Victim remains unidentified

LONGWOOD — Longwood Police are waiting for a few more pieces of information so they can positively identify the body of a man who was struck and killed on U.S. Highway 17-92 on Friday night.

Bill Birch, Yelvington spokesman for the department, said they have tentatively identified the man, but there are a few pieces of the puzzle still missing.

The man, described as being in his 20s, had dark, curly hair and green eyes. He was wearing a tool belt and heavy work boots.

He was about 5'6" tall and between 135 and 145 pounds. He was killed in a hit-and-run accident as he attempted to cross U.S. Highway 17-92 at Camino Road 127 in Longwood late Friday night.

Yelvington said that no progress has been made in identifying the driver of the car that struck and killed him.

He said that the dead man carried no identification, but had a few membership cards that identified him only by a number. Those leads are being checked out, he said.

Yelvington hopes to have the man identified by tomorrow, he said.

AutoTrain breakfast

SANFORD — Employees of the Sanford-based AutoTrain are holding a breakfast this Friday morning. It is being called "Spring Back '92."

Joanna Sapp, who is organizing the breakfast for the crew members said, "This is part of what we want to do together. We work as a team, and we want to have fun as a team as well."

Sapp set up several crew breakfasts last year, one of which was attended by a number of city officials. "Before we started this," she said, "some of the workers weren't as happy with their jobs as they could have been."

She continued, "Now that we have met several times for breakfast, everyone knows each other, and the people seem much happier with their jobs."

As in the past, food for Friday's meal will be supplied by the workers themselves, or donated by friends.

The breakfast will be held from 7 until 8 a.m. this Friday morning at the Amtrak crew base.

Clarification

SANFORD — Miller Brown, 561 E. 3rd Street, Chuluota, was one of 14 persons arrested Thursday night at the corner of 5th Street and Sanford Avenue in a reverse-sting prostitution crackdown by Sanford police. The arrest report indicated the charge against Brown was "possession of cannabis, under 20 grams." Brown was not arrested for any sexual activity but only for the possession of cannabis.

Violence in schools

Educators seeking answers to problem

By VICKI DeBORMIER
Herald Staff Writer

SANFORD — While officials in Seminole County don't see the problem of violence in our district schools as an acute one, they are trying to curb any occurrences before they take place.

"Even one incident is one too many," said Bill Moore, principal at Sanford Middle School.

There have been 11 students suspended or expelled this school year for having brought guns to school. On only one occurrence was a weapon fired. In that case, a young woman was shot in the knee by accident during a scuffle over a sawed-off shotgun.

The number of incidents involving knives and weapons brought on to school property is higher, according to statistics from Dr. Hortense Evans' office at the Seminole County public schools.

At a glance

Seminole County schools polled this morning said they are taking a proactive approach to violence prevention in the schools through:

- active checking of all reports of weapons on campus
- immediate checking of lockers when there is just cause
- continuing education about alternatives to violence
- working with families to encourage less violent behavior
- sending a strong message about the consequences of dealing with problems violently

At Lyman High School recently several students were allegedly involved in planting a pipe bomb in a bathroom stall. No one was injured in the incident, though a teacher who discovered the bomb was badly shaken by it.

A weekend conference on school violence has given one parent hope. See Violence, Page 5A

Fireworks in court

By SANDRA ELLIOTT
Herald Staff Writer

SANFORD — The small claims court case over the 1992 4th of July fireworks display in Sanford will continue but in county court after a pre-trial hearing Tuesday.

A case to recover $2,400 was filed in small claims court by E.C. Vickers, owner of the fireworks company, against Steven D. Alford. Alford, who helped organize the People's fireworks as chairman of the Sanford fireworks committee, contracted with Vickers to put on the display.

A counter claim has been filed against Vickers by Alford seeking less than $8,000 in damages. The potential monetary recovery in the suit exceeds the small claims court limits, prompting the suit transfer into county court.

Judge Fredric M. Hill was going to refuse himself from the case, but both parties requested he remain as judge.

Technical problems delayed and shortened the fireworks show, prompting Alford to withhold. See Fireworks, Page 5A continue the use for summer of 1993 was approved this past week.

The city started using the facilities last year after moving the summer program from the Salvation Army facility.

The agreement for the Sanford Gymnastics facility, at 601 E. 25th Place, is effective May 1, through June 30. See Sanford, Page 5A

Board asks removal of a member

By SANDRA ELLIOTT
Herald Staff Writer

LONGWOOD — The Longwood City Commission will conduct a public hearing May 17 on whether to remove Code Enforcement Board member Lynette Dennis from office.

At Monday night's meeting, remaining CEB members, Ernest Talos presented a memo he wrote, signed by other board members Gloria Latoski, Warren Bulk and George Valkenburg, calling for Dennis' resignation or removal from office.

The remaining board members claim Dennis violated the board's rules and regulations in dealing with a case against AAA Tree Service. Dennis said she was a friend of the tree service owners, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Hardy, and interceded on their behalf despite a conflict of interest. Dennis complained about the handling of the case to Mayor Lovstrand, despite the fact it was an active case against board rules.

As a result of the politics involved, CEB chairwoman Pat Corbin and board member Bob Lomax resigned. Code enforcement officer Bob Baker also resigned, in part, over criticism of his handling of the case.

Miller tried to defend Dennis by stating she received information about the case from a third party, Jimmy Ross, and that she did not get it directly from the Hardys. Ross, although a private citizen, is regarded by many as a political force in Longwood politics and city hall business. Lovstrand refers to

Wright set for Geneva task force

By J. MARK BARFIELD
Herald Senior Staff Writer

GENEVA — A Seminole County appointee to the Geneva Bubble task force says he's qualified to serve as an expert on the groundwater conditions here.

Last Tuesday's post-midnight appointment of David Wright angered Geneva residents and Rep. Marvin Couch, author of the bill creating the task force. The legislation specifically called for a "hydrogeological expert on the Geneva Freshwater Lens." Wright is a civil engineer and former executive vice president of Camp Dresser and McKee Inc. He has operated his own engineering consulting firm for about two months.

Couch and the residents preferred Kevin Rohrer, who co-authored the benchmark bubble study, "Hydrogeology in the Area of a Freshwater Lens in the Florida Aquifer System, Northeast Seminole County, Florida." The task force, comprised of state and local representatives, is charged to review existing regulations affecting the bubble and to report recommendations for any changes to the Legislature by Dec. 31.

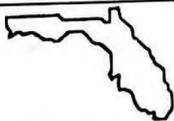

Wright said he can represent himself as an expert on the bubble.

"I have no problem standing up and saying I'm an independent expert on the aquifer in Geneva," said Wright.

Wright said he studied graduate engineering from a foremost expert in hydrogeology, the study of the movement of water through the

TB cases apparently on increase

FORT MYERS — A hospital president said he would ask the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention in Atlanta and Lee County health officials to investigate an apparent increase in tuberculosis cases.

Lee Memorial Hospital president Jim Nathan's move Tuesday comes after a report showed since last May, 62 employees had converted — meaning they tested positive for infection with TB after previously testing negative.

The 62 infected employees are not contagious and are not sick with TB, although they do have a 1-in-10 chance during their lifetime of developing it.

The employees represent 4.7 percent of the estimated 1,320 who were tested between May 1992 and April 16. Although there are more employees to be tested, the rate so far is almost as high as that of Miami's Jackson Memorial Hospital in 1990 during its nationally publicized employee TB outbreak.

Firefighter sues for violation of rights

FORT LAUDERDALE — A retired firefighter has filed suit against the city of Fort Lauderdale, claiming the fire department violated his rights by requiring him to pass a physical fitness test to work as a fire inspector.

Bobby Glenn, 51, who in 1970 became the first black person hired by the Fort Lauderdale Fire Department, said the city used the running test to exclude him from consideration for the fire inspector's job because of his age and race.

He had to run 1.5 miles in less than 13.5 minutes. He completed the route in 14 minutes.

Inspectors check buildings and homes for hazards in an effort to prevent fires.

New recruits, he was told, had to complete tests which include hauling hose up several flights of stairs and swimming 50 yards fully clothed. He passed all but the running test.

Spouse of AIDS victim granted a divorce

MIAMI — A man who says his Brazilian stripper wife gave him AIDS — and continued to have sex with other men — was granted a divorce by a judge who also notified prosecutors about her activities.

Lucienne Wheeland, 29, had unprotected sex while knowingly being infected with the AIDS virus, a violation of state law, Dade Judge Alan Gold ruled Monday.

The husband, Bruce Wheeland, also 29, contracted AIDS after meeting Lucienne. When she took a test showing she was HIV positive, the two decided to marry.

After living together for four months, Bruce Wheeland learned both were HIV positive. But Wheeland then found old medical records indicating his wife knew she was HIV infected well before they met, and then discovered she was dating other men. He sued her for divorce.

In December, he sued her for battery, alleging that Lucienne knowingly gave him a sexually transmittable disease without his consent. The civil case has yet to go to trial.

New commander takes over Eglin AFB

EGLIN AIR FORCE BASE — There was no ceremony for the new commander of The Eglin Air Force Base who took over after his predecessor was fired for his role in alleged mismanagement of the C-17 cargo plane development program.

Major Gen. Michael Butchko passed the "black" military jargon for the radio carried to remain in constant contact with headquarters staff to Brig. Gen. Stewart Cranston on Monday.

Defense Secretary Les Aspin fired Butchko as commander of the Air Force Development Test Center on Friday over questionable payments made to McDonnell Douglas, manufacturer of the C-17.

Cranston accentuated the positive in a prepared statement citing Eglin's recent selection as the Air Force's best base.

In his new job, Cranston will be in charge of developing and testing non-nuclear weapons.

DuPont Co. fined $500,000

ORLANDO — Damage suits alleging that a pesticide damaged foliage and other crops may be spread up as a result of a federal judge's $500,000 fine against DuPont Co. growers today.

Hundreds of lawsuits have been filed in Florida and other states against the chemical company alleging that the pesticide Benlate DF was defective and caused deformities, stunting and other crop problems.

But growers have accused DuPont of stalling and hampering research efforts. U.S. District Judge J. Robert Elliott agreed, ruling that DuPont had made a "deliberate effort" to delay the gathering of evidence in several cases filed in Georgia.

Earl Wells, executive director of the Florida Nurserymen and Growers Association, said Monday he hopes the fine levied by the Columbus, Ga., judge will prompt the company to move faster to resolve questions over Benlate DF.

Chiles' budget for year

$35 billion budget signed; prison program vetoed

By BILL BERGSTROM
Associated Press Writer

TALLAHASSEE — Gov. Lawton Chiles said he'll call a special legislative session before July to rewrite a prison expansion program he vetoed before signing a $35 billion state budget for the next fiscal year.

"That's really a bill of goods that the people of Florida won't buy," Chiles said of the lawmakers' prison plan.

The Florida Sheriffs Association and Senate President Ander Crenshaw had urged him to let it stand, but Chiles said it was "a weak and shallow gesture at a time when we need a deep and strong commitment to public safety."

Chiles advocates a 25-cent-a-pack cigarette tax increase to build 21,000 prison beds over the next five years, with more than 1,000 beds available for use this year.

Crenshaw, a Jacksonville Republican who may challenge Chiles in the 1994 governor's race, said the lawmakers' plan to build 7,000 prison beds was adequate and called the veto "an insult to the Legislature."

"I think every citizen of Florida should be outraged," he said. "By vetoing the beds, every citizen of the state is going to be at risk."

"I don't hear any consensus on his plan to raise taxes. I heard a lot of consensus on the Legislature's plan that was in the budget. I hope the Legislature overrides his veto," Crenshaw said.

Chiles said the lawmakers' plan depends on bond sales, would actually pay for only 3,700 beds, and wouldn't make any new beds available for at least two years.

"Our prisons are full," Chiles said. The vetoed prison-spending proposals included $47.5 million to build two 938-bed prisons and three 256-bed work camps, $6.4 million for debt service on bonds for correction facilities, $4.9 million for dormitories to add 384 beds at Avon Park Correctional Institution and $3.1 million to build correctional mental health facilities.

The new budget includes $359 million for Hurricane Andrew relief, including low-income housing repair of damage to government buildings and parks and a $25 million Dade County prison.

Schools in each of Florida's 67 counties will get at least a 2.94 percent increase in per pupil spending over last year, restoring most cuts made since 1990-91.

University students will face a 3 percent tuition increase, much less than double-digit increases of recent years. Financial aid to university students will be boosted by $14 million.

State workers, left without raises for three years, will get a 3 percent pay raise effective Oct. 1.

Other budget items Chiles eliminated using his line-item veto power included $2.2 million for a data processing building addition and equipment at Palm Beach Community College.

$2 million in matching funds to a private company for waste tire collection and processing to use waste tire rubber in highway construction — $1.6 million for a Florida State University business technology center.

— $1.2 million for equipment for a public broadcasting station.

Felon may not merit transplant

By Associated Press

JACKSONVILLE — Church members who have helped raise $10,000 for a man in need of a heart transplant say they feel cheated after learning he has a lengthy criminal record, spurning the offer.

Lawrence Wayne Bennett, 49, a part-time resident of Jacksonville, has been arrested a total of 28 times in Georgia, Florida and Alabama on charges ranging from travel to writing bad checks. He has three times been convicted of felonies in Florida.

But the Georgia native, who currently has no job or residence, said he will do without a heart transplant. Doctors and medical records agree.

His wife Debbie said her husband is trying to rehabilitate and has joined the Swiss Covenant Church of Switzerland in St. Johns County.

He's never hurt anybody. Mrs. Bennett said it shouldn't make any difference what happened in his past.

However, since joining the church last summer, Bennett has been charged with four more crimes, the Florida Times Union reported in today's edition.

The church raised $10,000 in the past four months through fund-raising organized by St. and Jeff Witwer. Now they're concerned the criminal record, which they were not aware of during the fund-raising, might tarnish the church's reputation.

The whole thing is very disturbing, she said. My husband and I have been in this town for a long time. We've put our lives behind him to try and help.

The money that has been raised so far by the church has gone to the Memphis, Tenn.-based Organ Transplant Fund Inc., which specializes in collecting money for transplant hospitals. Bennett does not have access to the funds, the couple said.

Four prisoners back behind bars

By The Associated Press

TALLAHASSEE — Four of 89 murderers and other violent criminals mistakenly released early from Florida prisons have been returned to prison in the past five days, officials said.

Sammy Brown, 30, Raymond Harris, 33, Willie Huggins, 31, and Jackie Marie Sumner, 30, were arrested between Friday and Tuesday, said Eugene Morris, spokesman for the state Department of Corrections.

DOC began rounding up the criminals after the Florida Supreme Court ruled last week that prison officials could revoke sentence reductions given between 1988 and 1991 to prisoners convicted of second-degree murder, manslaughter or attempted murder.

"We're doing everything in our power to track down each of these individuals and ... bring them back to serve the remainder of their sentences," Morris said Tuesday.

The agency has allowed early releases since 1988. Officials wrongly assumed a new law rescinding early-release credits wouldn't affect prisoners who received credits before the law passed. The new law prohibits early-release credits for those with murder or attempted murder convictions.

Brown and Harris were convicted of second-degree murder and sentenced to 15 years each. Brown, convicted in Seminole County, was released Sept. 1. Harris, convicted in Brevard, was released July 16. Officials picked up Brown on Monday in Winter Park and Harris on Tuesday in Titusville, Morris said.

Sumner, convicted of second-degree murder in 1988 and sentenced to 12 years for the death of a Tampa farmworker, and Willie Huggins, 31, convicted of second-degree murder and arson for setting fire to an Orange County boarding home and killing one person, were given early release Dec. 1.

Sumner, picked up Friday, and her husband Eddie were convicted in the July 1988 killing of Edward James Ward, 45, a Tampa fruit picker, the Tampa Tribune reported. Ward, beaten and robbed, was found dead in a creek near U.S. Highway 41 in Gibsonton.

In February she was imprisoned for violating the terms of her probation and was placed under house arrest. Huggins, sentenced to 20 years, was arrested Monday in Daytona Beach.

Vietnam vet gets reprieve before execution

By JACKIE MALLIFAX
Associated Press Writer

TALLAHASSEE — A Vietnam veteran's scheduled execution today was canceled just 17 hours before he was to be strapped into the electric chair after a federal judge granted him a reprieve.

The state filed a notice of appeal with the 11th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals in Atlanta after U.S. District Judge Maurice Paul issued a stay late Tuesday afternoon for Larry Joe Johnson.

Carolyn Smukowski, an attorney for the state, said arguments would be filed today to urge that the judge's order be vacated.

Johnson, 49, was condemned for the 1979 sawed-off shotgun slaying of James Hadden, a 67-year-old gas station attendant in the North Florida town of Lee.

Johnson's death warrant is effective until noon Tuesday, so if the higher court overturns

Paul before then, Johnson could be executed.

In his 22-page opinion, Paul also ordered a resentencing for Johnson, citing an improper balance between factors considered to justify the death penalty over a sentence of life in prison, according to Martin McClain, an attorney for Johnson.

Johnson's attorneys and some veteran advocates have argued that his military experience left him with post-traumatic stress disorder and that his life should be spared because of it.

"It's sort of like the government used him, they damaged his brain and now they're throwing him away like an empty beer bottle," said Vietnam veteran Scott Camil of Guinesville.

However, Jerry Blair, who prosecuted Johnson and is also a Vietnam veteran, said he doesn't think Johnson suffers from PTSD. And even if he does, there has never been any evidence that he killed because of the syndrome, Blair said.

Jan Smith of Madison, Hadden's daughter and only survivor, also said she thinks the veterans who argue against execution are mistaken about PTSD being a factor in her father's murder. She said she thinks Johnson's execution is long overdue and would be a relief. "When the appeal comes up, you re-live the whole thing all over again," she said.

Johnson served two tours in Vietnam in a Navy construction unit attached to the Marines. After being honorably discharged, he joined the Kentucky National Guard. His military career ended when he was hit by a smoke grenade in 1974 during a training exercise.

That accident caused brain damage and Johnson, who still receives disability payments, spent a couple of years in a military psychiatric ward.

On being neighborly

People are becoming neighborly these days. More and more communities within Sanford and surrounding cities are beginning to gather together in a show of solidarity.

The Midway area gathered around the elementary school Friday. The event was to reward students for good citizenship and good behavior. About 330 students and their parents attended the function.

We believe this type of activity is setting one of the best examples possible for school students. We salute the school's PTA leaders who led the Midway community in extending these honors.

Another gathering is coming up on Saturday, May 22. It is the Neighborhood Watch Appreciation Day for the Woodmere Park Neighborhood.

This again, is a gathering of people to give appreciation to a dedicated group. In this case, they are members of the Neighborhood Watch who do an excellent job in reducing crime in their community.

On a smaller scale, employees of AutoTrain, will hold their second annual "Spring-Back" breakfast this Friday morning at the crew base. The workers take it upon themselves to have a breakfast cook-out to show they are united in the work they do.

In all of these cases, people are getting together for a cause. They are saying "thank you" to each other, and are showing the true meaning of being a friend and neighbor.

Too often, in this hectic world, people spend most of the day at work, only to go home tired. They may have a tendency to forget others. It is not only true in neighborhoods and work-places, but within families as well.

Midway parents, Woodmere Park residents, and AutoTrain workers are setting examples more people should copy.

A group of people working together can cause good things to happen. Whether fighting crime, helping children, or showing support for fellow workers, these events are commendable.

Reality check for ancient forests

Expert testimony at the April 2 conference called by President Clinton to discuss the future of Pacific Northwest ancient forests conclusively demonstrates that the timber industry's vociferous arguments to continue logging not only defy environmental concern, they defy economic and social realities.

Only 10 percent of the Pacific Northwest's ancient forests remain, and all of it is on public lands. Testimony at the conference made it clear that preservation of the remaining ancient forest ecosystem is an economic as well as an environmental necessity. Representatives of Northwest commercial and sport-fishing groups — which employ more workers than the timber industry — testified that 60,000 jobs related to salmon fishing are in jeopardy if logging of the ancient forests continues unabated. The logging erodes hillsides, causing siltation of salmon streams. Thus the issue is not jobs versus owls, so much as jobs versus jobs.

The timber industry complains about shortages of wood supplies. However, a year's supply of federal timber is currently under contract — and they still continue to export one-quarter of their own logs to Japan. The industry complains about rising lumber prices; yet, timber prices are as low today as they were in the 1970s.

The timber industry has suffered, but not for the reasons it states. The majority of the losses have been due to automation of timber mills and of raw log exports which are not milled here, but sent directly to Japan and other Pacific Rim countries. Between 1979 and 1988, 195 mills closed, and over 25,000 jobs were lost, mostly due to these causes.

Our remaining public ancient forests are biological and wildlife treasures. We cannot permit their further destruction.

As a result of the conference, it is clear that our national campaign to save the ancient forests has now reached a critical point. The President charged his Cabinet to come up with a plan in 60 days. Effort now to maintain the momentum of the conference is critical. Demand the permanent protection of ancient forests. You can do it by phoning (202) 456-6224 or letter addressed to the White House, 1600 Pennsylvania Ave., Washington, D.C., 20500.

Re-inventing Clinton administration

Here is a charitable view of the first 100 days of the Clinton administration. Its prospects for the remaining 1,361 days, and a way to save it.

Clinton wants to do a great deal. That's good, not bad. It is silly to say Clinton is "trying to do too much." He can't just stick to "the economy" when America has major crime, education, health and welfare problems, let alone NAFTA, GATT, Bosnia, China and Russia.

His foreign policy moves, so far, have been mostly good. His reaction to the events in Russia have been bold. Boris Yeltsin's victory shows that a "democracy first" foreign policy has promise.

Clinton's problems are on the home front. His budget plan is in trouble. It should be. It is misguided. Its folly stems from several causes, some of which may still be fixed.

It raises both taxes and spending. There may be some valid reasons for such a course. If the taxes were used for deficit reduction, it would make sense. But Clinton's proposal leaves us with a $200 billion deficit after four years — too high, because while raising taxes he also increases domestic spending.

There is even a case that might be made for more domestic spending, but the Clinton budget doesn't make it. Clinton promised to address the "social deficit" by changing the nature of government. He was going to "re-invent" government, making it lean and mean, more responsive, keyed to personal responsibility standards. He said "no more something for nothing." That's what made him a "New Democrat."

But where's the beef? His budget calls for $8 billion more for food stamps. Will that money be used for a transition program that would "end welfare as we know it"? Will a new welfare plan really have a "two years and out" criteria on recipients? Or will it be watered-down mush, as some administration statements now seem to indicate? No one knows. For the moment, the money just goes for more food stamps, adding to America's dependency addiction.

He wants $9 billion more for Head Start, but in a recent speech he acknowledged that the program doesn't work well. Will the money go for a changed policy? No one knows.

Monumental policy fights within his administration, and with the Congress, on these issues and many others are still to be waged.

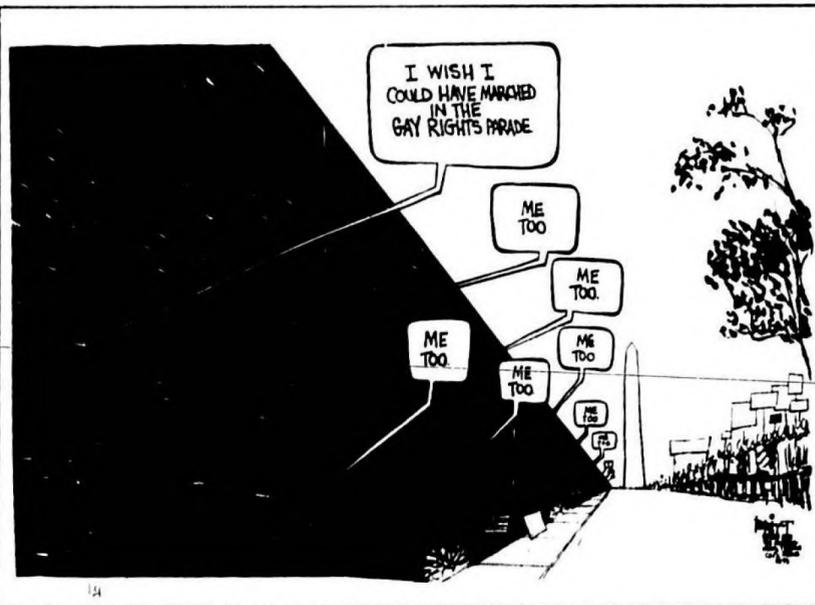

Clinton's big mistake has been to let his budget train race way ahead of his policy train. He is asking the Congress to vote new, fresh money for old, failed policies, or for a blank check.

All the Republicans in public, are saying no. And many moderate Democrats, in private, say the same thing. Together they have enough votes to stymie Clintonomics, without a filibuster. That would be in tune with a majority of Americans, who say they want less spending and less government. And in tune with a re-activated Ross Perot.

What can Clinton do? Politicians re-invent themselves, or try to, all the time. He wasn't called Slick Willie because he doesn't know the game.

Clinton wants to do a great deal. That's good, not bad.

ELLEN GOODMAN

What's worth fighting for?

I don't know a soul who predicted that the major civil rights fight of the 1990s would be waged over the right to fight. Women in combat? Gays in the military? The last bastion has turned out to be, literally, a bastion.

What an odd venue for this struggle. The armed forces have more restrictions on personal freedom — regardless of race, creed, gender — than any other institution in our society. It is a top-down, follow orders hierarchy harbored in a democracy. Yet the flag of equality is now staked on this turf.

Surely, any savvy movement leader, trying to rally popular support to a cause, could have picked a different fight. For women, family policies would bring out a larger constituency. For gays, AIDS makes a more compelling moral claim to attention.

Even now, some in these movements find themselves ambivalent or bemused at the military turn of events. They wrestle between a desire to fit in to the military, to be accepted as equals, and a desire to distance themselves from it.

Among women, many believe that the movement should not follow men into trenches or cockpits, but rather should march for peace. They take pride in the female image of women as peacekeepers not warriors.

Among gays, some would rather work against discrimination in the civilian world. In this week's serious and campy gathering in Washington — part civil rights march and part coming-out party — there was widespread applause for gays in the military. But there was also a smattering of laughter for the mad-hatted supporters of "Gays in the Military."

Nevertheless, the Army, Navy, Air Force and Marines were told last week to drop restrictions against women flying combat missions and serving on most naval vessels. At the same time, Congress held more hearings on gays. This debate goes on.

I suspect that the convergence of this argument around women, gays and the military is one part historic accident and two parts inevitable. The military is, after all, the last bastion. The cockpit door was one of the last legally closed to women. The barracks door is one of the heaviest still barred to gays who admit to their identity.

But then the military plays a very particular role in our country's psyche. When soldiers risk death or die in a just war, they are accorded a special honor. Even in an era of volunteer armies and careerist soldiers, fighting for your country means assuming the heaviest of our national burdens.

I suspect we all understand, consciously or not, that no group will be granted true equality without taking on the ultimate equal risks. Indeed, in an era when we are told that everyone wants rights and no one wants responsibilities, this is one time when people are fighting for the right to be responsible.

As for the military command? Officers in the armed forces must feel at times like principals in the public schools. We tell the schools: Teach our children to read but give them breakfast and condoms. Our teachers are also parents, psychologists, police officers. We tell the military: Teach our soldiers to fight but also to get along. Be the best force in the world, and eliminate sexism and homophobia. Be all that we can't be.

We do expect a great deal from the military. We desegregated the Army before we desegregated the South. We had blacks and whites together in barracks before the country was "redy for it." We did it despite warnings that it would wreak havoc on military morale and the military "culture."

The truth is that in America we don't accept the notion that the military is an independent creature. Or that the Army is an entirely separate culture whose job is to protect only our physical borders.

Unlike other countries, we insist that military is part of and ruled by the larger culture. Time and again, we call on the military not just to defend our land or our "interests" but to defend our values. Among those values we list tolerance, freedom and, of course, equality.

So this battle continues. The most unlikely combat zone for the civil rights struggle is also a most likely zone. Here, we are fighting over values. We're fighting about what's worth fighting for.

The last bastion has turned out to be, literally, a bastion.

Wining, dining of New York Fed is scrutinized

WASHINGTON — In a recent letter to a senior Federal Reserve official, House Banking Committee Chairman Henry Gonzalez, D-Texas, called for an investigation into previously unpublished allegations that "a significant group" of New York Federal Reserve employees "have routinely accepted gifts and hospitality" from U.S. and foreign banks that they supervise.

Gonzalez said the reports he received targeted "domestic banks such as Citibank and foreign banks such as Midland Bank" for allegedly buying Fed officials "meals at expensive New York restaurants" and in some cases providing them "expensive gifts, such as silver cardcases."

Rules governing conflicts of interest at the Federal Reserve Bank of New York are riddled with gaping loopholes. According to the two-page letter dated April 22 to E. Gerald

Corrigan, president of the New York Fed, Gonzalez pointed out that the New York Fed's rules prohibit bank employees from taking any business gifts, favors, gratuities or loans — but allow them to accept "food, refreshment and accompanying entertainment in the normal course of business."

"Permitting acceptance of these things in the normal course of business" has evidently been interpreted to mean entertainment at some of the world's finest restaurants," Gonzalez wrote. Although not featured in the letter, the allegations reportedly involved high-level drinking and dining at New York restaurants like the Gotham Bar & Grill, the Union Square Cafe, and Windows on the World, situated atop the World Trade Center.

Allegations in the Gonzalez letter come in the wake of fears expressed earlier this year by the Federal Reserve Board's inspector general, who recommended an overhaul of the entire agency's ethics code after an extensive probe found numerous instances of potential conflicts of interest.

Several bank examiners had apparently received loans from banks that they audited and others had failed to file required financial disclosure reports. Based on an investigation of sample groups, the IG estimated that 8 percent of all Fed examiners had participated in exams in violation of conflict-of-interest rules. In one case, a Fed examiner was fired for receiving a personal loan from a bank shortly after examining it. The Fed says it is adopting reforms.

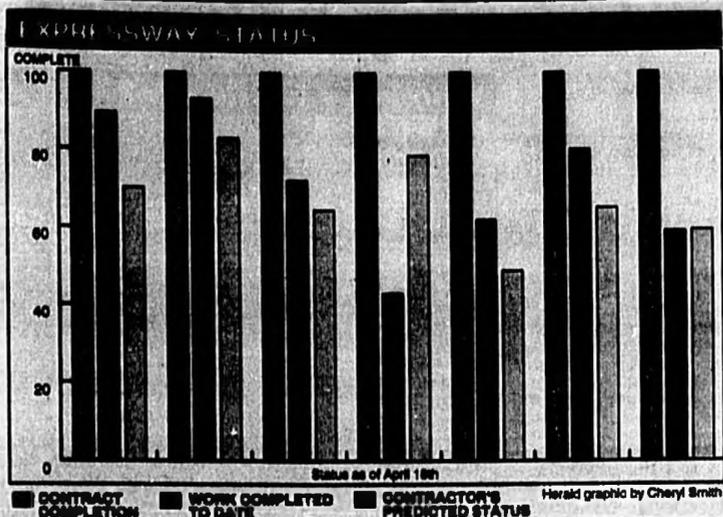

Barton R. Sotnick, a spokesman at the New York Fed, refused comment on the Gonzalez letter, as did an official at Midland, Jack Morris, a spokesman for Citibank, told our associate Dean Boyd that he didn't "have any knowledge of the letter or what might have given rise to it. We have strict guidelines against that sort of thing and we enforce them."

As the nerve center of the nation's financial system, the New York Fed plays a key role in managing the domestic money supply, regulating some of the biggest bank holding companies in the nation, and supporting the dollar in foreign exchange markets.

"Only by keeping an arms length association with the bankers it regulates and the firms that trade in government securities can the New York Federal Reserve Bank maintain its integrity..." Gonzalez wrote.

Rules governing conflicts of interest at the Federal Reserve Bank of New York are riddled with gaping loopholes.

A graphic chart in Tuesday's Sanford Herald incorrectly represented the status of construction for several segments of the Seminole County expressway. By mid-April, work on six of the seven segments was behind the contractor's predicted progress schedule. Work on the Lake Jesup bridges by Boh Brothers Contracting Co. was nearly 100 percent ahead of schedule.

gram with recreation in the morning and supervised day care in the afternoon.

Because the facility to be used — the Community Center — does not contain what the commission and Holland felt was adequate playground area for an afternoon expansion, the commission opted to remain with only the morning program.

"Now we are working on the final details of using facilities at Lake Mary Elementary School for the summer recreation program," Holland said, "so we are changing our plans to move the operation into the full-day plan."

He commented, "The usual recreation programs will be held in the morning. During the afternoon, I would say it's more a continuing recreation than what might be called a day-care operation."

Holland said he will bring the matter up for final approval at the May 8 City Commission meeting, and expected it to pass now that better facilities have become available.

The summer recreation morning session programs will be held from 8 a.m. until noon. Afternoon programs will be from 1 p.m. until 5 p.m. Supervision will also be available during the noon hour for full-day registrants.

The program starts June 14, and will continue through August 6, at Lake Mary Elementary School, 132 S. Country Club Road.

With the change, the cost for the entire eight week period remains the same, $60 per child for residents and $100 for non-residents, for the morning-only recreation programs.

Violence

that officials are going to focus more on safety.

"Things are broken, and we've let it go too long, too far," Conni Wells of Hardee County said.

Three years ago, Wells signed up her seventh-grader for karate classes after the student saw a school brawl.

"Lindsay was on her way to the band room and saw two girls in a fight," Wells said Saturday. "One girl got her face rubbed in the cement. That did not make me comfortable."

Wells was one of 200 people at a statewide conference on school violence. The three-day event will now be followed by five regional conferences on school violence around the state.

Moore was also in attendance at the conference in Tampa this weekend.

"It seemed like a very positive first step," said Moore. "We are making some progress."

Right now, Moore said, the only way to deal with students who learn to deal with problems through violent means in a violent atmosphere at home, is to "deny them an education." Students involved in violent acts are almost always suspended or expelled, he said.

"We've got to find an alternative," Moore added. "We may need to get them off campus, but we need to find ways to educate them, because we are going to have to deal with them in society at large sooner or later."

School violence increased more than 34 percent in just one year in Florida, from 46,088 incidents in the 1980-81 school year to 61,842 incidents last year.

Those numbers don't include hundreds of thousands of incidents classified as disorderly conduct or "minor" occurrences.

According to Kathy Roberts, an assistant principal at Lake Mary High School, the biggest deterrent to violent behavior at the school has been the strong message the school administrators have sent to students.

"We're just not going to take it," Roberts said.

Within the first few weeks of school, five students were found to have brought guns to school. All five were immediately recommended for expulsion, she said.

All reports of guns and other weapons on school property are immediately checked out, she said, and offenders are dealt with harshly.

Roberts reports that the students at Lake Mary have their share of fist fights, but she believes the numbers have remained relatively low because of the school's tough stance against violent behavior.

No one disputes that the numbers of incidents and offenders are increasing at schools, and the crimes are more serious.

"There's no simple answer," said Walter Afleid, former chairman for the department of psychiatry at the University of South Florida. "But a big part of it breaks down to parents not taking responsibility and providing role models."

According to Verna Jackson, assistant principal at Seminole High School, a strong role model at school is very important as well.

Wendell Bradford, the school's new resource officer, is one such a model.

"He is well-dressed and articulate and he talks to the students about finding alternatives to violent behavior that they can relate to," she said. "The students believe in what he is telling them, I think."

Teen-agers are now just as likely to be victims of a violent crime at school as they are on the street, a 1981 U.S. Department of Justice report states. That vulnerability at school not only creates fear, it damages the primary mission of schools: to educate.

"Certainly the impact on education is negative if students are worried about their safety," said state Education Commissioner Betty Castor, who was at the conference.

"It's much more difficult to learn in a climate of fear, and in extreme situations it's impossible," Castor said.

Castor cautioned that fear of crime "is not pervasive, but it is a growing problem."

political adviser. Miller is reportedly also in his political camp.

City attorney Becky Vose said any information a CEB member receives must be presented to the entire board and not reviewed by individual members. She also advised the commissioners that if a code enforcement board case was appealed, the city might be in jeopardy if conflict of interest is proven on the part of a board member.

"It is my understanding that Mr. Hardy was not going to release this information until he got into court," Miller said, of the evidence given to Dennis.

Vose explained unless the information had been presented at the code enforcement board meeting, it would not have been allowed in court if the CEB decision had been appealed.

Smerison and Pearl, both former CEB members, stressed no discussion of a code enforcement case should take place, even before the city commission, because it was a violation of the rules.

The city staff will prepare written charges against Dennis for the public hearing May 17.

In other business, the commission:

• Heard commissioner Anderson defend his First Amendment rights of free speech during the public participation portion of the meeting. He read a letter from attorney Thomas Stephan representing Mayor Lovestrand. Stephan claims Anderson slandered the mayor by falsely accusing him (the mayor) of breaking the law at the April 12 commission meeting. "As a result of your slanderous statements (sic) my client is entitled to damages, both punitive and compensatory."

The attorney claims Lovestrand's livelihood, as a public figure and in his career, depends upon his reputation for "honesty and integrity... Damages resulting from you continued slanderous statements would be extensive. Please be advised that my client, Paul Lovestrand will take legal action if such irresponsible conduct is repeated. You need to cease these false accusations immediately. PLEASE GOVERN YOURSELF ACCORDINGLY."

Anderson said he just wanted the commission and public to "be aware of what some of us are having to put up with."

• Voted to pay temporary employees more in unemployment benefits for not working by defeating a funds transfer. Miller voted against the emergency transfer of funds so the ordinance was defeated since Lovestrand was absent. Miller said the transfer did not qualify as an emergency. As a result, the city is paying $42, $60 and $108 more in unemployment benefits to three workers for doing nothing than it would have paid if they continued on their temporary part-time status working for the city.

• Agreed to pass a resolution rather than an ordinance requiring board and commission minutes to be completed within seven days of a meeting. The commission did not want jail time or fines attached to non-compliance of the proposed ordinance.

Sept. 30. The charge is $1,000 per month for a total of $5,000.

As of Oct. 1, the city would have an option of renewing the contract for a full one-year period with no increase in costs.

During the school year, the city will operate the gymnasium from 2:30 p.m. until 10 p.m. each weekday except Wednesday when events will start at 1:30. The building will be closed Saturdays and Sundays.

During the summer when regularly scheduled schools are closed, programs will be conducted from 7:30 a.m. until 10 p.m.

For year-round schools during time periods when children are on vacation, events will begin at 8 a.m.

The Sanford Gymnastics Association is a non-profit organization. As it has not recently utilized the facilities, they were offered to the city.

Kirby had said earlier that the use of the facilities allows for improved summertime recreation programs.

Meanwhile, the city staff is looking into the possibility of improving some of the recreational parks already in operation.

The display was not performed on time and was not supervised properly, according to the counterclaim.

The fireworks display was delayed about an hour and fifteen minutes and ended in eight minutes although it was scheduled to last 21 minutes. Some of the fireworks got wet and were not fired due to problems with the boats used to float the pyrotechnics to the launch site.

The attorneys will request a trial date on the claim and counterclaim in a few weeks.

New guns for cops?

By NICK PFEIFAU
Herald Staff Writer

LAKE MARY — Lake Mary Police Chief Richard Beary wants new firearms for his officers. A recommendation to purchase 30 pistols will be presented to the City Commission tomorrow night.

Beary is requesting approval to purchase 30 Glock Model-22 .40 caliber semi-automatic pistols. The purchase would include three magazines per gun, spare parts and accessories, and 30 new holsters and magazine pouches. Beary has arranged for a special reduced purchase price, similar to that supplied by Glock to NASA and other major companies.

The reduced price would have brought the total cost to $15,771.44.

In order to save additional money however, he has also made tentative arrangements to trade in the present firearms, holsters and pouches, which would reduce the amount by an additional $6,497.

He is recommending the money be obtained from the forfeiture funds. The present fund balance is $55,218.

"Our revolvers have been in use since the inception of the department," Beary said. He commented that police firearms technology has changed to keep pace with the growing violence displayed by criminals.

"I feel that we should provide our officers with a new sidearm to adequately protect themselves and our citizens."

Beary said a study on new firearms has been underway for many months, and has included actual testing of the equipment recommended for purchase.

"If approved," the chief said, "each officer will go through an intensified period of training which is extremely important for his/her protection and the city's liability."

He projects the officers should be fully trained in carrying the new weapons by the end of June. "We are certainly hopeful that these firearms will never have to be used," he said.

He is also proposing the purchase of 30 expandable batons (night-sticks) and carrying cases, for an additional cost of $1,782.65.

Beary said, "Currently our officers do not have any type of intermediate defensive weapons available. If a suspect violently resists arrest, our officers are forced to escalate their response from controlling the suspect with various hand-on take-down techniques to using deadly force."

With the batons, he commented, "They are worn on an officer's equipment belt so that it is readily available at all times. It will provide our officers with the means of defending themselves without resorting to deadly force."

The request for the purchases is scheduled to be presented during the City Manager's Report, at tomorrow night's regular meeting of the Lake Mary City Commission.

With a joint meeting between the commission and Business Advisory Board scheduled to begin at 6 p.m. tomorrow night, the regular commission meeting will begin at 7 p.m., or as soon thereafter as possible.

The Lake Mary City Hall is located at 100 W. Lake Mary Blvd.

and has testified in court as an expert witness in two groundwater issues.

As part of the groundwater study for Seminole County, Wright said data on the Geneva Bubble was examined. CDM did not study the bubble as part of the county-wide water supply study, said Colleen Logan, county natural resources planner, although information from previous studies may have been included in it.

Mike Rich, an environmentalist representing the Geneva citizen's "Save Our Bubble" group, said Wright may have examined the available data as a project manager, but he would not be as skilled as the individuals who actually studied the bubble.

"I consider the hydrogeological position on the task force very important," said Rich. "What I'm looking for is a jury that can review the facts and make decisions based on those facts without outside influences."

Scientists search for ways human diet affects disease

By PAUL RECER
AP Science Writer

WASHINGTON — Imbibing three alcoholic drinks may reduce heart attack risk. But then again, it may increase chances of breast cancer. Doctors still don't fully understand how diet affects health.

"We all want to know what is the best diet to maintain health," said Joseph T. Judd, a scientist at the Agriculture Department's Human Nutrition Research Center in Beltsville, Md.

Marsha E. Reichman, a former researcher at the National Cancer Institute, said diet "is tremendously important" to maintaining health.

"It could well affect our risks of disease," she said Tuesday. Yet medical science doesn't know precisely how various foods affect the body.

If science can find the perfect diet, people could better control their own destiny, Reichman said.

It may make it much more possible in the future for people to defend their own health by what they choose to eat, she said. What we take into our bodies is something we have control over.

Researchers worldwide are studying the effects of vitamins, vegetables, fats and other nutrients on the diseases that kill people. And in such work, alcohol is just another food ingredient to us, said Judd.

Some epidemiology studies have shown that women who drink have more breast cancer than teetotalers. Other theories had suggested that hormones, particularly estrogen and its chemical relatives, play a role in the development of breast cancer.

Judd's team at the Beltsville lab, along with Reichman and other researchers at the National Institutes of Health, organized a small controlled study to see if they could prove a link between alcohol and estrogen. Results of the study were published today in the journal of the National Cancer Institute.

What we did was examine the hypothesis that alcohol consumption might lead to a change in the estrogen levels," Reichman said.

The study involved 34 women with half drinking 30 grams (about an ounce) of pure grain alcohol daily for three menstrual cycles and half avoiding alcohol. The two groups then switched. All ate the same diet.

Blood and alcohol tests were taken at the beginning, middle and end of each menstrual cycle.

At the end of the six-month study, Reichman and Judd said, a clear link was established between alcohol consumption and an increase in estrogen levels.

While drinking alcohol, women in the study showed an increase in estrogen levels of up to 31.9 percent, a level that Judd called "biologically significant."

Malpractice law may be revised

By CHRISTOPHER CONNELL
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON — President Clinton's health care planners are weighing dramatic changes in medical malpractice laws, including the possibility of barring lawsuits against individual physicians.

Instead, under a theory called enterprise liability, patients harmed by a doctor or hospital would sue the health plan that paid for the medical care.

The White House health reform task force is also considering other changes, such as expanding malpractice law to include damages awarded for pain and suffering and encouraging patients and providers to resolve disputes without going to court.

Consumer groups and organized medicine alike have long pined for some of the possible changes still being debated within the White House.

Enterprise liability is sort of a black hole, said Gene Kuntz, a former legislative director for the Consumer Federation of America, who said it was unclear whether injured patients would get more or less or lose under such a system.

The idea has been championed by lawyer professors Pauline and Kenneth S. Abraham of the University of Virginia School of Law, who argue that malpractice suits should be aimed at organizations, not individuals.

The Magazine, the senior White House official directing the task force, said Monday that Clinton's reform plan would include serious malpractice reforms to discourage frivolous lawsuits and encourage alternative methods of resolving disputes.

We need to get the lawyers out of the doctor-patient relationship, Magazine told the National Medical Association.

The reformers' strategy is motivated in part by the desire to get doctors to stop ordering costly tests and procedures simply to protect themselves from lawsuits.

A recent study by the congressional Committee on Labor and Human Resources estimated Americans could save $16 billion over five years by curbing so-called defensive medicine.

Malpractice reform has been a staple of 15 public or proposed health care bills. It could help Clinton sell his package to the Senate, mostly an Congress and the House of Representatives.

But Clinton runs the risk of alienating consumers and labor groups if he tries to support

The government picks up the lion's share of hospital and home care costs, while private citizens pay for the bulk of drugs and dental services.

Dr. William L. Heston, who heads the American Medical Association's (AMA) health care reform committee, said that the private care has been neglected.

We have a telephone interview from Cambridge, Mass., said that institutions already bear the malpractice liability in other fields.

If an airplane crashes due to a mistake made by a pilot, it is the airline company that bears the brunt of liability, not the pilot.

That proposal is to shift the burden of liability from the individual doctor to the hospital.

HMOs, which are prepaid health care organizations, the private care has been neglected.

Kirk Johnson, the general counsel for the American Medical Association, said that some people on the White House working group have made it clear a preliminary decision has been made to shift liability to the employer.

Is banked blood free of disease?

DEAR DR. GOTT: My 58-year-old husband is scheduled for heart valve replacement for correction of critical aortic stenosis. We question the total safety of blood from the general blood bank pool. Because of the time factor and his condition, he will be allowed to store only one unit of his own blood. We have been unable to locate risk-free, compatible, willing donors locally.

What is your opinion of blood made available through the general blood bank? We understand testing for HIV has become more reliable, but there are other blood-transmitted diseases we don't have good information on.

DEAR READER: Banked blood, from donors obtained through the Red Cross, is carefully screened for contamination with the human immunodeficiency virus (the cause of AIDS), hepatitis viruses and other blood-borne diseases. Such blood is considered safe for transfusion.

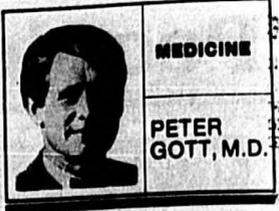

Obviously, no matter how meticulous the screening, there is a slight risk (due to human or laboratory error) that an occasional unit of blood may be contaminated; this is unavoidable in an imperfect world. However, as a general rule, Red Cross blood is free of disease.

Nonetheless, whenever possible, patients should attempt to donate their own blood in preparation for elective surgery. Receiving one's own blood is entirely devoid of risk.

In view of the urgency of your husband's surgery, he evidently doesn't have time for autologous blood donation. Consequently, I believe it is appropriate for him to use banked blood.

To give you more information, I am sending you a free copy of my Health Report "Blood Donations and Disorders." Other readers who would like a copy should send $1.25 plus a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope to P.O. Box 2433, New York, NY 10163. Be sure to mention the title.

WIN AT BRIDGE

By Phillip Alder
 Marshal Foch was one of the French heroes of World War I. He was a master strategist who believed that attack was the best form of defense. Once he described his battle plan thus: "My center is giving way, my right is in retreat, situation excellent, I shall attack!" However, in bridge sometimes defense is the best form of attack - as in today's deal.

West leads the spade four. How do you think the play should go in three no-trump? South starts with six top tricks. The other three tricks can come from the clubs, but if the finesse is losing, there is a risk that the defenders will take one club and four spade tricks.

Normally, East will win the first trick with the spade king and return the spade 10. South's natural reaction is to cover with the queen (or jack). However, against expert defenders this isn't good enough. Knowing that South must have the queen and jack of spades, West will not win with his ace; he will play the three.

Dealer, who doesn't need the club finesse, leads the club queen to tempt a cover. But then he puts up dummy's ace and plays a second club. However, East wins with the king and returns his last spade: one down.

South should cut the defenders' communications by playing his remaining low spade at trick two. He still has a guaranteed stopper, and now he can take the club finesse, not caring whether it wins or loses. The contract is ensured.

Suppose East plays the spade 10 at trick one, not the king. Sitting South, would you duck this?

HOROSCOPE

By Bernice Bede Osol
YOUR BIRTHDAY
May 6, 1993

In the year ahead, you might develop two discrete, separate circles of friends. One group might be established at your workplace, while the other will be purely social.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Your judgment might be slightly impaired today owing to the absence of your usual optimistic attitude. Evaluate situations realistically, not only negatively. Get a jump on life by understanding the influences which are governing you in the year ahead. Send for Taurus' Astro-Graph predictions (today by mailing $1.25 plus a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope to Astro-Graph, c/o this newspaper, P.O. Box 4465, New York, NY 10163. Be sure to state your zodiac sign.)

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Don't rely solely upon your memory today regarding procedures for performing a complicated task. Prepare a step-by-step fact sheet to which you can refer.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) It is best not to try to hide anything from people with whom you're involved in a joint venture. It is bound to surface, and it could cause you embarrassment when it does.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Do not make any major decisions today without first consulting your mate, and vice versa. Each of you will be angered if you are left out of the process.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) There is a possibility you might repeat a mistake today that previously caused you problems. This is a self-inflicted wound that can be avoided.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) You are a fair manager of your resources today, but you might become involved with some people who aren't. Their influence could bring you down to their level.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) If you do not have control over your affairs today, you might end up feeling as though you are being pulled and tugged in different directions just to appease others.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) This is one of those days where you might find yourself in a no-win situation. The more you'll do for others, the more they'll expect from you, and the less they're apt to do in return.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Think very carefully today before making a friend a long-term loan. There is a chance it could jeopardize the relationship, if it isn't paid back on schedule.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Your friends still like you, but they might not have as much time for you today as they usually do. Pals who are normally supportive might be looking the other way when you need them.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Decisions you make today that are predicated upon your emotions instead of your logic could prove to be unwise. Evaluate matters in a detached manner.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) A strain might develop today in a relationship that you have always deemed secure. Try to get to the root cause of the problem so that it can be alleviated as quickly as possible.

Son's laughter amidst tears embarrasses Mom at funeral

DEAR ABBY: Last week, I attended the funeral of a cousin I was especially close to. We were the same age (56) and he was dearly loved by all who knew him.

In the middle of the minister's eulogy, my son, who was seated in the row ahead of me, started to laugh. Seated next to him was his cousin, and for some reason, they both started to laugh. My son is 31 and his cousin is a year younger. Abby, here are two grown men attending a funeral, and they were laughing so hard, their shoulders were shaking.

Tears were running down my son's cheeks, so I handed him my handkerchief. It was pale pink with butterflies embroidered on it, and when his cousin saw it, he got hysterical all over again. Mind you, this was during a funeral service.

I finally tapped my son on the shoulder and motioned for him to leave and take his cousin with him. (Later someone mentioned to me that my son took my cousin's death very hard. I didn't say anything.)

After the service, I apologized to the minister. He said, "I've seen this happen before; don't worry about it."

Abby, is there some explanation for this? Getting the giggles at a funeral seems very odd to me.

EMBARRASSED IN BOSTON
DEAR EMBARRASSED: It's not unusual for the emotions to become confused when one is stressed out, grieving or elated. Inappropriate laughter ("I laughed so hard, I cried") and "tears of joy" are natural reactions. So, as the minister said, "Don't worry about it."

DEAR ABBY: We read your column about Mrs. Dow and her dilemma with much amusement. We, too, have had our name fractured for years. As Mr. and Mrs. Salomon -- pronounced Solomon -- we have been called Sullivan, Followman, Salovar, Salmon and even Sallymar!

Trying to come up with something to make it easier to remember, I say, "No, it's Salomon, like King Solomon." You guessed it! We once had a letter addressed to "Mr. and Mrs. King."

1/2 cup heavy cream
Finely chopped parsley

Cook noodles in salted, boiling water as package directs. Meanwhile, melt butter in a medium sauce pan. Add one cup Parmesan cheese, salt, pepper and cream. Cook over low heat stirring constantly until blended and fairly smooth. Drain noodles well. Immediately add to cheese mixture and toss until noodles are well coated. Turn onto a heated serving dish -- sprinkle with parsley. Serve at once. Serves six.

CHICKEN BREASTS WITH ROSEMARY AND LEMON

2 whole skinless, boneless chicken breasts -- approximately 1/4 pound each
1/4 cup flour
Salt and freshly ground pepper to taste

2 Tbs. olive oil
2 Tbs. butter
2 Tbs. chopped fresh rosemary or 1 Tbs. dried
4 garlic cloves, unpeeled
1/2 cup dry white wine
2 Tbs. fresh lemon juice
2 Tbs. chopped parsley

Split each of the chicken breasts in half. Trim neatly to remove the membrane and bits of fat. Dredge chicken in flour seasoned with salt and pepper. Heat olive oil and butter in heavy skillet, large enough to hold chicken in one layer. Add chicken pieces, rosemary and garlic cloves. Cook 4 minutes or until nicely brown on the other side. Do not cover. Pour off fat, leaving chicken, rosemary and garlic in skillet. Pour in white wine and bring to a boil. Add lemon juice and parsley. Cover and cook 3 minutes longer. Remove chicken and discard garlic cloves and serve immediately. Serves 4.

NBC's 'Tomatoes' a big victory as sweeps begin

By LYNN BASSER
AP Television Writer

LOS ANGELES — Struggling NBC claimed a rare victory in the ratings at the start of the May sweeps.

The network had the top three programs of the week — the movie "Fried Green Tomatoes," followed by "Cheers," which is airing the final episode of its 11-year run, and "Seinfeld," the A.C. Nielsen Co. said Tuesday.

NBC had an overall rating of 12.1 for the start of the May sweeps, one of four periods a year used by local stations to set advertising rates. CBS and ABC each had a 10.7. Fox had a 7.3. Each ratings point represents 931,000 homes.

It was NBC's first victory since May 18, 1992, not counting weeks that featured major sporting events such as the Olympics, the network said. NBC has been trailing CBS and ABC in viewership.
