Sanford Kiwanis starts camper endowment

Sanford Kiwanis Club and Lake Mary-Heathrow Kiwanis Club have established an endowment fund honoring deceased Don Stanford, one of the founders of the Lake Mary-Heathrow Kiwanis Club.

The endowment fund will provide yearly camping fees for one camper to attend a week at Camp Challenge, an Easter Seal campground for young campers confined to wheelchairs, located near Sorrento, off West State Road 46.

The Lake Mary-Heathrow Kiwanis Club was sponsored by the Sanford Kiwanis Club in 1999 and started by the personal efforts of Don Stanford and Dave Liddell, former presidents of the Sanford Kiwanis Club.

Don Stanford was instrumental in helping secure a grant from our Florida Foundation, which matched a Division 10 effort by most of its Central Florida clubs to raise funds to widen and resurface the nature trail at Camp Challenge recently. The original nature trail was constructed through financial assistance and personal labor of Division 25, now Division 10, greater Orlando area Kiwanis Clubs.

The camper endowment fund will continue the personal efforts by Don Stanford and the Sanford area clubs to help Camp Challenge further its important work with the kids.

Joyner appointed election supervisor

Gov. Bush gives Seminole County assistant supervisor of elections an early Christmas gift

By Christopher Patton
Managing Editor

The call from the governor's office came at lunchtime Christmas Eve and Seminole County Assistant Supervisor of Elections Dennis Joyner couldn't have been happier. Joyner had been waiting since Nov. 6 when Seminole County Supervisor of Elections Sandy Goard announced at a morning staff meeting she would be stepping down Jan 5. Goard recommended to the state that Joyner be appointed to the position. "The last few days here have been a lot of wondering and hoping," he said.

"The closer it was getting to Sandy's retirement date, you start wondering why is it taking so long etcetera, but it's a process where they had to do their checks and review everything," Joyner added. "I'm glad it's over before Christmas. We will have a nice Christmas Eve party tonight."

According to state officials, only one other person applied for appointment to the position. In 1983, when Camilla Bruce suddenly announced her retirement as county elections supervisor, Goard received the appointment nod over more than a dozen candidates.

Joyner

Goard went on to win re-election as elections supervisor five straight times. Although she is not ill, Goard said a health scare in 2002 made her rethink her future as election supervisor. Her pending retirement will also give her more time to enjoy her family.

THE GIFT GIVERS

The Sanford Salvation Army conducted its annual Holiday Clothing, Toy and Food Distribution Day Tuesday, Dec. 23, at the Salvation Army facility in Sanford.

An estimated 1,300 area families had registered and were approved for the distribution, which was conducted by Salvation Army board members, representatives of the Lake Mary Key Club, Seminole High School Air Force ROTC, and other volunteers.

The items given were possible through the Salvation Army bell ringing project which netted over $140,000 this year, plus generous donations by Conklin, Porter and Holmes, WESH-TV, and a large number of clubs and individuals.

The distributions began at approximately 8 a.m., and lasted throughout the afternoon, with each child and teenager receiving at least two gifts, while their parents received food and clothing, depending on the need.

Hundreds of volunteers helped make the distribution event a success, including Chris Reckline (right).

Three dead in apparent suicide

By Nick Pfeiffaut
Staff Writer

An Apopka man, identified as Shahab Behzadpour, 46, involved in a divorce, crashed his 2000 Ford Crown Victoria into the Altamonte Springs residence of his wife's parents on Christmas day at approximately 2 p.m., killing himself and his two children when the car burst into flames on impact.

The children were said to be ages three and six. All three in the car were said to have perished before police and firemen arrived.

Witnesses in the neighborhood reportedly told Altamonte Springs police that flames were coming out of the vehicle before it crashed into the house on Brantley Estates Drive.

Police said it was uncertain whether Behzadpour may have doused the vehicle with gasoline before the crash, with the intent of driving it into the residence.

Iraqi Diary: Return to Baghdad

Editor's note: Staff Sgt. Charlie C. Carlson III, son of Sanford historian Charlie C. Carlson II, is deployed in Baghdad as part of the 549th Military Police Company. He is providing the Herald with a journal of his experiences.

23 Dec. 03 [stateside on leave] My contacts in Baghdad inform me that all the care package boxes from The Herald project have arrived at Camp Mariboro. The platoon sergeant has stored them in a secure area of the warehouse in which we live. Well at least most of them as he said my squad opened one and passed the contents. He will have them open the rest on Christmas Day.

I was pleased to hear that my squad has been doing routine things around Camp Mariboro in my absence and has not been involved in any bad stuff. As a matter of fact they said things had been rather boring lately although they are on a heightened alert until the 26th as there is a good chance the resistance will try something during the Christmas period. I look forward to getting back with my people. Yet it is hard to leave my family and my

Suspected Lake Mary cinema robber pays the price

From Staff Reports

An Orlando man was in custody Friday — but probably not sitting down — as a suspect in an early morning robbery at a Lake Mary cinema.

The robbery happened at about 12:30 a.m., at the Lake Mary B Theaters, 3851 Lake Emma Road.

Sigfredo Irizarry, 21, of Orlando, is accused of robbing two employees at the theater. It's alleged Irizarry threatened the victims with a handgun, took money from the safe and then tied up the employees — leaving them in the office area of the business.

It's alleged the suspect also took their cellphone batteries so they could not call 911. The money and the batteries were put into a black bag, before he fled the scene.

One of the victims was able to untie himself and contact a friend via the Internet. The friend contacted law enforcement.

Seminole County Sheriff's Office deputies responded to the scene and set up a perimeter. A Seminole County Sheriff's Office K-9 team was deployed to the area.

"What happened is the guy fled the scene and went to a nearby Handy Way store (at the corner of Lake Mary Boulevard and Lake Emma Road), and he was asking some people there for rides," said Steve Olson, Seminole County Sheriff's Office spokesperson. "No one would (give him a ride), but they lent him the use of their cellphone because he said he needed to make a call."

"Apparently a sheriff's office cruiser came by as the guy was trying to get out of the area and it spooked him, and he ditched the money and took off running trying to hide," Olson said.

The K-9 alerted on Irizarry hiding in nearby bushes. He was ordered to stop, but he reportedly ran and the K-9 was ordered to apprehend him.

The suspect was bitten numerous times, but fought with the K-9 in an attempt to get away. Another deputy fired a taser, which caused Irizarry to comply.

"He actually fought with the dog a couple times," Olson said. "He fought off the dog and got over a fence, but it went to an alleyway that didn't go through so he had to double back and come back toward the dog."

During the investigation, currency and a 9mm bullet was found in Irizarry's pants pocket. Deputies also found a black bag that had been left at the Handy Way. Inside the bag was money and receipts belonging to the theaters. Two cell phone batteries were also found in the bag. The victims positively identified Irizarry as the man who robbed them.

Irizarry was taken to the hospital for treatment of his wounds. Irizarry suffered bite marks to his back, legs, arm and "he's actually got a couple right on a butt cheek," Olson said.

Upon his release, he was booked into the Seminole County Jail. He is charged with robbery with a firearm, kidnapping, obstructing justice/preventing the victims from calling 911, and aggravated assault. He is being held in the jail on $7,000 bond.

SEMINOLE SUMMARY

I'm a terrible gift giver. Well maybe not terrible, but I'm never comfortable giving gifts. Needless to say, Christmas brings its share of anxiety.

First, I hate shopping — unless it's for me. That sounds self-centered, but it's not. I know what I like and don't mind hunting it down to obtain it. Shopping for others, particularly when you feel like you are required to buy a gift, is a lot more difficult. And like most guys, I fail to pick up on the little hints — intended and unintended — throughout the year, so I wander the malls cluelessly in search of the perfect gift.

The myth of the perfect gift is my second hang-up as a gift-giver. I always feel pressured to come up with the gift that outshines all other gifts. My nephew is the only person I consistently find the perfect gifts, but he's 8. Anything that makes noise, creates a mess or causes serious injuries are perfect gifts for 8-year-old boys. (Come to think of it, the big boys like gifts with those characteristics, too.)

Around the Clock

by Dan Ping

Finally, there's the balancing act: Is my gift to so-and-so equal in price/coolness/usefulness compared to the gift they gave me? I'm uneasy about getting caught on the short-end of that assessment so I overcompensate by spending large sums of money. Of course, the ultimate balancing act is the "I've got to get that person I gift because I know they're getting me one" syndrome, which leads to buying gifts not because you want to but because you think you have to.

The best Christmas gift I ever gave had less to do with spending money and more to do with spending time with my dad. James Lewis Ping — J.L. as my brother and I sometimes call him (behind his back) — is a big fan of jazz pianist Dave Brubeck. If my childhood had a soundtrack, Brubeck's classic album "Time Out" would be included (as would songs by George Jones and Johnny Cash, mom's favorites).

I was about 28, still thought I knew everything, and was on the outs with my dad for a number of reasons. Brubeck had scheduled a concert in January at the Bijou, Knoxville's best place to see a concert. I bought tickets for me and dad for Christmas. He was pretty psyched Christmas day when he unwrapped the tickets. It had been years since he'd been to a live jazz concert and, given our general conversations at the time, I think he was a little surprised that his oldest — and hard-headedest — son shared any of his interests.

The show was great, and though our problems didn't magically go away, we found a middle ground to get us started. I can't remember what I paid for the tickets or the dinner before the show, but the end result was a MasterCard moment: priceless.

A friend of mine adopted a "no gifts for adults" policy this year. She didn't buy gifts for any adult relatives or friends and asked them not to buy her anything. Gifts for kids, be they nieces, nephews or children of friends, are OK.

As a younger man, I would have called this heresy, but I think I'll adopt the same policy beginning next year. Call me cheap if you want, but money has little to do with it. Sitting among piles of wrapping paper and empty boxes Thursday morning, I realized the thing I look forward to the most on Christmas is eating my mom's breakfast casserole. That and teaming up with my brother to pick on my sister. (It's even more fun now that she's married with kids.)

I'm not getting out of the gift giving business. I'm sure from time to time I'll buy gifts, but only if it's something that has special significance. Hundred dollar gift cards to Target or Home Depot don't qualify. I'm going to focus on gifts that build treasures in the heart and create those "priceless moments." (No, the irony of using a credit card company's tag line to promote less consumerism is not lost on me.)

And I'm not going to limit those gifts to Christmas.

Remembering Bill 81-year-old Bill Martin was much more than a friend

I lost one of my dearest friends last week. Bill Martin, 81, passed away on Friday, Dec. 19, at his Sanford home.

While his occupation was listed as machinist in motor repair, he was much more. If I were to classify him in one word, I would call him a philosopher. Although he didn't have a large farm, he was always planting. During the many years I knew him, he would often stress, "When you plant a vegetable garden, always plant three times as much as you need. One third usually end up being stolen by people or eaten by animals, one third should be given to friends, and the other third for use by your family." For many years, he would supply friends with some of the finest vegetables you could imagine, and most of the time, that third other was eaten or stolen, rang true.

Nick Pfeifauf

Although he was versatile on banjo and guitar, he played the bass fiddle for most of his life. In the early days, he played with the Five Owls on WDBO radio, and with a group called Lillie and Curley. In this group, he and a friend were paired in specialty numbers. The two of them were known as the Orange Juice Squeezers.

On Dec. 21, 1957, he played his first dance with my band, The Starlighters. He continued as the regular bassist with me until approximately 1997, although he was a guest bassist several times since then. In the beginning, he played a stand-up bass, but eventually succumbed to modern times and switched to an amplified electric fretless bass.

Bill used to recall the old days when he worked as a machinist for the Atlantic Coast Line Railroad. After work, he and three to five friends would take their instruments to the railroad round house, and sit around for hours playing good old country music. Among those with him at that time were H.W. Shannon and his brother Dave. H.W. passed away just recently.

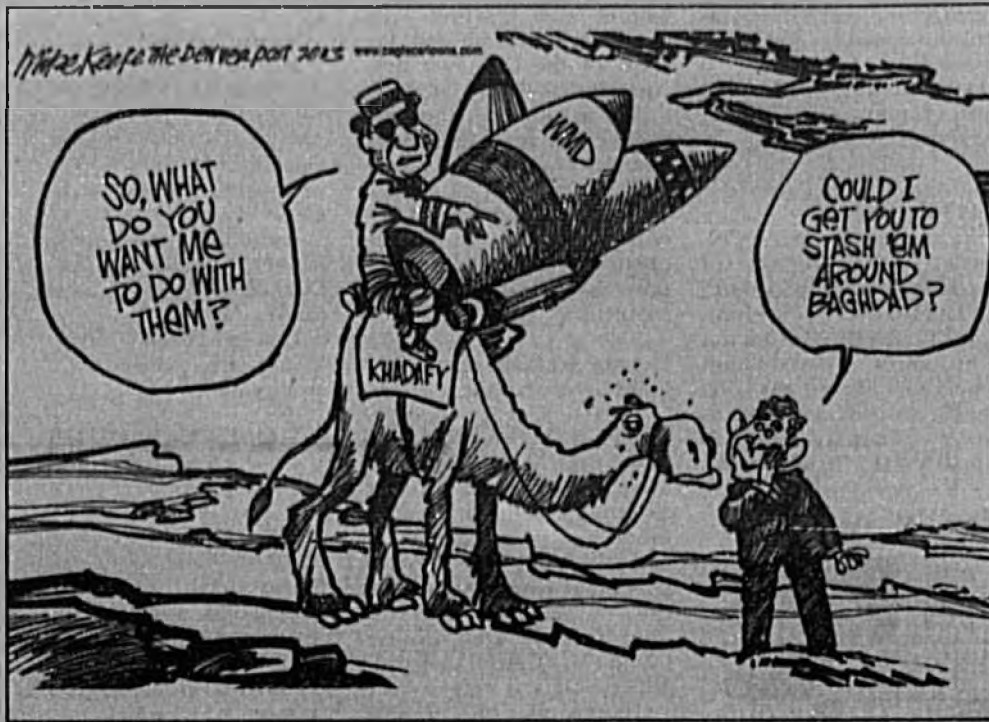

Bill was the type of friend that every one of us should have. This was the kind of friend where, if you didn't see him for a length of time, would pick up exactly where the last conversation was, and continue on as if there was no time passing whatsoever.

Anytime a friend of his needed help, Bill was always there, and even though he would work diligently, some time for days, he would never charge a friend for his services.

When we went to play for a dance, most of the time, he rode with me, and we had the opportunity to share our thoughts. I will say, that never did I hear him ever say a negative word about any person.

Bill was born in South Dakota, and went up there to see the family many times. He moved to Sanford in 1924, settling in the house that his father had built, in the community then known as Ginderville which is the area where the Greenway crosses County Road 427.

Many of the old band members turned out Tuesday for his funeral. They had the opportunity to swap stories about Bill. In addition to his family, he will be greatly missed by all of the musicians in Central Florida who ever played alongside him. The beat goes on.

Thurmond didn't deserve such a good daughter

"Because, though men, white men, created her, God did not stop it. He planted the seed that brought her to flower — the white blood to give the shape and pigment of what the white man calls female beauty, to a female principle which existed, queenly and complete, in the hot equatorial groin of the world long before that white one of ours came down from trees and lost its hair and bleached out ..."

(from "Absalom, Absalom" by William Faulkner)
It is the feigned surprise that vexes me most — the stunned silence, the equivocation, the angry denials that followed the revelation that Strom Thurmond had bedded a black maid and fathered a black child. South Carolina state Sen. John Courson, who huffed, "This is ludicrous," and U.S. Rep. Joe Wilson, who called the revelation "unseemly," have a distinct affection for dishonesty.

Miscegenation is as Southern as slavery and more intricately woven into the fabric of Southern culture than the Confederate flag, shotguns or NASCAR. If you didn't know that — well, you must not be from around here.

When 78-year-old Essie Mae Washington-Williams stood before a microphone at the Adam's Mark hotel in Columbia, S.C., last Wednesday and began her story — "My father's name was James Strom Thurmond" — she confirmed the worst-kept secret in recent South Carolina political history. Despite Thurmond's repeated lies, most of her contemporaries — and his — already knew.

Cynthia Tucker

Not that Thurmond's denials were ever really meant to conceal anything; he was just keeping faith with the social conventions of his time. Even while keeping up (barely) the public facade, he sent his daughter money, visited her not-so-secretly and exchanged cards and letters. Her college classmates at all-black South Carolina State remember that then-Gov. Thurmond would arrive in his official car and spend an hour or so speaking privately with her.

Any hypocrisy in his ringing 1948 denunciation of the civil rights movement — "There's not enough troops in the Army to force the Southern people to break down segregation and admit the nigger race into our theaters, into our swimming pools, into our homes and into our churches" — was common enough. White men had integrated bedrooms centuries before. "What about it? ... It can be put aside, no one will anymore dare bring it up than any other prank of a young man in his wild youth. And as for the child, all right. Didn't my own father begot one?"

("Absalom, Absalom")
For all the denunciation and denials, Thurmond's duplicity required assistance from family and staff, so several people must have at least suspected the relationship. Family members helped to relay funds to Mrs. Washington-Williams. When she visited the senator in Washington, she said, his secretary handled travel arrangements. Given that written accounts as early as 1968 suggested a biracial daughter, Thurmond's staff either knew or was, shall we say, deliberately ignorant.

If there is any real news here, it lies in the uncommon dignity with which Mrs. Washington-Williams has conducted herself. A retired Los Angeles schoolteacher, she guarded Thurmond's secret all these years, saying

A Malibu Merry Christmas

Every year around this time we hear a lot of complaints about the commercialization of Christmas and the downplaying of the significance of this wonderful feast day when we celebrate the birth of Jesus Christ.

Mike Reagan

Nowadays it's not even called Christmas in our public schools, instead it's called something like "Winter Holidays." Go into a store and they don't say Merry Christmas anymore, instead it's now "Happy Holidays." It seems that people are frightened to death they might offend somebody. Suddenly, paying homage to God is offensive.

The emphasis now is on gift giving, and it's a trap we all fall into because we want our kids to have happy memories of this holiday spent around the family Christmas tree.

I can understand that. While we recognized the religious significance of Christmas, the memory that stands out in my mind is what happened when I was ten years old. In those days, my father had a ranch where he raised horses. His ranch — the second one he owned — Yearling Row II — was in Malibu Lake. Every Saturday he'd pick me up at my mother's house in Beverly Hills and take me out to the ranch.

ing I wanted more than to have a horse of my own, a wish I never expected to have fulfilled. A couple of months before Christmas my father told me that the father of a young boy about my age was going to give his son a horse for Christmas. The father wanted to keep the horse at our ranch and have us train him so the boy could ride it.

My dad asked, "Is that alright with you?" and through clenched teeth I muttered it was. I was insanely jealous of this kid who was going to get a horse and I wasn't. I wanted to ask my dad "What about me?" but I went along with it.

Out came this Palomino horse and every Saturday when I went to the ranch with my dad, before we went swimming we would go into the ring and my dad would put a rope on the horse and put me up in the saddle and we would go in circles around the ring, getting the horse ready to be ridden by a young boy.

I did this every Saturday throughout October, November and early December; and every week I got closer to the horse I named Rebel, and resented the boy who was going to get him for Christmas. A couple of days before Christmas my dad called and said he wanted me to go with him to the ranch on Christmas Eve because he was going to give the horse to the boy and he knew I'd want to say goodbye to Rebel. I sat on the sidewalk in front of my Mom's house waiting for my Dad to pick me up, crying my eyes out. I cried all the way to the ranch. When we got there Dad told me to go out to the barn and say goodbye to Rebel because the boy's father will be there any minute.

When I went into the stable I saw that both upper and lower doors of the stall where Rebel was kept were closed. I undid the door latch on the upper door and this freshly groomed Palomino stuck his head out to me and around his neck was a big red ribbon holding a Christmas card which said "Merry Christmas Michael, Dad."

That night, as I lay in bed I couldn't wait to find out what other presents I was going to get, so around 10'clock I sneaked out of my room and looked downstairs where the tree was, and I saw my mother carrying a brand new saddle and bridle gear to put under the tree.

Mom and Dad had figured out that he would do the horse and she would do the saddle and tack. From that day on until Rebel died years later we were inseparable. I even took him away with me to summer camp. He was a gift that kept giving.

George Bush: Man of the decade

With all due respect to two great institutions, the U.S. military and Time magazine, the latter got it wrong when it picked the former as its "Person of the Year" for 2003. President George W. Bush was the person of the year, perhaps of the decade and more.

Richard Reeves

That man in the White House, the commander in chief of the 1.4 million American soldiers, sailors, Marines and airmen, changed the world for better or worse when he sent American troops into action in Iraq. Time calls our military "the bright sharp instrument of a blunt policy." But the policy is the story. The president decided to roll the dice, and we are the dice — the men and women in uniform more than the rest of us.

The president is a bold, decisive and overconfident crusader, a self-righteous leader, a dangerous man. He changed the rules, ignoring the post-World War II history of alliances, multilateral institutions and containment. His rationale for the invasion of Iraq is called "pre-emptive war" in the White House and "preventive war" in other capitals. But, in fact, it is more than that.

Saddam Hussein's Iraq was not a nice place, but we did not go there to pre-empt or prevent anything. We went there to change the regime and make a new country in our own image. If Iraq were truly a threat — to us or its neighbors — it would have become the pre-emptive target of its neighbors, tough guys like Turkey, Israel or Iran. Remember: In 1981, Israel jets destroyed an Iraqi nuclear reactor because it may or may not have been capable of being used in the development of nuclear weapons.

The American "forward strategy," as the president sometimes calls it, was not about threat. It is a crusade strategy, not so much to stop terrorism as to change the culture of the place, to promote freedom, democracy, free-market capitalism and the American Way, with absolute confidence that the American Way is superior to all others.

For a long time, U.S. military strategy had been to position our great military power to deter upheaval and war in parts of the world we considered essential to our own national security. Bush, with practically no strategic background, was frustrated by that approach and considered the terror at home on Sept. 11, 2001, an indication that containment and alliances were no longer adequate to combat new threats to our tranquility and prosperity. The military, he concluded, was not there as a deterrent; it was there to use, bluntly. To paraphrase Marshall McLuhan on media, the military is the message. The military is the strategy.

Will it work? I think not. It is based on a cherished American assumption that everyone in the world wants to be us. They don't. They sure would like to have many of the things we have, but there are just as many American things they don't want, beginning with education for women. Watching events evolve (or unravel) in Iraq, I sometimes try to draw analogies. What would we do, for instance, if a fundamentalist Muslim force, say the Taliban, were able to conquer part of the United States and took American women out of schools and forced them into a kind of house arrest? And what would we do if they told us how lucky we were to live that way, because their values or their God was better than ours? Would we fight? Would we resist? I hope so.

That is not going to happen — and a big reason we are safe is the sharpness of our military. But the Bush crusades have sent our troops into the deserts and the holy places of people we don't know or understand. And they are going to hate us, as we will more and more come to hate them. Our bright military will be tied down. What will they be doing? Protecting themselves against locals; "force protection," in military terms.

This is the crusade our leader wanted. George W. Bush is the man of this year of living dangerously. His assumptions and strategy should be the issues of the election in 2004. One reason Howard Dean has done so well so far as the election season began is that he recognized that single fact: Bush and his bold record are the issue. When and where does this crusade end?

It is sobering and then some to think about what George W. Bush would do in a second term.

My leave went by fast as I expected it would, but it was certainly an unexpected surprise to get to come home for awhile. I was able to take care of a few things. My days are still mixed-up, not only does flying 7,000 miles through several time zones mess up my time, my mental calendar is disoriented because we had an early Christmas. I am now using a calendar just to keep track of what day it is. To me it seems like it is five days later than it really is. It is kind of like going through a time-machine. Now I will have to get back in the time-machine and go back to Iraq just to get my correct time back.

It was also very interesting while on leave to learn about the perceptions that people in the states have of the war and how many are incorrect in what they think they know. After watching the news, I can understand why. The news is leaving out a lot of the detailed truth or else it distorts things. One news article I listened to on TV made it sound like the soldiers' morale is so high in Iraq, that is simply not the case, or at least it is not the case within the units that I serve with. I was especially disturbed by the President's remarks about troop morale being so high in Iraq, he cannot speak for every soldier and every unit. I think he simply based his opinion on a selected few who were screened to attend that Thanksgiving dog-and-pony show at the Baghdad airport. I can now see why so many people think things are going so well, it is the way it is being reported in the television news. I noticed that newspapers seem to report things more accurately than the television news. I don't know anything about news reporting, but maybe the television news is more subject to screening by the military's public affairs office and many wire services that feed news to newspapers are using stringers or "renegade" reporters who somehow by pass the screening processes. I don't know what the case is, but there seems to be an obvious difference between reports about the war on TV news versus reports that I've read in newspapers. I think people should use both and make their own deductions. What they should not rely on is political rhetoric, as that is what got us into this mess to start with.

During my leave, I have been asked by many what I thought about Saddam being captured. Actually I don't think much about it and don't think it will change things at all. Most of my soldiers never thought Saddam had much to do with the attacks against us in the first place, he was too busy hiding and keeping out of sight. Besides there are so many different groups that are mad at the Americans that even if Saddam was in charge of part of the opposition, there are enough of the others ranging from basic criminals to others who hate both Saddam and the U.S. So I really don't think much has been accomplished with Saddam's capture besides giving a political boost to somebody's campaign effort. Half of Iraqis still hate us, the other half tolerate us, but few want us occupying their country. Although we have to put up with that situation, I can fully understand their feelings since I would feel the same way if my country was occupied by another country. I would probably end up as a resistance fighter like the ones who are fighting us. This is why none of this stuff makes any sense. We create more problems than we fix by doing stuff like this, and then we wonder why we are on high alert against terrorism. Well enough of that, I'm still on leave.

Somebody asked me what were the best things on my leave that I liked. Well of course I would have to rate seeing my wife and boys would rate at the top. I would say I liked going to a mall to do shopping, but with our crime rate, that ain't much safer than Baghdad, because you still got to watch your back and your property and I can't take a machine gun into the mall. I liked being home in the comfort of my own house, having a hot shower, sleeping in a real bed, not having to go on patrol, driving my own car that does not have a turret and machine gun mount on the top. I liked going to a movie and eating in a restaurant. I liked not having to wear that uniform and looking like everybody else. Several people asked why I didn't wear my uniform on leave, you will never see me wear a uniform in public, it is a sort of "long family tradition" dating back to Vietnam. We serve in wars but never endorse war by wearing our uniforms or medals other than as required for duty. Now I liked wearing my civilian shoes which felt very light on my feet after wearing boots for eight months. I also liked seeing my dog and drinking a coke out of a bottle.

One of the best things that I enjoyed was going down to Sanford and meeting so many folks at the Sanford Museum last Saturday. I want to thank everyone who came to visit with me. It was great to meet those of you who so kindly helped fill all those boxes for my troops back in Baghdad. I got to see you in person and in return I got to show you photographs of each member of my Nightstalker squad that will be enjoying all the things that you sent over there in those 38 big boxes. I enjoyed sharing my time with you and discussing our missions in Baghdad, and I will be returning to Iraq with video tape and photographs of all of you so I can show my troops some faces of those who sent those 38 boxes to them. I think this worked out perfect on both sides...except they better save me something out of those boxes. The main thing is that you have made a great Christmas for the entire Nightstalker platoon.

I will be leaving enroute back to Iraq via Kuwait on Christmas Eve. Now some may say that is a sad time to leave, but remember we celebrated Christmas early. It would be more difficult to return if I was facing another six months over there, but if things go like I think they will, and if they don't change our redeployment date for the millionth time, then we should be put of that place in March. We can do that standing on our heads.

Neighbors reportedly told police they had noticed the vehicle driving around the area before the crash occurred. The wife was said to have filed for a divorce in July, a restraining order had been

Altamonte Springs police spent all of the afternoon into the evening hours working on the case.

At the district festival in Orlando, the band made an excellent rating. Superior ratings were made by Ronnie Anderson, student conducting, Jeanne Lane Miller, piano, and Doris Jones and Colleen Engbreton, twirling. Seniors, officers, and those who had played in solos and (While I was checking on something in my 1953 diary, I found a lengthy detailed account of our band trip to Tallahassee for the Governor's inaugural parade. The Governor was Charlie Johns, who would serve the two years remaining in Dan McCarthy's term, following McCarthy's death. Perhaps you will enjoy this adventure, we did).

On January 5, 1953, we boarded a school bus at 1:15 p.m. after the crew had loaded our instruments, uniforms and suitcases in a truck. The school board would only give us one bus, so bandmaster Cowley had borrowed small Sunday School chairs from First Baptist Church, and these were placed down the aisles of the bus. Nancy Roundtree, Rosemary Garner and I shared a seat, taking turns on the chair. In front of us were Beverly Benton, June Vance and Dot Johnson.

We played games, sang songs and even had an hour's study hall before stopping at a filling station in Ocala where we ate a box lunch.

There were two other rest stops before we arrived in Tallahassee at 9:30 p.m. Our first stop there was at the Western Union so Mr. Cowley could send a telegram to radio station WTRR announcing our safe arrival.

We ate supper at the Student Center on the Florida State University campus and then went to the west campus where we spent the night in barracks.

The next morning, several of us girls caught the 8:30 bus to the student center. There we met Donna Witte, FSU sophomore from Sanford, who took us to the dorm room of former SHS band members, Bebe Bisbee and Dawn Bishop. They toured us around campus, including the very impressive music building. Then, back to the student center for lunch, paid for by the Sanford Chamber of Commerce.

We then boarded the bus and headed for the parade. After lining up, we had to wait for over two hours before we moved off.

Seminole County's float was behind us in the parade. On it were FSU students from Sanford, Donna Lou Harper, Bebe Bisbee, Margaret Malloy and Norma Faye Harvey.

Following the parade several of us went into a drugstore downtown. Mr. Cowley found us and told us that no seats would be saved on the bus, so we scrambled out there to find a good seat.

On the way home, we sang, played games, told jokes and Mr. Cowley told stories including "The Klutchnaker" and "The Man who had Headaches." I told you that I wrote a detailed account. We stopped and ate in Chiefland and arrived in Sanford at 3 a.m. Celery Crate enjoys big year

(This article recaps the year's activities at the Celery Crate; even though there is no byline, I know that I wrote this article. During my junior year, 1952-53, I was appointed as Celery Crate reporter and ended up with a column in The Sanford Herald, "Celery Crate News.")

Some of you will remember that I wrote a series of articles for this column edited from those long ago columns.

The Celery Crate had a great year, sponsoring many special activities. There were two big square dances with Dave Shannon's orchestra, and two very entertaining talent shows, each drawing large crowds.

At the first of the year, there were ping pong and pool tournaments with several students entering each event. A Halloween party was held with games by Mr. Howard Gordie, dancing and a great floor show. And just recently a party had been held in honor of the seniors and incoming freshmen.

The Crate had been open every Saturday night during the school year with students enjoying ping pong, pool, board and card games, and visiting with classmates. Occasionally there was dancing to records and other activities.

Improvements had been made during the year which included new equipment being purchased. The girls' restroom had been done over by the Senior Home Ec class, while candy bars and cold drinks were sold at the snack bar.

The credit for the activities and improvements were attributed to Mr. Howard Gordie, Celery Crate director, Mrs. Marie Stinecipher, Recreation director of the PTA, and the Celery Crate officers. Thanks were also extended to regular chaperones, Mrs. Henry Dees, Mr. and Mrs. J.N. Azarello and Mr. and Mrs. Homer Osborne.

(For those of you who don't know, the Celery Crate was located on the second floor of the former city hall, and was sponsored by the SHS PTA. It existed at that location for about ten years).

Hayes and Metts Reign over May Day Ball

The annual May Day Ball had been held May 8 at the Armory, which was beautifully decorated with pastel shades of the rainbow.

The coronation ceremony began at 8:30 p.m. with the freshmen attendants entering first, followed by the other classes and climaxed by the entrance of the King and Queen. The attendants wore pastel evening gowns and dinner jackets while the king and queen wore white.

The King and Queen of the ball were Junior Metts and Sylvia Hayes. Senior attendants were Terry Cordell and Kitty Nix, Sammy Jacobson and Judy Irvin. Junior attendants were Jimmy Krider and Jeanne Lane Miller, James Davis and Barbara Cassube. Reward offered for info on birds

Special to the Herald

The Florida Fish and Wildlife Conservation Commission (FWC) needs information on who is responsible for the injuries and deaths of several birds found washed up on a Volusia County beach last Sunday.

The FWC Division of Law Enforcement began an investigation into the dead birds after the Volusia County Beach Patrol notified the agency Sunday afternoon that they had picked up three injured pelicans, an injured loon, an injured seagull, a dead pelican and a dead loon. The birds appeared to have been beaten.

The birds washed up along a stretch of beach near the Main Street Life Guard Station in Daytona Beach. They were taken to an area wildlife rehabilitator, but none of the birds survived their injuries.

Anyone who has any information that might help investigators discover how the birds were injured should call the FWC's Wildlife Alert Hotline at 1-888-404-3922. The line is open 24-hours-per-day, seven-days-per-week, and callers may remain anonymous. If a caller's information leads to an arrest they may be eligible for a reward.

CENTRAL FLORIDA BOAT SHOW IS EXPANDING

The Central Florida Marine Trades Association (CFMTA) is pleased to announce that the upcoming 37th Annual Central Florida Boat Show on January 22-25, 2004 has received such an overwhelming response from local and regional exhibitors that it has had to expand to more than 350,000 square feet — making it one of the largest boat shows held in Central Florida.

The 37th Annual Central Florida Boat Show will be held in the all-new Orange County Convention Center expansion facility. The show is one-stop shopping for boaters and newcomers, featuring more than 400 boats from more than 70 manufacturers, including 2004 model cruisers, runabouts, fishing boats, deck boats, pontoons, water ski and wakeboard boats, personal watercraft and more. It will also feature a full schedule of informative seminars conducted by boating experts and fishing professionals.

"We're taking our show to the next level, bringing in more boats than ever before, as we move into exciting new quarters at the Orange County Convention Center's expansion facility," said Central Florida Boat Show Manager Bonnie Todtenhagen. "We're proud of our show's reputation as the original, most complete boating show in Central Florida and we can't wait to kick off 2004 in a big way at our new location. We're also pleased that at our new location, parking is just far easier, more accessible and just a lot more convenient."

Red Sox acquire Bellhorn

Colorado sends Oviedo veteran to Boston

Special to the Herald

The Boston Red Sox acquired infielder Mark Bellhorn (left) from the Colorado Rockies for a player to be named. Senior Vice President/General Manager Theo Epstein made the announcement. Bellhorn is a career .230 hitter with 36 home runs and 106 RBI in 371 major league games with Oakland (1997-2001), the Chicago Cubs (2002-03) and Colorado (2003).

The 29-year-old hit a career-best 27 homers with 56 RBI in 146 games with the Cubs in 2002 and became the first switch-hitter in National League history to homer from both sides of the plate in the same inning when he turned the trick August 29, 2002 at Milwaukee in the fourth inning. He made starts at all four infield positions and at every spot in the batting order but third, fourth and ninth.

He began last season by playing 51 games with Chicago before being traded to Colorado June 19 for infielder Jose Hernandez and combined to hit .221 with 10 doubles, a triple, two home runs and 26 RBI in 99 games at both stops, seeing time at first base (one game), second base (20 games), third base (15 games), shortstop (six games) and the outfield (five games).

Born in Weymouth, Bellhorn and his family moved to Florida soon after his birth. After an All-State career as a shortstop for Mike Ferrell at Oviedo High School he attended Auburn University, earning All-America honors as a junior in 1995 when he hit .342 with 12 homers and 60 RBI. The six-foot-one, 210-pounder was selected by Oakland in the second round of the 1995 Draft.

Rams to host Classic

Strong field set to tip-off Monday

LAKE MARY — An impressive field of teams has been assembled for next week's Lake Mary High School 2003 Holiday Basketball Classic.

The tournament brings together eight boys teams and four girls teams for the three-day event which has become one of the bigger tournaments after the monster get-togethers in Kissimmee and Ocala.

Heading the boys' entries will be Seminole (4-2), which already has a tournament championship under its belt after winning the season-opening Lyman Invitational, and Winter Park (7-2), which is coached by former Lake Howell star Josh Kohn and led by sophomore Jeremiah Rivers, the eldest son of former NBA star and Magic coach Doc Rivers.

Both teams are coming off big wins over the weekend, with Arrow Force XII crushing Crooms Academy, 70-22, led by Cy Wynn with 17 points and five assists, Andrew Chapman with 17 points and Robert Preston with eight rebounds, and the Wildcats edging Cypress Creek (4-3), 51-48, with Rivers scoring 15 points and hauling down eight rebounds.

The host Rams (4-4) can never be counted out with junior star Darryl Merthie and his cousin, senior Lyndon Merthie, leading the way.

The team suffered a tough loss on Friday, dropping a 55-54 road decision to Spruce Creek (4-3) in Port

Sophomore Caitlyn Mityrk (above) and senior Angie Pressay (right, scoring against Oviedo last year) have been two of the main reasons the Lake Mary girls are off to a 10-0 start and ranked #2 in the Florida Sports Writers Association Class 8A State Poll. Coach Carl Brown's Rams will take on Leesburg at 6 p.m. tomorrow (Monday) in the opening round of the four-team girls' portion of the Lake Mary High School 2003 Holiday Classic, while Lake Mary, Seminole and Lake Brantley will be local teams in the boys' eight-team

Orange. Darryl Merthie had 18 points and five assists and Lyndon Merthie collected eight rebounds.

The final local entry, Lake Brantley, is also having a good season and has had considerable success in this tournament in the past. The Patriots battled a very good Lake Howell (6-3) team to the wire on Saturday, falling 64-59 to the Silver Hawks despite 21 points from Marquise Johnson.

Rounding out the boys' field are four outstanding teams from South Florida in McArthur from Hollywood, Hailandale, Miami Springs and Miami-Palmetto Senior.

Officials for Tusawilla Country Club announced today that renowned tennis professional Glen Howe has been named Director of Tennis and seasoned golf maintenance professional Jeffrey Clark has been named Golf Course Superintendent of Tusawilla Country Club.

Five years after introducing RDC Golf Group as Tusawilla Country Club's new management team and three years after assuming ownership of the facility, RDC has transformed the 30-year old club into a complex that boasts eight refurbished clay tennis courts as well as a renovated swimming pool and clubhouse. In addition, improvements have been made to the 18-hole Joe Lee designed golf course and construction has started on a brand new fitness center.

The hiring of Howe and Clark is yet another step in RDC's long-term plan to enhance the overall private club experience by bringing the expertise of industry leaders to a growing membership at Tusawilla Country Club.

Howe is recognized as a Master Professional in the United States Professional Tennis Association (USPTA), the highest professional rating within the tennis profession. Less than one percent of the USPTA's 12,500 members worldwide have achieved the Masters Professional designation (only 120 in the world).

In the immediate future, Howe will be introducing 12 junior tennis clinics for children up to 16 years old and an advanced training program for juniors in 2004. The club will also offer additional social activities and tournaments.

Seminole Community College's Head Baseball Coach, Mike Nicholson, was recently named a National Junior College Athletics Association Division I 2003 Diamond Sports Regional Coach of the Year by the American Baseball Coaches Association.

Nicholson will be recognized for his achievement at the American Baseball Coaches Association's Hall of Fame/Coach of the Year Banquet January 3, 2004 in San Antonio, TX.

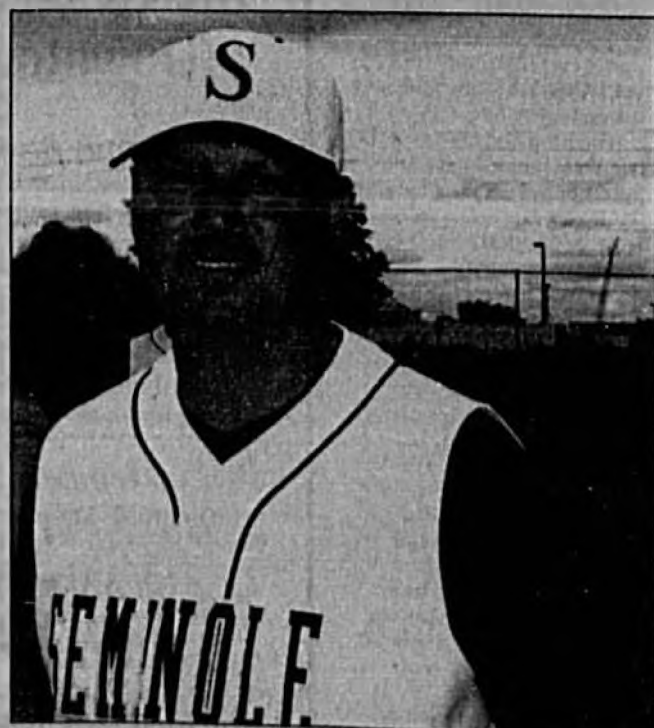

During his third season as head coach, Nicholson led the Raiders squad to a Region VIII Florida Community College Activities Association (FCCAA) State Baseball Championship victory, the first in College history, May 13, 2003 after defeating Okaloosa-Walton Community College, 6-4 at Osceola County Stadium.

It has also been announced that the Seminole Community College Baseball

The schedule is highlighted by 31 non-conference games and 24 Suncoast Conference games. O'Leary adds four more coaches to his staff

Special to the Herald

UCF football coach George O'Leary announced Wednesday the hiring of assistant coaches Miles Aldridge, Dave DeGuglielmo, Eric Green and Peter McCarty. The addition of those four brings to six the number of assistant coaches under contract as O'Leary continues to build his staff.

"I'm very happy with the interview process thus far," O'Leary said. "I'm pleased with the quality of candidates we have been able to attract. The coaches we have hired are experienced teachers, coaches and recruiters."

Aldridge, who will coach the defensive backs, has more than 25 years experience in college and professional coaching, including a stint with the NFL's Buffalo Bills. His list of coaching stops includes Arkansas, Clemson, South Carolina, N.C. State, Duke, and Ole Miss.

During his eight years at Clemson the Tigers went to seven bowl games, claimed three ACC titles and finished as high as fifth in the nation in total defense. His most recent experience was a one-year stint as defensive backfield coach in the Mid-American Conference at Buffalo.

DeGuglielmo (pronounced Duh-GUG-leelmo), who will coach the offensive line, recently completed a five-year stint at South Carolina where he coached the offensive line and tight ends. His previous experience includes time at Boston College, Connecticut and at his alma mater Boston University. DeGuglielmo has coaching experience in six post-seasons with three bowl games and three trips to the I-AA playoffs.

Green, who will coach the tight ends, has spent the last two years as a coaching intern with the Minnesota Vikings, working with the tight ends in 2002 and offensive line in 2003. He is familiar to long-time UCF fans from his playing days as a tight end for Liberty before becoming a first-round draft pick of the Pittsburgh Steelers. His 10-year NFL playing career was halted when he underwent spinal fusion surgery after the 1999 season. Green started his coaching career with the Frankfort Galaxy of NFL Europe after a year in the front office of the NFL's Orlando Rage.

McCarty, who will coach the defensive line, comes to UCF from Stanford where he was responsible for coaching the defensive ends. He has more than 20 years of experience and coached at Georgia Tech, Illinois, Maryland, and Syracuse. He has previously worked with O'Leary at both Syracuse and Georgia Tech. O'Leary was hired as UCF's head coach Dec. 8 and since that time has continued his full-time duties as defensive coordinator of the Minnesota Vikings. His first coaching move at UCF was to retain receivers coach Sean Beckton (Dec. 10) and then he hired linebackers coach Dave Huxtable from North Carolina (Dec. 16).

Coach Carl Brown has a veteran squad led by seniors Meghan Chamberlain, who has signed with University of North Carolina-Greensboro, and Angie Pressey, the daughter of former NBA star and current Magic assistant Paul Pressey who has signed to play volleyball at Cal-Berkeley, and sophomore Caitlyn Mityrk.

All told, the Rams have 11 players back from last year's regional runner-up squad.

Several of Lake Mary's wins have been of the 'huge' variety.

Chamberlain had 23 points and 17 rebounds as the Rams knocked Osceola, which went to North Carolina and won a prestigious tournament this past weekend, out of the unbeaten ranks, 51-39.

The team then had a big week last week, beating previously undefeated Winter Springs, then gaining vengeance over unbeaten Oviedo, 43-33, with Mityrk scoring 13 points, Pressey 12 points and Chamberlain dropping in 10 points and pulling down 10 rebounds. The Lions had beaten Lake Mary three times in four meetings last season, including the regional final.

The Rams then capped that week with a 53-44 win over rival Seminole with Kaycee Smith scoring 17 points and Savitz grabbing 12 rebounds.

The team's 10th win came Saturday via a 49-27 thrashing over a usually very good Buchholz squad in Gainesville. Mityrk led a balanced scoring attack with 10 points, while Pressey chipped in with nine.

The biggest competition for the locals figures to come from long-time rival Orange Park, which was 5-0 and getting votes in the poll last week. OP, also known as the Rams, and Lake Mary have met in the regionals in volleyball and basketball several times over the years.

Rounding out the field will be a couple of 'name' programs in Titusville and Leesburg.

The tournament begins next Monday (Dec. 29th) at 11 a.m. with a boys game between Winter Park and Hallandale, followed by a boys contest between McArthur and Lake Brantley at 12:45 p.m.

The girls' event will then tip off with Orange Park playing Titusville at 2:30 p.m.

The boys then return with Miami Springs facing Seminole at 4:15 p.m.

The final two games will feature the host team with the Rams girls tackling Leesburg at 6 p.m. and the boys meeting Palmetto Senior at 7:45 p.m.

Six more games will be played at the same times on Tuesday (Dec. 30) with the boys' semifinals at 4:15 p.m. and 7:45 p.m. and the Girls' Championship Game set for 6 p.m.

The final four boys' games will be played on New Years Eve (Wed., Dec. 31) beginning at 11 a.m. and culminating with the Championship Game at 4:15 p.m. Below is a complete schedule of games for the tournament.

In other basketball news, the Oviedo and Lake Brantley girls are taking part in the KSA Holiday Tournament at Disney's Wide World of Sports complex. Seminole's girls are headed to the Treasure Coast Classic in Port Saint Lucie, and the Lake Howell boys and girls teams are both taking part in the Jim Clark Holiday Classic at Bishop Moore High School in Orlando.

College

Trustee Athletic Committee has led to one of the most picturesque and stunning softball facilities in the South.

The completely donor-funded facility consists of a clay playing surface, Bermuda grass outfield, irrigation system, six bullpens, two batting cages, dugouts and state-of-the-art scoreboard. The installation of lights suitable for televising games and construction of permanent restrooms are also underway and will be ready for the 2004 season.

"I am delighted with our Fastpitch Softball Field," said Stetson's Vice President for Facilities Management Dave Noyes. "I base our success on the fact that its design and construction has been a 'partnering' effort that has integrated the knowledge and skills of our architects, engineers, facilities staff and our coaches to a common goal and vision. A first class team should have a first class field and that has been accomplished."

Griffin believes the remarkable new field could not have been possible without the contributions of University staff members.

"The facilities management staff took no shortcuts in building a quality facility," said Griffin. "Dave Noyes, Butch Morgan, David Riggsby, Ron Roux and their staffs should all be commended for their efforts. I want to especially thank the grounds crew for the outstanding job they perform on our entire campus."

The grounds crew includes Pete Confrey, Albert Dillard, Jimmy Franklin, Sam Franklin, Bill Gilbert, Steve Guechew, Carl Harris, Kurt Lumen, George Marshal, Mike Pandorf and Doug Smith.

While much of the facility's construction was contracted out, University staff completed several of its unique features and is involved in constant upkeep of the grounds. Not only did Griffin and his staff build the backstop, dugouts, bullpens, and batting cages, they are responsible for the maintenance of the infield and warning track, while the University grounds crew maintains the outfield grass and the field's perimeter grass.

The Stetson staff enjoys the field's positive characteristics such as easy maintenance and quick drainage following heavy rains. The consistency of the infield and outfield material also results in a safer playing surface for the athletes. Griffin believes the combination of these qualities significantly improves Stetson's ability to recruit exceptional student-athletes.

"The field is truly an example of the continuation of the impact the University Trustee Athletic Committee has had on Stetson athletics," said Stetson Director of Athletics Jeff Altier. "While the University has always been recognized for its academic excellence, the committee has worked to develop a high standard that is also apparent in all of its athletic facilities to help bring both the men's and women's programs to that same level of excellence."

Following the groundbreaking ceremony on May 3, 2002, Stetson began practice on the field in October 2002 and played its inaugural games at the site during the February 15 Grand Opening. After posting a 22-0 start at the Stetson Fastpitch Field, the Hatters finished with a 27-3 home record in 2003.

"This facility exemplifies the excellence that Stetson strives for in all aspects of the institution," said Griffin.

A panel of independent judges made up of grounds maintenance professionals selected by the NFCA and TURFACE chose the winners based on the exceptional quality of the playing surface and the maintenance of the entire facility. Stetson was one of four regional award winners.

STETSON SOFTBALL SIGNS THREE FOR 2004

Stetson University softball has recently signed Teri Lake, Melanie Matthews, and Lindsay Wightman to National Letters-of-Intent, announced head coach Frank Griffin.

Lake, joins the squad as a junior transfer from Daytona Beach Community College. The catcher earned Best Defensive Player, all-freshman and second-team all-conference mention as a freshman for the Falcons. A native of Pensacola, Fla., Lake was chosen Most Athletic, Best Defensive Player and Best All-Around while playing for head coach Angela Baggett at Woodham High School.

"Teri is an outstanding student-athlete," said Griffin. "She does a great job behind the plate because of her strong arm and excellent blocking abilities. She also has the type of leadership skills that I think will help our program in many ways."

A 5-7 outfielder from Surrey, British Columbia, Matthews comes to the Hatters as a true freshman. Matthews helped lead her travel team to a fifth-place finish at the 2002 Canadian National Championships and was selected to the 2002 Canadian Junior Women's National Team.

"Melanie is a versatile player and can really do well at any position in the outfield," said Griffin. "She is also a tremendous offensive threat and a very fast baserunner."

Wightman (Surrey, British Columbia) also joins Stetson as a true freshman from Elgin Park Secondary. While playing for the Barnaby Oakeys travel team, Wightman helped lead her squad to a 2003 Canadian National Championship and was selected tournament MVP after posting a .516 batting average. She was also chosen to the 2002 Canadian Junior Women's National Team.

"Lindsay is also a very versatile athlete who can play anywhere in the infield, including catcher," said Griffin. "She is one of the hardest working student-athletes I have seen in a while."

"All three of these signees are impressive in the classroom as well with very high academic goals," said Griffin. "They all truly embody the high standards and expectations of a successful Stetson student-athlete."

COACH KLUSMAN GETS 400TH VICTORY IN VEGAS

Rollins College men's basketball coach won his 400th career game at the helm of the Tars in a 88-76 victory over Nebraska-Omaha on Friday night at the High Desert Classic in Las Vegas. The 22nd-ranked Tars earned Klusman his 401st win with a 75-64 defeat over #6 Tarleton State. The two wins pushes Rollins' win streak to six games.

The Tars (7-2) trailed just once against Nebraska-Omaha (7-3) at 3-2 a minute into the game. Junior center Macide Muhizi scored a layup on the next possession, and the Tars were in control the rest of the way. The Tars controlled the tempo of the game and led 46-26 at the 1:23 mark in the first half. Rollins took a 46-32 lead into the break. The Mavericks chipped away at Rollins' lead but would not get the deficit to single digits.

All five of the Tars' starters scored in double-digits led by senior forward Chad Dircks with 23 points. He grabbed 11 rebounds as well, en route to his third double-double of the season. Junior guard Eric Faber scored 22 points to go along with six assists and three steals.

On Saturday, the Tars looked a bit intimidated early on against the highly touted Texans of Tarleton (6-2). TSU started with a 24-13 lead in the first 12 minutes of the game. The Tars would outscore the Texans 14-7 over the final eight minutes of the half, to cut the lead to 31-27 at the break. Rollins would then start the second half with five quick points by Brown to make the score 32-31. Tarleton re-took the lead on the next possession with a layup by Chris Williams.

Muhizi answered with a jumper to put the game in the Tars' favor at 34-33 with 18:33 left in the game and Rollins would hold the lead the rest of the way. Muhizi came up with his first double-double of the season, scoring 16 points and grabbing a career-high 16 boards. Faber led Rollins with 17 points and eight assists.

Rollins is off until Dec. 29 when they will host Nyack College in the Winter Park Rotary/Tangerine Tournament at 8 p.m. There will be a special pre-game presentation to honor Klusman for his 400th career victory.

Big time sports in Orlando
