Local Farmers Feel Squeeze, Too; Reorganize Loans

By MICHAEL BEHA
Herald Staff Writer

They aren't going bankrupt like many grain farmers in the Midwest but times are tough for Seminole County farmers, according to local authorities.

"I didn't spend a dime for income tax last year. I didn't make it," Bob Parker, president of the Seminole County Farm Bureau, said today. "I don't know that I'll pay very much this year."

Parker said the freezes of the past two years hit the area so hard that many citrus growers have had to reorganize their loans.

"It's a very rough time," he said. Seminole County Extension Agent Frank Jasa agrees that times are hard for local farmers.

"Grain farmers have been hit the worst. But we have hardly any of those in Seminole County," Jasa said. "Most of our farmers, who grow fruit, vegetables and ornamentals, are in a fairly tight situation."

Jasa said the costs of fuel, equipment and labor costs have skyrocketed over the past few years while the price for farm products has not increased significantly.

Just how bad the situation is depends upon the individual farmer and his product, Jasa said.

"With our vegetable people it depends on what crop they're growing. There's been a pretty good market for cabbage," he said.

— Farm Bureau president

Honey producers and citrus growers have faced competition from foreign markets. Beef producers have fared pretty well and ornamental plant growers have had a good market until recently, Jasa explained.

"Ornamental growers have been in pretty good shape until recently," he said. "But the high cost of heat which they need for their greenhouses has hurt them."

"And when people are hurting economically they stop buying plants."

Parker, who operates his own farm plus running a caretaker service for other farm property, said the bad times for farmers "is not a temporary thing."

He recently sold some of his caretaking business because he couldn't make a profit.

Parker said most farmers are making less than 6 percent profit on their investment — if they make any profit at all. "I could put the money I have invested on farm equipment in a savings account and make more money than I am now."

He said farmers do not have the opportunity to set their own prices so they are at the mercy of economic conditions.

"Anyone who keeps farming is gambling. They're looking for a good deal. They keep aiming for next year. They still have hope but it's getting bleaker every year."

Farm income is declining. In 1981, the last year for which statistics are available, per capita net farm income has dropped $6,019, from $29,362 to $23,343.

Some agricultural experts, like Dick Small, statistician with the Florida Crop and Livestock Reporting Service in Orlando, expect net farm income for 1982 to show another decline.

A primary reason that income, and the agricultural economy, is so depressed is that prices for many crops and most livestock have remained at low levels for months.

Prices for grapefruit, for example, have remained so low that "some citrus growers are actually losing money by harvesting their crop," says Earl Welles, spokesman for Florida Citrus Mutual, a Lakeland-based growers cooperative.

"Before the season is over, farmers may let the fruit rot on the trees rather than pay to have it picked," he said.

Also making it tough for farmers to break even are interest rates, which have been persistently high over the past three years for farmers who usually have to borrow money each year to plant a crop.

Despite all the gloom, there are a few bright spots in the economy. Cash receipts for Florida livestock and crops climbed to $3.15 billion in the first months of 1982 — a 10 percent increase over cash receipts the year before.

Truckin' Independent Drivers Here Feel The Pinch

By DONNA ESTES
Herald Staff Writer
(First of two articles)

Times are hard for independent truckers in Sanford and Seminole County. The hardest they have been in the past 35 years.

Everything is hitting at one time, say some as they down hot coffee at a local truck stop.

It's not only the economy that's bad. It's also the new taxes affecting truckers and signed into law by President Reagan that are going to make it tougher.

On top of that a special task force studying road problems in Florida and how to fund their solution is recommending increases in the cost of state license tags, fuel taxes and removing the sales tax exemption from fuels.

"I used to haul loads out of here up north for less than $400 to $500," said one Lake Mary independent trucker who asked not to be identified. "I could go from here to Canada and back for less than $1,000. I could go to Belle Glade and load and to to Virginia and Washington D.C. and spend $400 for fuel," he said, noting his rig only gets 4 to 4½ miles to the gallon of diesel.

Today it costs about $1.15 for four miles for diesel alone, not counting depreciation on the equipment and repairs and the fuel it takes to run a refrigeration unit, he said. And tires for an 18-wheeler are a major investment at nearly $6,000 for the set.

"I figure I can get three round trips a month and there's no way to make money," he said. The cost of a new

The romance of the independent trucker is eroding as the economy and increased costs of doing business eat into the truckers' profits.

Officials Agree Sanford Ideal Auto-Ferry Destination

By JANE CASSELBERRY
And DONNA ESTES

Local officials are strongly in support of a plan announced by Amtrak to revive an auto-ferry service from Washington, D.C.

Sanford and Lake Mary city officials today expressed determination to work to ensure that Amtrak's board of directors pick Sanford as the Florida terminal.

Meanwhile, negotiations have been started by Amtrak officials to lease the old Auto-Train Corporation terminal in Sanford and to use the firm's equipment.

An agreement has not been finalized between Amtrak and trustees for Auto-Train Corp. which is now in receivership. But the feasibility for Amtrak's proposed auto-ferry service was based only on the Lorton, Va., to Sanford route, according to U.S. Sen. Lawton Chiles' press secretary, Jack Pridgen.

Chiles, a Florida Democrat, is the ranking Democrat on the Transportation Appropriations Subcommittee which oversees Amtrak funding.

Chiles is in Germany

"I know he will be pleased," Pridgen said. "He is a strong supporter of the auto-train concept and was disappointed when the service deteriorated. He felt the concept was creative and it works and secondly it is good for Florida tourism."

Pridgen said in the Amtrak board meeting Tuesday, "They didn't even suggest any other option other than the Lorton to Sanford run."

Pridgen said the fact sheet he was given calls for daily service eight months of the year during the busy tourist season and three times weekly service the other four months. Plans call for non-stop trains to leave both points at 4 p.m., arriving at 9:30 the next morning.

Equipment, which Amtrak expects to use, listed on the fact sheet included five passenger coaches, two domed passenger cars, one lounge car, three buffet service cars, five sleepers, 20 three-deck car carriers with room for 12 cars each and three two-deck carriers capable of holding eight autos each, he said.

Sanford would be the primary equipment maintenance point with turnaround service provided at Lorton, he added.

"They even suggested the old auto-train format for on-board entertainment and movies and that the same friendly, relaxed atmosphere be maintained," Pridgen said.

"As a citizen and since my tax money is used to subsidize Amtrak, I would support an effort to have the terminus of the service in Sanford," he said.

Lake Mary City Commissioner Ray Fox said that in addition to the facilities already located in Sanford, there is access from that site to Interstate 4 and good roads east and west linking the area to Interstate-75 and Interstate-96.

"Sanford is the ideal destination," he said, adding that Sanford is far superior to Orlando, as one example, because that Orange County city is far too congested.

Sanford's Auto-Train terminal looks like a graveyard as final action is awaited that could turn the once-busy facility into a major train depot again.

Engineers To Study Lake Mary Drainage Problem

By DONNA ESTES
Herald Staff Writer

The Lake Mary City Commission decided Thursday night to hire a Sanford engineering firm to do a drainage study of the city's southwest quadrant and to ask for bids to improve the water system in an area considered to have the biggest problem.

The $24,000 drainage study to be conducted by Conklin, Porter & Holmes will include plans for the improvement of Third Street, currently a clay road.

City Manager Phil Kulbes estimated the water system improvements in the Greenleaf-Wilson addition would cost $32,600. He said the area is now served with a 2-inch line which requires monthly "blowoff" to reduce sedimentation and rust particles.

Kulbes said the city had installed a 6-inch line along Mary Avenue, High Street and Lake Mary Boulevard, but no connections have been made to this line.

The city manager made the following estimates: for High Street — reconnect dwellings to new line and install fire hydrant, $1,800; Hollis Street — install 1,100 feet of 6-inch line and reconnect dwellings to a new line $7,900; Lake Avenue — install 1,100 feet of 6-inch line, install a fire hydrant and connect dwellings to the new line, $9,200; Palmetto Avenue — install 1,100 feet of 6-inch line and install a fire hydrant and connect dwellings to the new line, $9,200.

In addition, Kulbes said it would cost $4,700 for engineering, inspection and contingencies. He said the improvement would allow the city to connect 27 additional homes.

In answer to a question from Commissioner Burt Perinchief, City Treasurer Madeleine Minns said the renewal and replacement fund from which the improvement would be paid has a total of $37,000.

She said it took three years for the city to accrue that much money in the special fund. To Perinchief's concerns about what money would be used in an emergency if that fund were depleted, Mrs. Minns said the city also has $29,000 in a depreciation fund that could be used for emergencies.

Public Works Superintendent Jim Orioles suggested the city award a contract for labor only on the project, while buying the materials needed itself.

Commissioner Ray Fox questioned whether the improvement to benefit 27 households is worth more than $1,000 per new customer. Fox also questioned whether a real problem exists in that area.

Orioles said he didn't know whether the problem was horrendous, but does know that every time a fire hydrant is used in the area the city receives complaints about rusty or murky water coming out of home faucets.

"It's not that big a problem," Fox said.

Commissioner Russ Megonegal, who with assistance from Commissioner Charlie Lyle was pushing the project, said the city should request bids for the project and proceed with correcting the problem.

Lyle, Megonegal and Perinchief voted to put the matter out for bids. Commissioners Fox and Ken King voted no.

Fox said he was concerned that the wording of Megonegal's motion indicated the board was accepting a bid for the work regardless of cost and before it was received.

Mayor Walter Sorenson said the commission could not agree to "pre-accept bids."

Kulbes also noted other problems with the water system in the Crystal Lake Homes area, blocks 20 and 21 where improvements would cost about $12,000 and in blocks 41-44 would cost about $900.

Slick Condition Blamed

Winter Springs Man Killed On I-4

An accident which took the life of a Winter Springs man early Thursday morning on Interstate 4 in Orlando has been blamed on slick roads, according to the Florida Highway Patrol.

Wayne Robert Brock, 37, of 839 Dunbar Terrace was killed when the motorcycle he was riding on the rain-slick highway skidded out of control and struck a concrete pillar supporting an overpass.

The FHP reported no one else was injured in the accident, which took place at 3:20 a.m.

No major accidents were reported in Seminole County because of the rain, an FHP spokesman said.

But the rain is responsible for the closing of the intersection of Airport Boulevard and Old Lake Mary Road, Seminole County Public Works Director Jack Schuder said.

(See a related story on page 2A).

He said county crews were working to elevate the pavement and a coat of lime rock had been applied when the heavy rain started.

The material softened and made the intersection unsafe to traffic, Schuder said.

The intersection was closed Thursday night and will remain closed until the rain stops and the quagmire dries.

Schuder said county road crews will be watching the weather this weekend. If the rain stops, they will attempt to open the road. — MICHAEL BEHA

SPORTS IN BRIEF

Lakeview Dominates SYSA, 5 Of 6 Teams Undefeated

The Lakeview Mustangs continue to dominate the Seminole Youth Sports Association basketball leagues this season. All three of the Lakeview boys teams (6th-8th grades) are unbeaten while two of the three girls teams have not lost.

The Mustangs' eighth grade boys squad ran its record to 2-0 with a 79-62 victory over Milwee. Roderick Henderson led the way with 20 points, Anthony Hartfield canned 15 and Terry Miller and Oscar Merthle added 14 apiece for Lakeview. Milwee's Robert Thomas took high-scoring honors with 27 points and teammate Isalah Felder added 17.

In other 8th grade boys action, Sanford Middle upended Rock Lake, 70-56 behind Andre Whitney's 16 points and South Seminole romped over Teague, 53-27, as Bob Spicer poured in 24 points.

In 8th grade girls play, Lakeview trounced Milwee, 49-17 behind Cynthia Paterson's 20 points and Rock Lake got 10 points in overtime to edge Sanford Middle, 33-26. Two steals by Tami Eggers and clutch free throw shooting by Sue Kingsbury led Rock Lake to victory.

In 7th grade boys action, South Seminole jumped out to a 16-10 first half lead and held on for a narrow 29-26 victory over Teague. Rock Lake dropped two games, 44-23 to Sanford Middle and 62-44 to Lakeview. High scorer for Sanford Middle was Perry Perez with 20 while Joseph Nolfi's six points led Rock Lake. In the Lakeview game, Ervin Edwards had 15 for the Mustangs, teammate Champ Davis added 14 while Mike Mandeville had 12 points for Rock Lake.

In 7th grade girls play, Teague survived a second-half comeback and slipped past Rock Lake, 19-18. Susan Asplen was instrumental for Teague as she scored six points and played an outstanding defensive game. Monica Franks kept Rock Lake close with eight points. The Lakeview girls edged Rock Lake, 21-11, behind Snawanda Walker's 12 points.

In 6th grade boys play, Milwee turned in a defensive gem in a 20-3 rout of South Seminole. David Wright had six points for Milwee and Timmy Hovis added five. Milwee also won a close one over Teague, 23-20. Wright and John Urshan had six points apiece for Milwee while Chris Schoenfelder had 10 for Teague. The Lakeview 6th graders ran to a 31-11 trouncing of Rock Lake as Bernard Mitchell poured in 17 points.

In 6th grade girls action, Teague slipped past Milwee, 12-9. Ronay McCrimmon had six points and Cara Marien added five for Teague while Jennifer Buak had five for Milwee and Tammy Laszic chipped in four. In the only other game, Rock Lake won by forfeit over Lakeview.

Mavs Gun Down Portland

United Press International

At least two of those Mavericks really know how to shoot up the place.

Jay Vincent scored 32 points and grabbed 10 rebounds and Mark Aguirre chipped in with 27 points Thursday night to spark the Dallas Mavericks to a 121-112 triumph over the Portland Trail Blazers.

"We're having more fun playing ball now," said Dallas Coach Dick Motta. "I think we won this one with mirrors because we had to improvise."

Improvise or not, Vincent and Aguirre have been chiefly responsible for the Mavericks' four victories in their last five games. Prior to the triumph over Portland, Aguirre had scored at least 30 points in his last six games, while Vincent is averaging over 18 points per game and is the teams' second-leading rebounder.

The Mavericks, 17-22, scored 14 points over the last 3:30, with Vincent scoring 6 and Aguirre adding a 3-point play with 2:44 left to boost the margin to 9 points and seal the victory.

Peeters Shuts Out Sabres

United Press International

Boston's Peter McNab used the ultimate in describing what goaltender Pete Peeters means to the Bruins.

"Now we know what it's like to have a guy like (Wayne) Gretzky on our team, a guy who can dominate a game," began McNab, who assisted on Boston's final goal in a 4-0 victory over the Buffalo Sabres that gave Peeters his seventh shutout of the season.

"We have someone on our team who, I think, is more valuable to us than Gretzky is to the Oilers. And I never thought I'd ever say that because Gretzky is just about the greatest player I've ever seen."

In other games, Philadelphia rocked Calgary, 5-2. Montreal tied the New York Islanders, 4-4. New Jersey tied St. Louis, 3-3, and Los Angeles edged Hartford, 4-3.

Morris Sentenced To 20

MIAMI (UPI)—Eugene "Mercury" Morris, the ex-Miami football star whose quick moves helped carry the Dolphins to Super Bowls a decade ago, says he'll be cleared long before his 20-year drug sentence runs out.

"Although I received 20 years today, I feel confident maybe one-and-a-half or two years down the road I'll be vindicated in this thing," Morris said after sentencing Thursday.

While admitting he used cocaine, Morris has said he was not a drug dealer and his arrest and conviction for selling nearly a pound of cocaine to undercover agents was the result of entrapment.

He said he was broke and desperate at the time, and the agents' lure was a way "to feed my kids."

By law the 35-year-old former All-Pro running back, sentenced for trafficking in cocaine, must serve at least 15 years before he is eligible for parole.

Morris showed little emotion when Circuit Judge Ellen Norphonos Gable pronounced sentence. He looked at his wife, Bobbie, then hugged his attorney, Ronald Strauss, before being led back to jail.

Oviedo League Signups

Oviedo Little League registration is set for three dates beginning Saturday.

The first signup date is Saturday from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. at the Oviedo Women's Club on King Street. The second date is Wednesday, Jan. 26 at the Women's Club from 7 p.m. to 9 p.m.

The final signup will be Saturday, Jan. 23 from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. at the Oviedo Little League Field, also on King Street.

Players must bring a state or county birth certificate and a $20 donation fee.

Uwe von Schamann, Miami kicker, is uncertain how effective he will be for Sunday's big playoff game with the New York Jets. von Schamann has a broken bone in his back which could hamper his field-goal attempts and extra points.

No Burnout For Busy Don

MIAMI (UPI)—At age 53, heading into the playoffs, veteran Miami Coach Don Shula sees no sign of the "coaching burnout" that led to Dick Vermeil's resignation as coach of the Philadelphia Eagles earlier this month.

"I have so much energy I can't wait to get up in the morning to go to work," Shula said Thursday during preparations for Sunday's AFC championship game against the New York Jets.

"I enjoy the preparations and the practices. I enjoy the decision-making. This is what it's all about. If you were home watching on television, you'd wish you were there."

Shula hopes he has transmitted his energetic but easy-going attitude to his players.

"I told them this is the time to enjoy. There are a lot of players in the National Football League who would like to be here with our problems," Shula said. "This is what helped me in the Super Bowl years — rather than worry about it or get uptight, you might as well enjoy it."

Shula was being so cooperative and outgoing that one Los Angeles writer suggested, "Maybe if the Jets win, we could arrange it so they could take Shula along with them to the Super Bowl."

But Shula would rather get there with his own team, and one of the decisions affecting the team's battle against the Jets is what to do about the Dolphins' kicking game.

Place kicker Uwe von Schamann suffered a hairline fracture of the transverse process, a small bone in his lower back, in the Dolphins' 34-13 playoff victory over San Diego Sunday. He hasn't kicked in practice so far this week.

"We haven't counted Uwe out. It's a wait-and-see thing. We'll know more later in the week," Shula said.

As for von Schamann, he concedes he may not be able to kick off, but he hopes to be there for field goals and extra points.

"The AFC championship game is the biggest game of my career," von Schamann said. "I will do anything to be ready for this game. I have been taking a lot of Vitamin C which is supposed to help the healing process."

"I have also applied heat and ice and have been taking whirlpool treatments. Right now, the kickoffs are the biggest problem because everything is done below the waist and it affects the lower back," he said.

Because the NFL rosters were frozen Jan. 5, and the Dolphins won't be able to bring in anybody from the outside, punter Tom Orosz may be forced to fill in.

'Skins' Loudmouth Manley Prepares In Silence For Cowboys

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Dexter Manley is having a difficult week, trying to prepare in silence for Saturday's NFC championship game against the Dallas Cowboys.

The Washington Redskins' second-year defensive end is always ready to play the Cowboys. Having to cope with staying silent is something else.

But Manley was asked to restrain himself in speaking of the Cowboys' particularly after a post-game outburst following last Saturday's 21-7 victory over Minnesota.

"I still want to play the Cowboys because I want to beat a team with their reputation," Manley said Thursday before the Redskins began their final heavy workout preparing for Dallas.

"I just can't go around shooting off my mouth, giving Dallas things to get them riled up...."

He also was forbidden to wear a cap given him by a fan. Redskins' coaches thought it would be inappropriate for him to be photographed wearing the "I hate the Cowboys" baseball cap.

All the injured Redskins worked out Thursday and should be ready for full-time duty Saturday when Washington tries to snap a six-game losing streak against Dallas.

The only players still being bothered by injuries are running back Joe Washington with a sore knee and kick returner Mike Nelms with a bruised thigh.

Security at RFK Stadium is being tightened for Saturday's game just in case some of the 55,045 fans try to demonstrate their dislike for the Cowboys.

"Playing here certainly makes a great deal of difference," running back John Riggins said. "...The electricity of the crowd makes a difference. It perks us up."

Cowboys' wide receiver Drew Pearson has played the Redskins in Washington many times and knows the crowd.

"You just hope you can hear signals," Pearson said. "That crowd tries to take visiting teams right out of the game. It's something else we'll have to combat, but that's part of the game."

The Cowboys have lost the last two NFC title games—20-7 to Philadelphia in 1980 and 29-27 to San Francisco—both on the road.

Dallas running back Tony Dorsett, the NFC's leading regular-season rusher with 745 yards, puts this game in line with some others as a business proposition.

"We'll be like the old country doctor," Dorsett said. "We have a house call to make."

The weather forecast is for temperatures in the mid-30s with a possibility of rain or snow.

"But now it's over. Now people can't just concentrate on Andra anymore. They've got me to reckon with."

Jets Want To Shed Choke Tag

HEMPSTEAD, N.Y. (UPI)—New York Jets' Coach Walt Michaels doesn't need to remind his players they're up against more than the Miami Dolphins in Sunday's AFC championship game.

All he had to do was post a clipping from an upstate New York newspaper on the bulletin board at the Jets' Hofstra University complex. The clipping suggested New York teams, the Jets included, "choke in the clutch."

"I wanted everybody to read it," Michaels said. "This is what we're up against along with the Miami Dolphins on Sunday. We have made it to the AFC championship game but it looks like some people don't think we should've."

New York running back Freeman McNeil didn't like the clipping.

"We can say all we want about the story, but it would be far more effective if we just play our best Sunday and win," said McNeil. "We must show we belong where we are."

McNeil had three fumbles in last Saturday's 17-14 AFC semifinal victory over the Los Angeles Raiders and was less than pleased about it.

However, "Freeman is ready," the coach said. "Yes, he had three fumbles last week but... he's a man, not a boy. He'll just put it aside and forget it."

Michaels took a moment to discuss Lance Mehl, the linebacker who clinched the Jets' triumph over the Raiders with two interceptions in the last 2:50 of the game.

"Now Mehl is one player I've been telling you about for some time," said Michaels. "I make an exception about him because I think he's always been very capable but very underrated."

"Lance Mehl doesn't go around telling everyone else he's great like others do. He just goes out there and plays his butt off."

TONY NATHAN ...knew slump would end

"I knew I would snap out of it, I just knew it," Nathan said. "I guess you could say it couldn't have come at a better time."

After a frustrating regular season in which he gained only 233 yards in nine games, Nathan has caught fire going into Sunday's AFC championship playoff against the New York Jets.

He gained 71 yards in 12 carries and 68 yards on five pass receptions in the New England playoff game Jan. 8. In Sunday's 34-13 wipeout of San Diego, he gained 83 yards on 19 carries and 55 yards on eight catches.

"Tony was having all kinds of problems, injury problems bruised ribs and a hip pointer, and just not hanging on to the football," said Shula. "And then at the time that everything had to come together, Tony started to get it done. You can't play any better than he did Sunday."

Even during Nathan's lackluster regular season, Shula never lost faith in the back who was Miami's most valuable player last year — a point not missed by Nathan.

"A lot of things were said and written about me during the regular season. I know some people thought I should have been in the doghouse, but Coach Shula stood by me," said Nathan. "That's something I'll never forget. He's a good man, a fair man."

Both Nathan and Shula are glad some of the load has been taken off the burly back of fullback Andra Franklin, who has led the team in rushing this year.

"I hated it when I didn't contribute and Andra was forced to do most of the work," Nathan said. "It was starting to get tough on him. I remember all those games I stood on the sidelines feeling terrible."

"Sure, the injuries had something to do with

Nathan—Slump Would End

MIAMI (UPI)—Both Miami Dolphins running back Tony Nathan and Coach Don Shula seemed to know that the former Alabama star would come out of his slump.

Bedrosian Learns Lesson From Offhand Prediction

ATLANTA (UPI)—Hard-throwing Atlanta relief ace Steve Bedrosian learned a lesson last October when he offhandedly predicted the Braves would sweep St. Louis in the National League playoffs.

It was one rookie error Bedrosian doesn't plan to make again. But, overall, the lanky, mustachioed righthander made few mistakes in a campaign that earned him Sporting News' award as rookie pitcher of the year.

When the Braves clinched the NL West title on the final day of the season, a reporter asked Bedrosian about the Cardinals during Atlanta's champagne-pouring locker room celebration.

"I said, 'Ah, we'll sweep them in three' without even thinking about it or anything," recalled Bedrosian. "The next day we go to St. Louis — headlines, 'Bedrosian says we'll sweep them in three.'"

Instead of a Braves' sweep, the Cards swept the Braves and went on to win the World Series.

"It was blown out of proportion," said Bedrosian, recalling the incident during a recent workout with other Braves at an Atlanta athletic club.

"I didn't mean to pop off or anything, but you've got to be confident. It was an important lesson for me. I will know better the next time not to say anything — to think before I talk."

Baseball

With his fastball clocked up to 96 miles per hour, Bedrosian doesn't lack for confidence. Somewhat reminiscent of Goose Gosage, he likes to come in late in a close game, throw his fastball and hard slider and dare the batters to hit it.

"I throw the fastball 80 to 90 percent of the time and the slider the rest," said Bedrosian, who posted an 8-6 record, a 2.42 earned run average and struck out 123 batters in 137 innings last season.

"I used to mess with a changeup when I was starting, but it's my third best pitch and I want to throw my best pitch with the game on the line, not my third best."

Actually, there is little dropoff in speed from the fastball to the slider.

"I consistently throw the fastball at 92-93 mph," said Bedrosian. "I hit 96 last year in Philadelphia. Johnny Sain (Braves' minor league pitching coach) doesn't like you to let up on a slider, so I throw it about the same speed."

The 25-year-old Bedrosian was a starter throughout his minor-league career but started only three games last season before joining Gene Garber to form what Atlanta Manager Joe Torre called "baseball's best 1-2 punch" in the bullpen.

Even when the Braves' starting rotation fell apart, Torre insisted Bedrosian was more valuable in relief, despite suggestions by some that he was a potential 20-game winner as a starter.

"After I got used to relieving, I liked it," said Bedrosian. "If I come into the game for just two or three innings, I can just let it go. A starter has to kind of pace himself a little bit."

"I hope I stay in the bullpen. I would start if they wanted me to, but I would like to work at one thing and become good at that instead of going back and forth and being confused about what my job is."

Bedrosian said his goal last season "was to establish myself in the major leagues. I just want to have a better season this year than last, to learn from my mistakes. A lot of people talk about a sophomore jinx but that's all in your head."

A bachelor from Massachusetts, Bedrosian said he loves pitching in Atlanta although he has not yet signed a contract for this year.

"They sent me a one-year contract," he said. "I haven't talked with them yet but I don't think there will be a problem. I like Atlanta and I don't want to start any trouble and ask for too much, but at the same time, I don't want to sell myself short."

Cause Of Gout: Acid, Not Food

DEAR DR. LAMB — Could you please tell me something about gout? All of a sudden I had this red, inflamed place on top of my left foot like a bursitis attack. Fever and swelling went into my right ankle. I could hardly walk. I understand gout is caused by an abnormally high uric acid count in the blood.

If this is caused by eating sweets, rich or fatty foods, I'd like to know. I thought I was eating a very reasonable and sensible balanced diet. Or is this disease hereditary? What can be done for it?

DEAR READER — Gout is caused by an elevated uric acid. It is elevated for one of two reasons — your cells produce too much uric acid or your kidneys do not eliminate enough uric acid when your blood is being filtered.

Gout is not caused by what you eat. If you are born with the characteristics to develop gout, you may do so regardless of what you eat. That old idea that it was from rich food has gone by the wayside since we developed a better understanding of gout. The uric acid is a byproduct of your own cell regeneration mechanism. You can be skinny and get the gout.

That is why modern treatment is mostly directed toward increasing the elimination of uric acid through the kidneys or decreasing the amount of uric acid your cells produce with such medicines as Zyloprim. The classic gout diet—limited purines. This is discussed in my new issue of The Health Letter number 16-10, Gout, The Uric Acid Disease, which I am sending you. Others who want this issue can send 75 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it to me, in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019.

I have had a lot of questions from readers about the gout diet. Since limiting purines (source of uric acid) in the diet is of very limited value, the main thrust today is to limit calories (avoid crash diets as they can cause an acute attack), limit fats and follow a diet designed to prevent heart and vascular disease, which is more frequent in patients with gout.

DEAR DR. LAMB — What is the specific reason for emptying the bowel tract prior to surgery, regardless of where the surgery is to be performed on the body? Is it a pre-surgery procedure or does it help the recovery process?

DEAR READER — In the first place, it is not always done before surgery. It does make a difference what surgery is planned. As a case in point, it is not done before a tonsillectomy. But it is commonly done if the surgery involves the abdomen or abdominal muscles or if it is major surgery.

If you are having an incision in the abdominal wall or pelvic area, you may be more comfortable not having to have a bowel movement immediately after surgery. If you are not eating and the bowel is empty at surgery it may not be necessary for a while. A good example here would be in a hernia operation. If a person bears down with an incision that is only a few hours old, it might not heal as well.

Then, many medicines used to relieve pain are constipating. Finally, if there should be any reason to work in the abdominal cavity, it is better to have an empty colon. Of course, if the bowel is to be operated on the surgeon may want to give antibiotics or "sterilize the bowel" before surgery as well.

HOROSCOPE

By BERNICE BEDE OSOL
For Saturday, January 22, 1983

YOUR BIRTHDAY
January 22, 1983
There aren't likely to be any free rides for you this coming year, but your possibilities for making your mark in the world are better than ever. Raise your sights and set loftier goals.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Matters relating to your career or finances should be given top priority today. You're apt to be more fortunate in these areas than in others. 1983 predictions for Aquarius are now ready. Send $1 to Astro-Graph, Box 489, Radio City Station, N.Y. 10019. Be sure to specify birth date. Send an additional $2 for the NEW Astro-Graph Matchmaker wheel and booklet. Reveals romantic combinations and compatibilities for all signs.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) You have good leadership qualities today, so don't hesitate to put them to use. More importantly, you're not apt to repeat past mistakes.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) You could reap benefits today through someone you helped in the past. You may even have forgotten about the kindness, but this person didn't.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) If there is someone with whom you'd like to cement stronger bonds, take the initiative today to get things rolling. The alliance could be promising.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) This should be a very productive day. You're not likely to take your responsibilities lightly. What you set out to accomplish, you will.

CANCER (June 21-July 21) Seek activities today which are both pleasurable and meaningful. If you feel something is worthwhile, you'll do it well.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) You should be very successful today in situations where you strive to do something for others. You have the ability to accomplish what they can't.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) You shouldn't have any problems making difficult decisions today. Your judgment is quite keen and you are not apt to dilute reality.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Your possibilities for personal gain are rather promising today. In fact, you may even reap rewards from two unrelated sources. Think "money."

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) You have the ability today to handle with ease persons others find a trifle too difficult. You'll not ruffle their feathers.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Conditions are likely to completely reverse themselves today. Things which were too hard to do yesterday can now be accomplished to your satisfaction.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) You are likely to enjoy yourself more today if you socialize with old pals with whom you feel comfortable. However, it may be up to you to get everyone together.

WIN AT BRIDGE

mighty well," responded South. "I guessed the queen of trumps, didn't I?"

South had her six of trumps to dummy at trick two and eventually scrambled home with nine tricks which everyone knows is one less than the magic number for a major-suit game.

The hand really calls for leaving trumps completely alone except for crossruffing purposes. Here is the correct line of play.

Win the spade in dummy and lead the deuce of diamonds. West will take his ace and continue with the spade jack. Win with your ace, cash your ace of clubs to discard dummy's last spade, ruff a club and lead the king of diamonds.

Overruff after East ruffs and ruff another club in dummy, ruff a diamond while East chucks a black card. Now ruff a club with dummy's ace of trumps and ruff another diamond. Now lead another black card and ruff. East will overruff, but that is unimportant. You have nine tricks in and will score your king of trumps.

You might have made an overtrick by ruffing right along with low trumps, but an early overtrick and trump return would have defeated you.

Gardening

Successful Tree Planting Depends On Proper Care

Chances of a successful tree planting can be increased by mulching, staking or guying and trunk wrapping.

Mulch applied around a newly set plant reduces soil temperature fluctuations, prevents crusting of the soil, conserves moisture and helps to control weeds.

Common mulch materials include leaves, pine needles, compost, bark, wood chips, sawdust and bagasse. Peat should not be used since once dry it is very difficult to wet and may restrict water movement into the soil. Inorganic materials like glass wool, gravel and crushed stone can also be used.

Some organic mulches, like fresh sawdust, are decomposed rapidly by soil microorganisms. These microorganisms remove nitrogen from the soil, and when

Desmond Hastings

Urban Horticulturist
323-2500
Ext. 181

soil nitrogen has been depleted, plants become deficient and turn yellow. Application of additional nitrogen fertilizer to the mulched area will prevent this problem. Ammonium sulfate can be applied at 1-2 pounds per 100 square feet (488 to 976 g. per 10 sq. m.) of planting bed.

Keep a small circular area around the stem of plants free of mulch. Mulches against the stem of plants may increase the chance of stem rots.

Trees or shrubs with a large canopy can be injured by winds before their roots become established. Many need to be staked until the roots anchor the plant.

Even slight root ball movement can break new roots and slow plant establishment. Stakes can also protect tree trunks from mower injury.

Trunk movement is necessary for the development of a strong and well proportioned trunk. Rigid staking and guying will interfere with trunk movement and reduce proper supportive tissue. Staking should allow some trunk movement, however, the stakes should be rigid. Ties should be somewhat flexible and at one level on the stem.

Trees with trunk diameters less than 2 inches (5.1 cm) can usually be supported by a single 2x2 inch (5.1 x 5.1 cm) wood stake. Trees 2 to 3 inches (5.1 to 7.6 cm) in diameter require 2 to 3 stakes for good support. The stakes should be placed next to the soil ball and 18 inches (45.7 cm) below the soil ball before the tree is planted. The length of the stakes should be determined by the height of the tree. They should be as short as possible yet tall enough to hold the tree upright. The tree can be attached to the supporting stakes with hose-covered cable or wire. Check ties periodically for tree injury and to determine if support is still needed.

Larger trees, 4 inches (10.2 cm) or larger in diameter at chest height, should be guyed with 3 or 4 wires or cables. The guy wires are secured to deeply driven short stakes evenly spaced 6 to 8 feet (1.8 to 2.4 m) from the base of the tree. Guy wires should be run through rubber hose and attached to the trunk at only one level. Secure the guy wires to the stakes so they may be tightened periodically. Guy wires can be kept tight by twisting the wires or by using turnbuckles. Mark the support wires with bright materials to prevent accidents. Frequent inspections will determine when the supports are no longer needed.

Large transplanted palms require support if not deeply planted. They can be supported with guy wires or wood supports. Wood supports should not be nailed to the palm. Instead, wrap 3 boards about 4 feet (1.2 m) long in 20 layers of burlap and fasten these to the trunk of the palm with wire. Then nail support posts to the padded boards being careful that the nails do not penetrate into the trunk of the tree.

Protect the trunks and large branches of newly planted trees with tree wraps.

Wrapping prevents moisture loss from the trunk and protects tender bark from sunscald. Burlap is good trunk wrapping material and is available in 2, 4 and 6 inch (5.1, 10.2 and 15.2 cm) widths for easy application. Several trunk wrapping papers are available in similar widths. These paper wrappings are waterproof and usually last two seasons.

Begin wrapping at the ground and spiral the tree wrapping material around the trunk up to and including the first major branches. Overlap each layer by a half width. Tie the wrap at the top, bottom and two-foot intervals in between with twine or heavy cord. Inspect the cord or twine often to avoid damaging the bark of the tree.

SMCA Concert: 'I Love It!'

Under the auspices of Seminole Mutual Concert Association, the Serendipity Singers appeared Monday at Lake Mary High School.

A large crowd turned out to hear the talented singers who have held their own in winning musical awards.

The singers began their Monday concert with music from the '40s including "Boogie Woogie Bugle Boy" followed by popular music of the eras to the present.

The concert drew to a close with a rousing medley of patriotic songs.

"I loved it. It was so good," Judy Drake of Sanford said. "Their (the singers) personalities were so vivacious — it was like being at Disney."

Guests of SMCA were members of the Sanford chapters of Beta Sigma Phi. The sorority has selected SMCA for one of its cultural projects during the season.

Other SMCA guests were members of Odyssey of Lake Mary High School.

Soup On For Homemakers

The Geneva Homemakers met Jan. 12 at 10 a.m. at the community hall.

According to Jessie Knight, publicity chairman, the new slate of officers presided. They are: president Jina Brown, vice president Alletta Rucker, secretary Betty Mathleux and treasurer Flora Hendrickson.

The next two months will find the women having special luncheons. On Wednesday, Feb. 9, following the regular meeting a soup luncheon will be served. In March the homemakers will try their hand at stir frying.

Belinda Henson has assumed the responsibilities of missionette representative for District 5A of the Assemblies of God for Peninsular Florida.

The missionette program is designed for girls, ages 5-13, and combines learning homemaking skills, participating in community outreach projects, sports activities, and spiritual training.

At a District Rally in Orlando last Saturday, Lou Ann Simpkins of the Chuluota First Assembly of God Church missionettes received an award for having the neatest and most complete missionette notebook in the district of 17

All of the Seminole County Schools will have a teachers workday Monday, Jan. 24, which of course, means that Geneva Elementary School students will have a long weekend.

For some college bound students, Saturday will be a day they will be glad to get behind them. The college board SAT test will be administered that day. In this area, students have been assigned to either Seminole Community College or Winter Park High School for four hours of testing which will begin sharply at 8:30 a.m.

If you did not register in time to take this test and you are still interested, check with your high school guidance office for forms and dates.

heart attack at the Winter Park Memorial Hospital. Friends may visit him in Room 18 of the Progressive Care Unit.

Lois Brown has been appointed area coordinator for the Geneva-Chuluota communities for the Billy Graham Crusade. Lois needs a few more women to volunteer to be prayer hostesses. If you are interested, please contact her at 365-3360.

There was a good turnout Saturday at the Oviedo High School commons building for the monthly gospel sing which featured the Masters Five.

The third Saturday of February will find the Blackwood Brothers in Oviedo again. Be sure to come early (it starts at 7:30) to get a good seat.

Don Rose of the Lighthouse Youth Ranch wonders if anyone has noticed the light in the mini-lighthouse in the front yard of the center.

I discovered that I had noticed it but it was such a subtle change, never thought that something new had been added. After all, shouldn't all lighthouses have lights?

Miss McGlawn, Dr. McGrane Exchange Vows

Vanette McGlawn and Dr. Daniel McGrane were united in Holy Matrimony Jan. 2, at the Forest Lake Seventh-day Adventist Church, Forest City.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Vann McGlawn, Orlando. The bridegroom's parents are Mr. and Mrs. Thomas McGrane, Huntington, N.Y.

J.D. and Margaret Jo Bledsoe, church organist, played the organ and piano prelude and music for the service. Ed Lindquist presented "Arioso" on the violin and after the lighting of the unity candles by the mothers, Dania Jones, soprano, and David Peterson, bass, sang the "Love Song from the Magic Flute" by Mozart.

Given in marriage by her father, the radiant bride chose for her vows a bridal satin gown featuring a bodice of chantilly lace on tulle over the satin and a high neckline of tulle with appliques of lace. The long tulle sleeves were appliqued with lace and fastened with tiny satin covered buttons. The skirt which formed a cathedral train widened near the bottom and rows of accordion pleated tulle edged with lace formed a heart shape. Her fingertip veil falling from a cap-shaped headpiece was edged with matching lace. She carried a cascade bouquet of silk flowers.

Bob Wade, tenor, sang the "Wedding Song" before the ceremony and vows which were given by Elder Don Watson, a cousin to the bride and a Seventh-day Adventist minister in Mr. Vernon, Ohio, and Rev. T.J. Thompson, pastor of the St. Andrews Presbyterian Church in Forest City.

David Peterson sang "The Lord's Prayer" before the bride and groom lighted the unity candles and were introduced as Dr. and Mrs. Daniel McGrane.

The bride's attendants were: matron of honor, her sister, Mrs. April Stola, and bridesmaids, Mrs. Katherine Saretsky, Miss Virginia McGrane, sister of the bridegroom, Mrs. Connie Weld and Mrs. Linda Jones. They wore cherry colored taffeta floor length gowns which featured ruffled necklines, short puffed sleeves and wide sashes and bows of the same fabric. They carried cascade bouquets of silk flowers.

The bridegroom's best man was Dr. Alan S. Uhlik. Groomsmen were Daniel Stola, brother-in-law of the bride, Alan McGlawn, brother of the bride, Dr. Harry Nateman, and Michael D'Agostino, brother-in-law of the bridegroom.

Attending the guest book was Mrs. Mary D'Agostino, sister of the bridegroom. The wedding coordinator was Mrs. Betty Lovridge and Hostess for the wedding was Mrs. Margaret Brownlow.

MRS. DANIEL MCGRANE

The reception held in the youth building of the church, was coordinated by Mrs. Joree Nielson, Mrs. Beverly Wilson, and Mrs. Libby Stephens. Hostesses were: Mrs. Debbie Axford, Mrs. Ellen Clark, Ms. Penny Nielson, Ms. Verbelee Nielson, and Mrs. Hilda Reeves. Mr. and Mrs. Vernon Nielson hosted the reception.

The bride a native Floridian who attended Forest Lake Academy and Southern College, received her degree in Health Care Administration from Clarke University in Massachusetts. The bridegroom, a native of New York, attended Providence College and N.Y. Medical College and received his post-graduate training at the University of Miami School of Medicine.

Dr. and Mrs. McGrane will make their home in Zephyrhills where he is in private practice as an internist.

Peepers' Gender Raises Issue

DEAR ABBY: Everyone says, "It's a man's world." It isn't. If anything, it's a woman's world. Explain (this):

Dear Abby

If a woman undressed in front of a window with the shade up and a man stood outside and watched, the man would be arrested as a peeping tom.

But if a man undressed in front of a window with the shade up and a woman stood outside and watched, the man would be arrested for indecent exposure.

A MAN IN A WOMAN'S WORLD

DEAR MAN: Not necessarily. It is doubtful that a man — or a woman — who disrobed inadvertently before an unshaded window would be arrested for indecent exposure.

Nor would one caught in the act of observing someone of the opposite sex disrobing before an uncovered window necessarily be arrested as a peeping tom (or tomette, whichever the case may be). Intent is all important. Gender is not.

DEAR ABBY: For 14 years my wife and I have had a running battle over a difference of opinion that has left us both somewhat battle-scarred. Before I invite guests (including my relatives) for the weekend, I always get my wife's OK first.

When my wife invites guests for the weekend (usually her relatives), she never asks for my OK ahead of time. If I am told at all, I am simply informed that so-and-so is coming for the weekend.

When I remind my wife that I always ask for her approval before inviting guests and think she should give me the same consideration, she says, "You are eccentric." Then she reminds me that she is an adult, and she sees no reason to ask for my "permission" to invite guests to her home.

How do you view this, Abby?

MIFFED IN MARYLAND

DEAR MIFFED: Marriage is a partnership. The home is not hers — it belongs to both of you. It's not a matter of asking for permission to invite weekend guests. It's simply "clearing" with one's partner before issuing an invitation. It's the courteous and considerate thing to do.

DEAR ABBY: Is an annulment the same as a

a friend. Your friend has a friend, and your friend's friend has a friend.

GINA

DEAR GINA: No. An annulment does not dissolve an existing marriage according to civil law. It is granted by the Catholic Church Tribunal when it can be shown that some essential element made the marriage invalid from the beginning. (Example: incompatibility.)

You're never too old (or too young) to learn how to make friends and be popular. For Abby's booklet on Popularity, send $1, plus a long, self-addressed, stamped (37 cents) envelope to Abby, Popularity, P.O. Box 38923, Hollywood, Calif. 90038.

Sea World Continues Its Commitment To Manatee Rescue, Rehabilitation

Manatee rescue and rehabilitation has been a prominent element in Sea World's beached animal program since it opened in 1973. Animal care specialists have responded to hundreds of calls from the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service and the Florida Marine Patrol to aid sick or injured manatees, dolphins, whales, turtles, otters, deer and birds.

Special to the Herald
Now that manatees have migrated to winter habitats in warmer Florida waters, state officials, conservationists and Sea World continue to broaden efforts to alert water sport enthusiasts to the presence of manatees congregating in coastal and inland waters.

Although sightings of individual manatees have been reported throughout the state's warmer waters, they generally congregate in designated protected areas during the winter. Warning signs are posted at most of the refuges, but boaters and fishermen should be aware of the migratory paths manatees follow in reaching their winter homes.

In addition to suffering losses from natural causes such as disease, predation and old age, the manatee population is threatened by boaters, barges, canal locks and even seemingly harmless crab trap and fishing lines which bind and cut into the manatee's hide, impeding his natural movements. Habitat destruction is also a threat to their survival.

Together, these factors were responsible for loss of 117 manatees during 1982. During this same period, Sea World rescued five manatees, of which one was dead upon arrival and three were rehabilitated and returned to the wild. Moby and Hi were rescued in Lee County during an unusual die-off of manatees, and, after a three-month hospital stay at Sea World, were returned to the wild in the Caloosahatchee River area. E.T. had crab trap line wrapped around her flipper, which was digging into the flesh and causing her to founder.

After her wound was treated and healed, she was returned to the Banana River. The fourth, Bandit, remains in Sea World's care having lost a flipper when a ball float and line became tightly wrapped around the limb and caused it to atrophy. Bandit shares quarters with Nurdine, Marina and Gene, animals housed by Sea World at the request of the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service (USFWS).

To call the manatee defenseless is an understatement. When struggling, his powerful tail fluke offers some protection, but his more common defense is retreat, clearly inadequate in the face of motorboats and barges.

Manatee rescue and rehabilitation have been prominent elements in Sea World's beached animal program since the Orlando marine life park opened in December, 1973. Animal care specialists have responded to hundreds of calls from the USFWS and the Florida Marine Patrol to aid sick or injured manatees: Atlantic bottlenose, Spinner and Risso's dolphins; sperm, dwarf and pygmy sperm, pilot, minke, pygmy killer and beaked whales; otters, white-tail deer; green sea and loggerhead turtles and a variety of injured or orphaned birds.

In the case of manatees, Sea World has made 50 rescues and necropsied the remains of 33 manatees to date. Sea World's manatee rehabilitation and necropsy program was undertaken at the request of the USFWS which is responsible for the Manatee Salvage Program. Costs can range up to $1,000 even for a dead animal, and include lab, personnel and veterinarian costs. Maintenance costs for animals which survive are substantially higher, with veterinarian and food bills being the major expense. Over the course of the beached animal program, costs borne entirely by Sea World amount to over $350,000.

Sea World committed its corporate resources to beached marine animals for two reasons: research opportunities and public service.

For example, through Sea World's genetic studies on manatees with the University of Oregon, data is being established on manatee population. By studying blood samples of manatees in various areas, researchers can determine whether there are distinct populations of the animals. Hormone and reproductive studies with the University of Florida will help determine the manatee's estrous cycle and the correlation of sexual maturity to age and size.

Sea World has conducted hearing threshold studies with the Scripps Institute of Oceanography and has assisted the USFWS in a radio tagging project to determine migration within the St. Johns River basin. Because so little is known of manatee natural history, every bit of data adds another piece to the puzzle.

OPEC Fast Heading For A Cash Crunch

LONDON (UPI) — Oil producers from the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries are confronted with a cash crunch more ominous than the austerity they faced before the 1973 oil price hikes.

The 13 OPEC members meet Sunday in Geneva in another attempt to halt their slide into economic disarray.

No immediate turnaround is expected even if OPEC agrees to hold down production to maintain prices, or cut its rates to jolt buyers into a stockpiling rush.

The Middle East's Arab nations and African members are the worst hit by the widening gap between the money earned from oil and the money they must spend to catch up on years of economic stagnation.

But Latin Americans are not far behind with debts they cannot pay because oil money is short. Mexico's foreign debt is around $80 billion, Venezuela's is about $20 billion.

Since the American Express Bank Review predicted last year an overall OPEC current account deficit of $30 billion in 1982, most OPEC nations have greatly restricted their economies.

From a $110 billion current account surplus in 1980, OPEC nations last year battled a $1 billion deficit and may just break even this year with huge cost cuts all around, said Mehdi Varzi, oil analyst at London stockbrokers Grieveson, Grant & Company.

The fate of Nigeria's five-year plan showed how badly OPEC nations depend on uncertain oil earnings, he said.

Nigeria had to slash its outlays with output plummeting from 1.7 million barrels of oil daily in early 1982 to 1.5 million, then 1.3 million and finally a mere 1 million barrels a day.

Oil analysts expect OPEC nations soon to start shedding investments from an estimated $10 billion in cash, gold, commodities and trust funds accumulated as a hedge against the immediate future, when many oil wells may dry up.

The major world exporting areas, as indicated by figures in squares, for crude oil and products are the Persian Gulf, the rest of the Mideast, North Africa, West Africa, Indonesia, Mexico, Northern South America, the North Sea and the Soviet Union. Figures in circles indicate the flow and quantity of imports.

Doctor Claims Elderly Being Prescribed Unnecessary Drugs

BOSTON (UPI) — Doctors use drugs to treat minor medical problems such as sleeplessness without finding the underlying causes — a practice that can increase senility and cause psychological problems in the elderly, a doctor says. Forty percent of the sedatives and hypnotic drugs doctors prescribe are for patients over 65 who report a change in their sleep habits, Dr. Troy L. Thompson II of the University of Colorado School of Medicine wrote in the New England Journal of Medicine.

He said many elderly patients in nursing homes are given as many as seven different drugs, three times a day.

"If you take them off all medications, in about a week you see their minds clear up and their sleep returning to normal," he said.

Sleeplessness in the elderly could have many causes, including a change in sleep cycle, senility or depression, he said.

But because the symptom, insomnia, is the same, doctors prescribe the same treatment — drugs, Thompson said.

He said, however, old age may lower our requirement for sleep, in which case the patient should be told to relax. And treating either senility or depression with drugs could compound the problem, he said.

"If they're depressed and they're given a sedative, it will make it worse. An anti-depressant can cause any medical disorder to become worse," he said.

Many times the medications themselves create psychiatric symptoms that may disappear if a drug or dosage is changed, he said.

The Long And Short Of Miniature Collecting

'Once You're Into It, You Save Everything'

By DONNA ESTES
Herald Staff Writer

A 1 1/4-inch tall Shirley Temple doll with bouncy blond curls and dressed in a replica of the outfit she wore in the movie "Baby Takes a Bow."

A tiny porcelain bathtub, sink and toilet. A miniscule copper tea kettle, delicate hand-painted dishes, a crystal chandelier and a teensy mural with every detail sharp and clear.

Knitted coverlets on little canopied beds; replicas of Williamsburg furniture, a sewing mach, and authentic wallpaper.

These miniatures are all in a collection, contained in a Van Buren era prize-winning doll house owned by 82-year-old Arolyn True, a resident of Lake Mary and active in her community for more than half a century.

Mrs. True, who always wanted a doll house, was presented one by her children, Charlotte and Jim Basham of California and Natalie and Everett Dix of Holly Hill, in 1979. She is kept busy creating her own Lilliputian items for the house such as hand-made clay miniature turkeys and other foods to give a realistic flavor to the tiny kitchen. She has also transformed toothpaste caps into flower pots and hypodermic syringes into lamp posts.

"Once you're into miniatures, you save everything. You never know when some tiny item can be used," Mrs. True says.

While the house had only three stories when she got it, it now has four. Mrs. True, with help from her children, fashioned a ground floor to provide a kitchen. Grand, sweeping steps to the second floor accent the front of the house.

Even though she is not entering any of her pieces in the Miniature World of Florida sixth annual show to be held at Florida Center's Howard Johnson, Interstate 4 and State Road 435 and Kirkman Road Feb. 4-6, she will be attending, as many other collectors, to see what others have made.

Much of the furnishings in Mrs. True's doll house are authentic reproductions from the Williamsburg period. Those pieces can be purchased and painstakingly assembled by those with a steady hand and an abundance of patience. But the end products are lovely. The drawers actually pull out or swing open.

"Some pieces are difficult to assemble and others are easy," says Mrs. True who says she has found that she

Arolyn True has devoted countless hours of painstaking work and more than a few dollars in the creation and furnishing of this 19th Century doll house which is the showcase of her miniature collection.

would rather do one piece at a time than try an assembly line method with several pieces.

When she first took up the hobby, she went to workshops to learn how to properly assemble the miniatures, creating many with her own imagination and sewing skills.

The rooms of Mrs. True's doll house are covered with authentic reproductions of wallpaper used during the Williamsburg period. With a little imagination, a piece of velvet is transformed into plush wall to wall carpeting in one room.

Toothpicks, after being painted, became tall tapers. Balsa wood became a baby cradle and a cloth remnant became a Christmas wreath for the front door and a Christmas tree bearing all sorts of miniature ornaments.

A tiny broom, iron skillets, a coal-fired stove, a copper tea kettle and a coffee grinder accent the kitchen. On the roof during the Christmas holidays, a tiny Santa Claus could be seen going down the chimney while a sleigh with eight tiny reindeer led by Rudolph awaited his return.

In one of the bedrooms is a miniature baby carriage complete with a dressed infant. And a delicate mirror is the focal point of another room.

Mrs. True enjoys her hobby and is always watching for a button, a tiny piece of wood or anything that might embellish her doll house. "And my family is always on the lookout, too," she says.

Miniature collecting, however, can be an expensive hobby. While the pieces are small, the prices are not. That Shirley Temple replica, for example, cost $25.

Commercials as art

Believe it or not, TV commercials are probably the most expensive art form in the world. 'Adweek' editor Ed Diamond reviews some of the best and worst of this art in a story on Page 2.

The real thing

Unlike her glamorous predecessors in the televised gun-and-badge set, Lucy Bates of NBC's 'Hill Street Blues' actually looks and acts like a cop. That's why so many real lady cops identify with her. Page 5.

Little new

The start of the so-called second season is distinguished by its lack of new shows. Instead of gearing up new programs, the networks are sticking with the losers longer than usual. Page 7.

Deadlines Compromise Realism

DEAR DICK: Shows like "M*A*S*H" and "Trapper John, M.D." have consultants to make sure the medical aspects of the shows are realistic. Why can't other shows take heed? Viewers can tell whether an actor is really playing an instrument or not. It is intolerable to see a trumpet player portrayed with puffed out cheeks using unknown valve combinations that are not being played at the same time as the notes are heard. J.N., Lethbridge, Alberta, Canada

In movies, they have the time and money to teach actors to look like they are playing instruments correctly. Robert De Niro spent a few months on his trumpet-playing technique in "New York, New York" and Richard Dreyfuss, likewise, for piano playing in "The Competition." TV doesn't have that time, and 99.786 percent of the public can't tell a valve combination from a leaky pipe — and couldn't care less.

DEAR DICK: I heard that several men stars are married to men. Am I wrong, or are they? D.H.F., Saginaw, Mich.

The world loves to spread rumors about Hollywood people. Those rumors have been around for years. I don't know about the intimate sexual preferences of the stars and I figure that's their business, not mine — and not anybody else's.

DEAR DICK: We love Cathy Lee Crosby very much. I had heard that she died from cancer. I believe it, but I still see her on TV. Two of my friends don't believe it. Please tell us the truth. MRS.E.H., Plainsboro, N.J.

Cathy Lee Crosby is very much alive.

DEAR DICK: Was there a movie called "Go Naked in the World," starring Tony Franciosa? May I expect to see it soon? E.M., Cumberland, Md.

It was a '61 release, and also starred Gina Lollobrigida and Ernest Borgnine. It could pop up on late night TV sometime.

DEAR DICK: What happened to Polly Holliday since her

Ask Dick Kleiner

"Flo" series? She seems to have disappeared. H.W., South Williamsport, Pa.

She is still very active. She stepped in for Eileen Brennan on "Private Benjamin," after Eileen was seriously hurt when hit by an automobile. (But only one of Polly's episodes was shown before that show was canceled.) She also coached her friend Dustin Hoffman in the Southern accent he used in "Tootsie."

DEAR DICK: Would you tell me who played Wilbur's wife and what was her character's name on the "Mister Ed" TV show? A.P.J., Trenton, N.J.

Connie Hines played a character named Carol Post on that show.

DEAR DICK: In the movie "Wild Women of Chastity, Gulch," who was the actress who played the girl, Amy, who wanted to be a nurse? L.A.D., Anderson, Mo.

That was Lisa Wheelchel.

DEAR DICK: Could you tell me if it was Errol Flynn's son or Nelson Rockefeller's son who disappeared some years ago somewhere in Africa. And was he supposed to have been eaten by a witch doctor? M.P., Albuquerque, N.M.

It was one of Nelson Rockefeller's sons, and it was New Guinea, not Africa, and nobody knows what happened to him. Flynn's son, Sean, was involved in the war in Vietnam.

Commercials: Art Forms Of The Marketplace

NEW YORK (UPI) — Anyone who recently has gagged over Mr. Whipple and his bevy of toilet paper-squeezers, will find it hard to agree with Ed Diamond who insists television commercials are works of art.

Diamond, who is editorial director for Adweek magazine, also may be one of the few people around who can explain why some of the very best commercials (remember Alka-Seltzer's "specky-spicy meat ball?") fail while such horrors as the "ring-around-the-collar" harpies go right on assaulting the senses.

"Based on money, time and energy, the 30 or 60-second spot is probably the most expensive art form in the world," Diamond said. "If you do a cost-per-second analysis ... it's probably much greater than producing 'The Blue and the Gray.'"

In terms of sheer effort, Diamond said commercial creators take a back seat to no one.

"Winners and sinners" are spotlighted once a year at Adweek when a panel of experts salutes the former and heaps scorn upon the latter, but beyond such obvious affronts as feminine hygiene ads and the "kiddy porn" employed by jeans makers, weighing aesthetics against effectiveness is no easy job.

"Take the Diet Coke commercial," Diamond said. "You've probably seen it — it's opening night at Radio City Music Hall and everyone's in black tie. I think it's a terrible ad and all of our panel agrees."

"It's expensive. It's pointless ... yet our reports tell us Diet Coke sales have taken off. It's a very successful product introduction."

Then there was Alka-Seltzer.

"Alka-Seltzer had the 'I can't believe I ate the whole thing' ad," Diamond said. "Everybody remembers it in detail. Everybody remembers the tag line, but it did not sell Alka-Seltzer.

"So they went back to the old ad format — you know, repeat the name of the product three times — 'Alka-Seltzer, Alka-Seltzer, Alka-Seltzer' — and they started selling again."

"It's possible the commercial was so good and clever that people got caught up in it and couldn't remember the product."

Diamond, who predicted commercials soon will carry price tags running as high as $400,000 per minute, said as with any art form, beauty — or the lack of it — still lies in the eye of the beholder.

Julie Harris Tries Poetry And Soap Opera

By Ruth Thompson

A noted director was saying nothing new by praising the luminous Julie Harris as the greatest actress "of all time." She has a shelf's worth of television Emmy awards as well as a record number of best actress Broadway Tony awards to bear him out.

The director had only one criticism of her: "She takes a lot of acting jobs that are beneath her."

Once, when asked about that, she led off with a smile that was half-angel, half-imp. "It was nice for my son when he was young to see me in something he liked and besides it was fun for me. There is always something interesting you can find in a role and acting is what I do. I like to keep busy at it." Right now, she's keeping herself busy in CBS's prime-time soap opera, "Knot's Landing."

She does not choose, as the director might wish, to wrap herself publicly in Garbo-like remoteness and mystery.

Yet, paradoxically, gracious as she is in conversation, there is an air of mystery about her. Film and television personality Arlene Francis, who also hosts a daily radio talk show (WOR, New York), says that those who have worked with her on stage comment on Julie's "almost nun-like concentration on her work." No joke-swapping, no yakking it up after the show with the late party-goers. One reason for that may be that she's hatching projects in her mind beyond her present role.

Charles Nelson Reilly, a friend since they met in a Broadway play, describes the genesis of one of those projects — her one-woman show, "The Belle of Amherst." Until he coaxed her to bring it to Broadway, she was content to slip off quietly and appear for college and club groups, who shared her fondness for "The Belle" — poet Emily Dickinson, whom she evoked through readings.

And though Julie Harris is the last to put down television in even its most crass, mass-appeal moments, she has to be grateful that there was a place (PBS) where the "Belle" went on to become a television special, too.

The word is that she herself will next incarnate one of the Bronte sisters. But in the meantime, perhaps it's time for PBS to schedule an encore showing of Julie as "The Belle."

Lady Cops Love Betty

Officer Lucy Bates (Betty Thomas) teases the business-like Coffey (Ed Marinaro) as the partners and lovers portray police drama on NBC's 'Hill Street Blues.'

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Betty Thomas, the 6-foot-1 blond cop of "Hill Street Blues," has become a heroine to the growing number of women police officers across the country. Real cops stop her on the street, pull her car to the curb and approach her at public gatherings to wring her hand in gratitude for portraying women in uniform accurately and with dignity.

One reason for Betty's enormous popularity with distaff officers is the simple fact that she's looks like a cop, not an actress playing a cop.

Betty seems at home in the uniform, flashing her badge and making a collar. She is big enough, strong enough and actress enough to be convincing.

Television's previous female cops or private detectives were glamorous creatures with whom it was impossible for the real articles to identify.

Gorgeous Angie Dickinson, for instance, was the heroine of "Police Woman." How many lady cops look like her? Anne Francis was the star of "Honey West," a detective. Then there was the cadre of breath-taking beauties in "Charlie's Angels."

But Betty makes a certifiably credulous officer Lucy Bates in the popular "Hill Street Blues," especially when compared with the lady cops in "Cagney and Lacy" who appear to be trying to prove men are a rotten sex.

Lucy (and Betty) think otherwise. Betty enjoys being the only regularly featured female member of the Hills Street precinct and is proud she has been accepted as "one of the guys" by the large male cast.

"The actors are terrific," she said the other day. "I'd like to take them all home with me. But I can't because I have a small house."

"When we're out on location, I have a lot of time to sit around and talk to the guys but I get a little bored with their conversations — sports and women."

"I've really become a good friend of Ed Marinaro, who plays my partner, Joe Coffey. Our personal relationship (just pals) has helped the relationship between our characters on the show."

"I'm always riding him about what a macho guy he is, always hitting on every woman he sees. It doesn't bother him at all."

Betty, who has a boyfriend of her own, says the only troublesome aspect of playing Lucy is her bad luck with men. She also would like to see Lucy doing more police work because "she's become a very good cop."

Betty is quick witted, articulate and possessed of a wicked sense of humor, sharpened as a Chicago school teacher and honed further as a member of Chicago's Second City comedy troupe.

"The positive response I get from real policemen is wonderful," she said. "I'm was happy about the award I got from the National Commission on Working Women for the best portrayal of a female in a non-traditional role."

"Actually, I wasn't even a regular when the series began. I had five lines and a look in the first show. By the fourth episode they gave Lucy a little scene with Michael Conrad."

"The producers decided I could really act and the pieces became bigger and better. Now I'm given some of the big moments in the show."

Betty, twice nominated for Emmys as best-supporting actress, would like to wear something other than her polyester police uniform and perhaps have more scenes with women. The other two regular actresses, Barbara Bossom and Veronica Hamel, rarely appear on screen with her.

This season Lisa Sutton, playing a cop, has been added to the cast for a few episodes. Betty greeted her like a long-lost sorority sister.

"It's nice having another women for company on locations," Betty said. "We sit around talking for hours without once getting around to the subjects of sports or sex."

Second TV Season: Little New, Much Old

By David Handler

A measure of stability has returned to network scheduling. Recent seasons have seen so many swift lineup shuffles and cancellations that you could no longer tell what night your favorite show was on, or if it was indeed on at all anymore.

Meanwhile, overall network viewership has steadily declined.

Despite an undistinguished fall season that has brought us only one really good new show, NBC's "Cheers," and two ratings successes, CBS' "Newhart" and "Gloria," the networks are standing remarkably pat this winter.

That's the big news of the coming second season very few quick hooks, even though viewership continues to fall.

A heap of shows that doubtless would have been canceled in past seasons — steady bottom-third performers dismissed by both critics and viewers — have survived the cut.

NBC has picked up "Voyagers," "Powers of Matthew Star" and "Knight Rider," CBS, "Bring 'em Back Alive" and "Seven Brides for Seven Brothers," and ABC, "Ripley's Believe It or Not." There are others.

Why stay with such obvious losers? It's an economy move, largely. It's more expensive to tool up production of a new show — a show that may also be a loser — than it is to stick with what you've got. Only two new shows got the quick hook this fall — CBS' "Tucker's Witch" and ABC's "The Quest." Both were replaced by movies.

Actually, neither CBS nor ABC is introducing a new show this winter — they're merely recalling programs previously placed "on hiatus." The one CBS cancellation, "Private Benjamin," yields to that horrible "Filthy Rich." ABC has dropped "Joanie Loves Chachi" and "Star of the Family" for "The Greatest American Hero."

Third-place NBC is holding on to its low-rated critical successes — "Fame," "Cheers," "Taxi," "St Elsewhere" and "Family Ties." In past seasons, they'd be out. NBC is, however, making a few moves.

Gone are "Father Murphy" on Tuesday nights and "Gavilan," to be replaced by "The A Team," a soldier-of-fortune actioner starring George Peppard and Mr. T., and "Bare Essence," a cosmetics industry soap that was formerly a CBS mini-series.

Saturdays, "Love, Sidney" goes on hiatus and "The Devlin Connection" gets the boot. Instead, we'll get "Mama's Family," spinning off the Vicki Lawrence and Ken Berry characters from the old "Carol Burnett Show" — another CBS product — and "Family Tree," a limited-run family drama starring Frank Converse and Anne Archer. The latter will give way to "NBC NewsMagazine" in March.

NBC is also breaking up its wonderful Thursday night lineup, the lineup it boasted throughout the fall was "the best night of television on television." And it was no longer "Taxi" being shipped out to Saturday nights and "Gimme a Break" is being moved in. I'm outraged.

As always, it is impossible to draw conclusions from the fall's successes. Do audiences really like "Gloria" or is it simply benefiting from the strong Sunday night lineup? After all, look what happened to "Alice" when it was shipped out to Wednesday night. It died.

Is the success of "Newhart" attributable to the star's popularity or the absence of "NFL Monday Night Football" as competition?

One note on the fall's failures: Not one of the "Raiders of the Lost Ark" rip-offs — "Tales of the Gold Monkey," "Bring 'em Back Alive" or "The Quest" — has done well. Shades of all of those "Animal House" rip-offs a few seasons back.

What works on the big screen may not work on the small. Go figure that out.

'Lonelyhearts'

A new version of the Nathanael West story, "Miss Lonelyhearts," airs on PBS Jan. 25. (Local times may vary, check listings.)

Eric Roberts stars in the drama, filmed in black and white to make the '30s setting more realistic, as the young, idealistic, newspaper reporter who is assigned the task of writing the advice to the lovelorn column.

Arthur Hill portrays the cynical city editor, Shrike, who assigns the column and who refuses to resign it after the reporter begs to unburden himself of it. The reporter wants to leave the column behind because he becomes too involved in the lives of the readers who write for his help. Conchata Ferrell stars as one of those readers.

NFL Playoffs Stir Up Confusion

By Mark Nolan

This year's National Football League playoff schedule caused endless scheduling problems for American and Canadian networks. It was impossible to arrive at definite times for the games, and attempting to do so was becoming hazardous to the health of television sports editors everywhere.

Both CBC and CTV had intended all along to air live coverage of these games, but the exact starting times of the games were never predetermined. In the case of one certain playoff game, the date was even subject to change.

In view of this, scheduling for other weekend sports programming on Canadian networks was equally vague.

Popular events, such as world-cup skiing, figure skating and ski-jumping, were originally scheduled throughout the month of January, and all events had clear and definite air times. But at press time, with regard to the week of Jan. 23, it was not known which of these events would still be aired, or at what time.

It was a situation where "ifs," "eithers" and "ors" were the only definite words that sports programming people could look forward to.

If a particular NFL playoff game would be played in the stadium of an eastern team, such as the Washington Redskins, then the game would be aired early. Or, on the other hand, if the Los Angeles Raiders were to play at home, then the game would have to be aired at a later hour.

In either case, the original starting times for programming to be aired before and after the football games were suddenly undetermined. The very ground upon which sports editors tread had suddenly become extremely shaky.

At press time, the NFL's regular season hadn't ended. The latest news was that one of the Conference Championship games would be played either at 12:30 p.m. or at 5 p.m. on a Saturday night. This, in turn, had to mean more ifs.

If that particular game were to start at 5, and wasn't over in three hours, what would happen to the hockey games on CBC?

Would Canadian viewers be angrier if they didn't see the opening minutes of "Hockey Night in Canada" or the closing minutes of the NFL game?

Of the two options available, there were sure to be some unhappy, or even irate viewers.

Those frustrated souls in charge of scheduling sports programming were at wit's end. At least one thing was certain:

Super Bowl XVII was still scheduled to be played on Jan. 30, at 6 p.m., and would be aired live from Pasadena over CTV. No ifs, ands, or buts about it.

Sex Kitten Roaring With Talent

By JACK CURRY

The most recent generation of top-notch film actresses has been able to avoid a once inescapable initiation rite: playing the sexy, dippy ingenue. It was not too long ago, however, that any young woman wishing to make it in Hollywood found she was required to act dumb at least for a few movies.

In many cases, say a Jane Fonda or a Marilyn Monroe, the performer moved beyond that initial casting prejudice to earn more mature roles. Others have had a harder time shaking their sex-kitten image. Ann-Margret, for example, still strikes many movie-goers as a pink and fluffy lightweight. She's not, though, and Cinemax has dedicated a January film festival to making that clear.

Already this month the movie service has shown "Tommy" and "Magic." "Middle Age Crazy" airs Jan. 27 and her breakthrough movie, "Carnal Knowledge," airs Saturday, Jan. 29. Together, the movies have the effect of setting straight the record on the actress: She's a polished pro who, within a limited range, can make roles come alive through her particular screen persona.

Of course, the collection of films is not a festival in any real sense of the word—the compilation has none of the historic perspective needed to allow for a career assessment. A true Ann-Margret retrospective would include some of her earlier films, like "Bye Bye Birdie" or "Kitten with a Whip," which introduced the sexy image the star so successfully manipulated into a respectable acting tool. Cinemax's "festival" is really nothing more than a packaging gimmick for her recent movies already in the service's vault.
