HOUSE DESTROYED— Fire this morning razed a house, known as the Charles Ellick place, on the Country Club Rd. just west of the city. According to Stella Dunwoody, Negro, a daughter of the original owner, no one had been living in the dwelling for about a month. The house, she said, had two floors and eight rooms. She said she did not know how the fire started. (Staff Photo)

SPECIAL WEEK— Fire prevention week is being observed this year from Oct. 3 to Oct. 9. The special week, during which activity is increased toward the prevention of fires, commemorates the Great Chicago Fire.

Prosperity Contributes To Polio Theory Of Pediatrics Academy

CHICAGO (AP)— Paralytic polio may be largely a "prosperity" disease, the American Academy of Pediatrics was told today.

Children and adults living in prosperous, uncrowded areas may be more likely to get it than those living in slums and other crowded regions, said Dr. David Bodian of the Johns Hopkins University in a report to the academy's 23rd annual meeting.

He said that in crowded areas are more exposed to polio virus in infants, and most of them get an intestinal infection that insures them against a later paralytic attack on the nervous system.

But Dr. Bodian said that while polio still remains a disease of the underprivileged, it is also being found in the conceivable means of vaccination against it make it "not too optimistic to hope that the result will be the early control of epidemic poliomyelitis."

He told the meeting of the nation's top children's doctors that in populations where the polio virus is widespread due to crowded conditions and infection occurs in infancy in most individuals, those who escape paralysis are made immune permanently. There is evidence that in such populations virus is widespread so that infection and immunity against it are acquired early in life.

"The virtual absence of paralytic disease in those above the age of infancy is convincing evidence of the fact that inapparent intestinal infection immunizes against subsequent paralytic disease."

Saying that this is "nature's way of immunizing against polio," the doctor added:

"Although nature's way of immunizing may be very effective in some populations where virus and human beings have established an equilibrium, this equilibrium breaks down seriously in populations where greater prosperity leads to less crowding and improved sanitation."

"Apparently in these populations virus dissemination is reduced, exposure to virus is delayed to later life and even to adulthood, and for reasons not clearly understood, infection is more likely to result in paralytic disease."

"Severe epidemics are characteristic of these otherwise more fortunate societies."

Strolling In Sanford

The Board of Public Instruction and the Sanford Industrial Board will jointly sponsor a class in strolling for Negro women 45 years of age or younger. Applications are being taken and classes will be held at the Peoria Manufacturing Co. plant in the Kent business district.

Mrs. Gus Miller has announced her resignation as co-chairman of the executive committee of the local USO, as the family will move to Orlando in the near future. Miller has taken a position as the shopping center promotion manager of the food-year store in the development. Mrs. Miller said Otto Bradardi has taken over the management of the local Fire Stone store, formerly held by Miller. Capt. Vern Hill is carrying on the activities of the USO as chairman. Inquiries relative to the position of co-chairman should be directed to him.

The annual barbecue for City employees and families will be held at the Farmers' Auction Market next Tuesday evening.

KING SIZED CIGARETS FOR FIRE PREVENTION— GRAND RAPIDS, Mich. (AP)— Grand Rapids has endorsed king sized cigarettes—big ones 17 feet long and 18 inches in diameter. They have been placed throughout the city in observance of Fire Prevention Week.

Each carries the slogan "Chap-crone your cigaret, don't let it fire out alone."

Fire Chief Frank N. Burns said 80 per cent of the city's fires in an average year are traceable to a carelessly discarded cigaret.

PLAN TO WED— HOLLYWOOD (AP)— Film actress Pier Angeli and singer Vic Damone are engaged and plan to be wed soon, possibly this month.

The 22-year-old actress, born in Italy, and the crooner, Brooklyn native of Italian extraction, have known each other several years. Neither has been married before.

Sheriff Blasted At Meet

Herndon Criticizes Commission

"There is nothing this board can do that can't be handled in public," County Clerk O. P. Herndon today told the Board of County Commissioners, while vehemently protesting what he termed "coffee can sessions" to transact County business.

The meeting was held in the Seminole County Courthouse. After Herndon's outburst, Commr. B. C. Dodd proposed motions to authorize the payment of $1,000 to the Mac Asphalt Co. of Lakeland for materials supplied to Lake Jeanus Ave. This work had previously been completed but Herndon said to the board of its authorization was the previous minutes of the board.

Commr. Otis Fouraker said $1,000 had been okayed for the road, but not at a regularly scheduled meeting. It was explained that only $1,400 had been spent on the road and the remainder for hot patches. This amount and an additional $400 will be paid out of next year's budget, they said.

The second amount was for two radios at $200 each Sheriff J. L. Hobbs had purchased from the State Highway Patrol. There was no mention of this transaction in the minutes, either.

The meeting opened quietly at 9:30 a. m. when Harry W. Smith, accompanied by four other residents of Lake Mary, requested that Fifth St., either be opened or closed through to Washington Ave. in Lake Mary. After a resident termed the street a "hot race course," the committee agreed to open it provided necessary rights-of-way could be obtained.

The work reason to appear before the board was the third district district constable, George A. Kelsey. Bitterly accusing Sheriff J. L. Hobbs of attempting to "push him out of the county," Kelsey requested an explanation as to why Hobbs placed a radio in the Ovidio city police car, but he could not get one.

When called before the board, Sheriff Hobbs said he placed the radio in the police car, but he was sure the city of Ovidio would buy it for $150, if and when the County Commissioners authorized the sale. Answering Commr. John Meisick's question, Hobbs said he believed he had the authority and "fill the radio at his discretion to place where needed." He said this was one of two old radios that had been giving some trouble and that he had bought two radios from the State Highway Patrol in Tallahassee to replace them. The sheriff said the Ovidio radio had not been paid for, pending commission approval of the sale.

Kelsey said he was informed by the mayor of Ovidio that the radio had been given them free. He accused the sheriff of "doing everything you can to push me out of the county. I have come in the commission, and will go to the people if necessary." He said that if a county radio was in the police car he wanted one for his car.

Sheriff Hobbs said that Kelsey "was absolutely mistaken. I placed the radio out there for the benefit of the people in that end of the county."

Commr. Fouraker testified that "take their argument some place else," while Commr. Brown Miller said the sale should have been advertised. Commr. Dodd (Continued On Page Three)

School Strife Spreads In Capital; NAAWP Head Leads Baltimore Fight

Warning Is Given By Official

Delaware Goes To Court Today

BALTIMORE (AP)— With the experience of one integration battle behind him, a Southern born ex-Marine took over leadership last night of a battle to segregate Baltimore public school pupils.

W. Bryant Bowles, president of the National Assn. for the Advancement of White People, climbed in the back of a truck at an auto raceway to lead a group of 500 that under his leadership were forced out of schools in Milford, Del., "without a fist being swung."

"We told them in Delaware we'd help them if they would avoid violence and we're telling you the same thing," Bowles said.

Police Commissioner Beverly did some telling of his own speaking over all three of the city's television stations. Other warned that under city law any person disturbing any public school in session is guilty of a misdemeanor.

Any person who induces or attempts to induce any child to absent himself from school also is liable to prosecution, he said.

Under these warnings of the city code, Oley said, he deems it the duty of the Police Department to stop all picketing or assemblies in the neighborhood of the city's schools.

In the event of future demonstrations, he said, we're going to get tough.

Television also was used by Dr. John H. Fischer, city superintendent of schools, to level a charge that an attempt is being made deliberately to sabotage the city school system. "False rumors, evil rumors—all false—are being circulated in an effort to frighten parents and children," he said.

Fischer urged parents to send their children to school.

Baltimore's integration tempest began last Thursday with the picketing of School No. 34, an elementary institution. On Friday, the picketing spread to five other schools.

At Southern High School, a crowd of about 400 white adults and teenagers shouted threats at the Negro students leaving the building. One man was fined $100 for striking a Negro boy.

After a quiet weekend, protest again flared up yesterday, but there was no violence. The protest was limited mostly to bands of high school students marching through the streets. But police kept them moving.

DOVER, Del.—The State of Delaware goes to court today in an attempt to abolish the National Assn. for the Advancement of White People, one of the leaders in the recent successful fight against racial integration in the Milford high school.

Atty. Gen. H. Albert Young said last night in Wilmington that he would bring the action in the Court of Chancery here and at the same time would ask that a receiver be appointed to wind up the affairs of the association, chartered in Delaware.

Young contended that the NAAWP had violated its charter which provided it would "promote and protect the constitutional guarantee of the association."

Contract OK'd By Commission

For Sale Of Additional Bonds

City commissioners last night approved a contract with Goodbody and Co., Tampa financial firm, for the sale of bonds for additional work in the large-scale water and sewer program.

The firm sold the City's first bond issue of $1,175,000 for work in the program, receiving a fee of one per cent. The fee was boosted to 1 1/2 per cent in the new contract.

Wilson Holt, representing the company, said last night that proceedings on the first portion of the project "dragged out so long, we certainly didn't make any money on it."

The commission instructed him to prepare a report relative to the issuance of $500,000 in bonds for "local projects" and for contract No. 4 in the program. The report is to be ready by next Monday night, when Holt and his staff will appear before the commission.

Recommendations of the City Traffic Committee were made to the commission by its chairman, Marion Harman.

Among the recommendations were the following:

Not allowing private parking stalls at the Galles rooming house, 601 Magnolia Ave.

Leaving Eighth St. rough street at Perimeter and Olive Aves.

Not taking any action on a proposed five-way stop at Second St. and Elm St. and on a one-way left turn sign at Perimeter Ave. and First St. as long-range plans to be formulated by the commission.

The first two proposals were presented first for the approval of merchants and then to the city commission.

Mrs. A. Menendez, 207, Orléans Ave., appeared before the commission and complained about water standing under her three houses at Orange Ave. and Both St.

She said that water flowed under the houses of the block when it rained.

It was learned that she had two of the houses connected to one water meter after she complained the water was being charged too much for water. Mayor Higdontham said she would have to have two meters.

City Mgr. Warren Knowles is checking into the matter.

Sara Mae Bann, Negro, asked the commission for permission to operate a small street store at her new residence, 1700 W. 11th St. She had operated one at 1122 W. 12th under a variance granted by the City.

She was instructed to take the matter up with the City board of adjustment. Commr. John Krider suggested that City Mgr. Warren Knowles arrange a temporary variance by telephone.

The woman said she made the living for her family through the store.

R. H. Beckham appeared before the commission and requested a 10-year lease on City-owned property where he operates the Sanford Trailer Park. The matter was tabled.

The Western Auto Store was granted a permit to sell hand guns.

A beer and wine license was granted to Biscuit Food for the I and R grocery store, 529 C. press Ave.

A request for a street light at 1000 W. 10th St. was tabled for further study.

BOAT CAUSER— FINDS FINGER— DALLAS (AP)— A Dallas man offered a variety of reasons why he owned a boat. He said yesterday he bought a truck with the boat in it. Then he said he won the craft in a dice game.

Police had another version. They said he stole it.

Students Continue Defiance

About 50 Cops Watch Crowd

WASHINGTON (AP)— Strikes and demonstrations against a racial integration spread today to eight of the 122 public schools in the national capital.

High school pupils who started the outbreaks yesterday at Anacostia and McKinley schools continued defiant in the face of pleas from school officials and night police patrols.

In addition there was a new demonstration by several hundred at a formerly all-white Eastern High School.

Some 200 students at Eastern High School also refused to attend school at five junior high schools.

At Eastern, scene of the biggest school demonstration in the city, the number of strikers ranged from 500 at Eastern to a "few" at some minor highs.

In one Anacostia area police had on their young men whose ages they gave as 20 to 21, and two females. The adults were taken to a station house in a patrol wagon and the males in a squad car. Insp. John Winters said he assumed they would be charged with disorderly conduct and agitating.

Party Politics Back In California

thousand-mile-long state, the big fact about the 1954 election is that party politics has come back—with a loud bang—to California.

There is more noise largely because more Democratic candidates are going into November balloting than ever before.

And in a state where "nonpartisanship" was the successful slogan for years under the primary caucusing system which permits a candidate to seek both party nominations, candidates are being forced to choose sides—for or against the Eisenhower administration, for or against state platforms.

"Vote Democratic!" the billboards urge, playing down the ticket.

"Don't fall for blind partisanship," pleads A. Tomal Burton of Los Angeles, Republican national committee man.

The party resurgence rose out of the results of the June primary for governor and five other top state positions, the state legislature, 30 seats in Congress and the remaining two years of Vice President Richard M. Nixon's term in the Senate.

For the first time in 40 years, the primary ballot listed the candidates' political affiliation. And the Democrats, with a 700,000 lead in registration, nominated their first full slate of the modern.

Most candidates ran on both tickets, however, and Republican incumbents, holding every state office except attorney general, entered the fall campaign with a generally heavy advantage in the two-party vote.

Far from disheartened, Democratic leaders say they expect to pick up three or four seats in Congress, perhaps remove Sen. Thomas H. Kuchel (R-Calif.), who was appointed by former Gov. Earl Warren, and perhaps dump Warren's successor, Republican Gov. Goodwin J. Knight.

Kuchel, 44, a former state legislator and state controller, is staking election on "100 per cent" support of President Eisenhower. His opponent, Rep. Samuel W. Yorty, 45 on Oct. 1, is an outspoken critic of the administration and of the 83rd Congress.

Knight, 57, lieutenant governor for eight years and a Los Angeles County judge for 13, is campaigning vigorously against a political newcomer, 47-year-old Richard P. Graves, longtime executive director of the League of California Cities. Knight is doing little to change the election-tested policies of Chief Justice Warren.

Of California's 39 U.S. representatives, 18 of the 23 Republicans and 19 of the 11 Democratic incumbents are seeking re-election.

James Roosevelt, whose 26th District voters nominated him handily despite his reputation by the Democratic National Committee, is labeled a shoo-in to succeed Yorty in the 24th Democratic district. The eldest son of the late President was asked to step out in the race because of his record of intelligibility. He denied the charge. Roosevelt is opposed by Republican Theodore H. Owens, a less experienced political campaigner.

The Republicans are more hopeful in the two-party vote. Robert L. Condon of the 6th District, His

3 Are Qualified As Photographers At Navy Air Station

One Chief Photographer Mate and three Photographer Mates first class of the Navy's newest photographic flight line navigators.

The four men who have qualified in this highly technical skill are R. C. Wagner, Chief Photographer Mate, USN, who is now overseas with VJ-62 detachment item working as a photo flight line navigator and who has been on previous detachments overseas. The manner in which Chief Wagner has accomplished his duties on photo missions has been rated as outstanding.

The next two men, both assigned to Photolon 62 Detachment George, who have been putting their long months of training into practical use are: E. D. Undergraff and H. J. Connelly, both Photographers Mates first class USN, who has also been deployed overseas with Photolon detachment item. This is the first time that three men have been qualified as photo navigators. The fourth man to qualify in his highly specialized phase of photography is E. M. Rice, Photographer Mate first class USN, who has also been deployed overseas with Photolon detachment item. This is Rice's second assignment to an overseas unit of the squadron. It is even more an outstanding accomplishment by these four enlisted members of the squadron when it is known that in the little over two years that Photographic Squadron 62 has been an operating command, they are the only men in the squadron to have qualified in this highly technical skill. The manner in which Chief Wagner has accomplished his duties on photo missions has been rated as outstanding.

skills for instant reaction and proper action to become a Photo Navigator.

To fully visualize the responsibility and skills required of a photo navigator it necessitates a few facts concerning the AJ-2P aircraft, one of the Navy's newest operational photographic equipment.

The Photographic Department of VJ-62 has a complete lengthy course in which the photo navigators must attain near perfection to be considered qualified. It covers every conceivable photographic assignment that men and planes can face in time of peace or war including panoramic mosaic maps, photo reconnaissance of all types at high and low altitudes, single point pictures of targets and miles of accurately flown flight lines over every kind of terrain.

After each photographic flight of any type, the photographs are processed and trained photo interpreters go over the mission to the smallest detail with the photo navigator, who is then given credit for the assignment or it is rejected and the navigator is again assigned the mission until it is accomplished and he can accomplish any other photo mission similar to it. The greater part of this course is performed by actual flights. To look at the Photo Navigators view finders, his charts and to see him in operation makes his job seem relatively simple. But to attain the ultimate in perfection required, there are many long hours of flying and the statement of how an AJ-2P impressed one visitor might give an overall view of the plane, since it was said, "that as large as it is, it was filled through, with a maze of lines, wires, tubes, controls etc., looking very similar to the bottom side of a radio chassis, only with many extra, additional, parts, dials and wires thrown in for good measure." It is here that the photo navigator must accomplish his task as an integral part of this highly complicated technical machine. As large as the aircraft is it normally carries only a crew of three. The pilot has had years of training. The photographer who operates his remote controlled cameras to obtain the photographs, and the photo navigator, who when approaching the photographic target gives the necessary instruction to the pilot to guide the aircraft directly over the target and to give the photographer data as to photo interval, the starting and stopping of the cameras so that the mission is successful and the

The Taming of Carney Wilde

Characterizing Long Island State

SYNOPSIS
When Charles Alexander Howard, a wealthy Philadelphia banker, dies, Carney Wilde is named executor. Wilde is responsible for the security of the fortune. He has to find the thief who had dived into the water of the lake. Wilde's trouble starts when his friend, Jane Grodnik, comes to him. Jane Grodnik is the daughter of a former convict, and she is in love with Howard's son, Charles.

CHAPTER FOUR
LIFE in Philadelphia was going to be difficult for me when I got out of the hospital—and it would be very impractical, too. I knew I didn't really care much whether the road trip was a useful idea or not. Just having a legitimate excuse to get away from Philadelphia for a while was good enough for me.

"Can you give me a letter or something?" I asked. "In case I can't get away from Philadelphia?"
Grodnik's grim face cracked into a wide grin. He pulled out a long, official envelope and gave it to me. "Get the superintendent to write it for you," he said. "Show it to the cop and you'll get the best seal in the house."

"Captain," I muttered, "I'm beginning to think you know too much about handling me."
"Okay, captain. When does the boat leave?"
"Tomorrow night."
"I sat up quickly. 'Can I make it?'"
"Easy," Grodnik said. "A train leaves at a plane tomorrow. I'll send a de luxe bedroom on the boat, just in case. It's waiting for you."

"Fine," I said. "I'll catch a train tonight. I don't care much for flying over the mountains during the winter. You'll have to help me pack. And we've got a date at the Bellevue this evening, too, remember?"
The laughter died from Grodnik's face. But he nodded agreeably.

As the train came into Cincinnati, the porter tapped on my door, pushed it open. "Take the bag, sir?"
"Let's wait till the car is clear," I said. "We'll get one of the packages to come for me, will you?"

The sheriff should have been brought before the board. In an aside, Holly told the group no sale had been completed, and he had informed the Ohio authorities no action could be taken without the board's approval.

"Ready now, sir, if you are," the porter said. He led me to the door, put it in the open position and lifted my heavy coat, holding it ready for me to pull on. I buttoned my jacket and got up, holding my bag with a flourish.

The free territory was formally set up by the Italian Peace Treaty of 1911, which formalized the division of the area into two occupation zones. Under the arrangement, a governor was to be appointed by the United Nations, but the Russians and the West could not agree on a candidate.

In 1948, before Yugoslavia's communist government broke with the Kremlin, the Allies announced that both zones of Trieste should be returned to Italy. This idea was dropped after Yugoslav left the Cominform.

In 1952, Italy was given a hand in local administration of the Trieste zone.

The coat sleeves. I had brought my double-breasted blue coat because it could be slipped across my padded left shoulder sockets and would still cover me in front with the overlap. The porter adjusted it carefully and fumbled in the pocket for the two buttons he had sewn together last night. He fitted them into the buttonholes and tugged at the coat to make it hang straight.

By that time I had my suitcase out. I held it up and the porter sniffed the bills thoughtfully, selected a 10. He nodded and tucked it inside the waistband of his card cap.

"I thank you, sir," he said. "I trust you had a pleasant trip."
I reached up to the rack for my hat, winked at the porter and banged his chest lightly with the bag. He stepped back and staring at my jugly, showing a good stretch of one white teeth. I let him lead me out of the car and down the steep ladder step to the platform.

A thin, shivering man and my bag mounted on his cart and I followed him up the ramp into the station.

I was well covered all the way to my hotel room. The porter led me to the rooftop, then I was handed to the cart driver, on to the hotel doorman, up to the desk clerk.

In my hotel room I called the waiter and he went to work opening my bag before I had a chance to say a word.

"I need some tailoring done," I said, sitting up on the edge of the bed. "There are three suits in that bag. Take the jacket and alter the one I've been wearing. And the overcoat. You'll have to widen the sleeves for me."

"What's them?"
"Just the suit sleeves, I said. "They don't side on over my feet. I tried to get them in my left arm and shoulder and they got for him to figure it out."

He looked around at my shoulder, measuring with a short length of knitted twine. He took the jacket from my bag, slit one seam to see how much material was made and then we agreed he should alter it in an additional strip in all the sleeves.

When I was alone, I went to the window and looked out at the rooftops, trying not to think about anything. The coat left in my bag was a last resort. I could probably go anywhere any time after noon, but there wasn't much point of being early. There was one chance in a million that Stewart would be on board with his $200,000.

Five Vicious Dogs Foil Police Action
OKLAHOMA CITY.—Two officers drove to an Oklahoma City house to investigate a complaint that there were five vicious dogs in the neighborhood.

When they arrived five dogs surrounded their car.

Police Officer H. Hardegraves said: "We sat there and tried to calm the animals."
Then officer H. J. Standeford pulled out his gun and fired twice. The dogs came under a house. Every time we got out the dogs came running again. We just sat out in front and looked the beast and yelled firing 15 shots someone I guess there was a dog at home. We didn't go up to the door to find out."

Hardegraves went back to the station and left an order for the city pound to make a follow-up call.

Commissioners agreed with him and the matter was dropped. Combs, Dodd said even the drug store closed in his section, and the people wanted to keep it that way.

Inertia In Taft Wing Of Republican Party Making Campaign Of Rep. Bender Hard

Editor's Note — This is another of several stories by roving Associated Press reporters analyzing the campaign in key states.

By DON WHITEHEAD
COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—Sen. Robert A. Taft has been dead for 14 months but the dry, Midwestern twang of his voice still echoes across this state today in the bitter political campaign being waged for control of Congress.

It is almost as if Taft himself were taking part in the fight, helping to shape the arguments and issues and the emotional content. The weight of his influence is being felt through the followers he left behind him and their conservative political philosophy which may or may not accurately reflect the thinking of Taft.

Only enough while Taft seemed able to put his presidential disappointments behind him and emerge as President Eisenhower's staunch supporter, a number of his followers haven't been able to do it. Many of them aren't reconciled yet to "that man Eisenhower," in his policies, and to the loss of Taft's leadership.

Taft was known as an "organizational man" but some of those he spoke for are making it more difficult for a Republican candidate to be elected.

The reason lies in the inertia in the Taft wing of the Republican party, an inertia that is an acknowledged problem of those trying to get Rep. George H. Bender elected to the Senate seat held so long by Taft.

One Republican leader who is working hard in the campaign said:

"The world has moved on since Bob Taft's passing. We've got to face the facts of life in which we are dealing with new personalities and new problems in our party. Too many of the Taft people still are living in a dream world, thinking of what would have been done if Taft had been here.

"The truth is that Taft would have been right out there fighting for Eisenhower and I what he's trying to do. We've got to get griping about the small parts of the Eisenhower program we don't like—and look at overall program, which is good."

Bliss said in an interview he should have had his campaign organization rolling as far back as last February, but that the primary fight between Bender and William Saxbe of Mechanicsburg for the nomination delayed things.

"Now the trick is to tie the party together and get the Taft people into the fight," Bliss said. "We're making progress. I've been able to do more in the past week than in the previous two months and our situation is looking good. Some of our people who didn't think Bender had a chance two months ago now say he's a certain winner. The winning psychology is at work."

The key to the Bender-Burke contest may well be in Cuyahoga (Cleveland) County, which casts about one fifth of the state's total vote. Both Burke and Bender come from the Cleveland district.

Eugene H. Hanhart, Democratic state chairman, said: "The race could be decided by the workers' and farmers' pocket books. The average person is bound to be influenced by the size of his take-home pay, and the take-home pay has dropped. Farm prices have dropped and the workers aren't getting the overtime pay they once did, while a good many of them are out of work or working only three or four days a week. This situation is working in our favor."

At this stage, the Bender-Burke race looks like a ding-dong fight with no definite opinion appearing to favor Bender slightly in a jumble of unknown factors that might swing the election in either direction. Both sides are "running scared" and aren't inclined to make any sweeping victory claims.

Bliss' name is better known throughout the state than Burke's. He has made his name known to the voters in his former campaigns for the office of representative-at-large, a post since abolished. Bender now represents the 25th District in Cuyahoga County outside of Cleveland.

Also, Bender's name and face became familiar to Ohioans as the debatable point, but at least many voters know him.

Bender is working hard to get the support of both the liberal and conservative wings of his party. He is campaigning as an Eisenhower supporter with the reservation that he's no "coastal rider or yes man."

On the other side, Burke is best known in Cleveland, where he was mayor until he accepted the short-term Senate appointment. He has been a good vote getter in his home town, but just how far this popularity extends into the state is a question.

Burke is working hard to make his name better known throughout the state, particularly in Southern Ohio, where he hopes to offset Bender's expected strength. Some think he might do it with a strong Democratic vote in Dayton.

The situation looks good," Burke said during a swing through the downstate area. "I would say unemployment in the state is the big issue. It's true that unemployment may be no worse than it was in 1949 during the Truman administration, but that's not much of an argument for the Republicans in influencing the man who's out of a job right now."

Another thing in Burke's favor is that he will be running alongside Gov. Frank J. Lausche, the popular Democratic governor, who is seeking an unprecedented fifth term. Lausche's opponent is State Auditor James A. Rhodes, former Columbus mayor.

In the House races, some veteran observers say they wouldn't be surprised if there should be no net change in the House delegation which is now composed of 16 Republicans, 5 Democrats, 1 Independent and 1 vacancy.

Stenstrom, Housholder Win

SENATOR-ELECT DOUGLAS STENSTROM

JUDGE ERNEST HOUSHOLDER

No Second Election Needed

Victors Give Statements

Douglas Stenstrom and Judge Ernest Housholder yesterday captured the offices of State senator and County judge, respectively, at the special Democratic primary election. Their margins of victory eliminate the need for any runoff.

Stenstrom garnered 1,200 more votes than his nearest opponent, J. J. Parrish, Titusville, received, and 911 more than Parrish and the third candidate, E. E. Brady Sanford, received together.
Housholder gathered 2,176 votes, 788 more than his nearest opponent, Gordon Frederick, garnered, and 181 more votes than received by Frederick and the third candidate, Hugh Dunn, together.

Each election was held in full compliance with the provisions of the Florida Constitution, left vacant by the death of Sen. Fred E. Ballew and the judge's office, by the resignation of Stenstrom to become a candidate for a second term from which he will take office immediately following the general election Nov. 2, today made the following statement:

I am humbly grateful for the confidence expressed in me by the people of the 27th senatorial district in yesterday's election.

I am indebted particularly to the people of my home county and my friends and supporters who worked so faithfully in my behalf.

I consider the vote given me a challenge to do the very best I can as your senator. To justify the trust you have placed in me, your district has many problems to face, and I deeply appreciate the expression of good wishes and offer of cooperation extended by Mr. J. J. Parrish Jr. for whom I have the highest respect and esteem.

I shall strive to work fairly and impartially for the best interests and needs of both Bradford and Seminole counties. May I thank the people of our district for the privilege of public office, and I sincerely trust that my conduct as your senator will be such as to merit your confidence.

A telegram was sent by Parrish at 9:32 p. m. yesterday, conceding the election to Stenstrom. Stenstrom answered by wire as follows:

Honorable J. J. Parrish Jr. Thank you so much for your thoughtful message of good wishes. You know that I hold you in the highest esteem and I appreciate deeply your offer of cooperation for the good of our district. Douglas Stenstrom.

The following statement was received by Parrish late last night:

I became a candidate for State senator at the request of many friends and neighbors in the 27th district. My only wish was to be of service to my fellow citizens in Bradford and Seminole counties. I am grateful to those who supported me, worked in behalf of my candidacy, and voted for me.

For the rest, I believe my sentiments are best expressed in the following telegram which I have sent to my opponent in the campaign just ended. My heartfelt congratulations on your victory. I am certain you know I shall be happy to cooperate with you in every way possible for the good of our district. Housholder and Parrish.

For a meeting as a political party, I call a "London Control Committee" member of the Board of Health of the city of Chicago, and one of the participating hospital, if he needs help.

According to the official return of the votes cast in the election yesterday, my fellow citizens have given their approval to my appointment as they judge by electing me to office for the additional two year term. For this I want to thank each and every who had a part therein. I shall always be grateful for the privilege of being able to continue in my service as your County Judge.

(This has been the people's candidate.)
