Police Like Judge's Sentencing Input Policy

By Michael Beha
Herald Staff Writer

Seminole Circuit Judge Dominick Salfi's desire to get pertinent comments at sentencing hearings from victims and investigators is supported by local law enforcement officials.

The officials said most officers like the opportunity to have some impact on the sentence and to be aware of the disposition of cases on which they worked.

And even though Salfi will no longer require that police and victims be notified prior to sentencing, officials say they hope Salfi will continue to listen to them before meting out justice to convicted criminals.

Salfi said this past week that although he will no longer require the State Attorney's office to notify police and crime victims of upcoming sentencing, the prosecutor's office will voluntarily cooperate in continuing the procedure.

However, that cooperation is not certain. Seminole-Brevard Chief Assistant State Attorney Ralph Eriksson said no decision has been made on what the office's position will be.

State Attorney Douglas Cheshire has been in Tallahassee for budget hearings this week and so has been unavailable to review the situation, Eriksson said.

Cheshire had opposed the original action because he said Salfi didn't have the power to order his office to attend sentencing hearings or propose alternative sentences.

Eriksson called Salfi's move a conciliatory gesture intended to heal the rift with Cheshire.

But Seminole County Sheriff John Polk applauded Salfi's program and said he has heard many positive comments from officers who have either attended hearings or filed a written report with the judge.

"I think it's good to have input," Polk said. "But it shouldn't be mandatory for them to attend."

Under "normal" court procedures, Polk said a police officer may make an arrest and soon after see the arrested person back on the street without knowing that the case was dismissed or the person was placed on probation.

"That's discouraging to the officers," Polk said.

He added that officers can tell the judge about any extenuating circumstances that might affect the sentence. "They can't have any complaints if they're at the sentencing."

Another official who supports Salfi's efforts is Herb Shea, assistant Sanford police chief.

Shea echoed the comments of other officers, saying the program is good for police morale and to let victims and officers know the disposition of cases, but pointed out that the program also saves the taxpayers money.

Shea said Salfi has approved sentences in which the convicted person is ordered to work for the police department to repay the money spent on investigating their case.

Salfi's orders, which follow recommendations from the President's Task Force on victims of crime, were challenged unsuccessfully in court by Cheshire.

Now that Salfi's order has been dropped, it remains to be seen whether Cheshire will accede to the wishes of Salfi and the police officers.

Conflict Of Interest Bill OK'd By House

The voting by city and county public officials on issues benefiting them personally may be a thing of the past if a proposed bill passes the state Senate this coming week.

The bill, already approved by the House, would forbid public officials from voting on measures directly affecting them "personally, privately or professionally" and require them to publicly state before a vote is taken their conflict of interest.

The bill also requires that an official making such a declaration file a conflict of interest memo with the keeper of public records with either the county or city within 15 days of the vote involved.

Currently, an official has the choice, according to state law, of voting or abstaining on issues in which they have a conflict of interest. And there is no requirement that the public be made aware of the conflict. The official need only file a memo citing the exact conflict in the public records.

Florida's conflict of interest law needs change.
See editorial page 4A

Last week, state Reps. Bobby Brantley, R-Longwood, and Carl Selph, R-Casselberry, joined with Rep. Ron Silver, D-N. Miami Beach, to amend a bill on the floor of the state House of Representatives to include the conflict of interest reform.

The bill to which it was amended was sponsored by Rep. Tom C. Brown, D-Port Orange. The amended legislation passed the House unanimously on a 96-0 vote.

But it has run into problems in the Senate. The House bill was assigned to two Senate Committees and work in all Senate committees ceased last Tuesday.

Selph appealed to state Sen. Richard Langley, R-Clermont, another member of the Seminole County Legislative delegation. Thursday to amend some other appropriate Senate bill by attaching the House approved conflict of interest legislation.

Selph said Friday Langley has agreed to push the legislation through the Senate before next week's scheduled adjournment. The bill then must go back to the House for its approval.

"The House has approved it once and there should be no problem getting approval again," Selph said, adding that if time runs out before the proposal is enacted into law, "we'll try again next year."

"I've always felt the public has a right to know at the time a public official votes if he has a conflict, rather than 15 days later in a memo filed in a drawer somewhere," Selph said.

"County boards or city commissions are generally small boards. If a person with a conflict can still vote when only three people are needed for a quorum, that one vote with the conflict could swing the whole decision," Selph said.

"I would think some persons in conflict situations would welcome this amendment which removes them from the conflict situation. They simply could not vote on the issue," Selph said.

Remembering War Dead

Veterans organizations in Sanford, Casselberry, Longwood, and Oviedo will remember their fallen comrades Monday in Memorial Day observances. Seminole County Commission Chairman Sandra Glenn is scheduled to speak at Sanford ceremonies slated to begin at 11 a.m. in Memorial Park on Lake Monroe. Congressional Medal of Honor winner M/Sgt. (Ret.) James Hendrix will be guest of honor at ceremonies to begin at 11 a.m. in All Faiths Memorial Park, Lake Drive, Casselberry. Longwood will begin its Memorial Day service at 10 a.m. in Longwood Memorial Gardens. Flags will be placed on the graves of veterans in the Oviedo Cemetery beginning at 11 a.m. All of these ceremonies are open to the public.

Sewage Bills Could Skyrocket If Sanford Can't Pump Effluent Into Lake Monroe

By Donna Estes
Herald Staff Writer

Even though the odds of winning may be "slim to none," the Sanford City Commission has unanimously agreed to try one more time to get approval from the state to continue dumping effluent into Lake Monroe.

Mayor Lee P. Moore recommended the action Friday, saying a final effort must be made, no matter how low the odds are of winning, to justify to Sanford's taxpayers a course that could increase monthly sewer bills threefold.

City Manager W.E. "Pete" Knowles said the time has come for the commission to make a decision on what course the city will take in continuing to operate its sewer system.

Noting that the city's operating permit from the state Department of Environmental Regulation for the Poplar Avenue sewer treatment plant is set to expire next year, he reminded commissioners that the DER has made it clear a new operating permit will not be issued unless Sanford agrees to stop dumping its treated sewage effluent into Lake Monroe in favor of land-spreading. And land spreading costs, he said, could reach as high as $20 million.

A bond issue of this proportion would require a pay back at the rate of $2.2 million annually, plus operating costs, he said, which would in turn increase sewer service rates threefold.

The city's only other alternative would be to fight the DER in court or to seek a change in state regulations forbidding the dumping of effluent into a body of water.

The court option could mean a five-year battle, Knowles said. City Attorney Bill Colbert said although he wouldn't mind a court battle, he doesn't feel confident of winning.

As far as fighting for a change in regulations, Knowles said a DER official made it clear to him in Tallahassee last week that the state's Game and Fresh Water Fish Commission would object to changing the regulations as would environmentalists.

Former City Engineer Mack LaZebny, a consulting engineer for Sanford on its sewer system, said that 10 years ago the city got the DER to change its mind about issuing an operating permit to allow dumping into Lake Monroe. But, he added, it is unlikely it will happen again.

"It would be an exercise in futility to keep talking to them. Let's get on with the program," LaZebny said.

Knowles also pointed out that the city might win a court battle with DER only to lose the war with the agency which inspects the city sewer plant every six months and reviews operating permits every five years.

"If they saw a flea going across the floor at the plant, they could close it down," he said.

If the city opts for the land-spreading process, Knowles said, DER would give the city until 1988 to accomplish that plan.

B.C. "Cal" Conklin of Conklin, Porter and Holmes, consulting engineers, said the city could use the results of a study it commissioned and paid for some months ago to appeal DER's stand.

The study, conducted by Dr. Donald O'Connor, considered an expert in the field, said that the quality of the water in Lake Monroe and the St. Johns River is so degraded that effluent from Sanford's sewer plant has little effect on the two bodies of water.

Beset By Adversity, The Eggerichs Family Vows To Come Back

By Jane Casselberry
Herald Staff Writer

Fred and Gloria Eggerichs of 237 Wildmere Ave., Longwood, are not the type to give up. Having twice seen their dreams literally go up in smoke in less than 10 years, they have had to begin over again and are struggling to get back on their feet.

The Eggerichs and their three sons had lost everything they owned but the clothes on their backs in 1974 when their mobile home in Minnesota was destroyed by a gas explosion and fire. Then, last Dec. 16, after three years of hard work and sacrifice to get a dairy farm established, the barn burned and they lost their Holstein cows and calves and all of their equipment.

The family came to Longwood in March and moved in with Fred's parents. Fred started a Hydro-matic pressure washing business removing dirt and mildew from mobile homes, buildings and driveways. He did so at the suggestion of his father, who was unable to get anyone to come out and wash his house. Gloria found a job working nights at a waffle house near Sanford. Their son, Pat, 16, is a student at Lyman High School and Rommel, 14, attends Milwee. Their other son, Travis, 19, is in the army stationed at Fort Campbell, Ky.

"I'm confident we'll get off the ground if hard work and stubbornness count; we'll make it go."

Born in St. Paul, Minn., Fred moved to Fort Lauderdale in 1953 at 15 and remained there until 1971. He decided to move his family to Bemidji, Minn. so his boys could grow up in a wholesome rural environment.

This was the beginning of their bad fortune. Mrs. Eggerich became ill on the trip with hepatitis. A doctor misdiagnosed her problem as gallstones and operated before discovering his mistake. Eggerich said and they were left with large medical bills which took several years to pay off.

A trucker, Eggerich was on the road in Michigan when his mobile home went up in flames. There was no one at home at the time. "We had $1,000 insurance on our personal possessions and $1,500 on the trailer," he said, "but the stereo equipment alone was worth $800 and we had put $2,000 down on the mobile home and had paid on it for four years. We were back to ground zero so we bought another mobile home and started over."

Eggerich has driven more than two million miles in cross-country trucking. "We are a close family and I wanted to go into farming so I wouldn't have to be on the road all the time, but could be home with them," he said.

One chilling event that no doubt intensified this desire took place on the plains of North Dakota one cold dark night in a blizzard when the wind chill factor was 85 degrees below. When the diesel fuel gelled and his hands were frost bit when he spilled fuel on them. Somehow he managed to get back in the cab of his truck and when he spotted headlights coming in the distance he flicked the light switch with his wrist and was taken to the hospital by the driver.

Feud With White House Costs Official His Job

United Press International

Thomas Enders, the State Department's top-ranking official for Latin American affairs, was fired Friday in a dispute with the White House over the role of U.S. troops in Central America.

The change was announced by Secretary of State George Shultz as he flew with President Reagan to Williamsburg, Va. aboard Air Force One for the annual economic summit of Western industrialized nations.

Enders, 51, will be replaced in his post as assistant secretary of state for Inter-American affairs by Langhorne Motley, a political appointee from Alaska who is now serving as U.S. ambassador to Brazil.

U.S. officials said Enders was relieved of his job as head of the Latin American bureau of the State Department after a continuing debate between the State Department, represented by Enders, and the White House, represented by national security adviser William Clark and U.N. Ambassador Jeane Kirkpatrick.

Enders, the officials said, was pressing for a lower profile for American involvement, while the White House was pushing for a stronger line to meet the challenge posed to U.S. policy by a rising wave of insurgency in Latin America.

Enders also was reported by the officials, who asked not to be identified, to have objected to a stronger U.S. involvement in the covert operation against the Sandinista government in Nicaragua.

Lavelle In Contempt

WASHINGTON — A federal grand jury indicted fired Environmental Protection Agency official Rita Lavelle on a single contempt of Congress charge on Friday because she refused to testify about possible wrongdoing in the agency.

The indictment was handed down only nine days after the House cited Lavelle for contempt on a vote of 413 to 0.

Contempt of Congress is a misdemeanor which carries a maximum penalty of one year in prison and a $1,000 fine.

Lavelle, fired by President Reagan Feb. 7, was the EPA's assistant administrator in charge of the $1.6 billion Superfund toxic waste cleanup program.

On Feb. 10, the House Energy and Commerce investigations subcommittee unanimously voted to subpoena Lavelle for a March 21 appearance. The subpoena was served on her Feb. 23.

On March 21, the indictment said, "Rita M. Lavelle, having been summoned as a witness by the authority of the oversight and investigation subcommittee of the committee on Energy and Commerce, willfully made default by refusing to appear...as required."

Lavelle's attorney, James J. Bierbower, said Lavelle is "willing to go in and testify and she's been willing. She testified 12 times in the last 12 months," including twice during the congressional investigations at the EPA.

Fireworks Blast Kills 11

BENTON, Tenn. — Searchers today continued looking for bodies of persons killed Friday when an unlicensed fireworks factory exploded, killing at least 11 people in a mushroom cloud of destruction that rained bodies and debris on trees and buildings for hundreds of yards.

Neighbors near the site of the explosion, Webb's Bait Farm, said there was an initial series of thunderous explosions that lasted eight or nine minutes, followed by more than an hour of smaller explosions.

A white mushroom cloud visible for two miles had formed over the farm, 40 miles east of Chattanooga, when medical and law enforcement personnel arrived at the scene of awesome devastation.

Ex-Con's 'Charity' Gave Nothing To The Poor

FORT LAUDERDALE (UPI) — State investigators are looking into a charity founded by an ex-convict who distributed thousands of collection cans that produced as much as $34,000 in coins.

The United St. Jude Foundation of America Inc. is accused in an administrative complaint of filing false information on its license application, illegally employing professional fundraisers and exploiting its state registration while soliciting donations.

The foundation was founded last summer by Joseph Dellaera. He could not be reached for comment, but his lawyer said he has not seen the complaint nor has he talked with Dellaera for three months.

The state's complaint filed last week said Dellaera, 54, did not use his real name on his application to qualify United St. Jude as a charitable organization.

Dellaera instead used the name of Joseph Della on his state forms. It is a name he claims to have been using informally for years, and which he used when obtaining tax exempt status for the charity from the Internal Revenue Service.

Dellaera said in an interview with the Fort Lauderdale News and Sun-Sentinel last March that use of the name on corporate papers and the state license would make it difficult for inspectors from the Department of State to trace his past. He said he spent six years in prison in New York and Canada for attempted robbery and extortion.

Florida law prohibits convicted felons from working as professional fundraisers. But Dellaera's status as president of a charity permits him to work as a full-time salaried employee of United St. Jude.

Dellaera estimated 5,700 to 6,500 United St. Jude coin cans had been distributed to stores and restaurants in Broward and Dade counties, Bergen County, N.J., and other states.

The United St. Jude Foundation is registered in Florida, New Jersey, Georgia and Texas.

Dellaera said in the interview he had not donated any of the $34,000 he estimated he collected to needy people. Most of the organization's money, he said, was used to pay his salary and meet start-up expenses.

The foundation said it was formed to fund several charitable projects, including construction of a home for needy children, a rehabilitation center for alcoholics and a home for the elderly.

The state's administrative complaint also charged United St. Jude with illegally employing two professional fundraisers to distribute and collect its coin cans.

United St. Jude has 21 days to answer the charges. Otherwise, its fundraising privileges will be revoked automatically, state officials said.

Now You Can Take That 'Lemon' Back

TALLAHASSEE (UPI) — The Senate has passed a bill protecting consumers who buy new cars that turn out to be lemons and sent it to Gov. Bob Graham for his signature.

The bill (CS-HB 885), which passed the Senate Thursday by a unanimous 40-0 vote, would allow Florida consumers who purchase hopelessly defective cars to get their money back or have the car replaced.

The House approved the measure 110-0 late last month.

"It's a good consumer bill," Sen. Jack Gordon, D-Miami Beach, said.

Gordon had sponsored his own "lemon" bill, but the Senate ultimately adopted an identical House measure sponsored by Rep. Tom Drage, R-Winter Park.

Under the terms of the bill, a car would qualify as a lemon if the manufacturer was unable to repair the same defect after three or more attempts or if the vehicle was out of service for 15 working days, excluding routine maintenance, during the course of a year.

The measure would apply only within the time period covered by the car's warranty or one year from the date of delivery, whichever came first.

The bill also provides that a consumer must first seek to settle the dispute through the manufacturer's own grievance procedure. If the company has one. The company's dispute settlement panel would have to have at least one member approved by the state.

The measure was made palatable to automobile dealers because of a companion measure that makes the manufacturer, not the dealer, liable for monetary losses resulting from the bill.

Longwood Man, 18, Indicted In Fatal Shooting

An 18-year-old Longwood man has been indicted on a manslaughter charge in the death of another Longwood man.

Richard Franta, 34, was shot in the stomach May 7 with a 16-gauge shotgun while at the home of Jerry Roberts of 466½ Orange Ave.

Roberts was originally charged with murder in the shooting.

An Oviedo man has pleaded not guilty in Seminole County Circuit Court to charges of sexual battery of a minor.

Walter Art McGee, 47, was indicted by a Seminole County grand jury on six counts of sexual battery. Two of those offenses carry the death penalty.

The assaults are said to have taken place between September, 1982 and March of this year.

The grand jury returned a no true bill (refused to indict) against a Fern park man who was charged with sexual battery of a three-year-old girl.

Raymond Lee Roberson, 18, of 2524 Dakota Trail, was arrested on the basis of the girl's statement to police.

Following the grand jury's action, the charge will be dropped, prosecutors said.

THEFTS REPORTED

A tractor valued at $2,000 was reported stolen from the residence of Basdeo Ramassar, 201 McKay Blvd., Sanford, sometime between 9 p.m. May 22 and 4 a.m. Tuesday.

An Altamonte Springs man who parked his 1974 Cadillac at the Circus Circus nightclub parking lot off U.S. Highway 17-92 in Fern Park Wednesday lost a briefcase with important papers and a calculator.

John Charles Hudson, 19, of 615 Fenton Place, told police his maroon briefcase, valued at $50, was taken from the car seat sometime between 1:30 and 2 a.m. The briefcase contained a checkbook, copies of an auto dealers' license, a calculator valued at $30, and an endorsed bank check from National Independent Auto Insurers of Winslow, Illinois.

Lawsuit Against FBI In KKK Slaying Dismissed

ANN ARBOR, Mich. (UPI) — A federal judge Friday threw out a $2 million damage suit against the government, ruling the FBI was not responsible for the Ku Klux Klan ambush slaying of civil rights worker Viola Liuzzo along an Alabama highway 18 years ago.

The ruling by U.S. District Judge Charles Joiner was a stinging defeat for Mrs. Liuzzo's five children, who contended the FBI was liable because its informer either shot their mother or failed to prevent the shooting.

The informer, Gary Thomas Rowe, was granted immunity for prosecution in exchange for his testimony against the three Klansmen accused of killing Mrs. Liuzzo on March 25, 1965.

"The evidence fails to show that Rowe was in concert with those who did the killing and there is nothing to indicate that the FBI as the directing agent had anything in mind but the acquisition of valuable information about a subversive organization," said Joiner, who presided over the $2 million suit without a jury.

Family members said they were "angry," and Dean Robb, chief counsel for the Liuzzos, said he was "shocked by this opinion. We think it's an incredible lack of facing the truth in this case."

He vowed to "continue to fight with dignity and determination," possibly by appealing the case to the U.S. Sixth Circuit Court of Appeals in Cincinnati.

The FBI hired Rowe to spy on the Ku Klux Klan during the civil rights struggle in the South of the 1960s.

Mrs. Liuzzo, who was white, was shot while driving a black civil rights worker back to Selma, Ala., after the historic Selma-to-Montgomery voting rights march. The shots were fired from a car carrying Rowe and three Klansmen.

Rowe, who now lives under an assumed name in Savannah, Ga., denied he shot Mrs. Liuzzo. Two of the three surviving Klansmen in the car both identified Rowe as the triggerman.

In his 16-page opinion, Joiner said "a fair reading of the evidence suggests his (Rowe's) efforts were to divert and defuse and to later report and testify" to the FBI on Klan activities.

Joiner said there was "no evidence to suggest the FBI was in any type of joint venture with Rowe or conspiracy against Mrs. Liuzzo ... The court believes that Rowe's presence in the car was the principle reason why the crime was solved so quickly."

Mrs. Liuzzo's 27-year-old son, Tony, lashed out bitterly against the decision.

"I am disappointed and angry," he said. "This is not just a defeat for our family but for the American people ... My mother's name has been rectified. She was a heroine, a martyr. She gave her life for her country."

DAY CARE CENTER HIT

The Outreach Day Care Center in Altamonte Springs has been broken into three times within the past two days.

Police report burglars entered the center about 8 p.m. Thursday through a front window already broken as a result of a previous break-in.

Whoever broke in took nothing beyond consuming some food, but they went through records in the office, police said.

Owner Bessie Holmes of Orlando said Thursday's break-in was the third in two days.

CREDIT CARDS MISSING

A black tote bag containing Visa and Master Charge credit cards and a driver's license belonging to a Sanford woman were taken from an unlocked car parked at the First Federal Savings and Loan, 312 W. First Street, Sanford, between 3:30 and 4:03 p.m. Monday, police report.

HOME BURGLARIZED

Thieves netted a .22-caliber handgun and $40 worth of jewelry in a burglary at the residence of Lorraine Winemiller, 109 Cambridge Drive, Longwood, between 8:50 a.m. and 4:28 p.m. Tuesday.

The missing gun is a 929 sharpshooter with six-inch barrel, blue steel with leather holster. The jewelry is an 18-inch necklace with cream colored cultured pearls valued at $400.

Police said the thieves entered the house by removing a screen and crawling through an open kitchen window.

HANDGUN TAKEN

A semi-automatic handgun was taken from under the front seat of a pick-up truck owned by Glenn A. Statter, 24, Rt. 3, Box 2837, Oviedo, between May 19 and Tuesday at 6:14 p.m., police report. The gun, valued at $50, was taken while the car was parked at 200 Lake Hays Road, Oviedo.

HOME RANSACKED

The home of Bill Dokken, 9 Tribly Branch Road, Longwood, was ransacked between 5:30 p.m. May 19 and 5:13 p.m. Tuesday, police report.

Burglars apparently gained entry through a window on the east side of the house. It is unknown if anything was taken. A pair of shears found on the floor inside the house may have been used to break the window, police said.

DUI DISPOSITION

Denis A. Gutschlag, who pleaded guilty to driving under the influence, was sentenced to 50 hours of community service and required to pay a $250 fine plus 5 percent, $10 to the Crimes Compensation Trust Fund. He was also ordered to attend counter attack school, and his driver's license was suspended for six months.

DUI ARRESTS

The following people were arrested in Seminole County and charged with driving under the influence (DUI):

—Raymond Arthur Roberts, 59, of 3807 S. Sanford Avenue, was arrested at 11:30 a.m. Thursday in the parking lot of the ABC Lounge on U.S. Highway 17-92 in Sanford. Police said Roberts was observed operating a motor vehicle in a careless manner. He was also charged with driving with a revoked driver's license.

—Gary Steffan Ruebeck, 20, of Ormond Beach, was arrested Wednesday at 11:58 on Interstate 4 at the Lake Mary exit.

—Charles James Givens, 20, of 11 Panama Road, Winter Springs, was arrested after police discovered him passed out at the wheel of his car which was pulled off the side of U.S. Highway 17-92 near Murphy Road.

Soviet Parents Must Return To U.S. For Son

SPRINGFIELD, Ill. (UPI) — The Illinois Supreme Court ruled Friday that the parents of 15-year-old Walter Polovchak, who ran away rather than return with them to the Soviet Union, must return to the United States if they want custody of him.

The court said attorneys for the boy failed to establish that he was a "runaway" and beyond control of his parents. The boy's lawyers claimed he should be placed in the custody of juvenile authorities.

The court, noting that federal orders prevented his forced departure from the United States, said Walter should remain in the custody of the Cook County Circuit Court until one or both parents return from the Ukraine to take custody.

If Michael or Anna Polovchak do not return to the United States to claim their son, the high court ordered Cook County authorities to proceed in a manner best suited to Walter's needs.

Attorneys for the parents had argued that the basic issue in the case was the "supreme right" of parents to have custody of their children. They asked the Illinois courts to stay out of the matter.

Justice Robert Underwood wrote that the justices believed that the boy should have been turned over to his parents when the case first came before Cook County juvenile authorities.

Even though the court technically ruled against the boy, Henry Mark Holzer, one of Walter's attorneys, said he considered the decision a victory.

"I couldn't be more delighted. We considered it a complete victory," he said. "(Soviet Premier Yuri) Andropov will end up playing for the New York Mets before Walter will end up back in the Soviet Union."

When his case came before justices for oral arguments last March, Walter said he did not miss his parents, adding, "I was never very close to them."

Walter has been in the courts and the news since 1960, when he ran away after his parents decided to leave Chicago and return to their native Ukraine. He reportedly told social workers he would kill himself before being forced to return to the Soviet Union.

Cook County Juvenile Court Judge Joseph C. Mooney made Walter a ward of the state until the custody battle was decided. The 1st Illinois District Court of Appeals overturned Mooney's ruling, saying he overstepped his authority, and sent the case to the state's highest court.

FLORIDA

IN BRIEF

Regents Want Tax Money Spent On Universities

TALLAHASSEE — The state Board of Regents has called on the Legislature to spend up to $75 million of the House's proposed $180 million corporate profits tax increase on Florida's universities instead of kindergarten through 12th grade.

The House's education bill calls for increasing the corporate profits tax from 5 percent to 7 percent to raise $180 million. But the proposal calls for spending the money on kindergarten through 12th grade. The Senate bill does not contemplate any new taxes.

Board Chairman Murray Dubbin Friday said the money would move Florida universities into the top 25 percent of schools nationwide two years ahead of schedule.

Meanwhile, the board adopted a 37-page plan calling on Florida's universities to take steps to boost black and minority enrollment. And it approved a plan to enhance minority enrollment and programs at predominantly black Florida A&M University.

Land-Buying Bill OK'd

TALLAHASSEE — Major reforms intended to bolster the state's bargaining posture in buying recreational and coastal land has passed the House.

Members voted 113 to 4 Friday for the bill (HB 1209), which grew out of controversy earlier this year over the state's Save Our Coasts program.

Key provisions in the bill would:

- Keep state appraisals secret until an option-to-buy contract was adopted or until two weeks before the Cabinet considered a purchase. Appraisals are now public and landowners can use them to set a price at the maximum the state can pay.

- Allow land-buying negotiations to be confidential — they now are open — but require that offers and counteroffers be made in writing. Those would become public when a deal was reached.

- Require that priority lists rank enough properties to use twice as much money as is available. That is expected to encourage landowners to deal quickly with the state before the money runs out.

Oil Pact Reached

TALLAHASSEE — Florida and the federal government have reached an agreement on leasing off-shore oil and gas exploration rights for 11 million acres of the Atlantic from Jacksonville to Cape Canaveral.

The leases are to be offered in July at a minimum rate of $150 an acre. The area involved extends from 12 to 215 miles offshore.

The pact exempts from exploration almost one million acres near shore at Cape Canaveral; includes special protections for live coral reefs and other rare ecosystems; provides for a two-year study of risks that would be posed by oil spills; and includes a study of the socio-economic effects the drilling will have in the Cape Canaveral area.

Senate Passes Medical Malpractice Package

TALLAHASSEE (UPI) — The Senate passed its major medical malpractice legislation Friday, giving the state's medical profession many of the changes it had sought in Florida's legal system.

The bill (CS-SB 1017) would require that a malpractice defendant be financially liable only to his degree of culpability in an accident, place a higher burden of proof on plaintiffs before they could seek punitive damages and provide for structured payouts of future damages.

The bill passed the Senate by a wide 31-7 margin after proponents beat back by a narrow 19-16 margin an amendment by Rep. Dick Langley, R-Clermont, that would have stricken from the bill a provision limiting general damages to no more than 200 percent of economic losses.

The medical malpractice issue has pitted the Florida Medical Association and other health care providers against the Academy of Florida Trial Lawyers in one of the most bitterly contested battles of the legislative season.

Langley argued, however, that the legal changes encompassed in the main Senate bill made it much larger than a doctor-lawyer issue. He said the changes would affect not only malpractice cases but all other damage cases as well.

"We're going to do open heart surgery on the tort system to repair a broken arm," he said. "To come in and wipe out the court system to deal with a small problem is just not the right thing to do, especially on the spur of the moment."

Sen. Dempsey Barron, D-Panama City, the main sponsor of the bill, said the Langley amendment would gut the bill and that to support it would be to "tell the people you are not going to address the malpractice problem."

Barron also engineered the passage of a series of bills that contained in separate form the major elements of the main bill. He said he doubted the legislation would pass the more pro-lawyer oriented House but that having separate bills would give the House more options.

In its principle elements the Senate bill would:

- Eliminate the doctrine of joint and several liability under which a defendant might be liable for the entire award even if he were only partially to blame for the accident.

Nuke Plant Protesters Sentenced

ST. PETERSBURG (UPI) — Circuit Judge Philip Federico has sentenced three persons to a year in prison each for their part in an anti-nuclear demonstration outside a General Electric Co. plant last year.

Daniel Moore, 26, John X. Linnehan, 54, and his wife Martina W. Linnehan, 44, were convicted a week ago of five misdemeanor charges in the protest in which they strung a steel cable across the employee gate damaging two vehicles and part of a fence.

Federico said the three did not deserve probation because they were not sorry for their actions and said he sent them to jail as "a message to themselves and others."

"A warning or a slap on the wrist in this case would only encourage others to take up your philosophy and commit violations of the law in order to achieve your ends," the judge said. "This cannot be tolerated and must be condemned in clear and convincing terms."

Each of the three delivered lengthy speeches justifying the Oct. 14 protest.

The three are members of a St. Petersburg Christian peace group called Immanuel House, and as they faced the judge in court, about 30 supporters marched outside signing "Give Peace A Chance."

Conflict Of Interest Law Needs Change

There is something drastically wrong with a law which not only simply requires a public official to declare a conflict of interest when he stands to benefit personally from a matter to be voted on by the very board on which he sits, but additionally gives him the option of voting or abstaining.

Such has been the case in Florida and we've seen how it works time and time again in Seminole County government as well as in the government of the county's seven cities.

A recent example was last Tuesday when Seminole County Commissioner Robert G. "Bud" Feather voted to approve a proposed amendment to the county's density laws so he (Feather) could develop or market the proposed development of a 43.8 acre parcel along the Wekiva River. Plans were to build 222 apartments on the site.

And, although Commissioner Feather's request was defeated 3-2 — Commissioners Sandra Glenn, William Kirchhoff and Barbara Christensen turned thumbs down to the proposal, while Commissioner Robert Sturm sided with Feather with a yes vote — Feather should not have voted on the matter at all, in our view. The way the conflict of interest law now reads in Florida, the vote by a public official who declares a conflict of interest is optional and must be followed by the filing of a conflict of interest notice within 15 days after that vote.

Commissioner Feather has filed such a document in this case, as he has done numerous times in the past...and as have his colleagues from time to time.

This is a ludicrous situation and one we feel most strongly should be remedied. The remedy was and may still be in the works in Tallahassee. And to Seminole County's credit, a couple of local legislators played a major role in bringing it about. State Representatives Carl Selph and Bobby Brantley, both Republicans, joined with a Miami legislator, a Democrat, in amending a conflict of interest bill on the House floor, sponsored by Volusia County legislator Tom C. Brown, D-Port Orange. The House bill was approved unanimously — 96-0 — and would have corrected this inequity...if it didn't die in committee in the Senate. First, the proposed law would require a public official to declare a conflict of interest publicly and before the matter comes up for a vote — there's no such requirement at the moment — and the public official involved would have to file a conflict of interest statement as he must now...but he would be prohibited from voting. That's as it should be. Public officials who stand to gain from an ordinance or other law to be voted on by the very board they sit with should abstain from voting. That's only common sense, in our view. When you consider that those citizens who go before a board of commissioners — county or city — seeking a new law or changes in existing law to proceed with their plans must obtain a majority vote, it becomes clear that a public official in a similar situation who can vote on the matter really has an edge, since he only needs — in Seminole County's case — just two votes from his colleagues, while the average citizen needs three to get that majority vote. That isn't fair and shouldn't be allowed to continue.

The word from Tallahassee, unfortunately, is that while the House acted swiftly and properly, the bill died in committee. We're told the Volusia County legislator who sponsored the bill didn't have time to go over to the Senate and put the pressure on to have it taken out of committee and attached to some other Senate bill.

Selph says he got a commitment from Sen. Richard Langley, R-Clermont, also a member of the Seminole County legislative delegation, to attempt attaching the House bill as an amendment to a Senate bill this week. Every legislator interested in open and fair government should push just as hard as possible to help Langley and the other Seminole County legislators in that endeavor and see to it that it passes in both Houses.

Can you envision a city commissioner or a city councilman in one of the larger cities of the county spending months researching to find appropriate trees which might compete for the title of city mascot?

Those kinds of things happened in Longwood and Altamonte Springs back more than 20 years ago in the days when everyone in town knew each other and all felt a responsibility for their community.

A remnant of those feelings still remains in those communities. But the community of Lake Mary has that community spirit, that feeling of personal responsibility and commitment to an extent that somehow gets lost when cities grow and more and more new people become the majority.

The tree that will be Lake Mary's mascot is very important there and rightly so. If the dream originally envisioned by the city's attorney Bob Petree comes to pass, that chosen tree will be seen everywhere in the city and its colorful blossoms will set that community apart in years to come.

In the meantime, City Commissioner Kenneth King has spent untold hours studying trees, finding which ones are the most suited to the city's climate and soils, how much care they need and other information of this sort.

The list has now been narrowed down to the loblolly bay, the crepe myrtle, the bottle brush, dogwood and Palatka holly.

Now it's up to the people of the city to vote on their choice of a tree and the results will be known in early June.

Another instance of community involvement was the city parade marking the 80th anniversary of the founding of the Lake Mary Chamber of Commerce.

The parade was taken very seriously in town and was of the same calibre as could be seen in any community much larger than Lake Mary's 3,000 persons.

Incidentally, Sanford Mayor Lee P. Moore was one of those awarded an honorary citizenship of Lake Mary by Mayor Walter Sorenson after that parade.

He noted the honor at last week's Sanford City Commission meeting, adding that apparently Lake Mary has finally forgiven him.

He said that while Lake Mary residents were agonizing over whether they should try to incorporate more than 10 years ago, he was invited as a guest speaker before a group looking into the prospect.

Moore said he felt he got their undying enmity when he suggested rather than incorporating, they consider annexing to the city of Sanford.

When the Lake Mary city staff is ready to submit a proposed budget for the 1983-84 fiscal year to the City Commission, the document will have a unique and distinctive cover.

Art students at Lakeview Middle School are competing in designing covers and the one that will decorate the financial management proposal will be chosen by Mayor Sorenson.

The cover selected will be kept among the city's important papers and a certificate of appreciation will be given to the winning artist.

Helm's Ulterior Motives?

Now we know why Jesse Helms opposed renewing the 1965 Voting Rights Act.

After the House of Representatives voted overwhelmingly to renew it, and after Republicans and Democrats in the Senate had agreed on federal protection of voting rights for racial and ethnic minorities, the North Carolina senator insisted on prolonging a battle he had already lost.

With his colleague, Sen. John East, R-N.C., Helms tried as long as he could to stop what some have called the most successful civil rights bill passed this century.

At the time, it seemed less than a useful gesture.

Even die-hard conservatives like South Carolina's Strom Thurmond and Arizona's Barry Goldwater supported renewing the Voting Rights Act. There could have been no profit for Helms in opposition, his critics said. Perhaps he was just so used to being "against," he couldn't stand being "for."

But now it's clear that something else was at stake.

In November 1984, Jesse Helms will have to face North Carolina voters once again. Five years ago, he was barely re-elected with 54 percent of the vote in a race in which he outspent his Democratic rival by almost $2 million.

Six years before that, in Helms' initial election campaign, he outspent his opponent by $7.2 million and won with only 55 percent of the vote.

In 1984, he will probably face North Carolina Governor Jim Hunt.

If the North Carolina electorate remains stable and Helms is able to outspend Hunt as he has outspent his previous opponents, the 1984 contest may simply be a replay of his 1972 and 1978 victories.

But voting populations do not remain the same.

A week ago, the Rev. Jesse Jackson kicked off a Southern voter registration drive in North Carolina. By the summer's end, he plans to have conducted intensive voting drives in each Southern state, adding 1 million black voters to the rolls.

At the same time, the established civil rights organizations, the NAACP, the Urban League, the Southern Christian Leadership Conference, and the Voter Education Project are continuing their year-long registration efforts spurred, perhaps, by Jackson's implied suggestion that they need his help to do the work they've done successfully for years.

If these efforts have any success in North Carolina, then the electorate Helms faces in 1984 will be considerably blacker than the collection of voters that elected him in 1972 and re-elected him in 1978.

No wonder Jesse Helms opposed the Voting Rights Act. His future success may be his final failure.

College Daze Recalled

The graduation of our college student this month was a long time coming. His journey into the realm of higher education began in August 1976.

I can still remember his excitement at the preparation for Departure Day.

I told him to put what he planned to take in the spare room. By the end of the week, the rug had disappeared under the gulfair, the banjo, stereo, records, backpack, sleeping bag, hiking boots and, oh yes, a modest number of jeans, shirts and jockey shorts.

I remember thinking how different that was from "my day," when the chief concerns were cashmere sweaters and what length a skirt should be.

Bravo to the younger generation. I had mused, for discarding such shallow values.

On second thought, I realized their rejection of expensive clothes had been replaced by another set of expensive tastes: clock-radios, digital watches, $250 guitars, calculators and super-sophisticated sound systems with tape decks, speakers and on and on.

The morning of our departure arrived and the last item attached to the car was the 10-speed bike, yet another costly fixture of the new era.

On the highway south, we saw other cars apparently also college-bound because they were packed, as ours, with bikes out back, clothes and guitars showing through the windows.

Now and then, collegiate hitchhikers turned up on the berm, their gear in bundles on the ground. A twoome held up a sign reading, "Help us get to Bible College."

When we turned onto his campus five hours later, we saw that other parents had rented U-Haul trailers to transport kids and gear to college.

"Thank goodness we escaped that," said my relieved husband.

The dormitory room for two seemed familiar, reminiscent of an earlier time: the same student desks, maple beds, bare floors and duplicate closets with towel racks on doors.

But now there was a phone in the room. In my dorm the phone was down the hall and you had to wait in line to use it.

We were soon to learn that it was very convenient to lie on the bed and phone home "collect." The first call came a day later. He asked that the bike-lock key be mailed post haste and added, "I need some more money for books."

That was how it began seven years ago.

In the interim was a transfer to another school. The bike was stolen and the banjo exchanged for a saxophone.

Girlfriends came, went and came again.

He became a vegetarian, so visits home were preceded by laying in stores of lentils, barley and cheese. He cooked stir-fry vegetables and told us how to grow bean sprouts under the kitchen sink.

There was his water-conservation period during which he wouldn't flush the john but once a day. Later on, he would discuss the esoteric zero sum economics of Lester Thurow.

He had an ear pierced and for a time wore an earring, though it was pretty hard to see it under his long hair and beard. He abstained from jackets and ties.

There were several semesters out of college along the way — much-needed time, he said, for recuperation and self-examination. While he was finding himself, the tuition soared. Then he decided to go for the extra year and an advanced degree.

Now he has it all: B.A., M.A. and a brand new job. Before him, remarkably, is the opportunity for a career in the field he majored in.

And he is still changing. He actually thanked us for our financial help and encouragement all these years.

For his birthday, he asked for a shirt and tie. "Something to wear to the office," he said.

This is the same young man who was once the only member at a family wedding wearing a plaid, flannel shirt and sandals.

JEFFREY HART

How The Left Is Helping Us

During the past year we have witnessed an odd political phenomenon, and it is a very important one, if it is properly understood, for our own 1984 presidential election.

In key Western elections, a radicalized leftist faction has played a key role in electing conservative governments and stiffening the Western spine in our dealings with Mr. Andropov and his SS-20s.

Reagan and his strategists ought to study this phenomenon and exploit it in their own forthcoming electoral battle.

We see the pattern repeating itself in the current electoral campaign in Great Britain. Historically, the British Labour Party had been the generator and protector of a comprehensive welfare state, but under its traditional leadership it was rootedly patriotic and toughly anti-communist.

In recent years, however, a vociferous faction of the Labour Party has become "Trotskyist," which here means communist but without overt subservience to Moscow. These activists have made some headway in the local constituencies and have defeated some regular Labour candidates in local contests. They have also pushed the party itself so sharply to the left that a more moderate faction split away and formed the social Democratic-Liberal Party.

At the moment, the leader of the Labour Party, Michael Foot, is campaigning on a platform of unilateral nuclear disarmament, widespread nationalization of industry, banking, and corporations, and an escalation of social spending. Moreover, with the Labour Party, Mr. Foot is regarded as the "centrist" — standing to the right of Tony Benn and Denis Healey, a seasoned politician of the older sort.

A Labour Party unified under Healey or someone like him might stand a real chance of beating Margaret Thatcher on June 9.

In the United States, the Democrat party is also split between mainstream Democrats who take a dim view of socialism and communism and believe in a strong national defense, and a potent faction coming forward from the 1972 McGovern movement, the thrust of which was most recently articulated in Senator Christopher Dodd's televised reply to President Reagan's speech on Central America.

This left faction in the present Democratic Party is a powerful one, particularly because of its academic and media support, but its overall stance is electoral poison. Its positions on foreign affairs amount to cave-in before the expansion of Soviet power, and it would do nothing practical to prevent the Castroization of Central America.

The opportunity for Reagan and his strategists is clear. He should seek to shatter paper-thin Democratic unity by mounting a slashing attack on the Democratic left, by hitting hard at its most "sacred" left positions and making the Dodds of our politics stand up and defend them.

BERRY'S WORLD

JACK ANDERSON

FDA Director Cavalier About Ethics

WASHINGTON — The man who has jurisdiction over what's in your medicine cabinet is a respected cardiologist named Dr. Arthur Hull Hayes Jr. Unfortunately, his undoubted professional skills are not matched by an appreciation of the conflict-of-interest rules laid down for employees of the Food and Drug Administration, which he heads.

On his frequent travels around the country to speak to industry groups, the slight, bespectacled Dr. Hayes has been mightily relaxed about accepting free plane trips and hotel accommodations from companies that do business with the FDA.

Dr. Hayes' cavalier attitude toward government ethics regulations has already been reported in part. But a U.S. attorney declined to press criminal charges against Hayes because he did not "knowingly and willfully" violate the law.

Internal files of the FDA's inspector general show that this has been Hayes' alibi whenever he was caught breaking the rules. Confronted by evidence that he had misbehaved, Hayes claimed ignorance of the law — which, as any traffic cop or FDA inspector could have told him, is no excuse.

Among the charges the IG investigated were accepting honoraria for speeches while on government business; letting FDA-regulated companies pay his travel and hotel costs, and improperly using a government vehicle to go between home and office. The IG auditors found merit in all the allegations.

An FDA spokesman told my associate Tony Capaccio that Hayes did not accept speaking fees from groups regulated by the agency. "He was very scrupulous about that," the aide said.

Hayes was hazy on other charges, though, according to internal IG reports. Hayes told investigators, for example, that "to the best of his knowledge, he never stayed in (a hotel) room that he did not pay for."

The records show, however, that on at least five occasions Hayes' hotel rooms were paid for by groups or institutions affected by FDA decisions: the National Wholesale Druggists Association, the American Pharmaceutical Association, the American Society of Hospital Pharmacists, the College of Physicians of Philadelphia and Lankenau Hospital in Overbrook, Pa.

The general counsel for the Department of Health and Human Services found the acceptance of these free "courtesy rooms" in violation of ethics guidelines.

When informed of this in an interview with the IG investigators, "Dr. Hayes said that he is now being told that he violated rules he did not know existed," one report states. "He does not recall ever being briefed concerning the Standards of Conduct."

Yet in 1981, Hayes told Congress of the need for these very standards, saying:

"FDA has made a major effort on a continuing basis to ensure that all employees are properly notified of the standards of conduct expected of them. We provide every new employee with an orientation in conflict-of-interest rules."

But Hayes evidently didn't follow his own prescription. He "appears to have violated" department guidelines by accepting plane rides from General Foods Corp. and Hershey, the HHS ethics officer concluded.

The records also show that Hayes' government chauffeur racked up more than $13,000 in overtime accumulated after 4:30 p.m. Hayes admitted the chauffeur had driven him to and from home, but "said he was not aware that it was a violation until so advised several months ago by a staff assistant."

But, according to an IG memo, the staff assistant said he warned Hayes of the violation "on several occasions." Continued the memo: "In spite of such warnings, such use (by Hayes) continued until several months ago."

The IG suggested "that Hayes might consider figuring out the total cost to the government and make restitution."

We Need To Gain A Fresh Perspective For Memorial Day

Do we need a new perspective on Memorial Day?

Memorial Day is more than simply another patriotic observance, another long weekend for recreation, having fun, or "getting away" for a few days. These may be good in themselves, but let's not forget to plan a time for some quiet thoughts in deep tribute, on taking a few moments, to recall and reflect on the prime purpose of the day.

Private citizen, public official, newspaper editor, all are engulfed in the pressures of earning a living, doing a job, untangling the snarls of uncertainty in the daily routines. Contemporary problems of economics and environment, of energy and inflation, are apt to overshadow the memories of the war-ravaged years. The American heritage of sacrifice and heroism has become almost forgotten in our preoccupation with the tasks immediately at hand.

On Memorial Day we become patriotic — briefly! We wave the flag. We listen to a few speeches. We spring to attention as rifle shots salute the dead. We bow reverently as the bugle whispers "taps," and another echoes back faintly from a nearby hill. We have "done our thing!" We have honored our hero-dead.

We need to gain a fresh perspective, that the full significance of Memorial Day might not be lost to the next generation.

We have seen four major tragedies of conflict in the past four-score years. Many have served — and died — that aggression might be stopped, that peace might come, that freedom might continue to live. We owe them a debt of gratitude, and a responsibility to assure that the cherished dreams for which they gave their lives, might not be clouded over, and perhaps lost, by apathy or by neglect.

How have we accepted this responsibility?

In Afghanistan, in the Persian Gulf, in Latin-America, in Cuba, we have been outfoxed, outmaneuvered, outnegotiated. Our nuclear superiority has vanished. Our military capability has diminished. Our prestige has plummeted. We have "lost face" with both the weak and mighty of the earth.

We scold. We whimper. We appease. We speak too softly — and nobody listens! Or, if they do, they are laughing up their sleeves.

We have over-reacted to the tragedies and mistakes of the Vietnam era. Some believe we have become a "paper tiger!"

It's time to awaken, America! It's time to regain our self-respect, our prestige, our leadership in world affairs. Peace, and a secure and prosperous America do not come by wishful thinking, or from the whimperings of an emasculated military, or from political squabbling which further erodes our strength.

It's time for action, America! It's time to speak with courage and a bold voice. Time to make our nation strong enough to deter any aggressor, to assure the peace. Time to make our foreign policy one of firmness, commanding respect by friend and foe alike. Time to make our nation's reputation such as to deter aggression, give hope to the oppressed, and establish an environment for peace and justice to develop throughout the world. For peace, prosperity, and stability can only be assured when reinforced by strength, by sacrifice, and by courageous determination.

This is our best tribute in memory of our honored dead.

James Stanley Speese

Lake Mary Resident Is Proud Of City

Re: Bob Daehn's letter of May 22, 1983:

I suggest Mr. Daehn make a trip to Lake Mary and get his facts correct. The City of Lake Mary is less than 10 years old, yet we have police and fire protection, streets, and even electric lights and cable TV.

Lake Mary had a water system for over 50 years. In 1976 the decision was made to purchase water from the city of Sanford; this apparently was poor judgment as indicated by recent events.

We plead guilty to having no central sewer system; we have septic tanks. Lake Mary has some problems — which will be solved.

In my opinion, the decision to incorporate by the citizens of Lake Mary was correct. It was not based on some flippant whim, as Mr. Daehn intimates. His observations are somewhat myopic.

Sincerely,
Ray Fox
Commissioner
City of Lake Mary

Wetlands Study Is Appreciated

The League of Women Voters of Seminole County commends the Board of County Commissioners for initiating a study of the Seminole County wetlands with the view of protecting this important resource from negative pressures of population growth.

We hope that the outcome of this study that has been reviewed by a citizens committee will result in an appropriate ordinance that will assure the wise use and protection of the Seminole County wetlands.

The League strongly supports your move to develop and enact an effective surface water management code.

Sincerely,
Helen C. Smith
President

There Is No End To The Tax Burden These Days

Is it any wonder that Gov. Bob Graham and others like him want to stop the tax cut plan proposed in the 1984 November ballot? This plan would allow you and me to tell our legislators by a majority vote, what we really want and need. Of course, the people with substantial incomes, such as most of our legislators and millionaire Bob Graham are not really concerned with what we want, only what kind of an empire they can build in their name.

I am sure both Mrs. Reagan and Mrs. Graham do not do their own shopping. If they did, they both could tell their husbands what a fallacy it is about prices stabilizing. Power companies, phone companies, hospitalization, medicine, water, sewerage, water treatment, etc.; every service and utility goes up on an almost semi-monthly basis, and some legislators will also bring up another type of tax. There is no end to the gouging.

The only thing staying close to the same are most peoples wages and retirement. A large amount of people such as steelworkers, automobile factory workers, airline employees and many others are accepting cuts in salaries to remain working. The only people getting more money are the wealthy. I think its about time to give the average individual a chance to voice his opinion.

With President Reagan's policy of taking from the poor and middle class to help the rich, Gov. Graham is following right in his shadow at our expense. I wonder if Graham can't also find a way of getting more money from the waitresses of the state. After all, most of them work many more hours than usual and even some get their meals along with the large tips everyone can now afford to leave. No one ever seems to mention the fact that the abundance of retired people in this state, living on a meager retirement and having no children, play a large part in paying for education. Of course, if they try to supplement their income with part-time job, the gas taxes and other newly thought-up revenues will take most of it away anyway.

Between Gov. Graham and President Reagan's policies, it seems the elderly, poor and retired should be placed on an ice floe and allowed to drift away to die as some cultures have done. Hypocrisy abounds in Washington and Tallahassee.

I hope you worry Mr. Graham and all the other legislators against this "Tax Cut Proposal". If you were not afraid of the average persons wishes you wouldn't be fighting so hard against it.

I know where all my support will be, and I am sure I am not alone.

Sincerely,
G.B.O.

Proposed State Optometry Legislation Is Opposed

It would be a waste of space in your publication to discuss the "political clout" of Senator Dempsey Barron and his associates in both chambers of the Florida Legislature. What my integrity as a medical doctor and a human being dictates is that I pass on to the public through you what would be allowed under S.B. 168, an act relating to optometry, as passed by the Florida Senate and about to face final action before the House of Representatives.

The normal interpretation of the word "doctor" unfortunately lulls the average citizen into believing anyone with that title is qualified to diagnose and treat. It leads to the presumption that anyone called "doctor" is qualified to care for the human body. Since the beginning of organized medicine ethical and legal safeguards have been built in to protect the public from those who are not qualified and/or clinically trained in the modality they profess to be. Optometrists are not trained to treat eye disease with drugs.

First, should this legislation go on to become law, let us tell the public the difference it acts up in "qualifications" for an optometrist to use and prescribe drugs in the treatment of eye disease. Under S.B. 168 a board certified optometrist shall have successfully completed at least 110 hours of approved transcript quality coursework and clinical training in general and ocular pharmacology, as determined by their own board and at least 1,500 hours or 6 months of supervised experience in differential diagnosis of eye disease or disorders either as part of the optometric training OR THROUGH ON-THE-JOB EXPERIENCE.

Supervision is not defined in the Senate Bill that was passed and could result in one optometrist untrained in diagnosing disease and without the proper pharmacology training giving on the job training to another optometrist. The very fact that 1,500 hours of training is mentioned in the bill is an outright admission the training is lacking in schools of optometry!

Just to dispense drugs, a pharmacist must have 1,100 hours of pharmacology training. An optometrist at the completion of his/her residency program has 2,400 hours of classroom and clinical training, doing hands on patient diagnosis and treatment under direct supervision of highly skilled physicians. In addition, an optometrist must complete 150 hours of continuing medical education every three years as required by the Florida Medical Association. This new optometry act would call for only 6 or more hours of approved transcript quality coursework in ocular pharmacology every two years, prior to license renewal.

Here is a list of some of the other health endangering acts the law would allow a "Doctor" of Optometry to perform:

1. For up to 48 hours an optometrist would be allowed to employ noncontrolled oral analgesics for the relief of severe pain associated with eye trauma without consultation with a physician. By then it could be too late for a physician to correct the damage.

2. Allows an optometrist to employ topical steroids without any consultation with a physician. However, consultation is required only when within the opinion of the optometrist, the condition he is treating is not responding to the treatment. Certain diseases could be out of control by the time the "opinion" is reached, or at least require extensive medical treatment and/or prolonged hospital care.

3. After consultation with a physician (not defined) which could be a telephone call, an optometrist would be able to prescribe, order, dispense, administer, supply, sell and give

"systemic drugs" which "relate" to the practice of optometry. The bill FAILS to prohibit those same activities with systemic drugs unrelated to the practice of Optometry. Thus, with no consultation whatever, an optometrist may supply or sell a systemic drug unrelated to the practice of Optometry.

4. The treatment of glaucoma is implicitly allowed. However, there is language that requires referral of angle closure, infantile, or congenital glaucoma to a physician skilled in diseases of the eye.

5. The treatment of infectious corneal disease by optometrists is specifically permitted. However, the optometrist must consult with a physician who "treats diseases of the eye" when, IN THE OPTOMETRIST'S JUDGMENT, the disease has not responded to standard methods of treatment within the scope of optometric practice. With such language, who knows what the Board of Optometry will determine to be "standard methods of treatment."

A Halt Should Be Put On Unnecessary Spending In Seminole

If the news stories and figures are correct about the proposed Seminole budget and library system, we all should be concerned and truly alarmed. It has been proven that growth does not pay for itself and old revenues cannot support it. Therefore this growth necessitates more taxes out of our pockets. Since we cannot seem to stop growth (not all of us want growth, in spite of what greedy promoters believe), we must put a halt to all unnecessary spending.

The library issue was not properly publicized. I, for one, misunderstood that the October vote was binding. It was my impression that vote was only preliminary, and the actual decision of whether or not to build the library system would be on the November ballot. I was shocked to learn that a handful of voters may have succeeded in putting us all in near bondage for years to pay for this unneeded system.

At the time of the vote we seem to have been misinformed of the cost of the bond issue said to involve about $7 million. Now the cost may run $50 - $100 million, including roughly $1.5 million per year to operate after construction. How much better to use our funds rather to improve already existing school libraries and open them to the public after hours.

Voters, listen to our County Administrator Rose and prepare for the reality of this situation, not to a librarian who says we cannot anticipate disaster. One of the duties of our elected leaders is to anticipate possible disaster and warn us. The wisest ones have done this. We call upon them now to reverse this horrendous error before it is too late. I do not mind my money being used for the necessities of us all, but I do not want my taxes raised and wasted for libraries which the vast majority of us Seminole Countians will never use. DO YOU?

Sincerely,
M.E. Johnson

Hospital Papers Are Appreciated

I was a very recent patient in the new Central Florida Regional Hospital, and I would like to thank you and Faust Drug Store for the free newspapers you provided for us.

Your generosity was greatly appreciated, especially by me, as they no longer have the newspaper stands on each floor.

And, I would like to also convey my Sincere Thanks to all the Staff as they did all they could to make my stay as comfortable as possible. Everyone was so very nice.

Alzheimer's Disease Sometimes Treatable

Growing Older

U.S. Rep. Claude Pepper

Q. My brother-in-law, age 61, was a highly respected businessman and father. I said was because although he is alive today, he is totally disoriented.

About six months ago, my sister began to notice that he was having difficulty maintaining his balance, completing simple mathematical calculations, and even driving his car. Soon, he began to find it impossible to concentrate or communicate. Then, several months ago, he couldn't remember what day or month it was.

He was forced to retire from his job, so he stayed at home watching television programs he couldn't comprehend.

Last month, my sister had a number of physicians give him a medical checkup. The diagnosis was Alzheimer's disease, which they explained is a form of senility. His brain simply melted away.

What is Alzheimer's disease? My sister's doctors offer her no hope for his improvement. Is this true? What can I do to help?

A. Alzheimer's disease was first described in 1906 by Alois Alzheimer. A patient of his, a 55-year-old woman, had displayed "progressive jealousy" and died following severe dementia, medically defined as a profound loss of memory, intellectual functioning and the ability to take care of social and bodily needs.

Until five years ago, scientists and physicians regarded Alzheimer's as comparatively rare, untreatable and a consequence of the aging process rather than a true disease.

Those beliefs have been washed away by new research that shows Alzheimer's is far more widespread than once believed and may be treatable with drugs.

There is now good evidence that Alzheimer's disease claims about 100,000 elderly Americans a year and afflicts an additional 1 million.

We now know that 5 to 6 percent of all Americans over 70, and a substantial number under 70, contract the disease. This means that Alzheimer's disease is the fourth leading cause of death for the elderly and, with major advances being made in researching a cure, it is now becoming vitally important that those senior citizens who contract the disease not be misdiagnosed as senile and shunted aside.

While researchers are still seeking to identify the cause of Alzheimer's, scientists have discovered two drugs that show promise in overcoming the disease. The administration and Congress are recommending increased funding for further research into various treatments for this killer disease.

The House Select Committee on Aging, on which I serve, is convening hearings on Alzheimer's to examine both the myths surrounding senility and the actual causes of mental deterioration. I anticipate that increases in funding for the identification and treatment of Alzheimer's disease will receive quite a bit of attention during this session of the Congress.

For more information about Alzheimer's, I would suggest that you contact the Alzheimer's Disease and Related Disorders Association. Write to the national headquarters at 360 N. Michigan Ave., Chicago, Ill. 60601.

Q. My uncle, who will be turning 85 years old, was told by his employer that although they have no mandatory retirement rules until he reaches age 70, their pension plan requires that he retire at age 65. Does my uncle have to retire if he does not want to?

A. No, he does not have to retire. The requirements of the pension plan cannot override federal law, which says your uncle has the right to keep his job until age 70. However, the law does permit his employer to stop contributing to your uncle's pension plan when he reaches age 65 and to not count his years of service after age 65 in figuring the amount of his retirement pension.

REP. CLAUDE PEPPER is the ranking member of the House Select Committee on Aging.

Leaders Worry How Long Economic Recovery Will Last

By Barry James
UPI Senior Editor

The whiff of economic recovery is in the air, but the question facing leaders of the world's wealthiest nations holding their ninth annual summit at Williamsburg, Va., is whether that recovery can be sustained.

Four of the seven countries represented — the United States, Britain, West Germany and Japan — appear poised for at least a modest upswing in their fortunes this summer, thanks in part to the decline in oil prices earlier this year and the falling inflation rates.

And, according to U.S. Treasury Secretary Donald Regan, all the Western economies should recover "with a little lag time" in between — at least within the same calendar year.

Many government leaders and their advisers fear the recovery may be short-lived and insufficient to diminish the pool of 32 million unemployed in the industrialized world, unless the summit nations can achieve greater coordination of monetary, financial and trade policies.

"We are still facing the question," said former West German Chancellor Helmut Schmidt, "will countries try to solve their joint problems by cooperating — as it were, play a game in which everyone is the winner — or will they move into confrontation, a game in which everyone is the loser?"

Stressing vintage Reaganomics, the United States, supported by British Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher, will argue that those countries that have best combated inflation are best poised for recovery.

The summit is thus unlikely to lead to dramatic pump-priming measures that could lead to the re-igniting of inflation. At best, it may result in "orientations" about how to deal with the four interlinked problems standing in the way of recovery. These are:

—Sprawling budget deficits,
—The $700 billion mountain of debt owed by the developing countries, which threatens the stability of Western financial institutions.

—The creeping trend toward greater protectionism, the sin that everyone commits and, as French President Francois Mitterrand puts it, "everyone views with suspicion when others are committing it."

Mitterrand said recently that "restoration of the conditions for a stable monetary system with currencies fixed to an adequate degree, at economically reasonable values, is an urgent task."

Dog Racing Makes Alabama County Rich

By David Tortorano

EUTAW, Ala. (UPI) — Greene County may have gone to the dogs, but it has been a financial boon few will dispute.

Rural, predominantly black and poor, the county of 11,000 people tossed aside any moral objection to parimutuel racing in 1977 and opted for the financial benefits that a greyhound race track promised.

Six years later, Greene County is millions of dollars richer, and the only vocal criticism apparent is that maybe the county isn't getting its fair share.

"There's not much talk anymore about whether it's moral," said Robert Brown, the former county school superintendent who helped sell the idea in the local referendum. "In fact, those same people who opposed it are now smiling. It has brought a lot of money into the county for education and the like."

There's little disputing the monetary benefits that have been derived by the county's general fund, the four incorporated towns of Eutaw, Boligee, Forkland and Union and the hospital and education boards.

Since the first $2 bet was placed on an eight-dog race at Greentrack, the 4 percent tax paid to the county has exceeded $3 million.

Gambling taxes account for 80 percent of the county's general fund and 15 percent of the school board budget. County funds from Greentrack revenues are distributed every six months; last December the total was $1.3 million.

Although the money has not built any new hospitals or schools, one school official said the county could never have survived the cutbacks in federal funding without the Greentrack dollars.

"We couldn't have gotten by without it," said Winston Morris, custodian of funds for the Greene County Board of Education. "We've been fortunate," he said. "The cutbacks would have put us in bad shape."

"Most of the money (revenue from the track) coming from the school board has been going to salaries," said Morris. "We've got 25 to 30 teachers over the amount covered by state-allocated funds, and we couldn't have paid for them without this money."

Morris said the amount for school system salaries totals "about a half-million dollars a year."

Forty percent of last December's Greentrack allocation — $520,000 — went into the county's general fund, and then was distributed to 10 agencies, including law enforcement, ambulance service, the library and parks and recreation.

Mattie Atkins, the probate judge's office manager, said the track money has helped pay for four replacement patrol cars for the 16-member Greene County Sheriff's Department.

It also has funded an eight-teacher, 42-student day care center in Forkland.

For the hospital board, last December's allocation meant $65,000 for "general operating expenses," said Ellen Lashley, business manager for the Greene County Hospital and Nursing Home.

Greentrack is a 440-yard sand track that can accommodate 6,000 spectators in the grandstands and a dining section called the "Kennel Club." It has drawn visitors from as far away as Mississippi, Tennessee, Georgia and Florida who place their wagers at computerized counters only a few steps from the bar.

"We do the best we can to create as good an atmosphere as you can come into," said Charles Bradshaw, the track manager. "It's immaculate, clean. Even with the drinking, there's so little intoxication. That's the way we're gonna keep it. We want a wholesome, pleasant operation."

The operation, owned by a group of Alabama investors, is overseen by a three-member commission — appointed by the county's legislative delegation — and its 25 employees. One member of the commission must be on hand for each race.

They work with the 300 people employed by the track to handle maintenance, parking, security and other operations.

From the glass-enclosed Kennel Club, where visitors can indulge in dinner and spirits, the kennel itself is visible. It is the home of 16 kennel operations with at least 50 dogs apiece. Bradshaw said there are between 900 and 1,000 dogs on the premises, and they are treated like royalty, including a special high-protein diet.

The dogs are valued between $1,000 and $60,000, depending upon age and win record, said Bradshaw.

"Afterall, a good dog can win a lifetime purse of some $180,000," he said. "You would expect them to be treated well."

Haves And Have-Nots Today Divide World

By Barry James
UPI Senior Editor

LONDON (UPI) — While the leaders of the world's "haves," in the comfort of Williamsburg, seek to coax life into a budding economic recovery, existence for the hundreds of millions who own and control nothing grows more precarious.

Take some of Black Africa's blackest statistics, for example. Life expectancy is 47 years, the lowest in the world. Up to 20 percent of children die before their first birthday. Only one in four has access to a supply of safe water. Only one in three adults is literate.

At the end of 1981, the World Bank reports, the continent south of the Sahara was $45.5 billion in debt.

Annual repayments of principal and interest were running at $4.6 billion. Yet the price of commodities on which the continent largely depends to repay its debt were at their lowest in 30 years and interest rates on those loans were at their highest ever.

Real incomes are falling in nearly half of the 50 member countries of the African Development Bank.

The president of the bank, Wila D Mung'Omba of Zambia, gave a gloomy assessment of the continent's progress over the past decade.

"Economic retrogression and not economic development was what took place," he said. "The likelihood of a sustained decline in per capita income levels in a number of countries is such as to render almost meaningless the usual rhetoric on development."

He said growth rates in the non-oil-producing African states would at best be 2 percent annually for the foreseeable future. Population growth is higher than that. It means Africa economically is sliding backwards.

Kenya, with annual per capita income of $340, ranks in the middle of African nations ranging from Chad ($110) to Libya ($7,000).

The number of unemployed Kenyans is too large to be acknowledged. A domestic servant takes home $60 a month. Rent on a three-bedroom house in the low-cost housing project of Bura Bura near Nairobi costs $140 a month.

Other sample prices: A tube of toothpaste, $1.13; a kilogram (just over 2 pounds) of beef, $1.77; a bottle of beer, 60 cents; a Nairobi bus ride, 20 cents; a kilogram of chicken, $4.20; a posh rental, $800 a month.

Four out of five Africans earn their living from the land. After taking population growth into account, per capita food production fell by a fifth between 1980 and 1980. Food imports increased six-fold.

Because governments have resisted currency devaluations, a World Bank report says, "several African countries now find that producers of traditional export crops cannot be paid enough to cover the costs of production." Cocoa in Ghana is a classic example.

As a result, farmers either stop growing or they try to smuggle their products to other countries where prices are higher.

In recessionary times, aid has been declining, too.

ASK DR. SHARP

Bobby M. Sharp DMD

Q. WHAT MAKES GUMS REcede? WHAT CAN BE DONE ABOUT IT?

A. Receding gums can be caused by at least 110 different factors or any combination of these. The most common are neglect, improper care (plaque and calculus), crooked teeth and bad bite (malocclusion and trauma), and poor nutrition.

Receding gums or gingival recession exposes the tooth's root surface and occurs when the margin of the gum shifts above or below the normal gum line. This exposed root surface increases the possibility of developing dental caries (cavities), makes the tooth more sensitive and, depending on the individual mouth, can affect personal appearance.

Treatment for receding gums is determined by which teeth are involved, the patient's age, condition of the mouth, effect on appearance, presence of root sensitivity, or caries.

BUSINESS IN BRIEF

Texas Telephone Firm Adds Stromberg System

Continental Telephone of Texas recently placed in service its largest System Century Digital Central Office with a Local Line Switch in Burnet.

The new 3,000-line Stromberg-Carlson digital switch provides subscribers with a choice of custom-calling features and push button dialing, as well as both Centralized and Local Automatic Message Accounting.

This is the third digital switch that Stromberg-Carlson of Lake Mary has placed in service for Continental of Texas this year.

The other DCO Systems are in Wilmer and Deport.

Later in the year, the Burnet central office will also serve as the host office for four new remote line switches in the nearby communities of Bertram, Silver Creek, Lake Victor and Hoover Valley.

Stromberg-Carlson, a Plessey Telecommunications Co., is a leading designer and manufacturer of telecommunications equipment.

American Bell Leases Site

On May 11, a lease was signed with Lincoln Properties which provides American Bell's Corporate Data Systems Organization with 123,250 square feet of floor space at 200 Lincoln Place located at 2301 Maitland Center Parkway.

With this new location and locations in Orlando Central Park and 850 Maitland Center, American Bell will occupy a total of 566,000 square feet of floor space in the Central Florida area.

American Bell's 1,650 local employees provide support for the company's national requirements for such functions as customer billing and account processing, corporate accounting, corporate payroll processing and administration of corporate voice and data communications. By the end of July, 550 of these employees will be located at the new Maitland facility.

Cotton Named To Post

Stromberg-Carlson Corporation of Lake Mary has appointed Whit Cotton as director of fiber optics engineering, a new position resulting from the company's entry into the fiber optics marketplace.

Reporting to Dr. David L. Hinshaw, vice-president of engineering, Cotton heads the engineering segment of the business unit that is being organized to introduce Stromberg-Carlson fiber optic trunking and span lines in the United States.

"This position demonstrates Stromberg-Carlson and Plessey's commitment to the fiber optics market in this country," said Hinshaw.

Cotton came to Stromberg-Carlson from M/A-COM Digital Communications Corporation Inc. in Germantown, MD, where he was director of systems engineering in the Lightwave Communications Division. In this position, he was responsible for new product development for fiber optic transmission systems. Previously, he had been program manager of fiber optic systems for Harris Corporation in Melbourne.

Sea World Lists Promotion

William Deltenbeck has been named senior marketing representative for Sea World of Florida, according to Richard B. Howard, vice president and director of marketing.

Deltenbeck, formerly editor and associate publisher of Florida Grower & Rancher, will assist in the marine life theme park's statewide marketing effort. He also will be registered as a lobbyist with the Florida Legislature where he will represent Sea World in particular.

Home Show June 2-5

Many of the newest products for every room in the house will be featured at the 1983 Home Products Showcase, an annual event sponsored by the Home Builders Association of Mid-Florida.

The showcase is set to open Thursday, June 2, with an industry-only day for builders. It's opened to the general public on June 3-5.

The event will feature more than 100 booths of home products and services for everyone from the new home builder to the weekend fixer-upper.

"The Home Products Showcase is designed to be a fun event," said Jack Hampton, chairman of the HBA's Home Products Showcase Committee. "but it's also informative. There'll be products and services of interest to almost everyone, and with so many doorprizes to be given away, there's a good chance you'll win one."

This year's show includes products for every room in the house.

The show will be opened from 5-9 p.m. on June 3 and from noon to 8 p.m. on June 4. On June 5, hours will be from noon to 6 p.m.

Admission will be $2 for adults and $1 for children under 18. The Expo Centre is located near the Carr Auditorium in downtown Orlando at 500 W. Livingston St.

Breweries May Strike

MILWAUKEE (UPI) — Members of Brewery Workers Local 9 at the Pabst and Miller Brewing Cos. have voted overwhelmingly to give the union strike authorization.

The contract with the two breweries expires Tuesday.

A union spokesman said negotiations were continuing on a new contract.

Local 9 represents 940 brewery production workers at Pabst and 1,300 employees at Miller.

The votes were 710-18 at Pabst and 1,129-61 at Miller.

Top 500 Service Firms Listed

NEW YORK (UPI) — Sears Roebuck & Co. was the nation's No. 1 retailer for the 19th consecutive year in Fortune magazine's Service 500 list of the nation's largest service sector companies.

The list, which ranks the 500 largest non-industrial companies in seven categories based on assets and sales, revealed few surprises Wednesday. The Chicago-based Sears held the top spot it has enjoyed for 19 years.

American Telephone & Telegraph was again the largest utility. Philbro-Salomon held onto the No. 1 spot as largest diversified service company. Prudential continued as largest life insurer, and Federal National Mortgage Association was again top diversified finance company.

Citicorp of New York was the notable exception to the status quo, however, sweeping past the San Francisco-based BankAmerica to claim the top banking spot. And UAL, the Chicago-based parent of United Airlines, displaced CSX Corp. of Richmond, Va. as the top-ranked transportation company.

Fortune said its non-industrial rankings, published since 1956, was expanded this year into the Service 500 directory because of the growing importance of the service sector. The service sector now generates two-thirds of the nation's gross national product and provides seven of every 10 non-farm jobs, the magazine said.

The Service 500 came through last year's economic crunch in better shape than the Fortune 500 industrial corporations whose earnings fell 27 percent, Fortune said.

Broken down by industry, sales of diversified service companies on the list rose 6 percent and net income rose 9.4 percent. Commercial banks averaged gains of 9.5 percent in assets and 5.7 percent in earnings.

Diversified financial companies had mixed earnings, but assets grew 18 percent. Life insurance increased by 9 percent, the smallest increase since 1975, but assets grew 9.6 percent.

Sales for the retail group grew 11.4 percent, but net income dropped 0.2 percent. Transportation profits fell 40.5 percent. Operating revenues for the utilities rose 10.7 percent and earnings rose 10 percent.

Uncle Sam May Have Your Goods In A Vault

By Joey Ledford

WASHINGTON (UPI) — If you or your family didn't get to the bank before it failed in the Great Depression, don't despair. Uncle Sam may have some of your goods stashed in a vault.

The government has about 23,000 lots of property from United States banks that failed during the Great Depression of 1929.

"During the Depression, when hundreds of banks failed, the keepsakes from the vaults of failed banks were shipped to the Treasury Department in Washington," said Rep. Doug Barnard, D-Ga., a member of the House Banking Committee. "But the property has been unclaimed for years."

Lee Cross, communications director for the Comptroller of the Currency, said that before 1933, anytime a national bank failed, a local receiver was appointed. If the receiver could not find the safety deposit box owner, the property was shipped to the Treasury in Washington, where the goods wound up in a government vault, forgotten and ignored for decades.

Ms. Cross said a list of the property owners and their hometowns is being prepared and will be published in the Federal Register sometime this summer.

Until that list is published, Treasury will not answer public inquiries about Aunt Nellie's long-lost silver coffee pot or Uncle Ned's gold watch fob.

"They (owners or their descendants) will have one year from the publication in the Federal Register to make a claim," said Ms. Cross. "At the end of the year, we will look at all the claims."

"We will make every effort to find the person or the heir that has a right to the stuff," she said. "Anything that's left over, we will probably sell at public auction."

Most of the property is what you would expect to find in a safety deposit box — stock certificates, deeds, silver flatware and some jewelry, Ms. Cross said.

But there are some oddities, including a pair of false teeth, an antique rifle and a seaman's chest marked "property of J.P. Jones," Barnard said.

Ms. Cross said the Treasury Department did not try previously to locate the owners because officials believed they did not have the statutory authority to do so.

A rider to a banking bill passed last year granted them the authority to begin a search, said Ms. Cross.

"It wasn't clear what our legal responsibility was," she said. "That's mainly why this stuff has sat around for 50 years."

She said the majority of the safety deposit box booty is paper.

"Obviously, a lot of this stuff was of sentimental value," she said, listing such items as babies' bracelets and shoes, old rings and such.

For years, the goods were stored in the main vault at the Treasury Department.

"It stayed there until sometime in the 70s," said Ms. Cross. "It stayed there until Treasury put in computers and needed a lot of space. We sent it to the Smithsonian to see if there was anything of historical value."

She said the Smithsonian Institution expressed particular interest in one item — a family tree that listed six generations.

United Telephone Also Files New Revenue Recovery Plan

In compliance with a Florida Public Service Commission requirement, United Telephone of Florida has joined other major telephone companies in the state in filing a plan for a new form of revenue recovery as the telephone industry proceeds in the era of deregulation and change.

The commission's order calls for all companies to design an access charge plan to recover the costs associated with the "access" to the in-state long distance telephone network through local telephone company facilities.

For decades, long distance rates have subsidized the cost of providing local service to millions of homes and businesses, according to Troy Todd, president of United Telephone.

As a result of regulatory pricing philosophy, local rates were priced below the actual cost of providing this universal service.

"With the advent of competition in the long distance communications business, competing companies are able to price their rates below those charged by telephone companies, since there is no need for competition to subsidize local service," Todd said. "To allow telephone companies to compete fairly, the system of subsidizing local rates with long distance revenues is being changed significantly."

The result? Long distance rates likely will drop as the subsidy to local rates is phased down, while local rates are anticipated to increase.

Patriots Draw Raves In Spring Jamboree

Rams Nip DeLand; Tumble To Hawks

By Sam Cook
Herald Sports Editor

ALTAMONTE SPRINGS — If Friday night's Lake Brantley Spring Jamboree is any indication of things to come — Seminole County is in for quite a year of rock-'em, sock-'em football.

Lake Mary, Lake Howell, Oviedo and the host Patriots all showed flashes of brilliance during their two quarters of action. DeLand joined the festivities to complete the five-team competition which drew a close to a month of spring practice.

And it couldn't have come at a more opportune time. Last fall was a bummer for county football as only Lyman, Oviedo and Lake Howell posted winning records. Lake Brantley, Lake Mary and Seminole won just three games among them and the Patriots two victories were over the Rams and the Tribe.

The Patriots, which went into last fall with just two starters returning, were drew most of the raves from opposing coaches Friday. "I was really impressed with Lake Brantley, especially their offense," said Lake Howell coach Mike Blascaglia after losing to the Patriots, 8-7. "They really looked good. Much better than last year."

Amid a tumultuous Big Blue locker room, linebacker Donnie O'Brian tried to explain the turnaround for coach Dave Tullis' squad. "We came through this spring," said O'Brian who will be the top linebacker since his two all-county cohorts, Mike Hill of Lyman, and Tommy Johnson of Oviedo, have graduated. "The whole team improved, especially the offensive line. It's gonna be the best in the conference."

You don't have to go much further than Allen Armstrong or Greg Shatto to confirm that. Armstrong, who is emerging as a superb tailback, and Shatto, a determined fullback, ripped off huge chunks of yardage behind a rejuvenated wall of humanity composed of tackle Robert Maier, guard Bob Wittick and right end Carlos Ince.

"They all come off the ball real well," said Tullis about his big three. "We've been practicing hard. We just didn't luck out tonight. We still have to put tonight in the proper perspective. It's just a jamboree, but I feel good about what I saw."

"Every (county) team was better than last year," he added.

That goes double for Lake Mary. The Rams, under first-year coach Harry "The Ram" Nelson, nipped DeLand, 7-6, and lost to Lake Howell, 14-6.

"Lake Mary's defense came on strong," said Blascaglia. "There's a big improvement. They moved the ball very well and they're a lot more disciplined."

Blascaglia was also impressed with Nelson. "He's a good game coach. After the quarter he said, 'We'll shove it in your ear next year.' He said something else (unprintable) to my assistant. I guess he had more respect for me," laughed Blascaglia.

Nelson, like his maturing ball club, was up for the occasion. The colorful ex-Bishop Moore and Colonial coach worked the sidelines with exuberance and his Rams responded. And despite giving his troops a verbal lashing after the two quarters, even Nelson had to admit he was impressed.

"I had a tough time telling them they had to improve," chuckled Nelson. "This jamboree was just perfect for us. We went the whole spectrum. We got ahead of DeLand and held on to win, and then got behind Lake Howell and came back with a touchdown."

"We played brilliantly on defense on occasion. (Jeff) Hopkins, (Bill) Caughell, (Darren) Washington and (Reggie) Anderson looked good at times. To go from 2A-3A to 4A in 20 days (spring practice) is quite a jump. We have to improve in every area (to be competitive), but we had a hellacious 20 days of spring."

Which can also be said for Blascaglia's Silver Hawks who moved the ball with ease behind quarterback Darin Slack. Troy Quackenbush, who runs Howell's veer attack, missed the jamboree because of a cartilage injury to his left rib cage suffered in the intrasquad game last week.

Slack, a rifle-armed junior, picked apart the Rams' secondary. He hit 6 of 10 passes for 122 yards. Jeff Solomon snared two for 70 including a touchdown on a 33-yard slant. Jimmy Daniel pulled in the other TD from nine yards out.

"Slack threw pretty well and our offensive line gave him the time," said Blascaglia. "(Jay) Robey ran well. We played a lot of kids. I thought we did pretty well for just two weeks practice."

While Lake Howell went airborne in the first quarter, against Lake Brantley it turns loose Robey and Tony Cardenas. Robey broke one for 39 yards behind some solid blocking on the left side by guard Austin Manuel, alternating tackles Rick Williams and Jim Royal, and tight end Allen Jack.

Oviedo, the jamboree's 3A entry, was plagued by fumbles. The Lions were dominated by Lake Brantley Lake Mary quarterback Ray Hartsfield is off to the races with a DeLand — he was sacked several times — as the Rams beat DeLand and lost to Lake Howell. In pursuit during Friday's jamboree. The Rams' flashy freshman Howell.

but salvaged a 0-0 tie. Oviedo lost to DeLand, 7-0. Nose guard Kevin Yentz delivered several good jolts in the opposing backfield while Tim Turbyfield broke up a near touchdown loss to Rex Black in the last 30 seconds to save the tie against the Patriots.

"We looked pretty green," said Oviedo offensive coordinator Ken Kroog. "But then we never look very good in jamborees anyway. We'll grow up by next fall."

Quarter One LAKE MARY 7, DELAND 6

The Rams were blown out by DeLand last fall in the jamboree, botching two punts and falling behind by two touchdowns before the Bulldogs ran a play from scrimmage. It was a different story Friday as Jim Sodolski recovered a fumble and Lake Mary marched in to score on its second possession.

Freshman Ray Hartsfield tossed a 37-yard pass to Donald Grayson to set up the score at the DeLand 12. Charlie Lucarelli clipped the final 12 yards on a wingback reverse. "Lucarelli and Neal Wellon ran the ball well," said Nelson. "(Kicker Joe) Dalton was having a good night before he got hurt." Dalton added the extra point for a 7-0 lead.

DeLand came right back when tailback Otis Robinson bolted 31 yards for a touchdown around left end. The Bulldogs sent James Patrick around right end in an attempt to go ahead, but linebacker Hopkins nailed him to preserve Lake Mary's win.

Quarter Two DELAND 7, OVIEDO 0

Oviedo received and was moving the ball behind tailback Barry Williams, fullback J. W. Yarborough and quarterback Charles "Pop" Bowers until Williams coughed up the ball at midfield.

Yentz immediately dumped QB Terry Nettles for a loss, but on the next play Nettles faked outside on an option, then cut in for 38 yards and the quarter's only touchdown. Charles Studley kicked the PAT.

Freshman Andrew Smith gained 10 yards on two carries on Oviedo's next possession, but a delay of game penalty on fourth and one cost the Lions a chance to game at their 29 and they punted it away.

Yentz again yanked Nettles down for a loss and three plays later but Greg Gilmore's punt sailed into the end zone to put the Lions in the hole again.

Quarter Three LAKE BRANTLEY 0, OVIEDO 0

The Patriots went up and down the field twice in this quarter but never could punch it over. Cornerback John LaPorta saved the Lions once with a jarring tackle to cause a fumble which Marty Tyler recovered at the Oviedo 10. It came after the Patriots had marched 70 yards on the hard running of tailback Allen Armstrong and fullback Greg Shatto. Armstrong powered for 10 on a fourth and one to keep the drive alive at midfield. Shatto, who played for Lake Mary last fall, muscled for 23 yards to the Oviedo 4 before LaPorta made his big play.

Knights of Columbus put at least two runs on the board in every inning Friday night while Elks had only two big innings as KOC went on to a 18-10 victory in Sanford Junior League action at Chase Park. Knights of Columbus remain in first place in the second half of the season with a 4-0 record while Moose is one game back with a 3-1 record. Rotary, 2-2, in the second half, won by forfeit Friday when Ball Motor Lines didn't have enough players.

KOC opened with five runs in the first inning. Alonso Gaiety led off with a single and Lawrence Aires drew a walk. Leonard Lucas then lined a shot to left field that went for a three-run, inside-the-park home run. A two-run triple by Edward Gordon provided the other two runs in the inning for KOC.

The Knights took a 10-0 lead with five more runs in the second inning. Key hits included a RBI triple by Lucas and a two-run single by Todd Revels.

Elks came alive in the third inning with five runs on three hits. The key hits were run-scoring singles by Steve Warren, Henry Williams and Alex Wynn.

KOC added two runs in the bottom of the third to take a 12-5 lead, but Elks came storming back with five more runs in the top of the fourth to cut KOC's lead to 12-10. Singles by Warren, Williams and Joey Sheehan were the big hits in the inning for Elks and Elks also took advantage of four KOC errors.

KOC scored twice in the bottom of the fourth and clinched the game with four runs in the bottom of the fifth. David Rape picked up the pitching victory and also went 2 for 3 at the plate for KOC. Lucas was 3 for 4 with four RBI while Revels and J.D. Paul also added two hits each. Warren was 3 for 3 for Elks while Williams and Wynn added two hits apiece. Elks fell to 1-3 in the second half and 2-12 overall.

In Sanford Little National League action at Bay Avenue Field, Anthony Merthle went 4 for 4 with a triple and a double to pace a 10-hit Sunniland offensive attack in a 18-11 victory over Cardinal Industries.

Trailing, 11-6, Sunniland erupted for seven runs in the bottom of the fourth inning to take a 13-11 lead, a lead it never relinquished. Key hits in the decisive inning included a three-run triple by Merthle and an RBI triple by Tim Graham. Two runs were also forced in by walks.

Sunniland put the finishing touches on with four runs in the fifth inning and Tim Graham pitched shutout ball over the last two innings to pick up the pitching victory. Behind Merthle, Graham had a pair of hits and Mike Merthle added a home run. Hubert Williams had two hits including a triple for Cardinal Industries.

In Little American action at Westside Field, Famous Recipe cooked up 14 runs in the second inning and burned Seminole Petroleum, 18-2. Key hits in the big inning for Famous Recipe included a double and a triple by Gerald Morris, a double and a single by Anton Reid, a double by George Fison and singles by Mike Taylor, Mike Fetterhoff and Andrea Stokes. Famous Recipe also capitalized on five Seminole Petroleum errors in the inning.

Seminole Petroleum managed five hits off of a pair of Famous Recipe pitchers, all five hits came in a two-run third inning. Daniel Skipper's double drove in both runs for Seminole Petroleum.

For Famous Recipe at the plate, Morris rapped four hits. Troy Rollins added three and Leonard Richardson two. Taylor picked up the pitching victory and Chris Lassiter suffered the loss.

In Pee Wee League play at Fort Mellon Park, Demetry Beamon hurled a no-hitter as Adcock Roofing upended Butch's Chevron, 14-3. Beamon struck out five and walked two as Adcock Roofing improved to 7-1 for the season while Butch's Chevron fell to 0-8.

A seven-run first inning was all Adcock Roofing needed. Damien "Muscle" Tillman's two-run, single was the only hit in the inning, but, Adcock Roofing was issued five walks and moved up on five wild pitches. A run-scoring triple by Beamon and a two-run triple by Tom Royal were the big hits in a seven-run second inning for Adcock Roofing.

In Friday's second game, Clem Leonard Shell rode a five-run fourth inning rally to a 10-9 victory over Gracey Construction. With the win, Clem Leonard Shell upped its record to 7-1 and remains tied with Adcock Roofing for first place. Gracey Construction now stands at 3-5 with two games remaining in the season.

A double by Tony Lattimore and singles by Tony Taylor and Britt Henderson were the key hits in the fourth inning for Clem Leonard Shell which also took advantage of four Gracey Construction errors in the inning.

Anthony Roberts picked up the pitching win for Clem Leonard as he allowed only one hit, struck out nine and walked 12. Quinn Byrd's home run was the only hit for Gracey Construction. Adrian Jones had a homer and a triple to lead Clem Leonard Shell at the plate.

Brawl With Tigers Helps Minnesota Shed Twinkies' Label

Ever hear of the Minnesota Twinkies? Billy Gardner has until he had a bellyful. So have all his players. They don't want to hear it anymore. The reason? They believe they've shown they can play with the big boys.

Gardner's Twins had the demeaning label "Twinkies" pasted on them last season when they fumbled and stumbled around the American League's Western Division most of the year, finally winding up last, 33 games out.

That was last year. But look at the Twins this year.

For one thing, nobody considers them patsies or makes jokes about them anymore. For another, they're only four games out of first place in their division, having just completed their first sweep in a near incredible dry spell of 51 previous series by taking three in a row from the Baltimore Orioles.

The Twins have won their last four games, nine of their last 13, and are only two games below .500, but that's only part of the story.

Second baseman John Castino, batting .315, leads the league in two departments, total bases, with 98, and runs scored, with 37. First baseman Kent Hrbek, hitting .314, is the league leader with 15 doubles and is third in RBI with 32. The Twins have two others over .300 in catcher Dave Engle at .317 and designated hitter Mickey Hatcher at .316, and although left fielder Gary Ward is hitting only .250, he leads the league in RBI with 36.

Offensively, the Twins might've been stronger yet had outfielder Jim Eisenreich been able to stay with the club. The stocky, 24-year-old St. Cloud, Minn., native hit .303 in the 34 games he played last season and showed all the earmarks of blossoming into one of the best hitters in the league before asking the club to put him on the voluntarily retired list Wednesday because of a nervous disorder.

No matter how much Minnesota owner Calvin Griffith has been criticized in the past for his frugal spending policy or how often the Twins were written off by others, no one ever laughed at their farm system, which has kept producing consistently.

Two of the men primarily responsible are George Brophy, who heads the farm system, and Ellis Clary, who handles special assignments and knows practically every kid in the country. If he doesn't, he'll find someone who does, and quickly, too.

Next spring, the Twins will have some more good looking prospects reporting to them in Orlando. Almost guaranteeing that is the fact their Triple A Toledo farm club is leading the International League, their Double A Orlando club is first in its division in the Southern League and their Class A Visalia affiliate is atop its division in the California League.

Milton Richman

UPI Sports Editor

You can see the difference in the Twins by the way their players act and the way they talk.

Reliever Ron Davis, who once campaigned to be traded because he felt Griffith was "cheap," no longer talks that way. He wants to stay with the Twins now because he believes they can finish on top in the foreseeable future.

Hrbek feels the same way.

When he was asked how come it took the Twins so long to get some runs after they waited until the fifth inning to score six in Monday night's 12-4 bombing of Baltimore, Hrbek reminded his questioner the game had started at 7:35 p.m.

"We had to wait until the sun went down," he said. "We couldn't see the ball before then."

If you talk with Gardner about the Twins' turnaround, he doesn't think it took place so much this season as it did last in a defeat by the Tigers at Detroit. The game he's referring to was played on May 14 of last year.

"We had two fights in that game and I think that was the making of us," he says. "That's when we got more aggressive and the kids decided nobody was gonna push 'em around anymore."

Gardner was ejected from that game in the fourth inning, but a bit later on Tiger outfielder Chet Lemon charged Pete Redfern after the Twins' right-hander hit him with a pitch on the arm and a free-for-all resulted.

Although Gardner was no longer in the game, he wasn't simply going to stand there in the dugout runway and be a mere spectator. So the Twins' 54-year-old manager jumped in to lend his players whatever support he could.

Later in the same game, Davis was pitching for the Twins and he ran a ball in on Enos Cabell that hit him and touched off another brawl. Gardner got into that one, too.

"What the hell are you doing out here?" Tiger manager Sparky Anderson wanted to know. "You're outta the game, you better get outta here."

"Whaddya mean?" Gardner demanded. "They're my guys, aren't they?" Kirk Gibson homered in the 10th inning to win the game for the Tigers, but the contest was exceptionally costly for both teams. For the Twins, Hrbek, Redfern and Al Williams all emerged with injuries. Hrbek's 23-game hitting streak was snapped. More than that, his right wrist was injured to such an extent in one of the skirmishes, he had to sit out the next 10 days.

Tiger right-hander Dick Rozema, who had taken a flying leap at Castino, tore a ligament in his knee that sidelined him for the rest of the season.

Gardner says the Twins still haven't forgotten that game.

"I think some of the things that happened in that game stuck with all of 'em," he says. "I was impressed by the way they handled themselves after that and by the way they came to camp this spring. You could tell they didn't want anyone calling 'em the Minnesota 'Twinkies' anymore. You could sense they felt they could play with anyone. I think they can now."

Winfield Upstages Marvelous Marvin; Expos, Vail Run Off Carlton, Phillies

NEW YORK — Whether the Yankees win or lose they always put on a show.

Friday night was a big night for fights as Marvelous Marvin Hagler pummeled Wilford Scypion to the canvas for a fourth-round knockout. Dave Winfield, however, wasn't about to be upstaged as he scuffled with Oakland catcher Mike Heath and was promptly banished from the game.

Oakland starter Mike Norris whistled a fastball past Winfield's head in the first inning and the 6-6 slugger pointed an evil finger at the A's right-hander along with a few choice words. Oakland catcher Heath then interceded and Winfield, using his superior reach, arrested Heath's neck before both benches turned the bout into a battle royal.

Lost in the scuffle was a 4-2 Yankee victory. Oakland jumped on starter Ron Guldry for two runs in the first on a homer by Steve Burroughs, but Guldry, 6-3, with relief help from Rich "Goose" Gossage blanked the A's the rest of the way. Greg Nettles walloped a three-run homer in the seventh to saddle Norris with the loss.

Most of the fireworks, though, came after the game when Yankee owner George Steinbrenner jumped all over umpires Darryl Cousins and John Shulock. "Umpires Cousins and Shulock, who are two umpires who worked during the strike and who other umpires refuse to talk to, have both been put on the same umpiring team and it has resulted in a very poor team," said Steinbrenner.

Cousins, of course, had a comeback. "The guy (Steinbrenner) sits up in the stands and judges us. If he wants to be buddy-buddy with some of the umpires, that's fine with me. He's (had a grudge) for us since the strike. I know one thing you're not going to call balls and strikes from on television," he said.

American League President Lee McPhail came to his umpire's rescue, though. He said disciplinary action would be taken against Steinbrenner who made his remarks during the game.

White Sox 3, Rangers 2

CHICAGO — Left fielder Ron Kittle powered a two-run homer in the second inning while LaMarr Hoyt tossed a six-hitter as the Pale Hose nipped Texas. Ex-SCC standout Larry Parrish had two hits for Texas. Harold Baines drove in a run for the Sox and Larry Sample homered for the Rangers.

Tigers 7-2, Twins 4-1

DETROIT — Larry Herndon ripped a 12th-inning home run as the Tigers swept the Twins. Herndon's opposite-field shot came off Rick Lysander and saddled the Twins' rookie with both losses.

In game one, Glenn Wilson and Enos Cabell drove in runs in the seventh inning as the Tigers rapped out 12 hits. John Wockenfuss homered for the Tigers.

Mariners 7, Brewers 5

Seattle won for the sixth time in nine games when it erupted for four runs in the ninth to end the floundering Brewers. Julio Cruz drilled a two-out single to left to provide the margin of difference. Steve Henderson roped three doubles.

Angels 5, Indians 4

California won its fifth straight when Bob Boone singled home Daryl Scotters from third base with one out in the 12th inning. Rod Carew had three hits for the Angels while Luis Sanchez picked up his fifth win in six decisions.

Orioles 7, Royals 4

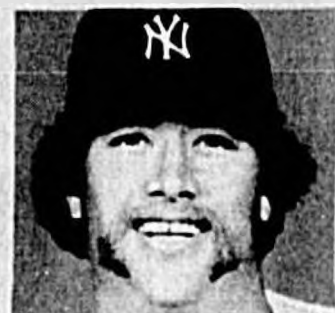

Baltimore snapped a seven-game losing skid as Eddie Murray and Gary Roenicke clubbed homers while Storm Davis, 3-1, and Tippy Martinez combined on an eight-hitter.

It was the Birds' first win since May 19. Larry Gura, who was off to a 4-0 start, lost his sixth straight decision.

Expos 7, Phillies 4

DAVE WINFIELD

GOOSE GOSSAGE

PHILADELPHIA — For once Steve Carlton didn't have it.

Needing just 11 strikeouts to overtake new K-kingpin Nolan Ryan, the Phillies' big left-hander lasted just five innings as the Expos ripped him for 10 hits and four runs en route to victory. Carlton struck out just two.

"I was gonna punt five times, but I wasn't going to be the one to help him break the record," said Montreal's Tim Lincecum Friday. Raines was 1-for-3 with a run scored and an RBI.

Raines walked to lead off the first and recent acquisition Mike Vail followed with a two-run homer to give Montreal the lead. Al Oliver and Tim Wallach followed with doubles for another run. Scott Sanderson, 4-4, picked up the win and Jeff Reardon earned his fifth save.

Cubs 8, Braves 6

ATLANTA — The Cubbies continued to bombard Atlanta pitching as Jody Davis slugged two homers and Warren Bruster gained his first win of the season with 3½ innings of relief work. Lee Smith picked up his sixth save.

Ken Smith hit his first homer of the year for the Braves.

Reds 9, Pirates 0

CINCINNATI — Mario Soto blanked the Pirates on five hits for his second shutout and Eddie Milner drove in three runs as the Reds snapped a three-game losing streak. Milner's two-run double in the fifth broke up pitching duel between Soto and John Candelaria and highlighted a seven-run outburst.

WORLD IN BRIEF

Reporter Arrested In Hitler Diary Fraud

HAMBURG, West Germany — A jailed dealer of Nazi artifacts has admitted he forged the Hitler diaries and claims the reporter who bought them for Stern magazine knew they were a hoax.

After Konrad Kujau, 44, made his confession, police arrested the fired Stern reporter, Gerd Heidemann, 51, and questioned him all day, said Peter Beck, a spokesman for the state prosecutor's office. Heidemann faces possible charges of fraud.

The newspaper Bild Zeitung said Kujau, 44, signed the confession "Yours truly, Adolf Hitler, alias Konrad Kujau." The newspaper said Kujau practiced for two years to perfect the old German script used in the 62 phony volumes of diaries.

Beck said investigators today were still examining papers, books and pictures confiscated during searches of Heidemann's home, office and luxury yacht — once the property of Luftwaffe chief Hermann Goering — and of Kujau's home and shop selling military relics of the Nazis.

Stern, the country's most widely read newsweekly with a circulation of about 1.6 million, has not recovered any of the $3.75 million it paid for the diaries. Kujau, in a statement released by his attorney earlier, said he received less than $1 million.

Soviets Threaten NATO

MOSCOW — The Soviet government made a veiled threat Friday to install nuclear missiles on the territory of its Warsaw Pact allies if NATO goes ahead with plans to install new medium-range U.S. rockets in Western Europe in December.

A government statement also threatened to increase the number of SS-20 missiles in the European part of the Soviet Union. It warned that the Kremlin would reconsider its moratorium on deployment of these weapons if the North Atlantic Alliance begins installing the 572 new U.S. Pershing 2 and Tomahawk cruise missiles.

The United States and the Soviet Union have been negotiating a reduction of medium-range nuclear weapons in Europe for a year and a half without any major breakthrough.

Latin Ministers To Discuss Peace Moves

By Frederick Klei

MEXICO CITY (UPI) — Four Latin American nations seeking peace in Central America open a new round of talks this weekend filled with self-confidence and buoyed by the approval of the U.N. Security Council.

They also see their search for peace as a declaration of independence in foreign affairs by Latin America from the United States — a mood that will be reinforced if their mission succeeds.

Foreign ministers from Mexico, Venezuela, Panama and Colombia plan three days of talks in Panama City, starting Saturday, with their counterparts from the five embattled Central American nations — Costa Rica, Nicaragua, El Salvador, Guatemala and Honduras.

The four countries make up the Contadora group, named after the Panamanian island where they first met in January.

Appalled by the growing violence in Central America and fears of U.S. military involvement, the four nations determined to seek a way to end the violence, pointedly not including the United States in their negotiations.

They feared the explosion of a wider Central American war could spill over into Mexico in the north and Panama in the south.

Venezuela and Colombia, while not immediately threatened, have the same overall objectives — to keep the United States out of the region, bring peace to the countries involved and assert their leadership in Latin America.

Last week, the U.N. Security Council, including the United States, voted unanimously to approve the efforts of the Contadora Group.

Mexican Ambassador to the United Nations, Porfirio Munoz Ledo, said the U.N. decision meant that Latin America was no longer the "reserved dominion" of any power, a clear reference to the Monroe Doctrine of the United States.

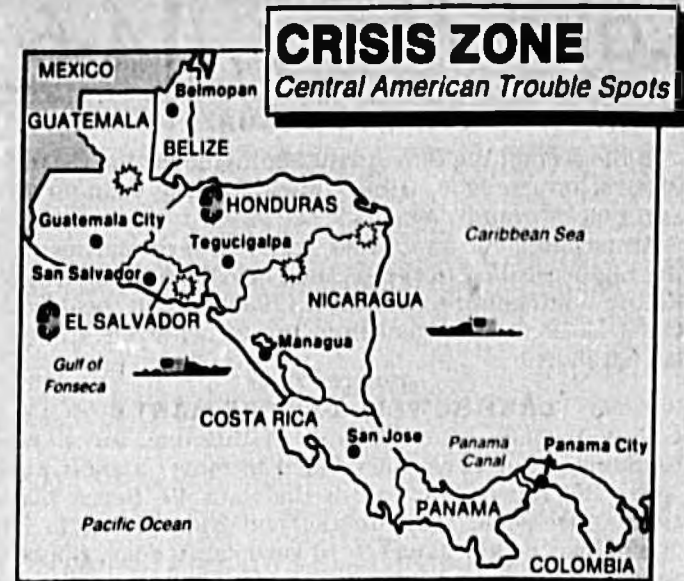

"For the first time since its creation, the U.N. Security Council ... took a decision in a conflict strictly in Latin America and of questions relative to this zone," Munoz said in a visit to Mexico.

Venezuelan President Luis Herrera Campins said this week "the Contadora group's work thus far has been highly productive because it consists of a group of Latin Americans that are seeking solutions to Latin American problems, which we must solve without undue interference or meddling by countries [outside the region]."

The Venezuelans believe that a success by the Contadora Group would be a major step forward for Latin Americans to solve other tough issues that may arise in the region, one official said.

There is no clear sign, however, of exactly how they can satisfy the warring factions as well as the United States.

The main combatants are Nicaragua, Honduras and El Salvador. Leftist Nicaragua is accused of aiding Salvadoran guerrillas. Nicaragua charges that Honduras has allowed the CIA to set up Nicaraguan rebel bases on its soil.

Costa Rica, with no army of its own, fears growing rebel activity along its border will attract incursions by the Nicaraguan army, the largest in Central America.

...Family Rebuilds For The Third Time

The skin came off his fingers, but he did not lose his hands. "It was gruesome," he recalls. "To this day my hands are kind of screwed up. They are very sensitive to hot or cold."

"For three years we had no gifts for Christmas, nothing new; everything I made went into the farm. We made do with the clothes we had," said Eggerich. "I borrowed money to keep the farm going. My dad has gone to Minnesota now to try to sell what is left of the farm. The $14,250 insurance money didn't even cover the value of our cows."

"Our neighbors fought the fire for 14 hours straight in the cold and their wives brought food. I cried like a baby, we had neighbors turn up to help us I had never even seen before. They just knew you was a farmer and you was in trouble and they brought stuff to help," he said. "They gave us encouragement and offered to have a barn raising this summer, but I had no money for materials."

"The irony of it was that we had worked hard all morning getting the barn cleaned up for a Grade A inspection, and if we passed that would mean that at last the farm would begin to be a paying proposition. The inspector was due in about an hour and we were in the kitchen having lunch," he said. "My son, who was home on Christmas leave, looked out the window and saw what looked like wisps of smoke above the barn roof, but thought it might be snow swirling around."

"The whole hay mow came down on the cows. If we had discovered the fire 10 minutes sooner we would have probably been under there."

The volunteer fire department arrived just in time to keep the house, the pig house and chicken coop from going up in flames. The pigs and chickens were later sold to get the money to come to Florida for a new start.

"Ironically, the morning before the fire, my oldest son was sitting on the water tank leaning back against the barn. He said, 'Dad, you know, it's hard to describe what this means. You know I think we've finally made it. If I had it to do again, I don't think I'd have enough strength.' Less than two hours later, there was nothing."

Where do the Eggerichs get the strength to carry on after such setbacks? "I think it's the fact we're not the type to give up," he said. "You can't look back, and cry over spilled milk. You can't let it get the best of you. We worked a lot and lost a lot, but we've got our health, we work good together, and we've got our faith. The most important thing is our love."

for God and our love for each other. That is as much as anyone can expect.

"We're a born-again family, and you just don't quit. I could never take welfare handouts as long as I have two good legs and arms and a sound body."

August Wieboldt, who moved to Sanford in 1928 and opened up a photography studio, says, "When I began, we used dry plates made from glass. Artificial lighting was done mostly with flash powder."

Centenarian Hard-Working German Immigrant Climbs To Goal Of All-American

By Katherine Burkett
Special To The Herald

August Wieboldt has seen a century of change. He has seen this nation both from the eyes of one of its newest citizens, as a German immigrant, and one of its oldest citizens, as a centenarian.

Wieboldt was born in Cuxhaen, Germany, on May 25, 1883. At the age of 15, he boarded a ship to the United States. He came over with a man whose brother owned a grocery store in Savannah, Ga.

The store owner had asked his brother to find a young man to employ, and Wieboldt was eager for the chance.

"I had desired to come to the United States for a good many years. My oldest sister, who lived here for the rest of her life, had come to Chicago when she was 16.

"Quite a few people were doing this at the time - the opportunities were greater," said Wieboldt.

During a trip back to Germany in 1907, Wieboldt ran into Mimi Meyer, a childhood friend he hadn't seen for years. She had also immigrated to the U.S., and was in the service of a family in Washington, D.C.

Upon his return to the U.S., Wieboldt went to live with his sister in Chicago, but kept in touch with Mimi Meyer. In 1908, he entered one of the two photography colleges in the U.S., in Effingham, Ill.

Wieboldt married Mimi Meyer in 1913, and they moved to a farm near Ft. Meyers, Fl. It was primarily a chicken farm, but they grew other things. On his dresser, he has a picture of Mimi holding a monstrous squash they had raised there.

All three of their children were born during the time they lived on the farm. The family eventually moved to Sanford, and Wieboldt opened a photography studio on Park Avenue in 1928.

The business was located in an old two-story house. The family lived in one part, and a portion was renovated to accommodate the business. "We tore down part of the porch and built the studio," said Wieboldt.

Wieboldt said that photography has changed drastically since he began.

"When I began, we used dry plates made from glass. Artificial lighting was done mostly with flash powder. About the time I went into business, they began to use electricity.

"I started with an arc-light that they used to use for street lighting. They used carbons one foot long. The carbons in the street lights had to be changed every day," Wieboldt said.

He ran the studio until 1953 when his son took over. His son owned it until several years ago. "I had it for almost 25 years and my son had it for almost 25 years - that's almost fifty years between us," Wieboldt said.

August Wieboldt with two of his children, Lydia Carlson of Dallas, Texas, and Bill Wieboldt of Sanford, was honored on his 100th birthday Wednesday, May 25 in the parlor at Bram Towers in Sanford. Friends, children and grandchildren joined the celebrant for the memorable occasion. Wieboldt was born in Germany in 1883 and came to America as a grocery store clerk when he was 15.

Upon retirement, he and his wife moved to Casselberry. During this time, Wieboldt became friends with Jimmy Birkenmeyer, a Casselberry resident who recently celebrated his 100th birthday. "He was 13 days older than me - he used to call me 'kid,'" said Wieboldt.

He and Mimi celebrated their golden anniversary in 1963. In 1971, Mimi died, and Wieboldt moved to Bram Towers a year later.

Wieboldt spends his days reading and looking after his apartment. "I do my own cooking and housework," Wieboldt boasted.

His apartment is comfortably furnished and decorated with souvenirs of a century of happiness. His walls are covered with photographs of his children, his wife, his golden wedding anniversary celebration and even a beloved professor from his boyhood in Germany.

The shelf in the coffee table is lined with religious books, and more than a few Bibles - some in German and some in English.

Out of his window, Wieboldt can see the Sanford that he has seen change over the course of time. "That Winn-Dixie used to be a mule stable," he recalls. Wieboldt said that although the automobile was the main means of city transportation when he arrived in Sanford, he remembers talk about streetcars in years before.

Wieboldt remembers the economic situation of Florida in the early part of the century.

"When we came here, during the mid-twenties, Florida was having a boom. Everything was changing quickly, and property values tripled. I knew people who would buy property in the morning, sell it in the evening, and make a profit.

"Then the market just dropped. People began leaving the state as fast as they came. You couldn't sell.

"Most property was for sale by the company that owned the mortgage. They sold the property whenever they had a chance. Rents were cheap, too," Wieboldt said.

He remembers a house he bought then at 815 Laurel Ave. for $2,000.

Wieboldt's three children are spread over the globe. His oldest daughter, Wilhelmine Wieboldt, is a missionary in India. His son Wilhelm (Bill) is a Sanford resident. Lydia Carlson, his youngest, works with a group of Bible translators. She is currently living in Dallas, Texas.

Wieboldt has seven grandchildren and two great grandchildren.

Relaxing in his apartment at Bram Towers, August Wieboldt lives alone and boasts that he does all his housework and cooking.

Well-wisher congratulates Wieboldt with birthday greetings

Hello Dolly! It's So Nice To Have You Back...

That's the real Carol Channing, all right, getting all emotional over a bouquet of red roses when she showed up for a fashion show in Seminole County. The "Hello Dolly" star tells Burdines vice president and regional manager Howard A. Volpert and spectators what her late stage husband says about money and spreading it around.

Hello Dolly — It's so nice to have you back...

Carol Channing, the vivacious energetic star of "Hello Dolly" visited Seminole County Tuesday to attend a fashion show, Fashions for the Theatre, presented at Burdines in Altamonte Mall.

Miss Channing is appearing as Dolly Levy in the popular play for the second time at the Bob Carr Auditorium in Orlando. At her previous appearance over four years ago, Miss Channing celebrated her 2,000th performance with flair and fanfare, including a huge cake wheeled on stage after the finale.

Howard A. Volpert, Burdines' vice president and regional manager Central Florida, says about 400 chairs were set up in the Better Dress Department of the store and the crowds spilled over into other areas. He estimates about 1,000 spectators attended the show to meet Miss Channing who was there with her husband, Carl.

The wide-eyed comedienne told the throngs that she wanted to be a model in earlier days which eventually led to her role in the theatre.

And then the world-famous musical comedy star wowed them.

In her warm and sparkling commentary, Carol quoted a few famous last words from the play regarding her late husband's sentiments about money - "It's like manure. You have to spread it around for it to do any good, and that's what Burdines is doing today."

The audience loved it! Miss Channing was speechless when she received a bouquet of red roses from the associates of Burdines. She may be accustomed to flowers after performing, but flowers at an afternoon fashion show set a new trend for the appreciative actress.

While most of the spectators were attired in lightweight summer clothes on the sizzling afternoon, Miss Channing wore a mid-calf length, long-sleeved, lace-trimmed ensemble, fashioned along a modified peasant silhouette, complemented with boots.

Volpert was generous in his complimentary remarks about the charming star. "She's a very fine gal," he said. "She's very accommodating and takes that extra mile. She likes to do things for people and is nice to kids."

Miss Channing's jewelry dazzled Herald staff photographer Tommy Vincent. "She sure had a lot of diamonds on," he said, shaking his head.

There's no doubt about it that when Carol Channing portrays Dolly Sunday at 2 p.m. in the final Central Florida show, heads will shake and turn as the petite, doll-like personality struts her stuff. And the inimitable Dolly will surely dazzle the fans - again and again.

ACS Needs Mastectomy Patients

Mastectomy patients who had surgery at least one year ago are urgently needed to serve as volunteers in the Reach to Recovery program of the American Cancer Society. Additional volunteers are needed for the Sanford/Lake Mary Unit.

The Reach to recovery program consists of a one to one visit from an individual who has experienced everything the patient is going through. It is a morale booster welcomed by the physician for his patient. It is offered only upon the request of the patient's physician.

A larger corps of volunteers will enable the society to schedule patient visits more rapidly to offset some of the apprehension experienced so many times by surgery patients.

Interested persons should contact the American Cancer Society at the Sanford office, 322-0849, between 9 a.m. and 2 p.m.

SHS Flutist Honored With National Award

George and Dianne Holding of Pine Lane Drive, Sanford, must be bursting with pride right now over the honor their daughter, Charlotte, received from the United States Achievement Academy.

Charlotte was chosen as the 1983 National Award winner for her participation and excellence as a flute player with the Seminole High School Marching Band.

The criteria for selection by the academy is based on the student's academic performance, interest, aptitude, leadership qualities, responsibility, enthusiasm, motivation, cooperative spirit, attitude, citizenship and dependability.

Charlotte was nominated for the award by band teacher Bob McGuire of Seminole High. The academy only recognizes less than 10 percent of all American high school students; therefore, this honor is an award that very few students can ever hope for.

The name of Charlotte Holding will appear in the nationally published yearbook of the United States Achievement Academy. Charlotte's other interest include piano, swimming and jazz dancing.

Bob and Evelyn Donaldson of Lake Mary have had a lot to be excited about this past week. Their son, R.P.C. Lawrence R. Donaldson, is finally returning to the states from his Navy tour in Italy. Larry, a religious program chief, has been stationed aboard the U.S.S. Puget Sound, which was home-based in Gaeta, Italy for the last three-and-one-half years.

The Donaldsons had not seen their son since March of 1982 and could hardly wait for him to show up last Wednesday. Larry arrived with his two children, Chris and Leslie Ann, after a short visit with his in-laws.

Larry's wife, Marsha, is still in Italy where she is presently teaching elementary school. At the end of the school semester, Marsha, along with the family dog, Duke, will fly in.

Larry plans to finish up his last three years of military service on shore duty at the Naval Air Station Test Center in Pensacola. When he retires in June 1986, he and his family will move to Lake Mary. Welcome Home Larry, Marsha, Chris, Leslie Ann and Duke.

Wayne and Carol Hoffman will be two of the proud parents to attend a dance recital being held on June 19 at the Concert Hall of Seminole Community College.

Their daughter, Sherry,

Karen Warner

who is a student at the Betty Vaccaro School of Dance, is just one of the students who will take part in the more than 20 dance numbers performed.

According to dance instructor Betty Vaccaro, girls from 10 of her classes will be performing jazz, modern, tap and ballet numbers. The recital will be free and the public is welcome. The recital will be from 2-4 p.m.

Lake Mary Woman's Club members Alice Moughton, Betty Lindmeier, Betty Gregory and Lillian Megonegal recently attended a District VII Workshop/luncheon in Leesburg. The meeting was to acquaint the members with club job responsibilities and to meet and get familiar with other leaders.

Highlights of the meeting were two guest speakers. Tisha Biegel, a representative of A.W.A.R.E. (alerting women about resources and energy) spoke on Florida electric utilities position and on proposed acid rain legislation.

Following Tisha was Delores Humphries, Florida Federation of Women's Clubs Public Affairs chairman of F.R.E.E. (federation's role on economics). Delores spoke to the members on identifying and recognizing achievements in promoting the cause of free enterprise.

Betty Lindmeier presented a beautiful hand-painted money box to Jane Kelly, Director of District VII, inscribed with the logo, "Journey Over the Rainbow." (Which Betty hand painted herself). The money in the box was donated to the Hacienda Girls Ranch.

Earlier in the month, at the FFWC convention held at the Hyatt Hotel in Orlando, club member Lillian Megonegal was awarded third place in the Christmas craft contest. Lillian entered a brightly colored Christmas wreath she had made.

There are still a few tickets left for the breakfast being held at Cafe Sorrento on June 6. The breakfast will honor the new officers of Lake Mary Chamber of Commerce. Special guest will be Sheriff John Polk. Tickets are $2.50, and may be obtained by contacting Cindy Brown at 322-7351. The breakfast starts at 8 a.m.

Students at Lake Mary High School have been celebrating "Red-Gray Spirit Week" this past week. Spirit week is a time for students to break school dress codes and do all they can to muster up their school spirit.

But it's not just all for fun, for the enthusiasm that is raised leads right into the Seminole County Football Jamboree, where county schools get a chance to compete in a good old-fashioned game of football. This year the jamboree was held at Lake Brantley High School.

Community Joins In Celebration For The Kings

A reception Sunday, May 22, in fellowship hall of the First United Methodist Church, Sanford, honored the Rev. Leo King and his wife, Rubye. Rev. King is retiring June 12 from the ministry as well as church pastor where he has served 10 years.

Nancy Terwilliger, president of the United Methodist Women, estimates that more than 250 church members and friends in the community attended the event headed up by Mabel Chapman, chairman of the church Administrative Board.

Appropriately, a king's crown decorated the top tier of a unique retirement cake made by Mrs. Roy Wall. Other keepsake miniatures, including a rocking chair, decorated the work of art.

But the frosting on the cake was a large love offering the couple received that left Leo and Rubye nearly speechless. According to church secretary Dottie Head, nearly $5,000 was collected for the Kings. This amount includes the church members, individuals, choirs and the youth of the church who held bake sales, car washes and other fund-raisers to contribute $100.

Rev. King received a plaque from the church, presented by Boyd Coleman and written by Jean Leonard, and a United Methodist Centennial plate.

On behalf of the Greater Sanford Chamber of Commerce, Jack Horner presented Rev. King with a plaque reading in part, "distinguished and unselfish service to this community."

Ashby Jones led a "roast" and Sanford Attorney Ed Shiholzer read a poem he wrote. Also, Leslie McEwan wrote a poem which was framed on parchment and illustrated by Gretchen Lewis.

The retiring minister's community services include the following: Golden Age Games, Sanford Kiwanis Club, Seminole County Ministerial Association, Oasis Workshop, Salvation Army, Sanford Senior Citizens, Florida Methodist Children's Home Board and the Bram Towers Board, among others.

Overall chairman of the reception were Nancy Terwilliger and Nellie Coleman. Jean Norris was in charge of decorations which featured live plants and arrangements including two large arrangements of roses — one pink, and one red.

Mrs. Walter Carter and Mrs. Rupert Strickland contributed bouquets of daisies. Mrs. L.M. Swain made the pastel colored butter mints and background piano music was provided by James Thomas, church minister of music, and Catherine Whelchel. The women of the church were floating hostesses.

The Rev. and Mrs. King returned Thursday from the Florida Methodist Conference in Lakeland where his retirement was made official. "They got rid of me," he joked. He was honored at a dinner, Rubye received an orchid, and he received a button...and a well-deserved standing ovation.

And now the Kings plan to relax — at least for a day or two.

Melba and Meade Cooper will celebrate their 50th wedding with a reception on June 11. Invitations were sent out by a daughter from Las Cruces, N.M. Those receiving invitations were instructed to RSVP regrets to Melba's sister, Winifred "Bill" Gielow at her home phone.

While the invitations were en route, Bill was hospitalized in Daytona Beach, as the result of a tragic accident. She has now been dismissed and is convalescing at the home of a daughter and son-in-law, Bonnie and Henry Schumacher. Bill asks that regrets be phoned to her at 323-1961.

Although immobile, she seems in good spirits and plans to attend the anniversary celebration. One of her concerns is that she cannot use her right arm to write "thank-you" notes for all the kindnesses extended to her and her husband, Walter.

But as a Roberta Gatchel Woman of the Year recipient, Bill Gielow will not attend the annual celebration Wednesday when the Kiwanis Club of Sanford announces its 1983-84 woman of the year and honors the 13 previous winners of the prestigious award presented to a local woman nominated by a woman's club for her outstanding community services.

According to Robert E. (Bob) Daehn, Sanford Kiwanis Club's special awards chairman, the award was established in 1969 in the memory of the Sanford Kiwanis Club benefactress Roberta Gatchel who catered Kiwanis luncheons for many years. He says the award is presented each year to the Sanford area woman who has done the most for her club and the community. Each woman's club is given the opportunity to nominate one of its members, he says, and a special committee selects the winner from nominations.

Birthday greetings to: William Tyre and Patricia Dearolph, May 23; Norma Ragsdale and Richard Fowler, May 24; Anne Kanady, Amy Brough, Mary Elizabeth Nance, Robert O'Neil and Jane Cash, May 25; Betty Halback, May 26; Jeanette L. Kidder, May 27; Mary Laurel (Laurie) Blair, May 28; Bruce J. Bauder and Jo-Anne VanLooven, May 29; and Mary Blair, May 30.

Happy anniversary to: Mildred and Joseph Nicholas, May 25; and Aria Jane and Raymond Lundquist, May 26.

Ashby Jones, center, presents a love offering to the Rev. Leo King and his wife, Rubye, at a retirement reception given in their honor. Friends and church members showered the couple with lots of love in the amount of about $5,000.

Aging Mom's Condition Breaks Daughter's Heart

DEAR ABBY: How does one answer the senile elderly nursing home patient who asks, "Why am I here?"

My mother, who is in her late 80s, has been in a small, comfortable nursing facility for almost five years. She is in fairly good physical health, but her mind has been failing for 10 to 15 years.

There are days when she doesn't know me, and nights when she gets up at 2 a.m. to prowling the nursing home searching for her husband who has been dead for five years, but in her more lucid moments, she asks, "Why am I living here with strangers?"

She says she is a "prisoner" and wants to live where she has more freedom. But in order for her to be "free," a still-productive member of the family with other responsibilities would then become the prisoner.

How can I answer my mother? This is the heartbreak of my life.

GETTING OLD MYSELF

DEAR GETTING OLD: An increasing number of people are experiencing the same kind of heartache.

The fact that your mother is confused most of the time indicates that she needs around-the-clock care and attention, and unless you can provide this in your own home, she is much better off in a private nursing facility. (Be glad you can afford it.)

In her more lucid moments, take her in your arms, tell her you love her, and explain honestly that she is where she is because of your concern for her safety.

I know it must be painful to send your mother who has nursed you, fed you and sacrificed for you to "live with strangers," but believe me, in your case, it is the most sensible solution for all concerned, so don't feel guilty.

DEAR ABBY: Last night my 17-year-old daughter came home from a date at 1:15 a.m. She invited her date in and they went to the family room to watch TV.

Knowing she was home for the night, I dropped off to sleep. At 3:30 a.m. I awakened. I went downstairs to turn off the lights and found my daughter and her date sleeping with the TV still on! I woke them up and told them it was 3:30.

Dear Abby

then I went back to bed, thinking the boy would leave. At 4 a.m. he was still there, so I called my daughter out of the room and sternly told her it was time her date went home. At 4:30, he still had not left, so I went downstairs and calmly said, "I think it's time you went home, young man." I stood right there until he left (a matter of seconds).

Afterward I grounded my daughter for the weekend. Now she is angry with me. She says I "embarrassed" her, and because of me the boy will probably never ask her out again.

Was I wrong? What would you have done, Abby?

MIDWEST MOTHER

DEAR MOTHER: You were not wrong. I would have done exactly what you did. Only I'd have done it sooner.

DEAR ABBY: I am a 34-year-old divorced woman, raising five children alone. My problem is my 15-year-old daughter. She skips school, lies, smokes and runs away. My other children are well-behaved and abide by my rules, which are not too strict. I've been to counselors, social workers, priests, etc., but nothing seems to help.

I don't know where else to turn. I love this child, but she refuses to cooperate, and I don't want her attitude to rub off on the younger ones. Where can I send her to make her behave?

END OF MY ROPE

DEAR END: You can't send a 15-year-old incorrigible child anywhere to "make her behave."

First, to find out whether her anti-social behavior is caused by a medical or emotional disorder, she needs to be examined. If she's healthy and normal, try love.

Let her know that you love her and want to be her friend. Open your arms and your heart.

What does a man mean when he says, "Let's get down to brass tacks"? He means that he thinks it's time to discuss the real issue.

And that's always a good idea! Nothing is gained by "beating around the bush." Wise men seek the issue . . . and settle it!

In America there are millions of people who attend and support the Church. There are other millions who do not. What is the real issue on which these two groups disagree?

This is the issue: Is man the self-sufficient master of his world, able to overcome every problem by his own strength . . . OR is man the noblest creation of an all-powerful God, weak in the face of life's turmoil when he stands alone, but strong when he joins heart and hand with God?

You're a man and you've seen something of life! Getting down to brass tacks . . . are you stronger WITH GOD or without?

COMMUNITY UNITED METHODIST CHURCH

RELIGION

Evening Herald, Sanford, Fl. Sunday, May 29, 1983—5B

Briefly

Charles Swindoll Series Begins At Central Baptist

A new film series by Charles R. Swindoll, senior pastor of the First Evangelical Free Church in Fullerton, Calif., will be screened at Central Baptist Church, 1311 Oak Ave., Sanford, beginning this Sunday at 5:45 p.m.

Swindoll offers an alternative to today's dizzying changes, confusing "overchoice", and moral uncertainty.

"There are some fixed points, and you don't have to be washed away in this tide of confusion," Swindoll says in the series, called "Strengthening Your Grip." It is based on his best-selling book by the same title.

The first film is on "Attitudes: Choosing the Food You Serve Your Mind." Swindoll urges a mental diet of something other than "media clutter" for anyone wanting to improve their outlook on life.

Spring Concert Scheduled

The Reddick Memorial First Born Church Choir No. 1 will hold its Spring Concert at 6 p.m. this Sunday at King and Broadway in Midway. Theme for the concert will be "Are You Ready for the Coming of the Lord?" The choir is under the direction of Minister Marlowe Smith. Elder J.J. Ligon is pastor.

Schaefer Film Series

A film series called "The Rise and Decline of Western Thought and Culture" by Dr. Francis Schaefer, an American living in Switzerland, will begin Wednesday at Trinity Assembly of God, 875 Elkcam Boulevard, Deltona at 7:30 p.m. The films will be shown and discussed for the next nine weeks. This week's film is entitled, "The Middle Ages" and is open to the public.

Vesper Service Slated

Dr. Jay T. Cosmato, pastor of the Seminole Heights Baptist Church, announces a vesper service to be held at 5 p.m. this Sunday at Lake Mary High School auditorium. In addition to a message on "The Abundant Life" by the pastor, the Seminole High School Concert Chorus directed by Laurel Ellmore, also Seminole Heights choir director, will sing several selections.

Following the service the church youth and members of the chorus will be guests of Mr. and Mrs. Tom Deppen, 2411 Oak Ave., Sanford, for a swim party. The usual Sunday night youth choir and church training programs will not be held this week.

The summer youth program begins with a Bible study, Saturday, June 4, at 7 p.m. at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Jim Sillaway, of 105 Ramblewood Drive.

Student Pastor Hired

The Presbytery of First Presbyterian Church of Sanford has approved the hiring of Richard Danielak, a Columbia Theological Seminary student, as student pastor for the summer. He served as a Roman Catholic priest for 21 years and left the church to become married. Because of his previous background, the seminary is allowing him to finish in one year. He will be presented to the Presbytery Tuesday night. His wife, Rose, has six children from a previous marriage.

The Rev. Hugh Pain, who has been serving as Christian Education consultant at First Presbyterian, will continue through June. He will oversee the Vacation Church School July 18-24.

Conference Speaker

Dr. E. Earl Joiner, professor and chairman of the religion department at Stetson University, Deland, is featured speaker at the South Central Conference of the United Church of Christ, meeting this weekend on the campus of Texas Lutheran College near San Antonio. Pastor of Baptist congregations for several years in Florida and Kentucky, he joined the Stetson faculty in 1955. His Saturday morning address was titled "A Baptist Talks Straight to the United Church of Christ" and on Sunday morning he will speak on "The Churches and the World" and lead a discussion group.

Disaster Relief

In order to help alleviate some of the burden the people of Colombia have been suffering under since the catastrophic May 31 earthquake struck Popayan, the Orlando Catholic Diocese with the help of the Consul of Colombia, is supporting an aid campaign. Money collected will be used to buy tents where people can set up house until the government of Colombia restores damaged areas. Seventy-five percent of the city and six surrounding villages were destroyed. Some 250 persons were killed and another 1500 injured. Seventeen churches, three universities, three museums, the airport and more than 2,000 homes were demolished.

Any other monies collected will be sent directly to the Catholic Relief Services in Washington, which will send them to the church in Colombia. Contributions may be made in care of Earthquake Victims-Hispanic Affairs Office, P.O. Box 1800, Orlando, Fl. 32802.

Women's Day

The Mt. Zion Missionary Baptist Church of Sanford in Midway will host its annual Women's Day program on June 5. The 11 a.m. speaker will be Evangelist Viola Graham of Sanford. The 3 p.m. service will feature two of Mt. Zion's own, Ella Jean Walton and Deborah Stunstrum.

DeBary Women Meet

The DeBary United Methodist Women will meet at 1:30 p.m. June 7 in the church parlor. Rebecca Smith will show slides and tapes on the IFYE student program. Marie Fehd will conduct a memorial program and Peg Hamrich will have the devotions. Esther Circle will be in charge of refreshments. This will be the last meeting until September.

Youth Fundraisers

The Community United Methodist Church Youth Fellowship will hold a car wash and bake sale from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. Saturday, June 4, at the church located at Highway 17-92 and Piney Ridge Road in Casselberry.

Centenarian August Wieboldt

Baptists Honor Wieboldt At 100

Last Sunday was August Wieboldt Day at the Casselberry Baptist Church, 770 Seminola Blvd., Casselberry, as the pastor, the Rev. Samuel Elliott, and congregation went all out to honor their 100-year-old member.

During the morning worship service a tribute was given to Mr. Wieboldt, who lives in Bram Towers, Sanford. It included a historical sketch, a congratulatory message from President Ronald Reagan, and a special presentation of a "money tree".

After the service a dinner was held in his honor in the Crump Memorial Building next door to the church and the guest of honor blew out the candles on his birthday cake. "Only three candles?" he asked.

Appropriately chosen for the service was the 100th Psalm and the hymns, "I Know Not Why God's Wondrous Grace" and "Jesus Is Tenderly Calling Today," both of which were penned the year he was born. The other hymn, "How Great Thou Art" came two years later. The choir sang "Seek Ye First the Kingdom of God," based on Mr. Wieboldt's favorite scripture verse, Matthew 6:33.

The pastor's sermon topic was, "Every Man Has a History."

In his comments in "The Pastor's Pen", Elliott pointed out that in 1883, the year of Mr. Wieboldt's birth, Queen Victoria ruled Britain, Chester A. Arthur was president of the United States, and William the First reigned in Germany, the land of Mr. Wieboldt's birth. The Brooklyn Bridge had just opened the day before he was born.

A former Casselberry resident, Mr. Wieboldt continued to attend the church even after he moved to Sanford, riding the bus until his Sunday route was cancelled. Since then he has gotten a ride to and from church with his former neighbor, Mrs. M. Kramer.

Bishop Hunt Assigns Pastors To Churches

Three local churches were among those assigned new ministers by Bishop Earl G. Hunt Jr. Friday at the conclusion of the five-day 141st annual session of the United Methodist Church's Florida Conference in Lakeland.

The Rev. George A. Bule III is coming to First United Methodist Church of Sanford to replace the Rev. Leo F. King, pastor of the church for the past 10 years, who is retiring in Sanford. Rev. King's last Sunday will be June 12 and the 36-year-old Bule, currently pastor of Aldersgate United Methodist Church, Seminole, is expected to arrive here on June 13.

The Rev. Harry A. Goddard, pastor of Community United Methodist Church, Daytona Beach, has been assigned to First United Methodist Church of Oviedo replacing the Rev. Jennings Need Jr., who will be moving to Killbuck United Methodist Church, Tallahassee.

Darryl Barrs was assigned as part-time local pastor to the Trinity United Methodist Church, Sanford.

Translations Reach 200 By Wycliffe Linguists

Officials of Wycliffe Bible Translators and its sister organization, the Summer Institute of Linguistics, has announced that linguists and minority language speakers of the two organizations have completed translation of the New Testament into 200 indigenous languages.

At a May 26 ceremony in Duncanville, Texas, presidents of WBT and SIL, David Cummings and Kenneth Gregerson, jointly presented the officially designated 200th New Testament, a translation into the Hanga language of Ghana, West Africa.

The linguists involved in this Bible translation project, British workers Geoffrey and Rosemary Hunt, participated in the event, as did three representatives of the Ghana Institute of Linguistics, Literacy and Bible Translation, under whose auspices the Hunts' work was completed. Unable to attend were the three Hanga workers, translation assistant Sumbini Abutu, co-translator Alfred Issah Adjei, and translation checker David Gbaamanga.

A highlight of the celebration was the premiere performance of an original drama, "Beyond the Bookcase," written and produced by WBT personnel. It showed 199 completed minority language New Testaments completely filling one bookcase, with the 200th as the first book placed in a large, empty bookcase, pointing to the huge unfinished task—there are still 3,000 languages with no Bible.

Through the combined efforts of many organizations the Bible or portions of it have now been translated into 1,763 languages. This includes the 200 New Testaments and hundreds of portions produced through the efforts of WBT and SIL. Workers of these organizations have begun linguistic studies in approximately 1,000 languages since the beginning of their work in 1934. Some 4,750 linguists and support workers are currently at work or in training, with linguistic research and Bible translation projects under way in nearly 800 languages to 40 countries.

The Hanga language is spoken by 3,000 to 4,000 persons living in northern Ghana. Although few have had much formal schooling, Hanga adults are currently learning to read and write their own language in an "each one teach one" effort. Adjei and Gbaamanga see the literacy effort as a culturally accepted way of spreading the Gospel. Whereas there were no Christians and no churches among the Hanga people before the introduction of translated scriptures, now small groups of Christians are forming in the area.

Resurrection Episcopal To Buy Academy, Land

By Jane Casselberry
Herald Religion Editor

The year-old Episcopal Church of the Resurrection has agreed to purchase the Sweetwater Academy, kindergarten through eighth grade private school in southwest Seminole County, and 10 acres of land on Lake Brantley for an undisclosed sum, according to the church's vicar, the Rev. George W. McCammon.

The church is presently meeting in the Forest City Elementary School for its 9:30 a.m. Sunday services. He said the church plans to build a sanctuary that will seat 250-300 persons on the new property later this year as the first phase of church building. Meanwhile, the Church of the Resurrection will continue to hold services at the Forest City school. The church office, however, will be moved to Sweetwater Academy in two weeks, McCammon said.

As part of the agreement, Paul and Jean Leffler, from whom the parish is purchasing the school and property, will continue to operate the interdenominational academy until the church takes over the operation for the 1984-85 school year.

"There had been a lot of interest in developing the wooded lakefront property, but the owners considered it 'God's property,'" McCammon said. "Being able to acquire the school and the land for the church was a beautiful marriage. They were happy with the agreement and we were happy."

"We will spend the year getting to know the faculty and students and integrating a good program," said McCammon. "The academy now has 150 students and enrollment for the coming year is higher."

The Rev. Benton Ellis, headmaster of Trinity Preparatory School at Goldenrod, and his staff have agreed to act as consultants for Sweetwater Academy during the transition, according to McCammon.

He said Resurrection, which serves Sweetwater, the Springs, Wekiva and Lake Brantley areas, has between 200 and 300 members and is the fastest growing Episcopal church in Central Florida.

A former Seminole Community College trustee, McCammon was in real estate and investment in the county before going into the ministry. He attended Virginia Theological Seminary in Alexandria, Va., for three years before becoming ordained 2½ years ago.

Registration is now open for the interdenominational summer camp to be held at Sweetwater Academy for boys and girls ages 5-14. The cost is $70 for a two-week session. For information call the church office at 788-3704.

Ritchey Joins Staff At Central Baptist

Chris Ritchey will be joining the staff of Central Baptist Church this Sunday. He will be assisting the pastor, Dr. Freddie Smith, in program ministries. He will also give direction to the on-going youth ministry.

He comes to Central from a four-year ministry at Heights Baptist Church, Pensacola. He has a background in associate pastor and youth work previously serving at First Baptist, Sanford, Pittsboro (N.C.) Baptist.

He is a native of Columbus, Ga., and is married to the former Elizabeth Jenkins of Pensacola. They have a 1½-year-old daughter, Hope.

There will be a reception following the 7 p.m. worship service to welcome the Ritcheys.

Local Pastors To Lunch At Jail

Seminole County Jail Chaplain Charles "Chuck" Pitroff and the Seminole County President's Council of Good News Mission will host pastors of county churches at a complimentary luncheon at 11:30 a.m., Thursday at the Seminole County Correctional Facility courtesy of Sheriff John Polk and Jail Administrator Jim Shultz.

The speakers at the luncheon are Harry Green, the new president of Good News Mission, an international jail ministry with headquarters in Arlington, Va., and outgoing president and founder of the organization, Dr. William Simmer.

Purpose of the luncheon is to familiarize area ministers with the work that the Chaplain Pitroff is doing and the need for community support particularly from local churches.

Chairman of the President's Council, which is giving local leadership to the chaplain, is Dr. Freddie Smith, pastor of the Central Baptist Church of Sanford. Other officers include Seminole Community College President Dr. Earle Weldon, vice chairman; Jenny Long, secretary; and the Rev. Thomas Shelton of Rolling Hills Moravian Church, Longwood, program chairman.

Any pastor wishing to attend should contact the Central Baptist Church office at 322-2914 or the chaplain's office at 323-2550, ext. 221, to make a reservation.

A $30,717 12-month budget to support the chaplain and his ministry here prepared by the budget committee of the council, consisting of Weldon, Bob Gregory and Judge S. Joseph Davis, has been approved. However, the jail ministry is supported entirely by voluntary contributions and receipts are currently falling far short of the amount needed to meet the minimum budget.

Income in March totalled $427.16 from churches and individuals, according to Pitroff.

Chaplain Pitroff reported at the May meeting of the council that during April, he had held three weekly church services with an average attendance of 44; that an average total attendance at the four weekly Bible classes was 42 and nine attended a film showing. There were an average of 22 counselors, who counseled an average of 68 inmates each week. There were 24 decisions for Christ and an average of eight volunteers graded 172 Bible lessons per week. He also did crisis counseling and social ministry with the inmates' families.

The chaplain is also available to speak on the jail ministry at local churches and groups.— Jane Casselberry.

By Oswald Jacoby and James Jacoby

Here is a four-spade contract that is close to the ultimate in play and counterplay. Normal play shows East taking two hearts right away and a spade later on for a North-South game.

Expert East can lead his singleton diamond at trick two, get in with the ace of spades, underlead his top hearts to West's eight and get a diamond ruff.

Expert South can foil this play by a loser-on-loser play. He plays A-K-6 of clubs and throws dummy's second heart. Now there is no way to get West in to lead.

Great expert East can do better. He jettisons his queen and jack of clubs under the ace-king so that West can win the third club or at least force dummy to ruff it.

Careless West can upset East's apperant by playing his eight of clubs on the six spot. Now poor East must win that club trick.

Finally, we come to the pluperfect. East does get rid of the queen and jack of clubs, but West is smart enough to make the crocodile coup of putting up his 10 to shut out East's nine.

We don't know if this hand wasn't made up, but the late Norman Bonney gave it to George Coffin, who named it the rainbow hand because of its many colors.

HOROSCOPE

What The Day Will Bring...

YOUR BIRTHDAY
MAY 29, 1983

Words spoken to you in confidence will play an important role in the year ahead. Information, thus imparted by friends can help further your ambitions.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) It's essential that you first gain the confidence of one whose help you now need before requesting assistance. Take time to develop the association. Gemini predictions for the year ahead are now ready. Romance, career, luck, earnings, travel and much more are discussed. Send $1 to Astro-Graph, Box 489, Radio City Station, N.Y. 10019. Be sure to state your zodiac sign. Send an additional $2 for the NEW Astro-Graph Matchmaker wheel and booklet. Reveals romantic combinations and compatibilities for all signs.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Helpful results will come today from a discussion with a friend who knows how to analyze problems in a realistic, practical manner.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Act in harmony with your thoughts today, especially where your career aspirations are concerned. Your ideas will work if given a chance.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) It's important that you keep the lines of communication open with a helpful contact who now lives a considerable distance from you. Call or write today.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Focus your mind today on a domestic problem you've been trying to resolve. You should be able to find the solutions which have been evading you.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Keep your plans flexible today so that you'll be able to make changes in case something more fun comes up than that which you originally had in mind.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Look for small ways to economize today. If something is broken, see if you can mend it yourself or have it repaired instead of replacing it.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Although you may not be in the mood early in the day, social involvements will be important to you. Be sure to arrange something for the evening hours.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Family members will have difficulty keeping secrets from you today, especially if you feel inclined to probe. The truth will not elude you.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Today will be more fun for you if you mix with friends who share similar interests. Get together with pals who are on your wavelength.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) You may only realize a modest return from something you do today, yet your pride of accomplishment will exceed anything profit could offer.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Others put considerable value on your ideas today. One over whom you think you have little influence will follow your suggestions to the letter.

YOUR BIRTHDAY

This coming year you may feel impelled to make some major changes in your life. Once you commit yourself to a positive course, proceed without looking back.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Lady Luck may be taking a day off, so it's best to avoid speculative situations today. Without her help, the odds may be against you. Gemini predictions for the year ahead are now ready. Romance, career, luck, earnings, travel and much more are discussed. Send $1 to Astro-Graph, Box 489, Radio City Station, N.Y. 10019. Be sure to state your zodiac sign. Send an additional $2 for the NEW Astro-Graph Matchmaker wheel and booklet. Reveals romantic combinations and compatibilities for all signs.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Don't permit old, unresolved domestic issues to surface today, especially in front of outsiders. Something embarrassing and unpleasant could result.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Be very careful today not to make hard tasks even more difficult. If co-workers suggest better methods, try to be receptive, not resistant.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) A lesson can be learned in budgeting if you review your financial situation realistically. Don't condemn yourself for past mistakes. Strive to correct them.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Guard against dictating today to persons over whom you have dominion. Even the lesser lights will rebel if they are ordered about.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Do not permit dark thoughts to run rampant today, because they could cast a shadow over all of your involvements. A negative attitude is a liability.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Don't let your peers draw you into a situation today which you can't really afford. If you haven't got the bread to back you up, it's best to back out.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Subducing tendencies today to seeas where your objectives are concerned. The results will be hazardous if you fail to stick to your course.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) You could be too tough on yourself today to draw any conclusions from self-analyzing thoughts. Think of others, not No. 1.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Be cautious where you place your trust today, especially when dealing with persons about whom you know little. Don't be deceived by outward appearances.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) In ventures today requiring a joint effort, be sure all parties understand the ground rules. All must make equal contributions.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Rather than to put forth a dismal effort today, it's better to temporarily shelve frustrating projects. A poor attitude produces poor results.

Contact Lens Solutions Are Recalled

DENVER (UPI) — The manufacturer of Sereine contact lens solutions recalled its products Friday because the Food and Drug Administration found evidence of possible bacteria contamination that could lead to eye infections.

"The bacteria was found in samples from current production at the plant," said Mike Quinn, the FDA compliance officer in Denver. "That, coupled with processing problems, resulted in a decision by the firm to voluntarily recall everything they have on the marketplace as a precautionary measure."

The Sereine products manufactured by Optikem International may have become contaminated due to processing problems and the failure of manufacturing equipment, said Denver plant manager Clair Homman.

Homman said people using the solutions would have to have a scratched cornea or other eye injury for the organism to cause infection.

Quinn said, however, there was a "potential for any wearer of hard contact lenses to get a serious injury."

"It is possible that the use of these products, if non-sterile, may cause an eye infection in injured or compromised eyes," the company said.
