Hooper gets pay raise

SANFORD — Seminole County commissioners approved a seven-percent pay increase for County Administrator Ken Hooper Tuesday. The increase will add $5,404 to his current $77,209 salary, bringing his total annual pay to $82,613.

Commission Chairman Fred Streetman, who initiated the increase, said Hooper's work really called for a 10-percent increase, but a nearly $85,000 salary was out of line with administrators of surrounding counties.

Ken Hooper

Streetman cited as reasons for the increase Hooper's work in filling in last year when Woody Price, deputy county administrator in charge of county development, resigned, and Hooper's direct involvement this year in the county Animal Control Department due to problems involving its director, Bob McIntosh.

The vote approving the increase was 4-1 with Commissioner Barbara Christensen opposing. She said she didn't think the increase was justified, but declined to elaborate.

District 1 debate scheduled

SANFORD — The Southeastern Seminole County Voters Association will sponsor a debate between county commission candidates from District 1.

The event will be held at 7:30 p.m. Thursday at the Community Services Center on Seventh St. and Chulohota.

Bush slates strategy session

SACRAMENTO, Calif. — George Bush has managed in the last week to emerge from Ronald Reagan's shadow as he seeks the White House on his own. But with another shadow trailing the campaign, the vice president arranged to meet with his boss today for a quick political boost.

Stumping in a crucial electoral state where former Gov. Reagan remains popular, Bush set up a private strategy session with the president in Los Angeles followed by a high-profile appearance together at a public pep rally.

"You'll see plenty of me in the next 78 days," the new Republican leader told about 4,000 supporters on the Capitol steps in Sacramento Tuesday. Recognizing the value of California's 47 electoral votes, he called the Golden State "a first priority for me."

Mets stymie Dodgers again

Against the team they might face for the National League pennant, the New York Mets raised their performance to postseason intensity.

David Cone allowed one run over 7 2-3 innings and Wally Backman drove in two runs Tuesday night, leading the Mets to their second straight victory over the Dodgers at Los Angeles, 5-1.

Although the Mets have languished since the All-Star break, New York has played well against key opponents.

McIntosh suspended

Animal control boss may face dismissal

By J. MARK BARFIELD
Herald staff writer

SANFORD — Bob McIntosh, the embattled director of the Animal Control Department, has been placed on suspension and faces possible firing.

County Administrator Ken Hooper placed McIntosh on suspension Monday pending a report due later this week outlining his concerns with McIntosh's performance as the department administrator.

McIntosh has been the subject of several past and present employee complaints, including the resignation of five employees earlier this year. He was also the primary subject of a critical report last week which showed much of the department's bill-collecting responsibilities had been ignored.

McIntosh took much of the responsibility for the fiscal mismanagement, but also said a series of resignations left him overworked and unable to fulfill his responsibilities as department director.

Hooper said Tuesday he will oversee operations of the department until McIntosh's job status has been finalized by early next week. Hooper will be aided by the chief animal control officer, Tom LaCrosse, and the shelter supervisor, Becky Lindsey.

McIntosh offered his resignation Friday after the critical report from Eileen Biggs, the senior analyst with the county office of management and budget, assigned to review the department.

Although the Sanford Herald was allowed to attend the meeting to hear the report discussed, the reporter was excused before the resignation discussion began. The meeting, which included no elected officials, was not required to be open to the public.

"I told him if he didn't think I was doing a good job, then he could have my resignation," McIntosh said. "I asked him if he wanted my resignation and he said 'That is what I want.'" Hooper confirmed the discussion.

Although Hooper accepted the resignation Friday, he then told McIntosh to rethink his action and meet again with him Monday. On Monday McIntosh asked, as terms of his resignation, a year's salary in severance pay and a letter stating Biggs' report did not reflect on him. Hooper refused the terms and placed McIntosh on suspension.

Although Hooper said he has not decided what action to take against McIntosh, the options range from a reprimand to dismissal.

McIntosh had been attending management training classes, at Hooper's direction, but Hooper said McIntosh has shown little improvement.

There have been improvements, but many of the improvements have been initiated by either Eileen or myself," Hooper said.

Hooper said Biggs' report listed many of his concerns regarding McIntosh's performance in operating the department. He also weighed complaints by several past and present animal control employees about McIntosh's management style in his decision to suspend McIntosh.

Some employees have complained McIntosh often scowled at them or made sarcastic remarks and had to be asked directly if he did not approve of their work. The employees stated McIntosh often gave them orders leaving them in doubt about their job duties and would often deny private statements made to them at a later time in front of other employees.

"Several reports show that he is not a compassionate or professional individual," Hooper said.

Biggs' report outlined a department fiscally out of control. Checks totaling over $1,000 had not been deposited in several weeks. Thousands of

Charter ready; public hearing set Sept. 20

By J. MARK BARFIELD

SANFORD — Bringing an end to more than a year of effort, the Seminole County Charter Advisory Committee presented its proposed charter to county commissioners Tuesday night.

Commissioners will hold a public hearing on the proposed charter Sept. 20 at 7 p.m. to get comments on the document before it is placed on the Nov. 8 ballot for approval. They also set a $30,000 budget to advertise the charter prior to the vote.

Commissioners retained the option of making last-minute changes to the charter wording next month before it is placed on the ballot.

"We think we have done a good job in reflecting the diverse needs of Seminole County," said committee chairman Marilyn Crotty. "Because this charter is a living document, it can be changed."

Earlier this month, committee members voted 10-2 to approve the charter, a form of home rule constitution for counties. Committee members Bob Webster and Harry Beckham opposed the document.

Webster submitted a minority draft charter to commissioners deleting or changing certain sections. The most notable change is to have a county manager that is elected or governor-appointed, rather than one hired by commissioners.

The charter proposed by the committee changes few of the apparent operations of the county. The partisan, five-member, at-large commission has been retained, as well as an appointed executive officer, although the position's title has been changed from county administrator to county manager.

The elected constitutional officers — sheriff, tax collector and three others — have been retained.

What has been added is the opportunity for voters to recall commissioners they don't like and the option to vote on certain ordinances as long as they don't affect the basic operations of the county or its taxing and budget powers. Certain ordinances passed by commissioners can also be repealed by

Schools open; enrollment up

By CAROL RUMSEY
Herald Staff writer

SANFORD — Seminole County schools open today amid construction, last minute finishing touches and backlogged supply orders.

A visit to many school campuses over the past two weeks meant dodging paint cans, scaffolding and wires while workers hurried to ready schools for an anticipated 45,000 students — up 1,400 from last year.

Students at seven county schools will arrive at new or renovated buildings. Sixteen elementary schools have construction projects in progress, and projects have begun at Lake Brantley Lake Howell and Seminole high schools.

Construction projects at other schools will begin during this school year. Voters approved a $105 million bond issue in 1985 making the renovation and expansion of schools possible. It is estimated that by 1992, Seminole County enrollment will hit 55,621.

Christopher Colwell, principal at Bear Lake Elementary, says construction work encompasses all sides of the school, and he anticipates another month or two of the same. "We have fenced off construction areas for safety, and the campus is clean and ready for students," he said. Bear Lake is projecting an enrollment of 800.

"We're beautiful," said Geneva Elementary Principal Nancy McNamara, referring to the new building which will welcome nearly 700 students today. Construction at Geneva included 26 classrooms, art and music rooms, a multi-purpose room, library, cafeteria and offices.

While dirt lots, the sound of buzz saws, and the smell of new paint are annoying at best, administrators and faculty are adapting.

Seminole High Principal Wayne Epps said he is minus a parking lot, but students will be able to use a practice field behind the school's band hall fronting Georgia Avenue. Enrollment at the high school is projected to be 2,000. Epps said there are parking spaces available for both junior and senior students. A lack of parking areas has resulted in senior-only driving privileges at some schools.

While parking is an inconvenience at some schools, a shortage of art, cleaning, clerical, and physical education supplies have presented problems at others.

SANFORD — Seminole County commissioners voted 4-1 to allow 220 homes to be built on a 121-acre site west of Interstate 4 — a density of about 1.8 homes per acre — despite area residents' complaints that allowing smaller than one-acre home sites would establish a "domino effect" of higher densities.

In a two-hour meeting Tuesday night, commissioners heard more than a dozen residents of the area tell them they had been assured the commission would allow only one home to an acre west of Orange Boulevard.

In their vote, commissioners seemed to establish a precedent of allowing slightly higher densities in some rural areas west of I-4.

"I don't think this board or any board is going to mess with one unit per acre between the (Wekiva) river and Markham Woods Road," said Commission Chairman Fred Streetman.

The land commissioners considered was not in the Wekiva River-Markham Woods Road area.

"You're going to ruin it for them," said Bruce Stewart. "Ten years from now, developers are going to come in and ask for four units per acre."

"It's not a question of it's good for us or it's bad for us," said Ray Lipton. "It's a matter of Hugh Harling (site engineer) going back to his bosses and saying medium density or high density can go out there."

The land use change opposed by the residents — although favored by some adjacent landowners — is on a total of 334 acres south of State Road 46, north of South Sylvan Lake Drive and east of Sylvan Lake. But because nearly 60 percent of the site is either in the lake itself or in wetlands protected by the state, only 121 acres can be developed.

The property owners, Mark Arnold and several family members, sought to build 354 homes on the site, nearly three times what the current one

THE DECISION

The site is an area of 334 acres south of State Rd. 46, north of South Sylvan Lake Drive and east of Sylvan Lake. Only 121 acres are available for development because the remainder of the area includes the lake and protected wetlands.

The Seminole County Commission voted 4-1 to allow 220 homes to be built.

Property owners sought to build 354 homes on the site, nearly three times what the current one-home-per-acre zoning allows.

Commissioners seemed to establish a precedent of allowing slightly higher densities in some rural areas west of Interstate-4.

FLORIDA BRIEF

Two killed in car-train collision

ORLANDO — An Amtrak passenger train traveling at nearly 80 mph slammed into a car trying to dart through a closed railroad crossing Tuesday, killing both occupants of the car but injuring no one on the train.

"The driver of this car did not slow down or stop for the crossing gates," said Florida Highway Patrol Lt. Randy Harper at the accident scene south of Orlando.

The impact broke the car in half. About 500 passengers were aboard Amtrak train 88 en route to New York from Tampa, railroad officials said. The train had departed Kissimmee shortly before the accident and was traveling at a normal speed of 79 mph, heading toward Orlando.

The victims were identified as driver Ronald Duncan, 19, and Michael Hunter, 17, both of Kissimmee.

Man dies on flight

MIAMI — An Argentine man died in a restroom on an Eastern Airlines flight from Buenos Aires, police said Wednesday.

The victim was identified as Arturo Chianelli, 50, of Buenos Aires. Police said he went to use the restroom as landing preparations were being made Tuesday on flight 22 to Miami.

When he did not return to his seat, a crew member checked and found him dead.

The Dade County Medical examiner said the cause of death was a blood clot lodged in a coronary artery.

Chrysler fraud victims to receive refunds

TALLAHASSEE — A $19-million settlement of an odometer fraud lawsuit, awaiting approval in Missouri, will result in at least $300 for about 2,168 Floridians. Attorney General Bob Butterworth said Tuesday.

Butterworth and attorneys general from 47 other states and Puerto Rico joined a suit bought against Chrysler Motors last year by the U.S. attorney's office in St. Louis.

The suit charged Chrysler disconnected the odometers from tens of thousands of cars, loaned them to company executives for "overnight test drives," then reconnected the odometers and sold the cars as new.

Chrysler and two of its executives were indicted for odometer fraud in June 1987. The suit filed by Butterworth and the other attorneys general seeks compensation for the buyers of the cars involved.

If the settlement is approved as expected, Chrysler will refund $19 million to some 38,000 car buyers around the country.

Suspected cop-killer's truck found

WEST PALM BEACH — A Mazda pickup truck matching the description of one driven by a man who murdered motorcycle officer Brian Chappell during a routine traffic stop has been pulled from a canal.

The late model truck was pulled from a canal west of Lantana Tuesday after a tipster called police to report seeing two people pushing the silver vehicle under water.

Police said a check of the tag number revealed the owner of the truck, but they would not reveal the name. The truck fit the description of the pickup that sped away after the city's first police murder in 21 years.

Chappell, 31, died at Good Samaritan Hospital of a gunshot wound to the chest Monday. He was shot once as he walked toward the truck at about 11 a.m. Monday.

Plane seized after cocaine found

MIAMI — The U.S. Customs Service has seized a Bolivian commercial jet after finding that its cargo included a box containing 46 pounds of cocaine, officials said Wednesday.

The cocaine was seized from the Lloyd Aereo Boliviano Boeing 727 shortly after it landed in Miami at 6:40 a.m. Tuesday from Santa Cruz, Bolivia. Officials said the jet had made a stop in Panama.

Customs making a routine check of the flight noticed workers removing a large box that was not listed on the manifest. Agents examining the box found the cocaine.

Minister says abduction changed life

PENSACOLA — A minister from Alabama who spent three hours in a car trunk earlier this month after he was kidnapped from a shopping center says his preaching has taken on a new fervor.

Turnipseed, 39, said the Aug. 9 kidnapping has had a big impact on his life. But he said the support of his family and friends has "helped a lot." He said he plans to preach with more fervor than ever before.

Turnipseed, minister of a church in Florida, Ala., was confronted by a young gunman in the parking lot of Cordova Mall. His alleged captor, Kenneth R. Unruh, 18, forced him to drive east, then made him get in the trunk. Three hours later Turnipseed was allowed to sit in the back seat.

NEWS FROM THE REGION AND ACROSS THE STATE

Depression may gain name today

United Press International

MIAMI — A tropical depression in the eastern Caribbean became better organized Tuesday night, prompting forecasters to say that a tropical storm — the third of the season — could develop today.

"Satellite data show that the depression is better organized tonight and could become a tropical storm (today)," forecaster Miles Lawrence of the National Hurricane Center said Tuesday night. "Reconnaissance aircraft will continue to monitor this system."

At 6 a.m. EDT, the threatening depression's broad center was about 170 miles southeast of San Juan, Puerto Rico. The system was moving west at 15 to 20 mph.

Maximum sustained winds were near 35 mph, with higher gusts in squalls.

Rainfall of up to 4 inches was expected over portions of the islands in the northeast Caribbean — the Virgin Islands, Puerto Rico and eventually the Dominican Republic. Flash flooding was possible because previous rain from an unrelated system could combine with current downpours, forecasters said.

The cloud picture is a better looking picture," Lawrence said. "The thunderstorms are arranged in a more circular fashion than they were earlier. This could very easily be a signal that the system is strengthening."

A depression is designated a storm when wind strength reaches 39 mph. Only two of seven tropical depressions have grown into storms and there have been no Atlantic hurricanes in the season that began June 1.

The poorly defined center of a second depression, in the eastern Atlantic, was a bit over 575 miles west-northwest of Santo Antao, the northernmost Cape Verde island, off the coast of Africa. It was moving west at 15 mph with highest winds clocked near 35 mph.

Another depression near the resort island of Jamaica was thought to be in the right geographic and meteorologic position to become Chris, the 1988 hurricane season's third named storm. But it was downgraded Tuesday at 9:30 a.m. EDT to a tropical wave.

"There still are certain things we don't understand or are not capable of knowing and this is one of them," said forecaster Bob Case. "According to all of our ideas about development, obviously there was something lacking that we did not see."

The area of rain was moving westward about 20 mph and was expected to move into the northwestern Caribbean today.

Ancient tourists had strange diets

United Press International

GAINESVILLE — Anthropologists using highly sophisticated dating techniques are studying the bones of ancient settlers to understand their diets and lifestyles, a University of Florida researcher said Tuesday.

Bill Keegan, assistant curator of anthropology at the Museum of Natural History, said the same system used to determine the age of rocks is being used to analyze the diets by examining human bones.

"Foods that we eat have different ratios of carbon and nitrogen isotopes, and by extracting those from the protein in people's bones, we can reconstruct what people ate throughout their lifetime," he said.

In a new laboratory on the UF campus, anthropologists are reconstructing the diets of people who lived thousands of years ago by analyzing the isotopic ratios of carbon and nitrogen in their bones, he said.

Keegan said the search for information on human diets represents a shift in focus from migratory to dietary patterns as part of a larger focus on the lifestyles of ancient peoples. Understanding what people ate helps develop a picture of the societal, cultural and environmental conditions of the time.

"One of the most important factors in environmental differences and the way people make a living is food," Keegan said.

The technique, called stable isotope analysis, should provide a better idea of what prehistoric people in the state of Florida and in the Caribbean were eating and how their diets changed, Keegan said.

At least one application suggests a prehistoric diet much different from what experts had earlier thought. Anthropologists presumed fish to have been the major food in Puerto Rico, but tests on one skeleton show a 90 percent reliance on land sources, mostly plants, he said.

"It's striking to find such a high percentage of a diet based on land sources in someone who was living near the coast of an island in the middle of the Caribbean," he said.

Keegan's first case at the new museum laboratory will be to perform further tests on bones from Puerto Rico.

Early tests Keegan has performed on human bone tissue from the Bahamas suggest that half, and at times three-quarters, of the diet of its prehistoric residents came from land.

Tests on the bones of the Calusa Indians of Southwest Florida show they ate food with the isotopic properties of corn or maize, instead of roots or nuts.

Anesthesiologists train with doll

United Press International

GAINESVILLE — A mannequin is poised at the University of Florida to improve safety in surgery, but the doll teaching doctors this summer is far more sophisticated than the store window models too long for fashions. Half the current anesthesiology residents at the UF College of Medicine are being trained on the computer-driven "Gainesville Anesthesia Simulator" system.

Others are getting traditional clinical training through lectures. Test scores will later be compared to help determine the system's value in teaching and learning.

Dr. Joachim Gravenstein, senior anesthesiology faculty member and graduate research professor, said the system's advantage is repeating critical equipment faults while trainees refine problem-solving skills and quick reflexes.

"With simulation, we can give our residents a chance to experience and learn to quickly solve some of the worst crises that can occur during actual surgical procedures, problems they might encounter only once or twice in a lifetime," Gravenstein said.

The system developed at UF is one of several anesthesiology simulators being tested around the country.

Breathing tubes are inserted into the mannequin patient's "airway" complete with artificial ventilator that mimics natural lung movement and shows breathing changes occurring with lung stiffness. Nitrogen is used instead of real anesthetic gases.

"We've focused our attention first on programming the system to replicate certain equipment malfunctions," said model co-developer Dr. Michael Good. "We now have the system electronically rigged so it can replicate at least 15 different critical events."

Faced with such realistic crises, the anesthesiologists problem and take corrective steps within a set time limit. A touch-screen video display on the machine prompts the trainee, while student responses are recorded on computer disk.

After a simulated crisis, the instructor reviews the trainee's responses and discusses general aspects of detecting and correcting the type of equipment fault that was simulated.

Cabinet rejects beachfront horse race

United Press International

TALLAHASSEE — Gov. Bob Martinez and the Cabinet refused Tuesday to permit a large-scale beachfront Arabian horse race in Miami Beach.

Race promoters and city spokesmen said the race would have been a major tourism boost, generated worldwide publicity and helped an economically depressed area of Miami Beach.

But Martinez and several Cabinet members expressed reservations. Martinez, an opponent of the project since it came before the Cabinet in March, said the event would monopolize public beaches for private enterprise.

"I don't believe it is a proper thing for us to do with state lands," Martinez said. "The next request will be for a dune buggy race or a motorcycle race, or whatever else suits the user's need."

The race was rejected 5-2. Agriculture Commissioner Doyle Connor and Comptroller Gerald Lewis voted for the race and Martinez and the four other Cabinet members opposed it.

The Arabian Horse Desert Classic Race would have closed the area between 5th Street and 14th Lane for 17 days, Nov.

6-22. That includes Lummus Park, a city-state park open to the public.

The race also drew fire from the Humane Society of the United States and the Florida Audubon Society. Spokespersons of those groups said horses racing on the beach could be injured by flying sand and buried coral, and that the race would damage the beachfront.

David Wallack, one of the race promoters, said the event would have featured 2,600 horses and raised some $40 million.

Wallack said the event would be moved to the Royal Palm Polo Club in Boca Raton. It will be held inland, not on a beach.

"It's certainly not the Mardi Gras that Miami Beach would have had, being the No. 1 spot in the entire world for this event. In that it connects to South America and the European continent," Wallack said.

"It's (the Lummus Park area) been a severely depressed area for at least eight to 10 years. This would have assisted in the very difficult struggle many people have gone through to turn this area around, including city government," he said.

POLICE BRIEFS

Smoking in woods results in arrest

ALTAMONTE SPRINGS — A man who appeared to be smoking crack cocaine when a Seminole County sheriff's deputy spotted him in woods off Magnolia Street in rural Altamonte Springs was arrested after he was searched.

Frank Lorenzo Sheppard, 33, of 316 Teakwood Lane, Altamonte Springs, was arrested at 8:20 a.m. Tuesday on complaints of possession of cocaine and drug paraphernalia.

He allegedly discarded a smoking device when the deputy approached him. Sheppard was searched and the deputy reported finding drug paraphernalia in each of his pockets. A container that had been in Sheppard's shoe reportedly contained three pieces of crack cocaine. He remains jailed in lieu of $1,000 bond.

Accused of forging check

LONGWOOD — A 21-year-old Longwood woman arrested on complaints of uttering a forgery and grand theft is free on $1,000 bond.

Carmen Cargola of 1415 Meadowlark Drive, was arrested at the Longwood police station at 4:42 p.m. Tuesday. She is accused of forging and cashing a $476 check at Sun Bank, 1020 State Road 434, Longwood, on July 1.

Burglary suspect fights police

ALTAMONTE SPRINGS — A 33-year-old man accused of forcing entry to an Altamonte Springs apartment and hitting one of two male occupants was arrested after a fight with police.

Donald Berthel Lindo of 72 San Jose Apartments, Winter Park, was arrested at 12:18 a.m. today at the scene of the burglary, 302 Wynore Grove Apartments, Altamonte Springs.

Police responded to a reported fight at that location and confronted and arrested Lindo, who allegedly fought police after they released one of his hands from a handcuff because he reportedly said it was too tight. Bond is set at $2,000.

Accused of driving under the influence

SANFORD — Robert Lawrence Blackman, 39, of 677 O'Shea Court, Casselberry, was arrested in Seminole Plaza, after he allegedly left the scene of an accident on State Road 436 at U.S. Highway 17-92, Casselberry. He is also accused of driving while under the influence, with leaving the scene of an accident, and driving with a suspended license.

Burglaries investigated

SANFORD — Charles V. Stroud of 2422 Eastbrook Blvd., rural Winter Park, reported to sheriff's deputies nine darts with a combined value of $166 were stolen from his car Monday or Tuesday.

Clothing valued at $200 owned by Cecil H. Oscarson of 525 E. State Road 436 1303, Fern Park, was stolen Tuesday from a laundry room at Regency Granada Apartments, at that location.

Sheriff's deputies have the name of a suspect who may have stolen the 1988 Lincoln of Mary Margaret McCollum of 711 Sandpiper Court, Longwood. The $29,000 car was stolen between Saturday and Tuesday from a garage at 3440 Dawn Court, Lake Mary.

A $6,000 diamond ring and $1,000 worth of silver dollars were stolen, along with other jewelry, from the house of David Ibarra of 772 Balsa Drive, Altamonte Springs, according to a sheriff's report filed Tuesday.

Two guests at Day's Inn, 4650 W. State Road 46, Sanford, reported to sheriff's deputies tools including a $400 generator, a $1,000 sander and a $1,000 box of tools, were stolen from their van at the motel Tuesday. The victims are Brown Boveni Aasen of Oakland Park, and Michael Spiwak of Pompano Beach.

A $400 shotgun and a $250 video recorder were among items stolen Tuesday from the house of David and Ethel Firth, of 400 Raymond Ave., Longwood, a sheriff's report said.

William R. Buck of 3802 Calibre Heno Lane 1503, Winter Park, reported to sheriff's deputies that lawn care equipment valued at about $1,200 was stolen from his trailer while parked at Pizza Hut, 1435 Tuskawilla Road, Winter Springs, Monday.

A stereo set and two speakers with a combined value of $330 were stolen Tuesday from the pickup truck of Scott T. Springer of 3533 Premier Drive, Casselberry, a sheriff's report said.

Carl's Deli, 2911 Orlando Drive, was robbed of $422 in cash and property, sometime between late Monday night and early Tuesday morning. It was the second time the restaurant has been robbed in the last week. Entry was gained through a greenhouse window, police said.

The theft of more than $340 in change from vending machines at Central Florida Regional Hospital, 1401 W. Seminole Blvd., was reported to police on Tuesday.

Joanne E. Smith, 1503 Terrace Drive, reported to police that eight stereo speakers with a total value of $400, which were mounted in her 1984 car, were stolen while the car was parked in her front yard.

Board recommends Hockenberry stay in public works department

By JANE CASSELBERRY
Herald staff writer

LONGWOOD — A three-member grievance adjustment board voted Tuesday to recommend shortening former police administrative secretary Val Hockenberry's six-month special probation to the four months she has already served. However, they voted to leave her in the public works department, where she was transferred in April as part of a disciplinary action.

The board now has 10 working days to present its recommendations in writing to City Administrator Gene DeMarie, who has until Sept. 20 to announce his decision.

Hockenberry said after the hearing that she was disappointed the grievance panel did not support her request to get her old job back. "I was in the police department for 13 years and liked the work and the people," Hockenberry said. "I would have liked it back."

She said she plans no further action and expects to continue working with the city. She said she doesn't know yet if she will apply for a position in the police department if one becomes available. She will continue to receive the same salary she received as administrative secretary even though she is now in a lesser clerical position.

The panel, chaired by city Personnel Director Lois Martin, recommended Hockenberry remain in her present clerical post in public works as stipulated in an April 18 disciplinary action by then Acting City Administrator Don Terry.

Terry's original allegations included misappropriation of public funds, violation of personnel policy and misconduct. These were later reduced to a code of conduct violation, which boiled down to improper keeping of records of the Police Benevolent Fund (which was sometimes mixed with city funds).

Asked to comment on the results of the hearing, Terry said, "I think Val received a complete hearing as was her right. I don't disagree with the board's actions. As a matter of fact, I had made her the offer earlier to terminate the probationary status because of her good job performance in the public works department, but she wanted a grievance hearing."

Grievance board member Police Detective Sgt. Russell Cohen said that after hearing the testimony and studying Hockenberry's deposition, it was clear that there was no intent or deliberate action on her part not to keep the records properly. According to her past evaluations, he said, there was no reason for her to think her job performance was less than satisfactory. His conclusion was that prior to the management audit, nobody had any problems with the way the books were kept.

Terry said he acted on the advice of two city attorneys in suspending Hockenberry with pay and eventual disciplinary action. "I think it was in her best interest and the interest of the city to transfer her to another department," he explained. "I still feel that way, based on her deposition and the report on the Police Benevolent Fund prepared by management consultant Jeff Eichberger, that the disciplinary action was just and proper."

In making the motion to drop the rest of the probationary period, Cohen said it was "an attempt to restore Mrs. Hockenberry's reputation, because she has more than paid her dues."

Cohen earlier made a motion to restore Hockenberry to her original position as administrative secretary to the police chief if she so desires, but Martin and Purchas, Director Rhonda Ledford, voted it down.

The audit of Police Benevolent funds, which brought about the suspension with pay of Hockenberry, Police Chief Greg Manning and Capt. Terry Baker by Terry on Feb. 22, was kept from Hockenberry to avoid the confidentiality of Manning and Baker before their police review board hearing.

The board recommended Hockenberry be eligible in the future to apply for any higher level or lateral job openings in the city for which she is qualified.

Senior center plans discussed

By WAYNE MIZE
Herald staff writer

SANFORD — Senior citizens took full advantage of an all-day meeting with city officials and architects for design planning of a senior citizen center Tuesday at the civic center.

A priority list of design items was agreed upon by the seniors attending the meeting.

A room addition to the existing youth wing topped the list. The addition will house a kitchen, first-aid room and restrooms.

Air conditioning, a general upgrade of all finishes, a covered entranceway and driveway, a handicapped entrance, and an exterior wall extension to the wing on the north (lake) side, were given priority by the seniors.

Representatives Bob Miller and Keith Bailey of Schweizer, Inc., Orlando, architects for the center, fielded questions and suggestions from interested seniors during the meeting, which began at 9 a.m. and ended at 5:45 p.m.

The Schweizer company suggested the meeting to provide input from the senior community on the design priorities for the 6,000 square-foot facility, which will be located in the youth wing of the civic center.

Miller told the seniors in attendance at the morning session, "From this meeting we will develop a plan and from that plan we will be able to determine a cost factor."

Jim Jernigan, parks and recreation director, said the architects will develop a cost estimate incorporating the suggestions made by the seniors.

The architects and the Senior's Selection Committee will meet to discuss the cost estimates prior to Sept. 8.

FAA seminars set

By WAYNE MIZE

SANFORD — Displays of military, experimental and new aircraft, along with a Shriner's barbecue and dance, will accent safety seminars to be hosted for the first time at the Sanford Regional Airport.

Scheduled for Sept. 16-19, Federal Aviation Administration (FAA) safety seminars will highlight the four-day event, which includes refresher courses, flight reviews and proficiency checks for pilots. All events will take place either in or around the airport terminal building.

Organizers met today at the airport to finalize plans for the event, which is expected to draw pilots and interested public throughout central Florida.

"It is a brand new baby. We've never done this before at Sanford," said organizer Tom Savage, FAA accident prevention counselor. "The FAA is going all out for aviation safety. Their thinking is it's better to prevent rather than let it happen."

The entire four-day program is open to the public at no charge and is being sponsored in part by the Sanford Airport Authority in cooperation with the FAA, the Airplane Owners & Pilots Association of the Aviation Safety Foundation, the General Aviation Manufacturers Association and a variety of aircraft and avionics manufacturers.

"We are going all out to enhance aviation activity and safety," Savage said.

The program begins Friday, Sept. 16, with a general information meeting followed by an aircraft systems seminar.

Saturday, FAA inspectors will provide courtesy pilot proficiency check rides beginning at 9 a.m., and local flight instructors will give free biennial flight reviews.

Representatives of aircraft avionics manufacturing companies will conduct classes and demonstrations on the use of new products from 12:45 to 1:45 p.m. both Saturday and Sunday.

FAA safety seminars with films and guest speakers will take place in the terminal at 10 a.m., 2 p.m., and 4 p.m. on Saturday and Sunday.

Aircraft displays will be open both days and airport tours will be given regularly each day.

Food and beverage concessions will be available throughout the weekend, and the Sanford Shriner's Club will host a 6 p.m. barbecue and 9 p.m. dance following Saturday's activities.

Area athletes are world class

An editorial Monday praised the number of athletes in Seminole County who have brought renown to the area through their achievements in Olympic competition. One of those names was inaccurately cited but the error may prove to be only a matter of chronology.

Showonda Williams, a graduate of Lyman High School, will compete in Seoul as a member of the U.S. Olympic team. The 21 year old Louisiana State University student distinguished herself this year in the 400 meter hurdles by winning the "triple crown" — the NCAA championship, The TAC outdoor nationals, and the Olympic trials. She is America's great hope for a gold medal in her event.

Shawnda Martin, of Seminole High School, was a member of the Junior National team in 1987 and is considered a potential Olympian with great prospects for 1992. A skilled competitor in the 800 meter hurdles, Miss Martin set a state record this year in that event.

The area will also be represented in Seoul by Brigitte Gordon of DeLand. As a member of the DeLand High School team, she led the Lady Bulldogs to the state championship. Upon graduation, Miss Gordon signed with the University of Tennessee and was a three-year starter for the Vols. She was named All-American and helped lead her team to the NCAA national championships where she was named Most Valuable Player. She will compete in Seoul on the women's basketball team, a squad that is favored to win the gold.

Doing easy time

Few convicted cocaine dealers are lucky enough to face the kind of music John Zaccaro Jr. is listening to these days after being convicted on a felony drug charge. Punishment for the son of former Democratic vice-presidential candidate Geraldine Ferraro isn't a deservedly long sentence in a tiny cell in a bleak jail. He is enjoying a four-month stay in a $1,500-a-month luxury apartment in Burlington, Vt., which comes with cable television and maid service.

After he was convicted for selling drugs at Middlebury College, Zaccaro's defense attorney managed to qualify him for the Vermont Corrections Department's "house arrest" program. In it, non-violent convicts are allowed to find their own housing and work in a community-service program while remaining under correctional supervision. Because the prisoners pay for their accommodations, correctional officials don't bother to set standards for the level of luxury.

Gov. Madeleine M. Kunin has reason to be concerned about possible inequities with Zaccaro's punishment and has prudently requested a review of the entire house-arrest program. Where prisons and jails are dangerously overcrowded, such alternative criminal-justice programs can have a place. But permitting a drug dealer such house-arrest luxuries hardly sends the right message about justice being blind, especially when the pampered "prisoner" is the son of an influential politician.

TV woes skew political campaigns

WASHINGTON (NEA) — The seemingly inextricable bond between television and politics, the product of a symbiotic relationship that dates back four decades, is about to be tested by a pair of extraordinary events.

The unusual timing of this year's Summer Olympic Games — to be held in the autumn — and the five-month-long strike of television's scriptwriters will produce a unique fall television schedule. That, in turn, could dramatically affect political contests throughout the country.

The traditional campaign season spans two months, from Labor Day in early September to Election Day in early November. Politicians concentrate their appeals for support during that period, with television commercials by far the favored medium, to reach the voters. In major statewide races, fully half of the fall campaign budgets are earmarked for television production and time-buying expenses.

But the Summer Olympic Games, certain to distract the electorate from politics, this year have been pushed so far back that they will occupy more than two weeks in the middle of the campaign season, from Sept. 17 to Oct. 2.

Thus, a politician who makes a major purchase of television time at the beginning of the autumn campaign, in the first half of September, risks having the Olympics obliterate whatever impressions the commercials made upon the voters.

Buying commercial time on NBC-affiliated stations during the games themselves will enable office-seekers to reach vast audiences — but at prohibitive prices. Moreover, viewers may resent the intrusion of politics upon the Olympics.

Buying time on the other networks affiliates or on independent stations during the games will be far less expensive — but will reach a very small audience.

Waiting until October to mount a media campaign is another option, but postponing television advertising until the final month of the campaign is a very risky strategy, especially for candidates already trailing in their races.

(Baseball's World Series begins on Oct. 15, but it is a distraction with which politicians already are familiar.)

Members of the Writers Guild of America are back at work, but their lengthy strike has forced the networks to postpone the beginning of the new television season, which traditionally opens shortly after Labor Day.

Prime-time schedules during most of September and October will be filled with reruns of last year's programs. Most of the new episodes will not air until well into November — after election day.

Television advertising is crucial, however, to politicians running for governor, attorney general and other major statewide offices. Equally reliant upon the medium are contenders for U.S. Senate seats.

They and the voters face two scenarios this fall. The first is that television will lose much of its vaunted power as the primary medium of communication between the two groups.

The second is that network affiliates, desperate for original fare, will turn to live politics as a replacement for traditional prime-time programming. That is not very likely, but it offers intriguing possibilities.

VINCENT GARROLL

Free nations are cleaner

Believe it or not, one way to slow the "greenhouse effect" that threatens to warm the Earth is to promote free markets and capitalism around the globe.

Surprised? Most discussion of the greenhouse effect trumpets the need for more government regulation, not less.

Columnists such as Anthony Lewis of The New York Times practically rub their hands together at the prospect of state intervention to limit fossil-fuel emissions and other scourges of the ozone layer.

"It will require government, of the highest order, to deal with realities of these dimensions," Lewis solemnly assures his readers.

True, only government can ban the manufacture of specific ozone-eaters, such as chlorofluorocarbons used as refrigerants and in aerosol sprays. But the state-centered answers so dear to Lewis and other analysts are too pat. For proof, check out that bible of environmentalism, the Worldwatch Institute's State of the World report.

Improbable as the source may seem, last year's State of the World suggests that many countries can best help preserve the ozone layer by shedding layers of state controls. Not that the Worldwatch Institute puts the matter so baldly. The authors duly provide the evidence for this conclusion and then, perhaps lest anyone challenge their environmental credentials, hasten to add they do "not mean that markets alone can keep nations within the bounds of sustainable development."

But, they admit, markets can definitely help. "A clear demarcation exists between market-oriented and centrally planned economies in energy," the Worldwatch Institute observes. "Where governments directly control industrial production, energy efficiency is low."

Just so, the Soviet Union ranks nearly last in efficient steel production, even though it's the world's largest steel producer. And although the United States, owing to the sheer size of its economy, accounts for about one-fifth of the sulfur dioxide gas emitted worldwide, "it has cut per capita sulfur-dioxide emissions by a third (since the early 1970s), while the Soviet Union has increased emissions by a similar proportion."

According to the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency, the Soviets generated 958 million tons of carbon in 1985. That was nearly as much as the United States (1,186 million tons), in an economy close to twice the size.

Governments also must shoulder the blame for destroying the Earth's tropical forests, a practice that is releasing huge amounts of carbon into the air. Settlement plans hatched in such capitals as Jakarta and Brasilia have resulted in reckless clearing and burning of millions of acres of fragile jungle, with tragic results both on the ground and in the atmosphere.

Billions of people languish within centralized economies, so the growing worldwide respect for free markets is doubling encouraging. When China's leaders permit shop owners to flourish, when officials of dozens of Third World countries sell off state-owned enterprises, or when Mikhail Gorbachev decries the insanity of Soviet production targets, they're not merely promoting greater prosperity for their citizens. They're also ensuring a cleaner world for all of us, one in which the greenhouse effect will be easier to control.

ELLEN GOODMAN

Love will get you elected

NEW ORLEANS — Drop the old-time old-time marching band and send out for the string quartet. The soul-stirring, crowd-pleasing music for political life this year isn't material, it's romantic.

Love, palpable, and above all else, publicly displayed, is becoming a requirement for political success. The national candidates, once expected to kiss babies for the camera, are now expected to kiss their wives...on the lips and in prime time.

This is the way it goes in the up-close-and-personal politics of the post-Reagan era. When Ron and Nancy walked off stage holding hands last week, they left behind a national legacy of White House bliss.

For more than seven years, adoring state-declarations of mutual affection flowed within the First Couple in full view of their viewers and voters. The final stanza of their love song on the first day of the convention, romance under the Superdome, came complete with real violins. The President-husband said unselfishly of his first lady-wife: "I can't imagine life without her." The people who long for a happy marital ending got the price of admission.

In post-Reagan politics it isn't just fidelity that is expected. That, as Gary Hart found out, is a minimum. It's love in public—absolutely marital and totally safe, peppered with an occasional touch and feel—that has become the new standard.

Last month, when Michael Dukakis finished his acceptance speech and hugged his wife with more than winged-tipped passion, it raised his standing with the emotion-watchers. Much was made of their love match. Were those just naps in Atlanta? Is he really cranky when they're apart?

George Bush, who was raised never to chew with his mouth full or reveal his feelings to strangers, told Dan Rather that he was trying to slow and tell a bit more of what was in his heart. He tapped his wife's fanny on network television. He even shared his fantasy life. If he couldn't be himself, Bush said, he'd choose to be Barbara's second husband.

What is this political lovefest? Why are Americans looking for love in all the high places?

Nobody expected George and Martha Washington to dance cheek-in-cheek. If Adlai Stevenson lost points on account of his divorce, it was among the folk who believed that marriage was a sacrament, not an eternal delight.

For most of our national campaign history, the woman was seen standing behind her man, not in his arms. Marriage and children made the candidate appear trustworthy and staid, not love-blissed and sexy.

Now we ask our candidates to reveal themselves emotionally. We expect them to have a rich internal life. We want full disclosure on their histories, even their psychobioses—although heaven help them if they've seen a psychiatrist. We have upped the ante on the amount they are expected to expose.

We also judge them in terms of home life. National politics is a family affair. In Atlanta, the Jackson family, even the Dukakis' grandchild in utero, made featured appearances. In New Orleans, the entire Bush clan, 60 members strong, were present and accounted for.

If the width of relationships matters to the public, so does their emotional depth. A solid marriage ranks as an achievement. The guy who can balance a political career without leaving a personal wreckage may get a special due.

But at the crux of our passion for passion at the top is probably our own anxiety about love. Ours is an era of marriage until love do us part. People once found their security in the institution. Now they seek it in the emotion. They long to witness and believe in lasting love.

So, like kids, we seek comfort in the couple of grown-ups in the big house who love each other, demonstrably. The old G-rated political couple is now getting a PG. Keep posted. Any day now, they'll be soul-kissing in the streets.

Market moderate, prices up

United Press International

NEW YORK — Prices opened higher today in moderate trading of New York Stock Exchange issues.

The Dow Jones industrial average, which slipped 0.89 Tuesday, was up 4.98 to 1994.31 shortly after the market opened.

Advances led declines 349-250 among the 1,131 issues crossing the New York Stock Exchange tape. Early turnover amounted to about 6,800,000 shares.

Stock prices slipped Tuesday in one of the slowest sessions of the year as the market once again failed to generate any buying interest.

"In some ways it resembles a buyers' strike, but there aren't any sellers around either," said Don R. Hays, director of investment strategy at Wheat, First Securities in Richmond, Va.

"Everybody is sitting around waiting for something to happen," Hays said. "But the thing that will get buyers in is lower short-term interest rates."

Hays said one "interesting" development was the pullback in industrial-sector stocks, which were moving ahead five weeks ago, and the renewed interest in financial-related issues.

"This is unusual," Hays said. "And it might imply that a climate for lower interest rates is on the horizon. And it would be the result of a slower economy."

Dollar opens mixed; gold mostly lower

United Press International

The dollar was mixed today on major world money markets after posting a two-week high against the Japanese yen in Tokyo. Gold was mostly lower.

In earlier trading in the Far East, the dollar continued to rise against the Japanese yen, closing at a two-week high of 154.30 yen, up 0.37 from Tuesday's close.

Bank of Japan Governor Satoshi Sumita blamed the recent decline in the value of the West German mark against the dollar and other currencies on speculation.

Sumita declined comment on whether the Japanese central bank would step in to prevent the mark from declining further.

Dealers noted U.S. and Japanese banks purchased the dollar despite reported dollar-selling intervention by the West German central bank.

Trade deficit hits 3-year low

United Press International

WASHINGTON — Record exports sent the U.S. merchandise trade deficit to a three-year low of $29.9 billion in the second quarter of 1988, the Commerce Department reported Wednesday.

Exports in the second quarter shot up 5.7 percent to a record $79.7 billion on a seasonally adjusted basis, the Bureau of Economic Analysis said.

A 0.8 percent drop in imports, the first since the first quarter of 1985, to $109.6 billion, also helped the trade balance.

The $29.9 billion second quarter trade gap is the lowest since the second quarter of 1985, and 14.9 percent below the revised first quarter deficit of $35.2 billion, the bureau said. Americans bought fewer foreign cars and industrial supplies in the second quarter, the bureau said, but imported more oil.

U.S. companies sold record amounts of industrial supplies and materials, aircraft and consumer goods helped by the lower value of the dollar, which made U.S. goods more competitive in world markets.

Inclement weather cripples China grain output targets

United Press International

BEIJING — China may fail to meet crucial grain output targets this year in the wake of severe drought, floods and typhoons battering the world's most populous nation, the official China Daily newspaper acknowledged today.

Officials said Tuesday more than 47 million acres of farmland across 18 of China's 29 provinces have been damaged by the bad weather and there are indications Beijing may have to increase grain imports this year.

Any output declines are a sensitive issue in China because of memories of past shortages and famines in the nation of more than 1 billion people.

Conservative economic planners regard grain production as the cornerstone of Chinese agriculture and have voiced concern that this vital area has been neglected in the government's sweeping economic reforms.

"It will be very difficult for China to fulfill the grain production quota set by the state this year in view of the country's present agricultural situation," the paper quoted an official at the National Research Center for Development of Science and Technology as saying.

The official indicated China's grain yield could be at least 750,000 tons short of the 410-million-ton target for 1988 because of the string of natural disasters, including a monthlong killer heat wave, widespread flooding and several typhoons, that have swept China this year.

Natural disasters were also blamed for China's failure to meet its 400-million-ton grain target in 1987.

But Western agriculture experts said the latest shortfall was expected and that it was unlikely to have any serious impact since grain output is regarded as sufficient to meet nearly all China's needs.

A Chinese official said summer grain output "scarcely" equaled last year's harvest and was well below the 1988 quota despite a 1.58 million-acre increase in acreage.

The country now has to depend on its autumn crops to reach its target, the official said. "But this will not be easy, because many of China's agricultural provinces are hit by natural disasters and the area for the growing of autumn crops has been reduced."

Officials have hinted that the drought and floods may force Beijing to increase its grain imports this year. In the last year, China has nearly doubled its wheat imports from 7.3

million tons to a forecasted 13 million tons in the fiscal year ending June 30.

While the weather has been a major factor in below-target grain harvests in the last two years, another reason for falling output is a lack of interest in growing grain among peasants, who prefer to cultivate more lucrative cash crops.

"The economic benefits to farmers of producing grain were lower than those for producing other cash crops," the Chinese official said.

This year, the amount of new land turned over to cash crops has increased by 1.8 million acres, China Daily said.

Prices of chemical fertilizers, plastic sheeting, pesticides and farm machinery, have soared 13 percent this year, further reducing peasants' interest in grain.

"Farmers' motivation for producing grain has suffered as a result of the price hikes," the paper said. "Cultivated land has been given up in some areas of the country."

China, the most populous country on earth with more than 1.07 billion people, must feed 23 percent of the world's population on just seven percent of its arable land.

The shortage is due to this summer's one-month closure of the county's supply warehouse while an investigation into inventory irregularities took place. Director of Purchasing Don Coleman said the warehouse is normally closed for two weeks in June for annual inventory. "Contrary to what most people believe, summer is our busiest time, and we have to keep that truck rolling," Coleman said. Deliveries normally scheduled to begin July 1, this year were delayed until after Aug. 1.

Warehouse Specialist Ida Mae Sjoblom said her phone has been ringing nonstop. "We're getting them out just as fast as we can," she said of the supplies. The warehouse employs three people, Sjoblom, a receiving clerk to load and unload shipments, and one driver.

Carey E. Ferrell, assistant superintendent of business and finance, said Monday there are 300 unfilled orders. Both directors of elementary and secondary education have met with school principals to explain the holdup. Ferrell said orders are being handled on a priority basis, with those items necessary for school opening receiving first priority. "We shipped out materials to Jackson Heights, Milwee and Lakeview middle schools today," he said. According to Ferrell, the system should be back in smooth working order within two weeks, at which time, a half-dozen to a dozen orders will be processed daily.

Meanwhile, schools are finding other ways to make do.

Lynton High School Principal Carlton Henley said his teachers are short 50 roll books, as well as other clerical supplies. Teachers will be provided with a computer listing of students' names and asked to log attendance on them until roll books are received, at which time they will have to transfer the information.

Rick Mossman, principal at Lakeview Middle, said his janitorial staff ran short of cleaning supplies this summer, and he had to use other funds to help get them through.

Many schools have assigned a runner to pick up supplies, rather than wait on slow warehouse deliveries. Other schools have loaned supplies so that one department can make use of another's extra materials.

Patricia Millot, principal of Red Bug Elementary, said the warehouse closing has been of concern but they're managing. Red Bug is short of physical education supplies, such as bats and softballs, but not items critical to school opening.

Most schools are relying on a carry-over of materials from last year to hold them for a few weeks.

home per acre zoning allows.

Commissioner Bill Kirchhoff sought to limit the site to one unit per acre, a motion that brought applause from the audience largely displeased with the Arnold proposal. No other commissioners elected to go along with the motion. Another effort by Kirchhoff to limit the homes to 1 1/2 units per acre — 182 homes — as commissioners had previously sought on the parcel last year, failed with only Commissioner Ibb Sturm supporting him.

Arnold asked to have his application withdrawn before the 1.5-unit-per-acre motion failed, but Streetman urged him to allow the commission to vote.

Sturm then proposed limiting the number of homes to 220, which passed with only Kirchhoff opposing.

Commissioners earlier in the evening denied a request by L.F. Rossignol Development Corp. to develop a nine-acre commercial site northeast of Lake Brantley High School.

Although Rossignol president Bill Morrison offered to construct a one-way entrance to the school parking lot from State Road 434 to reduce traffic on busy Sand Lake Road, commissioners sided with residents of Brantley Harbor who opposed the proposed 70,000-square-foot shopping center, saying it was too close to their homes.

Brantley Harbor homeowners said their property values would dollars in bills, some dating from more than two years ago, had not been collected.

The county spy and neuter rebate program has been virtually dormant since February without an appeal by McIntosh for assistance. County commissioners approved $20,000 in catch-up spending earlier this month to begin paying the 650 people seeking the rebate, but Biggs said more funds will be needed to fund all the rebates.

McIntosh's response to the unpaid rebates was that he was waiting until rebates fees, which fund the program, built up enough to begin paying out the rebates. Two of the undeposited checks and several of the uncollected bills would have funded many of the rebates, Biggs said.

decrease in the shopping center was built near their homes, although residents from other neighborhoods said the proposal would relieve traffic conditions.

Streetman said commissioners should not approve a plan just because it may reduce a traffic problem. He opposed the proposal. Other commissioners unanimously agreed voters under the proposed wording.

Charter

Not quite so apparent is certain powers chartered counties have over non-charter counties. In a charter county, cities must ask for county approval to create special taxing districts that allow property value increases and the subsequent increases in tax collections to be used to improve that area. Cities in non-charter counties don't have to seek that approval from the county. Seminole County is non-chartered.

Such a tax increment district has been established in Altamonte Springs and, though the city worked closely with the county in creating the district, it did not need the approval of the Seminole County Commission.

Chartered counties can also impose franchise fees on telephone service, cable service and other utilities. Non-chartered counties cannot impose these fees. The taxes, usually applied to customers' bills, can only be imposed in unincorporated areas, not countywide.

A charter also gives the county the ability to fairly quickly change itself to meet the needs of a changing population. Although an effort to have a single-member district question placed on the November ballot by a voter's committee failed last month, the charter can be changed by voters on any general election if a petition drive is successful.

NATIONAL BRIEFS

Wildfires may be blessing to animals

Fires that have turned much of Yellowstone National Park into a smoky inferno that has scared off tourists by the thousands may turn out to be a blessing in disguise, especially for the bears, elk and moose who inhabit the nation's oldest national park, officials say.

Wildfires were raging Tuesday over vast areas within a 375,000-acre perimeter in Yellowstone, and dozens of fires were burning in Alaska, Montana, Nevada, Oregon and Washington as an estimated 15,000 firefighters battled blazes that have charred 3.2 million acres — an area the size of Connecticut — since the first of the year.

On a brighter note, the Yellowstone fires are turning stands of lodgepole pine into meadows, which officials say will not only change the face of America's original national park, but will provide new food sources for its famed wildlife.

President signs bill with 76 reservations

LONG BEACH, Calif. — President Reagan signed historic trade reform into law with some reservations, but he was quick to seize the political initiative and point to the popular bill as an accomplishment of his administration.

"Our administration and Congress have come together in an effort to ensure open markets around the world," Reagan said as he signed the reform Tuesday, without specifically mentioning one of the prime movers behind the bill, Sen. Lloyd Bentsen of Texas, the Democratic vice presidential nominee.

At the same time, Reagan mentioned his own party's presidential nominee and called the measure "just the latest step in that effort, which began the first day George Bush and I entered office and has already opened vast markets to American products all around the globe."

Woman will not face murder charges

SEATTLE — The 90-year prison term given the first person convicted of federal product tampering charges in a case involving deaths amounts to a virtual life sentence, a county prosecutor says.

Stella Nickell, who faces the same maximum sentence she would have if convicted on first-degree murder, will probably not face state charges of murdering her husband and an innocent woman, King County Prosecutor Norm Maleng said Tuesday.

"My conclusion is that the conviction and sentence in the federal case do provide substantial justice and therefore we will not file state murder charges at this time," Maleng said.

Maleng said the families of the two victims support his decision.

Nickell, who was convicted May 9, was sentenced to 90 years in federal prison for poisoning bottles of Extra-Strength Excedrin with cyanide. The judge recommended the 44-year-old woman serve a minimum of 30 years before being considered for parole.

New Attorney General reviews morale

WASHINGTON — Newly installed Attorney General Richard Thornburgh, out to improve the tarnished image of the Justice Department, says he will lead a department that "meets only the highest standards of professionalism."

In a recent interview, Thornburgh said he is thoroughly reviewing Justice Department operations but it is too soon for him to give a "definitive opinion" on morale in the aftermath of the tarnished reputation of his predecessor, Edwin Meese.

Navy commander faces court-martial

United Press International

SAN DIEGO — The commander of the U.S. transport ship Dubuque will risk court-martial rather than submit to less severe charges for failing to rescue a boatload of Vietnamese refugees who say they resorted to cannibalism to survive 37 days lost at sea.

Fifty-eight of the 110 refugees on the 35-foot wooden boat died of exposure, hunger or drowning before they finally were saved June 28 by Filipino fishermen, 19 days after the Dubuque steamed away from them in the South China Sea.

The Pentagon said Capt. Alexander Balian was charged with dereliction of duty, meaning he faced loss of the Dubuque's command, and an "admiral's mast" hearing to determine his punishment had been scheduled for today at the headquarters of the Pacific Fleet's naval surface forces at San Diego.

But Balian refused Tuesday to submit to the administrative hearing, electing instead to face a possible court-martial and possibly tougher penalties if convicted.

Cmdr. David Dillon, spokesman for the Pacific Fleet, said the Navy would decide today on how to proceed against Balian. The options range from dropping the charges to ordering a full investigation that could lead to a court-martial, Dillon said.

Navy policy calls for the rescue of anyone at sea whose boat is adrift or in danger of sinking. Balian, who was removed from his command during an investigation, has said the refugee boat was seaworthy when he saw it.

The 52 survivors of the boatload of 110 Vietnamese refugees gave crewmen on the Dubuque some food and water but did not take them aboard, even though their boat was disabled at the time and many were near starvation.

The Vietnamese say that after the Dubuque continued on its way to the Persian Gulf, they resorted to cannibalism out of desperation, drowning a boy, a young woman and a man and boiling and eating parts of their bodies. Two children who starved also were cannibalized, the refugees said.

Balian was charged specifically with "wrongfully failing to render appropriate assistance to Vietnamese refugees" and with being "derelict in the performance of duties in that he negligently failed to investigate sufficiently and render appropriate assistance to Vietnamese refugees." Pentagon spokesman Fred Hoffman said in Washington.

Under those charges, he did not face any confinement or loss of rank, but the punishment could have included a fine, loss of command and letter of reprimand.

Survey shows women appear satisfied with lives

United Press International

NEW YORK — Nine out of 10 American women in the traditional childbearing years are satisfied with their lives and most believe it is possible to achieve success in both work and family at the same time, a Gallup survey shows.

"Childbearing-age women see their own lives as successful in many important ways," said the Gallup report released Tuesday. "They don't think young women have to put off starting their families in order to be successful in their careers. Nor do they see it as necessary for a woman to be established in a career before starting her family."

The survey was based on telephone interviews conducted between June 17 and June 21 of 1,000 women ages 18 through 44. Two-thirds of the women work for pay outside the home, three of four are married and 31 percent are childless.

Eighty-four percent of the childless, predominantly young and unmarried women, said they expect to have a child some day, according to the report.

"The women we interviewed see that it is possible to be successful in both work and family, and to achieve both at the same time," the report said. "But they also stress the importance of planning and timing in their formula for success."

A majority of those who expressed dissatisfaction had not finished high school and had an income of less than $15,000 a year. But even those who were "satisfied" were not 100 percent pleased.

"Despite the overall themes of satisfaction, accomplishment and optimism... we find pockets of dissatisfaction among today's childbearing-age women and areas of discontent," the report said. "Women are least satisfied about the time they have available in their lives to do the things they like to do for themselves."

"Further," it said, "the lives of some women are so burdened by family demands and financial pressures that they negatively evaluate their lives and their accomplishments."

"Other women, particularly those who have not completed high school, feel the constraints of their backgrounds very sharply and are pessimistic about their futures," the Gallup report said.

Asked to rate criteria as either essential, important or not too important for career success, the women responded that the following criteria were at least important:

- Having a lot of self-confidence, 75 percent; a supportive husband or partner, 66 percent; the availability of affordable child care, 64 percent; having an effective method of birth control, 58 percent.

—Being in excellent health, 51 percent; a college education, 45 percent; having a successful person to take an interest in her career and "show her the ropes," 39 percent; being willing to put off having children, 14 percent; being physically attractive, 13 percent.

Feminist leader Betty Friedan, asked to comment on the survey, said: "The ability of a woman to decide when and whether to have a child is essential if she is to be able to combine family and work life."

The survey had a 3 percent plus or minus margin of error.

Iranians accused of breaking U.N. truce

BAGHDAD, Iraq — In an apparent truce violation, Iraq said its army forced Iranian troops to retreat to positions held before a cease-fire took effect four days ago, and accused U.N. peacekeepers of failing to prevent the Iranian advance.

The report Tuesday came hours after Iranian Foreign Minister Ali Akbar Velayati informed the United Nations that Iraq intended to launch an offensive against Iran and had massed troops on the central front, a violation of the U.N.-brokered truce agreement.

It was not immediately known whether the troop movements reported by Iran and the confrontation reported by Iraq referred to the same situation.

There was no immediate comment from the United Nations on either claim.

In a cable to U.N. Secretary-General Javier Perez de Cuellar, Velayati said Iraqi forces were massed along the tense central front northwest of Ahvaz.

The region has remained tense since Iraq charged an Iranian sniper killed an Iraqi private in the sector after the truce took effect Saturday. Iran has denied the accusation.

Dissidents hold rally in Baltic states

MOSCOW — Soviet authorities Tuesday allowed pro-independence demonstrations by more than 100,000 Estonians, Latvians and Lithuanians apparently a part of Mikhail Gorbachev's campaign to discredit the policies of the late dictator Josef Stalin.

The massive protests in the capitals of the three northern Baltic republics were conducted on the 49th anniversary of the Soviet-Nazi pact approved by Stalin that cost the three states their independence during World War II.

The Baltic republics lost their sovereignty on Aug. 23, 1939, when Soviet Foreign Minister Vyacheslav Molotov and his German counterpart, Joachim Von Ribbentrop, signed a non-aggression pact giving Moscow control of the nations. But Adolf Hitler violated the accord when German troops invaded the Soviet Union in June 1941.

Tuesday's demonstrations were the largest ever in the Baltic republics and the biggest in the Soviet Union since a territorial dispute in two southern republics prompted protests for several months this year.

There were no reports of violence or injuries in the protests.

In Moscow, Foreign Ministry spokesman Gennady Gerasimov said activists had been granted permission to hold the demonstrations in the Baltic republics, in marked contrast to similar rallies last year that brought a harsh reaction from the government. Gerasimov said he was aware of the demands of the Baltic peoples.

Report shows Iraq used mustard gas

UNITED NATIONS — A U.N. report that Iraq dropped several mustard-gas bombs near an Iranian frontier town in early August, injuring nearly 2,700 people, is the second specific finding against Baghdad in the 8-year-old Persian Gulf war.

A team of U.N. chemists sent to the Iran-Iraq war zone at Tehran's request issued their 16-page report Tuesday, touching off a flurry of diplomatic consultations among the 15 members of the U.N. Security Council.

But it was not immediately clear how the panel's findings could affect the current cease-fire between the two warring nations.

The latest attack came in early August, only six days before U.N. Secretary-General Javier Perez de Cuellar arranged the cease-fire between Iran and Iraq. The truce took effect Aug. 20 and is being monitored by a 350-member peacekeeping force.

At Iran's request, Perez de Cuellar earlier this month dispatched the team to Oshnaviyeh on Iran's rugged northern frontier with Iraq, where the scientists corroborated Iranian reports of an Iraqi air raid before dawn on Aug. 2, the report said.

Within 24 hours of the attack, 2,680 civilians were treated for exposure to toxic gas, with 305 victims admitted to a hospital in Oroumiyeh and 605 hospitalized elsewhere, the team reported.

Burma sees largest demonstrations since 1962

United Press International

RANGOON, Burma — Anti-government groups threatened more demonstrations today after rallying at least 600,000 supporters in seven cities to press demands for democracy and an end to 26 years of one-party rule.

Official Rangoon radio reported today that generally peaceful demonstrations were conducted Tuesday in Rangoon, Moulmein, Mandalay, Meiktila, Sandoway and Taunggyi.

Diplomats and witnesses said that crowds of more than 200,000 people assembled in at least three cities — Rangoon, Mandalay, and Tavoy.

"They were the biggest demonstrations in Burma since Ne Win came to power," said one diplomat.

Gen. Ne Win seized power in a military coup in 1962 and ruled with an iron grip until his retirement last month. Most Burmese believe Ne Win, 77, is still directing affairs from behind the scenes.

Bush arranges strategy session with President Reagan

United Press International

SACRAMENTO, Calif. — George Bush has managed in the last week to emerge from Ronald Reagan's shadow as he seeks the White House on his own. But with another shadow trailing the campaign, the vice president arranged to meet with his boss today for a quick political boost.

Stumping in a crucial electoral state where former Gov. Reagan remains popular, Bush set up a private strategy session with the president in Los Angeles followed by a high-profile appearance together at a public pep rally.

"You'll see plenty of me in the next 78 days," the new Republican leader told about 4,000 supporters on the Capitol steps in Sacramento Tuesday. Recognizing the value of California's 47 electoral votes, he called the Golden State "a first priority for me."

Bush, who for 7 1/2 years was seen generally as a weak substitute for Reagan, has been upbeat and on the offensive since the Republican National Convention last week, taking his message of no tax increases and peace through strength to almost exclusively enthusiastic audiences in six states.

He has sustained the drive despite the shadow cast by the furor about running mate Dan Quayle, staunchly defending the 41-year-old senator from Indiana even as questions persist about his military record and personal history.

Quayle was one of the reasons Bush ran into his first lukewarm audience since the convention when he arrived at a Seattle steel factory Tuesday. Skeptical military veterans and steelworkers, some saying they have not fared well in the Reagan-Bush years, greeted him with as many protesters as supporters.

"GOP — party of privilege and sleaze," declared one of the signs brandished as Bush approached the factory gates. Upon touring the facility, he was met at several points by workers holding union-provided signs pledging support to his Democratic opponent, Massachusetts Gov. Michael Dukakis.

Campaign '88

The vice president tried to make the most of the situation, however, telling about 200 workers in unflinching remarks. "I recognize that all of you might not be with me, but I appreciate very much your giving me this opportunity, because this meeting itself reflects the greatness of America. It is only here that we are able to do this kind of thing."

Later, after a warm reception from several thousand supporters in downtown Portland, Ore., Bush arrived at the California Capitol to similar cheers and reiterated his support for Quayle despite suggestions that the senator used family influence to avoid the Vietnam War combat by entering the National Guard.

"He will bring excitement to this state and great asset to our ticket," Bush said. "I'm not going to let some insidious rumor-mongers drive me to changing my mind. I'm staying with Dan Quayle!"

Asked about new allegations regarding Quayle's behavior from Paula Parkinson, the former lobbyist posing nude for the second time in Playboy magazine, Bush responded, "I never deal in rumors, especially if they're ugly and hurtful."

Quayle, before his scheduled departure today on a campaign swing through St. Louis, Cincinnati and Lexington, Ky., complained to reporters waiting outside his home that questions have become "outrageous" regarding certain topics.

"I'm getting a little bit indignant about just one bum rap after another," he said with clear but controlled anger in reference to Parkinson's claim that he propositioned her for sex in 1980. "That is an utter, absolute falsehood."

The heat of the spotlight surrounding Quayle nonetheless drew a surprisingly blunt reaction from his Democratic counterpart, Sen. Lloyd Bentsen of Texas. When asked at a news conference Tuesday what he would do in Bush's shoes, the vice presidential nominee shot back: "Sweat!"

Dukakis, meanwhile, campaigning in Beverly, Mass., responded to a Republican taunt by explaining that he vetoed a bill requiring children to recite the Pledge of Allegiance because he was advised it would be unconstitutional.

Dukakis challenged Bush by asking reporters if a serious candidate for president would sign a bill the Supreme Court deemed unconstitutional, "how can he be qualified to be president of the United States?"

Asked if he thought the GOP would keep pushing the pledge as a campaign issue, Dukakis said, "The highest form of patriotism is a dedication and commitment to the rule of law of the Constitution of the United States."

In Boston, a Gallup Poll released Tuesday showed Bush moving ahead of Dukakis 48 percent to 44 percent despite the public's mixed feelings about Quayle.

The survey, conducted with an error margin of 3 percentage points for The Boston Globe, WCMB-TV and WEEL Radio in Boston, questioned 1,000 registered voters nationwide from Aug. 19-21, just after the GOP National Convention.

It confirmed the post-convention "bounce" that Bush aides had hoped for, saying 52 percent of those surveyed approved of Bush's choice of Quayle while only 27 percent disapproved.

Quayle rebukes reporters, gets endorsed by Reagan

United Press International

WASHINGTON — Sen. Dan Quayle of Indiana, today resuming his campaign as the Republican vice presidential nominee, is digging in his heels with some anger against questions about his military record and personal life.

Before his scheduled departure this morning on a swing through St. Louis, Cincinnati and Lexington, Ky., Quayle complained to reporters waiting outside his home that the questions have become "outrageous" regarding certain topics.

"I'm getting a little bit indignant about just one bum rap after another," he said with clear but controlled anger as he was grilled for the eighth straight day about issues that have saddled his campaign as it tries to move forward.

On the dominant matter, the 41-year-old senator released military records Tuesday to bolster his denial that his powerful family used influence to get him into the National Guard in 1969 to avoid combat in the Vietnam War. On another point, which rose anew Tuesday, Quayle vehemently denied a report linking him more deeply with a 1980 congressional sex scandal.

Quayle was at home preparing speeches for what aides said would be a four- or five-day campaign trip starting this morning when he faced the reporters who gathered outside his home in suburban McLean, Va.

He reiterated his assurance that there was no undue influence used in getting him into the Guard at age 22, and he spoke out sternly against the published report saying he propositioned lobbyist Paula Parkinson in 1980 when the woman — accused of trading sex for legislative favors — was sharing a Florida house that he rented for a golfing trip with congressional colleagues.

"That is an utter, absolute falsehood," the married senator declared. "I had nothing to do with her down there. I had nothing to do with her before, and I had nothing to do with her afterward."

"And I think you all are going to have to be a little bit careful about this, because it's totally untrue. I've got a wife and three small children. I hope there is some respect and dignity for things that I did not do before we go rushing off with all of these so-called rumors."

Parkinson, who posed nude in Playboy magazine in November 1980, moved to Texas in 1981 and lives in the Dallas suburb of Mesquite under her maiden name, Paula Laham. Working in a variety of jobs, she has refused to discuss her career in Washington with reporters.

Late Tuesday, however, Playboy announced that another nude pictorial will have Parkinson in this year's November issue, and the magazine released the accompanying text to avoid exaggerated speculation.

"When D.C. lobbyist Paula Parkinson ... was asked about rumors of hanky-panky with George Bush's VP choice, Dan Quayle, she said she and Quayle hadn't actually slept together during a 1980 vacation in Florida. He wanted to, but I was there as (former Rep.) Tom Evans' date," she said. "We flirted a lot and danced extremely close and suggestively. He said he wanted to make love."

Informed of the Playboy release, Quayle's press secretary, David Prosser, said, "All I can tell you is what Senator Quayle told you previously. He had nothing to do with Parkinson before, during and after that weekend."

Political rumblings about Quayle's future nevertheless increased Tuesday, with The Des Moines Register, Iowa's influential newspaper, editorializing that Bush should dump Quayle as his running mate and conservative Rep. Howard Nielson, R-Utah, saying Quayle should withdraw.

Bush defended Quayle vigorously at a steel factory in Seattle and his aides suggested Parkinson was trying to promote herself.

AFL-CIO liked Mondale in '84 race; endorsing Mike Dukakis this year

United Press International

WASHINGTON — Having withheld their stamp of approval throughout the presidential primary elections and conventions, leaders of organized labor decided to endorse Democrat Michael Dukakis for the White House today.

The AFL-CIO General Board arranged a rare public session to declare support for the Massachusetts governor and then to let him speak. The meeting was preceded by a pair of news conferences during the last two days in which AFL-CIO President Lane Kirkland belittled Dukakis's Republican rival, Vice President George Bush, confirming the already obvious labor decision.

Tuesday, Kirkland called Bush's stated goal of 30 million new jobs in eight years "more voodoo doo-doo," using words familiar to the nominee. Monday, he scoffed that the goal might be reached if Bush "abolished child labor laws."

The last time the AFL-CIO made a presidential endorsement, in October 1983, its early timing was unprecedented — and Democrat Walter Mondale waited until July 1984 to fly to Denver to accept the nod from the General Board.

Each of the 91 unions affiliated with the AFL-CIO has one member on the General Board, which meets only for presidential endorsements, and the votes carry weight according to the size of the respective union.

Stung by the label of "special interest group" during the 1984 campaign, the AFL-CIO this year chose to withhold an endorsement throughout the long series of primaries and the national political conventions.

Some of the federation's unions, representing 14.1 million American workers, still were politically active behind the scenes organized labor claimed more than 700 delegates at the Democratic National Convention in Atlanta and apparently seven at the Republican National Convention in New Orleans.

But instead of the early endorsement, the AFL-CIO invited all of the major Democratic and Republican candidates to speak to union members on video cassettes, and after all accepted, 15,000 copies were distributed nationally.

The candidates also responded to four questions related to working people; the answers were printed in 2 million copies of a 12-page tabloid inserted into union publications.

Newborns will be tested for AIDS

United Press International

PHILADELPHIA — Five-year-old Raymond Bullard, taken from his foster parents by the city because he is black and they are white, will go back to their home within eight weeks under orders from a federal judge.

U.S. District Judge John Hannun ruled Tuesday that the Philadelphia Health Department acted unconstitutionally in removing Raymond from the care of John and Marilyn McLaughlin solely on the basis of race.

"Making decisions about persons according to their race is more likely to reflect racial prejudice than legitimate public concerns," Hannun said.

Catholic Social Services, under contract with the city Health Department, placed Raymond in the foster home of the McLaughlins in October 1983 when he was less than 6 months old. He lived with them for two years.

"A psychological bonding between Raymond Bullard and the McLaughlins occurred during this period," Hannun said.

In October 1985, the city ordered Bullard placed in the home of the Rev. Willie and Elaine Williams, a black couple. The department said it was its policy to have foster children placed in the homes of people of the same race.

The child has lived with the Williams family since 1985, although he is visited by the McLaughlin family.

Race was the sole reason that the child was removed from the home of his original foster parents, the judge said.

Hannun said foster care placement must take into account the child's racial and cultural needs, and that the best interests of the child are paramount.

"The use of race as the sole criterion in making proper long-term foster care placements of black foster children is inadequate," Hannun said.

He said the city violated due process of law by not giving proper legal notice of its original intention to remove Bullard from the McLaughlin home.

"The city's decision ... is unconstitutional as it violates both Raymond Bullard's and John and Marilyn McLaughlin's equal protection rights," he said.

"The conclusion that the McLaughlins will prevail on the merits of both their due process and equal protection claims is inescapable as the law and the facts are clearly in their favor."

Hannun ordered that Bullard be returned to the McLaughlins within the next eight weeks.

School bans phone beepers

United Press International

PHILADELPHIA (UPI) — Saying phone beepers are tools for drug dealing, the board of the Philadelphia School District voted 8-0 to ban from school electronic pagers carried by students.

"We are doing it because we think it is important to cut down on the possibility of kids communicating with drug dealers, with suppliers, with pushers out there," board president Herman Mattleman said Tuesday. Paging devices "aid and abet the sale and the distribution of drugs."

The board approved a policy that allows school authorities to confiscate unauthorized beepers and suspend or expel students caught carrying the paging devices without permission.

However, the policy does allow school officials to grant special permission for some students to carry the devices if they have a legitimate purpose.

"We don't think that, for the most part, there is a good reason for children to come to school with beepers," he added. "There may be a medical reason here and there but we don't think that happens very often."

Mattleman said the devices often are used to alert student drug dealers when potential customers are ready to make a purchase. The pocket-sized devices can be purchased for about $100 and leased for less than $50 a month.

Appeals court says sentencing guidelines are unconstitutional

United Press International

SAN FRANCISCO — The tough new guidelines of the federal courts intended to make sentences more uniform were struck down by the 9th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals as an unconstitutional violation of the separation of powers between the judicial and executive branches of government.

The decision Tuesday will govern in nine Western states under the 9th Circuit's jurisdiction until a ruling, possibly next year, by the U.S. Supreme Court.

The appeals court said federal judges should not have been allowed to serve on the seven-member commission which created the guidelines.

Requiring judges to sit as presidential appointees on the commission violated the constitutional separation of powers, the court held in a 2-1 decision.

Numerous cases challenging the guidelines arose around the nation, but Tuesday's ruling was the first by an appeals court.

The guidelines, which went into effect last Nov. 1, were most criticized by civil libertarians and criminal defense lawyers, who said they took discretion away from individual judges and often resulted in sentences that were unconscionably long.

Writing for the majority, Judge Alex Kozinski, a conservative Reagan appointee, said, "We can prevent undue entanglement by the judiciary in the operation of the political branches only by adopting a clear-cut, prophylactic rule: Congress may not, under our system of separated powers, require judges to serve on bodies that make political decisions."

Kozinski was joined by Judge Melvin Brunetti, also a Reagan appointee.

Judge Charles Wiggins, a former U.S. senator and also a Reagan appointee, dissented. He said the Sentencing Reform Act "does not offend the Constitution. No branch of government has been negatively affected by the allocation of power made by it."

Lower courts have been sharply split by the issue. In Los Angeles 23 district judges divided 13-10 to hold against the guidelines.

In separate cases three federal judges ruled in San Diego. Two struck down the rules and one upheld them.

The sentencing guidelines resulted from a decade-long effort by Congress to minimize wide disparities in sentences given defendants with similar records convicted of the same crimes.

Under the guidelines, judges were required to impose relatively uniform sentences based on several given factors. The judges could deviate from the guidelines only by making specific findings of mitigating or aggravating factors.

Tuesday's 9th Circuit decision will put us "back at square one," said Nancy Clarence, a federal public defender in San Francisco.

She said the decision will create immediate and complex problems in criminal cases in which defendants have plea-bargained and cooperated with the government and are awaiting sentencing.

The ruling came in the San Diego cases of Jose Gubiesio-Ortiz, who has been sentenced to six months for aiding and abetting the illegal entry of an alien, and of Raul Chavez-Sanchez, who was indicted on five counts of transportation of illegal aliens. He was sentenced to 18 months in prison, but the judge in San Diego declared the sentencing act unconstitutional. Their cases will now go back to San Diego for individual resolution.

Kozinski wrote that Congress improperly assigned executive power to judges, and "the label applied cannot mask the reality that judicial officers are required by law to exercise both the judicial and executive power of the United States."

Doctors save butcher's hand after saw accident

United Press International

DAYTON, Ohio (UPI) — A butcher who had worked 15 hours of overtime on a hot day lost his right hand in a saw accident. Doctors here said they will try to reattach the hand, but it may be lost for good.

The accident occurred at a meat market here. The butcher was using a circular saw to cut a piece of meat when the blade slipped and cut his hand.

IN BRIEF

BASKETBALL

Musselman to coach 'Wolves

MINNEAPOLIS — Bill Musselman, controversial at the college level, unsuccessful in the NBA and a winner at the minor league level, was expected to be named coach of the new Minnesota Timberwolves NBA franchise Tuesday.

The Timberwolves, who begin play in the 1989-90 season, were to name Musselman at a 2 p.m. news conference, the two Twin Cities newspapers reported Tuesday.

Musselman, 48, has been coach of Albany (N.Y.) of the Continental Basketball Association where he produced a championship team. He also produced CBA titles with three other teams the three previous years.

Previously, Musselman coached parts of two seasons with the Cleveland Cavaliers. He also coached San Diego and Virginia in the old American Basketball Association and Reno of the Western Basketball Association. His four-year tenure at the University of Minnesota was marred by a players' brawl in a game against Ohio State and NCAA violations.

TENNIS

Halard upsets Savchenko

MAIWAH, N.J. — Qualifier Julie Halard of France took advantage of error-plagued seventh seed Larisa Savchenko of the Soviet Union Tuesday to post a first-round upset in the $200,000 United Jersey Bank Classic.

The 17-year-old Halard took the first set 7-6 (7-4) and had little trouble after that, capturing the second set 6-2.

Savchenko, ranked 17th in the world, got only two points on her last three service games and double faulted three straight times in the sixth game of the second set.

Top seed Steffi Graf of West Germany and 16-year-old Arantxa Sanchez of Spain began their featured evening match, but it was halted in the second game because of rain and postponed until Wednesday.

Sanchez broke the world's No. 1 ranked woman to open the match and Graf was ahead 15-40 in the second game.

GOLF

Azinger-Tway win Challenge

PORTLAND, Ore. (UPI) — Paul Azinger and Bob Tway birdied the final two holes Tuesday to win the $650,000 Fred Meyer Challenge golf tournament.

On the final hole, Azinger sank a six-foot putt for a birdie 4 to move the duo to 19-under par for the 36-hole best-ball event at the Portland Golf Club.

On the 17th hole, Tway sank a 12-footer for a birdie 2 to pull his team into a tie with Raymond Floyd and Andy Bean, who finished second by a stroke.

Three teams tied at 15-under par, four strokes back. They were tournament host Peter Jacobsen and Arnold Palmer, Scott Simpson and Craig Stadler, and Johnny Miller and David Ishii.

Tway and Azinger will split the first-place prize of $100,000.

FOOTBALL

Dolphins cut roster to 60

MIAMI — The Miami Dolphins reduced their roster to 60 players Tuesday by placing six athletes on injured lists and waiving another.

The Dolphins waived offensive guard Sal Cesario, a free agent who had played with Dallas during the strike last year. Placed on the physically unable to perform list were center Dwight Stephenson (knee), guard Chris Conlin (knee), tight end Dan Johnson (back) and fullback Tom Brown (knee).

Placed on injured reserve were linebacker Scott Nicolas (knee) and fullback Chad Stark (knee). Players on injured reserve must miss the first four weeks of the year, while players on the physically unable to perform list must remain inactive through the first six games.

The Dolphins, who play their final exhibition game Friday night at Minnesota, must reduce their roster to 47 players by next Tuesday. Left on the active list is safety Glenn Blackwood, trying to come back from a knee injury suffered in the Philadelphia game late last year.

County gridgers gear up for 1988

By MARY BLYTHE
Herald sports writer

With the 1988 season rapidly approaching area high school football teams are preparing themselves for what promises to be another highly competitive season on the gridiron.

Seminole county teams began their second week of practice in hopes of sending at least three teams to the playoffs again this season. Most teams have been practicing three times a day to prepare for the upcoming year. Here's a brief look on how things are going around the various schools:

●Seminole High School, playing in class 4A under first year coach Emory Blake, will look for Kerry Wiggins to step up into the quarterback slot and use the running of Jerod Jones and Kevin Richardson to provide the offense.

Seminole finished with a 9-4 record a season ago and will be looking to fill in a lot of positions. Blake will have his troops ready to play in the pre-season jamboree vs. Kissimmee Osceola at Lyman High School on Friday, Sept. 2.

"Things are going as well as can be expected right now," Blake said of his team. "Kerry (Wiggins) has done a nice job of getting prepared to play and at this point is our number one quarterback. We'll have to play solid defense and capitalize on our opponents' mistakes."

Leading the defense for Seminole will be Ralph Hardy who will be starting as the middle linebacker this season. Ron Cox, Jimmy Westley

INTRASQUAD GAME.
Lake Mary High School will hold its annual Red Gray game Friday night beginning with dinner at 6 p.m. and football at 7. The admission price is $3, which includes dinner. The freshmen, junior varsity and varsity squads will scrimmage. The Lake Howell High Silver and Blue game will get underway Friday night at 6:30.

and Kyle Faulkner will back up Hardy on the defense and form a strong nucleus for a young squad.

"We're very young and will have to grow up in a hurry," Blake said. "But we're pleased with what we've accomplished in our first week and hope to keep going in a positive direction."

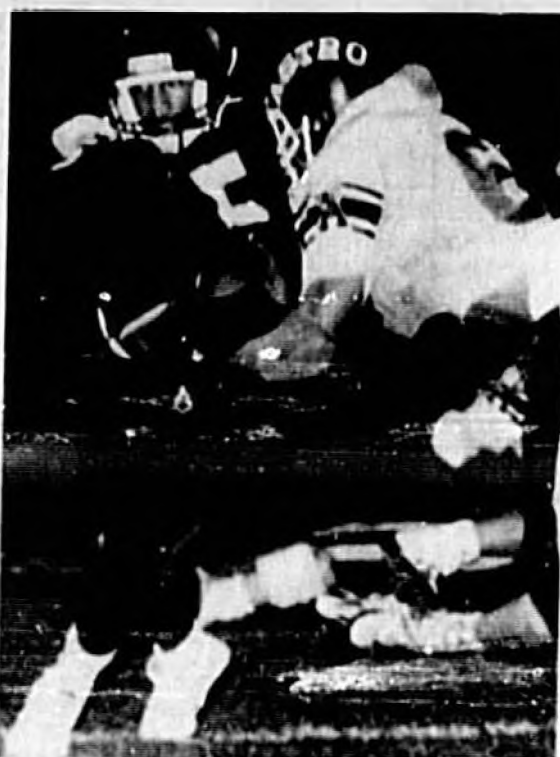

Seminole will open its regular season at home on Sept. 9, against Titusville Astronaut.

●Lake Mary will return two of the county's top athletes in Carlos Hartsfield and Ray Williams. Hartsfield will be starting his fourth consecutive season as the Rams quarterback and knows well coach Harry Nelson's style.

Williams, a quick and powerful back, was primarily used as a blocker for John Curry last season but should become the Rams' leading rusher this season. Williams led the Lake Mary junior varsity team to an undefeated season two years ago when he averaged over 125 yards a game.

Lake Mary will have its annual Red-Gray Intrasquad game this Friday at Lake Mary High School beginning at 7 p.m. The game will cost $3 with a dinner included (dinner starts at 6).

The Rams will play Lake Howell in the

Tyson injures hand in street fight

United Press International

NEW YORK — Heavyweight champion Mike Tyson suffered a hairline fracture of his right hand early Tuesday in a street fight with former opponent Mitch Green outside an all-night clothing boutique.

Tyson spoke at an evening news conference with his arm in a cast extending to the elbow. Manager Bill Cayton said the cast will be removed in three weeks, when it will be determined if the 22-year-old champion can defend his title Oct. 8 against Frank Bruno in London.

Tyson said he was shopping in Harlem with San Antonio Spurs forward Walter Berry and Berry's cousin, Tom Smalls, when he was attacked by Green.

Berry and Smalls appeared with Tyson to corroborate the story. Tyson said he called the news conference after learning Green pressed charges.

"I'm a victim and then he presses charges on me," said Tyson, who beat Green in a 1986 non-title bout that went the distance. "I guess I hit him over the eye. I was nervous. I hadn't had a street fight in seven years. I was paranoid, he just kept coming at me. I had no choice but to defend myself. He hit me in the chest."

Police spokesman Peter O'Donnell said Green filed a complaint but would not elaborate on the report. He said Tyson initiated no police action and the case is under investigation.

Tyson said the incident happened about 4:30 a.m. EDT outside Dapper Dan's, a 24-hour clothing boutique. Tyson said he was there to pick up an $850 white leather jacket that reads "Don't Believe The Hype" on the back.

Berry and Smalls said Green spotted Tyson inside the store, went in and began harassing the champion.

"Mitch Green walked in talking about how 'promoter' Don King owes him money," Berry said. "He said 'You're with Don King, he owes me money. He was really harassing Mike.'"

Berry and Smalls said Green followed Tyson's group to the champion's car, ripped Tyson's shirt and broke the side-view mirror of the car. They both said Tyson told Green he did not want to fight, but Green pressed him. Smalls said Tyson shoved Green down twice.

Tyson said Green was with another man and a woman.

"The lady was passing something. It looked like a weapon," Tyson said. "Mitch wasn't looking stable. He looked anxious to fight."

Green, 31 and nicknamed "Blood," has had a history of legal trouble. He has been arrested on charges of possessing drugs, refusing to pay bridge tolls, robbing a gas station attendant and attacking the attendant. His driver's license has been suspended four times.

"He reports that Tyson popped him on the bridge of his nose — hit him, struck him, you know — popped him," said Detective Vincent Jones, a police spokesman.

Asked how many blows Green told police he took from the champ, Jones said, "One, that's all it takes. Most men don't get up after one punch from this guy."

Green, whose career record is 16-2-1, told officers he received five stitches above his nose to close the wound. Jones said, Cayton said Tyson was examined by Dr. David Chu, who determined the injury was a hairline fracture of the third metacarpal bone.

Green was among four opponents to go the distance with Tyson in 35 fights, losing a unanimous 10-round decision.

Olympic flame lit at Athens ceremony

United Press International

ATHENS, Greece — An actress dressed as a high priestess of ancient Greece Tuesday lit the Olympic flame that will be carried to Seoul, South Korea, for the 1988 Summer Games beginning Sept. 17.

Katerina Didaskalou, dressed in white robes, knelt on one knee and held a torch to a concave mirror that focused the sun's rays to ignite the flame.

The ceremony at the sanctuary of the god Zeus in ancient Olympia, some 112 miles southwest of Athens, was attended by about 15,000 people, witnesses said.

After symbolically taking the flame from the sun at the ruins of the temple of Hera, the wife of Zeus, Didaskalou handed the torch to Greek athlete Thanassis Kalyonitis, the first of some 450 runners.

Kalyonitis carried the flame in one lap around the grounds in front of the temple, then stood in homage before the statue of Baron Pierre de Coubertin, who revived the Olympic Games in Greece in 1896, before striking out on the road to Athens.

The flame-lighting ceremony at Olympia dates to 1936 when a flame was taken from a concave mirror to the Berlin Olympics. The ceremony has since been repeated every four years, except in 1944 when World War II prevented it.

The ancient Olympic Games were first held at the temple of Hera in 776 B.C.

The Greek runners were to take the flame to the port of Elefsina, 10 miles west of Athens, where it will be taken aboard a replica of a trireme, the 170-oared vessel of ancient Greece.

After reaching the port of Faliron, in the suburbs of Athens, runners will again take over and carry the torch to the Acropolis, where the hilltop temple of the ancient goddess Athena overlooks the Greek capital.

In Athens the flame will be handed over to a South Korean delegation Thursday.

Mets continue to master LA

United Press International

Against the team they might face for the National League pennant, the New York Mets raised their performance to postseason intensity.

David Cone allowed one run over 7 2-3 innings and Wally Backman drove in two runs Tuesday night, leading the Mets to their second straight victory over the Dodgers at Los Angeles, 5-1.

Although the Mets have languished since the All-Star break, New York has played well against key opponents. In the last two series against the Pittsburgh Pirates, who they lead by 4 1-2 games in the National League East, New York has won three of four games, in eight games against the Dodgers this season, the Mets have won seven.

Cone, 13-3, has been a pleasant surprise for the Mets since he was acquired from Kansas City last season. Tuesday, he improved to 13-3 with a nine-hit, six-strikeout, no-walk performance. In fact, he's surprised himself.

"I would be lying if I said I wasn't surprised at my record," the right-hander said. "In spring training, I said if I was a starter I hoped to win 15 games. I'm flattered the way the New York fans have taken to me. I hope it continues."

Randy Myers threw 1 1-3 hitless innings for his 18th save, and collected his first major league RBI and extra-base hit with an eighth-inning double.

"They've been tough on us," Los Angeles' Steve Sax said. "We're pretty much the same type of club, with good pitching with some pop on the ball. They just seem to have an edge."

"Hopefully we can turn it around and do better against them if we can get them in the playoffs."

Ramon Martinez, 20, lost his first decision in his third ma-

Andy McGalligan, 5-0, threw two hitless innings. Montreal executed five double plays. Scott Garretts fell to 3-7.

Ranger relievers blow 7-4 lead

United Press International

When Jeff Russell of the Rangers told Manager Bobby Valentine he was tired after pitching eight strong innings, the trouble started.

Texas relievers Mitch Williams, Dale Mohoric, Guy Hoffman and Craig McMurtry combined to blow Russell's fine performance in the ninth.

Russell limited the Kansas City Royals to three runs on five hits and left with a 7-3 advantage. About 30 minutes later, the Texas bullpen quartet had surrendered four hits, six walks — and eight runs, letting Kansas City rally for an 11-7 triumph.

"Jeff said he was tired," Valentine said. "It was the only decision I could make. With a four-run lead, I figured we were all right. But we ran into big trouble."

Williams ran into big trouble. Mohoric ran into bigger trouble. Hoffman and McMurtry...

Williams quickly filled the bases. George Brett opened the ninth with a single and one out later, Brad Wellman and Bill Buckner walked.

Mohoric entered and got the second out, inducing Bo Jackson to strikeout. Pinch hitter Danny Tartabull then delivered a two-run single and Willie Willie Wilson followed with an RBI single to bring Kansas City within 7-6.

Mohoric issued two walks — to Kurt Stillwell and Kevin Seitzer — to tie the score before exiting.

Hoffman walked Brett to push the Royals in front. McMurtry broke up the monopoly by unleashing wild pitch, then returned to form by walking Pat Tabler. Wellman followed with a two-run single to make it 11-7.

Mohoric, 2-6, received the loss. Kansas City's fourth hurler, Steve Farr, improved to 4-2.

"I don't think I've ever seen an inning like that," Kansas City Manager John Wathan said. "They had a comfortable lead and gave up six walks. That's amazing."

Elsewhere in the American League, New York nipped Oakland 5-4, Boston rocked California 10-2, Minnesota shaded Detroit 7-5 in 10 innings, Cleveland defeated Milwaukee 6-2, Toronto tripped Chicago 7-2 and Seattle at Baltimore was postponed because of rain.

In the National League, it was: Pittsburgh 2, Cincinnati 0; Chicago 9, Houston 3; St. Louis 7, Atlanta 0; San Diego 9, Philadelphia 1; New York 5, Los Angeles 1; and Montreal 2, San Francisco 1 in 13 innings.

BOGGS SUIT

BOSTON — Several Boston Red Sox baseball players will be subpoenaed during next week's road trip to California to testify in the palimony suit filed against batting champion Wade Boggs. The Boston Herald reported Wednesday.

The depositions have been scheduled for Sept. 2 and Sept. 3 while the Red Sox, currently in second place, two games behind the Detroit Tigers in the American League East, make a 10-game West Coast road trip, attorney James McGee told the Herald.

McGee represents Margo Adams, the two-time beauty pageant queen from Santa Ana, Calif., who is seeking $6 million from Boggs as reimbursement for the 4 1/2 years she says she spent traveling with him during road trips.

An attorney for Boggs, who is married and has two children, criticized the planned depositions as harassment intended to force an out-of-court settlement. "This whole threat of doing depositions has been designed to disrupt the team and give Margo publicity for her alleged book," attorney Jennifer King told the Herald.

The lawsuit has reportedly been the source of dissension this season among Red Sox players, including an altercation between Boggs and other players on a previous road trip, arising out of concerns that other players could be dragged into the case.

George may be right — this time

By RICHARD L. SNOOK
 UPI sports writer

By George, Steinbrenner might be right. Don Mattingly IS having a subpar baseball season.

So if he's thinking of unloading the high-priced New York Yankees' first baseman, there's only about 16 or 17 general managers who might be willing to solve his payroll problem.

The latest plot line in the highly rated soap opera "As the Yankees Turn" started during the weekend when Mattingly noted the New York players got money, but no respect from management. Without mentioning Steinbrenner by name, Mattingly noted Yankee management hurts the club's on-field efforts with its style.

Mattingly, heretofore not known as a complainer, was repeating some charges baseball insiders have been aware of for years. They would have sounded better coming when his home run and RBI totals don't look like they belong to Wade Boggs, but...

Steinbrenner, not surprisingly, couldn't pass up an opportunity to respond any more than Mattingly can resist swinging at a hanging slider.

The self-described "Boss" properly noted he isn't the one with a 6.45 ERA over the last 14 games, he is not the one making errors and that if Yankees left on base were raindrops there would be no drought problem in areas where New York played.

Steinbrenner also observed New York's first baseman, who "guaranteed" a division title for New York when management signed free agent Jack Clark last winter, was frustrated and upset and, by his own admission, having a poor season.

And Mattingly IS having a substandard year: a .316 average as of Tuesday's games, 13 home runs and 69 RBIs.

But "The Boss" (and we're not talking about Springsteen here) might expect to get more than those piddly numbers for his $2 million a year. If Donnie took those numbers into arbitration he would get laughed out of the room. By his agent.

Mattingly hit a league high of .343 in his second season, 1984, following that with .324, .352 and .327. He will finish under 100 RBI for the first time since his 91-game rookie season — driving in 110, a league-leading 145, 113 and 115 in successive years. This is also likely to be Mattingly's first sub-30 home run season in three years, his totals for his previous four being 23, 35, 31 and 30.

But Mattingly, in his turn, has a right to expect more from management than the Yankees potentially get. Every season starts out with New York as the favorite or a definite threat.

The past two have seen the Yankees start out strong, then falter when their suspect pitching staff forced the club to average 7-12 runs a game to win. Last year it was August when New York dropped out of first place for good. This year, with one three-day exception, it was late June.

These collapses or slow downward trends are always marked with the appropriate response from Steinbrenner — 1) a managerial change involving the arrival or departure of Billy Martin, 2) a new pitching coach, 3) a managerial change not involving Martin, 4) a ripping of his team, 5) a castigating of Dave Winfield or Mattingly, or 6) all of the above.

It is curious, maybe Steinbrenner could solve two problems by trading Mattingly. He might get an established starting pitcher and a top pitching prospect for Mattingly from some drooling, starry-eyed, second-division general manager,

Offensive linemen rise from obscurity

By JOEL SHERMAN
 UPI sports writer

NEW YORK — Their credo states anonymity is good.

Offensive linemen are trapped in a devilish predicament. There are few statistics that gauge their performance. No touchdowns, no interceptions, no field goals.

They are simply big men whose television exposure usually comes in a terrible voice-over while the referee's voice resonates over the public address system: "Holding, number sixty-three, offense."

So United Press International prefers to praise, not bury, offensive linemen, for they are surely honorable men.

The third UPI NFL All-Underrated Team boasts a group of offensive linemen that can power a running game and protect a passer, and none has ever been recognized by his peers for the Pro Bowl.

The tackles are Lomas Brown of Detroit and Pittsburgh's Tunch Ikin, both repeat members of the UPI Team. Brown has made steady progress since being drafted on the first round in 1985. Ikin, at 6-foot-3 and 265 pounds, is one of the Steelers' underrated linemen who compensates for lack of size with quickness and smarts to specialize in blocking for Pittsburgh's trapping schemes. He also has allowed just one sack in the past two seasons.

"I'd be lying if I didn't say that (recognition) mattered," said Ikin, a ninth-year pro out of Indiana State. "My goal is always to play the best I can, make as few mistakes as possible and try to get better every play. If other things come along, good and fine, I enjoy the obscurity of the offensive lineman."

The guards are Washington's Raleigh McKenzie and Seattle's Bryan Millard, both of whom excel as run blockers. Billy Bryan of Denver is the center.

"I don't feel slighted," said Millard, a fifth-year pro from Texas. "Recognition comes when you win. But I'd have to be a crazy man not to have that goal to reach the Pro Bowl. That distinguishes you as one of the best at what you do. Everybody wants to have that."

Among the offensive linemen who were considered for the Underrated Team were guards

- Punter — John Kidd, Buffalo

Terry Long of Pittsburgh, Mark Adickes of Kansas City, Tom Thayer of Chicago, Tom Newberry of the Rams and Dan Fike of Cleveland. Second-year players Bruce Armstrong and Danny Villa of New England were looked at among the tackles with Miami's Ronnie Lee, Tampa Bay's Randy Grimes also was a center possibility.

The most difficult positions to determine each year for the Underrated Team are in the offensive backfield because of the attention lavished on top running backs.

made a name for themselves over the past few years with their phenomenal size.

This year Lake Howell does not have the size it has had in the past, but coach Mike Biscaglia feels he will have his young team ready to go by the beginning of the season.

Lake Howell returns sophomore standout running back Marquette Smith, who was one of the county's top freshman athletes last year. Smith will be joined by quarterback Danny Vereck who may be one of the best at his position.

Lake Brantley will be enjoying some size this season, something the Patriots haven't had too much of in the past two seasons. Lake Brantley will also be returning some veteran starters and has the potential to be one of the county's tougher teams this year.

Coach Fred Almon, entering his third season, is hoping his size, experience and the attitude of his players will provide the school with a good year on the football field.

"We're ready to play," Almon said. "We're tired of practicing, we want to go out and hit on somebody else. The team is looking good and we finally have some size."

Pat French is the largest player for Lake Brantley, standing 6-7 and weighing above 250 while playing defensive end. The Patriots will also have two big defensive linemen in David Swan and Curt Thomason, who are both 6-4 and 220 pounds. Jason Varitek and Matt Miller will anchor the defense, both playing linebacker, and give Lake Brantley the big lineup it has seen without in recent years.

On the offensive side it will be Clint Johnson and Scott Meredith as the quarterbacks and the next few days should decide which of them will be getting the starting call. Tom Steyer is the only returning lineman playing center.

Oviedo will be hoping to get back on track this season after dropping six of its final seven games a season ago. Oviedo will be led on defense by Willie Pauldo, one of the top linebacker prospects in the area. Chad Duncan showed some good speed and footwork at running back in the spring and he should lead the offense until the quarterback, Matt Blanton, can get some experience.

Lyman will hope it can come alive after nearly making the playoffs a year ago. The Greyhounds are led on offense by Octavian Holiday at wide receiver with Steven Jerry and Mike McNamee battling for the quarterback slot. Marvin Reed and Cedric Bouie are the top tailbacks on the squad.

The defense will be led by John Sherp, a co-captain, who has been working hard at the inside linebacker position. Willie Grayson adds strength at the noseguard position along with defensive back J.J. Miller.

Defensive end Mark Kuset and outside linebacker Chad Weppert have also been impressive in the early going. Lyman has a lot of youth and Scott is hoping his team will learn quickly.

Apopka, which has a reputation for always being tough, will enter the 1988 season with yet another fine team. Apopka finished 5-5 last season, but could have easily been 8-2 and returns a handful of players from that team.

Joy Hunt will be back at the quarterback position this season with Shawn Monroe, Wally Henderson and Derek Clarke all to be playing running back. Apopka, though, will be depending on its defense which will be led by third year lineman Marcus Holmes, J.D. Howard will be return after sitting out last season and gives the Blue Darters strength in the second ary.

Irish fare more than mere taters

By MIDGE MYCOFF
Herald columnist

CELBRIDGE, Ireland — As I reminisce about a July visit to Ireland, I recall some delightful experiences that evolved around food and the enjoyment of mealtimes, especially in the home of Rose and Pat McCabe of Celbridge, County Kildare.

Rose operated a B & B (bed and breakfast) guest home that could accommodate twelve guests. The guests ate breakfast in a dining room separate from the family quarters. As a Friendship Force exchange ambassador staying with the McCabes, I was a "family friend" and was privy to the delights of a large, modern kitchen, complete with laundry equipment, a special-speed dishwasher, microwave oven, two large ranges (one used peat as fuel), a long harvest-type table, much storage and counter space, and large windows from which to view a lovely yard.

The kitchen was the "hub" of industry in this household, and it offered warmth, comfort and a pleasant place for breakfast and conversation. Afternoon tea was taken in the family living room and the evening meal in the family dining room.

Breakfast in Ireland is what a breakfast should be! Orange juice, a bowl of smooth oatmeal with rich cream, bacon, sausage, eggs, homemade scones and brown bread with fresh black currant or red raspberry jam and a pot of tea. The bacon is much like Canadian bacon, with little or no fat. It was a real treat that I so enjoyed, I brought some home with me. We picked currants and raspberries for jam. Rhubarb was picked from the yard also for use in tarts and crumbles.

On a daily basis, Rose baked brown bread, scones and tarts, which are like our pies.

This is the recipe she uses for brown bread.

TRADITIONAL BROWN BREAD

- 1 1/2 cups (12 ounces) coarse ground wholemeal (oatmeal)
  - 1/2 cup (4 ounces) all purpose flour
  - 1/4 teaspoon salt
  - 1 teaspoon baking soda
  - 1/2-3/4 pint buttermilk or sour milk
  - 1 tablespoon (1/2 ounce) wheat germ (optional)
  - 2 tablespoons (1 ounce) bran (optional)
- Sift flour, salt and soda into bowl. Mix in wholemeal (oatmeal) and other grains if used. Add enough milk to make a soft dough. Turn onto a lightly floured board. Knead until mixture comes together smoothly. Place dough on a floured tin. Cut a cross over the top. Bake in a preheated oven at 425°F for approximately 45 minutes. When baked, the bread will have a hollow sound when tapped on the base. Cool on a wire rack. A dry tea towel wrapped around the bread at this stage helps to give a softer crust.

A scone served at breakfast or teatime is a most delightful quick bread. For breakfast, butter and jam are enough, but at tea you must go the whole way: butter and raspberry jam topped with rich whipped or clotted cream.

IRISH SCONES

- 2 cups self-rising flour
- 3 tablespoons butter
- 1/2 cup milk
- Pinch of salt
- 1 tablespoon sugar
- 2 tablespoons currants

Sift the flour into a bowl and rub in the butter quickly and lightly with the fingertips. Add the salt, and then add the sugar and currants. Using a round-bladed knife, mix in the milk a little at a time. With floured hands knead lightly to a soft dough, adding a little more milk if necessary. Roll out evenly but lightly about one finger thick on a floured board. Cut out with a pastry cutter using a sharp quick motion, but do not twist or the scones will distort as they bake. Bake on a greased baking sheet near the top of a pre-heated oven 425°F for 12-15 minutes.

Fresh salmon is readily available in Dublin. We noticed it on the menu of many restaurants. One evening, it was served as the entree for a lovely meal prepared by Rose and her daughter, Ursula. If I recall, the meal included a green salad with hard-cooked eggs, peas, carrots, cauliflower, a great bowl of potatoes (boiled in their skins), brown bread and rhubarb tart.

I must confess I could never eat just one potato. The flavor of the Irish potato is like none I have ever tasted. Simple, boiled in the skin, and served with butter or margarine, salt and pepper, they are a mainstay of the Irish diet.

A baked whole salmon can provide a entree for a special party meal and will serve at least eight people.

BAKED SALMON—IRISH STYLE

- 1 whole fresh salmon (about 5 pounds)
- Parsley
- Salt and pepper
- 1/2 cup butter
- 1/2 cup cider

The menu at Jury's Hotel in Dublin offers traditional Irish stew, oak-smoked wild salmon,

Dot the rest of the butter over the salmon, then season and pour the cider and cream over it. Now seal the foil along the top, leaving only a small vent. Bake in the oven for 1 1/2 hours at 350°F. When done, take from oven, remove the skin and reduce the juices by boiling, stirring constantly. Serve the sauce with the salmon.

Using your fingertips, rub the butter into the flour in a large bowl. When it is like fine bread crumbs, mix in the brown sugar. Mix the rhubarb with the granulated sugar. Place the rhubarb in an ovenproof dish and cover with the crumble mixture, pressing down the surface lightly. Bake for 45 minutes in a preheated oven at 350°F. Serve hot with cream.

Whether it was a pub meal at lunch, good substantial food at home, or a meal at a fine continental restaurant or cabaret, I found the food of Ireland well prepared and beautifully presented by warm and friendly people. What more could anyone want?

Changeable chicken good for time, health, pocketbook

Chicken was once the meal for Sunday or a company special. Now it's the common, everyday favorite served as many ways as you can stretch the imagination. Chicken has the advantage of being versatile and economical and can become low in fat if the skin is removed and prepared without additional fats.

CHICKEN IN CREAMY WINE SAUCE

- 2 whole chicken breasts, split, skin removed
  - 1 teaspoon paprika
  - 1/2 teaspoon salt
  - 1/2 teaspoon pepper
  - 4 green onions, sliced
  - 1/2 cup white wine
  - 3 tablespoons butter or margarine
  - 1/2 cup all purpose flour
  - 1/2 teaspoon salt
  - 1 cup light cream
- Arrange chicken in 12-by-8-inch baking dish. Sprinkle with paprika, salt, pepper and green onions. Pour wine into dish. Cover with waxed paper. M/W on 100 percent power 18-20 minutes or until tender. Set aside. M/W butter on 100 per-

  - 3- to 3 1/2-pound frying chicken, cut up
- Beat egg and milk together, set aside. Combine crushed stuffing, Parmesan cheese and paprika. Dip chicken into egg; roll in crumb mixture. Arrange in 12-by-8-inch glass baking dish. Cover with paper towel. M/W on 100 percent power, 25-30 minutes or until chicken is done. (I prefer to remove skin from the chicken, but that is a matter of personal preference.)

Casseroles surely were developed out of a need to use a small amount of a common food in making it to serve many. One such casserole that has become a favorite is this Mexican dish.

CHICKEN ENCHILADA

- 2 1/2 cups cooked chicken, cut into bite-sized pieces (I prefer the breast of chicken)
- 1 1/2 cups chicken broth
- 1 can of cream of mushroom

- soup
- 1 can of cream of chicken soup
- 1 4-ounce can green chilis, chopped, undrained
- 1 4-ounce jar pimientos, chopped and drained
- 1 tablespoon dry sherry or apple juice
- 18 ounces Doritos, slightly crushed
- 1 pound grated Cheddar cheese

Mix all ingredients except chips and cheese. Cover bottom of 9-by-13-inch glass baking dish with 1 cup of cheese. Layer 1/2 chicken mixture then 1/2 of cheese. Repeat, ending with chips topped with cheese. Refrigerate at least 1 hour before microcooking. M/W on 85 percent power for 20-25 minutes or until hot throughout. Serves 6-8.

Cook it your way! Either way it's good, but of course the microwave method is quicker and more economical. I've included both the traditional and the microwave method of preparation for this chicken dish.

CHICKEN SPAGHETTI

- 1 broiler-fryer, cut up (about 3 pounds)
- 2 tablespoons oil
- 1 medium onion, chopped
- 1 medium clove garlic, minced
- 1 1/2 cups water
- 1 can (15 ounces) tomato sauce
- 1 can (4 ounces) mushrooms, drained
- 1 teaspoon oregano
- 1 teaspoon salt
- 1/4 to 1/2 teaspoon hot pepper sauce
- 1 package (4 ounces) spaghetti, broken — about 1-1/2 cups
- Grated Parmesan cheese

In Dutch oven, brown chicken in oil. Add onion and garlic and saute until onion is tender. Stir in water, tomato sauce, mushrooms, oregano, salt, and pepper sauce. Cover and bake at 350°F for 30 minutes or until chicken and spaghetti are tender. Stir occasionally. Serve with Parmesan.

Microwave: Cook onion and garlic in oil in a 3-quart round casserole for 5 minutes at 100 percent power. Add unbrowned chicken, assemble as above, reducing water to 3/4 cup. Cover and microwave at 100 percent power for 15 minutes. Stir in spaghetti. Cover and cook at 100 percent power for 15 minutes or until chicken and spaghetti are tender. Stir occasionally.

Catfish adapts to many tastes

The electric catfish of the Nile and Zambezi rivers can discharge up to 350 volts of electricity, 240 volts more than the standard outlet in the average American home. But that's not why Mississippi gets such a charge out of the catfish.

In tribute to the popular be-whiskered creature of freshwater, Mississippi Governor Ray Mabus recently designated August as National Catfish Month.

Mabus cited Mississippi's farm-raised catfish industry as contributing more than $300 million to the state's economy in 1987. He also noted the catfish's nutritional value, taste and versatility (it can be grilled, blackened, sauteed, broiled, steamed, barbecued, baked, poached, smoked and fried.)

Catfish is a standout in soups, stews, kabobs, curries, pates, stir-fries and cloaked in every imaginable sauce. Mississippi Prime farm-raised catfish, in particular, is lauded for being odorless and sweet-tasting, and offers truly boneless filets.

Following are recipes from The Catfish Institute of Mississippi:

CRUNCHY BROILED CATFISH KABOBS

- 6 Mississippi Prime farm-raised catfish filets
- 3 corn on the cob, cooked
- 2 red peppers, cut into 2-inch pieces
- 1/2 cup vegetable oil
- 1/2 cup teriyaki sauce (or soy sauce)
- 1/2 cup finely chopped onion
- 1/2 cup fresh lemon juice
- 1 tablespoon sugar
- 2 cloves garlic, minced
- 1 teaspoon ground coriander
- 1/4 teaspoon liquid hot pepper sauce
- 1 cup herb-seasoned breadcrumbs
- 2 lime cut into wedges
- Cooked rice
- Parsley sprigs

Cut fish into 2-inch pieces. Cut each ear of corn into 4 pieces. In a large, shallow dish, combine fish, corn, red pepper, oil, teriyaki sauce, lemon juice, sugar, garlic, coriander and hot pepper sauce. Mix well. Cover and refrigerate 1 hour, stirring occasionally. Preheat broiler 5 minutes. Drain fish and vegetables, reserving marinade.

Roll fish pieces in breadcrumbs. Thread fish, vegetables and lime wedges, alternating, on 6 skewers approximately 16 inches long. Place on greased broiler pan. Broil approximately 8-10 inches from heat for 8-10 minutes, turning and basting with marinade, until fish flakes easily. Serve kabobs over cooked rice. Garnish with parsley sprigs. Makes 6 servings.

Night to reward young volunteers

ORLANDO — Outstanding young volunteers in Central Florida will receive gold, silver and bronze Congressional Award Medals from Congressman Bill McCollum during an evening of recognition Sept. 10 at Walt Disney World's River Country.

The third annual event, free for up to 600 volunteers between the ages of 10 and 23, is an outgrowth of Young Volunteers in Action, a program of the Volunteer Center of Central Florida established to promote young volunteerism.

Other special awards, such as scholarships, savings bonds and savings accounts also will be given out.

The gates of River Country will open to participants at 5:30 p.m. and the presentation will begin at 6 p.m. Afterward, a barbecue will be served and water games, slides and pools will be available while a live band entertains.

Free tickets to the event are available on a first-come, first-served basis to youths who have volunteered during the past year. Parents, friends and other guests will be admitted for $13.

All tickets must be obtained from the Volunteer Center of Central Florida, 1900 N. Mills Ave., Orlando, Fla. 32803.

For more information, call Chris Boyko at the center, 896-0945.

Communication in family will be talk topic

WINTER SPRINGS — A nurse from West Lake Hospital in Longwood will speak on "How to Talk to Your Kids So They Will Listen, and How to Listen to Your Kids So They Will Talk" in a seminar Aug. 30.

Effective communication skills between family members will be addressed at the seminar, which will be at 7:30 p.m. at the Winter Springs Civic Center.

For more information on the workshop, contact the Missing Children Center at 695-4357. The seminar is free.

A savory tomato sauce tops Catfish Aurore.

CATFISH AURORE

- 1/4 cup white wine
- 1 bottle (8 ounces) clam juice
- 3 teaspoons fresh thyme leaves (or 1 1/2 teaspoon dried)
- 4 Mississippi farm-raised catfish filets
- 1 clove garlic, minced
- 1 tablespoon olive oil
- 1/4 teaspoon crushed red pepper flakes
- 8 fresh plum tomatoes, peeled, seeded and chopped
- 1/4 cup creme fraiche (recipe follows)

In a large skillet, combine white wine, clam juice, 1 teaspoon thyme leaves and catfish filets. Cover and simmer for 5-10 minutes or until catfish flakes easily. Remove the filets from the pan with a slotted spatula and place on a warm serving plate.

In a medium skillet, saute garlic with olive oil and crushed red pepper flakes. When garlic is golden brown, add chopped tomatoes and remaining 2 teaspoons thyme leaves. Simmer for 15 minutes. Remove from heat and stir in creme fraiche. Serve sauce with catfish and garnish with fresh or dried thyme. Makes 4 servings.

Creme Fraiche for Catfish Aurore:

- 1/2 cup heavy cream
  - 1/4 teaspoon buttermilk
- Combine heavy cream with buttermilk. Cover and let stand overnight at room temperature.

STIR-FRIED CATFISH

- 4 Mississippi Prime farm-raised catfish filets
- 3 tablespoons lemon juice
- 3 tablespoons soy sauce
- 3 tablespoons vegetable oil
- 1 cup thinly sliced red pepper
- 1 cup sliced celery
- 1 cup snow peas
- 1 cup sliced fresh mushrooms
- 2 1/2 teaspoons cornstarch
- 3/4 cup water
- 1 teaspoon salt
- 1/4 teaspoon pepper
- Hot cooked rice

Cut filets into 2 by 3/4-inch strips. Combine lemon juice and soy sauce. Add fish; let stand 20 minutes. Add 2 tablespoons oil to wok or large skillet. Heat over medium-high heat for 2 minutes.

Add red pepper, stir-fry 2 minutes. Add celery, snow peas and mushrooms; stir-fry 2 minutes. Remove vegetables; set aside. Add remaining tablespoon oil to wok; heat over medium-high heat for 2 minutes. Drain fish, reserving marinade. Add fish to wok; stir-fry 2 minutes or until fish flakes easily. Return vegetables to wok. Combine cornstarch, water, salt, pepper and reserved marinade; stir until smooth. Add to wok and cook 2 minutes or until slightly thickened. Serve over hot cooked rice. Makes 4 servings.

Favoritism lowers fund-raising profits

ADVICE

ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

A "CHAINED" CHAIN SMOKER
 DEAR CHAINED: I will. Here it is:

CHAINS OF ADDICTION
 I feel very angry when I read articles in the newspaper regarding tobacco companies with lawsuits pending that say an individual smokes because he or she wants to, and therefore their company is not liable for a smoker's death. They are disregarding the fact that nicotine is a highly addictive substance, much like heroin, and that is not a matter of will power or "choosing" to smoke.

Once health is affected, smoking is a cross to bear and causes much suffering and anxiety. Smoking is continued despite good intentions or wishes for a healthier existence, because it is so highly addictive. Many times have I cried out in the night to a God that I much believe in to make whatever changes are necessary inside of me to let go of this destructive habit.

I have tried a non-smoking clinic, psychiatry, addiction counseling, hypnosis, staples in my ear. Adult Children of Alcoholics (ACOA) groups, along with countless attempts at quitting on my own. I moved to a community 10 miles from the nearest store and walked this distance to have a smoke. I have had to give up relationships, desired living space and job opportunities because of this habit. My repeated "failures" have left me with a belief that I do not have the power to change.

I need help and no longer know what to do about this situation. I feel angry, fearful and hopeless. I am afraid to breathe and have a long-standing cough. To all young people who are thinking of or just starting to smoke—don't. Denial and rationalization go a long way to paving the road to self-destruction.

DEAR PATRICIA AND CHAINED: I have never smoked, but believe me, I feel your pain. But you are "powerless to change" only if you believe you are.

Some suggestions: Contact your local chapter of the American Cancer Society or the American Lung Association. The Seventh-day Adventists also offer an excellent program to anyone who's serious about quitting the tobacco habit. Help is available, and it's usually free. Go for it and good luck.

(Problems? Write to Dear Abby. For a personal, unpublished reply, send a self-addressed, stamped envelope to Dear Abby, P.O. Box 69440, Los Angeles, Calif. 90069. All correspondence is confidential.)

DEAR ABBY: If you can solve this, you will be helping hundreds of organizations that raise money by putting on "white elephant" sales, garage sales, bake sales, used book sales, etc.

I'm referring to "pre-buying" privileges given to committee members. For years, I've watched these well-to-do women snatch up designer clothes, rare books and the choice items at rock-bottom prices. The public never even gets a chance to see them!

Don't they realize that it is those special treasures that bring in the customers? This year I saw a museum-quality book of poetry "sell" for a dollar—before the sale started.

I once baked and decorated a gorgeous cake for my club's bake sale to raffle off. I'm sure they could have made $25 from it. It was snapped up by the head of the bake sale committee—for $5.

I raised this issue once and got the cold shoulder, Abby. The only organizations I know of in this town that do not allow members special pre-sale privileges are the Lions Club and the Junior League.

Any ideas for halting these ripoffs?

IN THE STATE OF WASHINGTON
 DEAR IN: Yes. Those who are responsible for the sale, auction, raffle or whatever should declare: "The committee shall agree on the sale price then mark each item with the asking price. And only after the public has had first crack at all the merchandise should it be offered to members of the organization. No exception." Period.

DEAR ABBY: My problem is a couple of years old, but it still bothers me. I have a sister and a brother. All of us are married and only a few years apart in age. A couple of years ago, my mother had two very nice rings. One was her engagement rings from our father, and the other was her own mother's ring. My mother asked my sister to choose the ring she wanted, then Mother gave my brother's wife the other one. I was overlooked completely. To make matters worse, my mother told everyone involved not to tell me. (I found out from a relative who didn't know it was supposed to be a secret.)

I am very hurt because my mother chose my sister-in-law over me to give something important to. The ironic part is that my sister-in-law and brother are now getting divorced—and there goes the ring!

Every time I see my mother, I think of this ring business and feel hurt and resentful. I avoid going over to see her. I don't know what to do. I have two faces—one feels guilty for not showing my mother the affection and attention a daughter should, and the other one can't seem to get over the hurt I feel. It's not really the ring, it's the idea that I was passed over in favor of my sister-in-law.

What should I do?

HURT
 DEAR HURT: Call your mother and ask to meet with her—just the two of you alone. And when you meet, be totally honest. Say, "Mother, you hurt me." Then tell her why—without being judgmental or unkind. This way, the cold war—and your feelings of guilt—will come to an end.

Whether she apologizes or explains is not important. But everything will be out in the open and you will have cleared the air.

DEAR ABBY: For years I've been wanting to write to you every time I see your callous answers concerning smoking. I always calmed myself down with the knowledge that you probably never have smoked, so you can't know what it's like.

How I wish there were clinics for smokers, paid for by insurance, like there are for alcoholics and drug addicts, but there aren't any! There's a stop-smoking program here, located in a Catholic hospital, run by a nun who has never smoked in her life who can't possibly relate to the problem faced by smokers who really want to quit. I have tried everything, and it's been one big disappointment after another.

Abby, I hope you will quit beating smokers over the head; we need help, and it just isn't out there.

I am enclosing a clipping from the letters-to-the-editor column of The Arizona Daily Star in Tucson. It says everything I feel because I am walking in this writer's shoes (for as long as I can walk before being bedridden with cancer, emphysema or heart disease.)

Please give us smokers a break, and run the letter in your column.

Routine screening for CO2 values not valuable

DEAR DR. GOTT: I had a blood test recently. All values were within normal ranges except for CO2 and chloride, both of which were quite high. Could you explain to me what these values mean?

DEAR READER: The amount of carbon dioxide (CO2) dissolved in the blood can be measured, as can chloride (a portion of the salt molecule). CO2 in arterial blood gives a useful number that helps physicians diagnose and treat respiratory ailments and problems with the body's acid/base buffering system. In my experience, the routine calculation of CO2 in venous blood — when performed as part of a screening procedure — is without value. Similarly, in healthy adults, the venous chloride is useless, providing that the sodium level is normal.

Many of my patients seem to have high CO2 and chloride levels in random blood samples. If everything else is normal, I simply ignore these values because they don't tell me anything and appear not to be related to health. In my opinion, the routine screening of CO2 and chloride in the blood of well adults is a waste of time and money.

DEAR DR. GOTT: My resting pulse rate is 90. I do aerobics five times a week, frequently play tennis and swim, have two children, a part-time business, am happily married and have 110/70 blood pressure. Is my pulse rate anything to worry about?

DEAR READER: Although most normal adults have resting pulses between 60 and 80, an occasional person may run as high as 90. This may be a normal value for you. Nonetheless, I think that you should be checked by a physician because you might have a low grade anemia or a hidden thyroid condition, the first sign of which could be a tendency to fast pulse. These conditions, and others like them may produce few, if any, symptoms early on; a slight pulse increase could be the first warning signal. I'm sending you a free copy of my Health Letter, EATING RIGHT FOR A HEALTHY HEART. Other readers who want a copy should send $1 and their name and address to P.O. Box 91369, Cleveland, OH 44101.

WIN AT BRIDGE

By James Jacoby

How do you respond to your partner's takeout double when you have a fair hand but your best suit is the one that the opponents opened? You can of course bid some number of no-trump, based upon your general high-card strength, but what about passing partner's double and trying to exact a penalty? Yes, it is OK to pass for penalties, as long as you understand that by so doing you are telling your partner that they have bid your suit and you think the best defense is to start pulling their trumps. Today's deal is a good example. Because East held the 10-9-8 of hearts for his intermediate spots, he had a reasonable expectation that his side would be able to draw the smaller spot cards in South's trump suit.

With South vulnerable, that would make the penalty well worthwhile. And that's the way it went. With the trump lead, South scrambled around and finally took four tricks, but that was still 800 to the defenders. What if the heart spots had been different with South holding A-Q-10-9-8? Then East would have been better advised to bid one no-trump over the takeout double. Remember, the penalty pass is a command for partner to lead trumps.

What the day will bring...

By Bernice Bede Oool
YOUR BIRTHDAY August 25, 1988

Your ambitions will be bigger in the year ahead than in the past. They will give you greater motivation, as well as greater rewards.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) The more meaningful the objective is today, the better you should be able to cope with it. Go after something big without trepidation. Virgo, treat yourself to a birthday gift. Send for your Astro-Graph predictions for the year ahead by mailing $1 to Astro-Graph, c/o this newspaper, P.O. Box 91428, Cleveland, OH 44101-3428. Be sure to state your zodiac sign.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) New alliances formed at this time should turn out to be fortunate for you, as well as for the other parties involved — especially if one of them is a Gemini.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22)

Try to share as much time as possible with people with whom you have strong loving bonds. The experience should be rewarding.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) This is a good day to socialize with people who are in your profession. Something mutually advantageous could result.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) If your material circumstances have been lean lately, there are strong indications you could begin to experience a change for the better as of today.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Someone you talk with today in a convivial environment might be in a position to favor you in business. Don't be hesitant to talkshop.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) In order to conclude a matter of importance today, you might have to use some bold, imaginative tactics. Think carefully and act positively.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) If you feel optimistic about a recent development, don't let the thoughts of a negative friend dampen your enthusiasm. The aspects indicate you have good reason to be hopeful.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) In career situations, you are likely to be more effective operating on your own. Try to avoid associates who slow you down.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Everything will work out more smoothly today if you treat your involvements philosophically. Your luck will be more pronounced when you are relaxed.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Your best bet for achieving your ends today will be through indirect tactics. If an obstacle confronts you, devise a way to outflank it.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) A relationship that is of importance to you, but hasn't lived up to its expectations, can be improved as of today. Take measures to strengthen it.

Quake death toll hits 1,100

UPI report

KATMANDU, Nepal — The government appealed today for quake relief aid and warned thousands of people left homeless by Sunday's tremor in which more than 1,100 people died to guard against catching pneumonia from rains that have pelted the Himalayan region.

Officials in Katmandu said rains continued to hamper rescue operations in Nepal three days after the quake, the worst in 54 years, struck the Indo-Nepalese border. Indian authorities reported dry weather in northern Bihar state, which received the brunt of destruction in India.

Nepalese officials said getting aid to areas of the mountainous country was proving difficult, even with the use of helicopters, and reports of devastation continued to trickle in from Nepal's remote valleys.

The government made an urgent call for international aid as the death toll mounted and officials tried to get a handle on the relief situation for thousands of people left homeless by the quake.

The Home Ministry said the number of dead rose to 551 and those seriously injured was 311. The death toll in India stood at more than 500. Residents, rescue workers and news reports said initial reports from Bangladesh said 50 people were believed to have drowned when their boats were capsized by quake-induced waves.

In Nepal, officials expect the death toll to increase further. They have been unable to reach inaccessible mountain areas at 5,000 to 10,000 feet.

Officials reported heavy rains in the areas affected by the quake in east Nepal and authorities feared many hamlets were in danger of lethal mudslides.

The official National News Agency reported 10 people were killed by landslides Monday and Tuesday in the west Nepal districts of Sindhuli and Lamjung, areas that were not affected by the quake.

The seismological office of the Department of Mines in Nepal reported a series of aftershocks that shook the region and sent residents fleeing into the streets had tapered off as of early Tuesday, but many people were still afraid to return to their homes.

"The people are still frightened, survivors are afraid to enter their houses," said a reporter who traveled to Dharan, the worst hit town where 130 were reported to have died.

"The old section of the town is completely destroyed. Even in the new section the houses are badly cracked," the reporter, who requested anonymity said.

The Health Ministry warned those left homeless by the quake to guard against bronchitis and pneumonia, which could be brought on by rains that have fallen almost continuously since Sunday, when the quake struck.

Nighttime temperatures in Dhankuta, also affected by the quake, dropped to 63 degrees.

The government will welcome all help and cooperation from all sources," Finance Minister Bharat Bahadur said in a statement announcing the establishment of a relief and rehabilitation fund that will accept all types of aid.

Relief operations are being hampered by the paucity of transport logistics, particularly helicopters, which proved to be the only means to carry out rescue work in the mountainous terrain of Nepal.

Bahadur said in a briefing Tuesday for foreign donor agencies.

The most seriously injured were being evacuated to hospitals in Katmandu, where better medical treatment facilities existed.

The official Indian report said only about 200 people were killed in the Sunday's earthquake that measured 6.5 on the Richter Scale and rolled across seven Indian states.

Officials in Bihar's capital of Patna, 530 miles southeast of New Delhi, said the military and volunteer units were busy removing debris of collapsed buildings and looking for possible survivors.

Doctors across the quake-affected region had a difficult time treating injured people as they kept streaming into hospitals.

Hospital authorities in Darbhanga and Munger towns, about 60 miles northeast of Patna, were putting two people to a bed and many were asked to lie on floors, a resident of Darbhanga said.

Authorities gave $55 to survivors to help them rebuild their mud houses, officials in Patna said.

U.S. Ambassador Johan Gantner Dean donated $25,000 to India to provide relief to victims of earthquake.

"The American people share India's grief over the tragic loss of so many lives and the widespread destruction caused by the earthquake," Dean said in a statement.
