Robbers hit Sanford restaurant; break-in at gun shop

By NICK PFEIFAU
Herald Staff Writer

SANFORD — Police overnight have been busy battling crime in Sanford, including a restaurant robbery last night and a burglary early this morning.

The burglary was reported shortly after 3:30 this morning at A&N Gun Shop, 501 S. French Avenue.

"Officers responded to an alarm and found the front window of the gun store had been smashed out," said Sanford Police Commander Dennis Whitmire. "When they went into the building, they found the perpetrator, identified as Larry Oliver, in a rear room, hiding behind a pile of boxes.

No guns in the store were reported taken. Larry Oliver, 20, of 776 Lake Monroe Terrace, was arrested and taken to the John E. Polk Correctional Facility.

Last night, police investigated the armed robbery of the Holiday House restaurant, 4200 S. U.S. 17-92.

"We received the call at 9:02 p.m. last night," Whitmire explained. "Two men reportedly went into the restaurant just as it closed and demanded money at gunpoint."

"After the manager gave them a bank bag with about $200 in it, the two locked the manager and two employees in a cooler," he continued.

None of the workers were injured during the incident.

One of the men was allegedly armed with a blue steel revolver during the robbery. "When he went to leave the restaurant," Whitmire said, "he apparently tried to put the revolver in his pocket, and it accidentally went off, but the bullet struck a file cabinet and apparently didn't cause any injury."

Whitmire said both of the men were wearing... See Crime, Page 5A

SANFORD — One of the three main contractors building the Seminole County expressway from Aloma Avenue to Sanford has been issued a delinquency notice by the Florida Department of Transportation which could suspend the company from bidding on future state road contracts.

White Construction Co., Chiefland, Fla., appealed the notice last week, freeing them to bid until the appeal is decided by a state hearing officer. In the appeal, White president L.M. White asserted his company was not delinquent and indeed, was due damages and additional work days.

Pastors for peace meet parliament

MEXICO CITY — American and Canadian pastors who oppose the U.S. economic blockade against Cuba met with the president of the Cuban parliament on the second day of their visit to the island nation.

Cuba's official Presna Latina news service, monitored in Mexico City, said some 260 members of the Pastors for Peace convoy met Monday morning with Ricardo Alarcon.

President Fidel Castro greeted two plane-loads of the pastors when they flew to Havana on Sunday.

Meanwhile, about 150 tons of aid collected by the group and Mexican supporters was being loaded onto a Cuban ship at the Mexican port of Tampico.

The group crossed the U.S. border at Laredo, Texas, on Thursday. They flew to Havana from Tampico aboard two special Cuban jetliners Sunday afternoon.

The Cuban news agency said Castro asked about the condition of 14 members of the group who were continuing a hunger strike aboard a confiscated school bus in Laredo.

The 14 began the hunger strike on Thursday when U.S. Customs officials impounded the bus. The hunger strikers were demanding that they be allowed to donate the bus to a home for the aged in Cuba.

Man walks from Florida to Las Cruces

ALBUQUERQUE, N.M. — A participant in the three-day National Catholic Charismatic Conference walked most of the way here from St. Augustine, Fla., and plans to keep walking to Sonoma, Calif., now that it's over.

The conference drew 3,000 people from 46 states, Mexico, Canada and the Virgin Islands.

James Murphy, national chairman of the National Charismatic Renewal Steering Committee, walked from St. Augustine, Fla., to Las Cruces carrying a 6-foot-tall wooden cross.

He caught a ride Friday from Las Cruces to Albuquerque for the three-day conference.

Murphy began his 4,000-mile cross country trek July 14, 1992, in response to a pastoral letter by America's Roman Catholic bishops.

State agrees to pay portion of transplant

FORT LAUDERDALE — Lexen Pope won a battle toward saving his young life when the state agreed to pay for a majority of a bowel and liver transplant operation.

U.S. District Judge Norman Roettger approved an agreement Monday that Florida's Medicaid program pay for 75 percent of Pope's operation, and the other 25 percent will be paid for by the Children's Hospital of Pittsburgh, which will perform the operation.

"I can look at him and really smile now," said Ramona Pope, mother of the 15-month-old boy. "He's going to show us that he can eat and grow up to be a normal child. He's going to live."

The agreement was reached by Lexen's attorneys and the state Department of Health and Rehabilitative Services following a court battle that culminated last week with a federal appeals court ordering the state to pay for the transplant.

Lexen and Pope are expected to fly to Pittsburgh today so doctors at Children's Hospital can evaluate the Lauderhill boy.

Experts from Pittsburgh figure there's an 82 to 85 percent chance that a liver and bowel transplant will succeed — and Lexen is now on the list, waiting for a donor whose organs match his blood and tissue.

Smith ordered to serve three months

MIAMI — In November 1982, Larry Smith won election to a U.S. House seat he seemed destined to hold for decades. This November, he will enter federal prison, his political career in ruins.

A federal judge Monday ordered him to serve three months in prison after listening to appeals from the former five-term congressman and prominent supporters.

"I'm terribly sorry for what I've done. There was no excuse for what I did... I beg you to view the totality of my life," said Smith, voice cracking as he appealed for leniency on charges of tax evasion and making a false campaign expense report.

Known for a self-assured, flashy style as congressman, Smith the defendant emotionally told U.S. District Judge Donald Graham he's "living in a deep, dark hole" after more than two decades as a Broward County community leader. "People poke each other" when they see him and his wife at the movies or entering a restaurant, Smith said.

Smith, 52, had hoped to remain free and perform community service instead of going to prison. Graham received letters from a "virtual who's who in American politics," civic and religious leaders, and heard testimonials Monday from retired 19-term U.S. Rep. Dante Fascell and other supporters.

But he ordered him to spend three months in prison and two years on probation that will include community service, and to pay a $5,000 fine and back taxes of about $40,000. Smith, who pleaded guilty May 25 to single counts of tax evasion and filing a false campaign expense report, also faces possible federal elections fines and possible disciplinary action by the Florida Bar.

The 'gateway' to Lake Mary

Commission to address equipment concealment ordinance

By NICK PFEIFAU
Herald Staff Writer

LAKE MARY — An ordinance designed to make Lake Mary Boulevard, "an aesthetically-pleasing gateway to the city," is expected to be brought before the city commission soon.

It will call for certain design standards which would result in screening air conditioners. As worded, the ordinance would also deal with ventilation equipment, refrigeration systems, heating units, incinerator units and satellite dishes.

The ordinance says "they must be screened so that they are not visible from any public right-of-way."

On May 6 of this year, the commission directed the city staff to draft an ordinance screening mechanical equipment from view on the Lake Mary Boulevard gateway.

The ordinance was presented at the July 15 city commission meeting, but was tabled. At that time, West was instructed to include additional proposals in the ordinance pertaining to Rinchart Road improvements.

West is now planning to re-submit the Boulevard ordinance as presented in mid-July, but is also preparing a separate Rinchart Road corridor ordinance which he believes will better deal with the differing needs of the two thoroughfares, if governed under separate ordinances.

Of prime consideration in the Boulevard gateway area, is the method to be recommended for concealing the outdoor equipment.

The ordinance says, "The screen shall consist of a solid wall, facade, parapet or other similar screening material which is architecturally compatible and consistent with the associated building."

Regarding the use of landscaping to hide such equipment, the ordinance says, "If utilized, the plantings must be high enough within one year of planting to provide a screen which will screen the entire unit with a minimum of 75 percent opacity."

The next Lake Mary City Commission meeting is scheduled for this Thursday, Aug. 5, beginning at 7 p.m.

Prior to the meeting, a special workshop meeting will begin at 6 p.m., as fiscal year 1993/94 budget hearings continue.

Inmates work for employees, without pay

By Associated Press

PANAMA CITY — Inmates have been repairing cars, washing boats and cleaning fish for free for Bay County jail employees, a newspaper reported.

A state regulation allows such private work if its voluntary, documented and paid, but the rule often was broken. The News-Herald in Panama City reported for today's editions.

"Usually there was never even an offer (of pay)," said Fred Schulha, who spent the first six months of 1993 at the Bay County jail annex, which is run by Nashville, Tenn.-based Corrections Corporation of America. Inmate labor records show he performed work for jail employees on at least 34 occasions.

According to jail records, no money was put into his account for the work he performed. The 46-year-old former inmate said he was paid only once and that the transaction was not recorded.

"You were lucky if you got a thank-you," he said.

Corporate spokeswoman Susan Hart said record keeping at the jail, which houses about 260 inmates, would be improved, but she would not address allegations that inmate labor was misused.

The state administrative code allows inmates to work without pay for county purposes, such as on road crews and for non-profit organizations. Inmates can do private work for jail employees if the work is voluntary, documented and paid.

"If, in fact, the inmates were doing such labor and were not being paid, that would be a direct violation of the Florida Administrative Code," said Randy Berg of the Miami-based Justice Institute, a Miami-based prisoners'-rights organization. "I'm all for getting inmates out of their cells and working for the county, like washing sheriff's cars, but where do you draw the line?"

State education department sides with school against board

By JACKIE HALLIFAX
Associated Press Writer

FALLAHASSEE — The state Department of Education is backing a Seminole Springs Elementary School in its power struggle with the Lake County School Board.

The case is one that has implications for reform efforts throughout the state, Education Commissioner Betty Castor said Monday.

School boards don't have the power to change improvement plans prepared by parents and teachers at each school, Castor's department has concluded in an advisory legal opinion.

Defying the state could cost the Lake County School Board some $4.9 million in lottery funds.

The power struggle strikes at the heart of a 1991 law that transferred authority over classrooms from legislators to parents and teachers at each school.

"The idea here is that schools are empowered," Castor said.

Under the reform law passed two years ago, a council at each school was directed to develop a customized improvement plan ready for this fall.

The state's 67 school boards were directed to approve or reject the plans but were not given the power to dictate changes, under the department's interpretation of the law.

District lottery funds are contingent upon compliance.

The dispute began last month when the Lake County School Board voted 3-2 to delete parts of an improvement plan that teachers and parents at Seminole Springs Elementary spent four months writing.

The school, near Eustis, covers kindergarten through fifth grade and includes some 800 students from a rural 135 square-mile area. The provisions deleted would have set up a pre-kindergarten program and based some grades on a compilation of work rather than tests.

After its plan was changed by the board, the school advisory council hired an attorney, who filed a lawsuit and wrote Castor.

The advisory opinion issued Monday has the force of law unless it's over ruled by a judge. In the separate lawsuit, a court hearing set for today was postponed until later this month.

She said she found a side door open and a fan running in her den. There was also "a lot of dirt on the floors."

She reported that a video cassette player, a bottle of champagne and two bottles of beer had been taken.

She told deputies that entry may have been made through a door left unlocked by the person she had asked to watch the house while she was gone.

● A woman in the 4900 block of Fawn Ridge Place, Sanford reported to the Seminole County sheriff's office that someone entered her home on Wednesday and took various items, including picture frames with numerous pictures, a tin box, $15 in cash, her purse and her wallet.

Deputies said there was no sign of forced entry into the house.

Car burglaries investigated

By NICK PFEIFAU

SANFORD — Seminole County Sheriff's deputies and Sanford police are investigating a rash of vehicular burglaries and one theft Saturday. All of the incidents occurred in the parking lot area at the CSX train terminal, 800 Persimmon Avenue.

The attempted burglaries were reportedly similar in nature. In each case, a window had been broken to gain entry, and damage had been reported to the steering column.

Seminole County Sheriff's spokesman George Procheil commented, "Based on the fact that they were so similar in what happened to each car, we are naturally assuming that all of them were broken into by the same person or persons."

He added, "Right now, we are actively pursuing a number of leads in this case, and we may have some results in the near future."

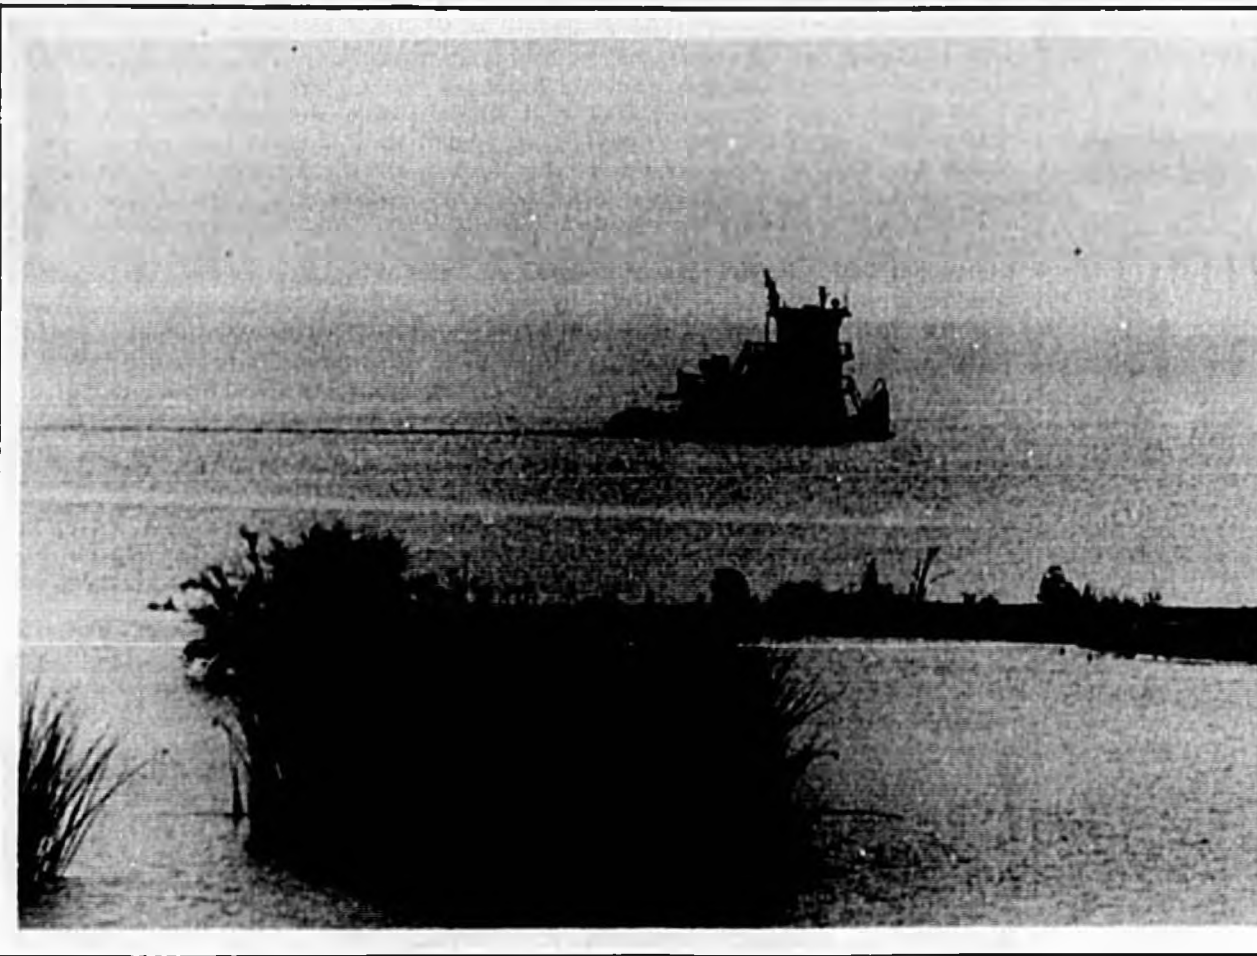

Sanford police reported one vehicle, a

1964 Oldsmobile, was located several hours later near 6th Street and Pecan Avenue. As in other cases, the steering column had been damaged, and a window broken out.

Burglaries were also reported in three additional vehicles. In one, $80 in damage was reported with $45 in items taken.

Another vehicle suffered $350 in damage.

Although the steering column was damaged and a window broken in a third vehicle, no estimate of damage was immediately reported.

Comatose teen locked in car trunk revives

By The Associated Press

SANFORD — A teen-ager has regained consciousness after being in a coma since mid-July when he was locked for hours in the hot trunk of his parents' car after it was stolen, a hospital spokeswoman said.

Phillip Clayton Chandler, 16, was found battered and unconscious in the parked car in the parking lot of a Volusia County community college campus in DeBary on July 18. Authorities said he had been forced into the trunk by two teenagers who stole the vehicle.

His condition was upgraded from critical to serious on Monday, said Lisa Neway, a spokeswoman for Central Florida Regional Hospital in Sanford.

Chandler was removed from a respirator Saturday and came out of the coma early Sunday, she said.

A statement released by his parents, Eve and Jim Chandler, said:

"On August 1, 1993, about 12:30 a.m., we went to the ICU to tell Phillip good night. I bent over to kiss his cheek and asked him if he could give me a hug.

He slowly raised his left arm and placed it around my neck and squeezed me real tight! He did this three times and then hugged his Dad, also! We were on cloud nine! He hugged us again at 8 a.m. His doctors were amazed.

"Our prayer now is for Phillip to recover enough to see justice done."

The hospital said Chandler has "improved significantly." He is able to follow and respond to basic direction and may be released to a rehabilitation hospital within 10 days.

When the youth was found by a campus security guard, he had a T-shirt stuffed in his mouth and what looked like burn marks on his arm.

Terrance Jenkins and Michael Daymon, both 17, were being held in the Orange County Juvenile Detention Center without bond on charges of armed robbery and auto theft. They face other charges, officials said.

A 14-year-old girl, who was with the pair when the car was stopped in Maitland, was also charged with auto theft. She was not identified because of her age.

Auction to benefit transplant recipients

By NICK PFEIFAU
Herald Staff Writer

The National Organ Transplant Foundation, (NOTF) needs help. Not just an organ, but a piano, vase, sofa, anything which can be auctioned.

To help in raising funds for the operation, an auction is being planned for Sept. 11, at the Altamonte Hilton.

Theresa Coker, of NOTF's Board of Directors commented, "There must be a million charities asking for help these days, so getting items for our auction has not been easy. But we need anything we can get, big and small, for this event."

NOTF receives no federal, state or local government assistance and it is not a member of the United Way. "We depend on the Central Florida concerned citizens and business community for financial support," Coker said.

Coker said the money obtained from the auction will go to help the continuing community education and awareness program about organ and tissue donations.

It will also help provide limited financial aid to needy patients, as well as organize and sponsor support groups for pre/post transplant patients.

The main goal of NOTF is to help all transplant patients; heart, kidney, liver, lung, bone marrow, cornea, pancreas, bone, skin, and heart valves.

"No patient or family will wait alone for an organ transplant without support here in Central Florida," Coker explained.

To donate items which could be auctioned in the September event, or to learn more about the National Organ Transplant Foundation, phone Theresa Coker, 339-LIVE.

The NOTF national headquarters is located in Suite 214, 400 E. Semoran Blvd., Casselberry.

Stop coddling teen criminals

Years ago, a story regarding crime committed by a teenager was a rarity. It would be a leading news story.

Teen crimes are still prominent in today's news, but primarily because of the increasing number of them, and the level of violence.

In just two editions last week, the Sanford Herald reported on a 16-year old convicted of setting a fire which caused over $4 million in damage. Two 18-year olds pleaded no contest in the same incident.

In other stories: an 18-year old turned himself in to police following an armed break-in; a 14- and 15-year old who were jailed on first degree murder charges; two teens charged in an explosion at Lyman High School; and, a 19-year old charged with a bombing in Tacoma, Wash.

Taking another look back in time, youngsters stayed away from crime, fearing they would end up serving many years in jail.

Today, many mock the authorities, knowing they will be released in a short time period. There is no longer a fear of long prison terms.

Governments and law enforcement agencies are well aware of teen crime. Many have called meetings to address the problem. Most of the time, the only answer has been to increase activity to crack down on such criminals.

Such a drive may produce more arrests, but it makes very little difference to teens who realize how little they will be punished.

Judges may give sentences, but law officers say the sentences mean little when our laws allow for early release.

We find it difficult to believe the lack of proper punishment is due to insufficient jail space.

It's time to stop molly-coddling criminals because they are still in their teens. These youngsters clearly do not value lives and property of others. Why do we continue to shelter them?

It's time the laws were re-examined regarding jail terms and punishment. Let us return to the old axiom, "crime does not pay."

Some good kids

These days you always hear about teenage crime and disrespect. However, last week I had the opportunity to accompany the K of C Cardinals, Champions of the Sanford Recreation Babe Ruth Baseball League, to Tinker Field for an Orlando Cubs game.

Manager Otis Raines, his assistants, and their parents can be proud of these youngsters. They were true gentlemen and appreciative of the Knights of Columbus' sponsoring their team during the season and taking them to the Cubs' game.

We appreciate them too, not only for being champs, but because they act like champs on and off the field. The Knights of Columbus look forward to sponsoring the team next year. "Way To Go Cardinals, you've done yourselves proud."

Games remain great

I would like to take this opportunity on behalf of the Golden Age Games to thank you for your recent editorial on Monday, July 26. I feel that Sanford should be honored to have such an outstanding and nationally recognized event in their town. From its institution, our citizens have played a "vital" role in its success. Without the combined effort of our many individual and group volunteers, we would not be the role model that we are! My thank goes out to each and every one!

We do hope that our local businesses will help us through sponsorship, but we also need the donations of concerned citizens. Together, business and private individuals will help us to continue our rich tradition of excellence! It is always great to hear from so many athletes that "love to come to Sanford." This year will be no exception.

Violence in schools must go now

Three teen-agers carrying a baseball bat, a billy club and a knife burst into a high school classroom in Dartmouth, Mass., and fatally stab a 16-year-old freshman in front of his classmates.

A grade-school principal in Brooklyn, N.Y., goes searching for a missing student and is shot and killed in cross fire between several youths.

Six students are shot and another trampled under foot when a 17-year-old in Amarillo, Texas, opens fire in a crowded hallway following a pep rally.

These were a few of the horrific incidents of violence cited this week by Education Secretary Richard Riley at a Washington, D.C., forum at which various youth experts from around the country pondered ways to promote disarmament within the nation's schools.

Riley's appearance dove-tailed with release of a shocking new survey by pollster Louis Harris in which six of 10 school children grades six through 12 said they could readily acquire a handgun if they wanted, and one in three said they could do so inside of an hour.

Many of the surveyed students must know from firsthand experience. The Justice Department estimates that 100,000 kids carry a gun to school on a daily basis.

And that's not the only kind of weapon students are bringing to school. They're also totting knives, razors, clubs and other hardware.

Pat down the kids at the average public school — not only in the inner city, but also the suburbs — and one in five will have some weapon or another.

Of course, with students armed to the teeth, the level of school violence and related mayhem has gone through the roof. Secretary Riley figured that 3 million thefts and violent crimes occur on or near school campuses every year. That works out in roughly 16,000 violent and criminal acts a day, or one incident every six seconds.

Teachers are quaking in their boots. Some 20 percent reported being verbally abused last year, 8 percent physically threatened. Two percent — nearly 50,000 teachers — actually were physically attacked. You almost can't blame teachers at the worst schools for seeking combat pay.

How did our schools become such war zones? Back when I was in high school, about 15 years ago, you had your toughs, your bullies, your bad hombres. They might pick a fight here and there. They'd send their prey home with nothing more than a bloody nose and injured pride.

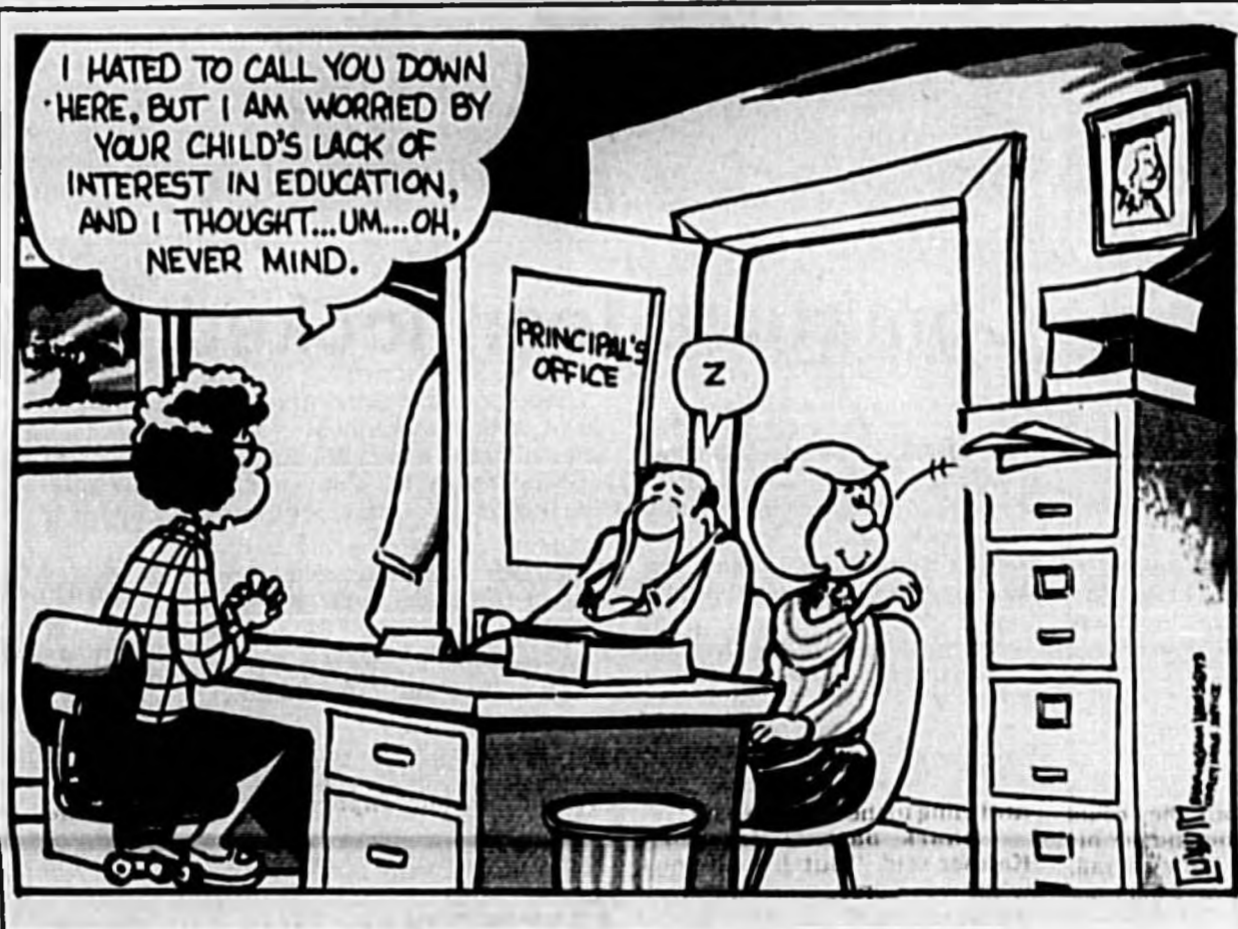

Nowadays, the toughs, the bullies, the bad hombres are packing. If they pick a fight with another kid, there is a very real possibility that the picked-on kid will go home in a box.

If I'm a parent with schoolchildren today, I live in constant fear for their safety. Never mind what the kid learned in class today, did he or she get home safely?

It's not supposed to be this way. Parents give public schools daytime custody of their kids. They have a right to expect that their kids will be educated in a violence-free environment conducive to learning. They shouldn't have to dodge bullets in school hallways or duck knives

The Justice Department estimates that 100,000 kids carry a gun to school on a daily basis.

How chemicals affect health

Scientists studying what causes breast cancer and its alarming rate of increase are zeroing in on environmental toxins that include synthetic chemicals from pesticides to plastics.

Their findings are all the more disturbing because they are part of an emerging pattern indicating that infinitesimal doses of man-made chemicals trigger a variety of damaging health effects, some of which originate in the fetus in a mother's womb but do not show up until the child grows to adulthood.

The findings also portend a revolution in our understanding of how pesticides and other synthetic toxins work on the human body.

"Three decades ago, one in 20 American women developed breast cancer by age 85," according to congressional testimony by Dr. Devra Lee Davis, a toxicologist at the U.S. Health and Human Services Department. "Today the disease afflicts one out of nine, robbing them on average of 20 years of life."

Half of all breast cancers occur in North America and Europe, where only a fifth of the world's female population resides. Known risks like alcohol and high-calorie diets may explain up to 30 percent of these cases. But the cause behind the remaining 70 percent has been a mystery until, the new research indicates, now.

The byproducts of pesticides like DDT that accumulate in human fat tissue and other synthetics like PCBs and PAHs from the plastics industry are the targets of this new investigation.

"All Americans have measurable levels of styrenes, ethyl phenol and dioxin in their fatty tissue," the Center for Resource Economics reports, citing government research on compounds that persist in the body once they lodge there. "Nearly all (Americans) have quantities of ethyl benzene, chlorobenzene, PCBs and DDE, a byproduct of the banned pesticide DDT." (DDT is actually highly restricted, not banned in the United States.)

Davis and others are discovering how some of these "bioaccumulators" behave on the tiny scale of cells and molecules.

What is apparently happening is that molecules called receptors on the walls of cells in the breast lock on to synthetics, which act like a form of the powerful female hormone estrogen and tell the cell to multiply. While the full mechanism remains unclear, this artificially induced rapid cell growth seems to be the tripwire igniting a chain of reactions leading to breast cancer.

While not all bioaccumulators are mistaken for estrogen on the cellular level, it is worth noting that in 1991 alone, major U.S. industries dumped 3,002,545 pounds of bioaccumulators into our air, our water and onto the ground. Much of it will inevitably wind up in our children's bodies as it is passed up through the food chain.

Thirty years ago when the government began to regulate pesticides and other toxins, the tests used to assess health effects were clumsy. Using massive doses of synthetics, researchers observed gross results: death or convulsions, for example, or upon autopsy, damage to vital organs.

What caused these gross results was unknown. Now, with enormous advances in biochemistry over the past 20 years, scientists are just beginning to understand what's happening inside individual cells exposed to synthetic chemicals.

Davis' research is only one highly disturbing example.

Dr. Theo Colborn of the World Wildlife Fund and some 26 other researchers have compiled evidence that some synthetics have long-term effects unimagined two decades ago. They are discovering that minuscule doses of artificial chemicals received by the fetus in a mother's womb are probably responsible for non-cancer disruption of the endocrine, immune and nervous systems that do not appear as symptoms at birth and may not show up until the child grows into adulthood.

The mechanism, as in Davis' research, appears to involve a number of chemicals that behave like, or interfere with, naturally produced female estrogen hormones. "It looks like there are a lot of unnaturally produced compounds that disrupt normal estrogen activity," Colborn says.

An estrogen-mimicking compound present in the womb after conception can, in effect, teach the embryo to create cell receptor molecules that select for that compound, Colborn explains.

The record of a 50 percent drop in male sperm count worldwide since 1938 may be an example of this mechanism. If mistaken as female estrogen, these synthetics may "trick" a developing male embryo into not producing the normal amount of cells associated with male functioning. "Basically, what you have is a sperm source as the male matures that's not as large as it used to be," Colborn says.

This rapid cell growth seems to be the tripwire igniting a chain of reactions leading to breast cancer.

Prejudice and gays in military

When President Clinton responded to a reporter's suggestion that his policy regarding gays in the military was weak, he replied hotly that he was the first president brave enough to confront the issue and, in his estimation, that wasn't weakness.

Although his "Don't ask, don't tell, don't pursue" policy is contradictory and still discriminatory, I had to empathize with him. No matter what position a person in the public eye takes on gay rights today, he or she can plan on brickbats from bus loads of folks who see things differently. I'd offer to trade him a week's stint as a columnist so he could understand just how un-alone he is, but I don't think he could tolerate the living conditions.

Once the policy was announced, I listened to and read many reactions from people all over the country, and noticed they fit basically into two camps: those who believe being gay is a sick and threatening behavior and/or an abomination against God; and those who base their feelings about homosexuality on just a few, or sometimes even only one, personal experience with gay people. Over the years, when I've written about the issue, the letters I've received basically fell into those camps.

Here are two examples from the "personal experience" side:

"I'm against homosexuals serving in the military. I was in the Navy during World War II and once while I was on leave, hotel rooms were scarce and the clerk asked me if I'd mind sharing a room with another soldier. I said it was fine, and then woke up in the middle of the night with the guy fondling me."

"When my wonderful 28-year-old son came home last summer, he told me he was gay and had felt that way since he was a small child. Honestly, if I'd known back then, I don't know if I could have handled it. But seeing his life now, knowing how other people love and respect him and perhaps most importantly, having an opportunity to see other gay people in the media as I couldn't when he was growing up, his choice seemed perfectly natural to me."

Many service personnel interviewed about the new policy either expressed fears -- "I don't want to take a shower in front of someone who's gay" -- or cited personal experiences: "I served with a gay guy and he didn't bother me. I think that's a person's own business, as long as he doesn't bother me."

Even military brass who believe gays will prove a disruption to military service base their beliefs on either fears or anecdotal experiences. Some cited gay bashing by service members. Others said they believed heterosexual service members would have no confidence in gay comrades and, therefore, military performance would naturally be compromised.

Throughout this discussion, it has become strikingly apparent how little empirical proof we have to believe that gay service members will impair our military. There are no studies that prove either one side or the other, yet historians have chronicled the service of gay soldiers and found many distinguished careers, including medal winners, among those who have "come out."

What kind of policy can we possibly make based solely on either our fears or isolated personal experiences? For every instance of gay service members being sexually irresponsible there are many more instances of heterosexual service members behaving that way. "The other soldiers won't serve with them" is the same old saw we heard used about blacks and women when they sought better military service opportunities.

I listened to and read many reactions from people all over the country, and noticed they fit basically into two camps.

State works out GMAC agreement

By JACKIE HALLIFAX
Associated Press Writer

TALLAHASSEE — An agreement worked out by the state Department of Revenue and the financing arm of General Motors should result in the state getting more of the sales tax paid by new-car buyers.

Two former dealers in Central Florida have accused General Motors Acceptance Corp. of pocketing sales tax when it takes over the operations of dealerships that are in trouble or transition.

At least $2 million in taxes is involved in the cases of the two dealers. One has been acquitted of sales tax theft and the other is awaiting trial.

The automaker has denied any wrongdoing.

The head of the Department of Revenue praised the company for its understanding and cooperation.

"We have been working with GMAC to address the perception that impropriety may exist with respect to the remittance of sales tax in situations where automobile dealers are in default with GMAC," Larry Fuchs wrote in a letter to Gov. Lawton Chiles that was released Monday.

In the past, GMAC has left the tax payment to the discretion of the dealer even when the company collected the check.

The company maintains the responsibility for sending the sales tax into the state remained with the dealer; the two former dealers maintain the responsibility belongs to whoever collects the tax from the customer.

From now on, GMAC will return to the dealer money to cover the sales tax, according to the letter.

Fuchs was on vacation Monday and Jim Zingale, deputy director, did not return a phone call Monday. The governor's office has not yet had a chance to review the letter.

Terry Sullivan, a GMAC spokesman in Detroit, said he had not seen Fuchs' letter and would call back after talking with the company's attorneys.

Former dealer Richard Reed said the change in policy was a first step but that the state had a moral responsibility to go after the money GM has already collected.

The Orlando man, who was acquitted of sales tax theft, stood up at a regular meeting of Chiles and the Cabinet in May to make the allegations against GMAC. At the time, he estimated the state could be losing $20 million to $40 million a year to GM and other carmakers.

That estimate is based on an assumption that 5 percent of the new-car dealers in Florida go out of business annually and some $200,000 in sales tax at each of those businesses never is remitted to the state.

Florida has approximately 900 new-car dealerships. In his letter, Fuchs said the Revenue Department is reviewing transactions with other automobile financing entities.

the charter amendment by outlining why he would not allow commissioner Fred Pearl to participate in the vote. Pearl was on a speaker telephone in the commission chambers because he was out of town on business.

Under the rules and procedures and city bylaws governing the commission, Lovestrand said there was no provision made for telephone voting. In addition, there are no provisions allowing absentee voting and the only commissioners who could vote were those actually present. Lovestrand said. The mayor also said the parliamentarian (attorney) advises whoever is in charge of the meeting, but it is up to the chairman to actually decide what happens.

City attorney Becky Vose, who sat gently shaking her head as she listened to Lovestrand outline why Pearl would not be allowed to vote, said, "I feel like I've been ambushed." Vose said she disagreed with the legal arguments the mayor presented. Under the Florida Government in the Sunshine rules, Vose said telephone voting is allowed.

"He is present by telephone," Vose said. "He is here by telephone."

In the future, Vose requested advanced notice if such legal questions are raised prior to the meeting, so she can adequately research them.

Commissioner Harvey Smerilson, who proposed the original charter amendment, charged Lovestrand was trying to overstep the decision of the majority of the commission. It was a politically motivated move, he added. Smerilson also contended the city commission rules and procedures which Lovestrand referred to have not been officially voted on and adopted as required. The mayor countered the rules and procedures do not require a vote and are in force.

Last week, Pearl asked whether the vote by telephone at last night's regular meeting was acceptable and legal. If there was a problem with it, Pearl asked a special meeting be conducted July 29 for the first reading of the ordinance amendment because he was going to be out of town on business during the regular meeting.

The majority of the commission agreed the telephone vote was acceptable after the city attorney said that kind of vote was permitted under state law.

Refusing to recognize Pearl, whose voice was coming from a telephone sitting at his elbow, Lovestrand said, "How do I know that is Fred Pearl and not Rich Little?" Laughter erupted from the small audience. Pearl offered his social security number as proof of who he was.

By allowing the telephone vote, Lovestrand explained, he could imagine all kinds of voting scenarios, including votes being telephoned in from Magic basketball games or other venues. If a commissioner chose not to attend a meeting.

Pearl said he plans to file a complaint against Lovestrand with the governor's office asking the mayor be removed from office. He also said he plans to consult his lawyer about a possible lawsuit against the mayor.

Saying he was not going to be a part of any absentee voting, Lovestrand left the commission meeting. Deputy mayor Smerilson took charge of the meeting, calling a brief recess. Commissioner Steve Miller told Vose he might leave if a vote was taken with Pearl on the speaker phone. However, he remained until the close of the session. Vose advised a special meeting be conducted Monday night for the first reading of the ordinance, in order to avoid a possible lawsuit.

Waiting outside city hall after the meeting, the mayor talked to the three candidates running against Smerilson, Pearl and commissioner Rex Anderson: Iris Benson, Ron Sargent and Annamarie Vacca. When asked if he would attend the special session Monday night, Lovestrand said, "We'll see."

In other business, the commission:

● Okayed budget transfers on first reading but requested more information on $1,500 overtime in the parks and recreation budget. Parks director Sandy Lomax said she was unaware of any overtime for her employees. They also transferred over $11,000 from two public service budgets and the wastewater division to pay for hazardous waste removal from the public works compound approved earlier this year.

● Set an August 16 work session to review a proposed commercial garbage franchise.

White asserted 12 reasons for delays, including shortages of materials and trucks, "unreasonable" FDOT inspections, and changed conditions. White also asserted FDOT failed to comply with the terms of the contract for failing to compensate White for delays and other reasons.

A monthly progress report shows that as of June 13, White should have completed 87 percent of the segment, but actually completed 59 percent, 28 percent less. Gary Geddes, Florida's Turnpike project manager for the expressway, said the work schedule was established by White and approved by FDOT.

Under their contract, White must complete all work by mid-September, although expressway project managers predict their work won't be complete until June 1994.

But Monday, Turner pitched no self-help programs to Turning Point members, only the message that if they believe in themselves, they can do anything they want. Turner said he appeared free at the invitation of one of the members, a son of friends.

"We are going to talk about problems and how you live with problems," he said, with the shrug of his barepelt. "The whole world is full of problems."

Turner went on to tell of a teacher who once told him "You need to get that harepelt out of your mind and back to where it belongs." Once he let the self-consciousness and self-pity go, he was able to attain success, Turner said.

"The bottom line is the only helping hand you'll get is the one on the end of your sleeve," he said.

Though his audience was not as enthusiastic as his "No Matter What" starting-over seminar in Orlando two months ago, Turner within minutes had the member's captive attention.

"Are you better today than the first day you started here?" he asked.

"The environment seems so much more acceptable outside than when I started here," said one young man.

"Why is that?" Turner responded quickly.

"I accept myself. I believe in myself" the young man responded to applause and cheers.

Turner urged the gathering to look at themselves in the mirror, focusing on one eye, for two minutes each day for seven days and say only positive things about themselves.

"Start bragging on who you see," he said. "Because if you continue to think the way you have thought, you'll be no better than you have been. You've got to learn to empty out the things that hurt you so you can put in the things that will help you."

"If somebody laughs at you or makes fun of you, don't listen to them. Don't worry about it. Take back your mind. You've lost your mind and you need to get it back."

After the session, Turning Point members said they liked what they heard.

"He's a nice man. A wonderful man," said one woman. "I learned lot's of stuff."

Sailor, clinging to seat cushion, survives 65-mile drift in ocean

By Associated Press

WEST PALM BEACH — A novice sailor, who wanted to cool off with a dip in the ocean, drifted 65 miles over 20 hours while clinging to a seat cushion because he couldn't get back onto the unanchored sailboat.

"I'm a survivor," John Kalmer said Monday. "Not many things scare me."

Kalmer, 52, of Hollywood, was recuperating at St. Mary's Hospital in West Palm Beach from severe dehydration and sunburn. He was rescued 6 miles off the coast of Juno Beach in the Atlantic Ocean on Monday morning by a fisherman.

An admittedly inexperienced sailor, Kalmer set out Sunday with two friends on The Gusto, a 24-foot sailboat he had bought on Friday.

His new sailboat had no radio, no emergency supplies, no anchor and the motor eventually quit.

He said its previous owner was supposed to bring in emergency equipment and an anchor on Monday. But the temptation of Sunday's sailing weather got the better of him.

So Kalmer, Amy Reese, 24, and Mike Humes, 32, departed the Port Everglades Sunday afternoon. At about 5:30 p.m., Kalmer dove into the water to cool off. He soon realized without a ladder, he could not get back into the boat and cut his leg in the process.

Reese and Humes, both from Hollywood, threw Kalmer a floating seat cushion, but they could not help him. Neither he nor his companions know how to sail, and the boat's motor would not start.

"I kept telling him, 'Hold on John,'" said Reese, who watched helplessly as Kalmer drifted away.

Caught in the Gulfstream, which moves north at three to five miles an hour, Kalmer said attempts to swim to shore throughout the night proved futile.

"You can't imagine the feeling of seeing all those buildings on shore going by so quickly," he said. "I saw a pink one, and tried to swim to it. I didn't get anywhere. Then I saw a water tower and made that my goal. It just kept getting farther away."

Kalmer said he passed out at least twice while bobbing in the water and praying for help. During the long hours in the darkness, Kalmer said he felt badly that he didn't go to church on Sunday.

He said three storms passed over him, each whipping 5-foot waves, as he continued to drift and cling to the seat cushion.

"Shark bait," he figured," Kalmer said. "But I don't know what was worse, worrying about the sharks or all that lightning."

Kalmer's rescuers at first the boat passed by him.

"I tell you what, I screamed a couple of choice words then," Kalmer said and smiled. "But then he doubled back and nearly ran over me he got so close."

Reese and Humes were found minutes later on the drifting Gusto.

Despite the ordeal, neither Kalmer nor his friends have given up on sailing.

"I'll go again," Humes said. "I'll make sure the boat has all the necessary equipment and an engine that runs."

state road contracts could have a major impact on the Chiefland company. According to FDOT contract information, White has been awarded $203.5 million in state road contracts during the past 10 years. The Seminole County expressway project represents White's largest contract award of the past decade.

White is seeking $4.5 million in damages and 347 extra days to complete the project in a separate action. Expressway spokesman Gayle Geddes said the state has rejected the additional-day claim and is negotiating over the damages claim.

A White official, who would not give his name, had no comment Monday.

The state is paying White $23.5 million to build the section of the 12-mile expressway between Lake Jesup and U.S. Highway 17-92 in Sanford. The project is broken into three segments. Hubbard Construction Co. is building the three segments south of the lake. No delinquency notices have been issued to Hubbard, said Geddes.

Turner

ty Mental Health Center.

Turner, now 59, is beginning his own emergence from a 4½-year stint in the Arizona state prison system for conducting an illegal pyramid scheme. He is once again living in south Seminole County, although not in the huge castle on Bear Lake that burned several years ago. He was released in early 1992.

Turner is, once again, selling a motivational and self-improvement program "Total Lifepower," which combines elements of his "Dare to be Great" program with financial and health advice. Prices for the packages range from $550 to $1,650.

The charismatic and often colorful salesman and speaker founded Koscot Interplanetary Inc. in 1967 with a $5,000 loan and went on to build an empire estimated at $300,000. A motivation program founded by a colleague in Arizona, Challenge America, led to his conviction on 19 criminal charges in 1987. The charges included nine violations of Arizona's anti-pyramid scheme laws and nine violations of the state's fraudulent schemes laws.

But Monday, Turner pitched no self-help programs to Turning Point members, only the message that if they believe in themselves, they can do anything they want. Turner said he appeared free at the invitation of one of the members, a son of friends.

"We are going to talk about problems and how you live with problems," he said, with the shrug of his barepelt. "The whole world is full of problems."

Turner went on to tell of a teacher who once told him "You need to get that harepelt out of your mind and back to where it belongs." Once he let the self-consciousness and self-pity go, he was able to attain success, Turner said.

"The bottom line is the only helping hand you'll get is the one on the end of your sleeve," he said.

Though his audience was not as enthusiastic as his "No Matter What" starting-over seminar in Orlando two months ago, Turner within minutes had the member's captive attention.

"Are you better today than the first day you started here?" he asked.

"The environment seems so much more acceptable outside than when I started here," said one young man.

"Why is that?" Turner responded quickly.

"I accept myself. I believe in myself" the young man responded to applause and cheers.

Turner urged the gathering to look at themselves in the mirror, focusing on one eye, for two minutes each day for seven days and say only positive things about themselves.

"Start bragging on who you see," he said. "Because if you continue to think the way you have thought, you'll be no better than you have been. You've got to learn to empty out the things that hurt you so you can put in the things that will help you."

Cubans coddle Harleys through 34 years of socialism

By JOHN RICE
Associated Press Writer

HAVANA, Cuba — It was a sound that few in Havana had heard for decades: the shuddering thunder of Harley-Davidsons. And few eyes were prepared to see bridal veils trailing from the leader of the pack.

But sisters Mildred and Miriam Morales let their veils glide in the breeze as they stood with their bridegrooms on a platform built onto the back of the lead Harley.

The newlyweds recently led an earth-shaking procession of 30 aging motorcycles through the heart of Havana and along the Malecon waterfront.

The Morales sisters were only keeping with tradition: Their father owns a Harley. And after 30 years of isolation by the United States, sticking by that tradition in Cuba isn't easy.

It takes a lot of old-fashioned Cuban know-how to keep the archetypical American motorcycle on the road. Cuba's economic crisis means spare parts of any kind, from any place, are hard to come by.

Gasoline rationing makes it difficult just to fill the tank.

"If there's gas, I go riding," said Osmani Hernandez, 32. "That's not very often now," he added, as he showed off the original parts on his 1950 model Harley.

Pistons have been borrowed from Moto Guzzis and Alfa Romeos. Bits of Russian and Czech motorcycles have been adapted. Many parts have been machined or welded or just plain bent from scraps and scratch.

"It takes a lot of work, a lot of dedication," Lazaro Rolando Sanchez said as he stood amid the cycles — some gleaming, some a bit rusty — at an open-air restaurant at the wedding reception for the Morales sisters.

Angel Viera knelt beside one of the cycles and showed how Cubans had married Harley Davidson spokes to 15-inch Volkswagen rims. There were no tires in Cuba — other than those for a Russian anti-aircraft gun — that fit the original Harley wheels.

Only a handful of Harley-Davidsons — or any other American vehicles for that matter — entered Cuba after 1962, when the U.S. imposed a trade embargo on the country following Fidel Castro's Communist revolution.

Many of the Harleys that remained have been lovingly maintained.

"I've been offered a lot of money for my Harley, but I'm never going to sell. It would be better to take my blood," said Nestor Merino, 30, whose T-shirt proclaimed: "Harley Davidson Motorcycles: Born in the U.S.A."

But even years of restoration often aren't enough to get the motorcycles rolling in a country crippled by the demise of the Soviet Union, which until 1990 supplied Cuba with most of its oil.

Many Cubans say they haven't received any gasoline rations in two months or more. A quart of black market gasoline costs about 25 pesos — a healthy chunk of the 150 to 300 pesos most people earn a month.

For migrant workers, jobs are scarce in flooded farm country

By SUSAN SEVAREID
Associated Press Writer

MANKATO, Minn. — For a fifth straight year, Pablo and Maria Pecero made the 1,300-mile trip from Brownsville, Texas, to pack peas and corn in a Minnesota plant.

But with those crops devastated by a summer of floods, there's little work for the Peceros and at least 10,000 other migrant workers in the upper Midwest. Aid is scarce, and many are wondering how they'll make it without the paychecks they count on to pay bills through the winter.

"Every time the governor says the farmers were affected, there's a farm worker right behind them that's being affected," said Roberto Reyna, executive director of Midwest Farm Worker Employment and Training Inc. in St. Cloud.

Many migrant workers in the Midwest are finding lakes where the fields they've harvested for years should be. Crops that survived floods are behind schedule.

Other workers, like the Peceros, found that hours are scarce at processing plants. The couple worked 33 days straight last year during the June and July pea-packing season, Pecero said through an interpreter. This year, he estimates they've worked 10 days.

Wages from the upcoming corn-packing season should cover the return trip to Texas, Pecero said. But he doesn't expect to be able to save any money, which means filing for unemployment as soon as he returns to Brownsville.

Reyna said many field workers have been less fortunate. Without money for rent or food, some have left. Others want to go but don't have enough money to make it back to Texas.

"Even in a good year, migrants don't make a lot of money," Reyna said. "If your income is $3,000 and you lose 75 percent of it, that doesn't give you much to live on."

Jobless migrant workers are getting some help, but their needs may outstrip what's available.

In Wisconsin, several hundred migrant workers headed for home received bus tickets and gas vouchers from United Migrant Opportunity Services in Milwaukee. Lupe Martinez, the group's president, said he expects many more requests at the end of growing season, but his budget is nearly exhausted.

In Minnesota, 2,500 people have applied for federal disaster unemployment aid, and the Labor Department expects 1,500 more applications from migrant workers in the state.

Roberto Godina of Eagle Pass, Texas, said he has received two unemployment checks totaling $360. But even with the $200 he earned during the pea-packing season, he is still well short of the $2,000 he made packing peas last year.

Godina and Pecero are among about 50 migrant workers in Minnesota who began work Monday on flood cleanup projects paid for by a $250,000 federal grant. Their jobs will include cleaning up glass and branches in a Mankato park.

Little Jessica back with birth parents

By GREG SMITH
Associated Press Writer

CEDAR RAPIDS, Iowa — Taken away from the only home she has known, away from her swing set, away from her dog, 2½-year-old Jessica begins a new life with virtual strangers: her biological parents.

Screaming and crying, the dark-eyed toddler left the couple who raised her to be united Monday with Dan and Cara Schmidt, who had fought a fierce legal battle almost since her birth to win her back.

"Mommy!" Jessica cried as she was carried swiftly from Jan and Robert DeBoer's front door in Ann Arbor, Mich. The weeping DeBoers reached out one last time to the little girl in the floral-print dress and a ponytail, but friends inside the house restrained them.

"I want my Dad. Where's my Dad?" Jessica said on the way to meeting the Schmidts, according to the DeBoers' lawyer, Suellyn Scarnecchia.

Jessica was taken by van to a police station, where she was handed over by court order to the Iowa couple.

Within the hour they were on a chartered plane, flying toward a new life. The plane landed at an undisclosed location, dropping the Schmidts off. Their lawyer, Marian Faupel, flew on to the scheduled landing spot — Cedar Rapids — to speak to the hordes of waiting reporters.

The new family went into seclusion, rather than return to their home in Blairstown, about 25 miles west of Cedar Rapids, she said.

"It will take a while to cement this relationship," Faupel said.

The Schmidts' small, white home in Blairstown sat empty, wrapped in a yellow ribbon and decorated with a sign proclaiming "Welcome Home Anna." Below "Anna," in smaller letters, was "Jessica."

The Schmidts have said they will call the girl Jessica, at least for a while. They arranged for a therapist to help with the transition if necessary.

It wasn't known if the DeBoers would be able to visit Jessica, Scarnecchia said.

Jessica, who is calling the Schmidts by their first names, never asked about the DeBoers during the trip, Faupel said.

"We had a happy, safe flight," the lawyer said. Jessica slept and opened presents, including a doll and a toy airplane with passengers inside.

The Schmidts had been meeting with the DeBoers the past three weeks to get acquainted with Jessica. The DeBoers sent along a few toys and a list of the girl's bedtime and bath routines, Faupel said.

"On the last visit, Jessica got out a blanket and invited Dan to lie down with her," the attorney said. "It was clear she feels safe" with the Schmidts.

Mrs. Schmidt gave up custody of the girl shortly after giving birth in 1991 in Cedar Rapids. She was single at the time.

The DeBoers planned to adopt Jessica. But Mrs. Schmidt, who initially named the wrong man as the father, changed her mind. She informed Schmidt in 1991 that he was the father, and the couple began trying to get their daughter back.

Little opposition as Ginsburg sails to Senate confirmation

By LAURIE ASSE
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON — The Senate is scaling President Clinton's choice of Ruth Bader Ginsburg as the second woman to serve on the Supreme Court.

The 60-year-old federal appeals judge appeared all but certain to win confirmation today as the 107th Supreme Court justice.

Chosen to replace resigned Justice Byron P. White, Ginsburg is the first Supreme Court nominee by a Democratic president in 26 years and also would join the high court's first female justice, Sandra Day O'Connor, who was nominated by President Reagan in 1981.

Ginsburg was praised during Senate floor debate Monday as a judicial moderate, an experienced liberal background and a woman's rights advocate for the American civil liberties movement.

Judge Ginsburg consistently voted and strategized to resolve cases through compromise and mediation, while liberal and conservative blocs argued their cases. Her record shows she is a moderate, not a liberal or conservative.

Justice Ginsburg has a record of compromise and mediation, while liberal and conservative blocs argued their cases.

During her confirmation hearing, Ginsburg described the right to abortion as essential to women's equality and said she still favored the Equal Rights Amendment as a clarion call that women and men are equal under the law.

She denounced discrimination against homosexuals but would not say whether she thought it was illegal for an institutional and church-related employer to view an applicant as gay.

Ginsburg said she was neither of the public's limited role of termination, and said judges should come to a ruling on the law, not their personal opinions.

She said she was a moderate and a pragmatist, not a liberal or conservative, and her record shows she is a moderate, not a liberal or conservative.

Dems ready for showdown on deficit cutting bill

By ALAN FRAM
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON — Democrats are preparing to vote on a $200-billion deficit-cutting package this week, possibly as early as Tuesday. The bill would raise the top marginal income tax rate to 30 percent, increase the Social Security tax, and raise the top rate on dividends to 20 percent.

A congressional Democratic majority of 218 to 213 is needed to pass the bill. The House is expected to vote on the bill on Tuesday, and the Senate on Wednesday.

House Speaker Thomas P. Luken (D-Ohio) said he expects the bill to pass in the House on Tuesday. He said the bill would raise the top marginal income tax rate to 30 percent, increase the Social Security tax, and raise the top rate on dividends to 20 percent.

Senate Majority Leader Al D'Amico (D-N.J.) said he expects the bill to pass in the Senate on Wednesday. He said the bill would raise the top marginal income tax rate to 30 percent, increase the Social Security tax, and raise the top rate on dividends to 20 percent.

Clinton planned a nationally televised speech tonight to try to build public support. But nervous Democrats know they would have to labor to get the bill through Congress.

Cubs win battle of Florida

SANFORD AND — The Seminole County public school computer program is the only one in the state to be named a National Merit award winner.

The Cub Scouts of Seminole County, Florida, won the 1992-93 National Merit award for its Cub Scouts program.

AROUND THE STATE

Sheffield misses trip

MIAMI — The St. Martin's College football team, Sheffield, has been unable to travel with the team to St. Louis, Missouri, and instead will be staying in Miami.

The team is scheduled to travel to St. Louis, Missouri, for a game on Saturday, August 7th.

Dolphins sign center

MIAMI — Miami Dolphins center Keith Egan has signed a one-year contract with the team.

Egan, who signed a one-year contract, has been a starter since his rookie year in 1989. He is expected to start in camp but could miss the start of the season while he continues his rehabilitation from reconstructive knee surgery.

AROUND THE NATION

Ex-Blue Darter helps Cards win

ST. LOUIS — Former Apopka High School and University of Florida star Rod Brewer and Brian Jordan supplied the offense for Bob Tewksbury.

Jordan had a triple and a double and scored two runs, and Brewer drove in two.

Tewksbury (1-7) gave up two runs on 12 hits with two walks and a strikeout in seven innings.

For Smith pitched a scoreless ninth for his major league-leading 47th save.

Brewer, having a season being recalled from the minors, had two drives in the Cardinals' last two in the game, with a triple off Jack Armstrong (2-0). Jordan scored on a single by Brewer late in the game, 4-2.

Mark Whiten put the Cardinals ahead to stay with a single in the third. Roy Landaud made it 4-2 when he homered in the fifth.

Driver's condition upgraded

BIRMINGHAM, Ala. — Stanley Smith severely injured in the July 25 DuPont 300 stock car race continues to improve.

He continues to be able to eat a little food, said David Smitherman, spokesman at Fairview Methodist Medical Center. Smith's condition was upgraded from critical to guarded. He's been up and even out of the bed a little bit over the weekend.

Smith has been in the neuro-intensive care unit since he was injured in a seven-car pileup during the NASCAR race at Talladega Superspeedway. The 43-year-old driver suffered a fractured skull and paralysis on his right side.

Rockets get Elie

HOUSTON — The Houston Rockets acquired guard Mario Elie from the Portland Trail Blazers for a second round draft pick in 1995.

The Rockets also released 41-year guard Eric Floyd to create room under the NBA salary cap.

Elie was drafted by Milwaukee in the seventh round in 1983. He spent the next six years playing in Portugal, Argentina, Ireland, and Miami in the U.S. Basketball League, and for Albany of the CBA from 1989-91.

Elie signed a 10-day contract with the Philadelphia 76ers in December 1990 and played the last part of the season with Golden State. He averaged 7.8 points in 79 games with the Warriors during the 1991-92 season.

He signed as a free agent with the Trail Blazers last summer and played in all 82 games, averaging 8.6 points and 2.6 rebounds.

St. Augustine driver repeats on VCS dirt

By Bill Siebert
Special to the Herald

BARBERVILLE — Streaks are becoming a habit on the new dirt track at Volusia County Speedway.

Even though the track has only been open a month, David Showers of St. Augustine has already picked Okala's Robbin' Parvess as a two-time winner in the Pro Late Model Division.

Showers is hoarse of luck for his second straight win on the Volusia County Speedway dirt track Friday night, powering his 1-Dave Mason, a Doodle Topper-Cocktail-Touange Pro Late Model car to victory late as one of three repeat winners from the previous week.

Showers took the hooker's flag in the Pro Late Model 1, while Fred Kruse added another trophy late in the Hobby Stock Division and Brian Dwyer repeated with a win in the Pro Stock Division.

Dennis Young took a 100-lap race in the Junior and the great of the night, Eastern Mini Sprint Association's race, and Marvin Taylor of St. Augustine won a 20-lap race in the Mini Sprint Division. Dave Hill, Howard won a 10-lap race after taking a pole for a 10-lap race.

The dirt track holds racing every Friday night with a full race program, while the high school ball field asphalt oval holds Saturday

Taylor chased Howard for most of the Mini Stock Division feature, but when the final rally was in, he was able to take the trophy that he missed a week earlier due to a dislocated foot.

Taylor was followed by Alan Bradley, Lee Hunter, Wayne Wells and Fred Kruse.

Dennis Mason finished in a commanding position in the South Eastern Mini Sprint Association final ahead of Bob Schaefer and Tom Morrison. Dennis talked Taylor into driving a race out under the lights because of nervous sitting in the stands.

Nick Ramsey and Greg Scripps rounded out the Mini Sprint top five.

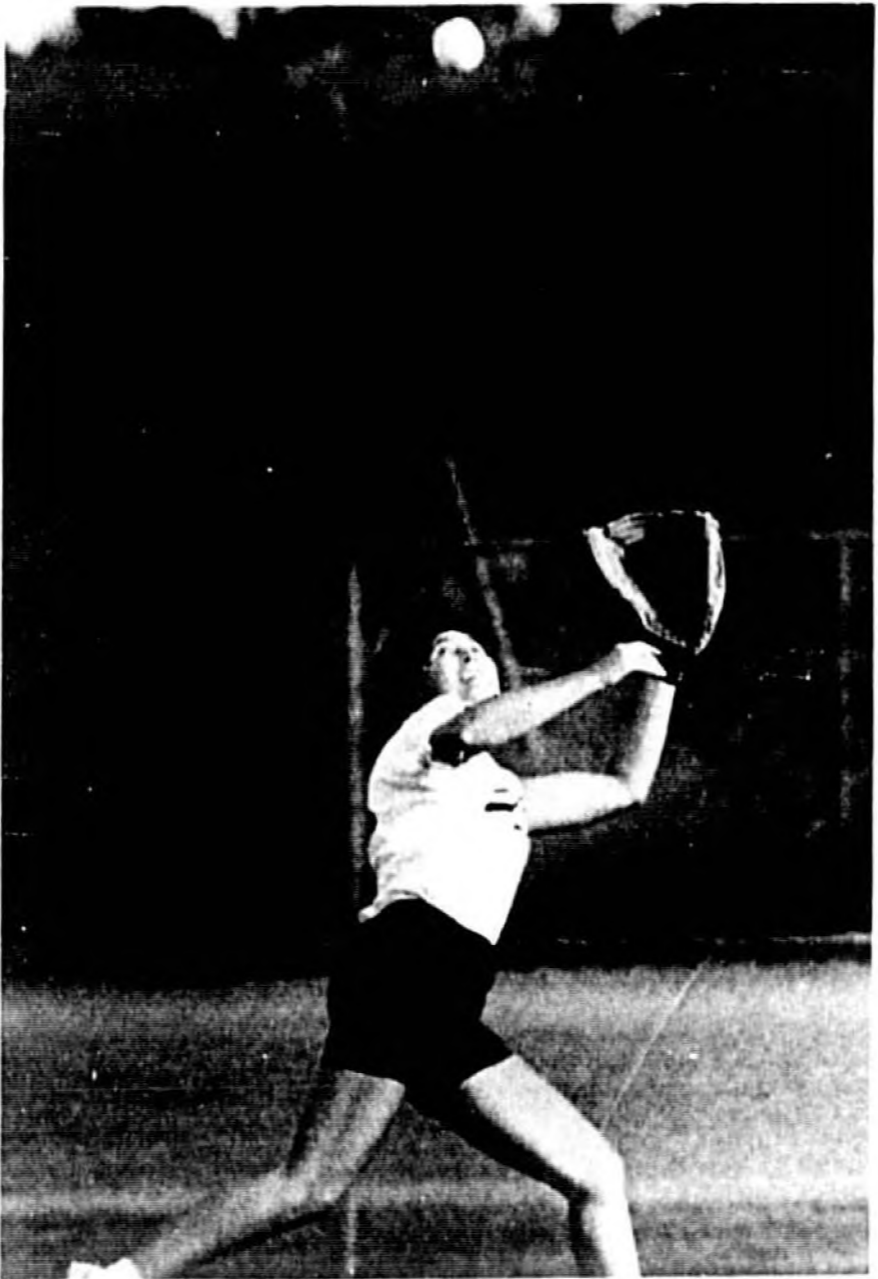

Kruse put his number 11 Chevrolet into the winner's circle for the night in the 10-lap Junior race, starting out behind Young and finishing second through 200 laps. Marvin Taylor took the 10-lap race.

Hot or not, the games must go on

While most recreation programs in Seminole County are on hiatus, the new Central Winds Complex in Winter Springs is still very busy. In the top photo, Garth Bolton, Assistant Sports Coordinator, applies the finishing touches to the field for the night's Women's League action.

RAINES GAUGE

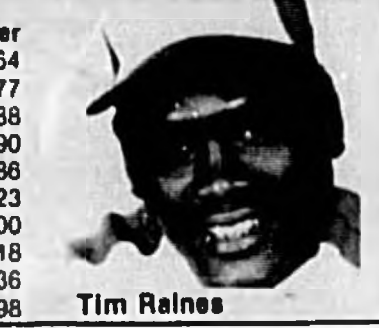

Tim Raines is a Sanford native and Seminole High School graduate now playing for the Chicago White Sox. His stats are for the 1993 season in the first column, personal-best season totals in the second column and current career totals (including 1993 games) in the third column.

A perfect night by Raines went for naught as the White Sox dropped a 9-8 decision to the Texas Rangers. Raines put the Sox ahead 1-0 and 3-2 by singling and scoring in the first and driving in a run with a sacrifice fly in the third. He also scored a run during a four-run eighth inning that tied the score at 8-8.

Raines finished the night 2-for-2, with two runs scored and an RBI. Tonight's game will be on WGN starting at 8:30 p.m.

Beauties by any other name are not properly addressed

DEAR ABBY: Over the years, I have written many plays and articles. (No pay, but I have enjoyed every minute of it.)

I am now planning a beauty pageant, and I'm working with the contestants — females between 20 and 40 years old. When I addressed them as "girls," I was reprimanded and told that the term "girls" should be reserved for children, and the appropriate term for these females is "ladies."

When I addressed them as "ladies," I was corrected again and told that "women" was the way to address them. However, when I called them "women," some of them objected, saying they preferred being called "ladies."

The date of the pageant is approaching, and I would appreciate knowing how to address the contestants. There seems to be a variety of opinions, and I will be beholden to you for the correct one. Thanking you in advance, I am...

ADVICE

ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

BY WALLACE IN SKOKIE, ILL.

DEAR BY WALLACE: All females are "women," but not all women are "ladies."

The dictionary defines a lady as someone who is polite, refined and well-mannered. Not all women possess those traits.

Why don't you simply refer to the women as "contestants"? Or better yet, refer to them as "beauties" — I assure you, you will get no complaints.

DEAR ABBY: Every year without fail, on Aug. 31, parents phone their pediatricians' office demanding that "Irving" or "Esmeralda" be given an appointment that day for a school examination. Without this examination, the parents plead, the child will not be admitted to public school or allowed to play school sports.

pediatrician or pediatric nurse-practitioner, and cannot be reduced to a "quickie" office visit.

Abby, if you print this, perhaps parents will have their children's checkups scheduled earlier, and pediatricians and their staff will have fewer "Maalox moments" the final week of school vacation.

MARVIN L. AUERBACK, M.D., FOSTER CITY, CALIF.

DEAR DR. AUERBACK: Thank you for a valuable suggestion. Parents: Avoid the rush, and schedule those back-to-school checkups now.

DEAR ABBY: Here's another name you might like to add to your "odd names" list: A friend of mine from years ago, Jim Paradise, married a girl by the name of Helen Courtney. Thus a new name — Helen Paradise.

GENED WARD, LOS ANGELES

DEAR MR. WARD: Cute!

DEAR ABBY: You want to hear about recycled gifts? Susie was visiting Elma and noticed a beautiful and expensive-looking beer stein in Elma's china cabinet. Susie kept looking at it, then she said, "Why, that's just like the one I bought Eddie!" (Eddie was Susie's husband.)

Elma then said, "Oh? ... Art (Eddie's half-brother) gave it to us." Susie just stood there with her mouth open. She then realized why Eddie's gift had mysteriously disappeared.

Have these legs gone over the hill?

DEAR DR. GOTT: I'm 84 and in good health. My concern is deterioration of my leg strength, particularly in the hamstrings and gluteal area. Muscle stiffness and soreness have accompanied this gradual decline in strength. I climb and work out in a gym three times a week. Can you recommend a diet or exercise that might put a little kick back into these legs, or am I now possibly over the last hill?

Short of following a well-balanced diet with -- perhaps -- a multi-vitamin supplement, I can't advise you about your eating habits. Your doctor can, though, once he has checked you over.

Remember that you are not "over the last hill," if you continue to enjoy health benefits from a program of regular exercise that is appropriate for you.

MEDICINE

DEAR READER: Loss of muscle mass and strength is so common in old age that it can rightly be considered a normal consequence of the aging process. We simply get weaker as we get older.

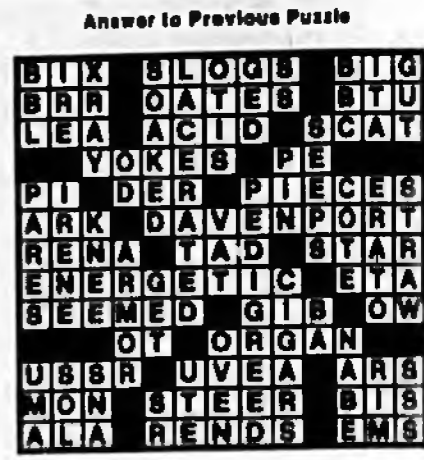

Nonetheless, you may be helped by an individualized muscle-strengthening program that could be created by a physical therapist, a trainer or (if he is knowledgeable) the director of your gymnasium.

It may be much harder to strengthen old muscles, but many studies have proved it can be done. Of course, you won't notice the benefits as readily as you might have 50 years ago, but if you like to exercise, it's worth a try.

I confess that I'm concerned by your brief comment about "muscle stiffness and soreness." If these symptoms follow your exercise, that's normal. However, if you're stiff and sore even before exercising, you may have a low-grade muscle inflammation that could be sabotaging your efforts to become more fit. Ask your doctor about this.

Incidentally, given your age, it's probably a good idea to have a complete physical exam before beginning a serious exercise program. For one thing, your physician will undoubtedly want to assess your cardiovascular system (with an electrocardiogram or stress test) and perform blood tests to verify your nutritional state. Also, your symptoms may bother him as they do me.

WIN AT BRIDGE

By Phillip Aider

A new book called "Bridge Quiz for Improving Players" has been written by Australian Tim Bourke and Scotsman Hugh Kelsey (Gollancz, $23.95, 800-274-2221). It contains 60 declarer-play problems, each on a right-hand page with the solution overlaid. The problems run from the somewhat simple to the decidedly difficult.

Against your contract of four spades, West leads the club king and continues with the club queen. After you ruff, what is your plan?

Understandably, you drove your hand to game. But for once partner has exactly what he promised: a balanced Yarborough. If you go down, you know he will nod learnedly and say he warned you with all those negative bids.

Assuming spades are 3-2, you have nine tricks: four spades, two hearts and three diamonds. Either a 3-3 heart break or a heart ruff in the dummy will have to generate your 10th trick. But you must be careful if the distribution is as in the diagram. If you start with two top trumps before playing three rounds of hearts, West will win three consecutive tricks with the heart 10, spade jack and heart queen. If you play three rounds of hearts immediately, West will win and play a fourth round. East will overruff the dummy and West will still have a trump trick to come.

The correct way to try to retain control is to duck a heart at trick three. Ruff the club return, draw two rounds of trumps and then play hearts from the top. Here you ruff the fourth heart in the dummy.

HOROSCOPE

YOUR BIRTHDAY
Wednesday, Aug. 4, 1993

Through last year's personal experiences you now have a better understanding of yourself, as well as a better understanding of others. In the year ahead this will be a powerful asset you can use advantageously.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) You'll learn by teaching others today. This will become very evident to you if you're called upon to help an associate sort out a complicated problem. Leo, treat yourself to a birthday gift. Send for your Astro-Graph predictions for the year ahead by mailing $1.25 and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope to Astro-Graph, c/o this newspaper, P.O. Box 4465, New York, N.Y. 10163. Be sure to state your zodiac sign.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) In your important one-to-one relationships today you're likely to reach others quicker through their emotions than through their material interests. Don't put the emphasis on the latter.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22) It won't be necessary for associates to look over your shoulder today and to prod you to do a good job. Your self-pride will influence your productivity.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Today you may be in love with love and there is nothing wrong with that. There is ample room in this abrasive world for another romanticist.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) You could be a take-charge person today, but family members won't find this offensive. When you assume authority over a situation, they'll know it'll make their life easier.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) A change of venue could help regenerate your outlook today. Go someplace different, not necessarily distant, but where you can experience the unfamiliar.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Your instincts for spotting bargains could be keener than usual today. If it fits into your agenda, this might be a good time to shop for something you've been wanting.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Lately you've been focused on doing things for others and this is admirable. However, today it's important you devote time to some of your personal needs.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Today you're apt to be a bit more responsive than usual to persons who are in need of your help. Even if sacrifices are required, you'll do what it takes to assist.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Dealing with others in a kindly fashion is the key to successful relationships today. It's good you understand this, because involvements with others will either make or break you.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Objectives that appear to be too difficult to attain can be achieved today. Regroup your forces and do not settle for failure.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Seek creative involvements today that enable you to use your full powers of imagination. Sever all restraints on your thinking and let your mind explore all possibilities.
