Florida Hospital Presents SMH Merger Plans

Seminole County commissioners today were scheduled to begin hearings on the future of Seminole Memorial Hospital, with representatives from Florida Hospital in Orlando prepared to ask the commissioners for a merger.

"We'll only be delivering a proposal to seek to open negotiations on the matter," Jim Morris, Florida Hospital vice president, said today.

Morris and others were scheduled to present their case for merger with the commissioners at 1:30 p.m. today. On Tuesday, members of the board of trustees from SMH are scheduled to meet with the commissioners to plead their case for converting the hospital to a private-not-for-profit facility.

'We'll only be delivering a proposal to open negotiations on the matter'

County commissioners ultimately will decide whether to keep SMH county-owned or whether to surrender control and lease the facility to a private corporation.

Florida Hospital President Bob Scott sent a letter to commissioner Bob Sturm earlier this year asking to open discussions over a possible merger. Morris said, however, that plans had not reached the stage of offering specific details and that today's meeting with the commissioners was "just to see if they might be agreeable to continued discussions."

Tuesday's SMH delegation to the commission is expected to be led by administrator Charles Bentley. It was the SMH board which first suggested changing the status of the hospital. Board members said such a change would permit the selling of tax-exempt bonds to finance a $12 million to $18 million expansion plan.

When it became known the county commissioners would consider such a request, representatives of Florida Hospital and a private for-profit chain, Hospital Corporation of America, sent word they would like to investigate the possibility of becoming involved in negotiations on the hospital's future. To date, however, no one from HCA has requested a hearing before the commissioners.

Sanford solar equipment distributor Phil Gonzalez displays solar panel

Fly-By-Nighters Hurt Local Solar Market

The outlook is bright, but the market for solar energy systems has been dimmed by public doubt and fly-by-night installers, says Phil Gonzalez, a Sanford distributor of solar equipment.

Gonzalez, 57, claims he has noticed an increase in the number of inquiries about solar equipment recently, but sales of the $600 to $1,000 water heating systems he handles average only one per month. Gonzalez, a retired engineer, now operates Kings Supplies, 2534 Park Ave., Sanford.

"Sales are very slow. Basically, I think there are two reasons. First, a lot of people here had bad results with equipment bought from fly-by-nighters who stick them with shoddy equipment. Cheap materials are used and the systems rot in two years.

"Secondly, there is the human thing. People look at $600 or $1,000 as an expense they'll be paying for two or three years if they switch to solar. They'd rather pay that extra $20 or $30 per month to the utility company than assume a major cash outlay," he said.

Gonzalez said he and his wife installed a solar system in their home five years ago and their average utility bill of $60 has been cut in half since. Within Seminole County, Gonzalez estimates, up to 2,000 homes and businesses partially are dependent on the sun for heating or air conditioning.

"Right now, it is mostly used as an adjunct or a back-up system. But the builders are beginning to design them into the newer homes. That should be a big market," he said.

An average home, with two to four persons, would require two solar panels, or collectors. The collectors are covered by a special fiberglass covering. When the sun's rays pass through the glass onto the collectors, the heat is trapped and stored. The stored heat then is transferred to a standard household water tank. More complex systems, Gonzalez said, can convert the heat to electricity for powering air conditioners and other home systems.

Most of Gonzalez' customers, he says, are retired persons seeking to cut down on their utility bills over the long run. The younger homeowner has shied away from solar energy, he said.

"I think the retired person, trying to get by on a fixed income is more apt to look to the future. Their experiences have taught them to look ahead," he observed.

Gonzalez has been in the solar energy business 10 years. He formerly was a manufacturer's representative for electronic components in the Bahamas and Puerto Rico. Products he represented included solar devices, he said.

Since the field has drawn a good deal of attention while few people are too aware of the mechanics of solar energy it has been easy for con artists and get-rich-quick schemers to operate, Gonzalez claims.

"You see a lot of it. Someone moves into an area, puts a lot of advertising in the newspaper and on TV, makes his sales and then moves on. The equipment sold may be junk," he warns.

"For example, freeze protection is very important. Most buyers don't realize that the solar panels don't have to be exposed to freezing temperatures to freeze over. Given the right combination of dew and chilling winds, a panel could freeze even at 50 degrees," he said. "Then they become damaged."

He said less reputable firms may sell low-cost equipment without the necessary protections such as freeze-guards. When the cheaper units give out in two or three years, consumer confidence in solar systems is diminished, he said.

What can the government do to stimulate interest and widespread conversion to solar energy? Gonzalez says low-cost loans to buyers would help. But he said the government also is going to have to do a good marketing job and reduce some of the red tape now slowing the grant program to solar buyers.

"The government has a $400 grant program to persons installing solar devices. But the guidelines required to meet the grant are based on northern standards. To meet them in Florida, the buyer winds up spending more than the $400 he gets," Gonzalez said.

He said the federal requirements for a grant include insulation limits and venting specifications not found in many homes in the southern part of the nation's sunbelt. "It's also going to be a job of the government and the seller of solar systems to get the message across, to sell the public on the advantages of solar heating," he said. Originally, Gonzalez thought he would sell his units to hotels, restaurants and laundromats, all high-users of water. However, it is the homeowners who now inquire most and he sees that as the coming market in solar sales.

'Silver Hair' Will Lobby For 10 Bills To Aid Aged

By DONNA ESTES
Herald Staff Writer

With the 1979 session of the Silver Haired Legislature behind him, Seminole's representative to that session, Leo Ware, 71, of Altamonte Springs, is gearing up to lobby local "regular" legislators for passage of 10 priority bills.

Personally familiar with the four members of the Seminole County Legislative Delegation—State Rep. Robert Hallaway and Bobby Brantley and Sens. John Vogt and Clark Maxwell—Ware says he keeps in contact with them on a regular basis on the issues of interest to senior citizens.

"As chairman of the advisory committee for the Area Agency on the Aging, I have the inside track, the advantage of knowing the needs of seniors," he said. Ware also is affiliated with the Health Systems Agency, an advisory board on health needs.

His involvement in city politics in Altamonte Springs—he was at one time an unsuccessful candidate for the city commission and he attends many city commission meetings—also has been of assistance to him, he said. Ware is retired from International Harvester in Indianapolis, Ind., and retired to Florida 10 years ago.

The Silver-Haired Legislature is comprised of senior citizens elected throughout the state by their peers to consider laws believed necessary to protect the rights of or promote the benefit of the elderly.

Once approved by the Silver Hairs, the proposed laws are submitted to the regular Legislature for passage. The 1979 session was the second annual one-week session of the Silver Hairs. The idea originated in Missouri. Representatives of 10 other states, including New Hampshire, Washington, Pennsylvania, Texas and Colorado, observed the session, which ended at noon Friday, with a view toward implementing similar programs.

"There were more people involved this year. The agenda was set up much better and I enjoyed it," Ware said of the session. He was serving his second year as a silver haired legislator.

The 10 top priority pieces of legislation from the Silver Haired House, to be lobbied locally and in Tallahassee during the April, 1980 regular session, Ware said, include:

—Limitations on the ability of apartment house owners to convert their buildings to condominiums.

—Freezing of shelf item prices in grocery stores until new stock is acquired. Ware said he has noticed, and other seniors have pointed out to him, that grocery stores often raise prices several times on stock items as wholesale costs go up, even though the stock was on hand before those increases went into effect. The legislation is designed to stop this practice.

—Permission for older persons to attend courses at state universities without paying fees or receiving credit, if space is available.

—Requiring medical schools in Florida to have courses on geriatrics and to require medical doctors to take these courses.

—Banning increase in assessments for tax purposes of homes used exclusively as homesteads by seniors once the head of the household reaches 65 years old, except where new construction or additions are involved.

—Calling for automatic increases geared to the cost of living for persons on state retirement pensions. Ware said the cost to the state the first year would be $4 million.

—Creation of a Senior Citizens Commission to study the impact of senior citizens on the state's economy, and develop recommendations on their needs. Ware said the commission would submit reports on their findings to the governor, speaker of the house and president of the senate.

—Permission for incorporated mobile home associations to sue on behalf of their members when lot rentals are increased unreasonably.

—This was Ware's bill. He sponsored the proposed legislation after constituents brought to his attention rental increases of as much as 84 percent.

Permitting the registration of dental laboratory technicians to make dentures on prescription of dentists.

—Calling for legislative review of children in foster homes. Ware said it came to the attention of the Silver Hairs that "a lot" of the children in foster homes in certain areas of the state appear to get lost every year.

Forty-six bills were considered by the Silver Haired House, Ware said, with the preceding bills considered priority items. Last year, 12 bills were given top priority and five were passed by the regular Legislature.

The Silver Haired session, Ware said, is sponsored by the Florida Jaycees, Florida Department of Health and Rehabilitative Services, Florida State University, Center for Professional Development and Public Service and the Florida Agencies on the Aging.

Ware said he has a little uncomfortable to work in. We try to keep it between 78 and 79. There have been no complaints to my knowledge. It's too early to tell whether our refrigeration has been affected."

At the Holiday Inn House of Steak, Bernie Varner, manager since last month, said, "No complaints, other than the people working in the kitchen. No effect on refrigeration. And we don't have a dress code for the customers, so far as a coat and tie are concerned."

At McDonald's on Orlando Drive in Sanford, Don Hughes, manager said, "We've been pretty close to that temperature, so long as the air is kept moving. We've had no negative complaints. I think people are geared up mentally for it. We checked our temperatures last week and they were well within the compliance figures. Management, only, must wear ties or the standard uniform."

Brothers Argue, One Stabbed In Fight

A 25-year-old Longwood man was stabbed in the back by his brother Saturday during an argument over a stereo, according to Longwood police.

A Florida Hospital spokesman said Lemieux signed himself out "against medical advice" later Saturday evening.

Glen George Lemieux Jr., 26, who lives with his brother, was treated and released Saturday, a Florida Hospital spokesman said. According to police, the events occurred as follows:

Both brothers began arguing over the stereo during a party outside their home about 7:13 p.m. Saturday in front of a crowd of about 15.

Glen allegedly walked into the house and cut the wires of the stereo with his buckknife and in the process cut his wrist. Keith followed Glen inside and both began fighting.

During the fight, Glen allegedly stabbed Keith in the back with his buckknife.

He was taken to the Seminole County Jail and charged with aggravated battery. Lemieux was placed on an initial bond of $25.

Nothing Replaces Being Prepared

At White House direction, the Pentagon is mapping plans for creation of a 110,000-man "Unilateral corps" — a combined ground, sea and air strike force capable of responding to a crisis anywhere in the world in a matter of days if not hours.

Officially, the unilateral corps is intended to counter any sudden overseas threat to vital American interests. In fact, the overriding justification for the corps is represented by a single word — oil. Consequently the force is being specifically tailored to operate in the Persian Gulf area.

The need for such a corps could not be more compelling. Half of the oil consumed in the United States each day is imported. Most of this outside supply comes from the states surrounding the Persian Gulf.

Japan and the NATO countries of Western Europe are even more dependent on Middle Eastern oil.

The supply line that stretches out from wells in Kuwait, Saudi Arabia, Qatar, Iran and the United Arab Emirates could hardly be more vulnerable. The sinking of a single tanker in the narrow Straits of Hormuz at the entrance to the Persian Gulf could virtually close the oil tap.

The governments that control the Persian Gulf's vast oil resources are not less vulnerable. Any or all might be threatened by internal revolt or outside aggression. Iran's fate is a reminder of just how quickly and calamitously events can occur in this volatile heartland of the world's petroleum wellspring.

The Soviet Union's all-too-apparent strategy of encircling the Persian Gulf region and gaining at least indirect control over the Gulf's oil resources provides the clinching justification for the Pentagon's strike force.

This force is not, as some imagine, the first ingredient in the making of "the next Vietnam." The Persian Gulf is not Southeast Asia. The force would be used only in the event of an undeniable, imminent threat to either the oil lifeline or control of the oil itself.

Moreover — and this is most important — the creation of the force is the best insurance against the need for military intervention in the Persian Gulf region. As it has always been, preparedness remains the best form of deterrence.

Whale Ruling Hailed

The International Whaling Commission should be applauded for its recent action in London, which is expected to save 10,000 whales each year from the harpoon's lance.

Over the objections of the Soviet Union and Japan, the commission banned all whaling by factory ships, except in the case of the small minke whale.

Cetacean experts say the ruling is a major step in protecting sperm whales, which have been harvested to the extent that they are a critically endangered species.

For the past 30 years, the commission has tried to limit whale kills by a quota system, which was easily circumvented.

The whaling commission originally had been asked in a resolution by the United States to be asked in a total ban on whaling. That resolution was rejected in committee, but a compromise amendment offered by Panama was accepted.

Now factory ships will be allowed to slaughter only minke whales — and other species may be taken only from shore stations.

The Carter administration would like to see all whaling halted until there is better data on these nearly extinct mammals. If Japan and Russia, the two major whaling nations, fail to obey the new rules, this country should consider trade and fishing restrictions until they cooperate.

"Now, according to our calculations, your popularity and the rate of inflation should cross sometime in December."

Accident To Plague Kennedy

WASHINGTON (NEA) — If Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., decides to seek the presidency in 1980, at least 10 percent of the electorate probably will reject his candidacy because of his personal conduct 10 years ago.

For the second time in less than a year, a national survey undertaken by a major magazine indicates that there is a significant group of voters who believe that Kennedy's behavior during and after the accident is indicative of a serious flaw in his character.

The survey produced a strong correlation between those who said they were not likely to vote for Kennedy if he ran next year and those who believe that his character is flawed or that he handled himself improperly at Chappaquiddick.

When asked specifically if Kennedy's behavior during and after the accident was an important factor affecting their decision probably not to support him, 11 percent answered in the affirmative.

The results of the McCall's-Gallup poll are strikingly similar to those of a national survey commissioned late last year by Time magazine and conducted by Yankelovich, Skelly and White Inc., a New York polling organization.

Some political observers believe that if Kennedy runs for president, he will be rejected summarily by at least 10 percent and perhaps as many as 20 percent of all voters because of his personal behavior.

Washington journalists traditionally have abided by an informal guideline that limits the free "hospitality" they properly can accept from an outsider to "whatever you can eat or drink at one sitting" — a meal or a round of drinks.

But John B. Connally, the former Texas governor and treasury secretary now running for the 1980 Republican nomination, has never been accused of being a small-time operator.

The Connally campaign organization devised a scheme to invite, three or four at a time, several dozen journalists and their spouses to spend a weekend at Connally's Potosi Ranch near San Antonio, Texas.

But many of those invited declined the opportunity to partake of five meals, a steady flow of drinks and a choice of swimming, tennis, skeet-shooting or horseback riding — as well as some informal political chatter.

Because the plan generated little more than unfavorable publicity and criticism of Connally and his guests, the campaign's communications director, Julian Read, now even discloses the names of those who accepted the invitations.

While many Americans are willing to make personal sacrifices to alleviate the crisis in the Washington-based Citizen's Choice apparently prefers petty bickering.

Citizen's Choice is unwilling to accept one of the most testing of all energy-conservation measures: setting office temperature controls at 78 degrees in the summer and 68 degrees in the winter.

Frustration In U.S. Shown In Letters

WASHINGTON — Like steam in a boiler, frustration is building up in America until it is close to the explosion point. It is expressed in the letters that pour into our office by the hundreds every day. As a steam vent, we will occasionally publish some letters and our responses.

Q. Our country is on a downhill race. It has already reached an all-time low. We have lost dignity, order and common sense. Isn't it time for a clean sweep? — Louis Tyka, Marysville, Mich.

A. The American people built this nation by pulling together. They could destroy it by pulling apart. In past times, the ethic was help-your-neighbor; now it's me-first. Then it was 'I'll-make-do; now it's what's-due-me.' The helping hands of the past have been replaced by hands that are grabbing all they can get. The spirit of sacrifice has been displaced by an attitude of selfishness. The new values are self-fulfillment, self-expression, self-gratification. Morally, this country is beginning to look like Berlin after the allied bombardment. We must revive the old values and virtues. The price of failure could be the country.

Q. Would it do any good to nationalize the oil companies? I'd rather pay for government inefficiency than windfall oil profits. — David Westphal, Nevada City, Calif.

A. It's an idea whose time is close.

The Central Florida Crimewatch Program will mark its second anniversary on Wednesday. During the 24 months the program has been in existence more than 1,700 felonies have been resolved, resulting in the solving of 140 felony crimes, an average of one per week.

In addition, the program has resulted in 90 felony arrests and the recovery of over $78,000 in stolen property.

A spokesman for the Crimewatch program said Seminole County deputies and police have participated in clearing 19 of the 140 closed cases. Eight of the arrests were made by Seminole County law enforcement officers.

Of the local total, 13 cases involved crimes committed in Seminole County. The cases range from burglary, forgery and receiving stolen property to drug offenses, the spokesman said.

The board of directors of the Crimewatch program will make the second anniversary with a breakfast at the Sheraton Twin Towers in Orlando. More than 50 individuals and organizations will be honored at the breakfast for their contributions to the program.

Crimewatch publicizes unsolved felony crimes through television, radio and newspapers. The crimes are selected from the files of law enforcement agencies in seven-counties in central Florida.

The program offers rewards of up to $1,000, if the information offered leads to an arrest. Crimewatch is not an investigative agency. Its information is turned over to the police investigators initially involved in trying to solve the crime. The system aids in allowing callers to remain anonymous.

Administrative expenses, which amount to about $16,000 annually and include the cost of the program's one paid employee, are paid through private contributions.

Rewards are paid through a private foundation supported by the Kiwanis and other civic organizations and private donations, which are always welcome.

Video taping and editing for TV as well as radio taping is done free of charge by the University of Central Florida.

The local program now has carbon copies in several Florida cities as well as Atlanta, Minneapolis, St. Louis and Rockville, Maryland.

The phone number for Crimewatch is 819-2482.

Well, it's out in the open now. The CIA has agents placed in United Nations activities in two supposed cases of neutrality, Geneva and Vienna.

We have the word of a Soviet publication, Novy Times, for it. In a recent article, the weekly reported that less than 50 of the 44 members of the American U.N. mission in the Swiss city were agency personnel. As for Vienna, the charge is that the headquarters of the International Atomic Energy Agency have been thoroughly bugged with proceedings monitored from the U.S. embassy.

Allegations of agent infiltration, electronic eavesdropping and other forms of playing the game by special rules are par for the course of the internal power relations and usually are dismissed with no or very little comment. But, considering the source, these may deserve some attention.

Under all, the Soviets are experts on the subject.

There's also the development of a thriving new business — a pair of businesses, in fact. As more and more runners get into the action, there's naturally more and more demand for running shoes. And at prices of from $35 to $100 and more per pair, there are naturally second thoughts about throwing a used pair away.

As a consequence, according to a Wall Street Journal report, running shoe repair shops are springing up all over the country, more than a thousand opening in the last two years.

The circumstances in this case involve the re-orientation of the 17-year locust on the East Coast, a natural phenomenon which received quite a bit of attention when first reported earlier in the warm season.

Now comes further word on the locusts from New York's Hudson River valley, where there is a disconcerting report.

The valley is one of the nation's major cherry-growing regions. Thanks to the locusts, this year's ripening fruit is being ignored by the birds which ordinarily take a considerable bite out of the marketable crop. Instead of feeding in the orchards, the birds are gorging on locusts and a cherry harvest far larger than in recent years is anticipated.

It is a reminder of how intertwined earth's ecology is and how its natural functioning may better serve man's interests at times than his efforts to reshape it to his supposed needs. The instinctive reaction to the locust is that it is a destructive pest to be warred against.

A reaction currently not shared by Hudson valley cherry growers, however. If warned in the future of a plague of this type on their houses, they would likely rush to open the doors in welcome.

CIA Spies In U.N. Missions?

Hi Ho, Hi Ho... Off To State They Go

PORT ORANGE — Tracy Walker struck out 17 and limited Port Orange to just one hit Saturday night as the Sanford Junior League All-Stars posted a 6-0 victory and won the Florida Junior Major League District IV championship for the third consecutive year.

Sanford will travel to West Palm Beach for the eight-team state tournament, which opens Aug. 6. Sanford's first opponent in the double-elimination tournament will be Key West.

Walker came within one out of recording a no-hitter, but Port Orange's Andy Thomas blooped a single into left field with two outs in the last inning for the only hit of Walker.

There were only three base runners for Port Orange. Walker gave up only six walks in the first with one out, and then proceeded to strike out the next eight batters he faced.

All six Sanford runs came in the bottom of the first when Sanford collected half of its 12 hits, including four extra-base safeties.

Mike Rotundo doubled with one out in the first, the first of six consecutive Sanford hits. He scored when Brent Von Herbulis doubled, and Walker made it 2-0 with a triple. Hogan scored Walker with an infield hit, double second and scored on a stroke by Alton Davis. Lawrence Wynm singled to score Davis.

Walker had a triple and single Saturday night to boost his tournament batting average to .600.

Fleischmann was safe on an infield error.

Von Herbulis blasted two doubles and a single and Wynm added three singles to pace Sanford at the plate. Wynm finished the tournament with a .714 batting average, while Von Herbulis hit at a .625 clip during the tourney.

The Sanford pitching staff, as a whole, finished the tournament with 41 strikeouts in 41 innings and a 0.67 E.R.A.

Pirates On Move, Now One-Half Out

By United Press International When last year's late-season rush for the National League East crown came up short, Pittsburgh Manager Chuck Tanner decided to test a new strategy for this season — take first place early and let the rest of the division chase his Pirates.

Well, the Bucs have waited until the All-Star break and still find themselves trailing the first-place Montreal Expos, who split a double-header with the San Francisco Giants Sunday, losing the opener 6-0 before winning the nightcap 15-5.

Pittsburgh, meanwhile, was battling the element and the Atlanta Braves. After five hours of rain delays, the Pirates slouched to a 5-4, 3-2 sweep to move within a half game of Montreal.

"It could well be a four-team race down to the wire," said Expos Manager Dick Williams.

The only advantage we have is playing the final series of the season against Philadelphia at home. I hope we're a part of it by then. We have good balance so we should be there.

Ellis Valentine had three hits, including a homer, and scored three runs to lead the Expos in their nightcap romp. Bill North drove in three runs with a

Altamonte At Inverness

INVERNESS — Altamonte Springs Little League major league all-stars head for Inverness this afternoon for a game tonight against an unknown opponent.

"We play at 7:30, but that's all I know," said Russ Whittington, Altamonte's manager. "We don't know who we're playing the final series of the season against Philadelphia at home. I hope we're a part of it by then. We have good balance so we should be there."

John Luzzi, third baseman for Altamonte Springs Little League's 13-year-old all-stars, takes a throw at third base. Altamonte won the finals of the district tournament Saturday, 8-2, over Eustis, and is in Homestead, competing in the regional tourney. The pairings were to be drawn this morning.

Don Hood, a pro-game replacement for Caffrey Hunter who returned to North Carolina after his father's death, allowed three hits before leaving after 4 1/3 innings with cramps in his left calf. Jim Kaat, 21, allowed only one baserunner in the rest of the way. Thurman Munson of the Orioles 4, 6-1.

Eddie Murray cracked a tie-breaking homer to trigger a three-run eighth and Steve Stone, 7-7, tossed a seven-hitter. Murray, hitting .419 over the last 12 games, hit his 13th homer to lead off the eighth and hand Rick Langford his 11th loss in 16 decisions. Oakland's Dave Reivers hit his seventh homer.

Bartkowski Not Making Mistake Twice

pen. Since the Falcons will be dropping one of the other three quarterbacks — either Jones, 31-year-old Hank Hunter, who didn't play last season, or rookie Mike Morosi out of California-Davis — Bartkowski knows that he can't afford to lay down on the job. "I've got to take the attitude that my position as the No. 1 quarterback has to be protected," said Bartkowski. "I'm going to keep proving that I'm the man for the job. There's always the chance that what happened last year could happen again. "I feel that I have an entirely different attitude than I had last summer," he said. "I'm going to do whatever is necessary to avoid playing like I did a year ago. I'm going to take the approach that I can't afford any off days."

The Falcons gave up all-pro offensive tackle George Kuzin in 1975 for the draft. Kuzin was drafted by the Oakland Raiders in 1975 for the draft. Kuzin was drafted by the Oakland Raiders in 1975 for the draft.

Bartkowski was named Rookie of the Year after suffering from various injuries last season, but he has played three games with an elbow injury but then missed the last nine games of '78 because of one knee injury and the first seven games of '79 because of another.

"I had the idea that I was automatically the starter when I was drafted, but I never I was healthy so never benched last year really caught me by surprise," said Bartkowski. "But I may have been one of the best players that happened to me. The time on the bench gave me a chance to reflect, to do some soul-searching. It made me realize that my natural ability wouldn't mean much if I didn't learn how to use it."

J.V. Cain, 28, Dies

ST. CHARLES, Mo. (UPI) — St. Louis Cardinals owner William Bidwell said he was "shocked beyond description" at the sudden death of the NFL's highly-regarded tight end J.V. Cain, who collapsed and died of a cardiac arrest during team workouts Sunday at his 28th birthday.

The team early today flew a chartered jet to Houston to pick up Mrs. Cain. On board were team manager and close friend Charlie Davis, and trainer Stan West.

Cain, a five-year veteran whom Bidwell called a "superb athlete," died at 10:15 p.m. CDT at St. Joseph Hospital following his collapse at 8:30 p.m.

Head trainer Bud Wilkinson planned much of this season's hopes on Cain. Cain had played an important offensive role with the Cardinals before his injury during training last season, and the team had hoped he'd help improve the Cardinals from their 6-10 record last year.

"I had the idea that I was automatically the starter when I was drafted, but I never I was healthy so never benched last year really caught me by surprise," said Bartkowski. "But I may have been one of the best players that happened to me. The time on the bench gave me a chance to reflect, to do some soul-searching. It made me realize that my natural ability wouldn't mean much if I didn't learn how to use it."

Eagles Off, Back Today

PHILADELPHIA (UPI) — The Philadelphia Eagles Sunday took a part of the day off, practicing only in the afternoon while two running backs looked on from the sidelines with minor injuries.

"He did an excellent job of blocking," Vermeil said. "You can't do any better, and he did an improved job of running, too."

Head coach Bud Wilkinson planned much of this season's hopes on Cain. Cain had played an important offensive role with the Cardinals before his injury during training last season, and the team had hoped he'd help improve the Cardinals from their 6-10 record last year.

Bartkowski was named Rookie of the Year after suffering from various injuries last season, but he has played three games with an elbow injury but then missed the last nine games of '78 because of one knee injury and the first seven games of '79 because of another.

"I had the idea that I was automatically the starter when I was drafted, but I never I was healthy so never benched last year really caught me by surprise," said Bartkowski. "But I may have been one of the best players that happened to me. The time on the bench gave me a chance to reflect, to do some soul-searching. It made me realize that my natural ability wouldn't mean much if I didn't learn how to use it."

Bartkowski enjoyed the '78 season when, with an uncanny knack for last-second heroics, he led the Falcons to a 9-7 record and into the NFL playoffs for the first time in their 12-year history.

Cain broke in as a first-round draft pick of the Cardinals in 1974, catching 11 passes for 152 yards and one touchdown. He replaced Jackie Smith — one of the greatest tight ends in club history — as a starter in 1975.

FLORIDA IN BRIEF

Askew Rejects Offer Of Cabinet-Level Job

TALLAHASSEE, Fla. (UPI) — President Carter apparently had former Gov. Reubin Askew in mind for a Cabinet job when he shook up his administrative team last week. Carter has tried several times in the past three years to lure Askew to Washington. Last Wednesday, a high administration official offered the ex-governor a cabinet-level job. As before, Askew, now a Miami attorney, turned it down because of his "financial circumstances."

Station Sets Gasohol Sale

TALLAHASSEE, Fla. (UPI) — F.J. Black, owner of a Tallahassee self-service gasoline station, plans this week to be the first to offer gasohol to Florida motorists. Florida has the raw material to produce gasohol, which has found wide favor in the Midwest, but lacks the facilities. But only a few small plants around the state produce the necessary alcohol and none of them are making it in sufficient quantities to make gasohol more than an experiment. "It's technically feasible to do it, that's for sure," says Jim Kesterson, a University of Florida researcher at the Citrus Experimental Station in Lake Alfred.

Parents Charged In Escape

FORT LAUDERDALE, Fla. (UPI) — The 25-year-old stepmother of one of four men who escaped from the Broward County Jail a week ago was being held in jail in lieu of $250,000 bond today, charged with aiding in the escape. Debra Daniel of Hollywood was arrested at a Hollywood lounge at 3:15 a.m. Sunday. She is charged with four counts of aiding and abetting the escape of four men July 15. Her husband, Jimmy Daniel Sr., was also charged last week with helping in the escape. He and his son, Jimmy Daniel Jr., who was awaiting trial on murder charges when he escaped, are being held in the county jail. The elder Daniel and his wife are accused of cutting into the jail with acetone torches last weekend. The four inmates escaped by crawling through an air-conditioning duct and down an unguarded stairway. Two of the escapees were picked up in Pompano Beach 12 hours later. Daniel and a fourth fugitive were captured in the Naples area last Tuesday.

Dental Experts To Testify For Bundy

MIAMI (UPI) — The Theodore Bundy defense team presents its final witnesses today to complete a strategy aimed at making a jury believe someone else could have strangled two Florida State University coeds and inflicted savage beatings on three others 18 months ago. Two more dental experts were expected to be called this afternoon. Circuit Judge Edward Cowart scheduled a morning conference in chambers with attorneys for both sides concerning his final charge to the jury. Defense lawyers have been concentrating heavily on the major piece of physical evidence the state has that positively links Bundy to the crime — the bite marks left on the buttock of Lisa Levy. She was strangled along with Margaret Bowman as they slept Jan. 15, 1978 in the Chi Omega sorority house in Tallahassee. The first-degree murder case, transferred from Tallahassee because of pre-trial publicity there, is now entering its fifth week and should go to the seven-man, five-woman jury late Tuesday or early Wednesday after closing arguments. Bundy has ordered appeals specialist Margaret Good to present the defense Sunday, a move that saw Miami attorney Robert Haggard quit the defense team Saturday. Miss Good, a staunch death penalty opponent, is one of four lawyers provided by the Tallahassee Public Defenders Office for Bundy. Haggard had been chosen by a vote of the defense team to make closing arguments. That so angered Bundy that he seized control of his defense Saturday with the permission of Cowart. Bundy has made no other changes, however, and will not question any of the witnesses.

Services Today For Mrs. Buchalter

Marilyn Klopman Buchalter, wife of Sentinel Star associate sports editor Bill Buchalter, was buried this morning in the Temple Israel Cemetery in West Orlando. An Altamonte Springs resident, Mrs. Buchalter was 31 and died Saturday after complications developed late last week following surgery. Other survivors include 6-year-old daughter Lealey Marie, 3-year-old son Charles Elliott, parents Benjamin and Rose Klopman of Orlando, and sister Harriette Watkins of Orlando.

AREA DEATH

HOWARD CLEGG
Howard W. Clegg, 62, of 210 Palm Place Sanford died Saturday morning at Florida Hospital, Orlando. He has lived in Sanford for the past three years. Born in Pittsburgh, Pa., he was a member of the Rolling Hills Moravian Church, Longwood.

He is survived by his wife, Mrs. Margaret Clegg, Sanford; daughter Mrs. Kathleen Hawkins, Sanford; three sons, Donald of Orlando, Edward of Casselberry and Howard of Houston Texas; 11 grandchildren; sister, Mrs. Eleanor Prokka, Higgertown Md.; brother, Ward Clegg, Pittsburgh, Pa. Brison Funeral Home-PA is in charge of arrangements.

Funeral Notice

CLEGG, HOWARD W. — Funeral services for Howard W. Clegg, 62, of 210 Palm Place, Sanford, who died Saturday in Orlando will be at 4 p.m. today at Brison Funeral Home with Rev. Larry Manning officiating. Burial in Longwood Cemetery, Brison Funeral Home-PA in charge.

Monica Rowe, J.A. Clements Repeat Vows

Monica Jo Rowe and James Alan Clements exchanged wedding vows Saturday, at 7:30 p.m., at the Grace Methodist Church, Sanford, Rev. Fred Gardner performed the 7:30 p.m., candlelight and double ring ceremony. The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James V. Rowe, 102 Linda Lane, Sanford. The bridegroom is the son of the retired Sgt. Maj. and Mrs. James W. Clements of McAlpine. Given in marriage by her father, the bride chose for her vows a formal gown of ivory Qiana designed with a high neckline, fitted bodice and a watusu chapel-length train. The gown and train were lavishly embellished with veen lace traced with silk pearls. A venise lace camelot cap secured her veil of imported illusion. She carried a formal Edwardian bridal bouquet of ivory tiana duchess roses, baby's breath and English ivy showered with long ivory streamers. Mrs. Edward Douglas, aunt of the bride, was the maid of honor. She wore a formal coral colored Qiana gown fashioned with a double shawl chiffon capelet collar edged with bands of cotton venise lace and chiffon ties. She carried a French hand bouquet of sonia roses, muted shades of miniature coral carnations and baby's breath with natural foliage and long matching ribbon streamers. Bridesmaids were Mrs. Janet Clements, sister of the bridegroom, Mrs. Danny Boyd and Miss Georgia Gay Hunt. Their gowns and flowers were identical to the honor attendant's. Junior bridesmaids were Miss Andrea Clements, niece of the bridegroom, and Miss Gayle Douglas, cousin of the bride. Their gowns were of coral floral print organza and they carried miniature bouquets of sonia roses and baby's breath.

John Whigham served the bridegroom as best man. Groomsmen were Pat Howard, Terry Rawls, Teddy Miller, Steve Parrish and Tom Rowe, brother of the bride. Following a reception given by the bride's parents at Mayfair Country Club, the newlyweds departed for a beach wedding trip. They will make their home in Sanford where both are employed with Jim Rowe Post Control.

Mom Feels A Failure Over Way Two Sons Turned Out

DEAR ABBY: I am the mother of nine boys. Their father is dead. Rudy, 23, is my oldest. He married Agnes, a 15-year-old girl because she said he got her pregnant. Their baby is now and is the picture of the fellow Agnes went with before Rudy married her.

Dear Abby

Their marriage is on the rocks because she is pregnant by a sailor she met when she went to visit her mother in Seattle. Rudy won't take her back because he's in love with a 21-year-old girl who has two babies and is expecting a third by a fellow who isn't her husband although she's still married.

Rudy gets unemployment. He runs all night and lies around my house all day. He acts real crazy. I never know if he's on drugs or just drunk. All right, so much for Rudy.

Jody is my 20-year-old. He got a 17-year-old girl pregnant but won't marry her because he says he's not ready to settle down yet.

Abby, I've been a church-going Christian woman and a good mother and I don't know how I could have turned out kids like these. If they hang around the younger boys, they will be a mess, too. Please help me.

DEAR MOTHER: Don't feel guilty. If you've been a good mother, you haven't failed, your kids have. Let the older boys know they can't lie around your house all day. Your problems are too heavy to carry alone. You need to talk to an understanding, supportive person. Your clergyman is ready when you are.

DEAR ABBY: When would you say a person has reached middle age?

PORTY AND CURIOUS DEAR FORTY: When he (or she) climbs out of the bathtub and is glad to find the full-length mirror all steamed up!

DEAR ABBY: I have a lazy teenage daughter who has to be reminded over and over again to write thank-you notes for gifts she receives at Christmas, her birthday and, more recently, for her high-school graduation. Now she has a new cop-out. She thanks people for their gifts by telephone. Her grandparents live 1,500 miles away and so do most of her aunts and uncles, so the calls aren't exactly free. She says she will pay for the calls herself, but so far I haven't seen a penny.

Her father is furious when she told us she was planning to thank everyone for her graduation gifts by phone, but we both agreed it would be better than not thanking them at all.

Daughter argues that a phone call is much more personal and gives her a chance to ask how they are and to tell them what she is doing, how the family is, etc.

Do you think a telephoned thanks is proper?

MOTHER OF A TEEN DEAR MOTHER: A written thanks is better. But a phone call is better than no thanks at all.

DEAR ABBY: I raised four children, and when the last one got married I thought, that at last, Dad and I could take it easy.

No such luck. In fact, it's worse than ever. The two married girls bring me their husbands shirts to do up, and my new daughter-in-law brings me ALL her laundry.

Dad and I can't go anywhere to fish on weekends because we always have a couple of our five grandchildren with us.

This place is getting to be more like a motel, with meals and laundry service every day. How can I drop a hint broad enough to get out from under this load?

TIED IN TACOMA DEAR TIED: A "hint"? That's like using a BB gun when you need a cannon. Call a summit meeting and tell your kids the kitchen is closed and so is the laundry and free babysitting service. Do it now, while there is still time to enjoy yourselves, or you'll die in harness.

DEAR ABBY: Perhaps you will put this letter in your own words and tell my husband that he needs help. He won't listen to me.

He is 60 pounds overweight and, to make matters worse, a diabetic. He has a wonderful family who loves him very much. Whenever one of us reminds him that he needs to lose weight, he says, "So if I die, you will be left well-off."

Please, please, help us to help him. He is a dear and wonderful person. I want him around to see his grandchildren grow up, and he won't be around if he doesn't take better care of himself.

HIS WIFE DEAR WIFE: An obese person knows he needs to lose weight, and being constantly reminded of it will only make him feel guilty—which will make him feel rotten, which will cause him to eat to feel better.

If he chooses to dig his own grave with his fork, no one can stop him. But if he really wants to help himself, let him write to me and I'll tell him what to do.

Eliminating Obesity, Controlling Calories

Dr. Lamb
DEAR DR. LAMB — I've been wondering about something and maybe you can shed some light on it. Our government is so concerned about our health, warning us about cigarettes and artificial sweeteners, food dyes and so forth. Why isn't something said about those vegetable oils, coconut and palm oils that are so high in saturated fat?

My husband is on a low-cholesterol diet and I have been using many of these products for many years before I became aware of the fact that they are harmful. I'll be many other people who are doing the same thing unknowingly. It's almost unbelievable how many so-called low-fat foods contain some of these harmful ingredients.

DEAR READER — One problem has been the difference of opinion about these dietary constituents are. At the present time, there's almost unanimous agreement among heart specialists and various scientists that the problems of fatty-cholesterol deposits in the arteries that one should limit saturated fat intake. Now that's not the same thing as cholesterol. Actually, cholesterol only occurs in animal products, such as meat, milk and milk products.

It's always been my position that regardless of any difference in opinion about saturated fat in the diet, the buyer has a right to know what he's buying and that includes knowing how much saturated fat is in the food you purchase.

You touched on an important point by referring to these as vegetable oils. For years commercial interests have been permitted to simply record in the ingredients list "vegetable oil" which often is a synonym for coconut oil. One of the most important positive attitude assures your success.

Sanford Hospital Officials Respond Today 6 Groups Express Interest In Running SMH

Seminole Memorial Hospital Administrator Charles Bentley and several hospital board members today take their case for continued operation of the facility to the board of county commissioners.

Bob Scott, vice-president of Adventist Health Systems Corporation and an officer of Florida Hospital, had been given time before the commissioners during a work session Monday to outline the advantages of a merger of SMH with Florida Hospital in Altamonte Springs.

The commissioners Monday heard one formal proposal and five informal presentations by competing hospital groups interested in buying or leasing the hospital if the commissioners vote to relinquish control of the 25-year-old county-owned Sanford facility.

Wayne Deschambeau, of Orlando Regional Medical Center, said his organization was represented at the meeting only for informative purposes. He did not indicate whether or not ORMC is interested in operating or purchasing SMH. French termed the presentations "informative," but said the commissioners were a long way from making a choice on the hospital's future.

Moore: Let Residents Vote On Funding Revitalization

If the city of Sanford pledges to do its share in the revitalization of the downtown area of the community, a tax increase may be the only way to pay for it, Mayor Lee P. Moore told the city commission Monday night.

City Commissioner Julian Stenstrom agreed the city commission before it considers funding for the revitalization of the downtown area must balance its budget. After one budget hearing session, the commissioners are nearly $200,000 short of a balanced budget.

City commissioners were told last week $80,000 is needed from the people's approval of the tax increase would be a necessity, he said.

Will Sanford Pay $4,000 Fine For Pesticide Use?

The Sanford City Commission has left unresolved the question of paying a reduced fine of $4,000 to the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) for the improper use of a pesticide a year ago.

EPA first notified the city that a $5,000 fine would be levied, but after negotiations with City Attorney Vernon Mize the fine was reduced to $4,000.

The spraying took place on a ditch along Scott Avenue in June, 1978.

according to William Gossett, president. It is projected that the bank will open its doors to the public by late February or early March, 1980, he said.

Prosecutor Says Bite Mark Enough To Convict Bundy

MIAMI (UPI) — The prosecutor said in closing arguments today that bite marks found on the body of one of the victims was evidence enough to convict Theodore Bundy of the 1978 slayings of two Florida State University coeds.

Nita Jane Neary had positively identified Bundy as the man she saw running from the Chi Omega sorority house in Tallahassee moments before she was killed.

Assistant State Attorney Dan McKeever admitted early in the trial the prosecution's case is as circumstantial as circumstantial can be except for Nita Neary's eyewitness testimony.

McKeever said that in their opinion only Bundy could have made the bite marks found on Lisa Levy.
