Unfortunately, however, the Football Rules Committee saw fit to meet late last week and make some very drastic changes in the playing code for the 1927 season. And if we don't comment on it now, we are afraid we will have forgotten about it before the next referce's whistle sends twentytwo men into a resounding scramble over a pigskin.

The new rules are as follows:

1. The goal posts have been placed back ten yands to the back line of the end zone.

2. A time limit of thirty seconds has been placed on putting the ball into play.

3. A limit of fifteen seconds has been put on the huddle.

4. A pause of approximately one second must be made in the shift play before the ball is passed. 5. A fumble punt will be regarded hereafter as a dead ball and not a loose ball.
