Eaton approves motion

SANFORD — Seminole Circuit Court Judge O.H. Eaton granted a motion Wednesday allowing the pre-trial preparations in four cases against a former Lakeview band director to be handled as one case.

Stephen Paterson faces charges in four separate cases for alleged sex acts with former band students. Paterson's attorney had requested the cases be combined for administrative purposes prior to the trial. Rather than taking depositions four times, one for each of the cases, only one will be necessary.

The cases remain separated for trial. Paterson's attorney was also given permission to subpoena the students' school records. Their parents must okay the records release along with the school board.

Amtrak agrees to pay $25,000 fine

SANFORD — Amtrak officials have agreed to pay a $25,000 fine because an employee pumped diesel-tainted fuel into a creek in 1992.

The agreement also requires Amtrak to clean up any contamination in the creek, said Ali Kazzi, an industrial waste official in the Department of Environmental Regulation's Orlando office.

Court records show that Amtrak employee Robert Green pumped about 30,000 gallons of the diesel-tainted water into a storm drain last August. The drain emptied into the creek, which runs into Lake Monroe.

Seminole County authorities discovered the problem when a mile-long film of reddish oil was noticed on Lake Monroe. It was traced to the Amtrak station.

Green faced several charges related to illegal dumping but will be enrolled in a pretrial diversion program, said Assistant State Attorney Beth Rutberg. If he completes the program, the charges would be dropped.

Illegal lottery busted

Gambling probe nets 5 from Sanford; 30 arrested

By SANDRA ELLIOTT
Herald Staff Writer

SANFORD — Five Sanford residents and 25 other Seminole and Orange county residents were arrested Wednesday in a crackdown on an illegal gambling operation based in Casselberry. The arrests culminated a four-month investigation focusing on an illegal form of lottery known as bolita.

Chief assistant statewide prosecutor Richard B. Hogle said the investigation focused on Central and South Florida. The illegal lottery was played on Tuesday and Saturday nights. Players bet on numbers between 0 and 99. The organization collected over $1 million in the past year, according to Hogle. Winning numbers in the game were obtained from Miami. Sometimes bets were laid off (sold) in Miami when too many bets were placed on a particular number and the local operators would have been unable to pay off if the number hit, Hogle said.

The investigation was conducted by the City County Investigative Bureau, the Metropolitan Bureau of Investigation, the office of Norman Wolfinger, state attorney of the Eighteenth Judicial Circuit and office of statewide prosecution.

Charges of racketeering, operating an illegal lottery, bookmaking and possession of illegal lottery tickets were filed against 30 people. While serving search warrants, police seized an ounce of crack cocaine, a stolen semi-automatic assault rifle and 14 vehicles.

Sanford residents arrested were:

● Fred Calvin Person, 70, 2100 Lake Drive, racketeering and 20 counts operating an illegal lottery (OIL), his bond was set at $50,000.

● Pearl Mae Jones, 75, 813 Avacado Avenue, racketeering and six counts of OIL, bond $10,000.

Making tragic memories fade

Philanthropic efforts focus on three kids

By VICKI DeSORMIER

SANFORD — Delenna Williams smiles with an exuberance that makes one almost not notice that her face has been disfigured by fire.

The 6-year-old, who lives in Chicago, has seen more tragedy in her short life than many who live to a ripe old age will ever see, but she remains strong and cheerful.

When she was just a year old, the little girl's mother was killed in a fire in which Delenna and her brother Derrick, now 9, were severely burned. Both were disfigured by their burns and have endured countless skin grafts.

A few years later, their father was shot to death during a burglary.

In March, Delenna was walking with her aunt when the little girl was caught between rival gangs and was shot four times. Her aunt was not hit.

Delenna's dog was killed, but the little girl survived. One bullet remains lodged near her heart. Doctors feel that more harm would come of opening her chest to remove it than to leave it alone.

Graduation: Crossing the bridge to adulthood

Lyman's seniors say goodbye

By VICKI DeSORMIER
Herald Staff Writer

LONGWOOD — The tradition of early morning graduations returned to Lyman High School Wednesday after a two year test of having the ceremony at night.

"We have had rain each year," assistant principal Linda Shakar said. "I was surprised that we got through the ceremony last year."

Though it was early on a workday morning, Shakar said this year's graduation ceremony drew a sizable crowd.

"There were a few people who complained but we explained to them why we made the move and they were satisfied," Shakar said.

There were 440 young people who crossed the stage to get their diplomas.

"This class produced some very fine young people," Shakar said. "I think we are all very proud of them."

Principal Carlton Henley said he was proud of the graduates, saying they had done well academically and had served the school and the community well. See Grads, Page 2A

Some water restrictions tightened

By NICK PFEIFAU
Herald Staff Writer

SANFORD — With the lack of rainfall, water-use limits are growing. Restrictions in the area west of Interstate-4 will be tightened.

Although water shortages in the Sanford and Lake Mary area were considered, no additional restrictions have been placed on them at this time, beyond those already imposed.

The St. Johns River Water Management District board of directors met yesterday morning. Following a number of reports on water levels in the Wekiva River Basin and several hours of discussion, the board agreed on expanding some limits.

SJRWM Public Awareness Director Pat McSweeney proposed expanding the non-watering hours throughout Central Florida, from between 10 a.m. and 4 p.m., to between 10 a.m. and 6 p.m.

The board however, refused to make the changes area-wide at the present time. The only area where restriction lengthening was approved was eastern Lake, northern Orange and western Seminole counties. For Seminole it only. See Water, Page 5A

School bombing: Teens face trial as adults

By SANDRA ELLIOTT
Herald Staff Writer

SANFORD — Two juveniles charged with an explosion in a Lyman High School restroom two months ago will be tried as adults.

Eric Bryan Forgy, 17, 936 Red Fox Road, Altamonte Springs and Gabriel Stephen Lovasz, 16, 1482 Grace Lake Circle, Longwood are charged with possession of an explosive device and their cases transferred from juvenile to circuit court.

Both youths are scheduled to be arraigned June 29.

In addition, Forgy will be arraigned June 22 on another case which alleges he sold an explosive device to a 15-year old student in his Spanish class for $5 about two weeks before the Lyman incident. The youth kept the bomb in his bedroom dresser. He became concerned after watching televised reports about the Lyman explosion and reported he had the bomb to officials. The device was removed from the teen's home by Longwood Police and federal Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms agents and destroyed.

The April 2 explosion at Lyman High School caused about $1,000 damage to a toilet and stall in a boys restroom and left school band director Donald Schmaus badly shaken but uninjured. Police evacuated adults and students attending a band competition and a baseball game at the school after the explosion.

The device exploded when Schmaus picked up a piece of twine lying on the floor of the restroom.

in a number of times of need, beginning when the school served as a shelter for victims of Hurricane Andrew in August.

The graduates were lauded for their academic achievements and their accomplishments on the playing field, in vocational competition and in technological pursuits.

Shakar said the graduates made the administration proud with their fine behavior both before and during the ceremony.

"They are a fine group of young men and women," she said. "It makes us very proud and confident about the future."

When Sandy Cannon, Seminole County Sheriff Don Ealinger's secretary, heard about Delenna, she contacted Mount Dora businessman Ward Griner, who has done much philanthropic work for children in the past and asked if he would be interested in financing a dream trip for Delenna and her family.

He agreed, and with the assistance of other area businesses, including Mighty Eagle Travel, the RiverShip Grand Romance, Church Street Station, Congo River of Altamonte Springs, the Central Florida Zoo, the Clarion Hotel-International Drive, the Quality Inn-Longwood, Selective Limousines, Sea World, Walt Disney World and Universal Studios, they put together a trip the family could only have dreamed about.

Delenna and Derrick are traveling with their 11-year-old sister Keyata and their aunt Rose Doyle, who is now their guardian.

The sheriff's department will provide the family with escorts during their five day stay.

"We are on call for them 24-hours a day," Sheriff Don Ealinger said after greeting the family at the department yesterday afternoon.

Delenna and her family toured the sheriff's department soon after their arrival.

Her bright eyes danced from room to room settling on computer components or on video equipment which she studied carefully. She asked many questions and said that she would like to work with computers, be a landlord or become a teacher when she got older.

Tippy, the department's arson investigating canine and pointed it out to her sister. The two decided that was the dog they wanted to replace the pet that had been killed in March.

Doyle said that she knew Delenna was excited about the upcoming visit to Disney World.

"She hasn't slept for two days thinking about it," she said.

Doyle marvelled at the kindness of people who have written to them after hearing about Delenna.

"It is frightening to know that people all over the world are praying for you," she said. "I didn't know we'd have such an impact on people so far away."

She said she was constantly amazed by Delenna's ability to bounce back after tragedy and to "come back, bringing the best with her."

Delenna, her aunt and her brother and sister often put their arms around one another as they made their way down the halls of the sheriff's department.

And like most families, they bickered about little things such as whether or not Delenna could swim, why her bike had a flat tire and whether Michael Jordan or Scottie Pippen is a better player. They did agree, however, that the Chicago Bulls would win the NBA championship.

Doyle and Keyata complained about the heat. Delenna and Derrick seemed oblivious to it.

"That's unusual," Doyle said. "Usually summer is the worst time for them. The (skin) grafts seem to attract the heat."

The family has an itinerary that is packed with activities through Sunday.

They will be returning to Chicago Monday.

"Right now they just want to get in the pool," Doyle said.

Christmas Parade plans

Fish fry fund-raiser to help pay expenses of bands

By NICK PFENFAUF
Herald Staff Writer

SANFORD — With the year not half over, planning is already under way for the 1993 Christmas Parade. The aim this year will be to obtain more marching band units.

Committee chairman Billy Higgins said, "This is the beginning of a plan to upgrade the parade in one segment each year." He commented that emphasis will be on a different improvement for each coming year.

Two activities have been planned to raise money with which to obtain bands for the parade, which will be held in conjunction with the St. Lucia Festival. Committee member Kay Bartholomew explained, "This isn't to pay the bands, but many of them would have quite a bit of expense such as bussing, which we believe should be taken care of by the committee."

Letters have been sent to selected high school band leaders in Seminole, Orange, Lake and Volusia counties, inviting the bands to march in the parade. The committee is offering to reimburse part of the costs, depending on the total amount raised in the fund raising drive.

Money will also be used for awards given to parade entries such as floats and dance teams.

"We hope these incentives will increase participation in our parade from schools throughout Central Florida," Higgins said.

The fund-raisers will include a fish fry on June 25, conducted by Higgins. "I'd rather call it a seafood social," he commented. It will be held at the home of Meta Brooks, 1013 S. Myrtle Avenue.

At the seafood social, Higgins plans to challenge over 30 people to sell candy during the next five months. The committee hopes the social and candy sale will be able to reach a fund goal of $5,000.

The committee will be expanded as the Dec. 12 date for the parade draws nearer. Higgins plans to add representation from the city's recreation and police departments.

Bartholomew said additional volunteers are still needed for the committee and various special projects. To volunteer, phone St. Lucia Festival headquarters, (First Street Gallery) at 323-9178.

Taxpayers to foot $9,000 PSC conference at Disney

By The Associated Press

TALLAHASSEE — A Disney World conference that will cost taxpayers $9,000 to attend is being held at the resort, and the state is being billed for the cost, according to a report.

The Southeastern Association of Regulatory Utility Commissioners conference begins Sunday, just as the PSC is under scrutiny for one member's personal relationships that began at similar meetings with utility executives.

"The timing could not have been worse," said PSC Chairman Terry Desson.

The president of SEARUC this year is PSC Commissioner Tom Beard, who is being investigated for his travel records and relationships with two women employed by telephone companies.

Four of the five PSC members will attend the meetings through next Wednesday at the Disney Yacht Club Resort. Business meetings will occur in the mornings, but there are also receptions with utility officials and time for golf, tennis and other activities.

Commissioner Susan Clark said the SEARUC gathering provides a chance to compare notes with utility regulators from other states.

"Let's be real clear. I'm going to SEARUC, not Disney World," she said. "I'm not playing golf. I'm not playing tennis."

Commissioner Julia Johnson is so concerned about appearances, she's planning to stay at her mother's home in Clermont and is not taking her car.

"I hadn't thought of it as a bad thing but as an educational kind of thing," she said. "But perception does matter."

Attorney General Bob Butterworth and the Florida Department of Law Enforcement both are looking into Beard's relationships with BellSouth employee Mary Daudelin and Southern Bell worker Alma Paruolo, both of whom he met at conventions.

Meanwhile, the absence of Beard and Commissioner Luis Laurodo from Tuesday's meeting because of other out-of-state conferences delayed some business pending before the PSC.

Beard is attending a telephone conference in Colorado, but his aide said he's not charging that trip to the state. Laurodo missed Tuesday's session because of an energy meeting in La Jolla, Calif., that is being paid for by the Institute of the Americas and the U.S. Trade and Development Agency.

PSC rules require at least three votes to pass an issue before the panel, and when the remaining commissioners couldn't agree several items had to be put off.

Attorney: Baby swap girl dead

SARASOTA — A girl swapped at birth and now ensnared in a legal dispute over visitation rights burst into tears after an attorney for her biological parents declared her dead.

"Kimberly Mays died five years ago," attorney John Blakely said at a hearing Wednesday. "The lady sitting at the table is Arlena Twigg."

The 14-year-old Englewood girl was in court asking to sever all ties with her biological parents, Ernest and Regina Twigg of Sebring. They were not in the courtroom.

Kimberly clutched a tissue and was comforted by Robert Mays as the Clearwater attorney maintained she is the child named on the birth certificate issued to the Twigg.

"The closest thing Bob Mays is, is a foster parent," Blakely told Circuit Judge Stephen Dakan, over objections from Kimberly's attorneys.

Blakely later referred to the girl as "Arlena, alias Kimberly Mays."

Kimberly regained her composure after a few minutes and listened attentively as attorneys argued the issue for more than two hours. She shook her head and occasionally glared at Blakely as he spoke.

Prison bed expansion bill signed

By GURT ANDERSON
Associated Press Writer

TALLAHASSEE — Gov. Lawton Chiles signed legislation expanding the prison system by 10,524 beds, but it represents only the beginning of a big construction program.

The overall $211 million program (SB 8B) passed by the Legislature in May adds 10,524 beds to the prison system over five years, but it won't be enough to stop early releases to prevent overcrowding.

"The new prison beds are our first step in creating a long-term, long-range plan for prison construction," Chiles said Wednesday.

The governor is expected to sign next week a bill rewriting sentencing guidelines and changing early-release policy to reserve prison space for the worst offenders. If serious offenders are to serve 75 percent of their sentences, about 23,000 more beds must be added to the system over five years.

"The Legislature has made a promise on paper to address such a plan in future sessions," the governor said. "I certainly intend to hold them to that."

Despite resistance among lawmakers to raising taxes for prison construction, Chiles said he intended again to "try to seek a funding source" to earmark for them.

The governor initially had sought a cigarette tax increase to dedicate to prisons, but that plan foundered when a welfare caseload overestimate freed $166 million.

The program adds 8,510 beds at major institutions and work camps and 1,511 beds at alternative facilities such as drug treatment centers and county jails; juvenile centers get 503 beds.

The legislation also adds money to services for abused children and female inmates, to help counties cope with expensive multi-jurisdiction prosecutions such as the Gainesville murders case and to set up a 10-member tourist crime squad.

Chiles said he considered vetoing a $300,000 appropriation for a task force to contract for two 750-bed private prisons but decided to let the panel do its work. The governor said lobbyists for private corrections companies wrote much of the wording.

"There's language in the bill itself that I think weighs against that being a totally balanced study. We'll leave that up to the study that takes place," he said.

On Tuesday, June 15, 1993, Seminole County will hold a Public Meeting at 6:00 P.M. in the Commission chambers of the County Services Building, Room 1028, located at 1101 East First Street, Sanford, FL. The purpose of the Public Meeting is to obtain information on existing housing needs prior to the development and completion of the Volusia/Seminole HOME Consortium 5-year Consolidated Comprehensive Housing Affordability Strategy (CHAS) and Fiscal year 1994 Annual Plan in compliance with Title I of the National Affordable Housing Act of 1990.

Seminole County and Volusia County have entered into a binding interlocal cooperative agreement creating the HOME Consortium and designating Volusia County as the lead agency for the Consolidated CHAS. It is anticipated that the Volusia/Seminole HOME Consortium 5-Year Consolidated CHAS and Fiscal Year 1994 Annual Plan will be completed and made available for a 30-day comment period effective August 28, 1993. It is also anticipated that the Volusia/Seminole HOME Consortium 5-Year CHAS and Fiscal Year 1994 CHAS Annual Plan, along with a Summary of Citizen Comments, will be forwarded to the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development by Volusia County on or about, November 15, 1993.

All Seminole County residents and interested citizen groups and organizations are invited to attend the public meeting to express their views on current and future housing needs. The meeting place is handicap-accessible. An interpreter may also be provided for non-English speaking persons with reasonable advance notice to the County of Seminole by contacting the Community Development Section of the Comprehensive Planning Department located at the County Services Building, 1101 East First Street, Room 3301, Sanford, FL 32771, (407) 321-1130, extension 7306 or 7384, or TDD (407) 330-8666.

Summer water, electricity use: Sweat it out

It seems as though Central Florida has the same problems at the beginning of each hot weather period. Electricity is overused, and lawns are overwatered.

Lose either water or electricity, and living ceases to be endurable. Yet people bring it upon themselves.

Air conditioning units are turned much to low and left on even when people go away for a weekend. Fans are left running day and night. Refrigerators and freezers are turned to lower temperatures.

When a large number of people do this at the same time, available electricity will start to diminish.

To prevent lawns from turning brown or gardens from dying, some people, during hot spells, leave water sprinklers on day and night. Unfortunately, they are not only reducing the water supply, they are wasting it. The sun merely evaporates the water, and it is of no value to the soil.

The St. Johns River Water Management District has imposed stronger restrictions on watering during the day. People in the area west of Interstate 4 will not be able to water lawns, golf courses or recreation areas from 8 a.m. until 8 p.m.

They hope they will not have to expand the area or place an even tighter limit on Central Florida. If people continue to abuse the restrictions, (even if they don't get caught), we will soon have a very serious problem with our drinking water supply.

Whether it is with electricity or irrigation, a genuine commitment by all the people to avoid over-use is the only way we will safely survive this hot spell.

Some people are fortunate in the Sanford area to have access to recycled water. They may irrigate at any time.

Most area residents however, rely only on city water or private wells. Using excessive water from wells will also cause harm to the underground fresh water supply. Over-use of well water must also be avoided.

As in past years, the heat wave will come and go. Rains will eventually fall and temperatures will head back down. In the meantime, it will take the cooperation of each and every person to prevent water shortages and electrical outages.

Pets and parked cars

Incredible as it seems, it is apparently necessary once again to remind people of the danger, in the summer, of closing up a pet in a parked car.

Recently I saw a beautiful, obviously pedigreed dog, sealed into an expensive black Pontiac in a shopping center lot in Sanford. The owner sauntered to the car after nearly 15 minutes and by a minor miracle the dog was still alive although possibly now suffering permanent brain damage. As I waited for use of a phone to call police or the Humane Society, the owner unlocked the car and drove off. I hope he turned on the air conditioning!

Folks, try sitting in a closed car for 15 or 20 minutes, out in the baking sun. How does it feel in that hot box? Remember, a dog's body temp is higher than human's, plus they cannot perspire. Multiply your misery by several times and imagine how a defenseless animal suffers. Too bad they can't talk, like Hobbes or Pogo, but we couldn't print their comments in a family newspaper, could we?

Please, do not take your pet with you if you must leave it in a car in the summer. It is gross animal abuse.

The heavy task of David Gergen

Let me begin by apologizing to any readers who wish I would write about something or somebody besides President Clinton. But what is a once-a-week columnist to do about a president who is running at the rate of a gaffe a day?

By now it is all but universally conceded that the Clinton presidency, thus far at any rate, is a disaster. The only topics being seriously discussed are (1) what caused the disaster, and (2) what, if anything, can be done about it?

One can only speculate, but it appears to me that the cause of the disaster is twofold: an amiable and lazy president, accustomed to yielding to whatever pressures seem heaviest at the moment, and a White House staff which, far from "looking like America," consists largely of young, inexperienced staffers far to the left of American public opinion.

That's why Mr. Clinton's 1992 campaign was so much more successful than his presidency. It was, for one thing, run by James Carville, "the ragin' Cajun," who knew exactly what the voters were looking for and managed to persuade his candidate to pledge that he would give it to them. Even today, the only happy hours Mr. Clinton has are those when he is back on the campaign trail, roaming around the country making vague promises to "end welfare as we know it." The only difference is that now he can't ride on a bus.

The tasks of a president, however, seem utterly beyond him. He is chronically, almost insultingly late for appointments. Scores of important ambassadorships, vacated on his orders as soon as he was sworn in, remain empty because he hasn't gotten around to filling them. Important policies, on everything from Bosnia to a middle-class tax cut, are firmly proclaimed and then sheepishly abandoned. Now we learn that his appointment of a woman he has known since law school to a key job at Justice had to be withdrawn because he never got around to reading what she had written, and was shocked when he finally did so.

But what is a once-a-week columnist to do about a president who is running at the rate of a gaffe a day?

(Lani Guinier says her mother, conversely, was amazed at the depictions of Lani as an extremist. But her mother has a rather different frame of reference: Her husband, Lani's father, was secretary-treasurer of a union that was thrown out of the CIO for being communist-controlled, and himself took the Fifth on the question of party membership.)

But that brings us to the second problem: the White House staff. It is so green, and so far to the left, that it simply doesn't recognize a pitfall when it sees one.

I can believe President Clinton hadn't read Ms. Guinier's law review articles demanding super-majorities to remedy the minority status of American blacks. But I find it harder to believe that literally nobody on the White House staff read them either. More likely, whoever read them just thrust a fist into the air and yelled "Right on!"

Similarly, there is a juvenile arrogance that emanates from this staff like the fumes from a corpse in a car trunk. I can believe that Mr. Clinton truly didn't realize that his $200 haircut was holding up traffic at Los Angeles International Airport. But somebody in the White House entourage must have known it, and decided, in effect, "So what?"

MARTIN SCHRAM

Clinton's plea: 'Please like me!'

We see a president in mid-plummet. Even his still-faithful wonder where he really stands and whether he cares as deeply about any policy as he does about every poll. And his party just lost a Senate seat that should have been a keeper, a special election in a key state where his name did more harm than help.

We are looking at George Bush '91, stunned at Pennsylvania's rejection of his pal, ex-Gov. Dick Thornburgh, a harbinger that Bush was trapped in a one-term presidency. We are looking, too, at Bill Clinton '93, shaken by Texas' vanquishing of Sen. Bob Krueger at the hands of many who, just seven months ago, were Clinton voters.

Perhaps this warning salvo came loud enough and early enough to jar Clinton into saving himself from his predecessor's fate. But so far, Clinton has given us — how to say? — a very Bush League Presidency.

It's happened because Clinton is, at heart, more like Bush than either will ever understand. Clinton, like Bush, is a consensus-seeker, not a crusader. Clinton, like Bush, rose to fame largely by guessing what party elders and 50-percent-plus-one of the rest of us wanted — then getting himself there, just in time. Clinton, like Bush, marches to just one fervent rally cry: "Please like me!"

That motto made Clinton a most promising candidate — he promised everything from tax cuts for middle classes, to sweeping deficit cuts for our children's tomorrow, to open arms for Haitians and military arms for Bosnians. It led him to entice us with New Populist rhetoric, then look away when his crew gave us Old Politics abuses. His Democratic National Committee hit up special interests to finance the selling of Clinton's unwritten health plan — hoping to keep secret the contributors. His White House willingly smeared career travel staff — pushing the FBI to label it a criminal probe — so Clinton's pals could run the office and bid for its business.

And the spirit of "Please like me" led him to duck and dawdle until a minor appointment became a major furor. He picked a friend of his and Hillary's, Lani Guinier, to head the Justice Department's civil rights branch — but ignored warnings from liberals that she'd authored extra-constitutional proposals even they couldn't defend. He could have quietly made her a White House adviser, utilized her talents and avoided a firestorm. But no: Clinton delayed, then dumped her, insisting he'd not read her writings until that day, despite a month of warnings (a shocking abdication of responsibility, if true); he said he couldn't defend them. Finally, he insisted politics had nothing to do with it. No one believes that.

Now the good news: There is plenty of time for Clinton to right his presidency. If he has the will, here's the way:

1. Resign — as your own do-it-all chief of staff. You are the president, be presidential. You're immersed so deeply in detail, you've buried your own political antennae. Lead. Command. Delegate.

2. Adopt the Satchmo Rule: Tell your titular chief of staff, Thomas "Mack" McLarty, "Mack, the knifel seize it. Use it. Also the whip — crack it!" Don't tolerate staff failures to warn you against making decisions that can cause dire consequences. Tell McLarty he's failed you by not cracking down on the staff. Also by not standing up to you. (See: Lani Guinier.)

3. Adapt the Dole Dictum: Start each day by looking in the mirror and telling yourself what Bob Dole once told George Bush: "Stop lying about my record!" You must never again be caught telling us things we all know cannot be true. (See: Lani Guinier.)

4. Brandish the Meese Measuring Stick: Every time an adviser proposes another secret, too-cute, money-raising scheme (See: DNC's Secret Health Kitty for Fat-Cats) or a pal pushes his influence (See: Travel Office Cronyism), ask yourself: "If the media caught Ed Meese doing that, what would Bill Clinton tell the press?" If it's anything short of "Swell fellow, that Ed" — just say no. It's that simple.

It's happened because Clinton is, at heart, more like Bush than either will ever understand.

Shedding light on Marshall's papers

One of the ironies of life in America is that our open government is so fraught with people who think it should not be.

From capital city to county seat, we are led by politicians and bossed by bureaucrats who think we should know little of the workings of government. So they huddle behind closed doors and shred and classify documents by the millions.

Why? Do they think we are too stupid to comprehend the subtleties of governance? Do they truly worry that some foe will learn our secrets and jeopardize the national security? Or do they fret mostly over their own personal and political security?

Skeptical I am, I say it's the latter. And nothing could be more illustrative of it than the current brouhaha over the papers of the late Supreme Court Justice Thurgood Marshall.

That's not the explanation you hear from the pooh-balls involved in the fracas, of course. They intone learnedly about the court's tradition of secrecy and need for detachment.

Oh, horse patooty. The justices of the Supreme Court are as human as the rest of us, and they don't relish the prospect of looking like damn fools. And they are particularly concerned what the caustic Marshall might have had to say about them in his private musings. That's the main reason for the fuss.

A recap for those who haven't been paying attention:

When he retired in 1991, Justice Thurgood Marshall donated his papers to the Library of Congress with the understanding they would be made public after his death. He died last Jan. 24, and the library subsequently released his papers — some of which concern cases decided as recently as two years ago. No one paid much attention until The Washington Post started writing about them on May 23.

From the reaction, you'd think the Apocalypse was upon us. Chief Justice William Rehnquist, a statist at best and maybe even a crypto-oligarch, accused the library of "bad judgment" and threatened to take his papers elsewhere. Former Chief Justice Warren Burger, who once castigated The New York Times for not returning the Pentagon Papers as stolen documents, huffily pointed out that only people engaged in "serious research" were supposed to have access to the Marshall papers, thus implying that journalists were hardly serious researchers.

The Marshall family attorney, former Transportation Secretary William Coleman, allowed that the release of the papers was "the worst thing I have seen happen in a long time in this town." Columnist Carl Rowan declared that the Library of Congress had "betrayed" Marshall "in an unconscionable way."

About which three points beg to be made: 1. Librarian of Congress James Billington, God bless him, deserves a First Amendment award of some sort for his staunch defense of the public's right of access to the Marshall papers.

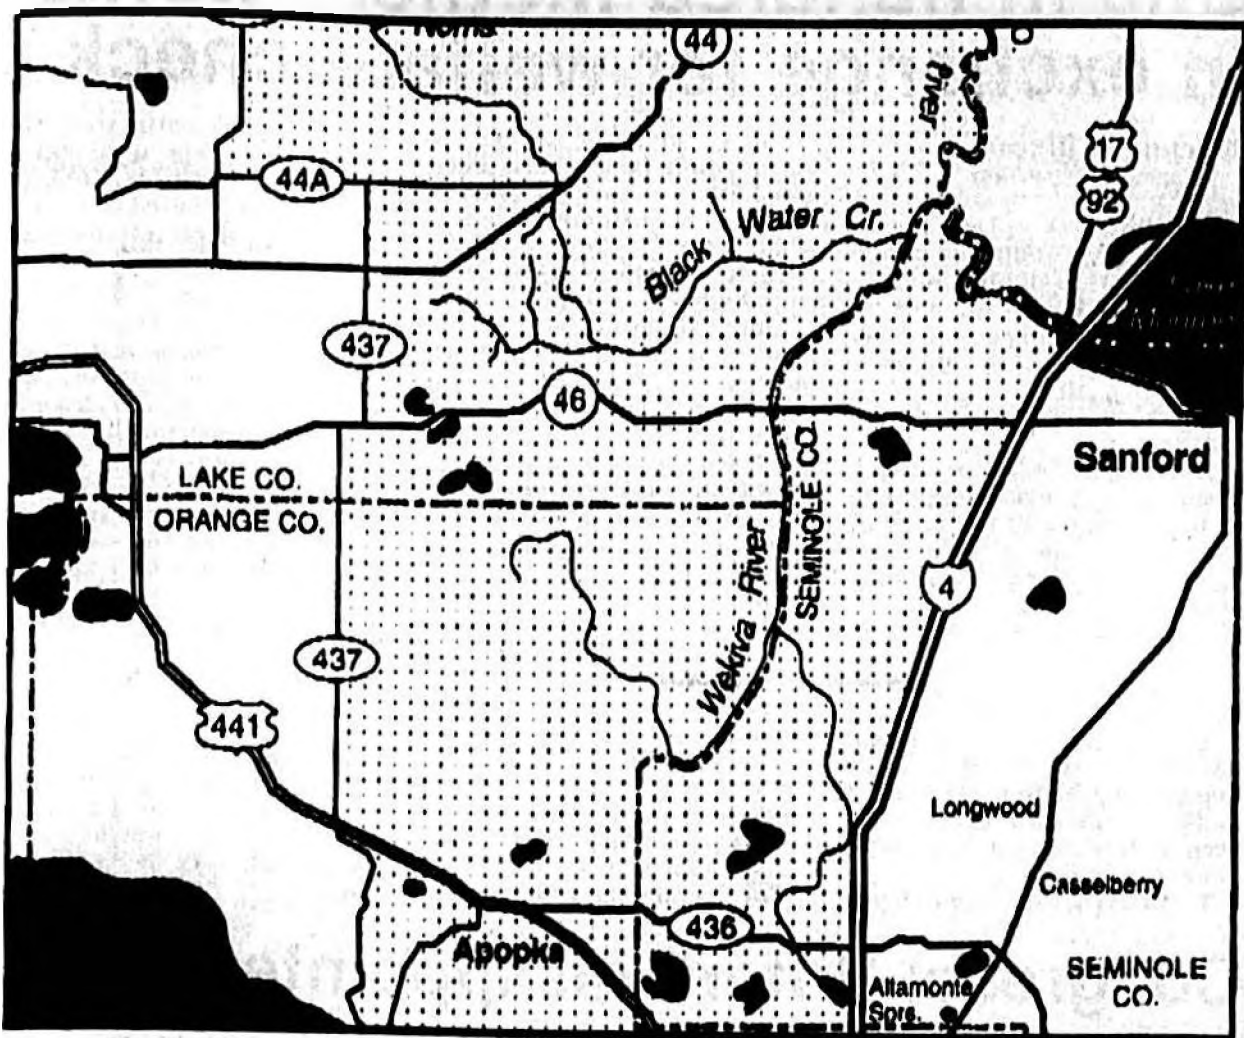

2. Nothing has turned up that is embarrassing to anybody. Indeed, Pulitzer Prize-winning biographer David Garrow wrote in the Washington Post that the Marshall papers "repeatedly show the Court in a most serious and committed light."

3. Of all the government institutions that come immediately to mind — including the CIA — none could benefit more from a sporadic burst of publicity than the Supreme Court.

Phase I Water Shortage Restrictions Area Effective June 12, 1993

The St. Johns River Water Management District has expanded the non-watering hours for a 300 square mile area of eastern Lake, northern Orange and western Seminole counties. Watering is prohibited between 8 a.m. and 8 p.m.

Water

includes the area west of Interstate 4.
Watering is not allowed between 8 a.m. and 8 p.m. in this 300 square mile area.
"This is a precautionary measure to reduce any environmental damage in the Wekiva area," explained Jeff Elledge, director of resource management. "These additional restrictions are quite easy to follow and apply to water users in the area. We're asking for the public's help to cut back on water use so we can avoid additional restrictions."

Water managers hope the stepped-up conservation measures will cut water use by 15 percent in the area where expanded non-watering hours have been established.

Meanwhile, the SJRWDM has previously set up certain hours for the 19 counties in Central Florida district. Year-round restrictions prohibit outdoor irrigation between 10 a.m. and 4 p.m., seven days a week.
Various towns and counties have also enacted their own water-reuse restrictions that go beyond those established by the SJRWDM.
In Volusia County, the restrictions are mandatory and limit lawn watering to the hours of 4-8 a.m. and 5-9 p.m. except for persons with automatic timers on irrigation systems. They are only allowed to use the morning hours.

In the city of Oviedo, residents are asked to restrict their lawn irrigation to no longer than 15 minutes, three times a week.
In Melbourne, restrictions against watering between 10 a.m. and 8 p.m. have been in effect since the fall of 1991.
"We hope rains start falling soon and build up the water level," McSweeney said yesterday. "If not, we may have to expand the non-watering hours and maybe go into the odd-even system for a much larger area."
The SJRWDM considers their action yesterday as part of Phase I. McSweeney said the board hopes it will be able to make it through the summer without having to consider any stricter limitations.

One in hundred mothers works in exchange for welfare check

By JENNIFER DIXON
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON — Only one of every hundred women on public assistance works for her family's welfare check, say studies illustrating the staggering task President Clinton faces fulfilling a promise to move welfare mothers off the rolls and into jobs.

Clinton has said that low-income Americans deserve help with education and training but after two years of assistance "you have to ask people to take a job, ultimately, either in the private sector or in public service."

A record 5 million families — almost all of them headed by a single parent — collect a check under Aid to Families with Dependent Children. At least 3 million mothers probably have been on welfare for two years or more.

A handful now work in exchange for their checks, as teachers or Head Start aides, hospital candy-strippers, welfare office clerks or in other low-skill positions.

Right now, the JOBS — or Job Opportunities and Basic Skills training program — requires states to put an increasing share of their AFDC recipients into education, training or work programs.

Studies by two Washington research groups, one conservative and one liberal, say most JOBS participants are in education or training.

The studies say about 1 percent of the 4.49 million families on AFDC in 1991 worked in exchange for their check.

Robert Rector, a welfare policy analyst for the conservative Heritage Foundation, pegs the number of women in jobs or on-the-job training at 20,000 to 50,000, based on a recent analysis of federal data.

The liberal Center for Law and Social Policy estimated the number at 17,000 to 35,000 in an average month in 1991. Its 1992 study was based on preliminary 1991 federal records and a survey of the states.

Increasing the numbers is "an enormous, daunting task," said Paul Offner, an aide to Sen. Daniel Patrick Moynihan, D-N.Y., chairman of the Senate Finance Committee.

David Ellwood, assistant secretary for planning and evaluation at the Department of Health and Human Services, wrote in December that at least 3 million women probably have been on welfare for two years or more.

"If half of these are required to work, the cost and mechanics could be staggering," he said, citing Offner's estimate of the cost of creating a public service job and day care at $3,500 per case.

Congress: Voters disappointed with Clinton; disgusted with bickering

By KAREN BALL
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON — Across the country, the frustration is building again for voters who feel they've seen this all before: the congressional bickering, broken promises, a White House drift.

Won't Washington ever change? That dark mood is what Democratic lawmakers say they encountered on trips back home last week.

"The optimism of January has turned to fear — they're afraid it's not going to get fixed," said Rep. Karen Shepherd, D-Utah, who was swept into office on last year's banner of change.

"Democracy is inordinately messy. People are watching it close up, and I think it's terrifying for them," she said.

In interviews with several Democrats who returned to their home districts last week, lawmakers reported that constituents are disappointed with President Clinton for what they see as his inability to make good as quickly as he'd pledged on jobs, health care, deficit reduction and other campaign promises.

But the Democrats, who'd hoped to capitalize on their first control of the White House and Congress in 12 years, said their constituents are equally as annoyed with them.

"They don't think either one of us are doing a very good job," said Sen. John Breaux, D-La. "They think we just blame each other."

"In the view of many voters," added Rep. Tim Penny, D-Minn., "we're not ending gridlock, we're just fighting. Now we're even fighting within our own party. That doesn't sit too well out there."

"Everybody," said Rep. Mike Synar, D-Okla., "seems to have forgotten what the voters told us last November — lead, follow or get the heck out of the way. Do something. Voting no and saying we can't do it is not acceptable."

Democrats said many voters reported being troubled by Clinton's early missteps, such as the failed jobs bill, and management debacles such as the doomed nomination of Zoe Baird. Still, voters are rooting for the president to succeed, they said.

"They fault him — no bones about it. Mistakes were made — but it's not a throw-him-out attitude," said Sen. Howard Metzenbaum, D-Ohio. "They're asking me, 'Can't you do something to help him?'"

Rep. Dan Glickman, D-Kan., said voters don't understand Clinton's budget package because the president failed to explain it. So "the enemies defined the package," Glickman said.

"If I were in their shoes," Glickman said of voters, "I'd be unhappy too because they didn't have the foggiest notion of what was in it. I want (Clinton) to do well, but it was a very disappointing display of the power of persuasion of the chief executive officer."

Glickman urged the White House to develop a "game plan for the next six to eight weeks" and do a better job of taking his case to the American public.

"It's not as if you have to give the people candy and pabulum. People willingly take medication to get better," Glickman said.

"Tell me what interest rates and unemployment will be in October '94," said Rep. Barney Frank, D-Mass. "Then I'll make my prediction about the election results of November '94."

Webber wants to join Magic

CHICAGO — Chris Webber says he wants to be drafted by the Orlando Magic so he can play in the shadow of Shaquille O'Neal and be inconspicuous.

"The perfect scenario would be Orlando because of that big monster in the middle. I'd like to go where a great player is already getting a lot of limelight, so I can kind of sneak up on people," said the Michigan All-American, in Chicago for the NBA pre-draft camp.

Meola, U.S. shock England

FOXBORO, Mass. — Ridiculed by English players who mocked his ability and his physique, American goalkeeper Tony Meola responded with several brilliant stops in a shocking soccer victory over England.

Meola, who failed a pair of tryouts with English clubs in 1990, made 15 saves as the United States defeated England 2-0 in the U.S. Cup '93 tournament Wednesday night.

The victory was the first for a U.S. squad against England since the 1950 World Cup.

PHOENIX — The Chicago Bulls took the first step in their final sprint to a third consecutive NBA title Wednesday night.

The Bulls contested every Phoenix outside shot, harassing the usually high-scoring Suns into 44.4 percent shooting and won the opener of the NBA Finals 100-92.

Michael Jordan scored 31 points and Scottie Pippen 27 for Chicago, which could be building the most dominant NBA dynasty since Boston won eight consecutive titles from 1959-66.

County has 11 qualify for USA Wrestling events

From Staff Reports

Just as every journey starts with single step, the road to a possible national championship begins with winning state honors.

Three weeks ago at Winter Haven High School, 11 Seminole County wrestlers proved they were among the best in the state at their respective weight and age class. With that honor comes the right to challenge for All-American laurels.

According to Lyman High School wrestling coach Rick Tribbit, six locals earned a spot on the Cadet (15 and 16 year olds) Team Florida squad at the national qualifying tournament and five wrestled their way onto the Junlor (17 and 18) Team Florida squad.

"The top three in each weight class in each style (freestyle and Greco-Roman) advance to the national championship tournament, which is sanctioned by USA Wrestling," explained Tribbit. "Then, if you finish in the top eight at the national meet, you're named an All-American."

At the national tournament, each weight class will have anywhere from 64 to 128 competitors.

The Cadets' national tournament will be conducted later this summer at the University of Missouri in Columbia, Mo., while the Juniors are headed to Fargo, N.D.

Five Lyman wrestlers earned the right to compete in the Cadet national tournament: Peter Whittington (103½ pounds), Isaac Hunter (121 pounds), Eric Smith (143 pounds), Andy Hebert (167 pounds), and Alex Hannah (Heavyweight).

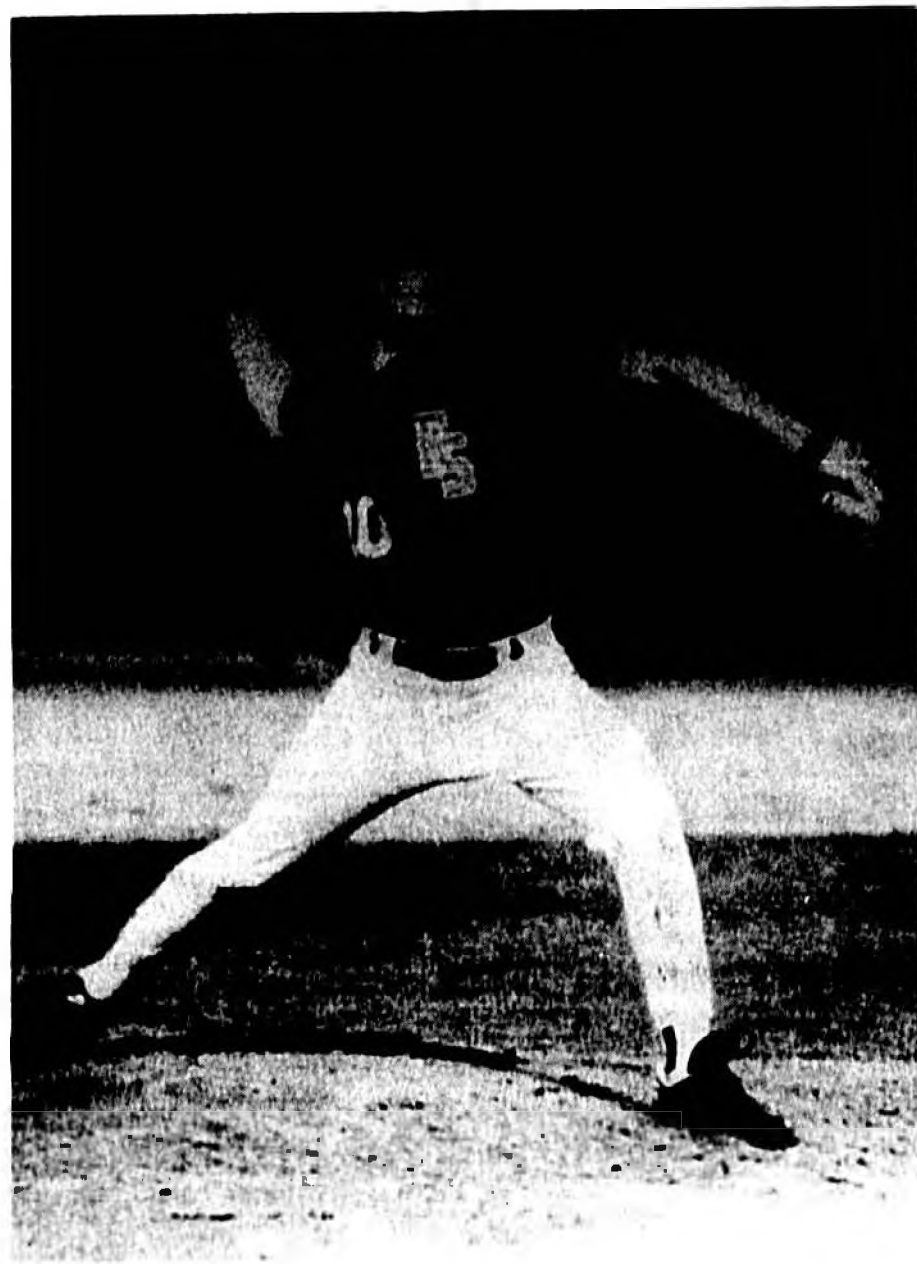

Also making the Team Florida Cadet squad was Oviedo's Ansel Kinnard (94½ pounds).

Tribbit, who is a member of the coaching staff for the Team Florida Cadet squad, said that all six of the Cadets will compete in both the freestyle and Greco-Roman styles.

Local members of the Team Florida Junior squad, which is led by former Lake Mary High School coach Richard Batchelor, include Lake Mary's Mike Laurent (123 pounds), Lyman's Vinnie Samero (143 pounds), Jason Nutt of Lyman (165 pounds), Oviedo's Brian Black (220 pounds), and Lyman's LaDaryl Fenney (Heavyweight).

Tribbit said that Laurent will compete in the Greco-Roman style only while Samero will compete in freestyle only. Nutt, Black, and Fenney will all compete on both styles.

Todd Braden pitched what was described as one of his finest games of the year Wednesday, striking out 13 and allowing just an unearned run on four hits for the Sanford Post 53 Cyclones in a 2-1 win over Ormond Beach.

Zaladonis, Braden lead Post 53 sweep

From Staff Reports

SANFORD — After a less-than- auspicious debut last weekend, the Sanford American Legion Post 53 Cyclones B team came back strong Wednesday and swept a doubleheader from Ormond Beach, 3-2 in nine innings and 2-1.

The two wins gives the Cyclones a 2-2 record heading into a doubleheader this Saturday against Father Lopez at Wendelstadt Park in Ormond Beach.

In both ends of Wednesday's doubleheader, the Cyclones received outstanding pitching performances. Brian Zaladonis struck out seven in a nine-inning complete game effort in the first game while Todd Braden fanned 13 in a seven-inning four-hitter in the nightcap.

"Brian pitched on the junior varsity team as a freshman this year," said Seminole High School varsity coach Mike Powers, who will lead the Cyclone B squad this summer. "It's the first time he's ever pitched nine innings and it may be his first complete game in his high school career."

"He kept the ball down and threw a lot of strikes. It was a great surprise. I'm very proud of him."

For Braden, expected to anchor the Seminole varsity staff next season as a senior, it was one of his strongest performances of the year.

"Todd pitched poorly last week against Deltona," said Powers. "Today, he came back strong. He had good control and good pop. It was a different Todd Braden. It was the best game he's pitched all year. He really threw the ball hard."

Tony Morgan, who had three hits in the doubleheader, scored the winning run in the bottom of the ninth inning of the first game. After hitting a two-out single, Morgan stole second and went all the way to third on a wild pitch on the play. Mike Meadows then singled Morgan home.

Morgan also had a double and another run scored in the first game. Chris Youmans added a single and an RBI. Alex Acosta singled and Joe Tittle scored a run.

Sanford broke a 1-1 tie in the second game with a run in the fourth inning. After Ryan Hall hit a one-out single, Jeff Peck delivered a hit-and-run single, sending Hall to third. When the throw from the outfield sailed over the head of the Ormond Beach third baseman, Hall scored the game-winning run.

Seek counseling for sex disorder

DEAR DR. GOTT: I'm a 23-year-old African-American who suffers from premature ejaculation. As a result, I've never had sexual intercourse with a woman. A local pharmacist, who is also a friend, says there are no medications available, yet suggested a cream containing benzocaine. Is he on the right track? If not, can you start me in the right direction?

DEAR READER: Premature ejaculation, male orgasm that occurs too early to permit sexual relations, usually has an emotional cause, rather than a physical one. Men with this disorder typically fear sex, are apprehensive about being discovered or feel anxiety about their performance. Interpersonal factors (such as anger or fear of getting close) may also affect orgasm.

Your pharmacist has suggested an anesthetic cream to reduce sensitivity. I don't believe this is a satisfactory long-term solution. In my opinion, you would be more appropriately helped by sex counseling. Such services are widely available, especially in large teaching hospitals. Premature ejaculation is curable with proper therapy.

To give you more information, I am sending you a free copy of my Health Report "Where to Find Sex Information." Other readers who would like a copy should send $1.25 plus a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope to P.O. Box 2433, New York, NY 10163. Be sure to mention the title.

DEAR DR. GOTT: What could be the results of a person receiving the wrong blood type during a transfusion? How long after or during a transfusion does it normally take for a person to have a reaction?

DEAR READER: An incompatible blood transfusion delivers foreign protein directly into a person's bloodstream. Thus, a reaction to this substance may be dramatic (shock, cardiac arrest) and sudden (within minutes). Transfusion reactions can be less acute, however: itching, rash, difficulty breathing and a drop in blood pressure may not occur until after the transfusion has been completed, an interval of several hours.

action includes cortisone drugs and, obviously, stopping the transfusion if it is still in progress. As a general rule, if a patient has no outward signs of a reaction by the day after the transfusion, all is well.

WIN AT BRIDGE

By Phillip Alder

Do you know people who keep their houses absolutely spotless? As soon as you drop so much as a crumb on the carpet, they rush up with the Dust Buster. If so, suggest that they take up bridge. They are experts in the making. It is so important to keep careful track of the spot-cards — as in today's deal.

West, always the traditionalist, led fourth-highest from his longest and strongest.

After winning with the queen, East continued with the spade king. At trick three, he switched to the heart jack. South won in hand and played on clubs. West could do no better than cash the spade ace, holding declarer to his contract.

"Why didn't you win the first trick with the spade king?" asked West. "Then, when you continue with the queen, I will know that you have a doubleton."

"I thought about doing that. But I was afraid that if South had the ace and won the first trick with it, you would think he had the queen as well. And there was no way I was going to win an early trick to clarify the situation for you."

"I think that you should have paid closer attention to the spade spots," continued East. "If you overtake my king with your ace and drive out South's jack, you set up five tricks for us. When you get in with the club ace, you can cash two spade winners to defeat the contract. The only time this is wrong is when I have three spades and South has eight red-suit winners, which is unlikely."

"Yes, I think you're right, partner. I didn't pay close enough attention to the spade spots."

HOROSCOPE

By Bernice Bede Osol
YOUR BIRTHDAY
June 11, 1993

Instead of looking for fresh fields to conquer in the year ahead, try to figure out ways to build upon and expand that which you have already established. These are the things that could offer you your greatest successes.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) There's a possibility you could make things tougher on yourself careerwise today than they need be through premature, impulsive actions. Be disciplined. Get a jump on life by understanding the influences which are governing you in the year ahead. Send for Gemini's Astro-Graph predictions today by mailing $1.25 plus a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope to Astro-Graph, c/o this newspaper, P.O. Box 4465, New York, NY 10163. Be sure to state your zodiac sign.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Associates are likely to have more confidence in you today than you do in yourself. This is one of those instances where it would be wiser to trust their judgment than yours.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) A joint venture in which you're involved could be severely bruised today if dissension is allowed to enter the picture. This arrangement is already rather fragile.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) A fear of failure might cause you to postpone making a critical judgment today. More harm could result from indecisiveness than from making a bad guess.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Persons who share the work with you today should also be allowed to share in the benefits if yours and their efforts results in something to be divvied up.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) This might not be one of your better days for taking risks, especially speculating in an area over which you have no input or control.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Think very carefully before making any commitments or promises today. However, if you do agree to something, treat it as a sacred trust and do what you said you'd do.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Treat co-workers the same as you would treat valued friends today if you hope to gain their support. Anything less might be rejected.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Your chances for material acquisition look fair today, but don't raise your expectations up to levels that invite disappointment if they are not achieved.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Be philosophical regarding any reversals you might experience today. Minimize their significance and look upon them as stepping stones instead of stumbling blocks.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) It's the end result that is important today and not whose ideas or tactics got you there. If another's thoughts or suggestions are superior to yours, be grateful they are and use them.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Keep a running tab on expenses or endeavors in which you're involved today. If they are not monitored carefully, there's a chance you could have some serious budget overruns.
