

GERMANY HARD RUN NEEDS MORE SOLDIERS PRISONERS LOOK BAD

FORLORN HOPE ATTEMPTING TO HOLD BACK ALLIES

No news is good news and this applies to warfare as well as civil life. Therefore when no news could get out of Germany many of the students of conditions accepted this as an indication that Germany was not faring well and the rigid censorship meant that the news if it leaked out would tell of the real conditions. Now that so many German prisoners are being taken the real truth about Germany is being revealed.

Germany is battling with unparalleled desperation to hold her lines in Flanders against the combined Anglo-French attack. Notwithstanding the heavy handicap the bad weather has imposed, the entente forces have made good their most important gains and apparently are only awaiting clearing conditions to blast their way into the Teutonic front.

Boasts of successful resistance to the entente thrust that have come from the Berlin war office were based as usual on the unwarranted assumption that an attempt had been made to break through and upon the fact that at one or two points the German reaction resulted in some far advanced forces of the allies being pushed back.

Today, however, comes the announcement from London that despite the hampering rainfall the British have negated the results of one of the German counter thrusts, completely re-establishing their line in the neighborhood of the Roulers-Ypres railway as the outcome of a night attack.

While critics may regard with some misgivings the loss upon the bad weather by official reports that indicate a hold up of the allied advance, military observers at the front apparently are in entire agreement of the seriousness of this handicap.

The storm has prevented observation entailing inactivity upon the big guns relied upon to blast a path for the advancing infantry. To the low visibility also has been attributed such success as the Germans were able to gain in their counter attacks, poor sighting conditions preventing the entente gunners from massing their fire effectively to break up the enemy concentrations.

Despite the fighting in Flanders, the Germans are continuing their pronounced activity on the French front. Paris reports two attacks on the French lines east and southeast of Rheims and assaults in the Avocourt wood sector in the Verdun region and in the Apremont forest southeast of St. Mihiel. All were fruitless.

Some important movement evidently is under way on the Russian northern front which has been holding entirely firm while the southern end of the line was falling back. Now, however, the Russians are reported to have evacuated the Uskull bridgehead 15 miles southeast of Riga, the Germans marching into the evacuated positions. The exact significance of this development is yet to be revealed.

Prussians, Bavarians and Saxons, all well the total captured, and no more dejected appearing men have been seen in British prisoner stations since the beginning of the war. Particularly noticeable was the scarcity of veteran non-commissioned officers.

KILLED IN AUTO ACCIDENT

Daughter of Mrs. Stevens of This City Dies in Defiance, Ohio
The following is an account of the auto accident in which Mrs. Stevens of this city was killed. She was a visitor to this city and had a home in Daytona. The following is from the Defiance Crescent-News:

One of the most sad and distressing accidents in the history of the city occurred Friday night at about eleven o'clock on the road between Waterville and Napoleon, when en route home to Defiance, but the overturning of the car in which they were riding, Mrs. C. E. Chenevert of this city, and Mrs. Edwin Bullock of Chicago, nee Miss D'Nelle Wilhelm, daughter of Mrs. J. R. Wilhelm met instant death, while the other six members of the party met with injuries as follows:

Capt. and Mrs. Walter Wilhelm of Eddystone, Pa., who are visiting Capt. Wilhelm's mother, Mrs. J. R. Wilhelm on Holgate avenue, both slight injuries.

Mrs. J. R. Wilhelm bruised about the thigh.

C. E. Chenevert, broken collar bone, injury to ankle, knee, hand and face.

Miss Lillian Chenevert, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C. E. Chenevert, slight injury to face and hand.

Carl Wilhelm of New York who is visiting his mother, Mrs. J. R. Wilhelm, cut on right knee and foot, sprain and contusion of back and fracture.

Car Turned Turtle
The party had accompanied Mrs. Dwight Peterson and Mrs. Lockman of Toledo, who had addressed a Red Cross meeting in this city in the afternoon, as far as Waterville and had enjoyed a dinner supper at Waterville. Returning home between Waterville and Napoleon the car struck a rut in the road and even though traveling at low speed the heavy weight of the car caused it to slide and turn turtle. Mrs. C. E. Chenevert and Mrs. Bullock were in the folding seats and both met instant death.

Capt. Walter Wilhelm was driving the car and being in the driver's seat caused him and his wife to receive the slightest injuries of the party.

People in the nearby farm houses were summoned and a telephone message sent into Napoleon. The Voakes of Napoleon and others with physicians went out and gave what aid they could. Mrs. J. R. Wilhelm was unconscious and was taken to Napoleon where she remained until the morning when she was brought to her home here.

The death of Mrs. C. E. Chenevert will work a hardship on many civic circles of Defiance. She was especially active in the work of the Red Cross, the Good Cheer Club, and all charitable and philanthropic movements for the relief of the distressed. She was a member of the public library board and active in the social life of the city.

Mrs. Chenevert was about 45 years of age and is survived by her husband, daughter Lillian, son Jack, and mother, Mrs. Elma G. Stevens of Sanford, Fla. She was a woman beloved by all who knew her.

LAWS PUBLISHED TUESDAY

Herald Will Go To Every Registered Voter in County on That Date.

Advertisers are overlooking a good bet if they do not take space in Tuesday's Herald, as the paper will go to every registered voter in Seminole county on that date.

Tuesday's Herald will contain a copy of all the laws passed by the last legislature and according to law this edition must go to every voter in the county, that is every voter whose name was on the registration list as published last spring.

While Tuesday's Herald will not be a special edition in every sense of the word it will be a paper that will be read closely and kept in the home for a file of the new laws.

There will be many special sales by the merchants for next week and this edition will contain much of interest to the readers and aside from the regular advertising patronage will have special drives for the summer trade.

Remember the date, Tuesday, August 6th and get your copy in Monday at the latest. This is the chance to bring the people to Sanford and this is the time to rejuvenate trade and liven up your business.

Col. Thos. E. Wilson now has charge of the Bishop block of this city, which was formerly in the hands of the Thatcher Realty Co.

Mrs. A. D. Smith and daughters, Charlotte and Irma, with Mrs. C. A. Smith left on Wednesday for a month's sojourn at Daytona Beach.

PATRIOTIC MEETING TONIGHT

BOOKS CONTRIBUTED TODAY COLLECTED AT WOMAN'S CLUB

Sanford is waking up on the war situation and several patriotic affairs are planned for the next few days. Tuesday the soldier boys were remembered and tonight at the Woman's Club the books for the soldiers will be collected and the patriotic program enjoyed.

Today the young ladies were busy as bees collecting the books and magazines for the soldiers in the field and they had great success being kept busy the greater part of the morning gathering up the books and taking them to the library building.

This is one of the most important parts to be played by the ladies and men of this city. It has been proven beyond any doubt that good reading matter in the camps is not only greatly relished by the soldiers but it is a great education and relaxation in many ways and is requested by the higher military authorities in all the armies now in the field.

The good people of Sanford recognizing this fact conceived of the idea of getting all the books and magazines in this city and sending them to the front for the armies in this country and in France and sending them now in order that they would be there in good time.

Today is the day and tonight the books will be gathered together in the Woman's Club with a big meeting that should stir up our patriotism and keep in our minds and hearts the fact that we are at war and must look after the comfort and convenience of our boys.

Truck for Company C

With the time for the closing of the fund almost at hand the splendid Board of Trade committee, consisting of Major B. C. Abernethy, D. R. Ellerbo, William Beardall, Walter Essington, Leon B. Ford and Leroy H. Giles still needs $144 to provide for the five days camp for Company C at the fair grounds and for the purpose of a truck for the company. A total of $547 has thus far been raised by the splendid work of the committee. It is expected that a neat sum will be raised at the dance at the Country Club Thursday night. The Boy Scouts will take up a collection Saturday night. Joe Petris of Oakland and W. G. Talton of Apopka this morning agreed to raise some toward the fund in their respective communities.

Company C desires the camp and the truck and the committee holds that it is up to the public to provide what the company desires. The men have given freely of themselves for their country and the committee stresses the fact that the least those remaining behind can do is to assist in the raising of the fund of $700.—Reporter-Star.

Ladies of the Maccabees

The regular meeting of the Ladies of the Maccabees will be held at the Woman's Club Monday evening at 7:30. Full attendance desired.

Mrs. Dossey of Lithia is visiting her son, Mr. J. Dossey of this city.

SEMINOLE'S CONTINGENT COMPANY C

GIVEN A ROUSING SEND OFF IN PARK TUESDAY NIGHT

Sanford gave the soldier boys a good send off last Tuesday night and while the boys were too bashful to be present in numbers they knew that Sanford was with them and will be with them after they get into active service. Capt. Preston Ayres and First Lieutenant William Beardall of Company C, Orlando and twenty-two men were here as the guests of the Board of Trade and Home Guards and at eight o'clock the Sanford Band started rendering one of their elegant concerts in the band stand where the big crowd soon gathered.

Dr. George Hyman acted in the capacity of chairman and after reading the roll of honor as published in The Herald gave a word or two about all the boys who are at the front or intend going and concluded with the boys who are joining the Orlando company. Hon. Forrest Lake, Capt. Herring and R. J. Holly were called upon for a few remarks and responded with words of praise for the boys and comfort for their parents and relatives.

Capt. Ayres and Lieut. Beardall were called upon and assured the Sanford people of their willingness to look after the interests of the men and especially of the Sanford contingent as they appreciate the spirit that Sanford has shown toward the Orlando company.

Capt. Ayres then lined up his men and gave a fine exhibition drill in the park and while the space was small and conditions anything but ideal the men showed the effects of service on the border and intensive training.

Company C will camp at the Orange county fair grounds until Sunday when they will be mustered into national service and go to Black Point for a few weeks, afterwards going to Mason for training.

Company C is anxious to have a truck for the camp as it is a great convenience to the men and saves them money in many ways. Orlando is raising and has raised a large sum for this truck and for the camp at the fair grounds and Hon. Forrest Lake of this city will take subscriptions for the truck here.

If anyone wishes to donate for this worthy cause see Mr. Lake.

"Is Your Boy Going?"

A writer in the August Woman's Home Companion says:

"Close to me lives a man whose interests have been separated from mine by more than a mere ivy-grown stone fence—to be exact, by several hundred thousand dollars. The other day he leaned over the fence and inquired:

"Your boy going?"
"Yes."

"Mind told. Had a notion he didn't want to wait for conscription. By the way, those eggplants of yours are not coming on very well. May I send my man over with some fertilizer that has helped ours?"

"The fence is still there—but not the barrier. Our boys and our country leveled it."

"There's bound to be a lot of such leveling from this time on. Some of Sympathy for St. Cloud

All Florida will join in sentiments of regret to the people of St. Cloud because of the disastrous fire which swept a large portion of that town last Saturday. Almost a score of business houses were destroyed, entailing a loss of about $100,000 with only $12,000 insurance. Of course, St. Cloud will be rebuilt and it is also to be taken for granted that this time the buildings will be of concrete or other fireproof material. That seems to be the history of so many new towns—the hurried construction of wooden buildings to meet the rapidly growing demands of business and after a period of a few years a visit from the fire fiend who teaches the lesson that it is well to build permanently and substantially. But Saturday's fire will undoubtedly mean a greater and better St. Cloud.—St. Augustine Record.

Labor Leader Haned

Butte, Mont., Aug. 1.—Frank Little, a member of the executive committee of the Industrial Workers of the World and labor trouble leader in Arizona was taken from his house by masked men and hanged to a trestle. He was a forceful speaker and is understood to have had the confidence of William D. Haywood. On his body was a note which read, "First and last warning; others take notice."

Tuesday Open Day

Tuesday, August 7th will be an open day with the busy workers for the Red Cross, at which time the public are cordially invited to call at the Elks Club and inspect the work that is being done by the Seminole Branch, which includes Geneva, Chuluota and the outlying districts of Sanford. One hundred pieces of work, hospital supplies, which have been completed and are ready for shipment can be seen at any hour on Tuesday from nine until five. Mrs. Deane Turner, vice president and Mrs. Henry McLaughlin, chairman of the cutting committee, whose committee cuts out all garments being made by the branch and her committee, with other members of the Red Cross will be on hand to give information. Every woman in Sanford who is at all interested in what the Red Cross is doing is most cordially invited. Forty-eight comfort kits complete, the gift of Chuluota and Geneva, in which the Daughters of Wesley have already placed a Testament are ready for shipment and will be of interest to inspect. Dr. Neal has wired headquarters for permission to present these to our own Seminole county boys who have entered various branches of the service. It is probable that these very garments that are being cut and made by the women of Seminole county may be used by Seminole boys too.

Wanted—Ladies to Sew

As stated before, there will be an all day sewing bee at the Elks Club every Tuesday until further notice. Not only are members of the Red Cross urged to give a little time, an hour, two hours, half a day or the whole day, but ANY WOMAN in Sanford who wants to do her "bit" is asked to cooperate and invited to meet at headquarters on Tuesday and help. Competent instructors from the cutting committee will instruct and give directions. Anyone who desires to give the entire day can bring their lunch. You are asked to bring one thimble, scissors and needles. If there are still others who cannot leave home, that are willing to assist, application for work can be made to Mrs. R. A. Terheun, distributing committee. The plans that are in progress will serve the best interests of the local branch and the men at the front.

Remember that Tuesday, Aug. 7th will be an open day for inspection and remember too that your presence will encourage the few loyal, faithful women who are at work.

Another Patriotic Family

Sanford is there with the patriotism all the time. We have another Sanford family now with three sons in service—the Chittenden family—with Roy in the Marines, Ned in the Signal Corps and Joe in Company C, F. N. G. This paper mentioned the Murrell family last week with three sons also in the service. And the Beardall family that formerly resided here but are now of Orlando has the distinction of having three sons all of them first lieutenants, Jack in the navy, Hal in the medical corps and William in Company C, F. N. G.

EXEMPTION BOARD TO MEET WEDNESDAY, THURSDAY AND FRIDAY THE DRAFT PUT IN FORCE

The exemption board for Seminole county meets next Wednesday, Thursday and Friday at the court house when all those who have been drafted will be called before the board for exemptions, examinations, etc. You can tell when you come by looking at the list as published in the last issue of The Sanford Herald and you will be called thusly:

The first 67 men will be called on Wednesday, the second 67 will be called Thursday and the balance of the 202 will be called on Friday. There is nothing for the drafted men to do but come to the court house on those days and pass inspection of the board. If you have a right to exemption you will be excused from serving, if you have any physical disabilities you will be excused. If you have no exemptions you will be called to serve the colors and sufficient time will be given you to put your affairs in shape and get ready for the first training camps.

This is the official call and if you do not understand the draft plan see the local board at the court house, consisting of Clerk of the Circuit Court E. A. Douglass, Sheriff Brady and Dr. Denton. But remember the days and dates and be there.

Among The Theatres

"Personality Secret of Success.
 What is the secret of success of the motion picture actress?
 "Screen personality," is the answer of Mollie King, Pathe Star who is featured in "Mystery of the Double Cross," a mystery serial based on Gilson Willer's original story. The third episode is to be shown at the Lyric Theatre Saturday.

Miss King is the youngest actress who has ever played the lead in an important serial. She was born in New York City on April 18th, 1898, and has been on the stage for seventeen of her eighteen years, making her first appearance at the age of eight months. She played in several Broadway successes and was a feature at the Winter Garden in New York after a two year tour of the Orpheum vaudeville circuit. She has been starred in several feature motion picture productions and is well known to audiences throughout the country.

In her long and wide experience, Miss King has played every possible role. Her first actual stage engagement after she ceased to be an infant in arms, was an important child part with Maxine Elliott in "Her Own Way." She was then seven years old. Her performance made a hit both in New York and in London. As a child actress she also played in "The Royal Family, and The Little Princess. She played with Denman Thompson in his vaudeville sketch, "Joshua Whitcomb."

Of a studious disposition, Miss King did not permit her stage work to interfere with her studies. She attended the New York public schools, graduating from Wadleigh High School. After her graduation she acted as an understudy for Elizabeth Brice in the musical comedy, "The Winsome Widow" playing the star's part on many occasions. She was then fifteen years old. Afterward she played a season in vaudeville with her sister, Nellie and filled an engagement with "The Miss King is a newcomer under the Pathe banner. Her first picture was "Kick In," a famous A. H. Wood's success, in which she starred with William Courtenay. Her work in that picture was so impressive that she was selected for the lead in the Double Cross serial, the most pretentious serial that Pathe has ever made.

"I am of the firm conviction that personality on the screen is the secret of success," said Miss King. "Some of the most beautiful girls I have ever known failed as motion picture actresses because they lacked that elusive charm that the motion picture audiences, perhaps unconsciously, demand in their favorites."
 "Some people seem to have an idea that it is lots of fun working for the motion pictures. It is, if you enjoy the work as I do. With me, my work is my play and I get very little chance for play of any other kind. In making 'Mystery of the Double Cross' we generally get up and go with the sun and worked until the sun went down. Then after dinner I was so tired that I usually retired. It was no uncommon thing to be called to the studio of an evening and to work until the early hours of the morning finishing some important scene. The studio atmosphere always thrilled and enthralled me and I am never so happy as I am at my work." Lyric Saturday.

POOR DEAR EMILY

By IZOLA FORESTER.

Emily Greeley had been a special care on the entire family's mind ever since she had passed thirty without wedding. Brothers and sisters fell in love and married to the Greeley household with customary regularity through Emily's girlhood and young womanhood. And Emily helped them start off in life with tact and cheerfulness. Though she had "chances," she cast them aside and hiked life's highway in a state of solitary enjoyment and freedom that left the family stung with helplessness.

Therefore it came as a shock when Emily announced that she had drawn as first prize in a puzzle contest a homestead grant out in Idaho.
 "I am sure it must be a very charming place to live in," said Emily, happily.
 "But you can't live out there alone," said Mr. Greeley, blandly. "Be reasonable, my dear Emily."
 "With a big dog and a revolver, I can live anywhere," replied Emily, calmly.

Just three weeks later, Emily took her departure, accompanied only by Tink, her big collie, and a brand new automobile. Four days later she stepped off the train at Arapahoe, Idaho, and sized up the aggregate of local talent visible to the naked eye. There were three carryalls, one buckboard and four bronchos. Her two trunks and four packing cases occupied the baggage truck. Five individuals sat there on.

"Is there such a thing as a hotel in this place?" she asked of the five, collectively. "Where is a person supposed to put up, and does anybody know where Ballyho gulch is?"
 There was a stir of interest among the five. Spike MacDougall rose and came toward the lady settler. He explained, courteously, that Arapahoe had no official place for housing transient guests, and that the gulch was a matter of 16 miles northwest, but that, if she wanted to, she could probably put up at the Kenton place, four miles out of town. Spike added, modestly, that he'd take her over in the carryall, and they could manage the two trunks on top of the carryall. The packing cases would have to come later.

Emily hardly heard him. Her attention was fixed on a man who came at a dead gallop down the wide, dusty street. He was tall, broad shouldered and heavy set. The newcomer and Emily looked each other over with calm, approving scrutiny before he sauntered into the telegraph office. She caught his deep baritone voice perfectly as he gave his message.
 "You can wire back East to those sons of guns that that land transfer up at the gulch has been declared illegal by the court here and it don't hold good. I am prepared to protect my rights on it in any and all ways. Sign it Scott King."

Emily's hazel eyes narrowed and she pursed her lips. As she climbed into the carryall beside Spike she asked casually who the young man was on the strawberry pinto.
 "That's King, former owner of the Caribou ranch up in the Ballyho gulch. He lost it one night in a poker game with some strangers, and they turned it over into cold cash with an Eastern syndicate running some advertising scheme."
 Three months later she rode up the mountain trail from the gulch, beside Scott King.

"It's no place for a woman to live alone," he said. "I've stood all this nonsense about your being a free and capable individual who can look after herself quite as long as I'm going to. You used me for a doorman ever since you came here, Emily, and took my land away from me."
 "I didn't take it away from you. I won it in a fair, legal contest," responded Emily calmly, "and I'm quite capable of taking care of myself. I think your timber men are blinding. If they try any midnight excursions over my line, cutting out my best trees, they'll get all that's coming to them."
 As they came into a clearing where a sudden vista of the mountainside opened up, Scott caught sight of a lifting wing of smoke.

"They've started it," he cried. "You ride back and rouse everybody on the road to Arapahoe. I'll get the Benson boys and fight this."
 "But I want to come, too," said Emily.
 "You do as I tell you," he retorted, shortly, and for the first time in her life Emily Greeley obeyed a man.
 It was a week later that the family received the announcement of Emily's marriage to one Scott King.
 "The ranch was his in the first place," she wrote. "He lost it and I won it. Now he's won me, so we're partners in a fair deal, and I'm not coming East this year."

TWENTY-FIVE PREACHERS IN JAIL.
 Some years ago, Devil's Lake, N. D., was reputed to be the worst town in the state. It was overrun with vice and crime. Then the prohibition law was enforced. At a recent meeting of the North Dakota Sunday school convention, 25 preachers were lodged in the county jail at Devil's Lake, hotel accommodations in the town being scarce and the jail being entirely without inmates.

THE PROPER SPIRIT.
 The less spirits we put into men during war time, whether they are in the army or navy, in the munition works or upon the farms, the more spirit we will get out of them for the particular tasks they are called upon to perform.

JACK'S AWAKENING

By PETER BARNUM.

The leather upholstered chairs on both sides of Dr. John Landtrith's comfortable office were filled; and very prosperous looking occupants they were, too. Doctor Landtrith was certainly busy and supremely successful.
 The door, marked private, opened quietly, and a small, unobtrusive young lady stepped out and closed it again. Margaret Crofton was a model of neatness from the top of her golden crowned head to the tips of her small shoes.

With a half bow she motioned to a gentleman on the opposite side of the room. "Mr. Cornelius, the doctor is ready for you now."
 But before he had risen, a richly-dressed young lady swept haughtily across the room and paused before the closed door. "Tell Doctor Landtrith that Miss Harcourt will see him immediately."

She bowed and entered the room, a moment later re-opening the door for Miss Harcourt to enter.
 A few days later Doctor Landtrith, unbenumbed from a close study of bacteria, got up from his chair. He moved quickly toward the window with the energy characteristic of him. He walked several times across the room, then pressed a button on his desk. Immediately the door was opened and Margaret came in. In her capacity as secretary she was ready for service at any moment.

"Miss Crofton," he said, "I am nervous. I can't concentrate on my work." She slipped out of the room and returned in a few minutes with a cooling drink.
 "If you drink this I think it will quiet your nerves. I believe that you are worrying about something. Perhaps I can help you."
 Having drunk the beverage and repeated himself in his chair, the doctor seemed a little less restless. He turned toward Margaret in a rather businesslike way.

"Miss Crofton, I am going to make an unusual request of you. I am in love. I wish to marry Eleanor Harcourt. Also, I am a very busy man. I feel that I cannot devote the time that Miss Harcourt would desire for a proposal. You perhaps know that she is a very proud as well as a very rich young lady. She would make a fitting wife for a man of my position."
 "Yes?" her cheeks paled slightly.
 "Now comes the part I wish you to play. I have found you very thoughtful and devoted to my service. I believe you are capable of this greatest service I have ever asked of you. Miss Crofton, I wish you to go to the home of Miss Harcourt and request her to become my wife."
 "Why, Doctor Landtrith."
 "Oh, I know it's queer, but I'm not original. Capt. Miles Standish did this proposing by proxy four hundred years ago, but I will profit by the old warrior's mistake. He failed because he sent a man. Miss Crofton, will you do this for me?"

 She smiled inscrutably at him. "I will. When shall I go?"
 "Now. It is late afternoon and she will surely be at home. I will have the car at the door for you in a few minutes."
 He rose and nervously began to pace the floor. But finding no relief he sat down and attempted to work. Suddenly he dropped his microscope on the floor with a crash of splintering glass.
 For one moment he hesitated, then tore the telephone receiver from its hook.

"Give me the Universal Tax company—quick," he commanded. "Hello. Is this the Universal? Send a car to Doctor Landtrith's, double quick. Extra pay for speed."
 Dropping the phone he seized his hat and ran down the steps. Almost immediately a car sped up and the doctor sprang in.
 "Going on. Drive up Kensington avenue. If you get to the Harcourt home in five minutes I'll give you twenty-five dollars."

The chauffeur knew his business. At breakneck speed they dashed up the crowded thoroughfare. At last they stopped suddenly before a large residence. The doctor jumped out and ran up the shaded walk. He pealed the bell violently, then pushed open the door in the face of the astonished butler. Shouting that worthy aside with more force than politeness, the intruder strode down the hall. He opened a door on the right and looked in. Seated on a sofa was Margaret alone.

"Thank God!" he cried hoarsely. "Then you've not seen her?"
 "Margaret, darling, do you think I could ever be happy with anyone but you? I know I don't deserve it, but won't you try to love me just a little but—won't you, dearest?"
 But she needed no second invitation to test the practicability of his shoulder as a rest for her head.

WHAT IS MUCK WORTH?

AS COMPARED WITH STABLE MANURE

We submit for comparison an analysis of a sample of our Muck made July 18th, 1917 by Pickard-Law Company's Laboratory, at Atlanta; and the analysis of Stable Manure as given by the Florida Department of Agriculture, in Quarterly Bulletin, dated April 1st, 1917; also the commercial value of the different elements according to July Market prices at Sanford:

One Ton MUCK
Ammonia	2.23 per cent—Worth at $7.25 per unit		$16.17
Phos. Acid	—No test yet made for this
Potash	.24 per cent—Worth at $7.00 per unit		1.68
Value as Fertilizer			$17.85
Plus Value as Humus
Estimated 2 cu. yds.			4.00
Total Field Value			$21.85
			$21.85

One Ton MANURE
Ammonia	0.60 per cent	Worth at $7.25 per unit	$4.35
Phos. Acid	0.25 per cent	Worth at $1.20 per unit	.30
Potash	0.50 per cent	Worth at $7.00 per unit	3.50
Value as Fertilizer			$8.15
Plus Value as Humus
estimated at 1-4 cu. yd.			.50
Total Field Value			$8.65
			$8.65

Field Value in favor of Muck per ton $13.20
 As Compared with Organic Forms of Commercial Fertilizers
 The Ammonia in High Grade Tankage and Dried Blood is now worth $7.25 per unit, and Potash is worth $7.00 per unit. On a basis of 1,000 pounds Dry matter to the cubic yard, an application of Muck one-half inch deep on an acre of ground, (67 cubic yards), will contain

74.33 Units of Ammonia, worth at $7.25	$539.92
8.00 Units of Potash, worth, at $7.00	56.00
Total value of Fertilizer in 67 cu. yds.	$595.92
Plus Value as Humus at $2.00 per cu. yd.	134.00
	$729.92

We hope each farmer will consult with us freely, frankly and early, as to the amount of Muck they can use, and see what terms can be made to assist them in applying it. We are willing to "do our bit," for we know beyond any question or doubt—by practical experience and observation—that if used liberally, Muck will give the following or better results, over a period of several years:

1. Increases yield from 10 per cent to 25 per cent yearly.
2. Greatly improves quality, and hastens maturity of crops.
3. Reduces quantity of Commercial Fertilizers required from 25 per cent to 75 per cent each year.

FEW VETERANS OF THE AMERICAN LEAGUE

Terry Turner Sam Crawford Ed Walsh

Sam Crawford of the Detroit Tigers, who is slowing up somewhat, is surely a veteran of the American league. Sam has been with the Tigers continuously since 1907, when the National and American leagues signed the peace agreement.

After that the wife seemed strangely preoccupied, and a preoccupied wife, Steven concluded, is almost as bad as one with a vampire smile. Then came the climax. At dinner he was greeted by the wife—not in a usual dress, but decked and blazoned out in a long, slinky net affair, with a sweeping train and a low bodice.

IT IS THEREFORE ORDERED, ADJUDGED AND DECREED THAT the defendant, Thatcher Realty Company, a Florida corporation, be and it is ordered that the said defendant corporation pay to the plaintiff, Charles Neely and Lollie Neely, the sum of $100.00.

When the Moving Picture Palace first opened its doors in Branchville, it made quite a stir in the life of the residents of that suburb, who were for the most part commuters, commuters' wives, commuters' children, commuters' purveyors and commuters' domestics.

MOVIE MORALS

By JANE OSBORN.

"Don't you think it is a good idea?" "A good idea to disgrace me—to gamble? Why, and you were the wife who was so particular about her reputation that she wouldn't even go to the movies—and then you gamble!"

"Well, then, how did you get that dress?" "I made it," she said. "I took a course in dressmaking at the department store and made some dresses while I took it. The course cost only $5, and I made three dresses. This, and the one I wore last night, and another. The material didn't cost $15 for the three."

"I saw that picture, too," remarked Steven. Then he forced a hearty laugh. "It was a rather foolish picture," he held the little wife in the apple-blossom dress close to his heart. (Copyright, 1917, by the McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

Soll must be ventilated. Hence the importance of drainage. While soll is full of water, no air may enter, but as water recedes, percolates, or evaporates, the air takes its place. So stir soll deeply, and in the case of pot plants provide porous soll and be sure that drainage hole in pots is free. Also keep pots clear of green scum on sides so air may come and go through terra cotta to terra firma.

The picture he saw was the same picture that had kept his wife from arriving home in time for dinner, though he did not know it. Similar pictures had kept her out other afternoons, but he did not know that either.

The Gleaner is the name of a new paper published here for this city, Orlando and Lakeland. It is edited by J. B. Farley and will be published in the interest of the labor unions in the three cities.

Our soldier boys are going and we give them the glad hand at parting with the earnest wish that they may come home safe and sound after the terrible war is over.

BEWARE OF STRANGERS
There are daily reports from all over the country of the pernicious activity of German agents in this country.

TIME BOOKS FOR FARMERS
Start the year right by using a time book for a record of your labor records this year.

of the true blue Americans should be on the right side, the safe side.

MONEY IN AGITATION
When you see the long haired agitators going about the country stirring up trouble in peaceful communities that have always been able to dwell in unity before the advent of the "saviors of the country" you can always put it down that said saviors are anxious to save for the long green and the agitators want to agitate at so much per agitate.

Agitation generally pays the agitator until the community wakes up to the fact that agitation may pay the agitator but does not pay the community and when that time comes the agitator either goes to pastures new or is taken care of by the government and placed in jail where he can do no more harm.

CUTTING OUT THE TRAINS
While many papers over the state are going after the railroads hard for eliminating some of the trains The Herald is standing pat on the proposition. We really believe that in war times the railroads are justified in taking off some of the trains as the engines and cars are needed elsewhere and with several of the trains eliminated there are enough on the new schedule contemplated to keep up with the travel.

What we want here is sufficient freight cars this winter to move our crops and if we can be assured of that all will be well. Traveling for pleasure will be curtailed on trains just as it will be curtailed in automobiles after the war is fairly started.

A BILLION BUSHELS
The Tribune is proud of the American farmer. He did not wait to be called for service. He volunteered.

Never has the world seen soldiers in such close array as the serried ranks of wheat stalk and corn stalk troops mustered today up hill and down dale and across the broad plains of the land nature has thus herself enlisted to keep free and to propagate freedom.

These crops are the fertility of American soil. They speak for the material world. "A world made safe for democracy" is the fertility of the American mind. It speaks for the spiritual world.

A GREAT CHARITY
Among the great fraternal orders none stands any higher than the Benevolent and Protective Order of Elks, for the uncontention charity it is always dispensing, a charity that is by no means confined to its own membership, but is as broad an all-including as suffering and destitution itself.

Now comes this magnificent organization, of about a half million members in this country, and announces that it will raise a million dollars for the purpose of establishing base hospitals behind the battle lines of our allies.

This action, so characteristic the Elks is but an example of what is going on all over the United States in the way of preparing to protect and aid and comfort and succor the young men of the country, who are offering themselves for service abroad.

In all the great giving that will spring up like a mighty flood all over this devoted country, no organization can or will take a more useful or leading part than the Benevolent and Protective Order of Elks, whose title "protection and benevolence" is well exemplified in the practical workings out of its great charities, of which this now proposed is the greatest.—Miami Herald.

"DON'T TREAD ON ME"
We, the newspapers of Florida will be recognized by the next Legislature of Florida. We will be recognized by national advertisers and we will carry Florida's message into the halls in which sit the financiers of this country.

In the news columns of this issue we carry the story of the meeting of six earnest newspaper men of Florida—the committee and three advisers—and their discussions that led up to the adoption of a plan to accomplish what we have outlined. This committee has made complete recommendations for carrying on the affairs of a business auxiliary and has called a meeting of representatives of all newspapers holding membership in the Florida State Press Association.

There is nothing to hide about our organization. The suggestions of the committee are brutally frank in some respects, especially where the peanut politicians—the "Thumbs Down" crowd—if you please—are concerned, but that crowd will find all of us even more brutally frank when they stick up their heads again. They will find heavy hitters at the bat this time—men who are unafraid and able to make their hits score.

NEWSPAPERS OF FLORIDA WILL UNITE

will be made for the conduct of the business and these assessments will be charged against the stock if they are not paid.

The organization will work for mutual cooperation to uphold the papers, to secure more business both local and foreign, to make the plants and the papers more efficient, and to mutually protect the membership from unjust demands, whether by politicians or fake advertising schemes.

There is only one item among the objects of the new organization that is not constructive in character. That is the use of the "broadside" in cases where politicians or other have gone out of their way to do an injury to the press.

Mayor Lung of St. Petersburg has written to the Florida Rating Board, asking that a man be sent there and explain to the city officials how the insurance companies raised the rates and why.

Board of Trade
Approximately $120,000 is being spent this summer within a radius of two miles from the center of Sanford in new business and residential building. Any able bodied man wanting work can find it here and the contracts will continue for several months to come.

In order to answer several inquiries and to correct a wrong impression we wish to state that the Board of Trade is supported solely by membership fees. We get nothing from the county or city.

It doesn't make any difference how many people come to Sanford. You don't have to sell your property unless you want to but the value of your holdings is enhanced by the incoming population and you are made richer.

Will your name be in the Board of Trade directory, showing the name, business and telephone number of members. One of these directories will be placed in the home of every Seminole county family during August.

Talk about the bulkhead park, get your friends to advocate it. We want to get rid of the weeds and replace them with palms and shrubbery, lighted at night by a white way.

The Seminole Bank will soon have their white way lights in operation and others, it is said will do likewise. Every dollar invested in city improvement will bring you 100 per cent dividends within the next two years.

The Seminole Home Guards stand for the county at large and not Sanford alone. They are available for service when and where needed and they deserve the support and attendance of every able bodied man who will remain at home.

Pay your Board of Trade dues today.
The Board of Trade has just received a large framed picture of the engine "General," compliments of the Nashville, Chattanooga & St. Louis Railway.

on exhibition in Chattanooga was famous in Civil War times, on account of its capture by the Andrew Raiders, at Big Shanty (now Kennewaw, Ga., April 12th, 1862 and was re-captured near Ringold, Ga., by Conductor Fuller and Anthony Murphy, shop foreman.

Lots of folks complaining about not being able to sleep late mornings, on account of so much hammering on the new buildings going up in Sanford. Here's hoping the hammering increases one thousand per cent and keeps up for ten years.

SUMMER TOURISTS

Clyde Line Excursion Rates New York to Sanford
The southbound rush of Florida's tourists from the east has begun in earnest, according to Herman G. Wenzel, passenger agent for the Clyde Steamship Company.

"This party will consist of twenty-five persons who have decided to visit Florida on their vacations," said Mr. Wenzel. "The Clyde Line has been conducting an extensive advertising campaign in the eastern papers during the past few weeks, boosting this part of the country as the summer tourists best choice."

"The company has arranged these special round trip tickets a little differently from last year. Passage sold to Jacksonville permits the holder to remain here as long as he desires up to October 31; while the Sanford trip has been extended to fifteen days. By this improvement a person can come south to Jacksonville and not be forced to return in a brief time to their northern home."

"The Clyde Line expects to bring several hundred of these summer tourists to Florida before the season is over. At this particular season of the year there are a large number of persons who have their vacations who would be unable to come south during the winter months when the more wealthy class of tourists visit our state. For this reason, the trip proves doubly attractive to them, as it gives them an opportunity to see Florida's tropical scenes combined with an inexpensive sea trip."

During past seasons, since these special summer rates were put on by the Clyde Steamship Company, hundreds of people have visited Florida during the summer months, who probably would not have been able to come, except for this liberal and attractive offer.

Among these summer tourists usually are a great many school teachers who are busy with their work in the winter months, as well as a large class of clerks and other salaried persons whose two weeks in the summer they desire to spend to the best advantage.

Red Cross Announcement
The regular weekly business meeting of the Seminole Red Cross Society will be held at 3:30 p. m., Wednesday, August 1st at the room so kindly set aside for this use at the Elks Club House.

May they live many more years to exemplify these high ideals of Christian citizenship in the work of The Herald and their many friends everywhere.

A packing company operating in Palm Beach county during the tomato season, confined its operations to making tomato paste, of which they put up and shipped $75,000 cans, which will retail at 10 cents a can. Wishes That Come True
Glad wishes have a way of realizing themselves. They have a potency almost magical, and the girl who is always wishing the best for other friends finds her hopes realized for herself, so though kindly wishes were a sort of gratifying boomerang, coming back to the heart that sent it out. Just wishing others joy, if the wish is from the heart, helps to add something to the happiness of the world.

There must be some German spies lurking near the Bonita restaurant. I see two policemen staying in front of this place every night.

Tomorrow it will be August and dog days and the dogs are still running at large on the streets, although so far as dog days are concerned there is nothing to it. If I had my way about it dog days would be from January to December.

One more month until school begins and the children will all be home again and ready for business. And it is business with them if they only knew it. How they will regret in after years if they fail to get an education and right now the children should be looking ahead and getting ready for school.

Dr. Hyman is a preacher but loves a joke better than the average layman. While he was attending the Baptist convention at Lake City several weeks ago he was passing a home at night and saw a young lady kissing a young man good night. The next morning he announced at one of the meetings that a certain young lady was seen kissing a young gentleman and unless she came to the preacher and confessed the crime he would tell her name. That same day six young ladies came to Dr. Hyman and said they had kissed a young man the night before and were not a bit sorry for it. Of course Dr. Hyman explained the joke and they had it on the young ladies all during the convention but no one ever learned their names from Dr. Hyman.

There are serious times coming and we should all get ready for them. No man knows what the next day will bring forth and all of us should be prepared for the worst.

I do not believe there are men who can accurately foretell future events in the present day and generation. Yet there are men who prophesy whose prophecies may be read without hurt, and oftentimes to positive advantage. Jack Lait, the well known writer has indulged in prophecy in The American Magazine and here is what he said:

"In 1952 there will not be emperor, czar or kaiser in Europe. Ireland will be an independent republic; so will Poland.

"Liquor will be tabooed the world over—banned at its source.

"Women will have full suffrage everywhere.

"Socialism will not have displaced Republican government.

"There will be an aerial route across the Atlantic and Pacific oceans with stations or controls at intervals.

"There will be telephone connections with and without wireless across both oceans.

"All principal cities will have double decked streets, the lower strata for traffic by vehicles exclusively.

"Emigration from one country to another will be rare.

"Firearms of all kinds will be obsolete, forbidden everywhere.

"Huge artificial lights will make the world as bright at night as by day.

"Physicians, lawyers, dentists will be public officials and will not work for individual fees.

"Love will guide matrimonial selection but government will refuse to license the unfit, the mismated, the immature, the senile, the damaged. "New York city will have 10,000,000 inhabitants and its own legislature; Chicago will have 7,000,000 and its own legislature."

I want to felicitate the Sanford Band upon their rapid progress under that real band leader, Prof. Gallagher. He is an ex-army man and knows how to whip the raw recruits into shape. And for one thing he had many real good musicians here to make the start. Let everyone boost the Sanford Band for it is one of our best institutions during the war times especially.

The business that is making a success should be encouraged. We have enough failures as it is and the man who has his good money invested here and has shown by his good work and close application to business methods that he knows his business should receive the support of the people rather than the fly by night who comes in for a period, gets all he can and floats out again and during his tenure here is destructive rather than constructive. Stay by the man who means something to your community and who is known by his works and not the man who spends his time shooting off his mouth about what he has done in other places and comes here as an object of charity.

I am glad to see by the paper that Dr. Young of the state board of health was here in the interest of screens. I really believe that if a law was passed making it imperative that every home should be screened as well as the boarding houses, hotels and stores that much of the illness could be avoided. Civilized people should not live in a house that is not screened and from all that we know about the disease carried by flies and the danger from mosquitoes it should not be necessary to have a law to make people do their duty. Screen every home in Sanford.

Sanford is not patriotic enough, I say this in all fairness and say it because I take it to myself. We hardly know that the war is on. There is an apathy over the home guard, an apathy over the enlistment of the young men, an apathy over the Red Cross and a general apathy in all that should stimulate patriotism. The war is here and we must all sacrifice something. Some of us must go, many of us must send our sons, some their daughters, and the sacrifice will wring our hearts but the war is on. Let us get busy in every department.

At Lake Junaluska

Lake Junaluska, N. C., July 25. The Sunday school period at the Southern Assembly grounds here is in full swing.

The formal opening of this part of the summer program of events came on Tuesday morning of this week. The daily schedule includes sections for workers in each of the three general subdivisions of our Sunday schools—the Elementary, the Secondary or Teen-Age and the Adult divisions. Also a section for training of Sunday school teachers. These are in session simultaneously, thus including opportunity for study of special features of the work, and does not provide for one's taking every part.

Everything about this occasion is auspicious. The weather man is doing his very best for us in his line, and the climatic conditions are very satisfactory indeed. Bright, sunny days, the air cool and invigorating and the beauties of Nature lavishly bestowed on every hand.

The program this year is particularly fine and the speakers and teachers of the highest order. Among other notable men appearing on the program are Dr. Wm. Byron Farbus, whose books on child nature, and "The Boy Problem" are so well and favorably known; Dr. W. Crawford Basley, author of the Training Course for Sunday School Teachers; Dr. Henry F. Cope, secretary of the Society for Religious Education in North America.

This assembly is owned and operated for the Methodist Episcopal Church, South; and all the great leaders in the Sunday-school work of this denomination are in attendance and are in charge of the occasion.

Of these we mention Dr. E. B. Chappell, editor of the Sunday school literature; Dr. C. D. Bulla, the head of the Organized Bible Class Department; Dr. J. W. Shackford, head of the Teacher Training Dept.; and Miss Minnie E. Kennedy, head of the Elementary Dept.

The attendance is larger than at any previous gathering of the kind, numbering several hundred. The attendants come from every part of the great church. They are here from far away California, from Texas, Arkansas, Missouri, Louisiana, Mississippi, Kentucky, Tennessee and from the Atlantic Seaboard from Maryland to Florida.

Florida is well represented in this gathering, having seventeen in attendance. We have parties from Delray, Orlando, Tampa, St. Petersburg, Dade City, Madison and Tallahassee and from Sanford come eight of the seventeen, Rev. F. E. Steinmeyer and wife, Mrs. Helen G. Jinkins, her mother and two children, Mrs. Thornton and Mrs. Kelly.

This great gathering combines inspiration, instruction and recre-tion; making it an ideal place to spend a vacation amid the very best surroundings.

We are having a delightful time and will be refreshed in body, mind and heart, better equipped for our task in the future.

I only wish many more of our people would come here, as they will from year to year.

Very earnestly,
A. H. Cole,
Fla. S. S. Field Secy.

CURE FOR RHEUMATISM

Place in Indianapolis Where the Cure is Sure

Hon. David Thrasher of Sanford, who was suddenly attacked by rheumatism is at Hot Springs, Arkansas. The attack was so sudden and the pain so excruciating that it was difficult for Mr. Thrasher to be moved. Notwithstanding he made a heroic struggle to board the train at Sanford for Hot Springs, and at last reports was progressing very satisfactorily towards recovery.

We cannot here forbear apprising the public of the location of a rheumatic resort where relief is almost absolutely certain, but the expense far less than at Hot Springs, Ark. We refer to Mount Jackson Sanitarium on West Washington street, Indianapolis.

Case after case we have sent thither from Kentucky, while acting as mayor of Richmond, and the cures seem marvelous.

The editor of this paper recalls a particular case where the rheumatic victim, Captain John Edwards of Richmond, Ky., actually threatened suicide as his only relief, as he thought from rheumatism. We begged him to try Mount Jackson, where we had seen equally bad cases cured. Captain Edwards consented, and was cured sound and well in two weeks' time.

Not scores but hundreds of other victims from central Kentucky, learning of this and other remarkable cures, flocked to Mt. Jackson, and to our knowledge only two were not cured—a consumptive, in the last stages, and a hopeless sufferer from dropsy or heart trouble.

The waters from Mt. Jackson are from wells 1800 to 2300 feet deep. These waters are perfectly vile to the taste, but are merely sipped occasionally, the treatment principally consisting of steaming and rubbing. No medicine is used. Two baths a day for two weeks will usually do the work, under the skillful handling of Prof. Curtis Hollingsworth, then in charge.

The only difference we know between the famous rheumatic resorts at Martinsville, Indiana, and Mt. Jackson, in Indianapolis consists in the plainness and cheapness of the latter.

Eight years ago Mt. Jackson charged only $12 to $14 per week for room, board and baths, while double and quadruple that price was charged at the more fashionable resorts at Martinsville and Little Rock. We concluded the difference in price was too great too pay for pay for the music, dancing and flubdubbery that have so little to do with the actual cure of rheumatism. Mt. Jackson Sanitarium put on a more airy than the hotel at Wekiwa Springs—they realized that they had the water and patients need not pay for music and finery until they got back home where they could enjoy it free from pain.

We have no present knowledge of prices at Mount Jackson, we do not know the proprietors now, and this notice is merely an expression of gratitude to God for having directed our footsteps thither while conveying stricken friends to that fount of restoration to health.

But at any price Mt. Jackson's cures are worth the money.—Clarence Woods in Eustis Lake Region.

THE GODS WILL SEND By LOUISE OLIVER.

Richard Forbes stood at one of the windows of his apartment looking out into the twilight descending rapidly over the river and the palisades beyond. He was dressed faultlessly for the evening and Owam, his Japanese servant, stood waiting with his overcoat and his glistening hat.

Suddenly Richard wheeled. "Owam, what would you do if you were tired of everything? Tired of food, tired of people, tired of amusement, tired of—living?"

Owam smiled and gave a peculiar little shrug of the shoulders. "Meester Dick get nurr-red."

"Who to?" asked Richard curiously. "Nee girl!"

"That's like you Orientals. Anyone at all with five pigs, a flock of geese, a hundred simons and a few thousand ancestors."

Owam made a deprecating gesture with his hands. "Meester Dick want wife—the gods will send!"

The telephone rang. Richard answered it. A thin, high voice came over the wire. "Oh, doctor," it pleaded, "how is Kitty Louise resting now?"

At any other time Richard would have said, "I'm sorry, but you must have the wrong number," and hung up. But something in the voice, a pathetic wistfulness, an overwhelming anxiety touched an answering chord in his heart. So Richard answered, "She is very comfortable now, really resting quite easily."

"Then tell her, please, that Archibald will be around this evening to arrange about the wedding tomorrow, as he leaves for France the following morning."

This was rather a breath-taking turn of affairs.

"Owam, I don't happen to know a Miss Kitty Louise, do I? You know everybody's name."

"Owam not know, Meester Dick."

"Yes, the name has a familiar sound, Kitty Louise! Why, I say, Owam—I remember. One day in the elevator I was going—I've got it now. Bring my hat, Owam." And then as the Jap hurried away, "And if I can find her tonight she'll not marry Archibald tomorrow!"

With the aid of an elevator boy in his own building Richard found the door of the studio under the skylight. He rapped and a voice called, "Come in."

At first he did not see her propped up on cushions on a couch on the other side of the big room.

"I couldn't answer the door myself, you see," she smiled, "and Polly had to go out. I've had an accident. My foot caught in a grating today and I fell and hurt my ankle."

"Then you are Miss Kitty Louise—my Miss Kitty Louise, I mean."

"Yours?"

"Yes. That is—but I'd better explain. I happen to be the bearer of a message to you that came to me by mistake over the telephone. It is about one Archibald." He watched her jealously. "You do know an Archibald, don't you?"

"Yes." She had turned very pale.

"Well, I was to tell you that he is coming this evening to arrange for a wedding tomorrow. He leaves the next day for France."

She had turned her head away and made no answer. There seemed to be nothing to do but retire and he moved toward the door.

"Mr. Forbes!" He turned. "Thank you for the message. It is odd that it should come through you, and wonderful how you found me. Somehow I cannot think clearly, but I feel that I ought to explain. You see, grandma wants me to marry Mr. Archibald Stone—and I've never done anything she wanted before. All this—looking around the studio—is against her wishes. So I've half promised what you know to try to make it up. She's not well and may go any minute. I don't want it on my conscience that I've made her unhappy at the last."

Richard came nearer. "But you mustn't marry anyone you don't love. I'm going to tell you that I love you. You must not marry this other man."

She stared at him incredulously for a moment. "Since when? It couldn't have happened in fifteen minutes."

"I think it began that day you dropped your muff," he said eagerly. "I wonder if you have ever thought of me at all since then."

"Yes," she confessed.

"Then, that's all I'll ask of you until you've told this Archibald that it's all off."

"But I can't. Grandma would die of disappointment and it would be my fault."

The door opened suddenly and Polly rushed in. "Oh, Kitty, Kitty Louise—your grandmother. She's—she's—"

"Polly, what are you saying? Is she—dead?"

Polly nodded excitedly. "Oh, don't, Kitty Louise, please!" For the latter had buried her face in the cushions and was sobbing softly.

Richard went over and took one of her hands. "The gods have sent," he repeated solemnly. "Owam was right." (Copyright, 1917, by the McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

Tractor School in France.

The government of France has established a tractor school on a large farm near Paris. The object is to train men in the handling of agricultural motors and to give special training to men wounded in the war, with a view to making them agricultural mechanics.

Southern California boasts one native species of acacia, the cat's claw (a Gregii), which is but a shrub in that state, but becomes a tree in Arizona. It bears small pale yellow flowers and an abundance of very sharp thorns.

Emptying a Bottle.

Water or any other liquid cannot flow from a bottle in a steady stream because until the bottle is empty there is a continuous struggle between the tendency of the liquid to fall from the bottle and the rushing of the air to get in. When a full bottle without a cork is turned upside down there will be an alternate realization of two operations—the liquid to follow the attraction of gravitation and the air to obey its natural impulse to fill a void.

How "Rubbers" Were Produced.

"Rubbers," as Americans have named them, were the invention of Charles Goodyear, father of the man who helped produce the Goodyear welt machine. In 1833 it was found that India rubber, dissolved in turpentine and mixed with lamplack, would give a waterproof surface to leather. But the leather so treated was subject to atmosphere changes, heat causing it to melt and cold to crack. Mr. Goodyear mixed sulphur with the other combination and produced rubber.

Items of Interest for the Man Behind the Plow

Pack Your Silos-Full

Properly filling a silo is essential to first class silage, and one of the chief essentials in this as well as tramped silage. In fact, it is absolutely essential, says the University of Florida experiment station. Insufficient tramping will permit the silage to settle one-fourth more, which is too much wasted capacity. It will also leave too much air mixed with the silage which will be more likely to spoil.

In filling, see to it that the lighter and heavier portions of corn are distributed evenly over the whole silo. It is impossible to have a uniform density throughout unless this practice is carefully followed. Leaving the grain and the heavier portions of the stalk in the center, and putting the lighter portions to the outside is a bad practice.

If you have two or more silos to fill, work on them alternately. By filling in one of them for a day, then in another the next day, etc., they would have time to do much settling. When left for several days the top portion would have to be taken off before refilling, as there would be a little spoiled silage there.

Don't cut the corn too green. Some people when they see silage for the first time are surprised to find that the color is not green. This idea of having a green colored feed, together with a lack of experience has led some farmers to cut their corn for the silo too green. Such practice will give a silage with a high per cent of water and a low per cent, comparatively, of nutrients from the standpoint of feeding value. Experience has shown that it is best to wait for the dent to form in the grain, even though the stalk and blades dry up a little, if the best quality of silage is to be had.

There are just two things that cause silage to spoil. If the air gets to it, it will rot; if it becomes too dry, it will mold. Hence, if by waiting for the grain to mature, the stalk, blade and sheaf begin to dry up, it may be necessary to add water to the silage as the silo is filled. But this is not likely to happen where corn matures before frost.

Too Early for Irish Potatoes

It is too early to plant the fall crop of Irish potatoes, says C. K. McQuarrie of the University of Florida extension division. August 20 is usually given as the earliest date for planting the fall crop in north and central Florida, or eighty days before the first frost. Two or three weeks later is best for South Florida. The great crop in the Hastings section this spring is a good illustration of the fact that the Irish potato is a cold weather crop. The backward spring during which the weather remained cold and cold rains fell frequently had much to do with the good yields.

The small potatoes from the spring crop, if they have been taken care properly will be suitable seed for fall planting. It will probably be useless to plant for a crop larger than needed for home consumption, as the fall crop cannot be shipped to advantage in competition with the northern grown crop.

Livestock Round-Up In September

The State Livestock Round-Up will be held at the University of Florida, Gainesville, the last week in September, providing a program that will be of interest to farmers, dairy men, hog raisers and cattlemen. Those who attended the Livestock meeting at the University in January were well pleased with the program. An effort is being made to arrange a program even better for the September meeting.

Livestock raising is becoming one of the leading industries of Florida. With the establishment of the State Livestock Sanitary Board the industry should make additional progress during the next few years.

If you are interested in any phase of livestock farming, keep the date in mind and arrange to attend the meeting in September.

Labor In Silo Filling

While there is much labor involved in hauling in the green corn for the silo, there is also a large amount of labor saved in other ways, as when corn goes into the silo the sheafing is eliminated and there is no husking, shelling or grinding. For a farmer who has livestock to feed, there is no better place for corn grain than with the fodder in the silo, says the University of Florida experiment station.

Silage is a Roughage. Simply because silage contains some corn is not a safe argument for making it take the place of the ordinary concentrates in the feeding ration, says the University of Florida experiment station. Silage is a roughage and must be considered. Its presence in the ration during the early part of the feeding decreases the cost of gains during the latter part.

Christ Will Come Soon

The services at the Baptist Temple last Sunday night were attended by one of the largest audiences of the summer months—over four hundred people being comfortably seated in the well ventilated and electrically cooled building. The subject used by Dr. Hyman, the pastor, was a continuation of the July program of sermons based on the book of Revelation—this one being the "Second Coming of Christ," and handled in the characteristic way of the pastor was a sermon that will ever be fresh in the memories of those who were fortunate enough to hear it. In this sermon the Doctor stated that he believed in the prophecy of the second coming of Christ—more than that he stated that he believed the second coming would be soon, and then used seven passages of Scripture on which he based his entire argument—each passage having to do with a time when the end was near, and from the signs of the times and the Scripture it really does seem that the coming of Christ is near at hand. The audience was largely augmented by parties from Geneva and Oviedo, and a piano solo, as well as a vocal solo were numbers that delighted the congregation. The special series of sermons will close on Wednesday night when the Doctor expects to tell about what will happen after Christ does come and rules the world.

A Dangerous Journey

By JAMES BRAINARD

I was in Egypt before the fanatical outbreak of 1882. When a trouble of that kind is coming those who are not in the secret either know nothing about it or have only vague suspicions. I heard some ugly rumors as to what was about to happen, but did not know how much dependence could be placed upon them. To all outward appearances everything was moving on as usual.

I was obliged to go to Ismailia on business. If I had known the condition of the people of the country I should not have trusted myself out of Port Said, where Europeans were comparatively safe. To make a journey into the interior was madness, but I did not know it. Indeed, I only realized that under the circumstances I would rather not go. A matter of ordinary gain and being murdered were the alternatives.

I went on a night train. Being somewhat flustered about my diet, I took with me a hamper filled with as succulent eatables as I could get together and on the top placed a box of cigars from which only a few of the weeds had been taken. I got into my compartment, put my hand baggage on the rack and settled myself for a journey. Being in a smoking compartment, I lit a cigar.

The compartment was filled with natives, I being the only European in it. This in itself was not encouraging. The train had hardly got under way when an old Arab sheik sitting opposite me leaned forward and calmly took my cigar from between my lips and, placing it between his own, smoked it himself.

To have resented the insult would have been equivalent to inviting the man to stab me. I therefore paid no attention to him and, taking a newspaper from my pocket, began to read—that is, I pretended to read, but I had no idea of what was on the sheet before me, my mind being taken up with the fact that I was in a compartment with seven Arabs and utterly at their mercy. My eyes appeared to be fixed upon the paper, but I was casting quick glances sidewise at the natives and knew by their chatter and occasional looks at me that I was the subject of their conversation.

Then a lucky thought occurred to me. I reached up to the rack, got my box of cigars from my hamper, took out one for myself and handed the box to the sheik who had robbed me of the one I had been smoking. He took it, appropriated a handful of the contents and passed it to the others, who did the same, and the box was returned to me empty.

Notwithstanding my peace offering I expected every moment to feel cold steel entering my vitals. Most of the Arabs wore long knives where they could be seen, and I knew not what other weapons they had concealed. As for me, I was unarmed, and even if I had been armed my opponents were seven to one.

I cannot describe the agony of that night, expecting, as I did, death at any moment. The Arabs in my compartment paid no attention to anything that was going on in the rest of the train, but I had a vague feeling that something very important might be going on. I can't account for this feeling, for I heard no sound to produce it. I only knew that I felt that there was murder in the air.

Finally their looks and acts were so suspicious that I thought myself of some other way similar to my offer of cigars to placate them. Then my luncheon occurred to me. Reaching up again to the rack, I brought down my hamper, opened it and displayed the eatables. Every man's eyes were on them, but not a man moved to touch any of them. I offered the hamper to the man who sat next me, but he declined. In turn I handed it to every man in the compartment; but, though they all looked with eager eyes upon the viands, not a man would accept a morsel.

At first I was astonished at this. Then I remembered that no Arab will break bread with an enemy.

The moment this occurred to me I knew I was doomed. I put my hamper back on the rack and, wrapping myself in my overcoat, lay back in my seat, with my eyes closed, to await whatever was in store for me.

I heard a great deal of wrangling on the part of the Arabs, but I thought I would rather rely on my weakness than on being prepared for resistance that would be useless. So I did not open my eyes. Presently I felt a hand on my arm. Thinking my time had come, I looked, and there was the sheik who had taken my cigar from my mouth holding out a piece of dry bread. I took it and, biting from it, chewed vigorously.

A flood of relief and joy seemed to have been poured over me. I knew from that moment I was safe. Reaching up for my hamper, I took it down and handed it to the sheik. He helped himself, then passed it around to the others, each man partaking plentifully of the contents.

Now that they had broken bread with me and I having no more to fear I again leaned back in my seat and this time slept. I knew that I was as safe from my Arab companions as if I were in my own bed at home.

But I did not reach Ismailia that night. In the morning I found that the natives had murdered the engineer, stoker and every European on the train except myself.

TEMPERANCE NOTES

A TRIBUTE TO DRY TOWNS.

Writing for the Atlantic Monthly, Ida M. Tarbell tells of her experience on a Chautauqua circuit in western Pennsylvania, central Ohio and Michigan.

"We came to know almost as soon as we reached a new place whether the town was dry or not," she says. "A town that had been dry over a period of a dozen years had a trimness about the streets and buildings, a look of freshness and energy about young people and old which stood out in almost incredible contrast to what we found in the wet town of the same size. We went to one town in Ohio which had been dry for 31 years, so the hotel-keeper told me. He claimed to be a much-traveled person, and said that in all the many towns which he had known intimately, he had never found one in which there was such a fine lot of young people as here. In health, in vigor, in initiative, he believed that the young men and women, particularly of the working classes, were tremendously ahead of the same group in the towns where liquor was freely displayed."

BALOONS ROB CHILDREN.

W. H. Rice, a veteran circus man, recently put out a chart showing comparative figures of his earnings in typical cities while they were wet, and after they became dry. Decatur, Ill., wet, gave him $3,271; dry, $0,580. Bloomington, Ill., wet, $5,327; dry, $0,403. Boise, Idaho, wet, $5,704; dry, $10,811. Spokane, Wash., wet, $0,200; dry, $11,582. Seattle, wet, $3,128; dry, $0,710; Portland, Ore., wet, $3,264; dry, $8,420. Average—wet, $4,468; dry, $8,798. Prohibition means more surplus money in the family and more happiness for the children.

THE WHOLE TRUTH.

"A lie that is part the truth is ever the blackest of lies." A part truth, according to a liquor journal: "Kansas, bone-dry, has 75 more prisoners in the penitentiary than it had when drizzling wet."

The whole truth: The Kansas penitentiary is a federal prison and the United States government sends more prisoners there than to any other federal prison because it has plenty of spare room for outsiders and because it is a model of its kind, improving both the health and the morals of its inmates.

BIG CITY BONE-DRY.

The city of Duluth, Minn., has twice voted itself dry. With its last vote it elected a dry council which has passed drastic anti-liquor ordinances.

Egyptian Philosophy.
If thou art successful and lovest the wife of thy bosom, then fill her stomach and clothe her back. Make glad her heart during the time that thou last. She is a field profitable to its owner.—Puh Hotep.

Clear Result.
"So they are going to probe the situation. What will happen then?" "Then you'll know for certain there is nothing to be done about it."

Clear Water in Florida.
In the fjords on the Norway coast the clearness of the water is wonderful. Objects may be seen at a depth of twenty-five to thirty fathoms.

Thoughts.
Thoughts are springs of action. The secret of the highest human blessedness is found in the mastery of one's thought habits. As compared with such an achievement, gold is but dross, diamonds but rubbish.

The cool office is the busy office

No one, no matter how willing, can do good work when oppressed by summer's enervating heat. But when a fan sends its refreshing breeze into every nook and corner of your office, the heat outside is forgotten—and efficiency increases with a jump.
