shuts Tuskegee School To 'Keep Peace'

MONTGOMERY, Ala. (UPI)—Gov. George Wallace today ordered a white school in Tuskegee, Ala., which was scheduled to admit 13 Negroes to postpone its opening for one week.

Wallace issued an executive order less than an hour before the 13 Negroes—eight girls and five boys—were to have entered the all-white Tuskegee public school, the town's only school for whites.

Wallace, in defying a federal court order to admit the Negroes, said his order was for the "sole purpose of allowing the governor of the state of Alabama to preserve the peace and maintain domestic tranquility and to protect the lives and property of all citizens of Alabama."

Wallace's legal advisor, Cecil Jackson Jr., said he did not know whether Wallace would issue a similar order affecting schools to be integrated in Huntsville Tuesday and in Birmingham and Mobile—the state's most populous areas—Wednesday.

Wallace was in Tusculuma—200 miles north of here—for a Labor Day celebration and could not be reached by telephone.

His order was announced here.

Shortly after sunrise, 20 Highway Patrol cars converged on the country farming town of Tuskegee where Negro leader Booker T. Washington wrote his book "Up From Slavery." The state troopers were directed by Public Safety Director Al Lingo.

The 13 Negroes would have been the first of their race to enter a public school below the college level in Alabama.

Off the Job for One Day Only

Miss America Week Begins

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J. (UPI)—It's that time again, and this resort city—the original bathing beauty mecca—today dusted off its famed boardwalk for the 37th annual Miss America pageant.

Singly and in twos and threes a total of 32 young and hopeful beauties filed into the spotlight that five days hence will shine on one of them alone.

She will have been chosen Miss America 1964 and will reign for one year. She will earn about $100,000 and travel thousands of miles in the performance of her duties, which consist generally of merely making an appearance somewhere in the United States and perhaps saying a few words.

Today is registration day, when the contestants sign in and learn officially what is in store for them during the next five days.

Many of the girls arrived during the weekend to look over Convention Hall, where the contests in various categories will be held, and to prepare themselves for the ordeal ahead.

At registration the candidates learn that they will be 32 busy young ladies until the windup Saturday night before a nationwide television book-up.

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The possibility of another crisis in the railroad dispute next March, generating new threats of a nationwide strike, has not been ruled out by administration officials.

Traffic Toll Of 584 Seen By Midnight

By United Press International
The long Labor Day weekend moved into its final day today and millions of Americans raced death horns across the nation's highways. The traffic toll pushed beyond the 400 mark toward a new record.

The National Safety Council said the highway death rate increased during the night and the toll may reach 684 by the end of the holiday at midnight tonight.

The old Labor Day record of 601 deaths was set last year.

The holiday weekend spelled the end of beach parties and vacations for many Americans and the start of a new school year for others. Thousands of families braved the crowded highways for a last brief visit with summer.

The Safety Council warned that the miles nearest to home, when tiredness and impatience catch up with holiday drivers, are the most dangerous.

A United Press International count at 10:30 a. m. EDT showed at least 408 persons dead in traffic accidents since the holiday started at 6 p. m. local time Friday.

The toll from all types of holiday-connected accidents reached 471.

The breakdown: Traffic 403; Drownings 39; Boating 2; Planes 5; and Miscellaneous 63.

Total 500.

California led the nation with 40 traffic deaths. There were 23 fatalities in Texas, 21 in Michigan, 20 in Illinois, 18 in New York and North Carolina.

Eight Injured, Horse Killed

A horse was killed and eight persons were treated for injuries at Seminole Memorial Hospital as the result of a series of traffic accidents over the weekend in the Sanford area.

Raymond C. Little, 22, of Grand Island, and his passenger, James Mann, of Leesburg, were injured when their car struck the horse on SR 44 west of Sanford. Trooper J. L. Sikes said the horse passed over the car.

George E. Elliott, 51, of 616 East Third Street, suffered facial injuries in a collision with the parked car of Alice Snoddy at 567 1/2 Park Avenue. Lucy Wilson, 1099 West Eighth Street, was injured in a collision between her car and one driven by Lawrence H. Thompson, 21, of 118 Academy Avenue, at 11th Street and Pecan Avenue.

Four persons of one Daytona Beach family were injured in a three-car collision at 13th Street and French Avenue. They were Thomas J. Parks, 41; Gladys Parks, 43, and Rufus and Charles Parks.

A police cruiser driven by Patrolman Donald Brunley was damaged extensively when struck at 13th Street and Elm Avenue as Brunley was proceeding to investigate another accident. Driver of the car hitting the police cruiser was reported by Trooper Bill Stringfield as Beatrice Clark, 2018 West 23rd Street.

London Observer Kids 'Hot Line'

LONDON (UPI)—The London Observer carried this headline on its story about the new "hot line" linking Moscow and Washington: "Daddy's Just Coming, Mr. Khrushchev."

The dispatch did not mention President Kennedy's five-year-old daughter, Caroline.

Fred W. Short Funeral Today

Fred W. Short, 73, died at an Orlando Hospital Friday after a lingering illness.

Born in Sarina, Ontario, Canada, on April 30, 1890, Short later moved to Westport, Conn., then to Winter Park and has lived on Lake Mary Boulevard for the past 12 years.

He was for 35 years supervisor of stores with the S. B. Kresge Company from which he retired in 1943. He was a veteran of World War I. Short is survived by his wife, Mrs. Emily W. Short, of Lake Mary.

SHOW STOPPERS. One of the star attractions of the home-grown vaudeville revue to be seen at the Ritz Theater, Tuesday at 7:30 p.m. will be the Ivey Trio. This versatile folk-singing group has already been a smash hit in their many public appearances over the past year and a half. From left are Jimmy Touhy, Louise Higginbotham and Jack Ivey. All proceeds of the benefit show and movie go toward the Rotary Club's Pediatric Ward Project. (Herald Photo)

Rotary Club's Vaudeville Show Will Benefit Hospital Wing

The stage of the Ritz Theater will resound once again with the music of vaudeville performers as it did in Tuesday to the feet of vaudeville stars in the past several days of their vaudeville shows, musical comedies and touring road shows performed there regularly.

In addition, Seminole County will have the privilege of seeing a premier first-run movie, "A New Kind of Love," starring the husband-wife team, Paul Newman and Joanne Woodward, following the vaudeville show.

Curtain will rise on the stage show at 7:30 p.m., with show patrons receiving the red-carpet treatment as they enter, with spotlights and even attendants to park cars.

The vaudeville show and the movie are being presented by the Sanford Rotary Club, as a charity benefit to raise funds for the equipping and furnishing of the pediatric ward at Seminole Memorial Hospital, through the cooperation of Theater Manager Bill Lovelace.

Tickets are now on sale by any member of the Rotary Club and at the Ritz Theater.

Headliners of the amateur vaudeville show will all be talented local performers including:

The Ivey Trio, starring Jack Ivey, Louise Higginbotham and Jim Touhy in folk songs, Hootenanny style; The Populaires, a well-known orchestral combo, famous for their routines; Miss Patty Glenn Johnson, runner-up in the "Jeannie With the Light Brown Hair" competition at the Stephen Foster Memorial Festival last year, with romantic ballads in her lyric soprano voice; Gloria and Karen Greens in their South Sea Island hula dances in exciting native costumes;

The Whistlers, a surprise show featured, put on by the men of the Moose Club. The hilarity of this number is enhanced by not revealing the nature of the act.

Master of ceremonies for the show will be George Touhy and between acts music will be provided by Nick Pfeiffert at the console of the Hammond organ supplied by the Keller Music Company of Orlando.

Lighting arrangements are under the direction of E. C. Harper Jr., of Sanford Electric Company, and Bob Crumley is chairman of the vaudeville show arrangements. Dr. E.H. White is in charge of the special car-parking service.

Unfortunately, many students when they study don't seem to realize that books and television are different; they try to study as though they were watching television.

To make the difference clear, let's take a minute for review. You'll recall that as we've talked about textbooks, we've stressed the necessity of studying in spurts, of over-viewing for the main idea, of trying to get the most out of the maps and graphs, then of dipping deeper and deeper into the text until you're finally down to the smallest details. This is work; it's an active thinking process.

But when you watch a television set, everything's done for you. There's a picture, sound and generally a light story. You can turn off your brain and let the television do the work.

Watching television is essentially a passive process. There's nothing wrong with that. As a matter of fact, it's good to relax that way at times. But don't try to study that way!

Lots of students approach a book passively. They figure that if they have 50 pages of studying to do, all they need do is sit down, turn off their brains, and look at all the words. It just doesn't work. A book isn't a television set.

A book can organize material for you but it's up to you to dig the facts out of the pages; you'll have to do the work. If you work hard and actively, using the techniques we've been discussing—surveying, thinking and restating—you'll get at the facts. But if you wait for the facts to come to you... well, it'll be a long wait.

The best way to be sure you're reading actively is to develop yourself into a questioning reader. Before you start, quiz yourself: What do you think you know about the topic? What do you expect this chapter to add to your knowledge? During your first survey, try to answer the questions, Who? What? Where? When? Why? How? On the second survey, ask the same questions, but answer the ones you didn't get the first time around.

By your third chapter survey (the first sentence of each paragraph), you should have particular questions on the chapter to be answered. During the rapid reading of the entire text, turn the first sentence of each paragraph into a question—just invert it—and answer it from the body of the paragraph. And then you're ready for the details—ask yourself which details can you figure out for yourself. Which ones need to be memorized?

It's not really important which questions you ask. (Some students find role-playing very effective. If you were the Duke of Wellington, how would you attack Napoleon?) But it is important that you ask questions, that you're active, involved and thinking. When you're all finished, you can watch television and turn off your brain again.

(NEXT: The why, when and how of memorizing.)

Altamonte Scouts Hold Court Of Honor

By Julia Bartow

A Court of Honor was held by Altamonte Springs Boy Scout Troop 38 during a recent weekend camp at Rock Springs Park.

Festivities for the occasion started with a picnic supper and social for the boys and their parents and guests.

After the supper the boys returned to their camping area where the guests later were greeted for the ceremonies by three members of the Kaliga Chapter of the Order of the Arrow who were dressed in authentic Indian costume and were carrying flaming torches.

Guests were escorted through the dark wooded area to the Council Fire where they were joined by members of the troop for the program of Indian dances, songs and skits.

Advancements in rank and merit badges, many of them earned during summer camp, were awarded to the scouts at various intervals in the program.

Those receiving advancement in rank were Bruce Stuart, Gary Garashe, life scout; Jack Simunek, first class; James Branson, Stuart James, Gerald Crocker, Michael Hedrick and Donald Paulsen, second class.

Merit badges went to Gary Garashe, nature, first aid and pioneering; Raymond Gaines, first aid, nature and soil and water conservation; James Fuller, nature; Micky Hawks, pioneering, camping, rowing, swimming and cooking; Mike Rickett, nature, first aid and home repairs;

Donald Paulsen, camping, personal fitness, cooking, first aid, swimming and canoeing; Gerald Crocker, rowing, personal fitness, camping, cooking, swimming and pioneering.

Badges in rowing, swimming, first aid and camping went to Jack Simunek who also completed the one mile swim to receive the mile swim card and badge.

Parents Invited To Take Part In Reading Program

Parents of Seminole Junior High School students are invited this year to take part in the reading program offered by the school, Principal Hugh Carlton announced today.

Seeking to work more closely with pupils and parents, the reading teachers are prepared to have meetings and individual conferences with the parents.

In the program for the students, individual files of each one reading progress of each one will be kept to acquaint the parents with the student's problems as well as his progress.

A diagnostic reading chart is filled out as soon as the child enters the class. It reveals the reading ability at time of entrance in his grade. It tells of the child's present level. At what level is he reading to get the most out of what he sees? How well does he read? Does he understand what he reads?

These answers the teacher must know at the start. Is he reading at the pleasure level where he is enjoying 90 per cent comprehension, or is it the instructional level with a minimum of 75 per cent comprehension, or is it the frustration level with comprehension of no more than 50 per cent—a level so emotionally upsetting to so many?

To arrive at these conclusions the teacher must diagnose the student by finding out defects and habits that hinder his reading.

Once this information is established, a definite series of exercises can be planned to correct them.

More advanced readers will be offered the Craig Reader a mechanical device designed to step up reading speed and comprehension.

Finally there is a library within the reading department of approximately 900 low level—high interest books on every subject.

All-American Day

Labor Day is such a familiar fixture on the national calendar that it is somewhat surprising to realize it is one of our most recent holidays.

True, the first Labor Day was held in New York City as far back as 1882, and by 1894 Congress had legitimized the observance in the territories and District of Columbia. Yet only for the past 40 years have all the states officially observed it.

Four decades is a short time in the life of a nation, even one so young as the United States. But Labor Day is firmly established as a national habit.

Undoubtedly this is because the holiday has come to mark the end of summer in our minds, with schools starting up immediately afterward and families split up into their various pursuits.

It's the last holiday until Thanksgiving, a long three-day weekend just made for a short trip or an outing, perhaps it's an opportunity to finish those chores around the house that have been put off all summer.

This is so much the case that most of us never think of the original reason for the day — that it was established as a recognition of and tribute to the American laboring man. But though we still call it Labor Day, it is no longer labor's day.

Very few, even those of us who carry union cards, will attend a labor rally today. Few cities have parades any more. Yet at one time, Labor Day was a magnet drawing folks downtown to the park to listen to the band and speeches and shoot off the fireworks left over from the Fourth of July.

On one hand, it is regrettable that the American scene has changed so much, that we tend nowadays to retreat from each other into our immediate families, that Labor Day has become a private public holiday.

On the other hand, this change in Labor Day is part of the penalty of success for the labor movement—and for America. With recognition of labor has come the loss of a certain militancy, a certain separatism from "other" Americans.

No, Labor Day is no longer labor's day alone. It belongs to all Americans, for all of us are laborers in the sense that the work we do contributes to the country's strength.

Perhaps the name "Labor Day" is a little anachronistic in 1963, almost a misnomer. The word "labor" is quite broad enough to encompass the meaning the holiday has acquired.

It should have a name that tells the world just what free Americans have accomplished for the working man, what we have achieved in the way of the good things in life—not just material comforts but the basic freedoms so much of the world has never known.

The name for this day should tell the world how we honor the working, doing, accomplishing man by casually taking a day off from the routine, not by massing ranks of uniformed labor operators or high school cadets and parading them in front of our "maximum leaders."

Still, maybe we don't really need a new name for the holiday. We all know what Labor Day means.

KNOCKING—OFF FOR THE DAY

Peter Edson

Political Notebook

WASHINGTON (NEA) — 1964.

Every Labor Day finds the American labor situation more confused than it was the year before.

But this is partly paradox. The confusion is not worse. It's just that there is more of it as everything grows bigger.

Actually, more people are employed at higher wages and under better working conditions than ever before in the country's history.

In June the average weekly earnings of factory workers passed the $100 mark for the first time in history.

The minimum wage for workers in interstate commerce industries goes from $1.15 to $1.25 an hour on Sept. 3. The maximum work week will drop to 44 hours at the same time, with overtime bringing one- and one-half times the basic rate.

This will affect about 24 million of the 44 million non-supervisory employees of private industry. Minimum wage for another 3.5 million workers previously not covered by the Fair Labor Standards Act will rise to $1 an hour. This will leave another 16.5 million workers still uncovered by the act.

A law passed last year, requiring equal pay for women doing the same work as men, will go into effect June 11.

Farm employment at eight million workers in July was just half of what it was in the 1910-14 base period. But farm labor earnings are nearly seven times higher than they were 50 years ago.

Those are the high lights on the credit side of the ledger. The problems of the unfortunate who troubles haven't been solved make up the debit entries. And the inventory of their woes is a constant reminder of what still needs to be done.

The roughly 6 per cent of the nonfarm labor force unemployed—more than four million out of 70 million workers—constitutes the worst blot on the economic landscape.

In all, 14 million workers were unemployed for at least part of last year.

The real underlying cause of unemployment is lack of basic education and training in advanced skills for which there are actual shortages of qualified workers.

The cure for this would seem to be in the nation's school systems and institutions of higher learning—not in labor laws.

But the devices government has come up with to reduce unemployment—public works, manpower training and development, depressed area re-development and Social Security—have so far proved inadequate.

Nor have management and labor been too helpful. Restrictive union practices on membership and apprenticeship have cut down job opportunities.

It is only recently that the United States Chamber of Commerce has set up a committee to study unemployment. The President's Labor-Management Commission has labored for more than two years without appreciative results.

The problems of technological unemployment—loss of jobs through automation—have been creeping up on American industry since the end of World War II.

The Department of Labor estimates that 35,000 workers are being displaced by machines every week.

This situation has not been dealt with except in a few pioneering contracts—Kaiser Steel, American Motors, the West Coast longshoremen's union. A joint resolution authorizing creation of still another government commission to study the issue and report is now gathering dust in Congress.

The four-year-old controversy over railroad work rules and job security was basically a matter of technological changes. What it has shown is that nobody, but nobody—not even Congress nor the President of the United States—can settle a dispute which management and labor can't agree on.

But the key issue in this railroad case is now turning out to be whether there shall be compulsory arbitration.

Compulsory arbitration has been accepted by management and labor in a few transportation contracts this year—Union Pacific, Pan-American Airways and the East Coast maritime unions. But it is still opposed by a majority of the unions and by management.

Free collective bargaining is still held to be the best way to settle labor and management differences.

But if they can't be solved in that way, Congress is bound, in the public interest, to try another formula.

Phil Newsom Says . . .

Czech Chief In Trouble

When the gallows ended the life of former Czech Communist party secretary general Rudolph Slansky on Dec. 3, 1952, one of the most enthusiastic of those in the cheering section was Antonin Novotny.

Both had been members of the Czechoslovak Communist party since its inception in 1921.

Both had participated in the conspiracy which led to the downfall of the Czechoslovak republic of Eduard Benes and the Communist takeover.

But the two were bitter enemies, and when Slansky's downfall came Novotny had a hand both in his arrest and in his execution.

It was perhaps coincidental that the pace of Novotny's own rise to power as president of Czechoslovakia and first secretary of the Czech Communist party quickened with Slansky's downfall.

And it may also be coincidental that a review of Slansky's case finding him innocent of the conspiracy charges for which he was hanged also could be a sign of trouble for Novotny.

In any case, "de-Stalinization" has spread through the Soviet Union and the satellites and it has become fashionable to "rehabilitate" party members executed in the bad old days. Novotny has shown a marked reluctance to initiate any such program for Czechoslovakia, and particularly so in the case of Slansky.

In fact he renewed his denunciations of Slansky in various speeches in 1961 and 1962 and again last June.

When Slansky and 10 co-defendants were executed in 1952, the list read like a who's who of Czech communism.

As demands for their rehabilitation mounted within the party, an outstanding voice in these demands was that of Rudolf Barak, a deputy premier and minister of interior who also was beginning to challenge Novotny for leadership.

Against Barak, Novotny carried out a stroke of Communist genius.

Novotny ran Barak out of office in 1961 on charges of embezzlement and other state crimes and got him sentenced to 15 years in prison.

It appears that Novotny has not been able to rid himself of all opposition.

Slansky was hanged for conspiracy and spying for the United States.

The fact that a review has cleared him of these specific charges over what must have been Novotny's opposition now is being interpreted as indicating a deep split within the Czech party.

In Vienna, close observers of the Czech scene are claiming that the Kremlin has intervened directly to chart the course of Czech de-Stalinization.

Dr. Crane's

Worry Clinic

Fred's criticisms should be studied by every patriot. For business furnishes most of the jobs and the pay checks that support the bureaucrats via taxes. Employers should not be wet nurses to employees. Note the ludicrous football analogy below!

CASE Q-43: Fred B., aged 42, is a business executive whom I met when I addressed the Muskegon Manufacturers Association.

"Dr. Crane," he began, "how can we ever get a fair deal for the employers of America?"

"For example, our lawmakers in Washington usually have had no business experience.

"Most of them are lawyers who moved into politics and have held elective offices almost ever since they got out of college.

"They receive their livelihood from us taxpayers.

"But they seem to forget that most of the jobs in America are furnished by factories, stores, farms, mines and other private business firms.

Without all these jobs, where would Uncle Sam find wages or salaries to pay?"

"So why doesn't Congress give all private employers a green light and let us have a chance to increase jobs?"

Suppose a football team is engaged in a grueling game. But midway of the first quarter, a time-out is called so the teams can try to sell hospital insurance.

After another few minutes of playing, a second time-out occurs during which the players administer first aid to each other.

Play then resumes but in five minutes, time is called so the players can sing some hymns and pass the collection plates.

Play finally starts again but within a couple of minutes another time-out is requested so the players can donate blood for the Red Cross, etc.

Wouldn't that be silly?"

For the purpose of a football game is to run the ball across the goal line. It is to hit "pay dirt!"

Well, by the same token, the purpose of any business firm is to hit pay dirt, also, via legitimate profits!

For business is a game with definite rules. Uncle Sam

Solons? Let's See

WASHINGTON (UPI) — When he was a Washington correspondent for Scripps-Howard Newspapers, Vance Trimble gave some of our lawmakers a hard time by digging up stories about congressional nepotism.

Trimble is now the editor of the Covington, Ky., Post and Times-Star, but obviously he has lost some of his zeal for needling politicians.

There was a story the other day to the effect that he had promoted a campaign to have candidates for local offices in the Covington area take an IQ test.

Their average grade was 10.3, which is slightly below the intelligent rating for key-punch operators. This confirms a long-standing theory of mine.

I won't discuss the theory here, however, for fear of offending the key-punch operators.

At any rate, now that Trimble has opened the door, it seems to me that steps should be taken to have the IQ test plan adopted on a national level.

In fact, I have gone to the trouble of drawing up some sample questions that might start the ball rolling.

They are intended to test the political aptitude of candidates for Congress. But key-punch operators are welcome to try it if they choose.

1. The capital of the United States was named for a former President. Study the following names and check the one you think is correct: George Washington, George Hyannisport, George Palm Beach.

2. There are two major political parties in the United States. Whose fault is this? Democrats, Republicans.

3. Under the two-party system, how many of the following groups currently are active? Liberal Conservatives, Conservative Liberal, Ultra Liberals, Liberal Ultras, Arch Conservatives, Conservative Arches.

4. As a group, members of Congress are overworked and underpaid. Is that statement true, false, or just a lie? Neither?

5. When a congressman asserts that "economy begins at home," whose home is he referring to? His home, Your home.

6. When a member of Congress is hiring an office staff, which of the following should get priority? His wife, His wife's nephew, His nephew's wife, His campaign manager's sister.

7. So what's wrong with his brother-in-law? Don't answer that.

8. Occasionally, attempts are made to influence a member of Congress. What is this called? A campaign contribution, A campaign donation.

To The Editor

Editor, Herald:

Any boy who has ever bet a nickel on a foot-race, (or his father who has lost a dollar in a foot-ball pool) knows that laws cannot prevent gambling.

Adam was a born gambler. In one way or another, all of us have followed suit. Uncle Sam is gambling, legally, $50 billion on our chances of getting to the moon and back.

We belabored taxpayers could reduce much of this staggering federal tax load on our sagging backs by demanding a national lottery. This may be the same as reaching for the moon. So, for now, a more attainable goal is to convince our state politicians to lighten our state tax load by means of a Florida state lottery.

Instead, our state officials have just about convinced us to brace our backs for a greater burden, — a mighty big new school program. I think the question is:—Do we prefer to go broke as we learn, or are we going to pay for our knowledge with the plentiful aid of honest gambling money? Now, this money is doing nothing but bulging the dishonest pockets of leering racketeers and a few polio politicians.

Edwyn Silberling, who recently headed the organized crime and racketeering section of the Justice Department's criminal division, has written a persuasive article favoring a legalized lottery, in the current issue of a national magazine.

His broad, penetrating experience in tracking organized crime has led Silberling straight to the conclusion that the only way to take immoralities out of gambling is to legalize it.

Here is a crime fighter of renown, who shows us that the federal government could net 10 billion dollars or more per year, from money that, literally, is being chosed into the underworld. Best of all, legalized government control would almost dry up the crooked financial well from which so much crime springs.

Dodgers Take 3 Out Of 4 From Giants

Like all good troopers, the Los Angeles Dodgers know when to change their act. The Dodgers provided one of the biggest sports thrills of 1962 when they dissipated a healthy first place lead in the final week of the season and then blew the playoffs to the San Francisco Giants. The performance received heavy nationwide publicity and was good for the box office. But a happier ending was being demanded by the Los Angeles customers this year.

HEADACHE? NO IT'S 1-2-3-4, 1-2-3-4—the call that will be heard for the next few weeks for this group of Sanford Junior High School football hopefuls as they drill each day in an effort to make the starting lineup.

Rodriguez 'Secret' Pays Off At Denver

DENVER (UPI)—Juan (Chi Chi) Rodriguez, a little man with big power, is going to write a book now that he finally has won a professional golf championship.

"Man, I'm uptown now," said the popular young Puerto Rican after winning his first championship on the pro tour. He had just stormed from three strokes back of third round leader Dave Hill to post a one-under par 69 Sunday and capture the Denver Open with a 278, four under par.

Earlier in the week, when Rodriguez was still just one of the contenders, he said he had a secret of power hitting which he would reveal in a book only after he had won a championship on the PGA tour.

Injury Won't Stop McKinley

FOREST HILLS, N. Y. — (UPI)—Cheered by his physician's forecast that he will be 80 per cent effective, top-seeded Chuck McKinley of St. Louis planned to resume play today in the National Singles tennis championships despite Saturday's back injury.

Fireball Chuck, the Wimbledon champion and tournament favorite, was matched against unseeded Jiri Javorsek of Czechoslovakia, who gained the second round by eliminating Michio Fujii of Japan.

Dr. Charles R. Blair, representing the West Side Tennis Club, announced "Chuck's muscle-tear in the back has responded to treatment and rest. Moreover, x-rays showed no bone injuries. He warmed up briefly with Dennis Ralston and said he could play in spite of lingering soreness. He should be 80 per cent effective."

Chuck, 22, suffered the back injury Saturday during his painful, five-set victory over Eduardo Zuleta of Ecuador.

Chargers Top Pre-Season AFL Play

By United Press International

The San Diego Chargers, who won only four of 11 games in the American Football League last season, apparently won't be such push-overs this year.

The Chargers wound up with the best record among AFL clubs in pre-season games, winning four and losing one.

The Buffalo Bills finished second in the exhibition standings with a 3-1 mark. They were followed by the Oakland Raiders, Kansas City Chiefs and Houston Oilers with identical 3-2 records.

The Chargers, led by Tobin Rote, a National Football League castoff, completed their exhibition slate with a 13-3 victory over the Oakland Raiders Saturday night. Rote, recovering from a rib injury suffered in his first game with the Chargers Aug. 3, completed 15 of 31 passes for 218 yards.

In other final AFL tune-ups, Jackie Kemp passed the Bills to a 21-14 triumph over the Broncos, the Oilers turned back the defending champion Chiefs, 23-17, in a replay of their 1962 title game, and the Jets scored their first victory by downing the Patriots, 22-20.

The Baltimore Colts emerged as the only unbeaten team in the NFL by beating the Washington Redskins, 27-21.

The Philadelphia Eagles won a 34-27 triumph over previously unbeaten Minnesota Vikings, the Cleveland Browns whipped the Los Angeles Rams, 23-14, and the St. Louis Cardinals rallied to down the Chicago Bears, 17-14, in other NFL tuneups Saturday night.

Navy Decorating Course Planned

"Where to Start—Or Start Over," will be the topic of the first program in the home decorating course for all Navy wives beginning Sept. 9.

The series, entitled "You and Your Home," will consist of 20 afternoon meetings at the NAS ballroom. The two hour sessions will begin at 1 p.m. each Monday.

Each session will have one hour of program presented by an authority in the interior design field, followed by an hour of questions from the floor. Conducting the first program will be Miss Netty Scott, a professional interior designer and member of the American Institute of Designers.

Mrs. Kermit Jamison is in charge of the series which is sponsored by the Navy Officers Wives Club, one of the largest projects the group has undertaken. The series is open to all Navy wives and all wives of retired service personnel, regardless of branch.

The tone will be informal and material will be practical. The main difference from the ordinary decorating course is that all information will be specifically directed at the Navy way of life—both in constant change of abode and particular needs for entertaining and general living.

Navy wives should not use such permanent things as wall-to-wall carpeting or expensive draperies. "Ways to create handsome effects with some corner cutting in these areas will be one of the main points in the talks."

Future topics included in the series are "Working with a Master Plan," by Warren Arnett of Myricks Furniture; "Budgeting—What and When to Buy," by Glen Cole of Montgomery Ward; "Building a Color Scheme," by Miss Stacey Baldwin of Jordan Marsh; "Furniture—Buying and Arranging It," by Mr. Rosenberg of Cox O'Neal.

Programs on fabrics, windows, accessories, antiques, decorating for children, care of furnishings, paint and paper, sewing as a budget stretcher, building your own furniture, summer furniture, renovations, entertaining and table decor will also be included in the course.

Reservations for the series should be made with the squadron representative.

REPRESENTATIVES of various Navy Wives Clubs meet to make plans for decorating course starting Sept. 9 at the NAS Ballroom. Left to right are Mrs. Kermit Jamison, chairman of the course, Mrs. Vincent Monroe, Officers Wives Club president; Mrs. Charles H. Williams, CPO Wives Club; Mrs. George Kimmons, wife of Chief of Staff Hatwing One and Mrs. D. E. Owens, Vigilante Club No. 211.

Expensive Chicken!

By Bernice Kelsey

Did you know that a chicken, regardless of its size, costs more than $4 in Russia and that the main recreational treat there is indulging in an ice cream cone or getting a drink from a "communist box" which is similar to our Coke machines but provides only one glass from which everyone drinks?

These interesting facts were among many brought back by Jack Dodd of Goldenrod who has just returned from the "People-To-People Good Will Tour" of European countries sponsored by Commissioners of Agriculture, Doyle Connor. Of all the countries visited, Dodd was most interested in Russia's agricultural program where there are two types of farms—the collective and the state.

He explained that a collective farm is one which is organized by a group of farmers who band together to buy their own equipment. A manager is elected for the overall farm with each individual allowed as much as two-and-one-half acres of land.

The state farm is one which has been confiscated from the wealthy by the Communist and put under state control. In Poland some of these farms are as large as 25,000 acres, he reports.

According to USSR Vice Minister of Agriculture Petrov there are today a total of 8,500 collective farms and 8,000 state farms.

The whole USSR is made up of 22 million hectares, a hectare being the equivalent of two-and-one-half acres. It is reported that 42 million hectares of this total is newly reclaimed land.

Dodd said that a farm made up of 5,000 hectares is considered to be a very large one.

Seventeen per cent of the total population is engaged in agriculture. Payment for farm labor is based on ability to produce on the "piece-work" principle thus making it a possibility for a combine driver to earn more than the director of the farm. All workers in both the collective

JACK DODD of Goldenrod leads the way for Henry Kettleton of Bartow and Ben Hill Griffin of Frostproof upon arrival at the airport in West Herlin for a visit to that city as part of the recent People-To-People Good Will Tour to Europe.

Dear Abby: By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: Wouldn't you think if a married woman slipped off with a married man she could be sure he wasn't going to blab about it? Well, that is where I made my mistake. I accepted a date with this married man. I admit it was wrong, but the crazy fool went around telling everybody about it. It got back to my husband and he threatened to do violence to this man. We only took a drive out in the country and exchanged a few kisses, and I bought an antique cow bell. Nothing else happened. But the way this man tells it, it sounds very wicked. Should I explain to people how it really was?

ANTIQUE SEEKER: DEAR SEEKER: Don't try to explain anything. Send the cow bell to blabmouth with a warning that it will toll for him if he keeps talking. The word for you is mum.

DEAR ABBY: I've never written to a newspaper columnist before and really don't have a problem. I just have a question I'd like you to answer for me: How comes a man can't stand the noise and commotion of his own home and children, but he'll go to a bar where there is just as much noise and commotion and maybe more? There is beer in the ice box and its cheeper. Your answer will probably be that his wife doesn't understand him.

HIS WIFE: DEAR WIFE: I don't know whether his wife understands him or not, but I think I do. He just wants a change of scenery, away from the place of his responsibilities. If the wife could leave the kids, she'd go with him. I'm not saying it's RIGHT. It's just a fact.

DEAR ABBY: In our neighborhood you have to give all the kids a lick of your popsicle if you have one. Either you give them licks or go home and eat it in your own yard. All the mothers say you should share, but my mother told me not to share my popsicle because I will get the other kids' germs and they will get mine. The kids think I am selfish. Who is right?

Jacoby On Bridge By Oswald Jacoby

It is much more difficult for a defender to count a hand than for declarer, but a good defensive player should be able to do so if he will just take time to see why declarer makes certain plays.

South's three-diamond opening was due to the score situation. He didn't think his opponents would be able to compete against him and he decided to gamble that diamonds would be the spot to play the hand.

He won the first trick with the ace of spades and led a trump to dummy's king. Then he played the ace and another heart and East was in the lead.

So far East had no problems. He put his partner in with a spade and West led the jack of clubs. Dummy's king lost to East's ace and at this point it was up to East to reconstruct the hand and declarer's play had given him all the clues necessary.

Declarer surely held the ace of diamonds and if his suit were seven cards in length there would be little hope of beating him. So East decided to play declarer for six trumps only.

What was his spade holding? Could it be a singleton? No! If it were, declarer would have returned to his hand by ruffing a spade. Could it be a doubleton? A thousand times no! Declarer would have tried to set up a spade for a discard.

Hence, West had opened a doubleton spade. East led a spade for his partner to ruff, won the next club lead and led his last spade. This would have built up another trick for the defense if West had held the trump ten, but as it was, down one was perfectly satisfactory.

We The Women: By Ruth Millett

Homes are becoming slum houses or shelters because of unrealistic pressure for perfection placed on American women, the editor of two magazines for women recently told a group of home economists in business.

Explaining what he meant by "pressure", the editor said a woman is supposed to keep a house spotlessly clean, keep herself elegantly groomed, prepare excellent meals, work 18 hours a day, and still be happy and sympathetic. Such standards, he maintains, are impossible even for a superwoman.

"Let up on yourselves," he told the women. "You don't have to be paragon every minute, every day, every year."

Maybe not. But who is going to be brave enough to start this letting-up trend? Who is going to say, "Kids are more important than a lawn that looks like green velvet—no any child in the neighborhood is welcome to play in our yard?"

Isn't a house where no one is allowed to make any clutter more of a shelter than a home? (And yet that attitude is fairly typical of today's housewives struggling for perfection.)

If all of her friends are struggling to look 10 years younger, what woman is going to have the courage to say, "I'm old enough to have some gray hair—so why pretend I'm not by keeping it dyed? I'm old enough to have a few wrinkles—so why worry about them? I'm old enough to have grandchildren—so what's so terrible about looking like a grandmother?"

Women today do need to relax their standards enough to get more pleasure and enjoyment out of life, and to let their families get a little more.

But who is going to buck the trend toward perfection and risk having her friends and neighbors look down their noses at her?

She's In Your Hands

Today my daughter, who is seven years old, started to school as usual. She wore a dark blue dress with a white collar. She had on black shoes and wore blue gloves. Her cocker spaniel, whose name is "Coot," sat on the front porch and whined his canine belief in the folly of education as she waved goodbye and started off to the hall of learning.

This afternoon we talked about school. She told me about the girls who sits in front of her, the girl with yellow curls, and the boy across the aisle who makes funny faces. She told me about her teacher, who has eyes in the back of her head, and the trees in the school yard, and about the big girl who doesn't believe in Santa Claus. We talked about a lot of things—tremendously vital, unimportant things, and then we studied spelling, reading, arithmetic—and then to bed.

She's back there now—back in the nursery sound asleep, with "Princess Elizabeth" (that's her doll) cuddled in her right arm.

You guys wouldn't hurt her, would you? You see, I'm her Daddy. When her doll is broken or her finger is cut or her head gets bumped, I can fix it—but when she starts to school, when she walks across the street, then she's in your hands.

She's a nice kid. She can run like a deer and dart about like a chipmunk. She likes to ride horses and swim and hike with me on Sunday afternoon. But I can't be with her all the time; I have to work to pay for her clothes and education. So please help me look out for her. Please drive slowly past schools and intersections—please remember that children run from behind parked cars.

Please don't run over my little girl. —Ralph Diggs

Casselberry Vote On Charter Slated

By Jane Casselberry The new proposed charter for the Town of Casselberry comes before the voters at a special election this Thursday and an appeal has been issued by Mayor Fred G. Heath and other city officials to all registered voters of the community to come out and vote.

Public hearing will be held at the municipal building from 7 a. m. to 7 p. m. A public meeting will be held at the municipal building on Wednesday at 7:30 p. m. to purge the registration books. Mayor Heath emphasized the importance of each voter since 51 per cent of the registered voters must favor the new charter for its adoption.

Edward A. Lunn, chairman of the Board of Aldermen, stated, "To operate a town the size of Casselberry, a legal set of rules is necessary and I believe the proposed charter is a very good instrument in that respect. I hope no one votes against this charter, because they oppose one part. Any part of this charter can be changed at a referendum vote."

Arthur N. Lego, chairman of the committee which drew up the document, says that it does three things which are a must for sound government: 1.) It defines in more detail the duties and offices of the town, separating or combining functions where necessary for more efficiency. 2.) Establishes a budget system to control the monies of the town. A system whereby we can plan for the future wisely and economically. 3.) It safeguards you and me from being

School Board May Ask U. S. To Intervene

TUSKEGEE, Ala. (UPI)—Alabama state troopers on duty here to keep an all-white school closed to prevent integration began pulling out shortly after 1:15 p. m. EDT. (11:15 a. m. CST) today. A spokesman said they were enroute to Birmingham where white schools are scheduled to be integrated Wednesday.

TUSKEGEE, Ala. (UPI)—A stern force of more than 200 state troopers turned students and teachers away from a closed school today and gave Gov. George Wallace a first-round victory in his new battle to keep Alabama public schools segregated.

But the little governor faced opposition from local school and government authorities in this predominantly Negro town. They promised to go to federal court if the troopers were not removed within a week.

Macon (Tuskegee) County Solicitor Broward Segrest accused Wallace of "invading" the county with state troops to prevent "peaceful integration." Segrest vowed to seek federal relief if Wallace doesn't let local rule prevail.

Wallace closed Tuskegee High School Monday shortly before 13 Negroes were scheduled to enroll at the traditional Labor Day opening of school.

He sent 107 state troopers here to back up his surprise closure order and dispatched additional forces when the county school board defied his order and kept the school open.

The troopers surrounded the block-square school and kept watch all through the night. Col. Al Lingo, commander of the state police, supervised the lines on horseback this morning.

It was learned only today that railroad union representative who addressed the Jaycees here a couple weeks ago had only high praise for The Herald. This newspaper previously had editorialized it has no quarrels with railroad management and rail unions, only want to see the trains keep rolling. And has endeavored to present both sides of the picture. This union man told the Jaycees The Herald was more fair in its new presentation of the situation than any other newspaper in the country. We gladly accept such plaudits.
