A century of memories

Joey Peterson turns 100

By STEVE BARNES
Herald Staff Writer

Been there, done that. It's a phrase that is thrown around a lot, but if it applies to anyone it's Joey Peterson who celebrated his 100th birthday without much fanfare on Monday.

Peterson was born in Virginia in 1896, only 31 years after the abolition of slavery. In addition to witnessing two world wars and the Great Depression, Peterson has been around for 18 presidential administrations.

Having lived in Virginia, North Carolina and Georgia, he moved to Sanford in 1923 where he raised a family that includes one son, seven grandchildren, four great grandchildren and five great, great grandchildren.

Peterson has lived in the same home since he first moved to Sanford 73 years ago. He and his wife of 30 years occupy the simple house on a dirt road off of Airport Boulevard.

He says Sanford has changed for the better in the time he has been here. When he first arrived, he said, there was "nothing but celery and lettuce, but now the town has grown up."

Peterson, now retired, spent 40

Room at the inn

Lake Mary may boast of six major hotels

By NICK PFEIFAU
Herald Staff Writer

LAKE MARY — Not this Christmas, but probably by next Christmas, there will certainly be plenty of rooms at the inns in Lake Mary. According to latest reports, the city could boast of possibly a half dozen major hotels in the near, near future.

One, the Marriott Courtyard, with 700 rooms, already up and operating at the northeast corner of the Lake Mary Boulevard Interstate 4 interchange. This is the only one not a part of the city limits, said Lake Mary Planner Matt Scott. The rest, presently being planned, should be within the city.

All of the new hotels are at the major intersection of the two major highways.

The proposed 100-room Holiday Inn, being built in the near future in Lake Mary was approved last week at the city commission meeting.

One of the proposed complexes, a 100-room hotel, brought up for consideration at the Holiday Inn.

Murder victim remains a mystery woman

From staff reports

ALAMONTE SPRINGS — A woman's body found in an Alamoonte Springs garbage dump on August 19, 1973, is not that of Cynthia Cook, an Ann Arbor, Michigan, woman who had been reported from her home earlier that year. The determination was made official Thursday.

The Seminole County Sheriff's Sub-Department had been investigating the case, and attempting to identify the remains of the body for over three years. When all efforts failed, a forensic procedure was called in to conduct a more extensive investigation.

Yesterday, Dr. William Maples, a forensic anthropologist at the University of Florida, informed the Sheriff's office of his findings. He had compared the victim's skull with the photo of Cynthia Cook and determined that the two did not match.

The body found in Alamoonte Springs is that of Seawall sliding into lake

By VICKI DeBORMIER
Herald Senior Staff Writer

SANFORD — Just walk along the waterfront in Sanford and you can see it happening.

One of the city's most valuable assets is washing away bit by bit.

The breakwater seawall that lines Lake Monroe, separating the land from the city is falling by small pieces into the lake. The level of the water is rising near the wall as minute amounts of sand seep out from under the wall.

At the turn of the century, the city met the lake in a simple beach. In the 1920s, as part of the first at temps at waterfront development, the seawall was constructed.

"But the sand behind the wall is not compacted and there's too much sinkage," Harvey Greenwell, a retired engineer, who lives in a boat on Lake Monroe, said.

According to Greenwell, Florida sand is all the same size, which means it doesn't compact. Something, like concrete or other substance of varying size, has to be added to it to force it to stick together.

"And there is nothing back there but sand," Greenwell said.

As the sand settles, it seeks the lowest point, which in this case happens to be out into the lake basin. As a result, the wall is crumbling. The action is slow, but it is becoming more noticeable.

FLORIDA BRIEFS

Fla. not included in Chicago seizure

CHICAGO — Illinois officials seized control of a Chicago-based insurance company, but a branch in Florida was not included.

Illinois authorities say Coronet Insurance Group, which specializes in high-risk drivers, owes at least $6.5 million in claims to its customers in nine states.

The Coronet group includes Coronet Insurance Co., Crown Casualty Co., and the National Assurance Indemnity Co. The only member of the Coronet Group not included in the order is Casualty Insurance Co. of Florida.

A Cook County judge ordered Coronet placed under the authority of a state conservator Tuesday at the request of the Illinois Department of Insurance. The state contends Coronet's policy reserve is at least $2.5 million short of what is needed.

The conservator has taken over the group's operations and temporarily suspended claims payments and premium refunds while Coronet's financial condition is assessed, said Richard Darling, a top official with the Insurance Department.

Darling said policy holders should be protected by state-run guarantee programs funded by insurance companies. The limit for Illinois' fund is $300,000 per claim or $10,000 for premium refunds. Darling said other states have similar limits.

He said the department has been investigating Coronet since May, and Coronet officials have admitted the company is insolvent.

A Coronet official who asked not to be named said the group has 52,000 customers in Ohio, Illinois, Indiana, Missouri, Tennessee, Mississippi, Florida, Arizona and Nevada.

Coronet stopped taking new business last week because it was concerned about its financial stability, the official said.

Widow: hush money paid to girlfriend

TAMPA — Lawyers for the widow of former Tampa Bay Buccaneers owner Hugh Culverhouse want to question a woman they believe had an affair with him.

Joy McCann Culverhouse and her attorneys contend, in court documents filed Wednesday, that the Hugh F. Culverhouse Trust paid "hush money" to the woman.

They want Circuit Judge F. Dennis Ivaes to order that she and her lawyer, Arnold Levine, respond to their questions and produce documents about the alleged payment.

The motion was filed in connection with three lawsuits in which Mrs. Culverhouse claims she was deprived of a fair share of her husband's $350 million estate.

Her lawyers contend extramarital affairs are relevant because he tricked his wife of 51 years into an unfair property settlement.

Levine has refused to discuss the case, citing a confidentiality agreement between Culverhouse and his client, court records say. He wrote the lawyers to say he would talk only if ordered by a judge.

The motion is based on responses from trustee Stephen F. Story, who was questioned under oath Dec. 4. Story testified that the trust paid the woman $50,000 after she made a claim against Culverhouse. One lawyer asked, whether it was blackmail or a legal claim.

"Just a claim that ... Hugh Culverhouse had made promises that he didn't fulfill," Story said. Story said the woman was paid after Culverhouse created the trust to benefit his wife and charities.

His testimony was the first time Mrs. Culverhouse learned an affair by her husband resulted in payments after the trust was established, attorney Donald Gifford wrote in his motion filed for the widow.

Culverhouse created the trust 18 months before his death in August 1984, naming Story, John M. Donlan and Fred M. Cone Jr. as trustees.

All three also were named directors of the football team, a corporation that belonged to the trust, and directors of the Culverhouse Family Foundation, a nonprofit company set up to support charities with trust money. The trust sold the Bucs to financier Malcolm Glazer last year.

Story also was asked in his deposition about Culverhouse's relationships with at least two other women. Wednesday's motion includes a portion of a deposition by Cone, who testified he never saw any evidence Culverhouse had any affairs.

In court documents the widow accused her husband of philandering, the trustees of mismanagement and all of them of conspiring to fool her into signing an agreement to give up half of the estate before her husband died.

NEWS FROM THE REGION AND ACROSS THE STATE

State psychiatrists: Medina is sane

By JACKIE HALLIFAR
Associated Press Writer

TALLAHASSEE — Death row inmate Pedro Medina is sane, three psychiatrists reported to Gov. Lawton Chiles, a week after Medina dodged the electric chair with an insanity claim.

"It is our opinion that Mr. Medina is feigning psychosis in an attempt to avoid his execution," the three psychiatrists wrote Chiles Thursday.

Medina had been scheduled to go to the electric chair Dec. 5 for the 1983 fatal stabbing of Dorothy James of Orlando, an elementary physical education teacher.

But three days earlier, his lawyers invoked a rarely-used state law that requires the governor to delay any execution of a killer alleged to be insane.

As required by law, Chiles appointed three psychiatrists to examine Medina. They did so last Thursday, the day Medina had been scheduled for execution.

The psychiatrists said Medina's symptoms were consistent with "malingering, which is the feigning of mental illness symptoms in order to attain a specific goal or to avoid undesired consequences."

Chiles is out of the country on vacation and not due back in Tallahassee until Dec. 22. He'll be on personal time through the end of the year, according to spokeswoman Karen Pankowski.

Medina's death warrant remains in effect indefinitely under a new state law that took effect Oct. 1. However, the governor must still set a new execution period. Pankowski said that won't happen until Chiles is back at work.

The office of state lawyers who represent death row inmates didn't return a phone call seeking comment Thursday. However, they have the option of filing an insanity claim in state trial court.

A psychiatrist who examined Medina for the defense concluded he suffers from "longstanding organic psychotic disorder characterized by frequent episodes of active hallucinations."

Miami psychologist Ruth Latimer said Medina has suffered brain damage, probably caused by "significant birth trauma."

Noteworthy students

Seventeen talented musicians from Sanford Middle School were among those named to the All-County band.

No other school had as many representatives on the band. The noteworthy students include Sarah Meisel, Allah Alshomrani, Bryn Wallace, Joseph Cooper, Natasha Chida, Quoc Van, Elise Dantuma, Evelyn Walker, Brian Watts, Deannon Gardner, Shannon Duhart, Zach Cooper, Julia Coffman, Caitlin Edison, Cassidy Webb and Estelle Morley. In addition seven of the 14 sections of the band were selected as first chair players.

Those kinds of comments persuaded University Mall to invite the carolers to return. "Our original decision was strictly based on space limitations to make our shoppers more comfortable during the heavy holiday season," said University Mall marketing director Cindy Schutman. "However, the mall very much wants to please our shoppers and be a community player."

Mall relents, invites caroling groups back

By The Associated Press

PENSACOLA — The sound of music is returning to a Pensacola shopping mall after it was flooded with complaints about its ban on Christmas carolers.

The second of this Florida Panhandle city's two major malls, however, is sticking by a decision to cancel large-scale performances, allowing only small ensembles to serenade shoppers.

Managers at both malls had cited safety and congestion problems for their restrictions on caroling, but many people complained merchants were just putting crass commercialism ahead of the Christmas spirit. Some said they would shop elsewhere.

"It's a shame that the mall managers are so greedy," said Pensacola resident Fran Barker.

"They forget what Christmas is all about and the reason they are making all their money."

She said the mall would schedule choral groups every hour on the hour on a first-come, first-served basis for the rest of the holiday season.

University Mall had decided before the holiday season not to schedule any choral presentations.

Former priest charged with taking church funds

By The Associated Press

TAMPA — A former priest accused of using church funds to pay a man who threatened to reveal their sexual relationship has been charged with grand theft.

The Rev. Simeon Gardner, 70, appeared Thursday before Circuit Judge Walter R. Heinrich, who released Gardner on his own recognizance. Gardner will enter a plea later.

The judge warned the former priest at St. Mary's Catholic Church not to miss his court appearances or he would have to answer "to a higher authority."

Gardner agreed to turn himself in and has cooperated with investigators, said Assistant

State Attorney Anthony Arena. The priest could be offered a plea bargain if he continues to cooperate and is willing to testify against a potential co-defendant, Arena said.

The now-retired priest is accused of stealing $250,000 to $300,000 from four church bank accounts. According to a state attorney investigator's report, he allegedly used church money to pay Joseph John Mondeau, 36, who has denied trying to extort money from Gardner.

The allegations against Gardner began when Bishop Robert N. Lynch of the Roman Catholic Diocese of St. Petersburg was advised that church money may have been missing.

POLICE

Multiple charges

Lake Mary police conducted a traffic stop Wednesday after an officer reported seeing a vehicle apparently driven in an improper manner. The 1991 Chevrolet was stopped on Alma Avenue near Country Club Road. The driver was identified as Chad Anthony Jackson, 19, of 999 Birmingham Court, Lake Mary. Police said a search of the vehicle uncovered a handgun which was listed as stolen in Casselberry on Oct. 3. A knife was also recovered as was some drug paraphernalia and beer cans. Jackson was subsequently arrested on charges of possession of alcoholic beverage by a person under 21, possession of drug paraphernalia, possession of a concealed weapon (knife), possession of a concealed firearm, theft of a firearm, and use of a motor vehicle in the commission of a felony.

Stolen tag

Sheriff's deputies arrested Samuel A. Rushing, 31, of 4641 Richard Allen, Lake Monroe on Wednesday. A deputy said he checked license tags at a store parking lot at Jitway and Right Way in Midway, and found one of the tags had been listed as stolen in Sanford. Rushing, the driver of the vehicle was charged with petit theft, operating a motor vehicle with a cancelled/suspended drivers license and attached tag not assigned.

Retail theft

Joel W. Ross, 18, listed as a transient, was arrested by Sanford police Wednesday at a retail store in the 1500 block of S. French Avenue. Officers said he attempted to take a $1.18 package of bologna from the store without paying. He was charged with retail theft.

Domestic case

Donald M. Benevento Jr., 18, of 1311 Santa Barbara Drive, was arrested by Sanford police at his residence Wednesday following a reported altercation with a female. He was charged with domestic battery.

Tough-on-crime laws now seen as political symbols

By RODMAN CARRELL
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON — When Congress and 23 states took dead aim at violent criminals with multiple convictions, the get-tough sentencing laws were hailed as a state-of-the-art crime-fighting tool. They are now largely ignored.

"A thoughtful policy-maker would have to conclude that this has been much ado about nothing," says Chase Riveland, top man in Washington state's Department of Corrections.

The rush to tougher judgments began in 1993 when Washington voters adopted the nation's first law with the catchy slogan: "Three strikes and you're out."

Congress and other states followed suit with similar punishment for repeat federal criminals the next year.

The laws allow or require lifetime imprisonment or extra-long sentences for three-time violent criminals. The definition of a "violent" crime varies from state to state.

California, which has the most sweeping legislation, is the only state that has taken to its "three-strikes" law aggressively, with more than 15,000 convictions in two years.

Within the state, however, the law's enforcement has varied from county to county.

Under the California's 1994 law, second strikes get a doubled prison sentence and third strikes draw terms of 25 years to life.

By contrast, a recently published report says the 1994 federal law calling for mandatory life sentences for three-time offenders had resulted in only nine convictions through last June.

"The law itself is mostly symbolic," says the report's author, University of Wisconsin law professor Walter Dickey.

The low federal numbers were cited by Republican presidential candidate Bob Dole in his campaign against President Clinton. When enforcement of the law, Dole campaign contended, "has been a get-out-of-jail-free card for tens of thousands of violent criminals."

Well, not really. Most violent crimes fall under state jurisdiction.

Some states — Colorado, New Jersey, New Mexico, North Carolina, Pennsylvania and Tennessee — had sentenced no one under their "three strikes" laws, Dickey's report states.

Prosecutions have been rare under the laws in most other states — Arkansas, Connecticut, Florida, Georgia, Indiana, Louisiana, Maryland, Montana, Nevada, South Carolina, Utah, Vermont, Virginia, Wisconsin and Washington.

Why the disparity between California and the rest of the nation?

"It's really been politicized far more in California than in the other states," Dickey says. Prosecutors and judges in other states have found that other get-tough laws already in place were sufficient, but their counterparts in California really had no choice, he says.

Dickey says his report touched on some "unintended consequences" in California. Some examples: prison overcrowding so severe that many criminals now get less time behind bars, and the financial costs tied to greater numbers of trials because defendants refuse to plea-bargain.

"Three-strikes laws are textbook examples of the complexity of affecting behavior through the use of criminal law," the report says. "While the goal — crime reduction through imprisonment of repetitive, dangerous offenders — is one with which no one disagrees, the consequences are much more complicated."

"Although there is undoubtedly some reduction in crime, it is not at all clear that it is cost-effective or fairly accomplished," Dickey says.

In Washington, Riveland says the "quick-fix gimmick" of an enhanced-sentencing law has had little impact.

Such laws generally "seem to camouflage the real issues — what to do about crime and violence and drugs — and play on people's fears," he says.

Discovery of primitive human fossil in Java challenges major theory

By PAUL SWEISHER
AP Science Writer

WASHINGTON — A primitive, humanlike species that science thought had disappeared in Africa more than a million years ago has been found to have lived in Java as recently as 27,000 years ago alongside modern humans, researchers said today.

New techniques to date Java fossils give the first evidence that Homo erectus, a beetle-browed hominid, lived at the same time and place as anatomically modern humans, according to a study in the journal Science.

Carl C. Swisher III of the Berkeley Geochronology Center said he believes the Homo erectus lived in Java between 27,000 and 83,000 years ago. Modern humans arrived at the island about 40,000 years ago.

"These are the youngest dates ever found for Homo erectus and it is quite startling," said Susan Anton, a University of Florida anthropologist and co-author of the study. "This is the first time that they have been shown to coexist (with modern humans). Even in Africa, they didn't overlap."

Homo erectus was similar to modern humans, but had a flat skull, a sloping forehead and a dental bridge that thrust forward. The brow ridge was very large, as if casting a shadow over the eyes.

"They were stocky and very powerfully built individuals," Swisher said.

But the key difference between erectus and sapiens was in the brain. The sapiens brain is about 25 percent larger and this may have been the difference between the survival of one species and the demise of the other.

Most experts believe Homo erectus arose in Africa about 1.8 million years ago and then spread throughout Asia. Anton said it is widely believed that Homo sapiens evolved in Africa, perhaps from Homo erectus, about 300,000 years ago and then spread into the rest of the world.

Homo erectus disappeared earlier from Africa and Asia, but Java "was sort of a refuge" for the species, said Swisher.

Java was once connected with Asia by a land bridge, he said, and became an island when the sea level rose.

Swisher said it has never been shown that the erectus species developed water transportation, but the more advanced sapiens did build boats.

Swisher probably shared Java for hundreds of generations, but that the modern humans eventually overwhelmed the primitive forms.

"I find it hard to imagine that there wasn't some effect from a new hominid moving in," she said.

It was probably not war that wiped out Homo erectus, said Anton, but more likely the ability of Homo sapiens to produce more children and to live more successfully.

Philip Rightmire of the State University of New York, Binghamton, said the fossils used in the study by Swisher and Anton "are pretty convincing." But, he said, there may be some "technical issues to sort out" about the age-dating.

"The results are intriguing," said Rightmire, an anthropology professor. "We need to think about what this means."

But Milford Wolpoff of the University of Michigan said he doubts that the fossils are actually Homo erectus, noting that they are very similar to Australian natives. He also believes the dates are "unreliable."

Swisher said the find threatens the "regional continuity" theory, supported by Wolpoff, that holds that primitive humans arose in Africa, migrated elsewhere and that modern humans arose from these separate groups. A key part of the theory is that the Java people were the ancestors of modern Australians.

Wolpoff said the Swisher study has not disproved the Java-Australia connection.

Swisher says the coexistence in Java of both Homo erectus and Homo sapiens supports the "out of Africa" theory that all human species arose at different times in Africa and migrated in waves separated by hundreds of thousands of years.

The Java Homo erectus fossils, mostly skull fragments, were found on a terraced bank of the Solo River in Java.

Officials in Java will not permit chips of the fossils to be used for age-dating so the researchers instead dated water buffalo teeth dug from the same site and analyzed at McMaster University in Hamilton, Ontario.

Wolpoff said since the site is beside a river, the buffalo teeth may have washed from a distant deposit and could be of a different age than the human fossils.

Youth crime

WASHINGTON — Fewer people under age 15 were arrested for violent crimes last year, helping lower the nation's juvenile crime rate, Attorney General Janet Reno said.

Overall violent crime in 1995 fell 4 percent for people under age 17, but the greatest decline — 7 percent — occurred among youths age 10 to 14, according to Justice Department analysis released Thursday.

FBI figures released in August showed that the 1995 violent crime arrest rate dropped for the first time since 1987. The latest report was issued by the Justice Department's Office of Juvenile Justice and Delinquency Prevention.

Reno said the new figures show that an expected explosion in teen-age crime can be averted through community policing, mentor programs and groups such as the Boys and Girls Clubs.

The Justice Department also announced the availability of $16.5 million in grants to states for programs to prevent gang violence and other juvenile crime.

The juvenile crime analysis also found: — Juvenile arrests for murder fell 14 percent since 1994 and 23 percent since 1993.

Baby boomers are savoring memories of low-tech toys

By STEVE MALLON
Associated Press Writer

PITTSBURGH — Mr. Potato Head, Slinky, Lincoln Logs.

They may lack the electronic dazzle of today's toys, but these relics of an earlier era still grab the imaginations of baby boomers.

"The quality's a lot better today than it was then, but who noticed?" said Joe Kravec, 43, of the Pittsburgh suburb of Mount Lebanon.

Kravec and other adults recalled the simpler pleasures of the playthings of Christmases Past recently at "Toy Pop," an exhibit of toys from the 1950s and 1960s at the Senator John Heinz Pittsburgh Regional History Center.

While there wasn't a computer screen or a joy stick in sight, the vintage toys seemed to appeal to more than a dozen youngsters.

Five girls stretched out a Slinky and used it to jump rope. Other children built a Lincoln Log house, created Cootie insects and jammed interchangeable eyes, ears and noses into a hollow plastic tuber known as Mr. Potato Head.

For fourth-grade teacher Linda Kleeb, the nearly 150 toys and games on display were as evocative as songs from a rock 'n' roll oldies radio station.

"Mr. Machine, he's my absolute favorite," said Ms. Kleeb, referring to a see-through, windup toy figure with a red top hat. "I didn't have a Betsy Wetsy, I didn't have a Barbie. I liked things that go," she said.

The exhibit, which ends Jan. 6, has both of those popular dolls, together with a Charmin' Chatty, an Easy Bake Oven and other accessories in a collection called the Girls' Clubhouse.

In The Boys' Clubhouse, Davy Crockett wears a coonskin cap next to S-4 Space Bombs, a Superior Gas Station, and a host of pirates, spacemen and dinosaurs.

"There was such a lack of technology," Kravec said of the toys. "Today they're all computerized with sound, and they move, and they look like the real thing."

His wife, Linda Kravec, 47, said their generation's toys required more from a child's imagination.

There are also popular TV characters filling plastic dioramas shaped like television's "Lost in Space" robot; Mr. Ed, the talking horse; the Lone Ranger and Tonto; Deputy Dawg, and Zorro.

Facing the make-believe television is, naturally, a couch holding a family of Potato Heads.

a white female, 15 to 16 years of age, five foot seven, 110 pounds with sandy, brown hair pulled back into a ponytail. She also had crooked teeth.

She had apparently been killed sometime between March and June of 1973. The body was not found until August.

The sheriff's office had assumed that if the body was that of Cynthia Coon, it may have been connected with another murder, Laura Lynn Harberts of Orlando. Joseph Spasiano, 51, was suspected. Harberts had already been convicted of murdering Harberts, during approximately the same time frame as the Coon disappearance and location of the body in Altamonte Springs.

The Florida Supreme Court is expected to soon decide whether Spasiano should be granted a new trial in connection with the murder of Harberts.

Regarding the determination by Dr. Maples however, two cases remain unresolved. The whereabouts and/or fate of the Michigan woman remains unknown, and the identity of the body found in the dumpster in Altamonte Springs is still unknown.

Inn. West said this is an entirely new line for the Hilton corporation, and will be the first of its kind in Florida, if not the first of the five planned for the entire nation. West said the proposal for the development is expected to come before the city commission in the near future.

"One which we are trying to schedule for the next city commission meeting, (Dec. 19), is the Mainstay Suites Hotel."

Another extended stay facility is the Homewood, which submitted its application to the city last week. It will have 112 rooms.

There is also an indication that La Quinta Inn may apply for still another hotel to be built in Lake Mary in the near future.

With the existing Marriott Courtyard, plus planned Hilton Garden Inn, Mainstay Suites, Homewood, Holiday Inn and possibly La Quinta, there could be over 600 hotel rooms available at or near the Interstate-4 interchange in the near future.

West said some of the requests are expected to be on the agenda for this next city commission meeting, while others could be agendaized during the next two to four meetings.

Hunters rescued

An all day search Sunday by three law enforcement agencies resulted in the rescue of a 21-year old St. Augustine man who reportedly lost his way while hunting in a remote portion of the St. Johns River swamp, 13 miles south of Palatka.

Robert Jason Coyne was reported missing to the Florida Game and Fresh Water Fish Commission by his two hunting companions after he failed to show up at a pre-designated meeting spot in Caravelle Wildlife Management area.

A helicopter from the Marion County sheriff's department finally located him at 4 p.m., waving his orange hunting vest.

He was pulled from the swamp at approximately 10:30 p.m., and transported to Halifax Hospital in Daytona Beach where he was treated for mild hypothermia and a pulled leg muscle.

years as a carpenter. In 1968 he helped to build the Springfield Missionary Baptist Church where he and his wife continue to attend services. He also spent 24 years working in the fuel industry.

In June of 1988, Peterson suffered a mini-stroke. After spending four months in a nursing home, he returned home. He continues to have difficulty getting around but maintains an independent lifestyle.

Peterson considers himself lucky to have reached this milestone in life, as "most people I know are dropping dead out."

Seminole Boulevard that this is happening," he said. "There are long cracks in the road where the sand under it is sinking."

Greenwell estimates that it would cost in excess of $500 million to replace the wall with a properly constructed structure. For a much lower figure, he noted, the existing wall can be saved.

"It would cost relatively little money...$100,000 at the most...to do some injection grouting and just filling the holes," he explained. "A little bit of maintenance over the wall would save the city a lot and save this great resource."

Greenwell added the RiverShip Romance and other large boats that regularly moor to the seawall are also doing damage to the seawall despite precautions they take.

"If the city would just do the maintenance...the injection grouting...this wouldn't be a problem," he said.

City manager Bill Simmons was not available for comment this morning.

For the children

The employees of the Gayfers Department store at the Altamonte Mall recently presented a $1,338 check to the Seminole County Friends of Abused Children and the Guardian Ad Litem program. The programs help youngsters, some of whom are abused or neglected, move through the court system in custody or related cases. On hand to accept the check were Nancy Armstrong, director of the Guardian Ad Litem program and Terri Harding, president of Seminole County Friends of Abused Children. Joseph Dobrowolski, the store manager, gave them the check.

Congressional budget experts see slight economic improvements

By ALAN FRAM
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON — Congress' nonpartisan budget analysts have brightened their short-term economic forecast, giving a small boost to those hoping lawmakers and President Clinton will strike a balanced-budget agreement next year.

In a preliminary report Thursday, the Congressional Budget Office said it now expects the economy to grow by a moderate 2.3 percent in 1997, by 2 percent in 1998 and by 2.2 percent in 1999.

In its last economic forecast in May, the budget office projected growth for those years of 1.9 percent, 2 percent and 2.1 percent respectively.

Those improvements could mean that budget deficits will be smaller than analysts expected in May, easing the search for savings that could balance the budget in 2002. The budget office is not expected to release new deficit projections until early next year.

The release of the new figures came a month earlier than usual at the request of Republican congressional leaders. They want to build an atmosphere of cooperation with the White House in anticipation of budget talks next year.

In 1996, CBO's economic estimates were just slightly more pessimistic than those of the White House's Office of Management and Budget. But those tiny variations produced rival deficit projections that differed by tens of billions of dollars.

This year, GOP leaders and administration officials have already talked about trying to quickly solve differences over economic projections so they can move faster to negotiations over how to balance the budget by 2002. The White House's new economic projections are expected to be released with Clinton's fiscal 1998 budget in February.

"The more we know and the earlier we know it, the easier it should be to bridge the gaps" between the two sides, said Lawrence J. Haas, spokesman for the White House budget office.

The improved economic forecast was based on recent improvements in personal and corporate income.

"CBO's preliminary economic projections anticipate that moderate growth will continue for the next two years, with no significant change in the major economic indicators," the report said.

CBO projections of federal spending are expected by early January. Analysts expect them to show that the huge Medicare and Medicaid programs are growing slightly slower than previously expected, which could help make anticipated deficits smaller still.

CBO projected that economic growth would stay at 2.1 percent from 2000 through 2002, at 2 percent from 2003 through 2006, and 1.9 percent in 2006 and 2007.

It forecast that inflation would be 2.9 percent in 1997 and 1998, a bit better than CBO said in May, and stay at 3 percent through 2004.

Unemployment is forecast at 5.3 percent next year, growing gradually to 6 percent in 2001. Also, 10-year Treasury bills are estimated to yield 6.2 percent throughout the decade.

Winnowing vacancy list

WASHINGTON — As President Clinton winnowed his vacancy list, Democratic activist Bill Daley of Chicago emerged as the likely choice for commerce secretary and Rep. Bill Richardson the probable pick for U.N. ambassador. Attorney General Janet Reno's fate also hung in the balance.

Administration officials, speaking on condition of anonymity, said the decisions could be announced at an afternoon news conference today.

Clinton, who left Reno's status up in the air for weeks, met for 30 minutes Thursday night with his independent-minded attorney general, only reporting to aides that it was "a wonderful meeting."

Going into the one-on-one session, senior advisers said Clinton summoned Reno to ask her to stay — and she was expected to accept.

Beleagued by calls

WASHINGTON — A federal agency is being beleagued by hundreds of frightened car owners who want to disconnect their air bags immediately, officials said. Most are being told no.

In the last several months, officials received 780 letters asking the agency to assure them they will not be prosecuted if a mechanic disconnects an air bag for them. It is illegal for anyone other than the car's owner to disconnect an air bag, but few people know how to do it safely.

The National Highway Traffic Safety Administration has granted 80 waivers, all to people who cited medical problems, the officials said Thursday.

The rest are being sent letters saying they will be allowed to make their own decision sometime next year. That's because the agency is expected this month to make a formal proposal allowing mechanics to disconnect air bags.

Removing tariffs

SINGAPORE — Trade ministers from most countries that export high-tech goods agreed today to remove tariffs on hundreds of products by 2000, paving the way for prices on such items to drop.

The deal on computer, software and telecommunications products is the crowning success of the World Trade Organization's inaugural ministerial meeting, which ended today with a package of measures designed to liberalize trade around the world.

The high-tech trade deal also was a major victory for the United States, whose representatives had negotiated around the clock all week to get enough countries to sign onto the deal.

U.S. Trade Representative Charlene Barahofsky announced today that 28 nations had formally agreed to join the pact, saying those countries account for 85 percent of the world's high-tech trade. Six other nations said they intended to join the agreement soon.

Grant award investigated

WASHINGTON — Both Congress and the Commerce Department are investigating a $3.2 million grant that went to a Democratic fund-raiser's company after a political appointee overruled the selection of another firm that won the initial bidding.

The grant, the largest ever from Commerce to run a minority business assistance center in Los Angeles known as MEOA, was awarded to Cordoba Corp. even after government auditors twice warned that the company did not appear to be financially fit, documents show.

Cordoba is run by California businessman George Pla, who for two decades has raised money for Democrats and was a member of President Clinton's 1992 campaign finance board. Pla also served on the Democratic Party's 1992 convention site selection committee and has donated $39,350 to Democratic causes.

Another Disney executive leaves amid conflicts with boss Eisner

By E. SCOTT REEKARD
AP Business Writer

LOS ANGELES — An exodus of top management talent from the Walt Disney Co. continued with the resignation of former Hollywood super agent Michael Ovitz, the latest executive to chafe under Michael Eisner's apparent unwillingness to cede control.

Ovitz, the No. 2 Disney executive, announced Thursday he was leaving after trying for a year to share power with Eisner, a friend for 25 years.

"It is important to recognize when something is not working," Ovitz said in a statement Disney released.

He leaves with a severance package valued at nearly $90 million — $60 million in cash and nearly $40 million in stock options, the Los Angeles Times reported Friday, citing unidentified sources.

"It's a lot of money for what apparently was a mistake," said executive compensation expert Graef Crystal, who helped design Ovitz's contract.

Ovitz officially departs Jan. 31, and Disney said there are no plans to replace him, potentially reopening a debate about the company's future if Eisner should develop serious health problems.

The 54-year-old Eisner, who has had quadruple heart bypass surgery, is in good shape, company officials say.

Ovitz's departure was expected by many, but has left analysts and investors wondering about Disney's future. Word of Ovitz's pending departure pushed Disney stock down $1.87 1/2 at $70.25 on the New York Stock Exchange.

For all its considerable success, Disney has had trouble keeping its top management team in place since its former president, Frank Wells, died in a helicopter crash in April 1994.

Those leaving include Jeffrey Katzenberg, who ran Disney's studio operations and who quit in September 1994 after a power dispute with Eisner. Katzenberg later founded the Dreamworks SKG studio with producer Steven Spielberg and record mogul David Geffen.

Another well-regarded executive, Richard Frank, quit as chairman of Disney's TV and telecommunications unit in March 1995 following reports that he was frustrated by Eisner's close supervision of his work.

Disney said Ovitz's departure was a mutual decision and that he would continue to consult for the company.

Despite their difficulties working together, Eisner and Ovitz had remained close enough personally to take a bicycle vacation together in France last summer, and their wives are friends.

"I will miss Michael's energy, creativity and leadership at Disney," Eisner said. "We have been doing business together while being friends for many years and I know that both our personal and professional relationships will continue."

Ovitz was in New York on business all this week. Eisner flew in late Wednesday, and the two talked from 11 p.m. until 2:30 a.m. Thursday finalizing the details of Ovitz's exit, spokesmen said.

Eisner has headed Disney since 1984, building on its theme park and family-movie base to create a powerhouse in film and TV production, home video, broadcasting, sports and consumer products.

After acquiring Capital Cities-ABC, including the ABC and ESPN networks, Disney is second in size only to Time Warner Inc. among entertainment companies.

Ovitz is the former head of Creative Artists Agency, which he built over 20 years into Hollywood's top talent agency.

Arrow Force V catches, but can't pass Bulldogs

By DEAN SMITH
 Herald Sports Editor

SANFORD — The hole was just too deep. Arrow Force V rebounded from a 15-point first half deficit to tie the game in the fourth quarter, but they could not keep the momentum as Seminole fell 54-46 to St. Cloud in a Class 5A-District 6 boys basketball game at Bill Fleming Memorial Gymnasium Thursday night.

In a trend that is becoming all too prevalent, Arrow Force V fell behind 10-0 before Chris Westhelle hit a layup with 2:33 left in the opening period. Seminole trailed 18-5 after one quarter and was still down by 15, 27-12, before scoring the final seven points of the half to close to within eight, 27-19, at intermission.

"We keep getting so far behind at the start of the game and I don't know why," said Seminole head coach Bob Traina. "It's very frustrating to beat them on their floor (AFV beat the Bulldogs 52-46 in St. Cloud last Thursday) and then lose at home and not play well."

Andy Mariette hit a pair of three-pointers and a layup early in the third period as the hosts continued to peck away at the lead, trailing by just four points, 36-32, after three quarters.

Arrow Force V appeared ready to take control of the game as Kenny Edwards hit back-to-back running layups to open the fourth quarter to tie the contest at 36-36 with 7:36 left in the game.

The score would remain tied for over three minutes before the Bulldogs scored twice to take a 40-36 advantage. Arrow Force V would not score again until just 3:05 remained on the clock, but they were still only down by two points, 40-38.

Then came a crucial point in the game. Seminole had a St. Cloud player tied up at mid-court and appeared ready to force a five-second violation. But just in the nick of time, the Bulldog player got rid of the ball and the visitors hit a short jumper. As the ball was going through the net, a foul was called under the basket on an Arrow Force V player.

St. Cloud hit one of two free throws and now led by five, 43-38. Seminole then missed two free throw and the Bulldogs made two charity tosses on the other end, making the difference seven points and all but ending the game.

The visitors were able to maintain the lead by hitting 14 of 30 free throw attempts in the fourth quarter.

Arrow Force V did not go home empty handed, however, as both the freshman and junior varsity teams won the preliminary games.

St. Cloud (2-4) was led by Shadrick Williams with 20 points (10 of 13 from the free throw line) and Steve Stonebreaker with 13 points.

Seminole (3-3, 1-2 in 5A-6) was paced by Zehn Seymour with 11 points and Mariette with 10. Arrow Force V will its open Seminole Athletic Conference schedule tonight, hosting Lyman in a triphheader at Bill Fleming Memorial Gymnasium. The freshman game starts at 4:30 p.m.; with the junior varsity taking the floor at 6 p.m.; and the varsity tipping off at 7:30 p.m.

Tribe, Rams girls remain unbeaten

From Staff Reports

LONGWOOD — Three games in three days almost proved to be too much for the Seminole High School girls' basketball team Thursday night as it had to go to overtime to edge host Lyman 42-41.

"Playing three days in a row may have been part of it, but I don't want to take anything away from Lyman, they played the best they have all year," said Seminole head coach Sylvester Wynn. "They had some coming out of their ears and they had a lot of fans in the stands. They really wanted to beat the big dog, but it only takes one point to win so I'm satisfied."

The Fighting Seminoles led 35-30 after three periods, but their scoring in each quarter went down and the Greyhounds finally caught the Tribe by outpacing the visitors 7-2 in the fourth period.

But Seminole survived in overtime, outscoring Lyman 5-4.

Dana Merrick was the lone Fighting Seminole in double figures with a game-high 18 points, while Kim Collins and Monica Lansfield paced the Greyhounds with 12 and 10 points, respectively.

Seminole, which won the freshman game but lost the junior varsity contest, is now 11-0 overall and 5-0 in the SAC. The Tribe will be idle until hosting Seabree in a varsity only game next Thursday at 6 p.m. at Bill Fleming Memorial Gymnasium. It will be the Fighting Seminoles' last pre-holiday game.

The Rams will host Titusville-Astronaut at 7 p.m. tonight.

Marlins ink Alou

By DEAN S.M. SMITH
 Associated Press Writer

MIAMI — With the main holiday shopping crunch still looming, the Florida Marlins can rest easy.

Their Christmas shopping was officially completed with the signing of their sixth free agent in three weeks, this time roping former Montreal Expos star outfielder Moises Alou.

Alou, one of 19 players becoming a free agent last weekend when service time for the strike was restored, agreed to a $35 million, five-year contract with the Florida Marlins on Thursday.

"It was easy for me," said Alou, who received a collect call Wednesday while vacationing in Venezuela to seal the deal. "I had a few other offers, but the Marlins, they made it easier. That was a team I really wanted."

The signing is the final step in a free-agent spending spree by the Marlins.

"We're thrilled to be able to add somebody with Moises' ability," general manager Dave Dombrowski said before.

Lawrence rallies at SpeedWorld

By DAVE WESTERMAN
 Special to the Herald

BITHLO — Orlando's Kevin Lawrence came from the rear of the field to claim victory in Friday night's 25 Lap Late Model feature at Orlando SpeedWorld.

Lawrence was battling with Vermont driver Dennis Demers for the lead early in the race when the two tangled and were sent to the rear of the field. From there, both Lawrence and Demers dodged several other wrecks to work their way back to the front.

This time, Lawrence quickly proved to be the class of the field as he pulled away to win by several car lengths in his Sunshine Race Cars/Port City House Car. Demers finished second for the second straight week ahead of David King, Kevin Gillum and Tim Huston.

Osteen's Bobby Sears won a caution-plagued Limited Late Model feature leading every lap. Chad Allison kept the pressure on Sears but had to settle for second over Earl Beckner, David Carlson and Ronnie Harrell.

The Modified feature was 18 laps of side-by-side racing that had the fans screaming for more. When the dust had settled, Bill Brown had driven his Brown's Tractor Service Special to his first career win. Greg Beggs made a last lap charge to take second with Hank Sanders, Joe Middleton and Raulie Moore rounding out the top five.

Old rivals Jared Allison and Conrad Grenier finished one-two in the Mini-Stock headliner. Allison scored his first win of the year driving Ronnie Watson's B&D Asphalt Service Mustang. Following Allison and Grenier were Lee Davis, Cody Caribert and Pedie Allison.

Sanford's Jerry Smith won his initial Sportsman feature of the year at the expense of Tom Laurent. The two were battling for the lead, but tangled with two backmarkers that wouldn't get out of the way. Smith came through with just minor damage, but Laurent's car went up on two wheels and smacked the wall — his second major crash in three weeks. Laurent was unhurt but his car was badly damaged.

Finishing behind Smith were Sanford's Danny Zukowski, Russ Shaw, Bill Love and Bob Ahts.

Carl Peters topped a very competitive Bomber feature, out-gunning rookie sensation Jeff Wright, Kenny Wilson, Bill Gibbons and Ron Adams.

Brian Dusette took the measure of the Run-A-Bouts.

Alou a cap and jersey with the number 16. "He has the type of bat that we were looking to add to the ball club — also an outstanding defensive player."

Alou joins what is possibly the most improved team in baseball — at least on paper — with the hiring of new manager Jim Leyland as well as slugger Bobby Bonilla, pitcher Alex Fernandez and reliever Dennis Cook.

"The team we're going to have right now, there's no way we're not going to make it to the playoffs," Alou said.

The right-hander hit .281 last season with 21 homers and 96 RBIs. His best year was 1984, when he hit .339 with 22 homers and 78 RBIs.

In 1985, the Dominican Republic native missed 59 games with injuries, including a torn right bicep and shoulder injuries. The 30-year-old finished the season hitting .286 with 14 home runs and 58 RBIs. Alou played under his father, Expos manager Felipe Alou, for five seasons and finished third in the National League most valuable Player voting in 1984 behind Jeff Bagwell and Matt Williams.

"I think I was ready (to leave) maybe last year," Alou said. "Felipe knew there was no chance me coming back to Montreal. I knew there was no chance me going back to Montreal."

Although the six-year Expos veteran said he is sad to leave his father behind, Alou will join his uncle, Jesus Alou, who directs the Marlins' Dominican Republic academy in Santo Domingo.

How safe are flavored vinegars?

You see them in specialty shops for the holidays. You find recipes for making them in magazines. They come in pretty bottles seasoned with sprigs of herbs, cloves and garlic. Just how safe are those flavored vinegars and oils? The answer depends on several factors.

As a general rule, flavored vinegars are much safer than flavored oils. This is because all vinegars are high in acids and do not support the growth of Clostridium botulinum bacteria, the deadly bacteria that causes botulism. However, some vinegars may support the growth of E. coli bacteria, so some precautions are well advised.

First, if making your own flavored vinegars, it is important to use clean, sanitized jars for the flavoring process. To sanitize jars, immerse them in a pan of water and boil for 10 minutes.

Second, work with well-cleaned herbs and produce. Because herbs can be difficult to clean, the safest approach is to dip them in a solution of one teaspoon bleach per six cups of water, then rinse the herbs in clear running water.

CONSUMER FOCUS

Heating the vinegar to just below boiling is another wise precaution for ensuring sanitary conditions. At this point, store your bottles: flavored vinegars take three to four weeks to develop their full flavor potential. Of course, over this period they should be well capped and stored in a clean, cool place.

Once the flavor is fully developed, strain the vinegar through a damp cheesecloth or coffee filter one or more times until the vinegar is no longer cloudy. Discard the fruit, vegetable and/or herbs. Pour the strained vinegar into a clean sanitized jar, adding a sprig or two of fresh herbs or berries that have been sanitized as described above. Seal tightly and store in the refrigerator. For the best flavor, use within three or four months.

Infused oils and oil-based mixtures of garlic, herbs, or dried tomatoes can pose a definite health hazard if not properly prepared and refrigerated. For added safety, the Food and Drug Administration now requires that all commercial garlic-in-oil products contain specific levels of microbial inhibitors or acidifying agents, substances such as phosphoric or citric acid. Always check the label to be sure.

As for the home-prepared mixtures of garlic-in-oil, the FDA recommends that these be made for immediate use and not left out at room temperature. Any leftovers should be discarded or promptly refrigerated for use within three weeks. They also can be frozen.

The reason for concern? Unrefrigerated garlic-in-oil mixtures without antimicrobial agents have been shown to permit the growth of Clostridium botulinum bacteria - along with subsequent toxin production. This contamination will not necessarily affect the taste or smell of the products. Botulism is a potentially fatal food poisoning characterized by blurred or double vision, speech and breathing difficulty and progressive paralysis. Toxin production has been known to occur even when a small number of C. botulinum spores were present in the garlic. When the spore-containing garlic is bottled and covered with oil, the oxygen-free environment that is created promotes the germination of spores and the growth of microorganisms at temperatures as low as 40 degrees F.

Children should build happy times during holidays

Dear Mary:

I am one of six children, and we all live locally. We have always gotten together at my mother and step-father's house over the holidays. This year, I am wondering if it might not be better if my wife, daughter, and I just skip the family stuff and do something else.

The problem arose when one of my sisters asked me to go with her to confront my step-father about the way he and my mother spend their mother. I told her that I preferred not to get involved because it is not our business what they do.

Now my sister will not speak to me, and she is trying to start trouble between for me among my other brothers and sisters. I am afraid if we are all together, things might get out of control and ruin Christmas.

My wife does not have any family and particularly enjoys being with a big one during the holidays. She says it is good for our daughter to be with all of her relatives.

FAMILY COUNSELOR

MARY BALK

I just want to do the best thing, but I do not know what that is. What is your opinion?

Tom Brown

Dear Tom:

In this case, I vote with your wife. It is good for children to build happy memories with the extended family during the holidays.

Your sister cannot start something with you without your cooperation. If she tries to embarrass you in front of the family, your best defense is to simply ignore the bait. Your family is not blind or stupid; they will see what is going on. In all likelihood, they have

Friends don't let drugs destroy friends

DEAR ABBY: I have just returned from burying my firstborn cherished child, who died from a drug overdose. The "Just Say No" campaign has been a great failure in our country. Perhaps a better theme would be, "Tell someone if you suspect that a friend has a substance-abuse problem."

I know we have all been raised not to tattle, but if just one of the young people who were so devastated at my child's funeral had anonymously telephoned a member of the clergy, a school counselor, a neighbor or family member and said, "This is what I know or suspect my friend is doing; please help him (or her)," the outcome would have been different.

My clever, well-educated, beautiful child was also a master of deceit. For the past few years, the trust that we had in our child had been misplaced. There was a self-destructive urge that was stronger than anything that had ever existed in our world. The heartbroken friends that we saw today were all part of the great conspiracy of silence: "Don't tattle on your friends. They can get themselves straightened out." Well, they can't and they didn't - and now some of them are dead!

Had an anonymous message been relayed to us, maybe there wouldn't have been a funeral today, but a continuation of a beautiful, productive life. I know now that whenever I hear something that troubles me, I'll pass that information to someone who can check it out. The pain of losing this child will be with me forever. Perhaps if some good can come of this, one life will not have been wasted, and someone else will be spared immeasurable heartache.

God bless you, Abby.

ADVISE

ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR SOMEONE: Please accept my heartfelt condolences on the loss of your child. I'm printing your letter with the hope that it will encourage younger readers to speak up when they know a friend is in trouble.

been victims of her attempts at bullying you, just as you and your step-father are now. If things are too uncomfortable, you can always find a reason to cut your visit short. Be careful not to deprive your immediate family of their enjoyment of Christmas based on your sister's bad behavior, or for fear of what she may do.

River Oaks: Growing God's church

From Staff Reports

The River Oaks Presbyterian Church, a member of the Presbyterian Church in America, P.C.A., first began its worship on Sept. 15, 1991, at the Lake Mary Elementary School.
In the fall of 1992, River Oaks moved to leased facilities in the Driftwood Shopping Center on Lake Mary Boulevard and have been there ever since. Currently River Oaks leases approximately 4,500 square feet of space for a worship, learning and office center.

In the summer of 1995 the officers began looking for a suitable piece of property on which to eventually build a church. That search led them in April 1996 to enter into a contract for eight useable acres at 300 Longwood-Lake Mary Rd. (on the southeast corner at Washington).

Since April, the church has been going through the process of acquiring the approval, boundary survey, appraisal, boundary survey, environmental survey, soil samples and other engineering concerns, to meet the requirements of the city of Lake Mary and St. John's Water Management District. A final site plan has been submitted to the city and St. John's with an anticipated approval from each in early 1997. Once these approvals have been granted, River Oaks will close on the property.

The church has just completed a successful capital campaign, "Growing God's Church," by raising over $250,000 in one-time gifts and three-year pledges. These gifts will be used to retire the indebtedness of acquiring the property.

River Oaks hopes to begin building the first of three phases. A 10,000 square foot sanctuary, classroom and office complex sometime in late 1997 or early 1998. In Phase One, the sanctuary will seat 250 and will be expanded to 500 or more in Phase Two.

The founding pastor of River Oaks, John Montgomery, is thankful to the Lord for the warm welcome extended to the church from the Lake Mary area community. The sacrificial commitment of those who attend River Oaks has indicated ownership in their vision to "Glorify God by promoting spiritual growth... relevant to where we live, work and play in the Lake Mary area and the world beyond."

Singing Christmas tree entertains crowd

Members and youth from Westview Baptist Church recently entertained crowds at the Sanford Civic Center by offering the Singing Puppet Christmas Tree. The over one hour presentation taught valuable lessons from God's word while providing good family entertainment.

How do we survive Christmas

SANFORD — How do we survive as believers in a Christ who has been all but buried by the trappings of Christmas? We're hearing now that college students given a word-association test that includes the word "Christmas" will put down associated nouns, "holly, mistletoe, presents, turkey, holiday, Santa Claus," and a host of others, but no one will mention "the birth of Jesus Christ."

How ironic indeed that this man, born in a stable, a fugitive in Egypt, who has nowhere to lay his head, his only possession at death - a seamless robe, who had to be buried in a borrowed tomb, this man dirt poor and spirit rich, this very incarnation of unselfishness should be lost in the materialism and superficiality of a holiday that has forgotten its purpose.

I'm not one of those who advocates abandoning December 25 to the cash registers to celebrate the Savior's birth some other time. No, for you see it was for exactly what is happening to Christmas that Christ came in the first place, to rescue our lives from meaninglessness and give us a God to believe in and a faith worth hanging on to.

No, let's stay with the 25th, but let's transform it as least in our little corner of the world and be the real magi, the truly wise, let us keep Christmas and keep Christ in all we say and do.

It is God's world out there, with its inequities, its sin, its growing violence, its propensity for war, its money madness and selfishness. Yet, for all of that, God loves this world; He gave a son to save it in Jesus Christ, and asks you and me to live in it but not be of it, all the while trying to tell the world that "it is more blessed to give than to receive."

Francis of Assisi ended his famous prayer with just that thought:

Divine Master, grant that I may not so much seek to be consoled, as to console; to be understood, as to understand; to be loved, as to love; for it is in pardoning that we are pardoned, and it is in dying that we are

Ask the preacher Bible questions

Minister Tony Black

Question: "How can people who are doing wrong, feel good about it? Many people lie, cheat and steal, yet do not feel that they have done anything wrong."

Answer: When a person possesses a high moral standard, it is distressing to watch others live in degradation and sin. Negative reaction to self-destructive behavior is only natural.

Lot was vexed by the abominations he witnessed in Sodom. (II Peter 2:7-10) Once an individual discovers a better way to live, it is disturbing to watch others floundering in self-destructive behavior. It should be noted that the men of Sodom saw nothing wrong with their conduct. In fact, they relished their corrupt lifestyle.

There is a crisis of sorts brewing in society today. It is a conflict between what "feels good" and "truth." It may feel good to leave a nagging wife or a boozing husband but is it best? Is it responsible?

Absolutely not. Most folks are more interested in feeling good than doing good. In the past three decades, standards of authority have shifted from the God and His word to subjective human judgement. Absolutes have been replaced with relativism. Actions are measured by personal momentary feelings rather than future consequences. Principles have been replaced with pleasures.

Once a person abandons the divine standards of right and wrong, he must change his thinking to fit his actions. These new standards are based on his individual perspective and have nothing to do with truth or reality.

Even the infidel must feel that what he is doing is right; at least in his own eyes. Proverbs 21:2 warns: "Every way of a man is right in his own eyes. But the Lord weighs the heart."

Further we are told in Proverbs 16:25, "There is a way that seems right to a man, but its end is the way of death." Right thinking and right doing are dependent upon a knowledge and adherence to the Word of God.

Tony Black is the minister for the Sanford Church of Christ. He will answer any Bible related questions by writing to him at 900 N. French Ave., Sanford, FL 32772.

Is confusion normal in the elderly?

DEAR DR. GOTT: I am writing you concerning my 88-year-old mother. She is in relatively good health and has never had any major health problems. Minor problems include operations, migraines headaches and nervous, yet in the last three years, she's had problems with her speech. She cannot think of the word she wants to say and her words come out garbled. She seems a little confused about some things, but she knows who people are and where she is. My father thinks the problem could be related to a bad fall she had when she broke her nose. Her doctor says she has a touch of Alzheimer's. I believe she may have had a mini-stroke. I think we should take her to a neurologist.

DEAR READER: I couldn't agree more. Your mother's condition is likely caused by showers of tiny blood clots that have progressively affected her cognitive functions, leading to forgetfulness, garbled speech, and confusion.

Of course, Alzheimer's disease, a brain tumor or other neurological affliction could cause her symptoms; therefore, I agree that she should have a neurological examination, which would also probably include a CT scan and blood tests. (The scan would also indicate if she suffered a blood clot on the brain as a consequence of her fall.)

Your mother may well have a treatable disorder that could be slowed or controlled. For example, deficiencies of vitamin B-12, folic acid and thyroid hormone could easily be corrected with vitamins or hormone supplements. At the very least, your mother might profit from taking an aspirin a day to reduce blood clotting. The neurologist can advise you.

In any case, it isn't fair to assume that your mother has an untreatable affliction, such as Alzheimer's disease, until other, correctable causes for her symptoms have been investigated.

Be relentless in your recommendations to have your mother examined by a neurologist.

DEAR DR. GOTT: Please comment on the use of ibuprofen to prevent Alzheimer's disease.

DEAR READER: The cause of this affliction, which leads to progressive decline of brain function (dementia), is unknown. Many strategies have been proposed to prevent or halt Alzheimer's disease, but — to date — there is no "magic" solution.

Last winter, at the meeting of the American Academy of Neurology, doctors from Johns Hopkins University reported that anti-inflammatory drugs, such as ibuprofen (Advil, Nuprin and others) used daily, seemed to reduce the risk of Alzheimer's in up to 60 percent of patients studied.

This finding was greeted with cautious optimism by the researchers, because still more studies are needed before the relation can be proved. So, so this isn't the problem. Do the symptoms of hypothyroidism persist even though I am taking appropriate amounts of Synthroid?

MEDICINE

PETER GOTT, M.D.

DEAR READER: An underactive thyroid gland can cause fatigue, loss of energy, slow thinking and heart disease — but not a pot belly. Moreover, the use of supplemental thyroid hormone, such as you are taking, should effectively neutralize any symptoms of hypothyroidism.

Because your girth increased while you were on drug therapy, I am certain that your waist problem is unrelated to the thyroid gland.

You may have merely put on weight, despite your claim that you don't overeat. Or your liver may have enlarged. Do you consume alcohol regularly? This could cause liver swelling.

I advise you to bring your abdominal problem to your doctor's attention.

The second critical trick

By Phillip Alder

This is the second — and last! — Friday the 13th of the year. So, I looked for a quotation including the word "second." The Microsoft Bookshelf CD-ROM gave me 380. Coincidentally, this was the second one I looked at. It comes from W.C. Fields, who said, "The first thing any comedian does on getting an unscheduled laugh is to verify the state of his buttons; the second is to look around to see if a cat has walked out on the stage."

I laughed, but it bears no relevance to this deal. How should the play go in three no-trump after West leads his fourth-highest club, the three? At the time, East won with the club ace and, knowing that South had started with five clubs, switched to a spade. Unfortunately, though, he selected the four. Declarer guessed correctly, playing low from hand. When West had to use the king to drive out dummy's ace, South's jack became a second stopper. Declarer played on diamonds and ended with 10 tricks, losing one spade, one diamond and one club.

East was on the right road in shifting to spades at trick two. But because he had dummy's nine surrounded by his 10 and eight, East should have switched to the spade 10. Note the difference this makes. South cannot do better than duck this trick and win the second, hoping West doesn't unblock his spade king. But a surrounding play promises a higher non-touching honor, so West knows that East has the spade queen. This makes sacrificing the king clear.

Good luck today!

Your Birthday

Saturday, Dec. 14, 1992

In the year ahead, it will be to your advantage to learn any new knowledge or technique applicable to your field. Impressive results will be possible.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Plan to get out and move around today, because you won't be happy unless you have a busy schedule. Try to associate with active people. Know where to look for romance and you'll find it. The Astro-Graph Matchmaker instantly reveals which signs are romantically perfect for you. Mail $2.75 to Matchmaker, c/o this newspaper, P.O. Box 1758, Murray Hill Station, New York, NY 10158.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Rather than forcing things to happen today, let events unfold at their own pace. You will fare much better if you let conditions dictate the timetable.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Today, it will be important for you to attend social functions, because many good things could happen. Try to be kind to everyone.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) In your struggle to reach two important objectives, you might surprise others with your tenacity today.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) You will be exceptionally perceptive today, and you will acquire knowledge through personal experience. Use this information wisely.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Today, you will have a special ability to jump on a successful bandwagon. Fortunately, others will welcome your participation and input.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Companions will not doubt your position on important issues today. In fact, your opinions will influence their judgment.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Beginning today, you may become aware of changes which can benefit your career. Watch for telltale signals.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) If you need a favor today, approach pals who have real clout. These influential intermediaries will have the ability to open doors for you.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) It might be easier for you to close deals today than it will be tomorrow. Do not neglect important matters. You must strike while you have the advantage.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22) In developments that call for political know-how today, you can hold your own if you construct a stronger platform than your opponent.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) A current project could spell financial gain for you at this time, and it should be given top priority today. Make this opportunity count.
