19th Birthday For Man Accused Of Killing Sunbather

DAYTONA BEACH, Fla. (UPI) — Daniel Floyd finished celebrating his 19th birthday in jail, charged with third degree murder after he allegedly drove his car over two sunbathers on Daytona Beach.

Floyd, who was held without bond, also was charged with leaving the scene of an injury accident and grand theft auto.

Cathy Zapeda of Ocala died on the operating table five hours after other beachgoers lifted the car off her, police Sgt. W.M. Champion said Sunday.

Her mother, Sharon Newell, 35, was in serious condition with two broken legs. Police Sgt. W.M. Champion said Floyd tried Saturday to steal the car of Phyllis Baker, 21, of Temple Terrace. She was lying on the ground sunbathing next to the auto and leaped into the back seat when she heard it being started.

Floyd swerved onto the beach, Champion said, and ran over two more sunbathers.

The car stopped with Cathy Zapeda, 14, of Ocala, underneath, Champion said. Floyd jumped from the car and ran, pursued by other sunbathers. They caught him and held him until police arrived, Champion said. Others lifted the car from Miss Zapeda.

Qualified? Competency Test Trips Many New Teachers

By DIANE PETRYK Herald Staff Writer

Prospective teachers can no longer get permanent teaching certificates in Florida unless they pass a new teacher competency test. Few teachers, however, should worry. The test, according to some who took a trial version, is easier than the functional literacy test students are expected to pass.

Still, the state commissioner of education was disappointed when the test was given to about 1,100 new university graduates about two months ago, said Seminole County School Board Chairman Allan F. Keeth.

"Generally speaking, they did poorly," Keeth said. "I passed, on the basis of the cut-off scores we recommended," he said. Keeth has a bachelor of science degree in mechanical engineering.

"I'd like to think all of the teachers in Seminole County can pass the functional literacy test for 12th graders," Keeth said. "But I don't think they can."

"From what I saw of the teacher competency test," he said, "we have anybody teaching in our classrooms today that can't pass it, I would like to see them removed."

Those taking the test must demonstrate competency in various areas, including the following:

- Communication skills
- Ability to read, comprehend and interpret written material
- Ability to add, subtract, multiply and divide
- Ability to discern patterns of physical and social development in students
- Ability to diagnose the entry knowledge of students and identify long-range goals for their learning in a given subject area
- Ability to construct tests that measure student performance based on criteria and objectives
- Ability to formulate standards for student behavior

Keeth said the teaching-skills portion of the test can be passed on the basis of "using one's common sense."

"I'm not saying you can't learn those things in education courses," he said. "But most are a matter of common sense and the informal psychology you acquire by experience."

Keeth said one problem facing the Council on Teacher Education in approving the test, which was formulated by several contract agencies, was avoiding any possibility that the test could be challenged successfully in court.

While Keeth said he feels it probably will be challenged, as the functional literacy test was, he said he believes this test is "very defensible."

"The process of developing the test was very, very involved," he said. "They did an outstanding job laying the background for it so it can't be effectively challenged," he said.

Except for the portion which requires writing an essay, the test is multiple choice, which adds to its ease, Keeth said.

"You know the answer is one of those before you. All you have to do is pick it out," he said.

Only the essay portion of the test is subjectively graded, he said. And that grading will be done by experts.

"As of this month the test is required by law, but the first exams will not be given until Nov. 22," Friedman said.

Until then, teacher applicants will be given temporary certificates.

The test will also be required of teachers licensed in other states, regardless of their teaching experience.

It will be administered by the Department of Education at many locations around the state.

Office Seekers Beckwith Gets Opponent

For the fourth time in 20 years, Clerk of the Circuit Court Arthur H. Beckwith Jr. will be challenged in an election.

Beckwith, a Democrat who announced last week that he will seek re-election, received an opponent today. Eugene Duffey, 35, of 1321 Windsor Ave., Longwood area, said today he will be filing his candidate qualifying documents this week.

The qualifying period opens at noon Tuesday and will close at noon July 22. A native of New England, Duffey has been a resident of the state for 28 years and involved in commercial development and planning and zoning for the past 22 years. He also owns an insurance agency.

Although he has been active in numerous political campaigns over the past 20 years, this is Duffey's first bid for public office. He is a Democrat.

Duffey served in the U.S. Navy during World War II. He and his wife, Eleanor, have one son, Lawrence, assistant director of the dental technician's program at Jones College. He served a three-year term, on appointment from the county commission, on the East Central Florida Regional Planning Council and another three-year term on the Orange-Seminole-Osceola Transportation Authority.

He has been active in the Longwood Winter Springs Chamber of Commerce, has participated in the Kiwanis Club for the past 20 years, is an honorary member of Serotona International and is an usher at St. Mary-Magdalene's satellite church, Annunciation parish, Altamonte Springs.

Extension Aids Candidate

The extension of a deadline for a resignation will permit Casselberry Councilman Barbara Christensen to continue in office until Nov. 17 while she is seeking the office of county commissioner.

State law, according to Dot Glisson, who heads the state elections office in Tallahassee, requires a candidate already holding office to submit a resignation from that office 18 days before the opening of the qualifying period. The qualifying period opens at noon Tuesday.

Mrs. Glisson said the law would have required that the resignation be received no later than Saturday, June 28, but because that date was not a working day the time period was extended.

The deadline then was Monday, June 30, Mrs. Glisson said. Mrs. Christensen said today she mailed her resignation to Casselberry City Hall on June 27 and it was received June 30. The resignation is effective Nov. 17, one day prior to the time Mrs. Christensen would take county office, if elected.

If the Nov. 30th date had not been acceptable, Mrs. Christensen would have had to resign from the Casselberry City Council effective immediately.

Mrs. Christensen, the fourth woman to run for the county commission in Seminole county's 67 year history, is a Republican.

The state law applies only to candidates, who are serving in public office and whose terms of office overlap the term of the office they are seeking. Mrs. Christensen's term as a city councilman extends to January 1980. The new term for county commissioners begins Nov. 18.

She is seeking the office currently held by Bob French, Democrat. French, completing his first four-year term in office, has announced he will seek re-election.

Mrs. Christensen said she will file her qualifying documents this week. Qualifying period opens at noon Tuesday and closes July 22.

Milliken Says GOP Must Back ERA

DETROIT (UPI) — Michigan Gov. William Milliken warned the Republican Platform Committee today that if the party abandons support for the Equal Rights Amendment it deserves to be repudiated by a large segment of the American population.

"To drop the ERA plank from our platform now would be a public demonstration that this party had abandoned its goal of equal rights for women," said Milliken, the head of the witness as the committee began the process of drafting a party platform.

The committee members were the advance guard of 4,000 delegates and alternates due in town next Monday to officially designate Ronald Reagan the party nominee at the GOP convention. See Related Story, Page 2A

YOUTHS LEARN, BUILD, EARN

Members of the Youth Conservation Corps of Seminole County have converged on Sanford Middle School to build a 12-foot teaching-learning platform and a 107-foot access catwalk in a wooded area behind the school. Above, Jeff Biddle uses a rasp to smooth a piece of wood as Mary Bledsoe watches. Below, William Hill (left) and Chris Parflow pound nails into the catwalk. The corps employs 30 county youths between the ages of 15 and 18 and is also involved in projects at Winter Springs Elementary School, Oviedo High School and the Seminole County Nature Center. The youths earn a high school credit for the conservation projects.

2 Communities Dig In For War Of The Sinkhole

WINK, Texas (UPI) — Call it a tale of two cities that both want to claim a hole in the ground.

The battle between Wink and neighboring Kermit is over which West Texas town will have its name affixed to the growing sinkhole that has drawn tourists, reporters, geology students, television crews and even volcano groups.

Although the residents of Kermit, population 7,804, call the 400-by-300 foot sinkhole the Kermit Krater, the residents of Wink, population 1,000, point out they are closer to the cavity, and therefore it should be called the Wink Sink.

The depression began growing June 3 in the arid range of West Texas and attracted national headlines and scores of tourists.

The sinkhole war was on. Both cities produced such fast-selling items as T-shirts and bumper stickers. A hamburger stand in Kermit — apparently declaring neutrality — has started selling Kermit Krater Taters and Wink Sink Drinks.

If it settles down and they make a fitting hole out of it, we'll take it, says Ode Thompson, former mayor of Wink. But other Wink citizens are more aggressive in their bid to have the hole identified with Wink, which is 2 miles from it, instead of Kermit, which is 4 miles away.

That's the way it is around this county — Kermit takes credit for everything, said Wink welder James Winkler.

The Winkler County News published a 40-page booklet entitled, Kermit Krater — The Hole Story. But the Wink Bulletin — which declares under its nameplate that it is The Only Newspaper in the World That Cares Anything About Wink — has identified the hole as a Wink phenomenon.

If this turns out to be our freshwater lake, you can bet Wink will claim it, said Linda Houston, a Kermit booster.

The long-running feud between the two towns goes back to the 1920s when Wink, then an oil boomtown of nearly 25,000 people, forced a county referendum to move the courthouse from Kermit.

Kermit voters, the story goes, turned out faithfully to reject the proposition while Wink voters were reportedly partying and carrying on.

The hole, which some say is a result of underlying salt deposits subsiding, was filled with oily, black water during its nascent period but now has clear, green water that reportedly is better fit for drinking than the nearby city of Midland's water supply.

Latin America To Choose Violence Or Reform: Pope

SALVADOR, Brazil (UPI) — Pope John Paul II, speaking in a city that once was a major slave trade center, warned that Latin America is at a historical turning point and must decide if it will realize justice through violence or bold and sweeping reforms.

The pope was to begin the eighth day of his 12-day tour of Brazil today by visiting a leper colony and a slum in Salvador before flying to the northeastern seaside city of Recife, whose archbishop was blacklisted by the military regime 12 years ago.

By including Recife in his itinerary, John Paul opened the way for Monsignor Haider Camargo to return to the national spotlight he was forced out of because he ran afoul of the government by honoring a Brazilian in Brazil.

Camargo, known for his tireless efforts in Brazil and abroad in exposing human misery and cruelty, is a prominent leader of the progressive wing of the Catholic church in Latin America.

Carter: All-Star With All-Star Attitude

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Every ballplayer should feel the way Gary Carter does about the All-Star Game. To him, being selected, even as one of the extras, is almost the same as hitting the lottery. "It's like I'm a little kid again," bubbles Montreal's hard-nosed, hard-rock catcher, whose electrifying eighth-inning play on Brian Downing was the high spot of a very nice victory for the National League in Seattle.

Sports Parade By MILTON RICHMAN

Carter is something of an iron man in that he has caught in more than 90 percent of the Expo's games the past four seasons, including this one. At the end of last season, with Expos going right down to the wire with the Pirates for the Eastern Division title, Carter was all set to catch in the final series of the year against the Phillies despite what he had been told was only a sprained thumb. Carter was operated on the next day. He was groggy from the sedatives given him but insisted on watching the game on TV in his hospital room.

Alcott Sails Away With LPGA's Mayfair Title

NOBLESVILLE, Ind. (UPI) — Amy Alcott says she never felt she had it wrapped up until she walked off the 17th green. Alcott was only one putt on the last hole to win this year's Mayfair Classic Sunday by three strokes over JoAnne Carner and Sally Little, and it was so easy for her she was smiling for most of the back nine. The Santa Monica, Calif., golfer finished with a 3-under-par 69 in a four-day total of 135-under-par 275 to take the $22,500 purse.

Alcott took two weeks off before this event to rest and work on her short shots. That rest will help her going into the 1980 U.S. Women's Open, she said. "I feel very confident going into the Open. I feel good about every aspect of my game," Alcott said. JoAnne Carner, Lake Worth, Fla., had an up-and-down round of 67 which featured seven birdies and two bogeys. After collecting her prize of $12,000, she said, "The conditions of the course brought on the low scores," Carner said. "The greens were soft enough that you could really fire the ball."

Reflections On Wimbledon

WIMBLEDON (UPI) — For the losers, there still may be some solace in the near future. The U.S. Open, beginning the last week of August, and both have good reason for confidence. McEnroe will be the defending champion in the Open, a tournament his chief rival, Borg, has yet to win. And Evert, flush with success in the Italian and French Opens following her brief withdrawal from tennis, has won the Open four times and was runner-up in the last five.

For The Losers It's The U.S. Open

McEnroe will be the defending champion in the Open, a tournament his chief rival, Borg, has yet to win. And Evert, flush with success in the Italian and French Opens following her brief withdrawal from tennis, has won the Open four times and was runner-up in the last five. "I've been feeling motivated in the past eight weeks, and now it's a matter of confidence," said Evert, who was upset by Goings, 6-4, 7-4 (7-4), in Friday's Wimbledon final. "I had a little bit of my confidence."

Uncle Sam Sponsoring Highlights

By United Press International NEW YORK, N.Y. — Steve Garvey of the Los Angeles Dodgers and Ron Santo of the Baltimore Orioles will go to bat for the United States Army, which in turn has decided to play ball with the baseballers.

All-Stars Romp, DeLuxe Claims Old Timer's Tilt

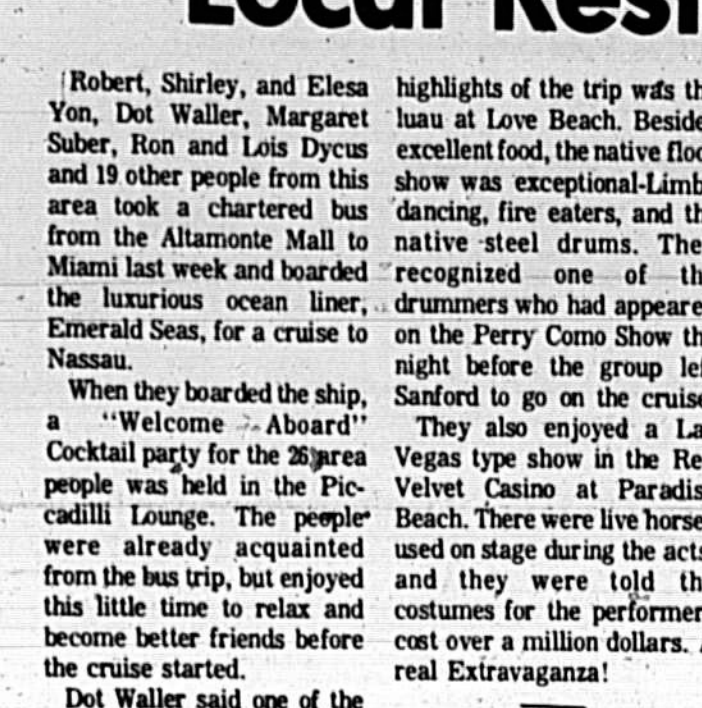

Sanford's All-Stars got some heavy hitting from Sam and Levi Rainey for a 15-4 weekend win over the Welaka Trojans while DeLuxe Bar shaded the Tingo Tavern 6-4 in an Old Timer's Contest in local baseball action.

In And Around Sanford Local Residents Enjoy Cruise

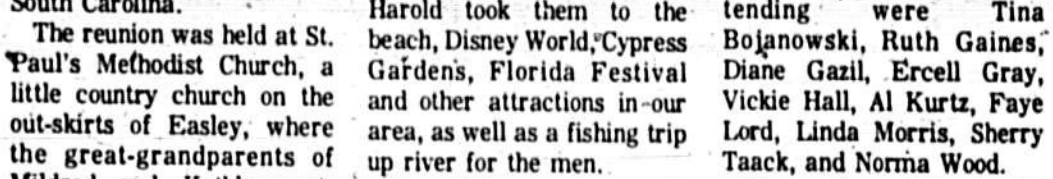

Robert, Shirley, and Elena Yon, Kathleen Reynolds, Mildred Randolph, her sister, Kathleen Reynolds, Robert and Sharon Reynolds, and their two grandchildren, Sirena Schrum and Jamie Reynolds from Longwood, were just returned from a six-day auto trip to the annual reunion of the Ellison family in Easley, S.C., about 15 miles from Greenville.

Highlights of the trip was the luncheon at Love Beach. Besides excellent food, the native Florida was exceptional. Limbo dancing, fire eaters, and the native steel drums. They recognized one of the drummers who had appeared on the Perry Como Show the night before the group left Sanford to go on the cruise.

Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Moody hosted a family reunion at their home in Lake Monroe, Sunday. The members of the family gathered for a buffet luncheon served under the trees. Fortunately there was no rain to mar their afternoon of reminiscing and catching up. Since this is the first reunion in the family, it was 26 years since some of the group had gotten together. There was a lot to catch up on.

Shoes May Cause His Foot Calluses
Dr. Lamb
DEAR DR. LAMB — I suffer from calluses on my big toes, the left side of each foot and underneath the sides of each foot. What causes calluses and what is the remedy to correct them? I do a lot of walking.
DEAR READER — A person who uses his hands a lot in hard labor, such as a farm worker, may develop calluses on the palm of the hand. That's from friction and rubbing that stimulates an overgrowth of the hard outer layer of the skin. The same thing is true of your feet. Those calluses are formed where you have the most pressure and rubbing against the skin. That could be because of an uneven weight distribution on your feet.
If the calluses are on the sides of the foot as well, it suggests that your shoes may not fit properly. I'm sending you The Health Letter number 11-10, Common Foot Problems: What To Do About Them. It includes a section on calluses as well as athlete's feet, flat feet and heel spurs.
Other readers who want this issue can send 75 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it. Send your request to me, in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1651, Radio City Station, New York, N.Y. 10019.
For calluses on the bottom of the foot associated with uneven weight bearing, doctors sometimes cut a little pad for the bottom of the foot for all the areas except where the callus is. This means that the padded area bears the most weight and it helps to relieve the pressure over the unpadded callus area.
Meanwhile, may I suggest that you should be very thankful. Sometimes it's better not to have enough than to have too much. As you get a little older, you may find that you have too much of a good thing. Then you'll be like most of the other people who write me about excess fat deposits.

HOROSCOPE

By BERNICE BEDE OSOL
For Tuesday, July 8, 1980

YOUR BIRTHDAY
July 8, 1980
Your prospects for the coming year are encouraging, provided you don't have too many irons in the fire. You'll fare better in the long run handling enterprises or projects one at a time.

CANCER (June 21-July 22)
Be very careful today not to be possibly misunderstood by a friend out of proportion. Exaggerating the situation could really cause a problem. Romance travels a luckless path, possible pitfalls and career for the coming months are all discussed in your Astro-Graph, which begins with your birthday. Mail it for each to Astro-Graph, Box 488, Radio City Station, N.Y. 10019. Be sure to specify birthday.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22)
A tendency to spend unnecessarily or unwisely must be held in check today. Foolish purchases will later cause buyer's remorse.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22)
Your desire to fulfill ambitions is admirable, but today you may make an enemy in the process if you are too self-serving.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23)
Things will go smoothly today if you see them for what they are. Don't kid yourself into believing something is easy when it isn't.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22)
Business or commercial matters could be a trifle tricky today. In areas where you feel you have an edge, you may not. Proceed with caution.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 22)
There's a strong chance decisions you make under pressure today could prove unwise. Don't let yourself be pushed into a corner where you must come up with immediate answers.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 23-Jan. 19)
Give explicit, detailed instructions today to persons doing work or serving you. Unless you spell out exactly what you expect, you won't get it.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19)
You're lucky certain ways today, but gambling on things you know little or nothing about isn't one of them. Stay in your own ballpark.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20)
Don't ask the advice of someone today who may tell you what you hope to hear, instead of the truth. Such counsel has no worth.

ARIES (March 21-April 19)
Attend to important tasks early today. You're likely to lose both steam and interest as the clock ticks on. Later excuses won't replace results.

TALIBI (April 20-May 20)
You know how to get that you want today, but you may not know what to do with it. Be as smart in managing gains as you are in acquiring them.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20)
Others can't be counted upon today to do things you should do for yourself. Practice self-reliance. Don't look for easy outs.

Carter Pledges Auto Help

DETROIT (UPI) — President Carter today proclaimed a new era of partnership between the government and the nations automakers and said his administration will recommend nearly $1 billion in aid to the battered industry.
Carter made the announcement after meeting for nearly an hour with top executives of the five U.S. automakers and United Auto Workers union during a one-hour stopover en route to Japan.
Describing the closed-door session at Detroit Metro Airport as an historic meeting, Carter said he will recommend changes in future automotive regulations that will free $500 million in cash for the domestic auto industry.
He also called for $50 million and special assistance for cities with high auto-related unemployment and a program providing for between $200 million and $400 million in guaranteed loans for hard-pressed auto dealers.
Carter also said he would ask for an accelerated ruling from the International Trade Commission on a petition filed by the UAW seeking to limit imports of foreign automobiles.

Closed Hearing Committee Upholds McClanahan Firing

After meeting for more than five hours behind closed doors, a grievance committee for the Seminole County Mental Health Center voted 4 to 1 to uphold the recent firing of A. A. "Mac" McClanahan for alleged unprofessional conduct.
McClanahan, a 49-year-old personnel director with the health group, was fired June 26 by the center's new director for attempting to tape-record a staff meeting.
But whether Monday night's grievance committee action is binding remained unclear today. Ivan Bowers, a member of the board of directors who did not serve on the grievance committee, said this morning the guidelines on final authority in such matters is unclear.
The grievance committee's action will now go before the entire board at its July 24th meeting and Bowers said he will ask the board's attorney to issue a legal opinion on whether the vote by the grievance committee to uphold the firing is binding, or if the total board of directors must vote to accept the committee's action.
The center's director, Dr. George Lindenfeld, said he considered the attempted tape-recording unethical and unprofessional and dismissed McClanahan the same day. McClanahan later said he tried to tape the meeting because a secretary who ordinarily would have kept minutes was absent, but he mistakenly put the recorder on rewind instead of record.
McClanahan appealed the firing and the grievance committee of five members was setup to hear testimony Monday night at the center's Crane Room offices in Altamonte Springs.
However, although McClanahan asked that the public and press be allowed to sit in on the meeting, the committee decided to hold it behind closed doors on the advice of one of its members, Bill Fernandez, Fernandez, of Altamonte Springs, is a lawyer and legal counsel for the mental health center's board of directors.
Fernandez said it was his opinion the grievance committee should hold the meeting in private to avoid embarrassing or intimidating witnesses and to expedite the proceedings, according to Bowers.
About 20 persons attempted to sit in on the hearing Monday night, according to McClanahan, but a committee member ordered them to leave the meeting room and wait in another part of the building.
"I'm really sick about this," Mrs. McClanahan said today. "I thought the meeting would be open to the public and the whole thing straightened out. But I guess that's not what the committee really wanted. I was so upset last night. That man who told us we couldn't stay inside the meeting room told me when I asked what would happen if we didn't leave that I'd be bodily removed."

The hearing began shortly after 7 p.m. and those spectators and witnesses who remained until it ended at about 11:30 a.m. said various witnesses were called to testify throughout the night.
McClanahan, who could not be reached for comment today, has recourse to the courts, according to the mental health center's guidelines, and had indicated before the hearing if his dismissal were upheld he would carry the matter further.
"I can't say today whether he'll take it to court, but I remember Mac telling me awhile ago that he wouldn't lie down and die on this thing, so I guess that tells you something," Bowers said.
Those who served on the grievance committee Monday night were: Fernandez, Jerry LeBoy of Longwood, an insurance man; Mrs. Thelma Mike of Sanford, treasurer of the Good Samaritan Home; Bob Haxen of Altamonte Springs, affiliated with York Associates Inc. of Winter Park; and Charles Dika, a therapist with the mental health center.
Bowers said before the grievance committee voted Monday night, everyone permitted to attend the hearing had to leave the room and a committee member said the vote was by secret ballot. That committee member, Mrs. Mike, however, said the outcome was 4 to 1 to uphold McClanahan's firing, but would not divulge how she voted.
Mrs. Mike said she is confident the entire matter will be made public at the board of directors' July 24th meeting.
Bowers said the board of directors has a capacity of 20 members, but there are only 17 or 18 serving. —TOM GIORDANO

BENNETTS LOSE FIGHT FOR HOME

Lake Mary Maintenance Department workers Robert Lee Perry (left) and Lee Perry begin dismantling the controversial house which was under construction by Terry Bennett on Pine Circle Drive. The structure was condemned by the city after the Lake Mary Council refused to grant an extension to the year-old building permit. Bennett, while building his home, ran afoul of city building codes and was ordered three months ago to halt construction until deficiencies were corrected or face legal action. City Manager Paul Kufhes said the building was being torn down piece by piece to salvage as much of the material as possible.

But Carter said the plan he outlined today is just a first step in what he described as a new very close-knit partnership between the government and the auto industry.

Carter made the announcement as Republican officials gathered here for next week's national nominating convention. GOP officials have accused the president of blatant politics and trying to stigmatize the meeting.

Following today's one-hour stop, the president flew to Japan — Detroit's chief foreign car rival — for memorial services honoring the late Prime Minister Masayoshi Ohira.

Carter arrived at Detroit Metropolitan Airport at 7:05 a.m. EDT from Plains, Ga., and went quickly to a private meeting room for the session with top industry executives and union leaders.

We have literally worked day and night to come up with a proposal, he said before the meeting, which included U.S. trade negotiator Rubin Askew.

Inside the meeting room, Carter sat next to General Motors Corp. Chairman Thomas Murphy on his left and United Auto Workers union President Douglas Fraser on his right.

Vice President Walter Mondale told a Detroit news conference Monday, the results being announced tomorrow will be good news for Detroit, good news for autoworkers and good news for the long-term economic health of our nation.

During his three-day stay in Plains, Carter examined a report by a White House task force on the problems facing the auto industry and the various options that might reduce foreign car purchases.

Meanwhile, the Washington Post said today the administration's preliminary mid-year economic forecast predicts inflation will slow substantially in coming months, the unemployment rate will climb to 8.3 percent by the end of the year and the recession will bottom out by year end.

The Post also said the administration has drafted its alternative to Republican presidential hopeful Ronald Reagan's tax-cut plan for business.

More than two dozen banks lowered their prime lending rates by a quarter of a percent to 11.5 percent Monday, following the federal government's decision last week to phase out credit restraints.

Since the prime is tied to other short-term interest rates, it is viewed as a barometer of loan costs to businesses and consumers. But there is no way to tell how soon the other interest rates will drop.

Many Americans have held off major purchases in the last few months, either because they could not obtain bank loans or felt the interest rates were too high. The resulting sales slump has severely affected the construction and auto industries, leading to massive employee layoffs.

Chase Manhattan Bank triggered the new round of prime-cutting early Monday, ending the two-year prime rate structure that had existed since Morgan Guaranty Trust and three other banks went from 12 percent to 11.5 percent two weeks ago. Twenty-five banks then followed Chase Manhattan's lead.

First Pacific, based in Beverly Hills, Calif., broke ranks with the rest of the industry and dropped its prime to 10 percent.

The government's announcement last week it would completely eliminate the credit restrictions spurred the latest round of decreases.

Wholesale Prices Rise 0.8%

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Prices at the wholesale level increased 0.8 percent in June as the cost of virtually everything but energy was on the rise, the government reported today.

The Labor Department said its Producer Price Index rose at a compound annual rate of 9.9 percent last month. That was a solid increase over April and May.

The cost of food and long-lasting consumer products such as automobiles and appliances grew considerably faster in June than they had in earlier months and accounted for most of the increase. President Carter's economic advisers

Gasoline Surplus Could Spark Price Wars

U.S. oil industry stocks totaled 265.5 million barrels on June 27, up from 263.5 million barrels on May 22, the week before Memorial Day, the letter said.
It is unheard of for gasoline stocks to grow after (Memorial Day), which traditionally marks the beginning of the summer driving season, Lundberg said.
Up to now it has appeared that excess gasoline would soften prices — retail and even wholesale — but not reduce them, the letter said.
The gasoline glut showing no signs of abating and motorists using about 20 percent less gasoline than is available, the probability of local price wars has increased and even the national average retail gasoline price might come down before the summer is out, Lundberg said.

Swamp Fire Smolders In Tanglewood Area

Thick smoke shrouded the Tanglewood-Winter Woods area Monday afternoon almost obscuring the sun as the result of a fire that broke out earlier in the afternoon burning approximately 100 acres of swampy area and threatening several homes.
The blaze was brought under control by Seminole County, Casselberry and Forest Service firefighters, but it may be weeks before the fire is completely out and residents get relief from the smoke, according to Seminole County Battalion Chief Bill Kinley, who said, "We've done all we can do. It will take a heavy rain to put it out completely."
Fire officials think the fire was started by children playing with fire crackers or matches. For the past 10 years the past boys have burned long periods about once a year during the dry season.
